YOUR FIRST SWEETHEART. BY EUGENE J. HALL.

She seemed in your boyhood as pure and fai As a snowflake floating adown the air,
And every time you passed her You hung your head as you hurried by.
It made you tremble to have her nigh;
In the tender gaze of her azure eye;
Your glad young heart beat faster.

Her voice was musical to your ear;
Her joyous laughter you loved to hear;
And, while you looked and listened,
You saw her beautiful golden curls,
The envy of all the other girls,
Her cheeks were red and the tooth like pearls

That in her sweet mouth elistened In the district school-room, you loved to look At her fair, young face o'er your thumb-work book—
How sweet and good you thought her.
When the teacher turned his back awhile

It made you happy to see her smile, As you slyly passed across the aisle The apples you had brought her

She said she loved you. You probably smiled, And even fancied, the' but a child, You could not live without her. Timid and few were the words you said, When you drew her home upon your slad— You ate your supper, and went to bed, And dreamed all night about her.

You grew to manhood and left the town; She married a farmer and settled down. Your lives were never blended, You toiled and struggled for wealth and far And both of those worldly favors came, And, after many a fleeting flame, Your youthful dreams were ended.

You married, at last, a worldly wife; Then, changes came in your busy life
Your children clambered about your chair, And you were happy to have them there— No other children seemed half as fair; You smiled at their glad faces.

Your little sweetheart has passed away. Tis years since last you parted. For time has changed you. The years have fled The other day, when you slowly read In your morning paper, she was dead, With sad surprise you started.

Your form is bent and your hair is gray.

You dropped your paper upon the floor; You thought of days that would come no Or words you once had told her; And, wiping away a silent tear, You said to yourself: "How strange and que She is in heaven, and I am here; How soon have both grown older."

As she shricked, several guests ran from the first floor, following the host and hostess to the place where the frightened girl stood. "What is it, Elsie?" demanded the lady of the house.

The white-faced trembler was unable to reply, but her shaking hand pointed into the room by which she stood. The host and his wife darted in, followed by the startled guests; and, sitting stark and stiff by the table, they discovered a lady, with her elbow resting upon its damask covering. Her form was slightly inclined to the right side, and her classically molded head was turned over the left shoulder, with her features toward the

The face was calm and pale as marble, the lips were almost the hue of death, and the eyes were glassy and widely distended. She was dressed in a velvet basque, trimmed with ermine, which rested over a watered silk with flowing trail, and the costume was that of the time of Charles II., of England. Around her swan-like neck was a dark ribbon, but the collar beneath was open, as was the upper portion of the front of the basque. The gloves were intact, but the red marks on her wrists denoted that her bracelets had been rudely detached. For a moment the throng stood spell-bound. None knew how to act. But the next instant a young man, dressed as an Italian brigand, sprang forward and seized the wrist of the statuesque figure. This was Dr. Allyre, a young Englishman, who was traveling in the States for pleasure.

"A clear case of trance," said he; "but for the life of me I can't discern the cause. She was as well as any one in the house not twenty minutes ago when she quitted her carriage and came up stairs to arrange her toilet." Numerous expressions of surprise and commiseration followed the declaration. And then, at the doctor's command, the room was cleared, with the exception of two or three elderly ladies, who remained to administer to the relief of the unconscious woman. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling belonged to the upper crust of New York. He was a leading banker and she was a leader of fashion.

On the occasion in question cards had been extended for a private masquerade. Every step had been taken to make the affair one of the most prominent of the season, and none had been invited except those well known to the family. Private detectives were you?" present, and none were admitted at the door except invited guests; it was consequently a serious discomfiture to the hostess to learn, when Mrs. Del Sol-the lady who had been seized with the sudden syncope-came to, that she had been robbed of a diamond worth fifteen thousand dollars.

"Who could have done it?"

