BIDDY'S PHILOSOPHY. What would I do if you was dead? And when do you think of dying? And when do you think of a fair.
I'd stand by your bed, and hold your head
And cry, or pertiad to be crying!
There's many a worser man nor you—
If one knew where to find him— And mebbe many a better, too, With money to leave behind him! But you, if I was dying to-day (I saw you now when you kissed her), I tell you, Pat, what you'd be at— You'd marry your widdy's sister!

You'd make an illegant corpse, indade, Sleeping so sound and stiddy: If you could see yourself as you laid, You want to come back to Biddy! You would be dressed in your Sunday best, As tidy as I could make you, With a sprig of something on your breast-And the boys would come to wake you But you, if I was dead in your stead
(Do you think I never missed her?)
I tell you, Pat, what you'd be at—

You'd marry your widdy's sister! The undertaker would drive the hearse That has the big black feather: If there was no money left in your purse Your friends would club together! They look at your cold remains before They followed you down to the ferry And the coaches standing at the door Would go to the cemetery! Sut you, if I was once in the box
(I wonder her lips don't blister),
I tell you, Pat, what you'd be at—
You'd marry your widdy's sister!

When you was under the sod I'd sigh, And-if I could do without you, Mebbe I've a strapping lad in my eye
Would come here and talk about you. A little courtin' would be divertin'.

A kind voice whispering, "Biddy!"

And a kiss on the sly-for what's the hurt in A man consoling a widdy? But you, before I was dead at all (Now don't deny that you kissed her), I tell you, Pat, what you'd be at-You'd marry your widdy's sister! Editor's Drawer in Harper's Magazine for June.

What was there against Fred? Everything the Dr. would have told you; he was the idlest of all idle young men; he was foppish in his manner of dressing; he was somewhat loud in his conversation; in a word, he was of no use to himself or

Mary would have told you that he was the best companion she had ever met; at all times her beau-ideal of a gentleman; well educated, gentlemannered; possessed of good taste; very unselfish; and with a temper that nothing could ruffle.

Fred, answering for himself, would have answered that he was equal in all respects to the average young man of society. His family was among the best; he had a comfortable forturne; he did not drink or gamble, and he had graduated at Harvard. But, with all these things in his favor, D.. Burgess did not think him worthy of his neice and ward, Mary Ellison. "You say you love him?" he continued.

"Yes, sir." "And what do you know about "It is not necessary to go into that uncle: I have learned to love him, and I have nearly told him so." "But, my dear, I am sure that he is unworthy of you as I am that I am sitting here.'

"Have you any grounds for that "I have grounds for it in my knowledge of human nature. You fancy him a well educated, brilliant man because he can talk in a glio manner of the thousand and one nothings that make up society talk; but I can see that his five years at college have left him no real knowledge, and that he has nothing in his head but froth."

"I do not think you understand or do him justice." "I am sure that I do him more than justice." "I cannot see it as you do, uncle.

I find his habits are good, his family equal to ours---' "A fig for his family," broke in the doctor. "I care nothing for any such nonsense as family." I never yet knew 'family' to provide food or keep a man from neglecting or abusing his own household. I want to see a manwith some fixed principles to govern the place in the world that God has given him to fill." "And you think that Fred does not possess these qualities?" "I do. If he did I would not say a that she could not consent to marry you."

"And what is there in me or in my life that would make marriage so undesirable, sir?" the young man asked, with some pardonable pride. "I can be frank with you, young man, if you really desire me to be.' "I will be thankful to you if you will be very plain with me."

"Then, what my neice objects to, and which I object to much more strongly, is, that you are of no use in the world. Don't start; I do not inout to you that your life is frittered away in ball rooms and under lamplight, and in worshipping the life of a society man, instead of filling a place in the world that God sent you here the matter in your own hands.

to occupy." "What would you have me do? I have money and do not need to work; then why should I work? And what can I do ?" "That is not for me to say. Every man, who is a man, seeks out work for himself or takes the best thing that comes to hand. I, too, was born with money, but I would be afraid to die if I had done nothing but simply live on my income." "You are very severe, and I am not prepared to say that you are not right. Can I see Miss Ellison?" The doctor touched the bell asked the servant to request Mary's presence, and then went out of the room, that tht two might feel unem-barrassed. "I wanted to know if your uncle's decision is the same as yours." "It is," she said in a law voice, and with face averted. "And you object to me because I am a good-for-nothing?" "I think my uncle's idea of what a man should be in the world is a cor-you, and I hope to win you yet." He arose, and they said "goodbye." Would he prove himself a man? was what her heart questioned. Would she wait for him? was the question in "And now what?" asked the doctor when he was alone with Mary. "We shall see," was her answer. Fred Seward went to his room at the hotel and asked himself the same question the doctor had spoken, "And now what?" He had been told that his life was of no use to any one, and that he amounted to no more than a straw carried on a breeze. Was it so? He began to think out the question. Was his life worth a farthing to any living person up to this time? No, it was not. What had he to show for these twenty-five years? A little smattering of knowledge; nothing else. Was any one better because he had lived?

No. He could not recall an instance where he had ever been of held to any one. Supposing he should lose his fortune to-day, what could he do? He did not dare spare himself in his cross-examination, nor did he hesitate about calling things by their right names. No wonder Dr. Burgess had declined him for a husband for his neice. But what should he do? Ah! that was a difficult problem to answer. A lawyer? No, he had no taste for the law. The church? No, no; he was unworthy so high a calling. A doctor? Why not? Yes, why not a

There was quite a sensation among the loungers in Swampscott when it was found that Fred Seward had left. them for that season. And the sensation was still farther increased when they heard he was studying medicine with Dr. Sweet, of Boston. If Dr. Burgess heard the story he never mentioned the matter to his neice, nor was Fred's name ever spoken between

Three years rolled round without a change to Mary Ellison, except that she grew more beautiful with each new year. Her uncle had moved to Boston, and she was among the most admired of the belles of society. Yet admiration and flattery seemed to have no power over her, and she was as often to be met with at the bedside of the sick and in the houses of the poor as in the brighter halls of luxury and extravagance. And there was enough that one say that she had loved you all these could do, if she was but willing. years? that she loves you now with Thousands of poor people had seen their little all swallowed up in the great flames, and needed all the encouragement and help they could obtain. But Mary Ellison was a rare missionary. She was among the poor and the helpless because her heart was tender with pity for them, and not to hear men sound her praises. "Anything I can do for you to-day, uncle?" she asked as she started on one of her morning rounds. "Nothing, my dear; but don't be

