MORTGAGE SALE,

In the latter part of July, 1870, Mrs. Tilton was sick, and at her request I visited her. She seemed much depressed, but gave me no hint of any trouble having reference to me. I cheered her the best I could and prayed with her just before leaving. This was our last interview before trouble broke out in the family. I later part of my story. Concerning all my other visits it is sufficient to say that at no interview which ever took place between Mrs. Tilton and myself did anything occur which might not have occurred with perfect propriety between a brother and sisterbetween a father and child-between s man of honor and the wife of his dearest friend. Nor did anything ever happen which sho or I sought to conceal from her husband.

THE COURSE OF THE INDEPENDENT. Some years before any open trouble between Mr. Tilton and myself, his doctrines, as set forth in the leaders of the Independent, aroused a storm of indignation among the representa-tive Congregationalists in the West, and as the paper was still supposed to be my organ, I was written to on the subject. In reply, I indignantly disclaimed all responsibility for the views expressed by Mr. Tilton. My brother Edward, then living in Illinois, was prominent in the remonstrance addressed to Bowen concerning the course of his paper under Mr. Tilton's management. It was understood that Bowen agreed, in consequence of the proceedings arising out of the remonstrance, to remove Tilton or suppress his peculiar views; but, instead of that, Theodore seemed firmer in his saddle than before, and his loose notions of marriage and divorce began to be shadowed editorially. This led to the starting of the Advance in Chicago, to supersede the Independent in the Northwest, and Mr. Bowen was made to feel that Tilton's management was seriously injuring his business, and Tilton may have felt that his position nents of his views, with whom he sub quently pretended to believe I was taken no step to harm him.

Mr. Beecher then stated that in December, 1870, a young girl came to him and told him that Mrs. T. wanted. to see him—that she had left her home in consequence of ill treatment from her husband—and gave an account of the abuse and cruelty she had seen herself. Mrs. Tilton told the story of her wrong to Mr. Beecher, who referred her to his wife, who was very indignant at Tilton, and advised a separafinally did, and advised a separation and a settlement of support. At that time Mrs. T. did not tell him that her husband had extorted from her the July previous, a confession of excessive affection for him (Beecher). On the evening of December 27th, 1870. Mr. Bowen called at his house and handed him the following letter:

HENRY WARD BEECHER: - For reasons which you explicitly know, and which I forbear to state, I demand that you withdraw from the pulpit and quit Brooklyn as a residence.

THEODORE TILTON. Mr. Beecher read this and remarked, "the man is crazy." Mr. Bowen. said he thought so too. Mr. Bowen expressed entire ignorance of the letter. The two gentleman then talked very long about Mr. Tilton's private character. Mr. Bowen concluded he could not employ Tilton any longer on the Independent.

MORTGAGE SALE.

DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain indenture of mortgage; made and executed by Jacob Brown, of the village and, township of Buchanan, in the County of Berrien and State of Michigan, to Daniel A. Wagner, of the same place, dated the first day of May; A. D. 1373, to secure the sum of twelve hundred and fifty collars, according to the conditions of five certain promissory notes of even date with said mortgage, which notes were made and executed, by the said Jacob Brown, and specified in said mortgage; which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, in and for the County of Berrien and State of Michigan, on the eighth day of May, A. D. tr72, at 1½ o'clock, P. M. of said day, in Liber five (5) of Mortgages, on page 363, as appears by the record thereof. And whereas, there is claimed to be due and owing upon said notes for principal and interes; at the date of this notice, the sum of six hundred and sixteen dollars and twenty-two cents. And one sixt or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the whole or, any part thereof, therefore notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a power of sale in said mortgage contained, that the premises set forth and described in said mortgage will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House, in the village, of Berrien, Springs, in said County on the seventeenth day of Octo bar, Ar Dr 1874; at eleven o'clock in the forencon of said day, by the Sheriff of said County, to satisfy the amount due upon said notes and mortgage, with interest thereon, as specified in said notes and costs of foreclosure, together with an Attorney fee of twenty-five dollars, covenanted for therein. The said premises in said inortgage are described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Berrien and State of Michigan, known and described as follows, to wit: Beginning at the South-west corner of lot number four (4) of John Hamilton's On the 29th of December, 1870, Mr. Tilton having learned of Beecher's expressed opinon in regard-to the letter which set Bowen finally against him, "extorted from his wife, then suffering from severe illnes, a document incriminating me, and prepared an elaborate attack upon me! Subsequently, in the same month, Moulton called upon me and asked me to go and see Tilton. I went. Mr. Tilton accused me of injuring him in his business relations, and finally of making wicked proposals to his wife, producing a paper which he said was her confession, made in July previous. He told me Elizabeth was now waiting at his house and desired me to go there and hear the truth from her own lips." Mr. Beecher describes at considerable length his feelings at this charge, and he went to the house. We quote from his own statement: "Mrs. Tilton lay upon her bed, as white as marble, with closed eves as in a trance, and with her hands upon her bosom, palm to palm, like one in prayer. As I look back upon it, the picture is like some forms carved in marble that I had seen upon monuments in Europe. She made no motion, and gave no sign of recognition of my presence. I sat down near her and said : "Elizabeth, Theodore has been making very serious charges against me, and sends me to you for scious and listening. I repeated some sick she had been, how wearied out accept it as an honorable basis of rec- his difficulties or of saving his from with the frequency that he had confessed his own alien loves, and said that he could not bear to think that she was better than he; that she might win him into reformation if she would confess that she loved me more than him, and that they would repent and go on with future concord. I cannot give her language, but only the tenor of her representations. I received them impatiently. I spoke to her in the strongest language of her course. I said to her: "Have I ever made describe it because it was the last, and any improper advances to you?" She its character has a bearing upon a said, "No." Then I asked: "Why did you say so to your husband? She seemed deeply distressed. "My friend (by that designation she almost always called me), I am sorry, but I could not help it. What can I do?" I told her she could state in writing what she had now told me. She beckoned for her writing, materials, which I handed hor from her secretary near by, and she sat up in bed and wrote a brief counter statement.

In a postscript she denied explicitly that I had offered any improper solicitation to her. Mr. Beecher then left the scone, still greatly shocked at what he had heard, and returned to Mr. Moulton's home. "It has been said that I here confessed guilt and remorse. This is utterly false. Moulton came to me the next evening and said that Mrs. Tilton had told her husband of the retraction she had given me. He said such papers would be no good-there would be no end of contradictions, as she had already recanted to her husband her retraction to me. Moulton said the difficulty might be settled without such papers. Moulton flourished a pistol and I gave him the retraction." Mr. Beecher went on, in the presence of Mr. Moulton, to tell his feelings, excited by the deception practiced by Mrs. T. "Mr. M., apparently affected by my soliloquy, said that if Mr. Tilton could really be persuaded of the friendliness of my feelings toward him there would be no trouble in procuring a reconciliation. . I gave him leave to state to Theodore my feeling. He proposed that I should write a letter: I declined, but said that he could report our interview. He then prepared to make a memorandum of the talk, and sat down was being undermined by the oppo- at my table and took down, as I supposed, a condensed report of my talk, for I went on still pouring out my in league. Vague intimations of his | wounded feelings over the great deso-

"feeling hard" towards me I ascribed lotion in Theodore's family. It was the whole of 1871 I was in constant to this misconception. I had really not a dictation of sentence after sentence, he a mere amanuensis and I composing for him. Mr. Moulton was putting into his own shape parts of that which I, was saying in my own manner with profuse explanations. This paper of Moulton's was a mere memorandum of the points to be used by him in setting forth my feelings. That it contains matter and points derived from me is without doubt, but they were put with sentences by him and expressed as he understood them, tion. Mr. B. was loth to concur, but | not as my words, but as hints of my figures and letters to be used by him in conversing with Tilton. He did not read the paper to me, nor did I read it, nor have I ever seen or heard it read that I remember until the publication of Tilton's recent document. and now reading it I see init thoughts. that point to the matter of my discourse, but it is not my paper, nor "QUIT THE PULPIT AND BROOKLYN.", are those my sentences, nor is it, a correct report of what I said. It is a Mrs. Woodhull advertised her forthgether by an unpracticed writer, as to Tilton how I felt toward his family. If more than this be claimed—if it be set forth as in any proper sense my letter-I then disown it and denounce it. Some of its sentences, and particularly that in which I am made to say that I had obtained Mrs. Tilton's forgiveness, I never could have said, even in substance. I had not obtained nor asked any forgiveness from her; and nobody pretended that I had done so. Neither could I ever have said that I humbled myself before Tilton as before God, except in the sense that both to God and to the man I thought. I had deeply injured I humbled my-self, as I certainly did. But it is useless to analyze a paper prepared as this was. The remainder of my plain statement concerning it will be the best comment. This document was sign it. I said "No, it was not my letter." He replied that it would, have more weight if I would in some hyenas. way indicate that he was authorized. to explain my sentiments I took my. pen, and at some distance below the more and suspicions arose among my writing and upon the lower margin, I.

