"Eternal Vigitance is the Price of Liberty!"

BUCHANAN, MICH., THURSDAY, APRIL

THE OLD GRANGER. A PARODY.

Near the track of a railroad newly laid, A farmer leaned on his earth worn spade; While his taxes were high, and his crops but The charge for freight played the deuce with So he growled a growl at the train's sharp din-

"I'll gather you in; I'll gather you in !" "I have borne you long, and here I swow You railroads to beat, some way, or how; Lwill get up a law, by the great horned owl; To cut down your profits and make, you, howl and but little or nothing, I ship from my bin. Of hoarded corn, till I've gathered you in!

"We will rise in our granges, bold and free, And 'Down with freights,' shall our war cry be Not a partism crew, nor a party back, Shall help us to gain our birthright back; For the battle is ours, to lose or win-We'll gather them in; we'll gather them in!

Now a gaunt politician came that way,
O'erheard the old man's angry say;
And he gave to his head a knowing sorew,
And he oried to the Granger, "Count me too!"
With a thought to himself, replete with a grin,
"I'll gather you in; I'll gather you in!"
Touching hand to hand in a warm exchange, They take a walk to the farmers, grange, Where the stranger speaks with rural air. And sprinkles hay seed in his hair; "Let railroads quall when our blows begin; We'll gather them in I we'll gather them in I

Then a twist of his eye, to seem acute;
"The farmers tongue has too long been mute;
I am just your man, if it suits your mood.
So place me where I can do most good;
If an office fit you will, help me win,
"We'll gather them in; We'll gather them in!"

So they vote for him at the coming polls. Those simple, rural, honest souls;
Never dreaming that they of the iron horse Are voting, too, for the man, of course, As on him alone their faith they pin, To gather them in !

When election is over the railroads run A score of trains where there had once been one While a ditch by the track is found to hold L poor old Granger, stark and cold; For the chap he had helped to win Had gathered him in; had gathered him im!

In the Village of Herrien Springs, in said Country of Berrien, and State of Michigan, wi In the summer of 1813, a band of Seneca Indians were encamped on the banks of the Genesee river. They were on their return from a hunting expedition to their main reservations near the shores of Lake Erie, and anxious to hasten their movements, for the purpose of offering their services for the defence of the frontier to their American ullies, in the war pending between them and England. But their progress at the time referred to was delayed, owing to the circumstance that one of their number, a favorite -a girl some fifteen years of agehad been taken ill on the march, and was then delirious with fever.

"It is our good brother, the young white hunter," ejaculated Blue Coat, the sachem, in broken English, as a young man in hunting costume, and with a rifle in hand, bounded into the encampment.

"Welcome, Wally!" A vigorous shaking of hands ensued, and grunts of satisfaction were heard on every side.

Walter, or "Wally," as he was known by the Indians, was informed of the subject under discussion; and he was taken to the couch of bear skins on which the sufferer lay. His heart felt pity; his deepest sympathies were instantly aroused. He had never before seen the face of an Indian female that interested him so much. "Night has overtaken me in the chase, ton miles from home," said Walter; "I will tarry with you till early morn, when Fawn shall be taken to my mother, who will care for her as

Circuit Court Commissioner for Berrien Co. Alich. Dated March 20, 1874.

J. J. VAN RIFER, Complainant's Slicitor. march." The counsel was at end. Grunts of approval was the reply to Walter's proposition, and renewed shaking of hands followed. A bountiful supper of roast venison and cakes of pounded corn baked in ashes was prepared, of which all save the invalid ate heartily; and after a lengthened smoking of pipes, the party, wrapped in Indian blankets, sought their night's repose. Walter Walace was of good parentage, and well educated. He was left fatherless at an early age. Dr. Arnold, his stepfather, though a man of good abilities, had but a small practice. He was not generally liked. His increasing wealth, therefore, was a matter of surprise to all, and suspicion to many of his neighbors. The matter was once boyishly referred to by Walter, in conversation with his father, who answered only by a scowl of resentment. Walter at once comprehended that he was treading on forbidden ground.

A't length' the overbearing disposition and imperious will of Dr. Arnold became insupportable to Walter, and at the age of nineteen he indignantly abandoned the parental roof. The sting of regret which troubled him was the parting from a dearly loved mother; and though this was proposed against her remonstrance, yet he was conscious of her secret sympa at that time abounding in bear, the American panther, the wild cat, doer, and lesser game. He took up his abode in the house of a settler on the banks of the Genesee. He wrote to his mother by every possible conveyance; but at the end of a year, learning of her death, he felt as if the great tie of civilization had been sundered; and for ever afterwards he acknowleged the kind wife of the settler as his adopted mother. At the time of his meeting with the Indian encampment, he had resided in the country two years, and during the time had scoured the country around as far as the shores of Ericand Ontario. He had become acquainted with the Indians, their language, custom and manners; and was a favorite and privileged person among them. Under the influence of good treatment, the health and strength of Fawn was restored. Walter was strangely fascinated with her beauty, and surprised at her intelligence. She spoke the English and Indian languages fluently, and had frequently acted as interpreter between parties of the two races. Walter could not believe that she was of Indian blood: yet she declared that she had not reason to think otherwise, save that of a dim, undefined dream of an early life within civilization.