I have been studying in the office of an old school-mate of yours, Dr. Sweet, and have enjoyed my life much more than I ever thought it possible. My purpose in now writing to you is to say that when I last saw Miss Ellison I said to her I should renew my proposal. Since that time circumstances have arisen which compel me tend to insult you, but I wish to point | to say to you that I cannot renew those proposals, nor can I aspire to Miss Ellison's hand. Of course you will do with this as you may think best, but I should be glad if you could keep

> With great respect, FRED K. SEWARD. The doctor studied and worried on the matter the rest of the day, and then had not decided upon what he ought to do. But things often happen in this world that are not planned out beforehand by us. While he was worrying over the letter Mary was carrying happiness into a score of homes and spreading her own sunshine among hearts that had little else than clouds. Among her people was a widow who had but one child, a boy old enough to earn a few pennies selling papers. She stopped at her door, and was met by the mother in tears. Her boy had been run over by the street-cars, and his life was in great danger. Had they a doctor? "Oh, yes, ma'am; the lame doctor."

Mary had frequently, of late, heard of the lame doctor, but had never seen him.

"When was he here?" she asked. "He is here now, ma'am." At first she thought she would not go in until after the doctor had gone, but she wanted to ask him what could be done; so she followed the woman into the room.

"O, Doctor!" cried the mother, "here is our best friend." Mary turned to the man standing by the bedside, and found the lame doctor to be Fred Seward.

He reached out his hand and greeted her with the pleasantest smile, saying: "We need no introduction, Miss

She gave him her hand, but hardly speak with surprise. "Are you the lame doctor?" she asked after the first greeting.

"I am," he answered, at the same time pointing to the crutch lying be-"We never heard of it," she said.

'How did it happen?" "Building fell at the fire, and rollheavy stone on my foot. "Yes, miss," broke in the widow 'but he doesn't tell how it was---' "Oh, never mind that," said he im-

DON'T LET MOTHER DO IT. Daughter, don't let mother do it! Do not let her slave and toil, While you sit, a useless idler, Fearing your soft hands to soil.
Don't you see the heavy burdens,
Daily she is wont to bear,
Bring the lines upon her forehead—
Sprinkle silver in her hair?

Daughter, don't let mother do it! Do not let her bake and broil; Through the long, bright summer hours Share with her the daily toil. See, her eye has lost its brightness, Faded from her cheek the glow, And the step that once was houvant Now is feeble, weak and slow.

Daughter, don't let mother do it! She has cared for you so long, Is it right the weak and feeble Newspaper Men. From Our Fireside Friend.

BY M. QUAD. The generality of people imagine that it's a big thing to be an editor, and that only one man out of a thousand can run a newspaper. This is where people are mistaken; it's one of the easiest things in the world to be an editor or reporter. If you are an editor, all you've got to do is to sit at a table in the office and open the money letters as they come in, order the other folks about, and get up a short editorial sometime during the day. There's no great hurry about the editorial, and no great matter how it is written, so that it is ponderous. The great secret of an editorial is its ponderosity, and after you've got that you are all right. The following would do for a new beginner, and probably get his salary advanced:

"THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP." "We have heretofore expressed our ppinion—that is, we have previously ntimated—that all is not gold that glitters. The refulgent reflections of flour in cold water thoroughly, by the statu quo have for the last few stirring, until the paste has a thin days borne heavily on the decided impression prevailing to an alarming extent, although we can't see any retrospective view for the previous decis-

This would be plenty enough for a common editorial, and it would be fully as good as a good many common editorials. All you want is to give it weight, or at least nine out of ten ediweight, or at least nine out of ten edi-tors seem to write their editorials on the paper should be laid quickly after that plan.

As to local matters, any fair to medium sort of a chap could make a reporter of himself in three days. All he wants is vim and spice in his articles. The following would do as well as anything:

"A STOLEN CORPSE!" "Why in thunder and plagues don't Jim Williams remove them cussed dry goods boxes from the walks in front of his store? We have put up with his confounded evasion of the ordiboxes are not removed before another issue, we'll speak right out and let the world know who stole old Jake Woodhull's body from the county graveyard and sold it to a doctor for four gallons of whisky!" Reporters who couldn't begin to write such a spirited article as the above have had their wages advanced, been praised and petted, and finally died rich.

As to the marine department, the most common plug of a man can be a marine editor. All that is necessary is for him to know something about a ship, so that he can speak in nautical terms. If he could come up to the following sample he would be all right. "HORRIBLE CALAMITY!"

"Last Thursday morning, as the Sandbarge, Mary Scott, was near Point an Pelee, Lake Erie, going free under topsails and sky-royals, she was struck by a furious squall, which threw the larboard anchor on its beam ends, capsized the jibboom and tore every eye-bolt out of the main bobstay: The starboard fluke of the helm went to thunder, and the main topsail was torn from the bowsprit and blown to Davy Jone's locker. The scow went over, and all her crew, except fifteen men and a dog, met a watery grave." There are only one or two other things which a man has to learn to be a good newspaper man and hold a situation, but it's awful easy to learn, and it's a puzzle to me why a man will plug around on a farm at $16 a month when he could make $30 per week editing a paper.

