Poetry.

Written for the Berrien County Record.

His gloomy skies and chilling breath, His ley gems or snow-wrought wreath.

Hark how the north wind madly raves, Borne down to us from Arctic's waves, Where grim king Winter rules alone With tow'ring icebergs for his throne.

It piles the snow in mystic heaps, And through the leaflers forest sweeps; And onward roars, o'er land and sea, Without a note of melody.

But well I know that Spring's sweet breath Will waft away the snowy wreath; Unshroud the earth, and wake the flow'rs With sunbeams warm, and gentle show'rs. I dearly love the bright, young Spring Who coquettes with the stormy King Until she wins the season's crown,

TRUST ME ALL IN ALL:

Patter, patter, goes the rain, and every now and then such a gust of wind comes round the corner as makes the old windows rattle again in their old fashioned frames, and sends Susan to the door for the twentieth time to see if Jack is coming.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday, the 23d day of March next, at It o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, thou to be holden at the Probate Office in the village of Berrien Springs, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it glimpse of that truant brother-stations herself on one of the great, deep window-sills, belonging to the wide, old-fashioned kitchen, with its rough oaken ceiling and floor, standing out in the greatest contrast to the small, oval-shaped supper table, laid for two. with its dainty white cloth and pretty china. Indeed, what little furniture there was, was very modern, not at all in keeping with the quaint, old surroundings; and as you looked at Susan in the midst of these, with her bright young face, it reminded you of some

"Gray Crags," and a good brother to Jack. But they did not seem to mind it, say, there was no resisting Jack. Indeed, something very little short of perfection was he in this young sister's small thing they called Patty, sole domestic of the establishment, made the endless journeys to and from the kitchen, bearing several small dishes with the covers set thereon, while a strong odor of hot muffins pervades the appartment. Then there comes the sound whistling some merry tune, and Jack enters the room, and Le and Susan sit to-day, for it was Patty's great failing, that of breaking plates, and whenever Susan reproved her for her carelessness, the child's answer generally was "that Mr. Jack was a laughing of her, and the plate had a fallen from her to tell you." hand."

Jack," Susan would say, reprovingly, whereupon Jack would look very penitent and answer, with that comical look upon his handsome face:

that it was rather a moist day, and Susan relating some little bits of village gossip she had heard from Mr. Iryland, who had called on her that morning, among which there must have been some very funny bits, for Jack laughed so loud that the small Patty, with her usual impudence, crept in be-

"Yes; do you want anything from him a note from her, saying she the village store? I am passing by, if you do.' "No, dear, not to-night."

And Susan watched him go round to the stable, saddle Red Dobbin and ride away, and then Susan went back to her seat by the hearth and did what was with her a very unusual thing, and that was nothing. Instead of working and reading she sat in her old seat, with her hands in her lap, and thought, wondering what was the attraction that was enticing Jack out night after night in this way, wondered where and what it could be.

sea was calm, with just a faint ripple upon it, like corn in harvest time smiling to find the sovereign wind its wooer, is Jack Crotton rode out of the gate and on and on down the road, leaving "Gray Crags" far behind him. One mile, two miles, three miles, and still Red Dobbin was urged forward. A turn in the road, a low iron railing, which both horse and rider seem to know well, they take it at such an easy leap, a broad gravel sweep, and then the horse stops in

Mr. Crofton did walk in, hanging his hat up in the hall as he passed through, showing thereby that it was not the first time his cap had hung

Elspeth Cardinging lay on a low sofa drawn up by one of the windows, lay there with her bright brown hair drrwn back from her broad, low forehead, and a pleased look lighting up her eyes as she turned to the door, and with heightened color and out-stretched hand bade Jack welcome. Ah! if Susan could have seen Jack then as he bent over her for one minute, and asked how the day had sped with her, and then drawing up a stool sat down by her side. All his recklessness was gone and in its place such winning tenderness Susan would not have known him. And yet not one word of love was spoken between those two the whole time he was there; but as he mounted Red Dobbin to depart, he rode round to the window for a final adieu, and Elspeth, lying there, stretched out her hand and patted Red Dobbin's arched neck approvingly as he stood pawing the gravel beside words, Jack rode away. A fortnight passed—a bright, short fortnight it was to these two young hearts so full of love—and at the end of it Elsie and Jack had communication were to be married; not just yet, but in the early autumn when the trees put on their coat of many colors. In the meantime all went merry as a marriage bell, and for once the course of true love seemed indeed to run her: and then, after a few parting smoothly. At first Susan was astonished at the very idea of Jack's getting married, and a pang shot through her heart at the idea of her coming in only second in Jack's love. But her sweet, unselfish nature put it away, and the thought of Jack's happy face the day he told her, and of how proud and sweet Elsie looked beside him.

So time wore on, very brightly, very, swiftly, for these two young lovers. Jack spent half his time at the cottage, he was so loth to have her out of his sight for any length of time; and whenever she was unable to see him, as she sometimes was on account of the delicate state of her health, he al ways found a tiny note awaiting him at home, signed with her name, as if he did not know from whom they came -sweet, tender little notes that would bear the test of more than one read-

But as the time drew near to the day fixed upon for their wedding, Elsie, though as tender as ever, did not speak of it much, and when Jack urged the subject she spoke as if it were something quite indefinite, till Jack lost all patience, and told her jone day with all his usual recklessness that he did not believe she wanted to be married at all; at which words such a grieved look swept across Elsie's fair face as Jack had never seen there before, and felt cut to the heart for having said

He tried to undo the wrong he had done her by many tender words and caresses, but Elsie stopped him with: "No, Jack, it is not that; you know that I am as eager for that time to come as you are, but," she continued, her voice growing very tender, as if she would fain lessen the hard dose she was about to administer, "there isa strong reason why you and I cannot be married this autumn." "And that reason?" demanded Jack with fierce impatience. "That reason," and here all Elsie's calmness left her, "I am not at liberty