Her jet hair, her black eyes, though rather full and round for an Indian, her cheek bones and bronzed complexion, seemed to denote an Indian origin; yet her elastic springing gaither intelligence, her quick perceptions, and the play of her features, which exhibited the various emotions of the mind, indicated otherwise. Walter was puzzled-he became abstracted, save when in her presence. Her rather winning way and smile, her gentle nature and affectionate heart, pulled strongly on his sensibilities. A dim, vague desire took possession of him to return to civilization with the maiden, and to educate her to become his wife. The sachem, between whom and the girl there existed astrong attachment, remained with her. On his departure with her and the few attendants, he presented Walter with a belt of wampum to be worn by him as a badge of goodfellowship with the Senecas, and as a token of bravery.

A year passed away. With a foresight creditable to his years, Walter had purchased for a small sum three nundred acres of land on the shores of the Genesee river. He was becoming wearied with his wild life and pursuits, and strengthened and invigorated, was about to return to the center of civilization, and embark in the business of life. But an irresistible desire to see again the Indian maiden, induced him to change his purpose for awhile. Accordingly, depending on his rifle for support; he made his way through tangled woods and swamps, until at length, at the close of a day, weary and footsore, he found himself on the banks of Buffalo creek, and but a few miles south of the still smoking ruins of the village of Buffalo.

While reposing himself at the foot of a large tree, he was startled by the report of a gun; the next moment an American pauther lay dead at his side. Starting to his feet he gazed around-'twas but for the momenta crackling of the bushes-and "Welcome, Wally!" from the old sachem, greeted his his ears.

Walter, fortunately, had come upon the grounds and near the wigwam of his Indian friend, and had been saved from a terrible conflict, if not death, as the beast was at the point of springing when the bullet pierced his heart. Great was the joy and satisfaction of Fawn, which she was too unsophisticated to conceal on the arrival of Walter. The absence from him had been the means of manifesting to herself her attachment to him. Time, since their parting, had developed innate feelings which convinced her that the Indian character was not in sympathy with hers, and that Walter was her real hero. She, therefore, in confident simplicity, told Walter that a coing Indian, called Wild Cat. so named on account of his more than usual ferocious instincts, sought her hand in marriage; that she despised him, and that her father had forbade him the wigwam. And furthermore? that Walter's association with her would arouse his jealousy and wrath, as a pass of safety, would be the mark for the bullet. Fawn's apprehensions were well founded. A deadly animosity was soon manifested by Wild Cat towards Walter. Yet Walter took no pains to avoid him. His heroic nature spurned any betraval of fear. Several weeks elapsed when the two abruptly met in the forest. Instantly the Indian's gun was raised and aimed at Walter; it missed fire; and ere, the Indian could re-prime, he was in the tiger grasp of Walter, thrown, disarmed, and bound.

and Wild Cat would surely seek his life. The belt of wampum, designed

A council of warriors was held, and Wild Cat was condemned to death by the hand of Walter. But at his interdession, the sentence was commuted to running the gauntlet—a punishment of the deepest disgrace, and equivalent, with us, to being drummed out of the regiment.

The punishment was immediately as he was obliged to do to save instant the shores of Lake Champlain, were the most barbarous of any tribe on the frontier. To this tribe, Wild Cat immediately attached himself, and related to them a growingly false account of the wrongs and insults.

A short time subsequent to Wild Cat,s punishment, the old sachem was taken seriously ill, which delayed Walter's return to the east, as he intended. All of Walter's entreaties and persuasions to induce the old chief to allow him to place Fawn within the pale of civilization were unavailing. Only death should sepa-rate the warrior and his daughter.

As Walter was attending the couch of the sick chief one evening, during the temporary absence of Fawn, a band of six Indians, headed by Wild Cat, suddenly burst into the room. Walter was quickly bound, and, be-fore the alarm could be given, he was thrust into the bottom of a canoe; and the party, with swift moving paddles, made their way rapidly and safely across the foot of the lake. Great was the exultation of Wild Cat over the capture of his hated rival, who, when the party landed, was unbound; and while his enemy flourished a tomahawk around, and in close proximity to his head, he was haunted with jeers, jibes, and derisive laughter, by the party. Walter was too well acquainted with the Indians nature to offer any remonstrance. He maintained in his looks a solid indifference to their proceedings. Wild Oat would have cleaved his skull on the spot, but his savage companions desired to share together the pleasure of tormenting him to death.