Hints on House Papering. This is the season, among good house wifes, for cleaning, whitewashing, papering, painting and otherwise renovating the domicile: After the cleaning, whitewashing and painting is accomplished, comes the process of papering the walls; but the first thing, frequently to be done, is the removal of the old paper. To do this successfully, wet the wall thoroughly, and, when well soaked, the old paper can be striped off very quickly. After the paper is removed wash the walls to get off all the particles of paper which remain, and leave the walls till nearly dry before commenceing to lay the new paper. If the walls have been whitewashed instead of papered, wash them with vinegar, which will make the paste disappears. paper adhere more securely. A bench is easily made for measuring and cutting the paper by placing boards of suitable length across two flour barrels. The paper should be unroll and cut to proper length and in sufficient quanity to cover the room, before the pasting process commences. These sheets be laid one over the other, to be readily at hand when the paste is ready to begin work. The liability of turning the edges or damaging the paper will be greatly obviated by addopting this course. Flour paste is the usual article for the purpose, and rye is considered better than wheat as it has more adhesion. Mix the when it will thicken, according to the length of time it is submitted to the heat. If found too thick in cooling, add boiling water till the desired degree of thickness is obtained; then add a little carbolic acid to prevent the paste from souring or becoming moldy. A broad white-wash brush is pasting to prevent its becoming soft and tender to handle. Two persons are required to lay on paper with rapidity, one to paste and one to apply the paper. When the paper is pasted it should be handed to the one on the ladder, who holds it about a foot from the top, allowing the upper end to hang over on the back of the hands. By looking down the wall may be seen when it matches the previously-laid length; and after adjusting to match it should then be nance as long as we will, and if the brought gently to the wall and pressed upward toward the ceiling, spreading them out toward the corners of the length of paper. The scissors are then run along to the juncture of the wall and ceiling, making a mark which can be easily seen, when the top of the paper is removed for a little distance and it is cut off even and replaced. Then a soft cioth is gently passed downward and the paper pressed against the wall to the

He was out on a jaunt in the township of White Oak, Ingham county, sticking to every farmer until he got his name and money, and it so happened that he came to a house where death had called a few hours before. The farmer's wife was laid out, and the husbandman and his children were grieving over her loss when a knock at the door startled them. "What's up?" inquired the editor as he saw the farmer's solemn countenance before him. "My wife is dead," replied the farmer.

"Is that so?" mused the editor a little disappointed: "Did "she die easy?" "Dropped off like a lamb." "Did she say abything?"

"Not a word—just went right to sleep like." "I didn't know," continued the editor; with a sad look on his face, "but what she might have requested you to subscribe for the Cascade, which you know is the best paper in the country. If you want it I'll take your name

Farm and Household.

The Farmer's Food.

There are some notable individuals who are horribly scared about the situation of things which prevents the farmer from having fresh meats a large portion of the year, and compels him to subsist on salted meats, fish, etc., so far as meat diet is concerned. We never could discern much danger to the country in this direction; and we honestly believe that if the race becomes reduced in size, in vigor of brain or strength of muscle, the loss of stamina will not be found to have originated among salted meat eaters. But there is one thing the farmer does often neglect, and that is to supply himself with a variety and abundance of vegetables and fruits. Any farmer can have green peas from July 4th to October, any day; he can have beans, cucumbers, radishes, turnips, beets, carrots, parsnips, onions, celery, cauliflower and spinach as well as lettuce, asparagus, and all the small fruits, near the house in the garden. With plenty of good vegetables the farmer may say peace, to those who are so anxious about the way his pork

Farmers may have fresh meats if they desire them, as well and as cheaply as any one, by laying in a stock of ice in winter. But they do not feel the necessity of having fresh meats at all times. The facts are that with the hard labor of the fields, in the sun, and the sharp appetites caused by the severe wear and tear of muscle and brain, fresh meats cannot be relied upon for a steady food, and salted meats are preferred. Those who doubt it may try a six months' experiment of work on the farm with fresh meats all the time.

Safety From Moths.

A lady of large experience writes as follows: There is no absolute safety from moths except in the absolute exclusion of the miller. If put away early in the season, before millers make their appearance, furs can be kept in their own boxes without danger of any kind, by simply pasting thin paper closely around them. No aperture must be left for the entrance of the miller, though the paste need not touch the boxes. Articles of any kind can be tied up very tightly in pillow cases, or sewed up in sheets. To keep dresses, cloaks, atc., without creasing, suspend them near the upper edge of the sheet, then lay another sheet over, sew the two sheets together at the edges, then sew loops at the upper edge of this bag, and hang it up wherever you please. Be careful that there be no hole for the miller to enter. In order to secure further safety, it is well to beat and brush the furs and garments well before putting them away, and if it is anything that can be heated, it may not be amiss to heat it enough to destroy the eggs that may be already laid. Strange Effect upou Ants.

It is said that corrosive sublimate sprinkled across the paths of ants in dry weather has a most surprising effect. As soon as one of the ants touches the white powder, it commences to run about widly, and to attack any other ant it comes across. In a couple of hours, round balls of ants will be found biting each other, and numerous individuals will be seen bitten completely in two, while others have lost some of their legs or atenua. News of the commotion is carried to the formicarium, and huge fellows, measuring three quarters of an inch in length, that only come out of the nest during a migration or an attack on the nest of one of the working columns, are seen sailing down with a determined air, as if they would soon right matters. As soon, however, as they have touched the sublimate, all the stacliness leaves them; they rush about; their legs are seized hold of by some of the smaller ants already affected by the poison; and they themselves begin to fight, and in a short time become the center of fresh balls of rabid ants. The sublimate can only be used effectively in dry weath-

Planting Potatoes. A potato culturist says he was educated to plant three or four good sized tubers in a hill, but, much against his judgment, he was finally induced to cut the seed, and for seven years past has been cutting closer and closer each season, until now he cuts as near as possible to single eyes, and plants in rows three feet apart and ten or twelve inches in the row. His success has been greater since he adopted this plan. Each spring he sells from half an acre of land one hundred bushels of surplus, having used liber-ally in his family during winter, and reserved enough for seed. He prefers Early Rose, and his soil and his tillage are excellent. Another exper-

SENATORSHIP.

Judge James V. Campbell, of our Supreme bench, is talked of as candidate for the United States Senate, to succeed Senator Chandler.

We are personally acquainted with Judge Campbell, as he was a member of the law faculty of our State University during the two years that we attended that institution. He is a man possessed of an intellect of no common order, is plain, unassuming in manner, and of a moral character that is unquestionable. His decisions on various legal subjects carry as much weight with them as those of any Judge in the Western States, and his knowledge of equity jurisprudence and of international law is, perhaps, not inferior to that of any other person in this country. He is a man of whom our State is justly proud and will do honor to any position within the gift of the people. We do not know whether Judge Campbell would accept the Senator. ship if offered to him. We have frequently heard him, in his lectures, advise law students to pay their attention exclusively to the law, and to acquire a taste for their profession; to have nothing to do with politics so far as aiming at or seeking official positions.

This has been his course in life. He has devoted his attention assiduously to the study of the law and is acknowledged as being one of the most learned and profound jurists of his time. But if he will accept this political office, we unhesitatingly declare that there is no other man we would rather have succeed Senator Chandler than Judge James V. Campbell, of Detroit.

