

Journal Record.

JOHN G. HOLMES, Editor. THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 16, 1875.

The Constitutional Convention of North Carolina, completed its organization at Raleigh on the 5th. All the officers elected are Democrats.

The Supreme Court of Western Virginia has decided that the act of the Legislature removing the capital to Wheeling, is constitutional and valid.

The American Pomological Society, at its session just held in Chicago, awarded the first medal to the Michigan State Horticultural Society, for its fine display at the exposition.

The Legislature of California stands as follows: Senate, 19 Democrats, 5 Independent Democrats, 9 Independents, 7 Republicans. In the Assembly, 60 Democrats, 1 Independent Democrat, 7 Independents, 11 Republicans.

A special dispatch from Greenville, Ky., reports that the bank of F. B. Hancock & Co., of that place, was robbed of $27,000 a few nights since. Of the money, $5,000 was in United States bonds, $7,000 in currency, and $15,000 in gold. No clue to the robbers.

The Ohio State Fair closed on the 10th, with an attendance of about 4,500 people during the day. As an exhibition, it has been an unusually fine one, but financially was considerably below that of last year.

An examination of the Treasury of Brown county, Ohio, a Democratic stronghold, and which was supposed to be out of debt, shows an indebtedness of $200,000 with defalcations by public officers to the amount of $60,000 besides. This is Reform Democracy with a vengeance.

The balance of cash in the State Treasury, Sept. 1st, was $1,263,798.24; receipts during the week ending Sept. 8th, $28,874.01; payments during the same time were $14,014.71; balance in the Treasury at the end of the week, $1,248,657.54; decrease for the week $15,140.70.

An oil refinery near Oil City, Pa., was struck by lightning on the morning of the 10th, immediately igniting a tank which contained about 5,000 barrels of crude petroleum. The loss by the fire will not fall short of $200,000, upon which there is no insurance. The works destroyed were one of the most perfect and extensive in the country.

The Maryland Republican State Convention convened at Westminster, Md., Sept. 8th, and adjourned to meet in Baltimore, Sept. 22d, to take action upon a report to be made by the committee appointed to confer with all organized friends of reform throughout the State, with a view to the selection of candidates for Governor, Attorney-General and Comptroller.

Heavy storms on Wednesday and Thursday, did terrible work along the line of the Northwestern railroad. Several accidents were caused by the washing out of bridges and culverts, and several lives were lost. Dubuque, Burlington, and other towns in Eastern Iowa, were reported to be partially under water. Several persons were struck by lightning and instantly killed.

The Pennsylvania Democratic State Convention closed its session Friday morning, after a very bitter and stormy session of several days. C. L. Pershing was nominated for Governor, and Victor C. Poletto for State Treasurer. The currency plank of the platform favors inflation, which met with some opposition from many of the leading men of the party, but of course they will swallow it "for the party's sake."

The Representatives of the "Democratic Reform" party of Wisconsin, met in State Convention at Milwaukee, on the 6th inst., and after adopting a long string of resolutions, in which great promises are made, nominated the following ticket: For Governor, Wm. R. Taylor; Lieutenant-Governor, Chas. D. Parker; Secretary of State, Peter Doyle; State Treasurer, Ferdinand Kach; Attorney General, A. S. Sloan; Supt. of Public Instruction, Edward Learning.

At the present rate of State taxation, the time is not far off when the expenses of the State government can be borne without direct taxation by the revenues derived from specific taxes. Last year the State tax apportioned was $903,434.50, and the county indebtedness $171,675.80; total, $1,075,110.30. The reduction in the State taxation this year is, therefore, $832,202, or 42.1-3 per cent. This is the lightest State tax since the year 1794, when the amount was $400,000.

During the fearful gale which blew on the Lakes, (Michigan, Erie, and Huron), on Thursday and Friday last, the Propeller Equinox went down when about 180 miles from Chicago off Point St. Ignace, on her way from Saginaw to Chicago, laden with salt. The crew of nineteen men and four passengers were all lost. The Schooner Emma Mayes, was in tow, but could give no assistance, as the sea was so rough that she could not get alongside. The first intimation the schooner had of the disaster, was an order from Capt. Scott, of the Equinox, to cut the lines, immediately followed by the shrieks of the drowning. The vessel was an old one and it is supposed that when she sprung a leak her seams opened from end to end.

Since the above was put in type, one man, the pilot, has arrived in Chicago. He is supposed to be the only survivor.

MAINE ELECTION.

The Maine election, for Governor and members of the Legislature, was held on Monday last, and resulted in the election of General Conner, the Republican candidate, by 8,000 to 5,000 majority. There was also one member of Congress to be elected in place of Mr. Hersey, deceased, but the vote is so close it is impossible, as yet, to give the result. Madison, the Democratic candidate, if not elected, is but very little behind, though the Republicans claim the district for Gen. Plaisted, by from 800 to 1,000 majority, and the returns will doubtless elect him. From latest returns the Republicans have carried eleven counties and the Democrats five, which will fairly represent the vote in the Senate. In the House, the representation will remain about the same as last year.

NEW YORK REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention of New York was held at Saratoga on Wednesday, the 8th inst., and was presided over by George William Curtis. The proceedings were harmonious throughout and an excellent ticket was nominated, as follows: For Secretary of State, Frederick W. Seward; for Comptroller, Gen. F. E. Spear; late U. S. Treasurer; for Treasurer, Gen. E. A. Merrill; for Attorney General, George L. Danford; for State Engineer, O. H. P. Cornell; for Canal Commissioner, William E. Tinsley; for State Prison Inspector, Rev. B. T. Ives.