It was determined that the victim should be burnt on the ensuing afternoon. An opening, or cleared spot in the woods, near the shore, of several hundred feet in diameter, was fixed upon as the place of execution. In the center of the opening stood an enormous tree. To this tree Walter was bound, and faggots of pitch pine were placed high around him. The torture commenced by throwing the hatchet. This was done in a manner similar to that of impaling by the Chineso-the object of the savages being to leave the hatchet sticking by the blade into the tree as near the head of the victim as possible. Having practiced this sport, with shouts of laughter, to their satisfaction, they prepared for the death.

After joining hands, with whoops and yells, they danced the death dance, atter which, sitting in a semicircle a few rods from the tree, in front of the victim, they united in the guttural death song. This being ended, one of the party arose, and with blazing of Walter and Fawn are cheerfully torch advanced to fire the pitch.

While he was stooping forward for the purpose, and while Walter was ejaculating a prayer, the sharp crack of a rifle was heard, and the savage fell dead upon and extinguished the torch. With united howls the savages sprang to their feet; each expected to drop next; a hasty glance at the ambush, and panic stricken they fled precipitately up the beach.

"Thank heaven, my aim was true!" exclaimed Fawn, as she cut the bonds of Walter. "We are alone-follow me-quick-quick!"

They hastily ran to the lake shore, jumped into a canoe, and shot out into deep water. Fawn quickly reloaded the rifle, and placed it on the floor of the canoe, but ere long, as both were making vigorous use of their paddles, they discovered a cance coming in a direction to intercept their progress. It contained but one person-Wild Cat.

He had caught sight of Walter and Fawn as they pushed out into the lake; having recovered from the shock of surprise, and frenzied by the escape of Walter by the hands of Fawn, he was determined to overtake and destroy both, or perish in the attempt. On flew the canoes with the speed of arrows. Wild Cat had the advantage in lightness of canoe and that dexterity in the use of the paddle which only great strength, united with long practice, could impart. The course of Fawn's cance to the American side was across the mighty waters of the Erie, just where it onters the mouth and forms the majestic Niagara River. In the center of the course the current runs at the rate of seven miles an hour, and increases in rapidity in its descent until twenty miles below the waters leap the world-renowned precipice.

Wild Cat's canoe gained rapidly on he pursued, and had reached within a few rods of the latter, just beyond the greatest strength of the current when the sayage suddenly stood erect and had just poised the unerring hatchet when a bullet pierced his heart. He reeled and fell backwards and lengthways into his cance; it swung round, was drawn into the current shot down the river, and was engulfed beneath the cataract.

. Joy and satisfaction sparkled in the eyes of Walter and Fawn, as they pursued the rest_of their voyage. Grunts of satisfaction were heard, and nods of approval were seen in every wigwam at the safety, of Walter and Fawn and the death of Wild Cat. The death of Blue Coat, the old sachem wasat hand. He called Walter to the side of his couch. "I am going," said the sachem in feeble voice, "to the spirit land, and carried into effect. The old man could say no more. What was Walter's astonishment, on examining the picture, after the burial of the sachem, to find inscribed on the back the names of "John and Mary Arnold." Fawn was a niece of his stepfather!

He had now the first clue to the sudden wealth of Dr. Arnold.

Securing attendants, Walter, with Fawn, immediately set out for Alton, where they arrived in due time and without trouble. Procuring the services of an experienced and expert attorney, an investigation was commenced, and by a course of fortunate and fortuitous circumstances it was ascertained that John Arnold had left. though without written will, twentyfive thousand dollars to his only child. Mary (Fawn.) He had, in confidence, placed this money before his death in the hands of his brother, Dr. Arnold, and requested him to act as her guardian. On Dr. Arnold's return from the place of the death of his brother, some two hundred miles distant, he reported the death of the child to the very few that had known of her existence. With proofs in their possession Walter and his attorney sought a private interview with Dr. Arnold. They found him far gone in consumption. and broken in spirits, but, apparently, contrite and repentant. He acknowledged the enormity of his offense, but wished the matter to be kept a secret. and expressed great relief of mind that Mary had been found and restored. By mutual agreement, and by his desire, he at once signed deeds in her favor to the amount of fifty thousand dollars, being the one half of his estate.

Mary entered a female seminary, where she remained three years; at the end of which time, cultivated in mind and manners, and at the age of twenty, she was united in marriage with Walter Wallace.

Ten years subsequently Walter visited his estate on the Genesee river. He was astonished and delighted with the improvements of the surrounding country.