And burying her face in the sofa cushion, she burst into tears. Jack strove to soothe her, assuring her he did not want a reason, but would be content to wait years if she but willed it, so long as he won her in the end, till Elsie's sweet face grew calm again, and then Jack rose up to take his leave. But Elsie detained him, laying one and lightly upon his arm. "Jack, you know that song of mine 'Trust me all in all?'

would be unable to see him that day. It was a bitter disappointment to poor Jack, but he thought he would just ride on and leave the flowers. which he did, scribbling the words, "I am so sorry not to see you, Birdie," on a slip of paper, which he handed in with the bouquet for Miss Carding-

It was a lovely night, and as Jack passed the parlor window he could not resist the temptation of drawing back the ivy with one hand and peeping in, hoping to get a glimpse of her dear face to cheer him on his way.

And there, there before him-with his own eyes he saw it-sat Elspeth, and beside her on the sofa she had alman of about six and twenty, far handsomer, far more attractive looking than Jack; and while one of Elsie's white hands was entangled among the brown curls resting upon his forehead, he looked up and smiled upon her with that handsome face of his—smiled upon her! And before poor Jack, petrified, and feeling as if his heart had turned to stone, had time to turn away, he saw Elsie bend over that man, as if to complete the scene, and kiss him tenderly, even as she had done to Jack the night but une before.

It was weeks, yes, months, before Jack was able to go about the farm again, and then even it was but the shadow of his former self, so great had been the shock to him, and during all this time not one word of explanation had come. True, there had been numberless small notes filled with love and regret, but these Jack had torn up and scattered to the four winds of heaven. Had he mixed more with the world, poor Jack! and known its customs better, he would have gathered them all together, and sent them back whence they came. But he was only a simple hearted Welsh country boy, and knew only that Elsie had broken his heart.

Oh, this first love! it may be very fresh, but it can be very fierce, too. Jack suffered deeply, and not only he, but Susan, too, was heart-broken, whenever she looked at him, feeling very bitterly against her who had been the cause of so much sorrow. But one morning all their anger melted away, and real sorrow came in its stead, for they were told that she was dead, that crape was hanging from Dr. Cardinging's door, and that crape was tied with white. Even Jack forgave her the great wrong she had done him, and bowed himself down in grief.

whole village mourned sincerery, the lieving Elsie Cardinging to be dead, when lo! on the evening of the same day she was seen standing by the window, looking pale and worn, it is true, but quite alive and well. And still the crape hung there. Never before had any village been in a greater state of excitement and wonder, which lasted till the middle of the next day, and when the whole story came out—the terrible secret they had guarded so carefully.

It was a younger brother of Dr. Cardinging's, who had forged to a large amount in some foreign country and then had come across and secreted himself in this small village near his brother, where he had found him very weak and ill, and had removed him to the cottage. . It was he that Jack had seen the night he played the spy, and it was he, poor soul! who lay dead there now.

Such was the sad stery, and long before the news had reached Susan at the farm, Jack and Red Dobbin were on their way to the cottage. He sent no word before him, asking her to receive him again, nor wrote a note explaining why he came, but simply rang the bell, and when the door was opened, walked in where Elsio sat, ooking very sweet in her deep mourning robes, quietly working by the fire.
"Jack!" "Elsie!" was all they said, but in those two words two loving hearts were united again, and never was forgiveness so freely ten-dered as was Elsie's when Jack's fale was told. So my story ends, as most stories do, with the sound of wedding bells, and need I add that trust and love reigned all in all forevermore at Gray

A Cemetery Falling Into a Tunnel.

At Pere la Chaise, the celebrated Parisian cemetery, a disaster has oc-curred which, happily, is swithout precedent. It appears that the railway of the Menilmontan-Charonne route is carried by a tunnel directly under the northeastern part of the burying ground, near the Mussulman, quarter. Recently, the arch of this. tunnel was found to be defective, and passenger traffic was suspended. On Saturday, the 7th instant, at 9 p. m., a terriffic noise was heard in the tunnel. The vault of the arch had fallen in for a distance/of twenty feet, dragging down into the abyss the mortuary contents of some forty tombs. The human remains—chiefly bones—were gathered together and deposited in another spart of the cemetery . The work of removing the remains was a dangerous one, for it was feared that other portions of the wall might fall-on the workmen, involving the living you are so fond of," she said, sighing, with the dead. THIEVES AND STEALIN'.

It makes me hoppin' mad to think Of all the thieves and stealin' Among the folks that live so high, And are so big of feelin'; see With hands that do no sort o' work Except to handle money And make it come so short o' count, It sartin isn't funny.

But bless me !-can't they dress and swell, In lofty style and splendor, On stealins' that don't sartin' make Their conscience over tender? When they can feel so high above The smaller thieves and sinners, Whose hen-roost stealins wouldn't make One of their plainest dinners.

Folks mostly now begin ter think Sich loads o' silks and laces, And jewels and grand carriages, Means this don't count for much in honest people's feelins, Who have ter work for all the cash They gobble up in stealins.

They say that Washington is jist A den o' thieves together, And they have plucked our eagle bird Of every quill and feather; And now they think to make it good · By taxin' us the greater, When they had orter all be shot Olean from the realms o' Natur'.

Can Consumption be Cured.