The platform adopted is a sound one, declaring that the National Government should remain in the hands of those who sustain the guarantees of the amended Constitution, and in pursuance of the past action of the Republican party and its good results, the welfare of the country requires a just, generous and forbearing national policy in the Southern States; a refusal to use the military power except for purposes clearly defined in the Constitution, and the local enforcement of national authority by those only who are in sympathy with such a policy and will heartily support it. It demands honesty, economy and efficiency in every branch of the state and national administrations; prompt investigation of all charges of wrong doing, and summary exposure; prosecution and punishment of wrong doers, heartily commends the action of all officers, whether of the national or state governments, in their honest efforts for the correction of public abuses, and pledges them constant and faithful support. It makes a full and distinct declaration in favor of hard money, by saying that "A further inflation of the currency, under any pretense whatever, would be a public calamity. The interests of honest industry and common welfare demand the speediest possible return to specie payments." The resolutions conclude with the following:

"The free public school is the bulwark of the American Republic; we therefore demand the unqualified maintenance of the public school system, and its support by equal taxation. We are opposed to all sectional appropriations, and we denounce all crime against liberty and republican institutions, and we pledge our support to a division or perversion of the school funds of the state. The National Administration, by its steadfast fidelity to the principles of commercial honor; by its opposition to unsound financial projects; by its calm avoidance of collision with foreign powers; by its reliance on justice and reason rather than force in the settlement of disputes; by its firm vindication of national dignity and authority by rigidly enforcing the laws, correcting abuses, punishing offenders and enforcing retrenchment without hesitating to ostentatious preparations, deserving the gratitude of the American people, and adds lustre to the service in the war of the distinguished soldier and patriot who stands at its head."

EX-GOV. BALDWIN AND INFLATION. Ex-Governor Baldwin was interviewed by a Detroit Free Press reporter, a short time since, on the currency question, and the following is the report of his position on the subject:

"Gov. Baldwin thought his views well known on the subject, yet he had no objection to saying publicly that he had no sort of sympathy with the inflation movement. He looked upon it as the biggest sort of humbuggery. The financial history of the world is very clear upon this point. The position of the government is like that of the man who went to the bank to renew his note, when they told him that it must be paid; they did not care to renew it again. 'Why,' said he, 'I have I not always met my paper?' 'Yes, but you had a settlement sometime, and the sooner the better, for you and us.' The application is plain, is it not? There has never been a time in the history of our country when there has been such a plethora of money as there is to-day, at the very time when the inflationists are crying for many greenbacks. To the question, 'Then what would you suggest to business men? Would you favor immediate or gradual resumption?' Mr. Baldwin answered: 'That is perhaps a difficult question to answer. The fact is, we have, as a people, as a nation, and the whole civilized world, been living too extravagantly. We have had an unusually long period of prosperity in our productive interests, and I believe now, if we live up to the law passed by Congress, and carry it out in good faith, we shall all glide into a new and better condition of affairs smoothly and successfully, all having prepared themselves, to meet it, but I also believe, the period might have been made much shorter. Why not the 1st of January, 1875, as well as sooner. These views I should entertain whether engaged in banking, in real estate, or in the manufacturing of boots and shoes."

Three rich veins of coal have been discovered near Bay City, on land owned by Lindsay & Gamble, about one hundred and forty feet below the surface. One vein is three and a half feet thick, one two feet and the lower one over six.

MICHIGAN ITEMS.

Joseph J. Baxter, one of the pioneer settlers of Grand Rapids, died in that city on the 10th inst.

A fire at Manistee on the 9th destroyed property to the value of $5,000, on which there was an insurance of $2,500.

A young lad at Allegan, named Peter Rood, had his hand badly mangled the other day trying to separate some fighting dogs. At last accounts he was delirious and fears were entertained that he would die.

A grand base ball tournament for Leapeer, St. Clair, Oakland and Macomb counties will take place at Romeo, Sept. 22d, 23d and 24th. Over $100 will be given away in prizes.

A runaway occurred at Milford, on the evening of the 9th, and Mr. W. H. Clark, his wife and a young lady were thrown out and severely injured. Mr. Clark having his collar bone broken; his wife's leg was broken in three places and her head bruised. The young lady sustained severe bruises.

At a tournament at Saginaw on the 10th, between Saginaw City, two-horse race, of Saginaw City, ran 850 feet, coupled and threw water through 200 feet of hose in 46 seconds. The hand-hoss ran 550 feet, coupled and threw water through 200 feet of hose in 42 1/2 seconds.

From all the reports we see in the papers of the firemen's tournament at Battle Creek, we are led to conclude it was a miserable failure, partly on account of the bad weather and partly on account of the unjust rulings of the officers. At a party in Detroit, on the evening of the 9th, the scene of gaiety and mirth was suddenly changed to one of sorrow. While the enjoyment of the young people was at its height, one of the guests, a Miss Frances Amsten, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a gun. Some over the gun was in the hands of a young man named Whipple, which he stung and says the gun was standing in a corner of the room and was discharged by being knocked down by the young lady's clothes.

Pennsylvania Democracy.

The Pennsylvania State Democratic Convention met at noon, Wednesday, at Erie; and spent till almost day-break Friday morning quarreling over the currency question and the ticket. There has not been in a long time another State Convention of any party so composed of mixed up, conflicting, and demagogic elements as this. Every delegate in the Convention seems to have held what he was pleased to call his "principles" for sale; and the long contention was simply a quarrel over the price for which half the Convention should sell out its convictions. The Committee on Platform was composed of twenty-five inflationists and twenty-four hard-money Democrats. The twenty-four hard-money Democrats sold out to the twenty-five inflationists, and finally adopted a rather more dishonest inflation and repudiation platform than that of Ohio repudiationists, after a long quarrel over the matter, during which the hard-money Democrats, swearing till the air was blue that they would not consent, finally consented to abandon their "principles," and do what they said was dishonest, "for the good of the party."