The "wilderness had indeed blossomed as the rose." The Genesee valley had become the garden of the empire State. . He improved his grounds, and erected an elegant residence, in which he has since resided, happy in his domestic relations, and in good fellowship with all. And now, though bronzed with years, the hospitalities extended.

A Raphael.

In a letter published in the foreign papers. Ruskin says: "Yesterday I saw, not for the first time, and with confirmed conviction of its worth, the Raphael Madonna which is at present offered to England, if she chooses to have any old art among her modern French or English splendors. The price is exorbitant; so are all prices just now. When I was a boy you might have bought a Turner any day for £50; now you must give £1,000. You might have bought such a Raphael as this if buyable at all-for perhaps £4,000 or £5,000; now you are asked £40,000. My own impression is you might get it for less. But what is £40,000 to Liverpool? The picture has no price. There has been no such Raphael in the market in my lifetime. I don't myself care supremely for Raphael; never did. But some people do, I believe, and, if Liverpool cares for a Raphael, here is one intensely characteristic and precious, in good state on the whole, and worth I wont say what in money, but, in art, the whole exhibition of the Royal Academy two years running.

The Unfortunate Smiley.

Says Max Adeler: When Smiley, of Pittsburgh, started for Philadelphia the other day, a woman occupied the seat in front of him with twin infants. Just before the train moved off the woman asked Simley to hold the babies for a moment, while she went to a drug store across the street after | diliberately sit down, as he came up to a new bottle top. He took the little a small irrigating ditch, perhaps two ones, and before the woman returned feet wide, and began taking off his the train started. Smiley was in boots and stockings. When they agony, and when the babies began to | came up to where he was sitting askcry, no words could describe his misery. All the passengers were lookdoing that for. The Englishman said ing at him, and as he dandled the he was going to wade across the babies one on each knee, the perspiration streaming from every pore. This kind of thing continued until dark, and then, as the conductor refused to have any thing to do with the infants, poor old Smiley put them in his own berth, and tried to sooth them. But the more he tried, the more they howled, and he sat up alongside of them the whole night, utterly wretched, while the other passengers swore at him and threw boots at his head, and called him hard names, because he wouldn't keep the youngsters quiet. By the time morning came, Smiley was pretty near crazy, and the twins were almost starved to death. He had nothing to give them but plug tobacco and bay rum, which he carried for his hair, and he knew they were healthy. The first time the train stopped he bolted out and bought a pie. When he returned one of the twins had tumbled off the seat and had a broken nose: but he stuffed them both with the pie gorge. Then Smiley was in a worse case than the very verge of insanity, and his reason was all but dethroned when a policeman entered the car and much delay the riot Was suppressed by the authorities. The Government has sent a detachment of troops to seized him on the authority of a telegram from Pittsburgh, on a charge of kidnapping. He spent the night in fall, and was then released on ball. A Wild-Cat Story.

The Vicksburg (Miss.) Times tells

"One day last week the residence of Mr. Powell, near the head of navigation on Sunflower River, was attacked by a gang of wild cats, Mrs. Powell and a colored servant only being at home. The door being closed, one of the cats jumped through the window, when Mrs. Powell threw a blanket over it and threw it out at the back door. This one was soon followed by another, which was killed with a small ax. By this time the colored cook was attacked a short distance from the house, and she alarmed a white neighbor, who was at work near the place, who came to her assistance and killed the cat with a hatchet, but not until the cook had been pretty well "chawed" by the kitten. The gentle-man then went to the relief of Mrs. Powell, at the house, when two of the cats attacked him quite severely before he succeeded in dispatching them. Four of the pack were killed and several wounded before they could be scared off. The hides of the four cats that were slain were brought to this city on the steamer, Lizzie, yesterday. A day or two after this attack the carcass of a deer was found buried near this place, with evidence of its having been the work of this same pack of cats. This account comes to us through a reliable source, and we can youch for the veracity of it. The natives attribute the attack to hun-

Now that spring and the plating season are approaching, it is often important to test the vitality of seeds before sowing them. Keep the soil sufficiently moist and in a warm place. The seive can be lifted easily and the seeds examined without disturbing them. In this way corn, wheat, clover seed, furnip seed and many other kinds can be easily tested, which may be considerable important where the age or freshness of the seed is not certainly known.

The Progress of "Cremation."

