A Strange Arrest.

A few weeks since, a man named Charles von Hoffman was mysteriously arrested in Berlin, and after a short detention, as mysteriously released, without any one being able to ascertain the cause of the arrest. Hoffman is now about 30 years of age and is said to be the son of a glass manufacturer in Karisbad. In early youth he was of an English naval school, and afterward an officer in the English army, and a royal messenger. He has traveled in France, Italy, Poland, Russia, and America, and wears decorations of English, French Prussian and Swedish orders of knighthood. He married the daughter of the wealthy proprietor Roseler, in Warsaw; but his marriage was not a happy one. In 1871 his wife oband from twenty to sixty years, it is tained a decree of separation. In seventy beats a minute, declining to 1870 Hoffman acquired from Prince sixty at four-score. While living in St. Petersburg, it is stated, Hoffman was appointed Consul-General for the United States in Russia and Poland. When arrested in Berlin he was living in the Blucher Palace, where he rented an entire floor for 9,000 thalers per annum. He occupied his rooms only occasionally, but the rent was always promptly paid. When the police found him in his elegantly-furnished rooms, he had apparently only $1.50

Nutritive Value of Black Tea.

Tea is not only to be considered as a stimulant, but also a nourishment. That people who use tea are able to live longer and do more work on an insufficient amount of food, than those who abstain from the beverage, is attributed to its power of preventing the waste of the body, and in the animal economy may be compared to the financial proposition that a "penny saved is twice earned." From the large amount of nitrogen it contains, it may also be considered, to a certain extend, a direct means of nourishment. A. Vogel has thought it worth his while to determine how much of this nitrogen is employed in the infusion. The tea examined gave 6.6 per cent. ash, and 25.5 of extract, which was found to contain 2.8 per cent. nitrogen, while the partially exhausted leaves contain 3.58 per cent. From this it would seem that, unless we contrive to devote the whole leaf, we lose the larger portion of the nitrogen.

HEART-TRUE

"It is such a bother to be poor!" There had been a long interval of silence in Mrs. Jameson's sitting room, when Gertie made this exclamation. "What is the new bother, Gertie?" The pleased voice and tone of kind-y inquiry made the young girl blush deeply as she replied: "O, mamma, never mind; I was on ly thinking aloud." "Thinking of what?"

"Of some velvet flowers I saw yesterday, which just matched this rib bon," and Gertie held up a bonnet she was trimming. "Velvet flowers are so lovely for a winter bonnet, and this one needs something." "I am sure it looks very nice, Gertic." "Nice!" said the girl, scornfully emphasizing the word; "yes, it is very nice, and that turned silk is nice, and the short sack made out of your old coat is nice, and cleaned gloves are nice, and—"

"Why, Gertie!" cried her mother in a voice of amazement. "But there is nothing stylish or handsome in cleaned gloves, and retrimmed bonnets, and old cloaks turned into sacks, and so I say poverty is a bother."

t away that bonnet and come here. Now, little daughter,' said the widow, gently, "tell me the meaning of this sudden tirade against poverty; of the restless tossing I heard from your room last night; of the nervous unquiet of my contented little girl since yesterday?" There was no reply.

"Gertie, what did Leon Payne say to you last evening?" "He asked me to be his wife." The ords were jerked out hastily. . "And you answered-"

"Jane came in to shut up the parlor, not knowing he was there, and she stayed; so he got no answer at

"But he must be answered, Gertie. He has spoken to me and I told him it must rest with you." "Mamma!" this after a long, deep silence. "He is very rich. When he marries, his wife can have every luxury. If—if it is I, we can have you with us, and Jane need not teach that horrid school any longer. We were on - street the other day, and stopped to look into a jeweler's window, and he pointed out the kind of jewels he would wish his wife to wear. I need not wear old silks then, mamma."

"I don't know; you see, there is Harry." "But Harry cannot offer you jew-more freely." "Yes, dear, there would be no vatrimmed bonnets; no velvet flowers, no jewels.''

"But such a noble, true heart; such tender love!" "Leon Payne loves you."