Last year the Democratic party of Pennsylvania, in its platform, demanded an early resumption of specie payments. This year it demands that the policy of returning to specie payments be abandoned; that the National banking system be destroyed; that the greenbacks be inflated without limit; and that the Government receive greenbacks for all public dues, and so cease forever to obtain gold, and forever prevent a return to coin. Then free speech was put down, to prevent an open debate of the question. After this ignominious surrender of principles, there was an equally discreditable scramble for the offices. The Convention, after the ballots, finally nominated for Governor, a hard-money Democrat, named Pershing, who, it is openly declared, is "personally in favor of hard money, but will sacrifice his views [his honest convictions] to party policy," and a chance for an office. One of the candidates for State Treasurer was the President of a National bank. His manager assured the Convention that his principles were for sale—that, though a banker, he was opposed to the National banking system. The chairman of the Convention attempted by a dishonest trick to adjourn the Convention, to allow time for his particular friends to do some wire-pulling against some candidates he did not like; but he was compelled, by force, to give over that attempt at cheating. The ticket thus nominated is not a strong one. It is a ticket confessedly composed of men who are ready to sell their honest convictions, and to strike down what they believe to be the public good, and enter into any dishonesty, "for the benefit of the party." The platform is a dishonest one. It was adopted by a convention a large part of which believe it to be a cheat, but swallow it "for the sake of the party." If such a ticket, upon such a platform, can be elected, the people of Pennsylvania and of the whole country have fair notice that such a State administration will stick at no dishonesty, hesitate at no crime, "for the sake of the party." It will be an administration which has advertised in advanced that all its principles, beliefs, and professions are for sale to party policy—an administration which begins by advertising itself as a swindle.—Detroit Post, 11th.

It is stated that the Reform ticket is coolly received at Madison, Wis., and that many Democrats and Liberals have already signified their intention not to support it. There is nothing improbable or strange in this. With two platforms so nearly alike, and both excellent, the choice must rest with men in Wisconsin this year more than ever. When it comes to a question of recognized fitness and strong personal popularity it is not difficult to name the winner in a race between Henry Lindstrom and Gov. Taylor.—Chicago Tribune, 11th.

ILLINOIS CORRESPONDENCE.

ELMWOOD, PEORIA CO., ILL., Sept. 13, 1875.

Mr. Editor:—I received your valuable paper through the hands of your worthy townsmen, Dr. E. S. Dodd, in which I saw the resolutions on the death of Wm. D. Kingery, the senior editor of the Record. Having been acquainted with Mr. Kingery almost from infancy, I know that you have lost a good townsman and worthy editor. I always found him very quiet and good hearted, willing to lend an assisting hand in time of need. We are having very hot and dry weather here at present; just the thing we need for the corn, for it had such a terrible growth through the months of July and August that it would have been caught by the frost. I think if we have such weather a week or two longer the most of the corn will be out of the way of frost. We had the largest crop of oats this harvest there has been for several years. We had a very heavy storm while the oats were still in the milk and they were blown down, so that on an average there could not be more than half of them harvested. We have no fruit worth speaking of. The potato crop is large and selling from 20 to 25 cts. per bushel. Grapes were almost a failure, prices ranging from 10 to 15 cts. per pound. One thing our quiet little town is "blessed" with and that is burglars. A few weeks since the peace of the good citizens of our town was disturbed by about twenty houses being entered in one night and a considerable amount of valuables carried off, such as money, jewelry and watches. Mr. E. P. Rogers' house was entered the same night and he got up and after them. He barely escaped with his life, as they shot at him, the ball just missing him and lodging in the door casing near where he stood. No clue to the burglars as yet.

Yours as ever,

ISAIAH C. MURPHY.

Michigan at Philadelphia—The Workers' Headquarters During the Centennial.

The Michigan Board of Centennial Commissioners, who are to be and the committee on other things, in providing for the welfare of their constituents at Philadelphia during the Centennial exhibition, proposed, a while ago, to erect an appropriate building in the Quaker city, for use as Michigan headquarters. Want of funds, however, discouraged them, and the project was abandoned; but upon its abandonment by the board, the people took it up and made such liberal offers of assistance that the board are now, happily, in a condition to announce that they will erect "such a building, all the material, in the way of stone and lumber, having been donated by enterprising and liberal citizens of our state. An object of our city is at work upon plans for the structure, and will donate his time and labor. Nothing will be used in the construction of the edifice which is not directly the product, manufactured or otherwise, of Michigan soil, except the nails, and it would seem that these, too, might be supplied from the iron ore beds of the Lake Superior region. The material entering into the building will be: marble and foundation of Michigan marble, freestone, sandstone, etc.; roof, Michigan slate; windows, Michigan glass; chimneys, Michigan brick, etc. The interior will also be furnished with Michigan woods, and the whole will be first completed here, and then sent to Philadelphia to be put up. The building will be the headquarters for the Michigan Board of directors, secretary, exhibitors, and Michigan people generally. Full records and descriptions of the various products and resources of the state and other like information will be here kept for the enlightenment of those not Michiganders, as well as files of all the leading Michigan newspapers. A register kept by the secretary will contain the names, residences and stopping places of all Michigan folks, so that their friends and others will be able to find them easily. Contributions to pay for labor in erecting this Michigan castle are earnestly solicited, and the sooner they are sent to the commission in this city, the better.—Detroit Tribune.

The Currency in England.