He replied it had been destroyed ner, with Mr. Tilton. Not long after that, Tilton asked me to his feared, I wrote the letter to Moulton, of which Tilton has given extracts, house, and wanted to have the good old times renewed. I never renewed even more wickedly garbled than his my intimacy with the family, though I other quotations: For he has reprevisited the house once or twice at Til- | sented two extracts from this letter as ton's request. I have not seen the originals, but I hand you the copies herewith verified by one of your committee. [Here are copied letters of the above date, quoted in Tilton's statement.] In my letter to Mrs. Tilton I alluded to the fact that I did not expect, when I saw her last, to be alive many days. That statement was consistent with many serious symptoms felt by me arising from over work. Mr. Beecher followed this state. ment by instancing a great number of cases where he expected to meet with pect to the average attendance of sudden death, and gave entire satisfactory reasons for not mentioning it to physicians or his family. During suspense, not only as to the future of the Tilton family, but as to the degree I might personally be subject to misconstruction. The officers of the. for its common school system, one Church sought to investigate Tilton's religious views, and moral character. As to the latter, I had been deceived into the belief that he was not in fault, and hoped for a change in his religious views. Tilton also intimated to me that he thought it not unlikely he might go back to his old position, so I told the Examining Committee that I was not without hopes to bring him back into his church work again. Meanwhile one wing of the the Female Suffrage party had got hold of the story in a distorted and exaggerated form. I know now that these false rumors originated with Tilton himself. I saw the evil growing, and these difficulties were intensely increased by the affiliation of Tilton. with the Woodhull clique. In May, 1871, mere string of hints, hastily put to- coming articles. It was delayed ostensibly by Tilton's influence. Durhelps to his memory in representing, ing the suspension of the publication, Mrs. Woodhull became the heroine of Tilton and Moulton. I was introduced to her and met her three times; the I peremptorily refused to preside at the lecture she was about to give. Tilton and Moulton both tried to induce me to preside, but I refused, and Tilton presided himself. Mrs. W. gave vent in that lecture for the first time in public to a full exposition of her free love doctrines. The very thought that I should have been asked to preside or be present in such a meeting was very galling to me. Whatever my astonishment, I did not underife must be a pleasant one; but there are none who enjoy so little; and are such burders to themselves, as those who have nothing to do. Those who work hard all day enjoy their short period of rest and recreation so much that they are apt to think if their whole life were spent in Test and recreation it would be the most pleasant of all. But this is a sad mistake, as. they would soon find out if they made a trial of the life they think so agreeable. One who is never busy can never enjoy rest, for rest implies a relief from previous labors; and if our time was spent in amusing ourselves we should find it more wearisome than the hardest day's work. Recreation is only valuable as it unbends us; the idle can know nothing of it. Many people leave off business and settle down to a life of enjoyment; but they generally find that they are not nearly so happy as they were before, and they are often glad to return to their old occupations to escape the miseries of indolence. Still, all this may not yield a thoroughly deceptive diamond. Another composition is made from silver sand, very pure potash, minium, calcined borax, and a form of arsenic, varied occasionally, by a mixture of strass—a mixture for which an equivalent is paste, and which represents transparent pebbles burnt to powder, white lead, and other similar materials.

An Obituary Editor.