THE WEAKER SEX.

The Chicage Inter-Ocean asks the question: "Are not our women too healthy?" It is not intended to excite unnecessary fears, but the signs of the times are not favorable to male supremacy, and the Inter-Ocean enters a solemn protest against any further objections to tight lacing and late hours, or slate pencils and pickels, as steady articles of diet. Whether the lecturing and ridicule on the part of the male portion of the community have brought about these charges, and caused good sense to be observed more generally among the opposite sex in regard to this matter of dress, we will not pretend to say, but the good accomplished may certainly be attributed in part, at least, to this cause. statistics furnished, and, indeed, we can observe it in nearly every neighborhood. How often do we see young men of pale, sallow complexion, going along at a slow, sluggish gait, apparently without any life or energy? They seem to have a "yearning desire to lean up against something and think." The women, on the other hand, are, as a rule, pictures of good health and contentment. They go tripping along with a good spirit and decided pur-pose, and, although a defect now and then may be hidden and covered up by artificial means, yet there is no mistaking that bright, clear complexion, that is the work of nature and which no art can duplicate. This fact begins to excite alarm in comparing the numercial strength of the two sexes. In England to-day there are 700,000 more women than men; in Scotland, 150,000 more, and 150,000 more in Ireland. It is estimated that an average from 50,000 to 60,000 more male than females migrate to this country annually, and yet the last census shows that the sexes are about equal in number. It will not be long before the term "weaker sex." will apply to the male portion of the human family, unless men cease to lec-ture women on physiology and hygiene and pay more regard themselves to the preservation of health. In a late address in Boooklyn, Mrs. Livermore said:

"When I went to the colleges and asked about the health of the women. I found it was the gentleman students who broke down and not the women. President Angell, of the Michigan State University, told me that the young men were getting excused continually from their studies because of poor health, but it was hardly ever a woman asked any sort of privilege or offered anything of an excuse."

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF DUNK.

A National Convention of Dunkards has just closed its session at Girard, Illinois. The pecliarities of this denomination are well known to most of our readers and are strikingly repre sented in the proceedings of this meeting. Among other questions which were discussed relating to church polity and usage, were the following:

. The question of saluting colored brethren with the holy kiss was settled by permitting each church to make their own rules on the subject, though some brethren thought a rule ought to be made forbidding any distinction on account of color in osculatory salutes. The question as to the propriety of Dunkards joining farmers' clubs produced a long discussion, and it was finally decided that it would be inconsistent with the religion of the sect for members to join any such societies. It was decided that the ungodly piano nor any other musical instrument should be kept by any member of the church, though the council could not prohibit their use.

Ohlo Correspondence.

DELPHOS, O., May 18, 1874. EDITOR RECORD :- We had a very white frost last night. I think the fruit, of which there is now a fair prospect, has not been seriously injured. The wheat in some places is very light, in others, excellent; in this vicinity it will average over half a crop. Our State Convention, like the long parliament of England, has formed a new constitution for Ohio, and gone home. From present indications, their work has not been very satisfactory, and it is doubtful whether it will be adopted. The license or no license clauses to be voted on separately, will cause great excitement. The license clause is cunningly drawn in the interest of the whisky ring, with the design, if it can be carried, to secure the sale of liquor in every village and city of the State for twenty years. to come. As it now is, the Legisla-ture has no power to license, but only to limit, restrict or prohibit the sale. Intoxicating liquors are now sold in quantities from half a pint and upwards, by anyone paying the U.S. license, not to be drunk on the premises, and not to be sold to drunkards or minors without the consent of their parents or guardians. The seller is iable for all damages. The Legislature would, doubtless, have repeated the damage clause of this law, last winter, if they had dared. But they were affraid of the women, not the men. The Democrats propose to hold a State Convention before the time of voting on the Constitution, to perfect their organization and plan of operations, and decide whether to recommend the adoption of the Constitution. They now rule the State, and ance plank in their platform, and form a coalition with the prohibitionists, they can carry the State. The temperance reform in Ohio is a sublime and powerful movement, if not a revolution. The women's crusade is only one of its peculiarities. Almost every minister and christian of whatever name—a great multitude, besides, both of men and women, endorse and aid in the work. It is preeminently a religious movement. They look to God for aid, and not in vain. Many saloons are closed; in some villages all of them. Some whole counties are without a place where of beautiful prairie land. If one is That an improvement has been made liquor is sold openly. And were it in this direction, is evident from the not for the foreign population who aid the grog power, the success would have been vastly greater. Although the ladies in some places are less demon-strative than they have been, and are somewhat changing their mode of operation, yet they have no less heart in the work. This temperance reform is like brooks that gush from their crystal springs, leap and dash down their mountain sides, unite in vales in a strong and deep current, and roll on in a mighty stream. The arresting of forty-three ladies in Cincinnati on last Saturday for praying and singing in the street, and the Rev. Joseph Emery, with three others—and he is a city missionary—for preaching the gospel to the crowd under the bridge by Art Hall, as had been his custom for a long time. These transactions will arouse the people like an earthquake shock. The agitation begins anew. There will be a stronger determination than ever, to close the saloons and the grog power. . Decided efforts will be made to induce the electors to vote no license. The Catholic Germans, for the most part, are deadly enemies of entire abstinence.

LINCOLN CENTER, Kan. ED. RECORD :- We have been reader of your paper for years, and, in fact, ever since the Co. paper was first started, and in the last issue we saw the plea for Berrien Co. Now, not that we would throw contempt on the place of our birth. We know of the many advantages the Co. possesses, the splendid forests and soil, etc., and in fact, every advantage over the far West, excepting health. We know it our schools so well regulated? society so tangible? did everything move like clock work? We answer, nay, verily. People came there from all parts of the world, some with brilliant ideas, and they soon got homesick and went back (like the writer of the plea) and said, "don't go West," we have such a nice country here, good schools, society, and every advantage; we'll go hand in hand up the hill. Others went to Berrien Co. with clear heads and willing to take up with the disadvantages of a new country, bought lands, settled down, improved their farms, went up from little log huts to good, nice farm houses, and some to to take it a little rough, as their means of getting them such houses as they desired for themselves and children. Did they prosper? Some, of course, vising people—that is young people—improve, and in the most beautiful Co. I ever saw. There is not a marsh nor a slough on Solomon or Saline Valleys. So you see it is healthy, and the water is good, and the soil is from two to five feet deep, and some of the most splendid building rock I ever saw. To be sure we have not the timber you have there, but there is a good deal of timber in the Saline