The discussion of the currency question in this country has naturally brought up the experience of other countries, and the following statement of the bank circulation of the United Kingdom on August 7th, will be of interest in connection with it: Bank of England, £464,786; Private banks, £240,897; Joint-stock banks, £244,768. Total in England, £950,451; Scotland, £68,816; Ireland, £6,007,626. United Kingdom, £1,025,307. The amount in circulation July 10th was £447,785.55. In the four weeks previous to the 7th of August, there was an increase in the circulation of Bank of England notes of £952,363, and in that of private banks in England of £1,932. There was a decrease of £2,401 in the circulation of English joint-stock banks, of £96,227 in that of Scottish banks, and of £13,639 in that of Irish banks. The average stock of bullion in the Bank of England for the month ending August 4th, was £28,802,976. Scotch banks, during the month ending August 7th, held an average of £4,173,496 in gold and silver, and Irish banks during the same period an average of £2,636,044. The following statement shows the total bank circulation in the kingdom, including the bullion held in reserve: Total bank circulation in Great Britain and Ireland on the 7th of August, £1,025,307. Total bullion in Bank of England, £28,802,976. Gold and silver in Irish and Scotch banks, £4,173,496. Total ascertainable circulation, £950,451. In addition to this, there is the amount of gold and silver in the hands of the people. What this is, cannot, of course, be ascertained exactly. The New York World, however, estimates it from the best data it can procure, at not to exceed $5,200,000. Placing it at that figure, we have the following as the total circulating medium of Great Britain: £1,025,307.

Notes, gold and silver in banks of circulation.

Gold circulation, 5,520,000
Total money of Great Britain and Ireland, £96,219,659
Average in dollars, $481,068,225

With this amount of money—part of which is always locked up in the banks—Great Britain is able to be the money lender of the world, and to carry on a commerce much larger than that of any other nation—more than three times that of the United States—as well as to have a volume sufficient for the needs of the people. In the United States the circulation is upward of $800,000,000, or nearly double that of Great Britain, is larger per capita than that of any nation in the world, and yet we are told that more is needed. The fact, however, that England has no lack of currency with only about $14 per head; that it has quadrupled its trade with very little increase in circulating medium, and that exchanges are made with as much facility there as here, shows that the clamor of our inflationists is without reason.—Detroit Free Press.

The Career of Ralston, the San Francisco Millionaire Banker.

It was in Virginia City that Ralston became acquainted with Sharon and Jones, who were then inexperienced superintendents of mines, working upon a salary, and with nothing more than this except a great deal of presumption. They built the Reno and Virginia City railroad, or rather the Bank of California did, which was a monopoly; the bank reached out its tentacles and grasped everything financially and commercially. It established branches in nearly every city. It put money into corporations. It finally got hold of the quicksilver mines, in which business Ralston had once been engaged, and soon monopolized the trade. In short, the institution began to raise its impregnable head of monopoly. Ralston at this time became generally known as a business man, and his social life was at the time a matter of comment amongst the people of the slope. He was known as the man who set all social conventionalities at defiance. He cared nothing for public opinion. He lived only for W. C. Ralston and the pleasures which that gentleman experienced. He outraged what little there was of decency in the mining camp, and lived a life of wild and almost utter recklessness. He maintained fast women within a stone's throw of his home, where lived his wife and children, and lavished money and gems upon abandoned characters in sufficient sums to make scores independent for life. Money came and went like the steady, profuse flow of a river. He did nothing but by piecemeal. In conjunction with his companions he scattered wealth with the lavish hand of a modern Croesus. A circumstance which happened during his sojourn in Virginia City will serve to illustrate as well as could anything else the prevailing characteristics of this strange man: John McCullough, the tragedian, was in the height of his glory on the coast. He made a visit to Nevada, and had played several nights in Virginia City to crowded houses. He was a special favorite of Ralston, Sharon, and a couple of others. McCullough had closed his engagement and was ready to leave the city. His trunks were packed and the stage stations ready to make their journey to Reno. It was in the early evening, and after business hours, when Ralston and a few others conceived the idea that it would be a capital idea to have McCullough play one more, so they sent word to him that they wanted him to appear that night in the "Gladstone." John sent back word that it was impossible; he was prepared to go to San Francisco, and he could not delay his journey. This would not do; play he must. Messengers were sent to bring his baggage back, and the theater was a full house, and would seat more than seven or eight hundred people. McCullough saw that it would not do to refuse the men who had been his best patrons and bankers, and so he made ready. There was no doorkeeper that night. It was free to all; but there was a man in the box-office who sold tickets, simply for the sake of appearance. It was a grand blow-out, gotten up by the bank people. The receipts that night amounted to the unprecedented figure of $13,200, and it was contributed by three or four men, most conspicuous among whom was W. C. Ralston. In short, it was a grand drunk, and money was free as the air of heaven. The plan pursued was for all concerned to go to the ticket office and buy $500 worth of tickets each, after which all would adjourn to the wine cellar and wager a basket of wine that each could tear his tickets up in the shortest time. When they had concluded this game the box-office was out of tickets, there was $13,200 in the till, Mr. McCullough had finished the play, the floor was strewn with tickets, and the whole party was as drunk as men can get. This, in short, was the game incentive which ruled the nature of W. C. Ralston.

Not Yet Ended.

It is somewhat amusing to see Democratic editors, who never endorsed the Republican party nor any of its measures, give as a reason for the faith that is in them of the defeat awaiting the Republican party, that the mission of said party is ended. It is fairly deducible from the remark that said editors mean that the mission of the Republican party was to save the Union when threatened by Democracy. An honest confession is said to be good for the soul, and the confession couched in the declaration that the Republican party had a mission and performed it, demonstrates that the editors aforesaid are not soulless. But the mission of the Republican party is not wholly ended. True, through its instrumentality the Democratic rebellion was crushed like an egg, as Grant once expressed it, but its mission will not be wholly fulfilled until the Democracy is as dead as is their rebellion. When the Republican party attained power, it had to confront a leading tenet of the Democratic party, to the effect that one or more states had the right to secede at will or pleasure, and that the Union had no power of self-preservation. That dogma has never been as publicly recanted as it was enunciated, and it is fair to presume that it is yet a part of the Democratic confession of faith. Many of the leaders of the late rebellion still live. Jeff Davis, the Jupiter Amon of the unholy war, struts the earth, glorying in his shame. He and his compers look with favor on the contemplated overthrow of the Republican party and the accession to power of the Democracy. The fruition of their hopes would be equivalent to smirching the stary banner, unseemingly as dancing upon the graves of the heroes who fell fighting traitors, and devilish as the defilement of J. Wilkes Booth. Oh, no! while the air which Republicans breathe hedges in developed traitors yearning for Democratic victory, the Republican party will successfully resist all opposition.