The question puzzled the detectives equally with the guests. All present were known and beyond suspicion. The servants were too long in the Sterling employ to be suspected. sides Mrs. Del Sol was in the room. No one was known to have quitted the mansion. And when searched from top to bottom no one was found concealed there. The search took place after Mrs. Del Sol had briefly revived, and stated her loss, but she speedily relapsed into convulsions, and for a long time her life was almost despaired of.

The young doctor labored manfully, and finally his efforts were successful, for the bright blue eves opened again and regarded him with tender thankfulness.

I never experienced such a dread before. It seemed as if my back-bone was a mass of congealing icicles. I gazed around me, but at first could discover no one; to my own belief I was alone, and I endeavored to shake off the accumulating horror. I laughed at my terror, but I thought that I should die when the laugh was responded to by a hollow mocking echo; the next instant I felt a cold hand laid upon my bare throat, and turning. I beheld a tall figure standing by my right shoulder. He wore a heavy slouched hat. He was dressed in the costume of a cavalier, his cloak shrouded his tall form somewhat, but in the face, which bore the ashen hue of death, I beheld the counterpart of my deceased husband's. His left hand grasped the curtain near the door; his right, with the forefinger somewhat elevated, seemed to warn me not to speak. * * * * * * The shock caused by the apparition, or the masked burglar, as the detectives called and proclaimed it to be, caused Mrs. Del Sol a serious illness. In fact, the lovely widow barely escaped brain fever through the attention of Dr. Allyre. Perhaps a more serious disease was the means of cure. If so, the doctor never announced the fact until the cure was complete. The detectives worked the case high and low. All the pawn-shops in the city were examined. The numerous ball-costumes were visited, but strange to relate, no traces of the diamonds could be discovered at the former; nor at the latter had any cavalier costume been loaned on the night of the masked ball at Mrs. Sterling's. The more search, the more complicated became the affair; and at last the police were forced to give it up as a bad eyes which were fixed upon the door saw them not. In an instant the doctor recognized that Mrs. Del Sol was in a clairvoyant state, and he startled the ladies with a low laugh, as he rubbed his hands together with infinite satisfaction at the discovery he had made.

"What do you mean, doctor? cried Mrs. Sterling, almost indignant at his want of feeling; "don't you see she's dying?" "Not a bit of it; she's worth a

'Ah!" she said, with a smile, "I have foiled you, and you did not get them after all."

She moved quickly to the hearthstone beneath the mantlepiece and knelt slowly down.

She passed her hand along the rug and inserted it in the folds of the carpet, near the right stanchion of the mantel. When she withdrew it something glittered in the gas-light. What was the surprise of all to behold the missing diamonds.

This was the theory of Dr. Allyre: Mrs. Del Sol was a woman of strong ikings and dislikes. Hers was a spirit of most loving nature. She had been forced to wed Del Sol to please her parents, but had never loved him. He had proved of an uncommonly jealous disposition, and, as subsequently turned out, threatened to haunt his wife after death if ever she married another. Being extremely superstitious, this threat worked on her brain until it threw her into the coma state' in which she hid the jewels, and subsequently had been driven almost in-

Recreation.

Recreation of some sort is absolutey necessary to relieve our minds and bodies from too constant attention and labor. Indeed the use of wisdom consists in tempering our recreations. There are some so rigid, or so timorous, that they avoid all diversions, and dare not but abandon lawful delights, for fear of offending. These are hard tutors, if not tyrants to themselves; whilst they pretend to a mortified strictness, they are injurious to their own liberty, and to the liberality of their Maker.

Pleasure and Profit.

Pleasure is generally work. seek relief from the daily routine of life when we seek pleasure; we merely wish to change for a time our employment. The change of itself is the attraction. The man who gets his living by hunting sees no particular sport in it, for to him it is business; when he wishes rest he puts his gun away, and with it all thought of game. The professional man, confined to the city nine months of the year, no sooner gets into the country than he hangs his equipments over his shoulder and woeds.