"As much as he loves anything beyond his own pleasure and comfort. He is so thoroughly selfish, so hard, and thinks so much of himself. It is his wife that must be handsomely dressed, ride in her carriage, and reflect credit upon his choice. Mamma, he loves me because I am pretty and can sing well, and can manage his house nicely. "Yes, O, mamma, look!" She had torn the cover from a dainty package in her hand and opened a morocco case inside. Upon the black velvet lining lay a parture of glittering diamonds, flashing up, where a stray sunbeam fell upon them, into a glorious sea of color. "Leon Payne!" cried Gertie. "Arc

"Never-mind, we want a queen to preside over this supper." Mrs. Jameson led the way, while Jane and her husband stood as bewildered as Gertie had been. Suddenly the bridegroom started forward to grasp Harry's hand.

"Are we not brothers?" said Harry quietly. .: There was a little talk then, with husky voices and moist eyes, and Jane was still looking gratefully into Harry's face when the door opened and Gertie flashed in. All the light had come back to-her eyes, the rich color to her cheeks, and the shining silk revealed snowy, arms and shoulders, while rich lace fell in folds around the sweeping skirts.. "Lovely!" he cried; "but, Pet,

"You sent me, Harry! I sent them back to Leon Payne.' It was certainly ten years later when, one evening at one of Mrs. Clarke's receptions, Mrs. Lcon Payne said to her, pointing to her jewels: "It was the oddest thing about these diamonds. Somebody sent them to Leon for a valentine, years ago. He never could guess where they came from, for, of course, the lady must have been wealthy, though why she sent a lady's parture to a gentleman is a mystery. Are they not lovely, Mrs. Clarke?"

"Very lovely," said Gertie, and smiled as she thought of the day, ten years ago, when she was true to her own heart.

Libel in Odd Fellowship.

Several months ago every Odd Felows' Lodge in the United States, and many members personally, received, through the mails, a peculiar circular from Cuyahoga Lodge of Cleveland, Ohio. It was printed on fine white note paper in elegant typography, and was headed with the wood-cut portrait of a man in the regalia of the order. Under the portrait was the followin explanation:

Edwin Lyle, whose picture we give here, and who has been a Past Grand in our lodge, was expelled for contempt, being charged of having col-lected money of various brothers from our district to the amount of $114 for the support of the widow of our late deceased brother, Robert Bardwell, but never turned this money over, either to the lodge when called upon, nor to the widow. In consequence of the foregoing, Cuyahoga Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., passed the following res-

COM. OF CUYAHOGA LODGE. Five thousand of these circulars were sent out, and in addition an ad vertisement was inserted in several Cleveland newspapers like this:

"Edwin Lyle, of I. O. O. F., de-franded an Odd Fellow's widow of $114, collected from Odd Fellows for her benefit; occupation, plasterer. For further particulars apply to Cuyahoga Lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., Cleveland, Ohio."

The de-fendants offered in mitigation to prove the truth of the charges against Lyle, but the Court ruled that their truth or falsity did not affect the merits of the case. The Lodge, unlike a newspaper, was not in the business of publishing news, and the jury must judge of their motives from an entirely dif ferent standpoint. The Killing of Thomas Scott. A Live Mau Nailed in his Coffin. John Bruce, of Manitoba, who,

the first organization of the Provincial Government at the time of the Red River rebellion was named as President, with Louis Riel as Secretary, has written a letter, in which he purports to give an authentic account of the execution of Thomas Scott, with whose murder Louis Riel is charged.

Riel has been elected a member of the Dominion Parliament from the District of Provencher in Manitoba, and in spite of the fact that a reward of $5,000 is offered for his apprehension, and that detectives have been seeking him for months, he visited the government buildings in Ottawa the other day, subscribed his name on the roll of the House to which he had been elected, and then disappeared as mysteriously as he had come, an event which caused intense excitement throughout Canada.