We do not know what the Democratic party has been allowed to live so long for, unless it be that the centennial birth of our nation would be a favorable era in which the organized enemy of our nationality should go down to its grave. Next year there will be a big funeral procession, and the leading carriage will be occupied by the putrid remains of the once loyal Democratic party, and all the loyal people of the nation will take a holiday and attend the funeral: "For right is right, since God is God, And right the day will win. To do what's right, be dignified, To falter would be sin."—Republic.

Rev. E. E. Hale has written a very suggestive article on the subject of trusts—a topic that is rising into considerable importance as the number of these nuisances increase. He says that it is the business of the government to take care of the poor and unemployed, but that law, common sense and manliness agree with religion, that if a man will not work, neither should he eat. He believes that municipal authority should be brought up to the scratch and made to exact work from the poor as well as to feed them; he would not relieve the suffering by volunteer aid, but he would free it to carry out the provisions of law for the establishment of workhouses or the employment of the poor at some form of labor. He denounces the free soup distributions and free lodgings and free lunches, and lays to their charge the increase of the number of tramps. Mr. Hale would provide 100 saw-horses and saws and fifty cords of wood, and require the inmates of the institution to pay for their lodgings with two hours' work every morning. This latter suggestion is a very good one. Could it be practically carried out, it would afford an excellent test for distinguishing between honest laborers out of work and the "hangers" who don't want to work.—Detroit Tribune.

What a Public Official Should Be.

1. He should be an honest man. The man who deals fairly with his neighbors will not prove false to the people whom he serves.
2. He would have ability, and enough common sense to know how to use it. The most brilliant attainments cannot compensate for a lack of good judgment.
3. He should be industrious. "Laziness travels so slowly, that poverty soon overtakes him," said Ben. Franklin. The man, who, through idleness, allows poverty to overtake him is not fit for a public office. It is a safe rule to go by, that a man who neglects his own affairs, cannot well care for those of the people.
4. He should be a methodical man. Honesty, ability, industry, lose half their force, without method to direct them. Order is nature's great law. It should be the law governing all public officials.
5. He should be a Republican. Republicanism without the qualities named, should be distrusted. It is a sham, and unworthy the name it bears; but Republicanism in its truest sense, based upon personal honesty, ability, industry, and method, will do to build upon. It is a sure foundation, as sure as the granite rock that underlies the mountains of New England.
6. We have thousands of such men in our party. They are not found begging for office; they are found at home, tending to their own business, improving themselves, their families, and the community in which they live. They must be sought out, invited to accept office for the public good. Bring them to the front; invest them with authority; surround them with the fullest amount of public confidence, and once in office, keep them there, for the right men in the right place cannot be improved upon.—Republic.

We noticed in the Detroit Post of the 10th inst., an account of the affair that occurred in our place, noticed elsewhere, which colors the matter up in too strong a light; and not exactly as it did occur. Instead of any "violation," it was "open exposure" without words or menaces.

The "Odd Fellows' Celebration at Three Rivers, on Saturday last, is said to have been the largest ever known in the State. Eight thousand people were in attendance. The fact that it occurred on Saturday, so that those who wished to attend from this village could not get home the same evening, kept them away.

OUR toppers can now get drunk at wholesale, and be furnished with something else besides whisky and beer, which, they complain, has been their only beverage in this place for some time past. An establishment has recently been opened in town, where the head under all the various names of "real gopher place," as we heard a man talk the other day; but where the general comes in we have not been able to ascertain.

REV. W. W. WELLS' lectures on Astronomy, as connected with the Divinity, on Sabbath evenings, are highly instructive and entertaining. In his easy, fluent, and explicit manner, he unfolds the mysteries of space, as existing in our starry sphere, so that all can comprehend him and derive much instruction, and our only wonder is, where he will yet lead us to, as we are now from two to four hundred million miles from—well, anywhere, astronomically speaking.

The following is a list of appointments made at the St. Joseph Annual Conference of the United Brethren Church, for this district:

Berrien—J. F. Barkness, Buchanan—G. Siockafosse, Sodus—M. Dalrymple, Bangor—J. Reichtel, Three Rivers—S. Wells, Albion—J. V. Terlinger, Elkhar—J. H. Slight, Indian Village—J. S. Martin, Locktown—E. B. East, Otter Lake Mission—E. F. Light,

Another of the early settlers of our county has passed away. Joseph Warren Howe died at Berrien Springs on the 4th inst., in the 78d year of his age. He was born in Worcester County, Mass., in 1802. In 1855 he removed to this country. In early life he was twice elected to the Massachusetts legislature, and was once nominated for Congress, but was defeated.

During his residence in this county he held, for several years, the office of Supervisor of his township, giving universal satisfaction to his constituents.

A CALL is out, quite numerously signed, for a meeting of the old settlers of this county, to take place at Berrien Springs on Wednesday next. We learn it is the purpose of the originators to form an Old Settlers' Association, which will have its regular meetings, pic-nics, talks over old times, &c., and thus bring out and preserve on its records the early history of the county and its pioneers. Buchanan has several of those who came here when this county was almost a wilderness, and who helped materially in its development to its present advanced position among the counties of the State. Every one of them should attend. We know they would be fully repaid for doing so, in renewing old friendships and talking over old times.

Business Locals.

The Multiplication of Diseases. Diseases multiply. One begets another. A trifling indisposition may, therefore, originate a complication of dangerous maladies.