Sir Henry Thompson's paper on "Cremation," says a London paper, has attracted much notice in Germany, having been translated twice, besides obtaining warm support from an eminent physician, Dr. Kupl. Moreover, the practical Austrians have taken up the idea as one that has really now passed beyond the stage of discussion. The Communal Councils of Vienna and Gratz have adopted a proposal to establish in their cometeries the necessary apparatus for cremation, "the use of which will be optional and open to all." A "veritable agitation," we are told, has arisen in both places, though whether the excitement is all in favor of the fiery furnace innovation, or whether the attached supporters of their picturesque churchyards are indignant that these venerable depositories of all that is mortal should be deprived of their prescriptive rights, does not seem very clear. We can only wish success to an experiment which will be carried out for our benefit, though not at our cost. Where the light hearted Viennese would burn their progenitors or descendants without a sigh or a murmur, and afterward tranquilly contemplate the beloved remains in a jar neatly labeled and inscribed with all the virtues of the lamented deceased, the more practical English, and Americans too, would like to proceed by easy stages, without unnecessary shock to Mrs. Grundy's unaccountably strong feelings. But when the furnace system becomes fashionable on the Continent of Europe it will spread by degrees, and the more advanced spirits among us will not be slow to defy prejudices by nobly bequeathing "their works to all ages, their bodies to the consuming eill in ten sens .... On. Wednesday, after some four months discussion, the increase of the currency bill passed the Senate by a rote of 29 to 24. This bill Perenses the greenback issue to $400,000,000 instead of $356,000,000 as the contractionists and money-lenders had fixed it, and as they delired it to continue without any regard to the growing demands of business. The bill just passed also authorizes $46,000,-000 additional circulation of National Banks. This gives a grand total of circulation over the contractionists' theory of $90,000,000.

The West and South will be entitled to the additional National Bank circulation. This, of course, is against the interests of the East, and is the first great triumph of the West, in the Senate of the United States, over the Shylocks of the East.

The bill, though not what the West and South want, or what the country demands, is nevertheless all that can be expected from the present session of Congress. The House will doubtless take the bill as it passed the Senate and adopt it instead of the House bill. This course will doubtless save time, as all has been gained from the Senate that can be at pres-

If this bill passes the House, of which there is no doubt, then the powers of the Shylocks, and the combined forces of the East will be brought to bear on the President to cause him to veto the bill. We cannot, however, believe the President will lend himself as a tool to defeat the manifest will of the people, after so long and bitter a contest as has been had over this financial measure.

THE STATE TREASURER AND THE STATE FINANCES.

It may be right, but we cannot see it in that light, for the State Treasis any one thing that the people have a right to know, it is where and in whose hands their moneys are deposited. The Treasurer, however, looks at it in a different light, judging from his refusal to give the desired information to the Legislature at its recent session.

The following resolution was passed by the Senate:

Resolved, That the State Treasurer be requested to inform the Senate the amount of money now in the Treas- have not a bit of room for drones, ury, where deposited, if in banks, here. what banks, the amount in each, and security given for safe keeping. To this resolution the Treasurer replied as follows:

Deposits in every instance are secured by agreements (in form drawn by Hon. Wm. L. The question as to where the funds are is wholly ignored by the Treasurer, and we imagine the people throughout the State will not be very well satisfied with the answer.

After the Senate had passed this resolution and failed to get an answer as to the names of banks and sureties holding the State funds, the House tried its hand with equal success, by passing the following resolution: Resolved, That the State Treasurer be request-without giving the desired information. The Treasurer took the ground that such information might injure the banks and endorsers, and that he could not therefore give the House the desired information. This looks to us as decidedly cool. With a balance in the State Treasurer's hands of a million and a quarter dollars, and the Treasurer only required to give bonds to the amount of $150,000, it is not surprising that the people should want to know in whose hands this money was, and what securities were held therefor. To our mind the Treasurer committed a grave blunder of the Currency bill. A bill was introin not complying with the resolutions

THE NILES Republican says: The Rev. Thos. Rockwell, an old resident in this vicinity, has removed to Wellington, Kansas, in the hope of regaining impaired health. Mr. Rockwell is a most excellent man, and we wish him all possible prosperity.—A movement is on foot at Mishawaka to have the Niles and South Bend railroad extended to that point. A meeting was held on Thursday evening last, and appointed a committee to confer with the railroad authorities as to conditions .- The event of the week was the marriage, at the Reading House on Tuesday by Rev. Dr. Eddy, of a couple, from Logansport. Mr. Musselman and Miss Maggie Seagur. The groom has lived in this sinful world through the past sixty eventful and the bride is only forty-two years his junior. The chasm between their ages was bridged over by a deed to the young lady to fifty thousand dollars' worth of property, with a guaranty of three or four times as much more in the not improbable event of the bride surviving the groom. The happy man gave, the officiating minister a fifty dollar greenback. Everything is lovely up to date.