Valley, in Lincoln Co., where your humble servant is at present. Wood is cheaper here than in Buchanan, and there is not much difference in the price of lumber, and it is so much easier to improve a place here. There are no fences to build, all you have to do is to break up the ground and set out your trees, and in three or four years you have a good home. I have seen trees set out two years ago that are nice shade trees now. I have seen places taken as homesteads three years ago, under good improvement, and peach trees in bloom. All kinds of fruit will grow here. In the eastern part of the State there is a plenty of fruit, but it is very new here, and the trees have been neglected, but in a few years we will have fruit and everything else that they have in other localities. Only five years since, the Indian and buffalo roamed at will, now, there are homesteads being taken daily, and improved accordingly. Lincoln Center, the Co. seat of Lincoln Co., is a beautiful little place, only two years old, but larger than some towns in Berrien Co. Forty-year-old New Troy for instance, and better buildings by far. We have a splendid Court House that cost four thousand, and a nice two-story school house, both built of native rock. What will Lincoln Co. be forty years from now if it improves as Berrien has in the last forty years? We are only twenty-five miles from R. R. Go there and back in a day. That is some better than going to the city of New York a horse back for medicine. If the small towns get out, Lincoln county will have a railroad before it is as old as Berrien Co. was. When I speak of this county, I speak of Kansas. There are just as nice towns in if they devise things shrewdly, they the eastern part of the State as there may retain their power. But if the Republicans will put a sound temperare in Michigan, and they tell me there is a plenty of fruit in Salina, only thirty-five miles from here. Salina is as large as Niles, and has everything as cheap. Our writer of the plea spoke of there being no market. Everything here brings a good price, better than it did ten years ago in Michigan. There are hundreds of acres of land to be taken as homesteads, and the first payment he spoke of would buy a team and provide for a family until the land is got under cultivation so as to raise crops, and when completed you won't have forty acres with a stump every few feet, but one hundred and sixty acres not willing to be deprived of the luxhome as any of your prairie farmers have, they are not worthy. We have seen farmers that have lived on their places and have their deeds, and gaunt famine never stared in their door, and if the writer of the plea will come out to Kansas, we will take him out on the prairie and let him have one more have a word from Kansas I will write. We have a nice rolling prairie country, well watered and well adapted for raising various kinds of grain, and with a good yield and quality. As yet it is a healthy country, there being scarcely any sickness. Crops are looking promising, wheat heading, and oats seven or eight inches high. Corn and potatoes have been plowed, and if nothing providentially hinders, there will be a large crop here this year. Produce commands a good price here this spring corn, $1.00; wheat, $1.50 to $1.60; potatoes, 40 to 50 cts. per bushel; oats, 50 to 60 cts. per bushel. There is a good promise for fruit here—all kinds are full. Strawberries are getting ripe at this date. This part of the country has been settled about three or four years. Some very nice farms, considering the chance they have had. The most of the men are of moderate means, therefore they could not improve like those that have is not a very healthy county, but abundance. Land rates for up-lands, everything else, one that has surplus from $5 to $8 per acre; bottom, $12 enough, can enjoy. But, then, go to $35 per acre,—not all fenced yet. back to Berrien Co. in the days of its I am one that has to watch cattle off youth; did they that come to Berrien my crops. We have had plenty of rain up to this date and any amount of wind. Times are hard here, no money scarcely. Money is worth 35 per cent. per annum. CONGRESSIONAL. HOUSE, May 23.—The bill was pass ed with some amendments devoting con demned cannon and balls to various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic for monumental purposes. Mr. Donnan reported a bill for the sale of the buildings and grounds known as the Detroit arsenal in Michigan. Mr. Field (Rep., Mich.) desired to offer an amendment appropriating the net proceeds of the sale to the University of Michigan for a department of technology. Mr. Donnan objected, and the bill passed. The following bills were introduced and referred: allowing $8.-33 1-3 per month to soldiers during the late war, and also providing grants of land for them; to provide for the gradual reduction of the army of the United States, reducing the number of cavalry regiments to nine, artillery to four, and infantry to

SENATE, May 25 .- Mr. Scott called up the Senate bill supplementary to the act to incorporate the Texas Pacific Railroad Company and to aid in the construction of the road. He explained that the bill was for the purpose of enabling the company to execute a mortgage upon the portion of its road completed. An amendment was offered that nothing in this act shall be construed to have the effect to entitle said corporation to any or further right to public lands or in other respects as against the United States, than such as by law it is now entitled to. Agreed to, and the bill was passed as amended. A memorial was presented of Mrs. Bella A. Lockwood, asking the passage of an act relating that no woman otherwise qualified shall be debarred from practice in the courts of the United States on account of sex or color. Referred to the Judiciary Committee. The Senate resumed consideration of the Deficiency bill. Pending discussion the chair laid before the Senate a resolution of the House announcing the death of Hon. Daniel B. Mellish, and inviting the Senate to attend his funeral in the hall of the House at four to-morrow. Mr. Conkling made some brief remarks appropriate to the occasion and offered a resolution in respect to the memory of the deceased, accepting the invitation of the Agreed to, and the Senate adjourned. HOUSE, May 25 .- Under the call o States, bills were introduced and referred, including the following: Providing that a residence of three years shall be sufficient to enable an alien, being a free white person, to become a citizen, the declaration to be made one year before admission; to refund the cotton tax; to repeal the law which suspended payments to loyal masters for slaves drafted and received as volunteers in the military service; declaring all corporations doing business in any State subject to the jurisdiction of the State courts of that State; restoring to the pension roll pensioners of the Mexican war struck off for disloyalty. The death of Mr. Mellish was announced and after the usual action taken in connection with such an event, the House adjourned.

House and declaring the Senate adjourned.