At the time of the Scott tragedy, March 4, 1870, Riel was acting as President of the Provincial Government and Scott was a political prisoner. Bruce says:

Six soldiers had been chosen to shoot Scott. I have here again to write the name of the man whose behavior in that circumstance reflects the greatest honor. Augustin Pariston, one of the six soldiers, declared openly that he would not shoot at Scott; and, in fact, he took of the cap from his gun before the word of command, "Present" was given. Of the five balls remaining, only two hit the poor victim, one in the left shoulder, the other in the upper part of the chest above the heart. Had the other soldiers missed the mark unintentionally, or had they willingly aimed too high, too low, or aside? It is unknown. However as that may be, as the two wounds were not sufficient to cause death, at least sudden death, a man named Guillemette stepped forward and discharged the contents of a pistol close to Scott's head while he was lying on the ground. This ball, however, took a wrong direction. went into the upper part of the right cheek and came out somewhere about the cartilage of the nose.

placing him alive, and still speaking, in a kind of coffin made of four rough boards. It was nailed and placed in the southeastern bastion, and an armed soldier was placed at the door. This would seem like a story made at one's ease if there were not several witnesses full of life who heard, between the hours of 5 and 6 in the evening, the unfortunate Scott speaking from under the lid of his coffin: and it is known that he had been shot at half-past 12. What a long and horrible agony! and what ferocious cruelty on the part of his butchers! The words heard and understood by the French Metis were only these: "My God! My God!" Some English Metis, and others speaking Scott's tongues, heard distinctly these words: "For God's sake take me out of here or kill me!" Toward 11 o'clock, that is after ten and a half hours of into the bastion and gave him the finishing stroke with a butcher's knife

Another affliction to the human family is now threatened, and is nothing more nor less than the extinction of that historic old vegetable, the potato. The blight, the rot, and the Colorado beetle have done their work effectually. Time was when they were an article of export to the West Indies and the Southern States, and have sold as low as ten cents per bushel in the Northern States and in some countries were the principal article of food. But the potato is no longer a hardy plant or a certain crop. The tops blight, the tubers rot, and an insect devours the foliage, and now it requires the utmost vigilance on the part of the farmer to produce a fair crop. The outlook in Europe is much worse than in America. The expense, of course, would be considerable; but if the government could be induced to rise above mere political considerations, and appoint some such person as our Minister to Chili, and perhaps one or two other South American States upon the Pacific coast, Congress making the necessary provisions for his or their additional expenses, the desired result

those words. The diamonds flashed out their glorious waves of light before her eyes; the copy of verses lay open on the little work table, and Gertic sat musing. Pictures of the past came in succession into her memory. It was ten years ago, but she could still remember the day, since her father had been called to the shadow land. The luxurious country home where she and Jane, her eldest sister, were born, was sold and they had come to the city. Her mother, one of the finest amateur pianists of her time, had begun to teach music, and they had lived upon her earnings until Jane was old enough to take the French class in a large seminary, and Gertie to have singing scholars at home, but even with these additions there income was very limited. Close economy, self-denial, humble fare and quiet dress, Gertie could recall much more distinctly than the wealth her father had squandered. Where did Harry Clarke come upon the scene? Gertie scarcely knew. He was a step-son of her mother's brother, and had come to the city to make his fortune. Far away in the central part of Pennsylvania. nestled a small farm where Harry was born, where father and mother had died, and which was the boy's sole patrimony. The rent of his domain scarcely sufficed to clothe the young clerk, but he had been winning his way in the house of I. & Co., and now, if he could make three thousand dollars, might be a partner. The farm might bring part of that sum, where was the rest to come from, queried Gertie. Yet over Harry's memory picture the lit-tle maiden lingered lovingly. There was no part of her life so pleasant to dwell upon as that where he figured. Long walks and talks, duets over the old piano, chats by moonlight, firelight and gaslight. He was so tender and loving, so honorable and true, so respectful to her mother; so tender to Jane, and so ready to advise or assist