This is truly a question of great importance. When we consider the lungs as a vital organ, and their close proximity to the heart, their delicate structure, the important office they have to perform-in a state of disease and ulcers forming npon them—that the very atmosphere we inhale contributes most essentially to increase diseased action upon them, it could not be surprising that this disease should be considered absolutely incur-

When they become sufficiently large they irritate the lungs, produce inflammation which terminates in small ulcers, frequently covering a large portion of the mucous membrane of the lungs. Infants, until they arrive at an age when intellect dawns, constantly keep their fingers folded over their thumbs, but they soon know better, and, as the mind developes, recognize the dignity and usefulness of the despised digit. At the approach of death the thumbs of the dying, as if impelled as by vague fear, seek refuge under the fingers, and when found thus are an almost certain indication of the end. So, in leaving this world, it would seem that our hands in their last desire for ty of restoration, but proves that the movement assume, with our growing disease can be cured. The Way the Cable Talks.

An operator sits at a table in a room darkened by a curtain. On his left hand stands a little instrument named the "reflecting galvanometer," the invention of Sir William Thompson, without which Atlantic telegraphy would he a slow process not exceeding of eighteen or twenty, the present rate. The delicate instrument consists of a far different nature, which we of a tiny magnet and a small mirror shall more particularly describe in our swinging on a silk thread, the two together weighing but a few grains. The electric current passing along the wire from Valencia, deflects the magnet to and fro. The mirror reflects a spot of light on to a scale, in a box placed at the operator's right hand, where by cates the slight movements of the magnet, which are too slight to be directly seen. This little swinging magnet follows every change in the received current; and every current, great or small, produces a corresponding oscillation of the spot of light on the scale. A code of signals is so arranged by which the movements of the spot of light are made to indicate the letters of the alphabet. When receiving a message from Valencia, the operator watches the movement of the light speck, which keeps dancing about over the scale at his right. To his practiced eye-each movement of the spot of light represents a letter of the alphabet, and its seemingly fantastic motions are spelling out the intelligence which the pulsing of the electric current is transmitting between the two hemispheres. It is truly marvelous to note how rapidly the experienced operator disentangles the irregular oscillations of the little speck of light into the letters and words which they represent.

Everything went off very well; they fought; the bear, as was fitting, was vanquished, and lay motionless on the ground. But while very fine chivalrous action, and attracted for a few moments the attention of the audiennce, the victorious knight thought it a pity not to embrace this opportunity, and therefore struck his fallen adversary several times with the flat side of his sword. The bear bore it very patiently for some time; but when he found it going too far he suddenly sprang up, seized the knight and treated him so roughly that he fell down half dead with fear. At this instant it was the turn of the orchestra to be silent, and the knight was to sing a bravura in honor of the conquest. Everything was silent, the circumstance had not been noticed in the orchestra, the prompter gave the signal, but, as the knight was quite unable to sing, the bear, an equally good singer, without much ceremony, seated himself on the fallen knight and with a loud voice sang the air, to the no small entertainment of the audi-

Early last fall a protracted meeting was held at Northville by the Revs. Mr. Chapin and Mrs. Dawson. During this meeting Mrs. D. related a story of a certain family composed of father, mother, and an only child. She stated that they attended a protracted meeting and resisted all appeals to reverse their conduct in life and become followers of the precepts of Holy Writ. The mother soon after became a raving maniac, and died in that condition. Mrs. D. said that there might and probably would be a similar case at that place, but mentioned no names. A Mrs. George Taylor, Northville, being present, took these words as a direct application to herself and family, there being only three in the family. The result was that she became insane, was sent to an asylum in Utica, and there died on Wednesday. Her remains were brought home and deposited in the burying-ground at Northville. She was an unusually robust young woman, sound of mind and in the best of health until after hearing that story. As to the cause of her death we leave our readers to decide.—From the

Their father and mother were both dead, and excepting some cousins in the south of Wales, whom they had never seen but often heard their mother speak of, they had no other relatives. It had been their mother's wish before she died that they should both return to her sister in Wales; but Jack preferred staying where he was, and Susan, then a gir of seventeen, who never dreamed of disputing Jack's wisdom, stayed also. So these two lived on together, quite alone, with more real love between them than perhaps falls to the lot of most brothers and sisters; Susan especially, her devotion to Jack being something beautiful to behold. And Jack made a kind young master to

Susan. But it was comical to see him trying to lord it over them all in his boyish way, this handsome, reckless nobody ever did, for, as Susan would

TOWNSHIP ELECTION. It sometimes is currently talked that ir makes but little difference who is elected to office at the spring election. This is a sad mistake, and one that Republicans should avoid making. Let each township select their best men for the various offices to be filled this spring. Nothing is of more immediate importance than that our home affairs be administered with care, honesty and economy. With faithful men in office this will be done, but with men who cannot be trusted with handling the township funds it will be otherwise. To the voters, then, of all parts of Berrien County, but especially to the Republicans of the various Townships, we would say, put no man on your ticket this spring against whose integrity there are suspicions. There are enough good, tried and true men in the Townships to fiil the various offices. Let such men be selected and the prothat their public interests will be safe in their hand.

To insure the selection of this class of persons as candidates, it is of the ntmost importance that the temperance and moral element in every community should attend the township caucuses, and there make their influence felt. If this is not done, then the selection of candidates is left wholly with the political wire puller, who generally is none too honest. When once the people, the good and substantial of all parties, shall learn that to have a proper influence in the selection of the respective officers, from the smallest to the greatest, they must give their time and attention to the primary caucuses, then we may expect an improvement in our officials. These primary meetings are, in fact, the very place where our public servants are chosen.

Let not then, the sober, steady christian say, "I have no need of attending that caucus." Yes, you have. You are a part and parcel of this government, and you cannot throw off the responsibility. God will hold you accountable for your influence. Let not the quiet, moral temperate man say, "Well, there are too many noisy and boisterous persons attend these caucuses, I guess I'll not go." Not go! You are the very man that should go, and use your influence for good order, and the nomination to of-ice of faithful men. Don't think to shirk responsibility. Do your duty and all will be well.