THE NILES Democrat says: Spring raddishes, in limited quantities and small size, have made their appearance in the market.-W. G. Cleland held the lucky number in the drawing of Mrs. Pratt's piano, which came off at Bond's building, one evening last week.—A large and, enthusiastic temperance meeting was held at Bertrand, on Tuesday last, at which time the Rev. A. R. Boggs and Dennie Alward, of this city, made stir-ring speeches, the result of which has very greatly increased the enthusiasm in the cause, and the addition of thirty-five names to the pledge, most

T. J. DePuy, Esq. returned from Paw Paw on Saturday last, having been called there to defend the parties charged with the murder of a child at Hartford last winter. In the case of Mrs. Merrill he succeeded in obtaining a verdict of acquittal. In the case of Hattie and Ida Young, parties to the same suit, the jury, disagreed, and they were discharged.—Early on Friday last the St. Joseph Post Office was entered by burglars, who succeeded in obtaining about $15 in cash and $60 in stamps. They pried up the rear window, which was fast-ened with two strong nails and a screw at the top, breaking the fastenings, but not the glass in the window. and having secured their plunder departed. No clue of the burglars has yet been obtained.

THE BENTON HARBOR Palladium says: The first "reconnoissance" in the temperance crusade in Benton Harbor, was made yesterday afternoon, by the ladies visiting the different liquor sellers and inviting them to attend a prayer meeting to be held at the Baptist church.—The weather for a number of weeks past has been very trying to persons not in the most vigorous health. We hear of much sickness, especially in the eastern part of this township and in the adjoining township of Bainbridge, where there have been many deaths.

The Doak was damaged to about the amount of seventy-five dollars, her head gear-ing being all carried away. Capt Boyne informs us that there was some mistake about the lights on the bridge which led to the disaster. The Dock will be laid up for three or four days. No blame is attached to the captain of the vessel.

Daughters, and then lier Own. A fearful tragedy was senacted in Scoots County; March 20th. Mrs. Elizabeth Sconce, who resides four miles from Georgetown, on the Frankfort pike, cut the throats of her two little girls, and then cut her own. She had been troubled with hysterics for a week past, and was under medical treatment. This morning her husband and his father, who slept in the same room with her and her two children, got up; and went out, leaving the rest of the family in bed. Soon afterward two grown up daughters, sleeping in the adjoining room, were awakened by the noise, and found their mother: lenning over the bed-side and asked her what she wanted. She said nothing, and returned to the bed-room where she slept. Immediately one of the children was heard to scream, and the girls rushing into the room; found the two children, Lulu, aged 2, and Willie Kate, aged 9, with their throats cut. Their screams brought Mr. Sconce to the house, and when he arrived his wife had out her own throat and was speechless, although she made an effort to speak to him. Drs. Adams and Wren were summoned as soon as possible; but Mrs. Sconse had severed both jugular veins, and, despite their efforts to save her, she died. The youngest child is in critical condition. The next one, Willie Kate, is considered out of danger, although severely cut about the throat and hands. The cutting was done

The Best Whitewash.

One-half bushel best quick-lime; slack wit boiling water; add one-half peck salt. Dissolve one pound of glue in hot water; add to the above. Also add three pounds Spanish whiting, and one-half peck clean sand. A little indigo should be dissolved in the water, before the lime is slacked; this will cause the wash to be more clear and transparent. After being prepared it should be kept in an iron kettle over the fire, and applied to the walls, fences, hoards, &c., as hot as possible. One pint of this mixture will; cover about one square yard of surface. There is nothing that gives such a fidy appearance to the farm house and its surroundings, and at the same time remove all the noxious odors, as thoroughly as whitewash, and as a preservation to lumber, it is but little inferior to paint. The sand should be omitted for inside work.

Nature's Great Remedy HROAT AND LUNG DISEASES!!

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the far, by which its highest medicinal properties are retained. Lar even in its crude state has been recommended by eminent physicians of every school. It is cansidently offered to the afflicted for the following simple reasons:

In Curas,—not by advuldy stobbing the cough—but by dissolving the phlegm and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter causing the initiation. In cases of scaled consumerion it both prolongs and renders less burdensome the life of the afflicted sufferer.

RELIGIOUS, Rev. J. H. Cissell, of South Bend, will preach in the M. E. Church on Lord's day next, morning and evening. Rev. Levi Tarr will fill Mr. Gissell's pulpit in South Bend on the occasion.

FIXING UP.—The law business in Buchanan must pay, judging from the fine fitting up Attorney J. J. Van Riper has given his office. We doubt if Berrien County can present another law office so tastofully fitted up.

FIRE.—On Thursday afternoon last the alarm of fire was sounded. The cause was soon discovered to be the house of Mr. John Mansfield, on Main street. Before the engine could he got on the ground the building was wrapped in flames. The house was totally destroyed, the contents were anothy saved. Insured in the Phoenix.