BERRIEN COUNTY fruit was well represented at the opening of the Exposition in Chicago. The correspondent of the Detroit Post writes as follows:

"A. O. Winchester exhibits for Berrien county 122 boxes of apples, 33 of pears, 33 of peaches, 19 of plums, 17 of grapes, 2 of quinces, 3 of blackberries, 6 of raspberries and 6 of figs. The figs were from a four year old tree, which is perfectly hardy and healthy, requiring only a slight protection in winter. Some Wilson blackberries, exhibited in the Berrien county collection, were the largest and finest at the exposition, and attracted considerable attention."

THE officers of the Buchanan M. E. Church for the ensuing Conference year, are as follows:

The estimating committee, to estimate the pastor's salary, is composed of E. H. Beardsley, Seth Smith and O. W. Ross.

The next quarterly conference will be held Sept. 24th, and the next quarterly meeting Dec. 4th and 5th.

THE State Taxes apportioned to Berrien County by the Auditor General, at Lansing, Sept. 6th, 1875, are as follows: New State Capitol, $5,215.87. The 1-20 mill aid to the State University, $821.50. To the School of Mines, $273.53. To the Asylum for the Insane at Pontiac, $3,607.04. To the Institution for Deaf, Dumb and Blind, $1,424.31. For State public schools, $1,939.51. To the State House of Correction, $1,955.95. Total amount of taxes, $13,593.41. The County indebtedness to the State is $509.91. Aggregate amount to be raised, $14,093.32.

Here is a "personal explanation" from Parson Bronlow's paper that touches the spot with just as much curtness as anything from the same source ever did: "Our contemporary of the Press and Herald, in a recent issue, gives its surmises as to the age of the editor of this paper. We will inform our neighbor that on the 29th of last month we were seventy years old. When the painful duty devolved upon us of writing the obituary of the late ex-President Johnson, we had lived to see the kind of virtues of the last survivor of the large number of politicians in Tennessee, whom we encountered and fought on our advent into public life. That the Lord has been so merciful to us, and so long preserved us in the midst of great dangers in prison and out of it, we, in part, attribute to the fact that we never voted the Democratic ticket. We were first a Federalist, then a Whig, now a Republican, and by the blessing of God, we stand ready to oppose anything or anybody appearing under the disguise of States Rights Repudiating Democracy."

It happened in this way, you know. Two young men called upon Mrs. Swank, who lives about two and one half miles south of Gallien. They were very nice young men, very polite, and wished to engage in family worship, after which one of them happened to remember that he had a payment to make on some goods; he would give as security two gold watches. How fortunate that a third young man happened in so opportunely and claimed the watches were worth $150. He, too, was very pious; he wanted some one to pray for him. Sorry, we are, to be obliged to say that the old lady produced the money ($110) and took the watches as security, and the young men went on their way rejoicing, and undoubtedly singing Psalm tunes as they made ready for more devotional exercises with which to "rop-in" the innocent and big hearted. Once more we say, look out for traps. Look out for sneaks. Look out for broad-cloth grays(?) who steal the pennies from blind men's trays. Look out for the scum and off-scum of society who are traveling around the country. The Devil won't own them for fear they may dethrone him, and should be obliged to furnish the brimstone for their own burning.

CONSIDERABLE excitement was created on Tuesday evening by the report that a man had had a fit and fallen from a buggy on Oak street, and was badly hurt. The doctor was called in and great haste and after a short examination came to the conclusion that the patient would prove fatal, but that the patient would feel better after the effect of the bad whisky he had been drinking had passed away. Horace will probably carry the mark on his nose, caused by a too close contact with the ground in the fall, for some time.

A BRUSH, in the shape of a man named Henson, was arrested at Niles on Wednesday last, on the charge of having brought here on the charge of "infamous exposure of person," a young lady of this place, Miss Elma, daughter of H. Glover, but on account of some defect in the warrant he was liberated. A second warrant was served, but for a similar defect in the papers he was again discharged. The third warrant has been issued, which we hope will not receive the same fate as the others.

FROM DAYTON.

Sept. 14th, 1875. Editor Record:—While we are happy to learn that "Stator's" mistake was not intentional, we would gladly extend a goodly degree of charity, for by so doing we may prevent the accused from making use of that powerful weapon, our Savior used while defending the woman, viz: "He that is without sin, let him cast the first stone." And now to the general report of this week. We are obliged to acknowledge that the monster Death has invaded our ranks and removed from among us of its victims; and while it has taken from our number the bosom companion of Mr. Wm. Wentling it reminds us that life with all is uncertain, and the question arises, are we prepared for that which awaits us? The disease seemed to affect the skill of the physician and she passed away, Sept. 13th, leaving a husband, three small children and an aged mother to mourn her loss, together with a circle of sorrowing friends. Her sister, Mrs. Sebastian, is also quite low; likewise Mr. Joseph Anstice, a late member of the Odd Fellows. Joe will be well cared for, this being one of the beauties of which the order boasts. So death and disease are among us. Who may be their next victim God only knows. Of necessity we must abide the dealings of Providence.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

[From the Cassopolis Vigilant.] Wm. Kelzer, of Elkhart, had a horse stolen Monday night. They tracked it to Adamsville, and when they arrived here Tuesday, Sheriff Thomas assisted them in the search. The crack croquet players of Dowagiac went up to Buchanan a short time ago and laid the Buchanan players in the shade. Buchanan returned the compliment at Dowagiac some days later, and now, as we learn from the Record, the third or "rub" game is to be played at Cassopolis, which will decide the contest.