Was not such love as he offered worthy of any sacrifice? Leon Payne came to the scene only six months before this musing fit upon Gertie. She had met him at a party and had bewitched him by her pretty, piquant beauty, her grace and voice. He had dazzled her by his handsome face-Harry was not handsome, poor fellow, Gertie sighed-and wealth. But the young girl knew, with a woman's intuition, that under the courtly manners, flattering attentions and devoted air, there was a hard, selfish nature, a cruel jealousy and a suspicious and hot temper. Yet he was so

them on while she spoke. They flashed brilliantly against the deep crimson of her neat dress and heightened the effect of her young, fresh beauty. "If he were poor and ill could I work for him—as I could for Harry?" It burst from her lips in a sort of cry, and she tore off the jewels and replaced them on their velvet bed. "I

The parlor in which she waited was richly furnished. Velvet carpets covered the floor, velmirrors threw back the light of large riations on the turned cloth and re; chandeliers; costly pictures in heavy gilt frames hung upon the walls. Above large bedrooms were filled with handsomely appointed furniture: In one room, laces, velvets, flowers and silks fit for a royal trosseau filled drawers and wardrobe; the dining room was spread for a rich and varied re-

A quieter home, but pleasant, too, was waiting for Jane, whose husband doorbell at that instant that called | ing long looked upon as an unattainaher to the door. She came back with | ble felicity. But Jane was to spend a few days with Gertie before going "Two valentines, mamma! I had to her own home, and the mother looked for two brides, as I said before.

The House of Representatives has finally performed their duty nobly towar is the country press. On Monday of last week Representative Packer, Chairman of the Post Office Committee, moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill for the free exchange of newspapers between publishers, and free transmission of newspapers by mail within the county of their publication. The rules were suspended and the bill passed by a vote of 178 yeas to 41 nays.

The following is the full text of the Lili as it passed the House:

This bill proposes to do away with the great injustice to the people and the country press which was inaugurated under the law abolishing the Franking privilege. It again places the country press and the people of the rural districts, as respects their home papers, on something nearer a just basis with regard to the city press and city inhabitants. It now only remains for the Senate to take immediate action on this bill, to show that that body, too, is in sympathy with the people and justice, and that the few mammonth concerns of the country do not rule the legislators for the people. We trust the Senate will not long delay this symple act of justice to the masses and to the thousands of country newspapers all over this broad country.

A Plea for Berrien County.

EDITORS RECORD:-I have been reader of your paper during the last two years, and have therein read many communications from correspondents in the Western and Southern States. These articles have contained glowing descriptions of the countries from which they were written. They tell of the splendid opportunities there are for obtaining homes, and would lead us to believe that once there a competence is easily acquired. Others have read these articles and they have begotten a desire to leave these woods and go to the West, where Fortune's wheel is ever turning with the bright side upward. Almost daily do we hear the expression, "If I could only sell out I would go to Kansas or Colorado where there is a chance for a poor man to get rich." This desire to move to those countries takes possession of many and they entirely lose sight of or depreciate the advantages which surround them. Some of them have received false impressions which will, in the end, lead to bitter disappointment. Now since it is almost invariably the poor man and those of moderate circumstances who think to better their lots by removing to the West, let us inquire, what advantages, if any, does the West possess over our own country for this class of individuals? A few years ago the writer, actuated by the same motives as thousands of others, left this State and went westward. He saw fortune pointing in that direction, and he went and stopped a year and a half in southern Lowa. The land in this part of that State is fertile and the facilities for trade good. In riding over the country the writer was moved by the beauty of many scenes and the grandeur of others presented to his view. He was invigorated by the fresh breeze that came slowly across the prairie, and became enthusiastic while listening to the stories of the men who were attending to their immense herds of cattle upon the ridges. They boasted of how much money there was in stock, and how easily it was made, and we were bound to exclaim, "Surely, there is no other place like this!" yet, after eighteen months of close observation we came to the following conclusions, viz: South-western Iowa is not the place for a man of family unless he has money, and this we believe applies equally well to nearly all parts of the adjoining States. A poor man may easily obtain one-fourth or one-half a section of land, but unless he has some surplus funds he will have a hard struggle to improve his land, and will have to toil daily for years to keep that hungry wolf, poverty, from the Corn is easily cultivated, and yields well, but is only worth from fifteen to twenty five cents per bushel. Wheat is not a sure crop. No market for oats except to supply local demand. Cattle growing and feeding pays, but unless one has money to get the start it will be three or four years before auch can be done in this line. Mechanics would do well were there not so many of them; so with merchants and professional men. Some reader will say that the writer presents only the dark side. He confesses that he has not shown a very bright prospect. He would further call the attention of the reader to the fact that the majorimany instances where fortunes have been made in a day, as it were, and thousands of instances of failures, too, of which we hear nothing.