TAXING RAILROAD COMPANIES.

There has always seemed to us some injustice in the manner that railroads pay their taxes. We cannot see any just reason why these corporations should be exempt from local or municipal taxation, while all other property sensible article from the columns of the Detroit Tribune will meet the harty endorsment of the people gener-

"The existing laws of this State provide that the specific taxes paid by railroad corporations to the State shall be in lieu of all other taxes whatever. We can see of no good reason why this should not be so changed as to permit the taxation of railroad property for municipal purposes, making the specific taxes an equivalent for the State taxes only. Under the present rule the State in effect directs that the railroads shall pay into its treasure not only those sums which ought in reason to be contributed to the suport of the organized authority of the commonwealth, but also the taxes which should naturally aid in meeting the expenses of the municipalities in which the railroads own property, which is benefited by the police, fire and other protection given it by the institutions of such municipalities. The foregoing is only a fair statement of the practical effect of the present system of specific taxation. For example, the railroad property within the boundaries of Detroit amounts to millions of dollars in value. The companies owning it pay a large specific tax into the State treasury, but the city Ecannot collect one cent towards defraying its expenditures from these millions which police force guards and its fire department protects. Certainly this state of offairs is in violation of any just principle of taxation.

We are not advecting exhorbitant taxation upon railroad companies. Our only desire is that they shall bear fair share of the burdens of supporting both our State and our municipal institutions. Let them pay a specific tax at Lansing that shall be a just equivalent for all State taxes and let them also be liable to such assessment for local taxation as shall en investigation be found to be equitable. We can see no admissable reason for objecting to this arrangement upon any side, and it would certainly be far superior to the present system in the abstract justness of its basis. This matter can be best reached by a constituional amendment, and it is certainly entitled to the consideration of the Legislature at its present session. We most earnestly hope that it will receive a place in the revison which will be submitted to the people next fall.

MINOR TOPICS.

A large number of influential religious journals have recently expressed a favor of having all church property subjected to taxation. The argument used is that if churches are exempted on account of incidental benefits to the public, that railroads, flouring mills, and other manufacturing corporations should be also exempted. This subject has another side to it, and we very much question the wisdom and propriety of changing the law as it exists at present.

President now living is a native of Tennessee, who became President by the assassination of Abranam Lincoln.

A Nebraska journal says: "Who says that farmers cannot get rich in his State? Fifteen years ago a young lad came to this State without a dollar in the world. Last week he went out of the State, carrying with him the sum of one dollar and thirty-eight cents, the savings of fifteen years of frugal life. Come West, young man, come West."

Employees do not always consent to let the proprietors manage their own business.

The reported death of Dr. Livingstone, the African explorer, is now believed to be unreliable. The obituary not ces which have appeared in print so many times will be reserved for future use, whenever opportunities | the passage of a bill defining the intent seem to warrant their publication.

The manufacture of barrels, at our State prison, has just been introduced.

It has just been announced, after proper medical examination, that what pagus of the class of Teraca-anacatadidyma, called Omplelophagus Xiphodidymus. This being the case, of course every one will admit that if they had been severed while living it would have resulted in death. It should be stated also, in this connection, that while the Doctors were so busy finding out the facts as above announced, their patients all got well.

Work of The Legislature.

LANSING, March 14th, 1874.

EDITORS RECORD: The business of the Legislature is moving rather slowly this week, partly from the fact that the nature of the business before them requires great care and deliberation, but also from the fact that many of the members of both houses are filled with a superabundance of gas. They never allow any motion or proposition to pass without giving it half a dozen airings to the evident detriment of their own lungs and the disgust of the other members. A few days ago a motion was made to limit the number of speeches by any Senator to two, not to exceed ten minutes each. The Senate spent a whole half day in the disposition of the motion, and then refused to pass it. Richardson, Dewey and DeLand declaring they would never submit to the

Both Houses have gone through with the amended constitution in Committee of the whole, and the various articles are being voted upon by a yea and nay vote, on the question of ordering the same to a third read-far it is almost impossible say what will be the final result on any particular article as a vote taken one day is frequently reclaimed the next. As for example, the Senate struck out the word "male" in the article on the "Elective Franchise" in Committee, in the action of the 114 to concur then turned around an amount of the second the second the second than the second the second the second than the vote. It is proper to say, however, that this action was taken by the friends of female sufferage, with the understanding that that proposition should be submitted separately, to stand or fall on its own merits.

The most heated discussion of the session came up on a motion to strike out the clause inserted by the commission, authorizing new counties having a population of 4,000 to elect a representative, while the ratio of representatives is over 12,000. It is probable that a compromise will be effected in some way. Senator Richardson, yesterday, introduced two separate articles to take the place of articles 11 and 18, one devoted exclusively to private corporations, and the other relates exclusively to Rail Roads. These articles are decidedly preferable to the article proposed by the Commission. They go to the root of the rail road question, and the friends of equal taxation hope to be able to substitute them in place of the present Section. The House Committee reported yesterday in favor of the following salaries for State and indicial officers, and House concured in

Governor, $3,000; Supreme Judges, $3,500; State Treasurer, $2,500; Circuit Judges, $2,500; Auditor General, $2,500; Com. Land Office, $2,000; Supt. Public Instruction, $2,000; Att'y. Gen., $2,500; Sec'y. State, $2,000; Com. Insurance, $2, 000; Com. of Rail Roads, $2,500

They require the State Officers to reside at the Capitol and personally superintend the duties of their offices. The Senate reported to-day. They fix the same salaries, but leave out the Supreme Judges, and commissioners of rail roads and Insurance. Some radical changes will be made in reccommendations of the Commission, among which are the following: The salaries will be fixed in the Constitution; the elective system will be preserved, the ensuing little clause incorporated in the article are "Corporation other than municipal," designed to prevent any alteration or amendment of existing charters will be stricken out, as it should be. Appearances now indicate that the whole mat er can be disposed of and the Legislature be ready to adjourn by Saturday of next week. The probabilities now are that no proposition on the "Liquor Question" will be submitted. There is an effort, however, on the part of a few to submit the two alternate propositions of "Prohibition or License.'