A red squirrel will kindle his enthusiasm at once, and he will blaze away with a keen sense of pleasure. We go to the theater for amusement. A great play is on the boards. This is its fourth week, perhaps. We enjoy it intensely; we live among the life-like scenes, and go home refreshed. To us the theater is the fairy palace where we procure a new stock of cheerfulness for our every-day life. We forget the actor .- That play has become a nuisance to him; thirty-two times he has struck the same attitude. and he is heartily tired. He wishes people would get sick of the play, so that he may have a change, a new part. When he has a "night off," it is a pleasure to him to sit at home with his family in quietude, away from the glare and glitter of the theater. Thus it is in everything, even that noble institution-marriage. When a man is "courting," ing" is a pleasure; but after he is married he cares nothing about it; it is supposed to be his business then. so he slights it as much as possible. Boys work about as hard for pleasure as any other class of human beings. Ask a boy to cut a half-cord of wood and he will think it is mighty rough; but he will kick football until he is bone aches, and call it "glorious fun!" to be lugged into the house for firewood you would see every boy, with axe in hand, chopping wood for dear

Suppose young ladies were compelled by law to do so much work every day, said work or labor to consist in carryper, and placed at the base of the spinal column of the wearer, do you think they would do it or endure it? Not much, my innocent friend. They'd rebel and cry, "Tyranny; O, mon-strous brutes!" But they do it now for pleasure or appearance, or both. Suppose again that gossipy women were obliged to call at so many houses every other day and retail just so many stories about their neighbors. do you imagine they'd do it? No. they'd die first, and proclaim themselves martyrs to unjust laws with their last breath. You see, having received the name work, it is no longer a pleasure. I might multiply illustrations indefinitely, but perhaps without profit. This day's profits are great, as the absconding cashier of a bank said, Temple. Of course 'twas Mr. Fogy. Every one who doesn't run wild with loss often thinks of them. I once heard of a man who married a woman The following paragraph from the by the name of Loss.

Consumption.

BY DR. V. CLARENCE PRICE.

My experience has proved that Pulmonary Consumption is produced in a great many instances by a primary affection of the liver, and is, generally speaking, one of the principal causes for its so frequent prevalence in this climate. Nine persons out of every ten in this western country suffer more or less from a deranged state of the Liver, (arising from sudden changes, malarial influence, &c.,) which in its early stages does not interrupt them in their daily pursuits, therefore allowed to go on from year to year and convey the disease direct to the lungs.

The necessity under these circumstances of those who suffer from an affection of the liver resorting to proper treatment for relief as early as possible cannot but be apparent to all. We do not wish to be understood that a primary affection of the liver is invariably the exclusive cause of pulmonary consumption. Many other causes may exist favoring such results, as hereditary disposition, malformation, narrow chest, asthma, catarrh, throat affections, and the result of acute diseases, as fever, pleurisy, inflammations, injuries to the breast, etc. The direct action of dis-eases upon the lungs, in ordinary cases, in the first instance is debility. The patient soon looks pale and wan, the blood has left the surface of the body—the powers of the heart become diminished and rendered incapable of throwing the blood to the surface except when the heart becomes so completely gorged as to produce reaction, as witnessed in hectic fever. The heart beats rapidly, pulsation often high; it appears like a struggling to keep alive the circulation. No free volume of blood is thrown either to the skin or lungs. Under these circumstances it is impossible that the blood should become decarbonized, hence its depraved character is constantly increasing, becoming less able to sustain either the muscular, nervous or glandular systems. The ulcer upon the lungs to waste away until they can no longer perform their office, and death closes