Now let us turn our attention to home. Here a poor man can always find plenty of work to do, and can get good wages, provided he be a good worker. He can work at something the year round, which is not the case West, at least with farmers and many | shall deliver me," &c.; then he seizes mechanics. By industry and economy | it and goes forward, and grasps anshort time, enough to make the first payment upon a piece of land, and then, if he be a good calculator—which is necessary to success anywhere—he can make the timber pay the clearing of the land, and the crops the payments as they come due. If we but sow and attend we shall reap the harvest. An abundant harvest, properly garnered and sold, will bring us an ample supply of greenbacks. The same may be said of the spade and the pruning knife; the gathering and selling of fruit. The merchants, mechanics and professional men will thrive just in proportion to he thrift of the tillers of the soil. The time is past in this county when lumber, wood, etc., can be depended upon to furnish our incomes. Now, clearing, plowing, tilling and reaping is or should be the order of the day. There are many more reasons that could be urged why we think Berrien County a desirable place in which to live. We will mention but few of them in conclusion. Here society has tangible form and a good one, too. Here our interests are so intimately interwoven that our success aids in that of our neighbors. We join hands and march on together rejoicing. In the western countries how different. Men stand independent and alone to a great extent. This is the testimony of hundreds who have experienced it. Hore our educational advantages are superior. New Troy, April 16, 1874.

Connecticut Correspondence. HARTFORD, April 10, 1874.

EDITORS RECORD:—Pardon me the intrusion of coming before you again, but my mouth must speak, through the pen, of the wonderful things which my ears have heard. We have been signally blest with the wonderful teaching of that holy woman, Miss S. Smiley, who is going about speaking and teaching of our "dear Lord Christ Jesus." She was in Chicago a little more than a year ago, and what her mission was there I know not, but she had sweet and profitable conversation with that godly man, Mr. Moody, who is now in Scotland. She is a Quakeress, about 40 years of age, of educa-tion, refinement and wealth, and re-of the order, and also to "go up," ceives nothing for her services but but not in the way many have been what the Lord sends her through his anticipating or predicting for the last willing servants. She has been speak-ing about four years; has a cottage in Saratoga, N. Y., where she spends Factory. After being courteously her summers studying the Bible, and shown through the various departin the winter goes from place to place speaking as she is called. She gave sixteen lessons in Hartford, of which I lost four, and the loss was great. People came from different parts of the city and brought their lunch, and stayed three hours in the church during the intermission, rather than lose a service, or go the distance twice over. She commenced in a lecture room with what she called her Bible lessons, which she gave every afternoon, and speaking in the evening, her congregation increasing so that at her ninth and tenth service the largest church was filled to overflowing, and hundreds had to be turned away. The aisles were filled, every standing place in the church, people sat on the pulpit stairs and on the pulpit floor, and stood until they had to move to give room for the speakers to go to the desk. Neither pen nor tongue can do her justice. She must be heard, and her countenance seen, as it lights up with a heavenly radiance, as she speaks of her "dear Jesus," as she calls him, to be appreciated. The most eminent divines sat with the multitude, with eyes rivited upon her, while almost breathless silence pervaded the house. Toward the last, people began to assemble an hour and a quarter before the time of service, and half an hour before that time every favored seat was secured. No need of tolling the bell to call worshipers, for they were already there. Pastors have had such teaching that it will be marvelous if they have not learned to teach better and more simple than ever before, and they cannot do it, until they study the Bible more thoroughly, and earnestly pray for the gift of comparing and understanding the symbols of the Old and New Testament. Such revelations of mysteries as were made marvelously plain, people called it inspiration by the Holy Spirit. One of her discourses she commenced with Jacob's dream of the ladder, which typifies Christ. Christ is our ladder. By him we are able to ascend into Heaven. When he died on the cross he fastened the ladder firmly to the earth, and when he rose and ascended into Heaven, he immovably fastened it to the throne of God. So we have an easy and sure pathway from earth to Heaven. This ladder is sprinkled and marked with his blood, so that if we hold on firmly we cannot slip. When we turn from the world, and grasp the first round, that is repentance; and when we grasp the second and begin to climb with our feet, that is believe on the Lord Jesus Christ; and the third symbolizes confession of our faith before the world. "Dear friends," she would say, "do not cling to the ty of instances of success of men or ladder and remain stationary, and communities are reported. There are | clog the way, and be stumbling blocks and discouragements to those who would come after, but go forward hand over hand, and foot over foot, and cheer and encourage those who would come after, that is, grow in grace," &c. She spoke of Paul, by reason of some clog that was dragging him down, so that he was unable to