Respectfully,

THE Committee in our State Legislature to whom was referred the matter of salaries of State officers, reported as follows: Governor, $3,000; eral, and Commissioner on Railroads, trenched, "prepared for action," and each $2,500; Secretary of State, swore—well, that the first woman that Commissioner of Land Office, and | would dare to come into his "retreat" When President Lincoln took the Presidential chair there were five ex-Presidents living, viz: Martin Van Buren, John Tyler, Millard Fillmore, Errellin Pierce and James Buchanan Tennes Buchanan What a file of the Commissioner of Insurance, each $2, should dissolve partnership between soul and body. FROM LAKETON. THE LADIES TEMPERANCE CRUSADE.

LAKETON, March 14, 1874. EDITORS RECORD :- Our town was thrown into an excitement on the 8th, by the announcement that went the "rounds" that each of the saloon keepers had received the following "To — Dear sir: The Laketon Ladies' Temperance Society will meet at your place of Business on Wednesday, the 11th, at 4 P. M. to pray with you, and exhort you to refrain from the body and soul killing business of liquor selling. Its influence is felt, yes, keenly felt, in some of the homes of this village. It has caused bitter tears to flow down the cheeks of the neglected wife; while her babes have been hungry and half clad, the father was paying you the price of their food and raiment for the maddening draught. If prayers and tears and entreaties cannot reach your heart, then, sir, we have the law, which the kind legislators have placed in our hands, and we have pledged ourselves to use it to the very letter.

| Signed, ] Ex. Com. of L. L. T. Society. Most of the people of the town were inclined to think that it was designed for a scare, or joke. One of the saloon keepers became so exceedingly agitated that he "fought imaginary battles," and I am informed displayed his revolvers, loaded his shot guns, cleared away the rubbish, bolted his doors, went "into his hole," and prayers and exhortations, interspersed. them with singing. The druggist and leading men of the town have signed received 85,000 Atlantic Coast Saltheir pledge. There are, at the present writing, three saloon keepers that have not complied with the requirements of the ladies. Last evening there was a most enthusiastic mass temperance meeting held at the village school house. A short lecture was grow in Michigan water. We learn given by Mr. Helms, the Methodist from the Dowagiac Republican that minister of this place, showing up the the house of Mr. Hubbard, in Pokacost of the traffic in liquors to the Nation, State, and our townsmen, followed by Mrs. William Whipple, who, in a very touching manner, told of the ruin that whisky had wrought in her own family. A resolution commend ing the ladies, and pledging fidelity to them, was enthusiastically passed, and measures taken for the establishment THE ST. There is nothing very special this week. _T was so glad to hear from some of issue. I think L. C. I. is very clever to make a note of it when she gets out. among orderly people. But when men like Andy and Joe talk, orderly people can afford to come out, listen and profit by it .- Now that Spring elections are near at hand Highway Commissioners should see how much buggy they have worn out. The people are very ungrateful sometimes.-It strikes me that the revised Constitution of Michigan, soon to be put before the people, favors the appointive power too much. If a man wants ofice, or his friends want him to have it, let him come before the voters with his good qualities. At any rate I think he will be more careful to do his duty than if he got in through a ring. I think salaries should be fixed by the Constitution, and at a reasonable amount, but there is no reason for making this Government oppressive by taxing the people to out-do others, and thereby give encouragement to princes and potentates.—As for Peter Piper, it wont do to mind much what he says. Poor fellow, he has never been right since he left Skeleton Corners. Some say he never was entirely right; at any rate he has got a great deal werse while at Ghost Hollow. If he does not start a barber shop up there we would like to have him at the Roost this summer, as there is a man here who is getting up a museum of living curiosities. I suppose the reason those Galien butchers quit the business was they had sold on tick as long as they could stand it .- We have got the cleverest women here that ever lived, and we know how to keep them so. First, we get them plenty of good stove wood and stay at home evenings. Second, we never go farther than the foot of the stairs to call the hired girl in the morning. Yours truly,

Report of the school taught in School District No. 8, Weesaw, for the term commencing December 8th, '73, and closing March 13, 1874:

Whole number of pupils enrolled at the beginning of the term was 36, and at the close 52. The average daily attendance was 39. The general deportment has been good indeed, and I have found it to be a very interesting of the late Senator Sumner were attended by the Senate and members of the House, and pleasant school, notwithstanding the many little trials and difficulties with which every teacher expects to meet. The spirit of interest which the pupils have manifested in their studies has been pleasing in the extreme, as it has shown that my efforts were not unappreciated. The followlowing is a list of pupils commended for their good conduct and punctuality in attendance during the term: Flora Allen, Alma Stoner, Sarah Gifford, Albert Gifford, Mattie Gifford, Frank Vetters. Mary Vetters, Sarah Vetters,

George Vetters, Aaron Howater, Peter Howater, Charles Blimka. Willie Blimka, Augusta Blimka. John Cavanaugh, John Behren, Adelia Behren, John Payn, Harvey Stoner, George Roberts, Bertha Roberts, Alpha Gifford, Mary Payn, Edmund Payn,