Two or three years ago I was attached to the Morning Argus, the only paper published in our village, and, during my engagement, we employed as an assistant editor a young man named Drinker. When Drinker began his duties, the manager said to

"See here, Drinker, among other things, I want you, whenever you see in the exchanges or anywhere, a good biographical sketch of any prominent man, to clip it out and put it away, attendant, "cut me off de leg of one so's when he dies, you understand, we can rush it out as an obituary article, as it were."

Drinker went to work, and about two months afterward some well-known man died, and I examined the obituary bureau, for the purpose of obtaining his history. It was not there: but I ceptacle, one biographical sketch of John Wesley, a collection of anecdotes about Gen. Putnam, and an essay upon "The Life and Services of John

I commenced with Drinker upon the subject. "Mr. Drinker," I said, after calling his attention to the articles about the father of Methodism, "You certainly must be aware that John Wesloy died long before you came into this office." "N-n-no!" exclaimed Drinker, with a look of surprise on his face.

"Wh-wh-what! John Wesley dead! Why, it's too bad. I had no idea of such a thing. What a shock it must have been to his family!" "And as for Gen. Putnam, Drinker, it's perfectly absurd for you to pretend that you thought he was alive, so old Putnam's dead. That noble old man. Strange, strange, how we are passing away." "And, Drinker, you certainly can't be such an idiot as to have put away this article about Hancock, with the expectation that he would die again. You know he did die once. Why,

Drinker, he died about 10,000 years

"Come, now!" exclaimed Drinker, exultingly, "I've got you there. Ah! ah! Died 10,000 years ago, did he, smarty? You know too much. You think everybody's a fool but yourself! Dead, is he? Now, what's the use of your trying to stuff that down me, when I know well enough that the Democrats talked about running Hancock for the Presidency at the last election! O, pshaw! You ain't fit to write for any paper that's got any.

sense." Then Drinker was discharged. I didn't enlighten him. He will probably go down to the grave with the firm conviction that Gen. Hancock is the man who set copy for the miserable penman who signed the Declaration of Independence.—Max Adeler.

An Old Use For Hammers. I remember, says a correspondent of the Medical and Surgical Journal that, when I was very young, they used to raise blisters with boiled hammers. Old Dr. Twitchell, of Keene, -peace to his ashes-once wanted to blister some one in a farm house, far from home. He had nothing with him to do it with. He asked the wife to find him a hammer. The article was brought out, put in a tea kettle over the fire, and, after the water steamed and bubbled well, he lifted it out and gently touched it to his patient in a half dozen spots, over the seat of pain, with very positive effect. Boiled hammers were, for many years, used in the neighborhood for pleurisy; and every old lady knew there was nothing equal to a hammer; and there was a long dispute whether it should be a claw-hammer or not. I think the yeas finally conquered.

Influence of Newspapers. Small is the sum that is required to patronize a newspaper, and amply rewarded is its patron, I care not how humble and unpretending the gazette which he takes. It is next to impossible to fill a sheet with printed matter without putting into it something that is worth the subscription price. Every parent whose son is away from home at school, should supply him with a newspaper. I well remember what a marked difference there was between those of my schoolmates who had, and those who had not, access to newspapers. Other things being equal, the first were always decidedly superior to the last in debate, composition, and general intelligence. - Daniel Webster.

STATE TICKET. Our readers will learn of the result of the Republican State Convention by consulting the ticket announced at the head of this column. In addition to expressing our own opinion in regard to the candidates nominated, we give below the views of the Lansing Republican, and will say that if the press correctly represents public sentiment, the entire Republican party of the State will heartily endorse the action of the Convention and the candidates will be elected next November by overwhelming majorities. It is a strong ticket, and giving so general satisfaction cannot fail to receive a hearty support in all parts of the State. Nearly all the present officers were renominated. Those who were not will leave their positions carrying with them the respect and good will of the entire party that elected them. The vote given Auditor General Humphrey, for a re-nomination to the fifth was highly complimentary to the good qualities and efficiency of that excellent officer. It is a custom so generally followed as to have almost the force of unwritten law, to not elect a State officer for more than two terms. He has already held the office for eight consecutive years, and nis retiring now does not indicate in the least that his services have not always been satisfactory to the public. The nomination of Col. Wm. B. Mc-Creery, of Flint, was foreshadowed by the glowing accounts given in the press of his services during the late war, and his fitness and worthiness for that responsible and important position. The Convention was harmonious in its action in every particular, and has done a good work. The following from the Republican truthfully represents the feeling throughout the State:

The Republican State Convention renominated Governor Bagley by acclamation. There was not a dissenting voice. Our present able Executive is but one of a line of Republican Governors, who, from the time the Republican party obtained the administration of Michigan affairs, have evinced the utmost solicitude and regard for all our charitable, humane, and reformatory institutions. Not one of all the number has shown a more anxious solicitude, a more tender regard for the waifs and the unfortunate committed to the care of our State, than our present Governor. The compliment of his renomination was not only carrying out the well-established usage of the Republican party of Michigan, but was a hearty attribute of personal regard and admiration for his record upon all questions, financial and otherwise, in which the people have a common interest. Of his triumphant re-election by an over-

No other person was thought of for Lieut. Governor excepting Henry H. Holt. The people in his own section of the State were as warmly in his favor as when first nominated. Popular then, he has done nothing in an official capacity which has not tended to increase the confidence with which the people regarded him two years ago! As an impartial presiding officer of the Senate during the last two years he has won a host of friends. But twice in the history of the Republican party of Michigan has a Lieut. Governor been re-elected, the two instances being George A. Coc and Morgan Bates. And in our recollection of political events there has not been so remarkable a unanimity of sentiment in regard to this office. The choice of E. G. D. Holden as nominee for the office of Secretary of State is excellent in every respect. For years he has been one of the most efficient Republican workers among opened country, and will be welcomed the young men of the northwestern portion of the State. For several years Chairman of the Kent County Republican Committee, as successor of Mr. Miller, who had made a splendid record in that capacity. Some of these men were afterwards recaptured, but Colonel McCreery returned immediately to active service. He was repeatedly wounded, and received honorable mention for his gallantry from Maj. Gen. Thomas and others high in command. He has had extensive business experience; and as an officer of the U.S. Revenue Department has received great praise from the Commissioner at Washington for the efficient manner in which he has conducted the affairs of his office. His nomination will give strength to the ticket, for the boys who wore the blue will rally with zeal to the support of so gallant a having been away twenty-five years. Mrs. Frank Beaudin, living near the depot, walked across the river and back Friday last, to visit some friends, and upon returning home was taken quite ill. It will not be many days before we shall know officially still further of this important discovery. Sufficient is already known, however, to make it certain that the region is rich mineral wealth, and extends the strongest inducements to settlement and development. There is no greed like that for gold, and there is always danger of hasty and precipitate action under the stimulus of an excitement which urges the settler to fields like these. Men should reflect well before they move in such a matter, and weigh well the chances, the hardshins, and the probabilities of failure. It is always wise to let well enough alone, and those who are in the enjoyment of comfortable positions would exhibit sound judgement by remaining where they are. To others the case may be different. PERSONAL.—We received a call on Wednesday last from Justice Glover, of Cassopolis. Mr. Glover has had some experience in journalism, and very naturally has a due regard and attachment for the members of the press. He is a strong temperance advocate, and his docket he says is proof that the prohibition law is a success, and that its violations can be punished. There are few towns of the size of Cassopolis in the country that can. compare with it, so far as temperance and morality are concerned. This is attributed in part, at least, to faithful and efficient local officers, who are sustained in the proper discharge of their duties by an open approval and sanction on the part of the intelligent and better portion of the community.

and that it doesn't make much difference if the same is never paid for. The bill is therefore allowed to run from year to year, the publisher deprived of the use of money he has earned, and a debt accumulating that will be difficult to discharge, if ever settled at all. Right wrongs no person. No man can consistently ask that his paper be continued beyond the expiration of one year, without the same is paid for. No honest man will require more than this. We have therefore adopted this rule and will adhere to it strictly in the future. Those who pay in advance will be allowed a reasonable reduction from the subscription price, and we urge all to pay in advance, as it will save 25 per cent. by so doing, and will be more satisfactory to us than to receive the full amount at the end of the year. FROM DAYTON.