to provide for a new election in Louisiana. which was ordered to be printed. The bill to provide for the incorporation and regulation of railroad companies in Territories of the United States was taken up. The Louisiana affair was again discussed at length, when the railroad bill again came up, and several amendments were agreed to, when the bill was read a third time and passed. Mr. Carpenter introduced a bill to change the time of holding courts for the Eastern District of Wisconsin, at Oshkosh. The Senate went into executive session, and soon after adjourned, HOUSE, April 13.—Bills were introduced to regulate service in the collection reach the round above, he cried out, of customs at various ports of entry in the "O, wretched man that I am, who United States, and the disposition of fines penalties and forfeitures incurred under laws relating to customs; asking for legis-

Alleged Attempt by a Michigan Woman to Murder her Husband.

A man named Starkweather, a passenger on the American bark Rebecca Corwell on her late passage from Montevideo to this port, appeared some days ago before Commissioner Shields, and charged Mrs. Jared Letson, aged nineteen years, a native of Michigan, with having attempted to murder her husband, a wealthy California drover, aged about fifty years, on the 25th of February last, while on the high seas, by adminstering poison to him.

A warrant was issued for the woman's arrest, and intrusted to Deputy Marshal Crowley to serve. The denuty ascertained that on the arrival of the vessel at this port the woman and her husband left for the West, and her whereabouts could not be traced.

The deputy further learned from the captain of the vessel, that Starkweather had charged the woman with the crime while the vessel was still at sea, and that the woman, on being confronted with Starkweather, confessed, but said that Starkweather had induced her to attempt to poison her husband, promising to marry her on the arrival of the vessel at New York.

This charge Starkweather indignantly denied, and wanted the captain to place the woman in confinement

DISEASES!!

It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medicinal properties are retained. Tar even in its crude state has been recommended by eminent physicians of every school. It is confidently offered to the afflicted for the following simple reasons:

I TI CURES,—not by abruptly stopping the coughbut by dissolving the phiegm and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter causing the irritation. In cases of seated consumrtion it both prolongs and renders less burdensomethe life of the afflicted sufferer.

2. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain, and subduing influmnation.

3. It puriples AND ENRICHES THE BLOOD. Possively curing all humors, from the common prayers or encurron to the severest cases of Scrofula. Thousands of affidavits could be produced from those who have felt the beneficial effects of Pine Tree Tar Cordial, in the various diseases arising from impurities of the BLOOD.

4. Il invigorates the digestive organs and reservathe appetite.

THE LECTURE.—The Oak street chapel was crowded with people, on Monday evening last, to listen to the lecture of Mrs. Emma Maloy, of Elkhart. Ind. We have seen the notices of and comments on Mrs. Maloy's lectures, in different papers throughout Indiana and in this State, and expected to hear something more than ordinary on the occasion above referred to. If we were disappointed it was because the lecture far exceeded, both in its sentiment and in the manner of its delivery, anything we had expected to hear, even after being so favorably impressed by the highly flattering and complimentary notices which have so often attracted our attention. The lecture, from its opening to its conclusion, was a solid compact of sound principles, rich in instruction, couched in the choicest of language, stamped with originality, well seasoned with sparkling wit, and was delivered with that carnestness ENTERTAINMENT .- The long promised Entertainment to be given our citizens by the Faire Mon Devoir Society is to come off at Collins & Weaver's Hall on two weeks from to-morrow (Friday) evening, May 8th. The members of the F. M. D. S. have spared no pains nor time to make this one of the best of home entertainments, and we are confident that every one who attends will be amply repaid both for their time and money. A full programme will be out early.