He was struck by some projecting lumber on a car, and several gashes cut on both sides of his head.—A young man named Alexander Quinn, from Canada, when riding on the platform of a car near the depot, on Sunday evening last, fell or was knocked off and his head and face very severely cut.—Night-watchman Cosgrove found him on Main street shortly after, wandering about in a bewildered state of mind, scarcely knowing how he had been hurt, or how badly he was injured, Dr. Fairchild then dressed his wounds, and Cosgrove took him to the Bond House.—A new animal is now agitating the mind of the people east of town. A. H. Morrison, of St. Joseph.—An extremely high wind prevailed during Saturday and Saturday night. Buildings rocked on their foundations; glass rattled, and in some instances was broken; a few chimneys were forced to put on a worse-for-ware appearance, but no serious damage was done.-St. Joseph has the honor of having one of the best schools in the state. It also has nine church organizations. These would seem to point to a good, healthy, moral tone in the youth as well as the adults of the place. But if one thinks thusly he will be very much mistaken. St. Joseph has within its corporate limits more idle and profane boys then can be found in any place of its size on the continent. You can see them by dozens and scores on the streets during the day, playing marbles "for keeps" and discounting the profanity of an old man-of-war's man. You can find them in the evening on the streets in crowds, making night hideous with their profanity and outrageous conduct. A stranger visiting our town for the first time, and falling in with this horde of young ruffians, would very naturally think himself in the Apache country and surounded by young braves with war paint on. These boys have parents whose duty is to send them to school. and teach them better manners than they exhibit. Attend to it, parents, at once. Send your children to school, and then make them behave themselves when they leave your dwellings and mingle with civilized people on the streets.

cotemporaries. This charge is undoubtedly true to some extent, but county editors would have to apply their scissors pretty lively to get even with the metropolian editors who have charge of the "State news department" of the different Detroit papers. The following is what the Cincinnati "Trade List" thinks of those characters who complain of their county paper, and instead of helping to support it send on for large city papers, and thus help to sustain them: "A gentleman writes to us that his country paper is so poor that he, has stopped it; therefore sends us three dollars for the "Trade List." #### An Editor Who is Deaf.

We thought everybody in the State knew that we are deaf, but once in a while we find one who is not aware of the fact. A female book-peddler came to the office the other day. She was alone in this world, and had no one to whom she could turn for sympathy or assistance; hence we should buy her book. She was unmarried and had no manly heart into which she could pour her sufferings, thought we ought to invest in her book. She had received a liberal education, and 15.00 | could talk French like a native; we could not, in consequenc, pay her, less than $2 for a book. We had listened attentivery, and here broke in with: "What did you say? We're deaf." She started in a loud voice, and went through her rigmarole. When she had finished, we went and got a roll of paper, and made it into a speaking-trumpet placed one end to our ear, and told her to proceed. She nearly broke a blood vessel in her effort to make herself heard. She commenced: "I am alone in this world ... "It doesn't make the slightest difference to us. We are a husband and father. Bigamy is not allowed in this State. We are not eligible to proposals." "Oh, what a fool the man is," she said in a low tone; then at the top of her voice. "I don't want to marry you, I want to sell-a-b-o-o-k." This last sentence was howled. "We don't want a cook," we remarked blandly; "our wife does the cooking, and she wouldn't allow as good-looking a woman as you are to stay in the house five minutes. She is very jealous.' She looked at us in despair. Gathering her robes about her, giving us a glance of contempt, she exclaimed: I do believe that if a 300-pounder were to let off alongside that deaf fool's head he'd think somebody was knocking at the door." You should have heard her slam the door when she went out. We heard that .- From the Santa Clara (Cal-) Echo. Borax for Colds.

A writer in the Medical Report cites a number of cases in which borax has proved a most effective remedy in certain forms of colds. He states that in sudden hoarseness or loss of voice in public speakers or singers, from colds, relief for an hour or so, by slowly dissolving, and partially swallowing, a lump of borax the size of a garden pea, or about two or three grains, held in the mouth for ten minutes before speaking or singing. This produces a profuse secretion of saliva or "watering" of the mouth and throat—probably restoring the voice or tone to the dried vocal cords, just as "wetting" brings back the missing notes to a flute, when it is too dry.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sier-ra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving prin-ciple, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Briters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. POSTAGE.—The quesion of postage on county papers is not setteled in Congress yet. The Detroit Free Press contains some very sensible articles on the postage question, recognizing injustice done the country press, and the rural districts by existing laws. The stand the Press has taken contrasts fovorably with the nonsense and sophistry of the Tribune and Post on the same subject.

HOME PATRONAGE.—The Masters of several of the State Granges have recommended that members of the order patronize their home institutions in purchasing dry goods, clothing, groceries, &c., &c. In purchasing reap. ers, sewing machines, organs, pianos, Notice.—If you have real estate | and many other articles, farmers can for sale, a few dollars spent in adver- | save a large per cent by dealing with tising in the RECORD might enable the manufacturers directly than with their agents, and it is to their interest to transact their business on this plan. It is becoming generally believed, however, among farmers that their best interests require them to patronize and sustain their own towns, and they will do so unless the business men at home undertake to deal unjustly and unfairly with them.

> HOME ENTERTAINMENT.-Our young friends of the F. M. D. Society assure us that they are making due progress in their preparations to give the promised Musical and Theatrical Entertainment to our people. We are confident that they will give one of the best of home entertainments that we have ever had, one worthy the patronage of our people. These home entertainments are the best and most profitable of all entertainments, as they develop and encourage home talent, give as good, or better satisfaction than foreign companies, and leave the money at home for some good purpose.