If the lungs are weak they are liable to expand and contract sufficiently to force the blood from them to the heart as fast as the heart throws it to them; hence the arteries, veins, and capillary vessels become filled and extended with blood; in consequence of which the lungs become swollen, and there is not sufficient room in the chest to expand, hence shortness of breath or difficulty of breathing. When the lungs are thus distended with blood, upon some slight exertion as coughing, some of their small vessels become ruptured and blood is discharged from the starts, with gun in hand, for the mouth, called "bleeding of the lungs." When the lungs are diseased, their whole texture is weak-and in this state the injury to be created by inhaling tubes, cannot but be evident to all. By the use of the tube the lungs become highly inflated with air, and their cavities widely distended. The distention and consequent compression by their mucous tissues and membranes, lorce the blood from them back again to the heart, by which means the lungs are relieved, and should the lungs have sufficient strength to stand the violent action of the inhaling tube the patient may be made to feel better. But > ly, the blood vessels may be ruptured, and serious mischief follow. Various gasses, vapors, etc., have from time immemorial been inhaled with but trifling benefit. The principles and practice we adopt for the cure of Pulmonary Consumption are in accordance with the views above set forth. It requires that the blood charging the lungs should be induced to quit them, that it should be induced to circulate in its natural channels upon the surface of the body; free circulation in the hands and feet be established; a determination from the lungs into the system must be brought about, not only for a short time but for a length of time, and until you can, by the use of internal medicines, render the blood healthy and allow the lungs to recover sufficient strength to enable them to perform their office. It is the weariness of the lungs which produces the difficulty, and this cannot be overcome whilst the accumulations of blood in the lungs are constantly exhausting their energy and rendering them still weaker. They must be releived from this accumulation or Consumption ulcerate, or the blood too thick to flow free-cannot be cured. Do not linger, trusting to an uncertainty, until strength is exhausted and the disease becomes so firmly fastened as to prevent those means, which, if resorted to at an earlier period, might have restored to health.

I have made my visits regularly for years, and will be for consultation upon all diseases of the lungs, throat, heart, nerves, blood, etc., on my next visit at Niles, Reading House, during Sunday and Monday, the 12th and 13th of December.

Borneo Weddings.

This is the way the matrimonial knot is tied in Borneo: On the wedding day the bride and bridegroom are brought from opposite ends of the village to the spot where the ceremony is to be performed. They are made to sit on two bars of iron, that blessings as lasting, and health as vigorous, may attend the pair. A cigar and betel-leaf, prepared with the areca nut, are next put into the hands of the bride and bridegroom. One of not long ago. These prophets are humbugs, as Mr. Fogy said after hear the heads of the couple, and in a long ing female stump-speakers at Tremont | address to the Supreme Being calls down blessings upon the pair, and implores that peace and happiness may attend the union. After the heads of the affianced have been knocked against each other three or four times, the bridegroom puts the prepared leaf and the cigar into the mouth of the bride, while she does the same to him, whom she thus acknowledges as her husband.

Saving Seed Corn.

The experience of the past has taught farmers a lesson they do not always heed-the importance of saving the seed corn early in the fall, and protecting it from influences which destroy its germinating qualities. How few there are sufficiently particular in this respect; often they risk a crop of corn upon the neglect of the outlay of a single day's labor in saving the seed. Poor seed may germinate and grow under favorable circumstances, but for a steady and vigorous growth in all conditions, from the time it is planted, the seed must be of the best quality. It is a dangerous experiment, in a season like the present one, to leave seed corn to dry upon the stalk, after the blades have been bitten by the frosts. It can, in this case, neither grow nor ripen, but must dry out. If the drying process is not steady and rapid the germinating qualities become impaired, and cannot be relied upon for seed. The finest, largest and best ripened ears should be selected, tied into pairs by a few husks left for the purpose, and hung in the sun long enough to become dry, unless exposed to a sufficient degree of artificial heat. This latter plan would be a good one; an abundance of smoke would form a coating for the kernels and make them less susceptible to climate influences. If farmers will pursue this plan they will be a thousand times better paid for the time occupied than in almost any other work upon the farm. When well seasoned it may be put in a dry place, with a full assurance of an important beginning the next spring for a crop of corn. It is very difficult to put this valuable article out of the way