INSURANCE. To all parties interested in sound Insurance Companies. we would say, that the Æina, of Marifort, the Old North America, of Philadelphia. The Underwriters' Agency of New York all came out of the Roston fire triumphant and paid the last Jollar of their lesses, as they did in the Chicago fire. AGAIN.—Another liquor prosecution has been commenced against Mr. Molsberry. We have no doubt of the ultimate success of these prosecutions. They will, if persisted in, close up every saloon in the village. The result is in no way doubtful, but it necessarily takes a little time. It can't be done in a week. Notwithstanding the insinuations that the Common Council were not doing their duty. we know they have been doing all they could, and their work has had its effect.

Look out for new goods at Redden & Graham's next week.

IT is thought by the knowing ones, that the Benton Harbor Palladium would see more clearly if it would get the beam out of its own eye instead of attempting to get the mote out of its neighbors' eyes.

AT FIRES.—It is quite a common practice for some persons at fires to commence to tear out doors and windows about the first thing they attempt. This should not be done as it only tends to increase the spread of the flames, as it gives air and draft thereto. Chief Engineer Black desires us to say, that he requests all persons to desist from this bad practice at any future fires that may occur in this village.

A FACT beyond controversy, that Buchanan is one of the most pleasant neatest and quietest villages of its size, anywhere in the West, the reports of its defamers to the contrary notwithstanding. We have but two saloons, while no place of its size with which, we are acquainted but doubles that number, except perhaps those places where the crusade has done its work. Parties seeking a pleasant, healthy and quiet place, away from the din and bustle of city life, will find no better place than Buchanan. This is the universal testimony of visitors, and those who have traveled ex; tensively from East to West, and North to South. Come and see it, and you will admit the truth of all we

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS. - The Temperance Meeting at Oak Street Chapel, on Monday evening, was largely attended. Much interest was manifested in the good work now in progress. Short pithy speeches were made by several present. A goodly number of sharp thrusts were made apparently to hit some one or other of the speakers. Gentlemen, these reflections on one another never help a good cause, but always weaken it in the eyes of the people. Drives at one another within the camp never strengthen the effort of the whole, 10 but always the contrary. We trust in the future that those who speak may see these things as the people do, and work shoulder to shoulder, all together for the promotion of the one great object, and all will be well. There will be another general meet ing on Monday evening next, at which we understand Mr. J. J. VanRiper will have a brief address for the occa-

County Correspondence. The Three Oaks M. E. Church

Troubles.

NEW BUFFALO, Mich., April 2, 1874. EDITORS RECORD:—Please permit me through the columns of the REC-ORD, to correct a statement which I read in the letter "From Three Oaks," published in your issue of the 26th ult. The writer says: "The Methodists have settled the difficulty be-tween them and their pastor * * * by the discharge of the pastor." Now, while I do not believe, the writer intended to misrepresent the matter in question, vet I fear he does not know as much of the laws and usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church as a correct view of the present case requires. I was not discharged, as that was out of the power of the class of the M. E. Church at Three Oaks to do, either individually or collectively. ."The discharge of a pastor," is a phrase which does not belong to the parlance of the M. E. Church, at least so far as regular traveling ministers are concerned, while the removal of a pastor belongs to the higher powers of the church, and not to any particular branch of the church over which said pastor may have been appointed. One of these higher powers was present, and saw nothing in my course to justify him in removing me. But to save the class from running wild in their rebellious movement on account of my remaining at my post, I told a few leading members that I would not come and preach for them any more. The rest of the circuit are free from the influences of the Three Oaks M. E. troubles, and are working in perfect harmony with myself. I still reside at the Parsonage at New Buffalo. With due respect to all concerned,

FROM UNION PIER.

April 6th, 1874. EDITORS RECORD :- It would seem but just that this corner of Chickaming township should be noticed occasionally in the columns of the Recond, when you take into consideration the fact that more than one half of the business done in the township is done at Union Pier. It would be hard to state in dollars and cents just the amount of business transacted, however you can form an idea from the fact that there is from five to seven thousand gords of wood and a large amount of lumber shipped annually from this Pier. The store distributes about twenty thousand dollars worth of merchandise each year and the Puzzle,-no, I believe they call it the Handle Factory now, came into the possession of Mr. R. M. I notice that correspondents in different parts of the country claim that the prospects for an abundant crop of wheat this coming harvest are very flattering and I hope their prophesies may be correct, but the prospects for a good crop in this vicinity are very slim, especially on clay land. I have fourteen acres of wheat that looked very fair last fall which now looks almost as bare as the public highway, and in traveling over the different parts of the county I notice that mine is not an exception, for I discover that there are but few pieces that look very promising. prospect for a good crop of fruit is thus far very flattering, but before the fruit comes the blossoms and after the blossoms may come a frost for what we know, but we will hope for the best and be content with our lot. I notice from articles that I read in the RECORD and other papers that the crop of hens eggs are somewhat large in size, but Shawnee can beat anything in the egg line that I have seen published yet. Mr. Chester Fisher showed me an egg the other day, that was the production of a common breed of chickens, that measured eight and one half inches in circumference the longest way, and six and one half inches the center circumference. Can any hen in the county beat that? If she can, let us know and the Shawnee hen will try again. Inotice that the good people around Buchanan and Dayton are in the habit of having Grange socials, and it was my good pleasure to attend one held at Mr. David A. I understand that they have a Grange social once a week. It is not confined merely to the members of the Grange, but all are invited to join in the social amusements. Yours truly, FROM NEW BUFFALO.