SUPERVISOR. - We have heard some considerable talk in Buchanan relative to Supervisors. There are several persons spoken of in connection with that office. We have heard the following persons named: Mr. Alexander, the present incumbent, Mr. N. B. Collins, Mr. B. M. Pennell, Mr. David Fisk, and Mr. N. Hamilton. All we have to say is, let us have some man who will attend to the business properly and in whom the people have confidence. We have not the least doubt but several of the gentlemen named would do the business properly and to the satisfaction of all concern-

PUBLISHERS cannot use too much care in rejecting all orders for advertisements where the pay offered is ridiculously inadequate, or where the pay is uncertain. They should inform one another when a person who orders an advertisement fails to remit as soon as the bill is sent. There is a certain advertisement which we see in nearly all our exchanges. We had a contract for the same, to run for one year, but failed to receive our pay for the first quarter, and in our efforts to obtain it, ascertained that the persons with whom we contracted were swindlers. The only sensible way for publishers to do is to establish a price for advertisements that is reasonable, and then in no case to vary from it—requiring cash in advance, unless from parties who are personally known to be responsible. If this rule was adopted it would shut out these frauds and cheats of different kinds, protect the publisher and people from their wicked devices, and above all, give a higher dignity and reliability to advertising generally.

BEAUTIEUL WOMEN.—The hair is the crowning glory of woman. There are few modern defects which cannot be remedied by the proper disposition of the tresses.— But when the hair begins to fall out, or turn gray, in young people, or with those in the prime of life, there is a cause for real regret. When this is the case, Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer will be found to be a first class remedy, far superior, as a sound medical medium, to anything else before the public. It actually restores gray hair to its original color, and in the great majority of cases, causes it to grow again when it is becoming thin. It is not like many popular preparations, a mere wash, but a scientific discovery, indorced and used by physicians of character. Address R. P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N.H.

It has pro duced more cures of rheumatism neuralgia, lockjaw, palsy, sprains - TEHANE swellings, caked-bresstå, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remodies since the world began

It is a counter-irritant, an all healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poleonous bites are rendered barmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no arti de ever before sold, and it sells because it does just what t pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheums tism, pain or swelling deserve to suffer if they will not use Centeur Liniment. More than 1999 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rhad matism, gout, running tumers, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spayined or sweenled horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. The consolidation, at the beginning of this year, of the Chicago Evening Post and the Chicago Evening Mail, affords an amplicious occasion for congratulating the patrons of both upon the prospects of the fature.

The union of the two is expected to combine the good qualities for which each has been distinguished, and secures for the Chicago Post and Mail such a combination of editorial talent, capital and business ability as cannot fall to rapidly increase both its circulation and influence. Already the Post and Mail is conceeded to have a larger city circulation than any other Western evening paper, while the concury circulation of both Daily and Weekly will be rapidly extended, till they are commensurate with anknowledged ment.

It aims, first of all, 10 give news from all parts of the world, on all subjects, whether political, commercial, legal, social, artistic, literary, or religious, in a style at once candid, terre and viracious.

Second, to promote business, not only by giving the listest and most accurate market reports, and commercial intelligence, but by discussing fundamental principles in a way to and the

In proportion to the quality and assount of matter furnished, the Post and Mail will prove itself the cheapest paper published. Containing pithy editorials, and all the latest news furnished by the larger foormals, it will be afforded at latif the price. Thus bringing it within the means of thousands who do not now take a daily paper, and adapting it to the economical requirements of other thousands who now take more expensive journals. The low terms fixed upon are justified by its preent large circulation, not less than the reasonable proper that it will soon attain the largest circulation of any paper published in the valley of the dissemble. The Richmond (Va.) The past history of the Democratic party gives no warrant that it will oppose this infamous robbert of the people of the North for the benefit of traitors; but if the party is true to itself and its instincts the South will find it and its representatives a subservient ally.

is another scheme that is broadly hinted at in many parts of the South, and is, without doubt, one of the projects to which the leading Democrats of that section would address themselves if the time should ever come when a majority of the Northern States and the General Government should be in the hands of inte party which helped the role in their work of festivoring the Union. the rebels in their work of destroying the Union.
These are not familial issues. They are real dangers either to be met face to face, or else to be aquelched in their inception by the continued success of that organiza-tion which crushed the rebellion, gare freedom to the slaves, and destroyed the slave holding Confederacy.

Yesterday the little son of one of our citizens, while playing with his sister, a bright sweet child of five sum-mers, got hold of his father's gun, which had been left carelessly standing in the kitchen by the thoughtless parent, pointed the gun at his playmate, and, saying jokingly, "I'll kill you!" pulled the trigger. What must have been that oby's feelings when he found that he had lied, that the gun was not loaded, and that his innocent little sister had knocked a portion of his nose off with a stick of mood. his nose off with a stick of wood. When you want to get rid of the rheumatism, persuade a wild steer to chase you. A Savannah man, who gave it a fair trial, and had a hot race of forty rods to a tree and up it, certifies that he has not had a rheumatic twinge since. This cure has not been patented, and any one can try it without fear of prosecution for an infraction of patent right laws.

Every person who has ever met commercial tourist, with his little satchel, will appreciate the following: "The drummers came down like wolves on the fold, their toes were all frosted, their noses all cold. Their weather-peeled bugles soon shone through the town, they gobbled the money and salted it down, then took a few orders and lit out of here, with their heads full of business and skins full of beer."

A young lady who prides herself on her propriety, lately wrote home to her parents regarding her boarding-school associates. She said: "The girls are awful slangy. One of them told me the first day I came that I had better 'walk off on my car.' The little chit! I felt just like putting a tin roof on her. And they use such disgusting phrases as 'you bet,' and 'bully.' I have pitched into them several times for their slang, but they tell me to 'cheese it,' and if they

It is related that in a certain town in the northern part of Maine the people were holding a meeting, when the pastor remarked that if any present had relatives or friends in distant lands, prayers would be offered in their behalf. M. A. NEISS. My precious boys no more I see; They lie beneath the willow tree Whose drooping branches kiss the flow'rs That bloom in Summer's sun and show'rs The ivy and the cypress vine,
The myrtle and the eglantine,
The pure white rose, and lily sweet,
Shall blossom where those dear ones sleep.