One Gregg's colored man, who has been learning the barber's trade, in this village, imbibed rather freely last week, the evening of the colored people's dance, and while he was trying hard to carry what he had on board, he, together with a companion, went into the whisky shop in this village and called for something to drink. The bottle washer produced the decanter and glass, and before the liquor was poured out, the white haired individual discovered that his customer had a great plenty already, and set back his implements of warfare. This enraged his colored customer, and he commenced to rave, and declared that he would have some whisky, emphasizing the declaration with oaths, pointing a revolver at the clerk's head, and finally discharging the same into the air, not knowing whether he was aiming at the bar tender or not, when he fired. Brady remained in town over night, but the morning following, after breakfast, he decamped. He was found and arrested in Calvin, and yesterday morning was brought before Justice Jones, fined $25 and costs, and required to give bonds to keep the peace for six months.

THE COUNTY PRESS.

[Benton Harbor Times.] A postoffice has again been established at Bainbridge, with James H. Peters as P. M. On the sixth inst. two thieves were caught at Morris Station who stole a widow's only watch, and it is not known whether she was aiming at the bar tender or not, when he fired. Brady remained in town over night, but the morning following, after breakfast, he decamped. He was found and arrested in Calvin, and yesterday morning was brought before Justice Jones, fined $25 and costs, and required to give bonds to keep the peace for six months.

[New Buffalo Independent.] There is a good opening in New Buffalo for a harness shop. Harness Makers take notice! Three old women and a lame man constitute the debating society at Three Oaks, and their chief topic is the lady's man's garden. The debates are held under the fence. Under the supervision of Geo. Weimer, Esq., the new wing to the Union School House is fast approaching completion and will be ready for use ere the 20th, which is the time now set for the commencement of schools. It will be furnished with Andrew's patent seats.

[Niles Democrat.] Simeon, aged three years, son of Dr. S. Bolpink, of this city, fell from a swing, last Saturday, and broke his neck, before the prayer meetings are held at the Temperance Reading Rooms every Tuesday afternoon, at half-past three o'clock, and every Sunday, at half-past five, p. m. The Societe d'Acclimatation of Paris, has awarded to George H. Jerome, State Fish Commissioner, a handsome medal as a reward for his activity and energy displayed in the propagation of fish. It is a well earned and well deserved compliment. We are informed that Charles Ross, who resides at Berrien Springs, has fallen heir to the comfortable sum of $56,000, by the death of a relative in England. If this report be true, it is altogether probable that that relative's memory will be long and fondly cherished by Mr. Ross. A little colored girl had a narrow escape on Tuesday, at Spring Lake. She was knocked down by a train of cars, and for some time lay insensible. She was rescued by several places but not injuring her seriously. [Berrien Springs Journal.] Burglars entered the house of O. D. Nichols, through an open window, last Friday night, and helped themselves to what they pleased, and if they had not accidentally broken the proprietor's bed, they might have carried off a goodly amount. The firmen of Laporte and some others, who took part in the South Bend tournament last week, are at high jinks with the Benders, and complain of having been unfairly dealt with. Sandy savory epistles, rich in expletives, of an anonymous character, have been sent in; but from whom we learn, there was no unfairness in the aggrieved parties failed to win a fair trial—that's all.

And yet there is hope that the Odd Fellows will put up a splendid building for stores and hall, on the corner of Old Public Square. A committee have the matter under advisement.

out some of her lower teeth, and the entire set of her upper teeth. Simmie, a little son of Dr. Belpink, fell from a swing on Saturday evening last and broke his shoulder bone. This accident will knock the little fellow out of several weeks of solid fun, but he will be up and at it again in good time. The Three Rivers Military Company's picnic and target shoot at Diamond Lake on Thursday was very largely attended, and very pleasant. About 600 persons attended, this city being well represented. The target shooting was good. Out of 180 shots, 113 hit the target. One man, Perry Hoisington, hit the Bull's eye fairly in the center. Capt. Mearns's Company chartered the little steamer on the Lake, and the boat made regular and frequent trips to and from the island. Mrs. John O'Kief, a widow, aged 62 years, was run over by Niles Road train engine, or rather was struck by the engine and thrown down, yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon, and had her ankle crushed so badly that amputation was necessary. She was standing near the track after the Day Express had gone, and in the noise and confusion of other engines passing did not hear or see this one coming. Drs. Bonine & Dougan announced her leg just below the knee. The peddlers will be scarce hereafter, as none will be allowed on the grounds.

Temperance Column.

From the Watchword. There is a stream of death which flows from the destruction of the hand. To deluge every town and state in this our father land.

It is a richly colored stream, And tempting is the sight To all who seek an endless round Of pleasure and delight.

But woe to those who learn to drink The liquid flowing there! For once death will lead them on, And neck at their despair.

Year after year it onward flows, And still new victims come, And fall before this licensed stream, Whose deadly name is Rum.

Results of Whisky Drinking. Under this heading, we read of a brawl into which a family fell, when they were all drunk. It was no new or startling thing. Not only riots but murders and every sort of crime follow the use of whisky, as uniformly and invariably as blood follows the lance.

But on reading the paragraph, we thought what a singular traffic is this, a legitimate, legalized traffic, having a strong hold in the church, as well as in politics, and yet one of which no good is ever recorded!

Who ever expects to read anything under such a heading as the above, which blesses and makes more happy any portion of the human family? When and where did whisky ever confer a benefit?

No! its record in the daily prints as in the unwritten annals of wretched homes and hearts, is a record of blackness and woe.

Other traffic are not thus, and if they were, society would condemn them to immediate annihilation. How it would surprise the public to see in the telegraphic columns of the daily press, some morning, such startling announcements as these:

"A HORRIBLE CRIME." "A man cuts his wife's throat, and dashes out the brains of his infant child! He had been partaking too freely of beefsteak and coffee."

"FATAL RIOT!" "Some desperadoes assembled on the street last evening, at a late hour, and having eaten freely of ice cream, and Crawford peaches and sponge cake, they became maddened, reason lost her gentle sceptre, and a scene of blood-shed and death ensued."