SENATE, May 26.—The House amendment to the bill donating condemned cannon to certain posts of the Grand Army of the Republic were concurred in and passed. The Desciency bill with amendments was reported from the committee, read the third time and passed. The Committee on Appropriations having reported not be liable directly or indirectly for any expense attending the Centennial exposi tion, or by reason of the same, it was agreed to in committee of the whole and the bill was then reported to the Senate and passed. HOUSE, May 26.—The House resum ed consideration of the report of the Com mittee on Ways and Means on the San born contract and was addressed by Mr Beck, member of that committee. The House took up the bill to amend the existing custom and revenue laws. Mr. Butler (Rep., Mass.) introduced a joint resolution relative to the compensation of Representatives in Congress, which was referred to the Judiciary Committee. It provides that in case of the death of a member, his compensation shall be paid to his widow or representatives up to the election of his successor, and that the pay of his successor shall commence from his SENATE, May 27.—The Committee on Naval Affairs reported favorably on the bill introduced a few days ago to prevent hazing at the Naval Academy. Passed. The Committee on Finance reported favorably on the House bill amend atory of the act to reduce the duties on imports and reduce internal taxation, approved March 8d, 1773. Passed. The bill to revise and consolidate the statutes of the United States passed. The bill to revise, amend and consolidate the statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia in force Dec. 1, 1873, and that revising and embodying all the 1873. were passed.

laws creating post routes to December 1st, HOUSE, May 27.—A lengthy debate was had on the bill relating to the Sanborn contract. The first vote was on the amendment prohibiting any Senator, Representative or Delegate in Congress from acting as agent, attorney, proctor, advocate, solicitor or counsel for any person in connection with a violation of the customs or revenue laws, and it was adopted without division. The bill which repeals the law on which the Sanborn contracts were based was then passed without division and without objection. The bill providing that the pay of a deceased member shall be given to his widow or heirs at law up to the election of his successor, whose pay shall commence from his election, passed after a statement that later in the day a special bill will be introduced covering the case of Mr. Mellish. A bill removing the political disabilities of Raphael Semmes of Alabama passed. SENATE, May 28.—Mr. Ferry (Rep., Mich.) called up the Senate bill to set apart a certain portion of the Island of Mackinac, in the Straits of Mackinac, as a national park. Passed. HOUSE, May 28.—The Committee on Banking and Currency reported back the substitute for the Senate amendments to the Currency bill. The previous question was seconded by 95 to 79 and the main question was ordered. The first vote was on the adoption of the substitute reported from the Committee on Banking and Currency. It was rejected. When the roll call was concluded the vote stood 104 to 113. The vote was then taken on concurring in the Senate substitute, and it was substituted. Yeas 70, nays 164. Mr. Maynard then moved a Committee of Conference on the disagreeing votes, and it was ordered. Yeas 122, nays $2. So the whole matter now goes to the conference committee. SENATE, May 29.—The chair laid before the Senate the House Finance bill.

with a resolution disagreeing to the Senate amendments, and asking for a committee of conference. Mr. Wright moved that the Senate insist on its amendments and grant the conference asked by the House. Agreed to, yeas 31, nays 24. The bills reported by the Committee on Pensions were then considered. The following were then passed: A bill explaining the intent and meaning of the fourth section of the act granting bounty lands to certain officers and soldiers; a bill to equalize pensions in certain cases; a bill to increase the pensions of soldiers and sailors who have been totally disabled.

HOUSE, May 29.—The bill providing for a reduction in the army was taken upand passed. The House then resulted.

to have been the founder and former owner of this journal, its friends have expressed an anxiety to know if the legal proceedings commenced against him will in any nanner affect the Inter-Ocean Company or its property. For their information, we answer that he parted with the proprietorship of the Inter-Ocean some time since, and that the business of the company is now entirely disconnected from Mr. Scammon's, and can be in no manner embarrassed nor affected by his af-

New York is in trouble this time. The Treasurer of the State has become insane and it was found necessary to place him in an asylum. Now, by the laws of New York no person, not even the Deputy Treasurer has any authority to sign checks upon banks holding the State moneys. The only way out of the dilemna seems to be to call an extra session of the Legislature and either amend the law or appoint an Acting State Treasurer by a special act.

Tax Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the Tax Roll for the Village of Buchanan, for the year 1874, is now in my hands for collection. On all taxes paid before the fourth day of July one per cent. will be charged. I will be at my office at Engine House No 1, for the reception of taxes each Saturday, from one o'clock P. M. to five o'clock P. M. until July 4th, 1874. June 4, 1874.

To SUBSCRIBERS .- The terms of the RECORD henceforth will be as fol lows: $2 per year; $1 for six months; 50 cents for three months. If paid yearly in advance, $1.50 per year. No reduction made when paid in advance for a less period than a year. No paper will be continued after the expiration of one year unless paid for. If the paper is paid for before it is over 60 days in arrears it will be considered as advanced payment. We hope all will understand the above. All who pay us $1.50, on or before the 6th day of July next will receive the paper one year from May 7th, RELIGIOUS .- The annual Reunion Meeting of the Christian Churches of Mishawaka, South Bend, Rolling Prairie, Laporte, Buchanan and others of Northern Indiana and Southern Michigan, will meet at the Christian Church in South Bend, on Eriday of this week and continue their meeting over Sunday following. Among the ministry expected to be present, are O. N. Lane, of Laporte, J. Wickard, of Rolling Prairie, Jessie J. Roe, of Buchanan, S. K. Sweetman, of Mishawaka, and W. P. Aylesworth, of Angola, and P. Hurd, of South Bend.

TEMPERANCE MEETING. - The temperance meeting last Sabbath after-noon was largely attended, and a very able and entertaining address delivered by Dr. Eddy of Niles. There does not yet appear to be any lack of interest in this great question of temperance. Those who predicted that the crusade was nothing more than a spasmodic effort, and that it would last but for a short season, begin to see wherein they were mistaken. Too many are enlis ed in this cause to warrant any such belief. The good already done will have a lasting effect, and the encouragement it has given to the friends of temperance has | Silas Rowley, inspired them with renewed courage and zeal, and the cause will not likely be abondoned until a complete and glorious victory has been won, and the J. PATRONIZE HOME.—We have heard a number say, of late, who have been in the habit of dividing their trade between this place and other towns, that on the whole they have done as well by trading with our merchants as elsewhere. The people generally are becoming satisfied of this fact, and we are having an increase continually in the amount of business transacted in our village. Our merchants are good business men, purchase goods at low prices, pay low rents, and can afford to sell goods at the lowest prices that can be afforded anywhere.