I'll guard the flow'rs around their graves, And trim the grass that o'er them waves. And dearly love the drooping tree That sighs in tender tones with me. I often sit beside their beds, Where each sweet flow'r its fragrance sheds, And dream of that bright spirit home, Where Rulph and Harry both have gone.

The home beyond the star-ht sky, Where lov'd ones never, never die; Where tears and parting are unknown, And sin and sorrow cannot come. Dear triend Eliza, weep no more, Your boys are sate on you bright shore God's angels took the jewels home— The caskets only fill the tomb

'Tis sad, ale! well I know how sad, To miss the voice that makes us glad; To see our dear ones droop and die— Borne from us as the moments fly. But we may meet them all up there, Thro' trusting faith and hopeful pray'r.
Then let us strive with all our might.

Be Considerate. Don't expect too much of the children; it has taken forty years, it may be, to make you what you are, with all the lessons of experience. Above all, don't expect judgement in a child, or patience under trials. Sympathize in their mistakes and troubles, don't ridicule them. Remember not to measure a child's trials by your standard. "As one whom his mother comforteth," says the inspired writer, and beautifully does he convey to us that deep, faithful love which ought to be found in overy woman's heart, the unfailing sympathy with all her children's griefs. Let the memories of their childhood be as bright as you can make them. Grant them every innocent pleasure in your power. We have often felt our temper rise to see how carelessly their little plans are thwarted by older persons, when a little trouble on their part would have given the child pleasure, the memory of which would last a life time. Don't think a child a hopeless case because it betrays some bad habit. Sympathize with them, that sympathy may strengthen and invigorate them to bear with firmness all the trials they meet.

As a gladiator trains the mind, so must we train the mind to self-sacrifice. to endure all things, to meet and overcome difficulty and danger. We must take the rough and thorny road, as well as the smooth, and pleasant; and a portion at least of our daily duty must be hard and disagreeable for the mind cannot be kept strong and healthy in perpetual sunshine only, and the most dangerous of all states is that of constantly recurring pleasure, ease and prosperity. Most people will find difficulties and hardships enough without seeking them; let them not repine, but take them as a part of that educational discipline necessary to fit the mind to arrive at its highest good.

Ministerial Duties.

The neglect of ministerial duties is a common cause of sin, and of man's damnation,-when they that take the charge of souls are either unable or unwilling to do their office; when they teach them too seldom, or too unskillfully, in an unsuitable manner; not choosing that doctrine which they most need, or not opening it plainly and methodically in a fitness to their capacities, or not applying it with necessary seriousness and urgency to the hearer's state, when men preach to the ungodly who are near to damnation, in a formal pace, like a school boy saying his lesson, or in a drowsy reading tone, as if they came to preach them all asleep, or were afraid of waking them. When they speak of sin, and misery, and Christ, of Heaven and hell, as if by the manner they came to contradict the matter, and to persuade man that there are no such things.—Baxter.

Appearances Sometimes Deceive. A German writer tells a story of a noble lady who disguised herself as a beggar and went through the village near her castle asking alms. Some received her harshly; but on epoor laborer showed her generous liberal treatment. The next day the inhabitants of the village were invited to dine at the castle. The great table was spread with poor fare; but a small table near at hand had every luxury to tempt the appetite. Then the lady of the house appeared and apprised the guests that it was she who passed through the village on the previous day as a beggar woman; that she was now returning to them the gifts then received at their hands; and that she should thenceforward provide for the family of the poor laborer, who alone of all the villagers had shared with her the best he had.

This is the lesson that revealed religion teaches. As we sow on earth so shall we reap in Heaven. Whoever gives a disciple a cup of water in the name of a disciple, shall not lose his reward. Remember this, O ye who have the poor always with you.

Ambition.

That is the bravest ambition which is vigorous enough to overleap the little life here. Whatever we can do of good in this world, with our-faculties or our affections, rises to God as humanity's song of praise. Amid the million tongues ever joining to swell the holy music of that song, are those which sound the loudest and grandest here, the tones which travel sweetest and purest up to the eternal throne, which mingle in the most perfect harmony with the anthem of the angel ! May not the most obscure life be dignified by a lasting aspira-tion, and dedicated to a noble aim?

Consumption, Rhoumatism, Catarra, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, &c.

The requiation Dr. Price has acquired by condid, honest dealing, and years of successful practice has induced unprincipled persons to copy and imitate aims farea they dare, in order to deceive. Let it be remembered that no person in the west is treating Chronic Diseases similar to Dr. Price—that his practice is not one of experiments, but founded on the laws of Nature with years of experience and evidence to austain it. That it does not tear down to build up—make sick, to make well—no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the romely needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of these diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect: Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges; claim not to know everything, or to cure every-body, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits will be made regularly.

ZDr. W. Clarence Price can be consulted at LaPorte; Mercill House, Saturday and Sunday, the 21st and 22d of March. At Niles, Reading House, Friday, April 3d.

For Dyspopsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach, and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colle and Bilious Fevers; they should be Judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it. cause it.

For Dysenfery or Diarrhoea, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gour, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

That which protects from or prevents this disorder must be of immense service in the communities where it prevails! **Drevention* is better than our, for the patient escapes the risk which he must run in violent attacks of this baleful distemper. This "CURE" expels the missmatic poison of FEVER AND AGUE from the system, and prevents the development of the disease, if taken on the first approach of its premonitory symptoms. It is not only, the best remedy ever yet discovered for this class, of complaints, but also the cheapest. The large quantity we supply for a dollar brings it within the reach of everybody; and in billous districts; where FEVER AND AGUE prevails, everybody should have it, and use it freely, both for oure and protection.