"DREADFUL MURDER." "A crowd gathered in the boot and shoe store of Mr. A., on B. street, early in the evening, on Saturday last, and some having purchased for themselves patent leather boots, some congress gaiters, some buck-skin slippers, and other sundry pairs of elegant buttoned boots, etc., for their wives and daughters, they became, finally, so much infuriated at each other, in consequence of these extensive purchases, that the police were required to quell the disturbance, and even in the baser passions of the rabble, could not be calmed till several bones had been broken, heads had been smashed, and one or two had been fatally injured."

"PARTIES ASSEMBLED IN CONSIDERABLE numbers at the city bakery, at an early hour this morning, and regaled themselves on new brown bread, sugar cookies, mince pies, sweet buns and ginger bread, till a state of heady intoxication ensued, and the furniture of the establishment was broken in pieces, the women and children of the place were driven into the streets, and only the prompt interference of the authorities prevented the most serious results."

"SUDDEN DEATH." "A man dropped dead in the street at mid-day. He had eaten rather freely of mutton chops and apple dumplings; an unfortunate habit which has been steadily growing upon him till all self control had been surrendered, and against the warnings of his friends, and the tears of his wife and children, he persisted, till the fatal result above recorded was induced."

"What, if these were the daily and uniform results of the grocers, produce merchants and boot and shoe dealers, traffic would be the public sentiment? Let it appear that three-fourths of the poverty and crime arise from eating meat, and every butchery would be abolished by law.

But the liquor traffic represents enormous and easy profits, and here is its principle strong hold.

Wanted Help. A man about thirty five years of age, giving his name as Frank Miller, and claimed to have been a member of Co. C, 13 Mich. Infantry, during the war, called upon the Superintendent of the poor of this county, a day or two ago for help. He stated that he had been on a drunk for three weeks, and during that time he had squandered over one hundred dollars for whisky. He was allowed to go to the county house for a short time.—Cassopolis Democrat.

There it is for you!—extravagance, idleness, dishonesty. This man is all three. If he were not lazy he would not have been on a drunk three weeks. If he were not extravagant he would not have expended one hundred and fifty dollars in three weeks. If he were not dishonest he would not have wasted precious moments in idleness and debauchery, and finally be quartered in the county house at the expense of the public. The country is infested with tramps who are too lazy, and too dishonest to work for a living. They would rather steal and commit rape and other prevailing crimes of the day. There is work requiring able-bodied men here and there, but the tramp passed by on the other side. He would rather walk all day on the hot, dusty roads in the country than saw wood or perform any other honest labor. It has always been so, but it is worse now than ever, not so much because there is necessity for such a state of affairs, but because there is opportunity, the panic having furnished it, nothing since the Chicago fire being so prolific of vagrancy. "In this great country," as Horace Greeley said, "there is room for all, work for all, and bread for all."—Elkhart Daily Observer.

Hence its wonderful cures, many of which are publicly known, of Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Ulcers, Eruptions, and eruptive disorders of the skin, Tumors, Blisters, Boils, Pimples, Furuncles, Sores, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, and internal Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, and Liver. PHUNYGRAMS. Too Much Shaving Water. A certain minister having become much addicted to drink, his presbytery had to interfere and get the minister to sign the pledge. This the minister did, and promised that he would never again take a drink, under any pretences whatever. The minister certainly kept his word; but the result was that the sudden reaction proved too much for him, and he took so ill that the doctor had to be sent for. The doctor knew the habits of the man well, and informed him that he must just begin and take his toddy again. This the minister said he could not do, as he had taken the pledge in the presence of the presbytery. The doctor replied that he might get a bottle or two quietly, and that nobody but himself (the minister) and the housekeeper would know anything about it. "Man," said the minister, "my housekeeper is worse than all the presbytery put together, so that would not do."

Too Much Shaving Water. However, it was arranged that the doctor was to bring in the whisky and sugar, and that the minister was to make up the toddy in his bed-room with the hot water he always got for shaving purposes. The result was, the minister got speedily well; and one day on going out, the doctor said to the minister, housekeeper: "Well, Margaret, your master is quite himself again." "There's noe doot about that, sir," she replied; "he's quite well in body, but there's something gone far wrong w' his upper story."

What's wrong there, Margaret? asked the doctor. "Well, sir, I dinna ken, but he asks for shaving water six and seven times i' the day."

"Chawles, Chawles, bring me ah—ah—small—a vewy small piece of beef—ah—about the size of a half a dollah. Do you understand, Chawles?" said a delicate youth to a restaurant waiter. "Yes, sah; in a minute, sah," said the darkey. As he started off a great raw-boned fellow, sitting by, yelled after him: "Waitaw! waitaw!" "Yes, sah. What will you have, sah?" The eyes of all in the room were upon the muscular countryman as he drewled forth: "Chawles, Chawles, bring me a small—a vewy small piece of pork—ah—and one bean. Do you understand, Chawles?"

No DIFFERENCE TO HIM.—Going up Abbott street yesterday, a man saw a boy about eleven years of age, seated on the side-walk, bare headed, in the full blaze of the scorching sun. "Bub, you ought not to sit there!" said the man. "Why?" "Because you'll get all tanned up." "Makes no difference to me whether I sit in the sun or the shade," sadly answered the boy, "mother tans me up three or four times a day any how."

A father, in consoling his daughter who had lost her husband, said: "I don't wonder you grieve for him, my child, you will never find his equal." "I don't know as I can," responded the sobbing widow, "but I'll do my best!" The father felt comforted.

A "charm doctor" recently restored the speech of a Tennessee woman who had been dumb for seven years, and the last seen of him, he was sitting on a rail fence, picking the buckshot out of his head, while the infuriated husband was hustling toward home to reload his gun.

"What comes after T?" asked a teacher of a small pupil who was learning the alphabet. He received the bewildering reply, "You do—to see 'Liza.'"