HAVING just received a large assortment of the latest styles of hats, bonnets and flowers, I will offer great inducements to those calling on me for the next thirty days. I have also a complete line of ladies' furnishing goods at the lowest cash price. Please call and examine for yourselves, first door east of Citizens' Bank, Niles. Mrs. C. Egbert.

WE have received the first number of the third volume of the South Bend Daily Tribune. It is enlarged and much improved in appearance. We thought when the Daily Tribune was first started that it was an unwise and hazardous undertaking. The people of South Bend, however, are not made of such timber as to let an enterprise of this kind, which is calculated to do so much towards building up and improve the city, be unappreciated and wane on account of a want of support. We wish the Tribune abundant success in the future, and that its capacity for usefulness may continue to

There is one thing generally practiced in this crusade business, that is wrong; that is to class all those who do not sign the pledge and go with the crusaders to the fullest extent, as belonging to the liquor party, and as promoters of intemperance and disorder. We have men in this town who have not felt it their duty to sign the pledge, and who do not take the part in this war against intemperance, which we believe they should take, yet they are among our best citizens and would rejoice as much as any if this direfulsin could be entirely removed from our land and do rejoice at every victory accomplished tending in that direc-

THE NILES Democrat says: Chas. Frickie was thrown from a uggy Wednesday evening, near the High School building, and had the bones in one of his sholuders badly fractured. He was making a short turn, when the buggy tipped over, throwing him to the ground with great force..... A few nights ago, as the Bond House bus was going to the depot, a man suddenly stopped the horses and demanded the driver's money. A few vigorous strokes with the whip made the would-be robber loose his hold on the horses and make a hasty retreat. The driver thinks this the worse case of total depravity An exchange says: "When a hen of which he has any knowledge...... On Monday evening last, while our friend, Jacoby, was busy with his costomers in the front room of his grocery store, one of the city's knowing and perserving cows entered the rear door and commenced a thriving bsiuness in the vegetable line. Mr. Jacoby, fearing from the quantity she disposed of, that there was something spurious in the pay, promptly dismised her. Going into the grocery business is a "new departure" for the cows.

County Correspondence, HOME CORRESPONDENCE. EDITOR RECORD :- Seeing a column

of the RECORD devoted to the "Farm and Household." and thinking that you might not be a practical farmer, I though pernaps an occasional article from an old and experienced farmer would be acceptable to you, and, perhaps, also, to some of your readers. I find some difficulty in deciding what subject to commence with; but as the prospects for fruit of all kinds were never better than at present, except for the ravages of insects, I think a little information on that subject will be, at least, "timous." The festive potato bug, of course, is very plentiful, and vigorously at work, but as it devotes its energies mainly to the prevention of too large a crop of potatoes, and as potatoes are not exactly what I mean by fruit, I shall leave them for the present to give a little attention to the tree caterpillar, apple tree borer and codling moth. These are the three greatest insect enemies of the apple tree that infest our orchards at present. But as I know you hate long articles I shall stop right here for this week.

May 28, 1874. EDITOR RECORD :- The first shipment of strawberries of the season, from this place, was made by Mr. G. Garrison, on the 25th inst. They were very nice looking berries, and are said by Mr. H. M. Love & Co., the commission merchants at Chicago, Ill., to have called a considerable crowd to examine the first Berries from St. Joseph. The amount shipped was two pints.

And Our EIGHBORS"

is the latest and raciest work by Harriet Beecher Stowe, Author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin,"
"The Minister's Wooing," "My Wife and I," and other powerful stories, each the literary sensation of its period; and this story promises a like genuine and wholesome sensation. It pears directly on social topics of interest, embracing the romance of youthful companionships, the brightness of happy home-life, the spicy complications of neighborhood associations, and such follies and profound domestic miseries as have led to the widespread Temperance movement of the day.

Mrs. Stowe is now in the prime of that genius which wrote "Uncle Tom," ripened by years of study and observation. Her novels are immensely popular, "Uncle Tom's Cabin" alone out-selling by hundreds of thousands any edition of any original work ever publishedsave the Bible! Her book two year ago, "My Wife and I," outsold every contemporary. Such a pure and ennobling story as "We and Our Neighbors" should be read in every home. This new Serial is now running exclusively in the

THOUGHTS OF A PATIENT.

Suggested by hearing Dr Ce, say, "You'll soon be well Again."

When shall it be?
In spring, when sleeping flowers awake,
And streams their icy fetters break,
And zep'yrs gay unfold their wings,
And vernal sweetness 'round earth clings;
When nature's tones, I loved so well,
Around my moss-clad cottage swell:
Then!—then will I be well?

When shall it be? Is it when 'round my parents' hearth Are mingled former tones of mirth,

And when no voice of grief is heard, Nor is a sound of sadness stirred,

Save one short word, in sorrow, tells

When shall it be?
When sunny hopes no more sustain
An aged mother's tot'ring framo,
And reason's fled her active brain,
And greef a manly brother slain;

An absent one remembered well:
Then !—then shall I be well?

When death has moved my sister home

When all I've loved, but self, are gone: Then !—then will I be well

I shall be well!
I know-when Earth has loosed her claims,
And naught that animates remains,
And the soul, that God to Earth hath lent,

Backward to Heaven its course bath bent-And when around my new-made tomb Is breathed affection's farewell moan— Yes!—then shall I be well!

A Cheerful Home.

A single word may disquiet an entere family for a whole day. One single glance casts a gloom over the household; while a smile, like a gleam of sunshine, may light up the darkest and weariest house. Like unexpected finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of sons who come to wear his mantle, and to fill his place; while on the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned and disordered home, go forth persons who shall make other

An Unspotted Character.

Money is a good thing, especially in these hard times, but there is something a thousand-fold more valuable.

It is character—the consciousness of a were and honorable life. This it should be a man's first aim to preserve at any cost. In times of commercial distress, while some are proved and found wanting, others come forth tried by fire. Here and there one comes out of that furnace far more of a man than before. Amid the wreck of his fortune he stands erect—a noble specimen of true manhood. We have occasionally witnessed an example of courage in such a crisis, of moral intrepidity that deserves all honor. Let it be the aim of every business man above all thing else to keep his purity unstained. This is his best possession being removed, a fading spectre of the key will be visible. Let this paper be put aside for many months, where nothing can disturb it, and then in darkness be laid on a plate of hot metel, the specter will again appear.