Aug. 28, 1874. Mr. Editor:—I believe I promised to keep you posted in Dayton, so I suppose I must write. Well, to begin with, we had quite a temperance meeting here last Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Berrien Co. Temperance Association. Mrs. Howe, Vice President for Bertrand, had charge of the proceedings. Rev. A. R. Boggs, of Niles, delivered a very eloquent and instructive lecture, handling the subject in an entirely new and novel manner: Perry Fox., Esq., of your place, then made a short and telling speech. We had splendid music under the direction of Mr. J. H. Roe, assisted by Messrs. Fox and Duncan and two ladies whose names I' have been unable to learn. AMPRICAN CYCLOPADIA

APPLETONS'

New Revised Edition.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on ev ery subject. Frinted from new type, and illustrated with Several Thousand Engravings 2006

The work originally published under the title of The New American Cyclorædia was completed in 1863, since which time the wide cir-culation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled The American Cyclorædia. Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of so cial life. Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa. The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multi-tude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. In preparing the present edition for the ress, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account, of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature and of the newest inventions in the practical record of the progress of political and histori with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer ex-perience and enlarged knowledge. The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been ad-ded not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to tions in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict scenery, architecture, and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Sunday Reading. SUNDAY MORNING. THOUGHTS DURING SERVICE.

Teo carly, of course! How provoking!
I told Ma just how it would be,
I might as well have on a wrapper.
For there's not a soul there yet to see.
There! Sac Delaplaine's pew is empty—
I declare it it isn's too had! I know my out cost more than hers did, And I wanted to see her look mad. I do think that sexton's too stupid— He's put some one cise in our new—
And the girl's dress just kills mine completely;
Now weat am I going to do?
The pealter, and Suc isn't here yet! I don't eare, I think it's a sin
For people to get late to service, dust to make a great show coming in.
Perhaps she is sick, and can't get here—she said sho'd a headacho last night. How mai she'll be after her fussing! I declare it would serve her just right. Oh, you've got here at last, my dear, have you

Well, I con't think you need be so proud Or that bennet, if Virot did make it, it's herrid fast-looking and loud.
What a dress!—for a girl in her senses
To go on the street in light blue!— And those coat siecves—they wore them last Summer— Pon't doubt, though, that she thinks they're new.

So dreadful!—a minister's wife,
And tainking so much about fashion!—
A pretty example of lite!
The altar's dressed sweetly—I wonder
Who sent those white flowers for the font!—

Who sent those white flowers for the font!—
Some girl who's gone on the assistant—
Don't doubt it was Bussie Lamont.
Just look at her now, little humbug!—
So devout!—I suppose she don't know
That she's bending her head too far over
And the ends of her switches all show.
What a sight Mrs. Ward is this morning!
That suppose will kill me some dor That weman will kill me some day, With her horrible lilaes and crimsons, With her horrible fliacs and crimsons, Why will these old things dress so gay? And there's Jenny Welles with Fred Tracy—She's engaged to him now—horrid thing! Bear me! I'd keep on my glove sometimes, If I did have a solitaire ring! How can this girl next to me act so—The way that she turns round and stares, and then makes remarks about nearly.

And then makes remarks about people; Sie'd botter be saving her prayers. Oh dear, what a dreadful long sermon! He must love to hear himself talk! And it's after twelve now, how provoking! And it safter twelve now, now provoking:

I wanted to have a nice walk.

Through at last. Well, it isn't so dreadful

After all, for we don't dine till one;

How can people say church is poky!—
So wicked!—I think it's real fun.

How To Do Good.