Make your calculations to attend the entertainment. REDDEN & GRAHAM have just received a large and well selected stock of New Goods, consisting in part of all styles of Dress Goods, fancy goods, Notions, Domestic Carpets, Oil Cloths, Wall Paper, &c., &c. Cali and see them before you buy elsewhere. TREMONT HOUSE.—Mr. A. B. Sabin has taken possession of the Tremont House, under a three years' lease. The new proprietor is thoroughly overhauling and refitting the premises, and proposes also to make the hotel equal to the wants of the traveling public. Mr. S. has been connected from his youth with a hotel, and knows how to keep a public house. He also assures us that he knows by experience that a hotel can be kept on temperance principles and without the sale of spirituhand, and when change in the address is desired, give the name of the post ous liquors. We wish him success. Away among those gems of light,

That sparkle in the upper sky
There sounds and swells throughout the night A sweet mysterious harmony. And silguce brings the notes so near, That even mortal ears may hear.

I strain my ravished ears to hear The snatches of celestial song, That coming on the midnight air In weird-like cadence float along, A ringing sweet unearthly tone That makes me think of loved ones—gone.

And then I think I hear a strain, An echo, or a sweet refrain.
Of voices I have heard before, Accompanied by angel choirs, On harps of gold and living lyre.

Of these the fourth is comparably better than the three former, so that a wise man would not take a world to change with them. Religion.

At all times of life, I think, is the chiefest treasure of human achievement. But if it be wise in such matters to speak of what a man has not only experienced, and so known by heart, then I should say I think true religion is not quite whole and mature in childhood, youth or manhood; that it takes old age to make it complete in all parts, and perfect in each detail. Childhood has its bud, growing from a germ which none notice in babyhood: youth has its flower-how fair and sweet a thing it is; in manhood comes the full foliage, and the expanding fruit falling, apple by apple as it gets ripe; but in old age, only, appears, I think, the full harvest, when the very leaves turn into beauty ere they die, and the full, ripe apple hang handsome on the trees, or falling clothe the ground with their loveliness, each one a full history, pointing back, also a seed prophetic of another spring whose sun rises not on us here; we have its dawning not its day.

Sow Thy Seed.

Some persons imagine that because newspaper articles are such translate matter, the paper generally passing out of sight as soon as read, and one week's issue soon displacing the preceding one, they make very little permanent impression. We have noticed many instances that prove the contrary. Only the other day, we heard a very intelligent lady refer to an article in the Messenger, which, she said, had satisfied and settled her mind on the subject of which, it treated. This, we have reason to believe, is only one instance among many .-The article is read, and carries consideration to the mind of the reader, and though the particulars of the article, and even the particular paper in which it was found, may be forgotten, the impression remains. In this way the mind receives information, is furnished and confirmed, however transient may seem to be the sources estimate the good they might do by well matured newspaper articles .-Some pastors never, or very seldom, write for their paper, and yet there are subjects which come up constantly which need illumination and illustration. The columns of almost any paper are open to one who is willing to write carefully, earnestly and instructively. Why is not the opportunity embraced.—German Reformed Messenger.

KIND FRIENDS: I thank you one and all very much for your very liberal patronage during the last seven years, and in the future I shall, as in the past, try to give each and every one the worth of their money by keeping everything in the GROCER AND BAKER'S LINE, selling just as low as goods bought for cash down, (not thirty days), can be sold, and dealing justly by all. I guarantee everything I sell. Good goods are warranted good, and poor ones are warranted poor, and everything sold, either good or bad, will be taken back and the money refunded if the purchaser is not satisfied. My Baker is one of the best in the State. My clerks will be always ready to wait upon you with alacrity, treat you kindly, and ask you to come again. In my Lunch Room you can get hot tea and coffee, rusk and butter, bologna, cheese, dried beef, pickled tongue, cake, pies, oysters, &c., &c., all served with neatness and dispatch. The most of my goods are bought in large quantities direct of the manufacturer and importers, at much less figures than they can be purchased after pass ing through the hands of agents. My teas come direct from Yokohama, passing through the hands of only one man, an importer in New York city, and are consequently from ten to twenty cents a pound cheaper than at any other place in town. All I ask of any one is to call and examine goods and learn prices. The goods will be shown cheerfully even if you do not buy a cents' worth. Remember the place, 53 Front street, Buchanan, Mich.