This is equally true of our minds.

Every man we meet, every book we read, every picture or landscape we see, every word or tone we hear, leaves an image upon the brain. These traces, which under ordinary circum-

or diseases that have lurked in the system for years, soon yield to this powerful antidote, and disappear. Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scroftda, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blotches, Boils, Pimples, Pustules, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Uterus, Stomach, and Liver. It also cures other complaints, to which it would not seem especially adapted, such as Dropsy, Dyspep-

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfect-ed preparation for restoring GRAY

OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says,

"The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREFA-

RATION for its intended purposes."

"Phunygrams."

THE REASON WHY .- A handome young Yankee peddler made love to a buxom widow of Pennsylvania. He accompanied his declaration of love with an allusion to two impediments to their union.

"Name them," said the widow. "The want of means to set up a retail shop," replied the young peddler.
They parted and the widow sent her lover a check for ample means. When they met again the peddler had hired and stocked a shop, and the smiling widow begged to know the other im-

"I have got another wife," blandly said the young man.

A female teacher in a school that stood on the banks of a river once wished to communicate to her pupils an idea of faith. While she was trying to explain the meaning of the word a small fishing boat came to view. Seizing upon the incident for on illustration, she explained: "If I were to tell you that there was a leg of mutton in that boat, you would believe me, would you not, without even seeing it for yourselves?" "Yes ma'am," replied the scholors. "Well, that is faith," said the school mistress. The next day, in order to test the rocollection of the lesson, she inquired. "What is faith?" "A leg of mutton in a heat!" was appropried from ton in a boat!" was answered from all parts of the school.

"Conductor, why didn't you wake me up, as I asked you? Here I am, miles beyond my station." Conductor—"I did try, sir; but all I could get you to say was, "All right, Maria; get the children their breakfast, and I'll be down in a minute!"

They tell a queer story about the doctors in a certain Texas town, who were all away last summer to attend a medical convention. They were absent about two months, and on their return found all their patients had recoverd, the drug stores had closed, the nurses had opened dancing schools, the cemetry was cut up into building lots, the undertakers had gone to making fiddles, and the hearse had been painted and sold for a circus wagon.

The ways of women are past finding out. It is said that the ladies of Jacksonville, Tenn., have a fashion of tying up their taper fingers when the young men are expected to call, and when they very naturally ask the eause, they blushingly reply, "I burned them boiling the steak this morning." The result, as chronicled by the local paper, is that several Joung gentlemen have burned their fingers by believing the story. During Col. Tom Scott's recent visit to St. Louis, he was hailed on the street by a little bootblack with, "Boss, have your boots shined?" The colonel pleasantly shook his head at him saying: "My boy, I am no boss." The little walf swinging his box over his sholder, and eyeing the great railroad king from head to foot replied: "You're boss of yer boots, a'n't yer?" A German Jew was eating a pork chop in a thunder storm. On hearing an unuasually loud clap he laid down his knife and fork and observed: 'Vell did any poty efer hear such a fuss about liddle biece of pork.'

An Iowa man sued a woman for calling him a "skunk," and the verdict of the jury was "Not guilty, but if she was we'd clear her." A curious mode of trying the title to land is practiced in Hindostan. Two holes are dug in the disputied spot, in each of which the plaintiff's and defendant's lawyer put one of their legs and remain there until one of them is tired, in which case his client is defeated. In this country it is the client, not the lawyer, who puts his foot in it.

"If I save 10 cents a day from my drinks," ruminated old Rednose, "it will be $36.50 a year, and in 50 year it will be $1.825, and then I can marry Mary. Dear Mary!"

"You must be a quarrelsome fellow," said a phrenologist to a man whose bumps he was examining. "Say that again and I'll knock you down, was the response.

The following advertisement appeared recently in an English paper: "St. James Church—On Sunday next the afternoon service will commence at half past three and continue until further notice." Doctor,' said a conceited literary man to Holmes on the streets of Boston, I am going to deliver my lecture in Lowell to-night. I am glad of it, I dislike those Lowell people,' retorted the doctor. An observant husband says that a looking-glass affords a woman a mar-velous amount of comfort and gratifi-eation. He states that his wife thinks just as much of consulting the glass when she ties on her apron as when she ties on her bonnet. He says that when there is a knock at the door he goes there at once, but his wife, on the contrary ejaculates, "Mrecy, Joseph, who's that!" and dashes directly for the looking glass.

A Sioux city justice of the peace, about to marry a couple; "Hold up your right hands. Now what do you know about this case?"

A Michigan man dreamed recently that his aunt was dead. He tried the same dream on his motherin-law, but it didn't work.

DR. PRICE has met with unparalled success in the Consumption, the manaem, Gatarra, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, &c.

The reputation Dr. Price has acquired by candid, honest dealing, and years of successful practice has induced unprincipled persons to copy and imitate him as far as they dare, in order to deceive. Let it be remembered that no person in the west is trenting Chronic Diseases similar to Dr. Price—that his practice is not one of experiments, but founded on the laws of Nature with years of experience and ovidence to sustain it. That it does not tear down to build up—make sick to make well—no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of these diseases acclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure overybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their aliment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits will be made regularly.

Dr. V. Clarence Price can be consulted at Niles, Reading House, Saturday and Sunday, the 20th and 3lat of May. At Laporte, Merrill House, Saturday and Sunday, the 9th and 10th of May.

Nature's Great Remedy

THROAT AND LUNG DISEASES!! It is the vital principle of the Pine Tree, obtained by a peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medicinal properties are retained. Yar even in its crude state has been recommended by eminent physicians of every school. It is confidently offered to the afflicted for the following simple reasons:

2. It curres,—not by abruptly stopping the congetulut by dissolving the phiegm and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter causing the irritation. In cases of seated consumerion it both prolongs and renders less burdensome the life of the afflicted sufferer.

2. Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs, penetrating to each diseased part, relieving pain, and subduing inflammation.

3. IT PURIFIES AND EMPICIEST THE BLOOD, Positively curing all humors, from the common PINPLE or EMPITION to the severest cases of Scrofilla. Thousands of affidavits could be produced from those who have felt the beneficial effects of PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL in the various diseases arising from intervities of the succession.

4. It invigorates the digestive organs and restores; the appetite.