Diseases of the Blood.

"The Blood is the Life." When this source is corrupted the painful and sorrow-producing effects are visible in many shapes. The multifarious forms in which t manifests itself, would form subjects upon which I might write volumes. But as all the varied forms of disease which depend upon bad blood are cured, or best treated, by such medicines as take up from this fluid and excrete from the system the noxious elements, is not of practical importance that I should discribe each. For instance, medical authors describe about fifty varieties of skin disease, but as they all require for their cure very similar treatment it is of no practical utility to know just what name to apply to a certain form of skin disease, so you know how best to cure it. Then again I might go on and describe various kinds of scrofulous sores, fever sores, white swellings, enlarged glands, and ulcers of varying appearance; might describe how virulent poison may show itself in various forms of eruptions, ulcers, sore throat, bony tumors, etc.; but as all these various appearing manifestations of bad blood are cured by a uniform means, I deem such a course unnecessary. Faith and Works. Two gentlemen were one day, cross ing the river in a ferry boat. A dispute about faith and works arose; one saying that good works were of small importance, and that faith was every thing; the other asserting the contra-ry. Not being able to convince each other, the ferryman, an enlightened Christian, asked permission to give his opinion. Consent being granted, he said: "I hold in my hand two oars. That in my right hand I call 'faith;' the other, in my left, 'works.' Now, gentlemen, please to observe, pull the oar of faith, and pull that alone. See! the boat goes round and round, and the boat makes no progress. I do the same with the oar of works, and with a precisely similar result—no advance. Mark! I pull both together, we go on apace, and in a very few minutes we shall be at our landing place. So, in my opinion," he added, "faith without works, or works without faith, will not suffice. Let there be both, and the haven of eternal rest is sure to be reached."

As the flower is before the fruit, so is faith before good works. Faith is the parent of works; and the children will bear a resemblance to the parent. It is not enough that the inward works of a clock are well constructed, and also the dial plate and hands; the one must set on the other; the works must regulate the movements of the hands.—Bishop Whately.

A Secret.

William Wirt's letter to his daughter on the "small, sweet courtesies of life," contains a passage from which a great deal of happiness might be harned: "I want to tell you a secret. The way to make your self pleasant to others is to show them attention. The whole world is like the miller at Mansfield, 'who cared for nobody—no, not he—hecause no-body cared for him.' And the whole world would serve you so if you gave them cause. Let people see that you do care for them, by showing them what Sterne so happily called the small courtesies, in which there is no parade, whose voice is too still to tease, and which manifest themselves by tender and affectionate looks and little acts of attention, giving others the preference in any little enjoyment, at the table, in the field, walking, sitting and standing.

Take life just as though it was—as t is an earnest, vital essential affair. Take it just as though you personally were born in the task of | performing a merry beat in it-as though the world, had waited for your coming. Take it as if it was a grand opportunity to do and achieve; to carry forward great and good schemes; to help and cheer a sufferering, weary, it may be, heart broken brother.

Gratitude and prayer are always suitable and becoming as we are ever in want, and God is always giving.

Consumption, Rheumatism, Cataria, Dronchitts, Dyspepsia, &c. Dronchitts, Dyspepsia, &c. The reputation Dr. Price has acquired, by candid, honest dealing, and years of successful practice has induced unprincipled persons to copy and imitate him as fur as they darg, incorder-to deceive, Let it be remembered that no person in the west is treating Chronic Diseases similar to Dr. Price—that his practice is not one of experiments, but founded on the haws of Nature with years of experience and evidence to mustain it. That it does not treat down to build up—make sick to make well—no hards treatment, no trifling, no lattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed no guess work but knowledge gnined by years office perience in the treatment of these diseases exclusively; no ancouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges; claim notto know everything, or to cure everybody, but do chaim to reason and common, sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their allment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will one nothing, as consultation is free. . IN THE WEST.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sier-ra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol.

The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinedar Birrers?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is lie to. They are a gentle Pargative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Dis-

In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no eather tic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily re-move the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same which the bowels are londed, at the same, time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.