Life is made up of many little things. According to the character of the household words, looks, and trival actions, is the true temper of our virtue. Hence there are many men reputed good, and, as the world goes, really so, who believe in their domestic life the promise of their holiday and Sunday demeanor. Great in the large assembly, they are little at the fire-side. Leaders, perhaps, of public be-nevolence, they plead for universal love, as the saving principle of the so-cial compact; yet, when they are among their dependents, they are pevish, morose, savere, or in some other way constantly sinning against the law of kindness. Why do you begin to do good so for off? This is a ruling error. Bein at the centre and work outwards If you do not love your wife, do no pretend for such love for the people of the antipodes. If you let some family grudge, some peccadillo, some undesirable gesture, sour your visage to ward a sister or a daughter, pray cease to preach beneficence on the large

What do you mean by "doing good?" Is it not increasing human happiness? Very well! But whose happiness? Not the happiness of A, B, or C, in the planet Saturn, but that of fellow terrestrials; not that of the millions you never see, so much as that of the hundreds of scores whom you see every day. Begin to make people happy. It is a good work—it is the best work. Begin, not next door, but within your own door, with you next neighbor—whether relative, servant or superior. Account the man you meet, the man you are to bless. Give him such things as you have. This is the question. If a dollar will do, give the dollar. If advice will do, give advice. If chastisement will do, give chastisement. If a look, a word, or a smile, or a warm pressure of the hand, or a tear will do it, give the look, word, smile, hand or tear. But never forget that the happiness of our world is a mountain of golden sands, and that it is your part to cast some contributary atom almost every mo-

Serving and Praising God. Not a cloud will fleet across the sky, not a clod of earth which crumbles under the frost, not a blade of grass which breaks through the snow in the spring, not a dead leaf which falls to the earth in Autumn, but is doing God's glory. Not a tiny insect, too small to be seen by human eyes withcut the help of a microscope, but it is as fearfully and wonderfully made as: you and me, and has its proper food, habitation, work, appointed for it, and not in vain. Nothing is idle, nothing is wasted, nothing goes wrong, in this wondrous world of God's. The very scum upon the standing pool, which seems mere dirt and dust, is all alive, peopled by millions of creatures, each full of beauty, full of use, obeying laws of God too deep for us to do aught but dimly guess at them; and as men see deeper and deeper into the mystery of God's creation, they find in the commonest things about them wonder and glory, such as eye hath not seen nor ear heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive; and can only say with the Psalmist, "Oh, Lord! thy ways are infinite, thy thoughts are very deep;" and confess that the grass beneath their feet, the clouds above their heads -aye, every worm beneath the sod and every bird upon the bough—do in every deed and truth, bless the Lord that made them, and praise Him, and magnifiy Him forever, not with words indeed, but with works; and say to him all day long, "Go thou and do likewise."

Happy Thoughts. Remember that though the realm of death seems an enemy's country to most men, on whose shore they are loathly driven by stress of weather, to the wise man it is the desired port, where he moors his bark gladly, as in some quiet haven of the fortunate isles; it is the golden west into which his sun sinks, and sinking, casts back' a glory on the leaden cloud-rack which had hardly besieged his day.

TRUTH sometimes tastes like medithat igan evidence that we Indistinct Allments. There are many distressing symptoms of disease the causes of which are uncertain. Debility, nervous irritation, mental stupor and headache, for instance, may possibly be symptomatic of chronic disease in some particular organ; yet, in a great majority of cases, they arise from indigestion, and morbid conditions of the liver and bowels engendered by a foul stomach. When this is the case a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will usually effect a complete cure, but should the symptoms be only mitigated without being entirely removed, by a brief course of the remedy, let it be continued until every trace of disease has vanished. Dyspepsia is a wonderful mimic. It imitates heart disease, brain disease, kidney disease, and half a dozen other frightful ailments, and when the doctors have sol-emnly announced the existence of one or other of these complaints, half a dozen doses of the Bitters will, in most cases, explode their theories by curing the pa-

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the course of the pure of the properties of the pure of the pure of the properties of the pure of the p is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been com-pounded possessing the remarkable qual-ities of Vinegar Butters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Disenses.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use Vinegar Briters as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long inwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vine-GAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired by candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of syrerience and syidence, to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling; no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Ohronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their aliment, to call, investigate before they shandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat, and Lungs. A vastitud of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that Cherry Pectoral will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Engs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the l'ulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicated by known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and ar amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial; and convinces the most scepitical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of childhood, Cherry Reconants invaluable; for, by its, timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely, against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured. originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or foll is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.