TENDED TO.

Is widely known as one of the most effectual remedies ever discovered for cleansing the system and purifying the blood. It has stood the test of years, with a constantly growing rep utation, based on its intrinsic virtues, and sustained by its re-markable cures. So mild as to be safe and beneficial to children, and yet so searching as to effectually purge out the great cortions of the blood, such as the scrofulous and syphilitic contamination. Impurities, or diseases that have lurked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote, and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofila, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints, to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Fits, Neuralgia, Heart Disease, Female Weakness, Debility, and Leucorrheea, when they are manifestations of the scrofulous poisons.

It is an excellent restorer of health and strength in the Spring. By renewing the appetite and vigor of the digestive organs, it dissipates the depression and listless languor of the season. Even where no disorder appears, people feel better, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. The system moves on with renewed vigor and a new lease of which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. "Phunygrams."

A hard-shell Baptist minister over in Indiana, who married a fortnight after his wife's death, made the following satisfactory explanations in the pulpit the Sunday following: "I searched the Schriptures from Ginisees to Riverlations and found plenty of promises to the widder, but nary one to the widderer. And so I took it that the good Lord didn't waste sympathy on a man when it is in his power to comfort himself, and having a first-rate chance to marry in the Lord, I did so, and I would do so again. Besides, brethren, I consider that poor Patsy was just as dead as she ever would be."

While journeying by rail not long since, says a correspondent, I over-heard the following incident: One night, just after I had scrambled into my sleeping berth, I heard loud and angry voices proceeding from the rear of the car. "I tell you this is a aleeping car, and you can't come in without a ticket," "Begorra, I had a ticket." "Where is it?" "I've lost it." "If you really lost your ticket, perhaps. you can remember your berth?" There was an interval of silence, Paddy evidently employing his thinking powers. "Och, your honor," he exclaimed at length, "I was born on the twinty-sixth day of September, 1838."

A shrewd wife in town who has a forgetful husband has adopted a method of jogging his memory which is at once novel and effectual. When she desires him to bring her anything from the store she makes a cross on the back of his hand with a lead pencil. When he takes a drink at a saloon, in extending his hand for the glass he invariably sees that mark and remembers the errand. Being thus reminded thirty or forty times a day, it would be singular, indeed, if he should forget what was required of him.— Weekly Brunswicker.

The Galesburg (Ill.) Free Press thus grapples the great question of finance: "Pay up! If you owe but a single dollar, go and pay it; when there is so little money we ought to keep it moving around lively. Jim owed us, and we owed Bill, and the said Bill owed the said Jim. Jim got mad, because we made him pay us one day last week; but we paid Bill, that night as happy as a clam in high water, with just as much money as he had in the morning.

An exchange says, a lady trading at a store in North Manchester, Kosciusko county, the other day, insisted upon the clerk who was waiting upon her, that he should sell cheaper to her than to other people. The clerk wanted to know why, to which she replied: "There is a little Gran-

There are five kinds of consciences conscience which neither sees nor saith anything, neither beholds the sins in a soul, nor reproves them. Secondly, the flattering conscience, itself, which, though seeing sin, soothes men in the committing thereof. Thirdly, seared conscience, which had neither sight, speech nor sense in men that are past feeling. Fourthly, a wounded conscience, freighted with sin. The last and best is a quiet, and clear conscience, pacified in Christ Jeegar Bittors are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra. Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted the properties of which are extracted the properties of the ed therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Briters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving prinoiple, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a