The California Farmer says that a favorite and rather a new kind of mash for horses is coming into use, two quarts of oats, one of bran, and half a pint of flax seed. The oats are first placed into a stable bucket, over which is placed the linseed; add boiling water, then the bran, covering the mixture with an old rag, allowing it to thus rest for five hours, then stir the mass well up. The bran obsorbs, if a portion of either being disposed to while retaining the vapor, and the linseed binds the oats and bran together; a greater quantity of flaxseed would make the prepation more oily and less relished. One feed per day is easily digestible and is especially adapted to young animals, adding to their volume rather than to their height - giving substance to their frame. Prof. Sanson reminds us not to overlook the food, in the nourishment question, in connection with the amelioration of live stock. He considered oats, as generally given to sheep, as objectionable, and approaching the unprofitable; rams generally receive one pound of oats daily, ewes half that quantity. Oats forming an exciting food, are especially suited for rams during the season when they serve, but for hastening the development of young sheep, they only build up the house, not the flesh. Fall Feeding Poultry.

The foraging season is now over, and the poultry will require more feed than they did when roaming over the farm in search of insects during the summer months. Unless they get a liberal supply of feed now, they will not grow and thrive profitably. The young things have enormous appetites now, and it will not do to stint them if we wish to market them at a profit. They need not, and should not, have as much grain as they will eat, or they will soon "cat their heads off." A cheap and good food for them is boiled potatoes mashed and mixed with sour milk and wheat bran. This will keep them growing finely, with a little grain in the evening. We know not how it may be in other sections, but in ours there is a larger percentage than usual of small unmarketable potatoes this year owing to the drouth and bugs. There is no better way of disposing of this sort then by boiling and feeding them to pigs aud chickens. Wherever the supply is sufficient the fowls should have all they can eat.

This food will keep them growing and thriving, and if corn meal, or corn and oats chopped together, be substitued for the wheat bran, will fatten them cheaply and rapidly. -Practical Farmer.

The Cunada Farmer says that this is the way to cure horses of pulling at the halter: "Get a piece of bed cord four times the length of the horse, and double it in the middle, and at the doubled end make a loop, through which pass the animal's tail. Then cross the cord over his back, and both through the halter ring under his chin, and tie both ends of the pull back, the strain will all be on the root of his tail before the halter strap will become tightened, and he will at once step forward to avoid it. After so fixing him a few times in the stable he will abandon any such propensity."

English farmers gladly purchase When is a hen not joking? ful, and not mistake potatoes for the best and cheapest destroyer of insects which invest their plants.

DEATH OF VICE PRESIDENT WIL-

Dispatches from Washington, on Monday, bring the sad news of the death of Henry Wilson, Vice President of the United State. This is the fourth time that the people of the United States have been called upon to mourn the loss of a Vice President. the office having made vacant by the death of Vice Presidents George Clinton, of New York, Eldridge Gerry, of Massachusetts, and William B. King, of Alabama, but in neither case has the loss been of one who has figured so extensively in the management of the government as has Mr. Wilson.

Henry Wilson was born at Farmington, N. H., February 16th, 1812. Owing to the fact that his parents were extremely poor, his education was sadly neglected up to the time that he was twenty-one years of age, having attended school in the aggregate only about twelve months. He had, however, developed strong literary tastes and during the second eleven years of his life read about 1000 volumes which he had obtained from a neighboring library. In 1840 he made about sixty speeches in support of General Harrison, the Whig candidate for President. During the next five years he was thrice elected Representative to the Legislature of Massachusetts from Natick, where he had taken up his abode, and twice a State Senator from Middlesex County. In 1848 he was chosen delegate to the Whig National Convention. In the same year he bought the Boston Republican, which he edited for two years. In 1850-51 he was chosen State Senator and made President of the Senate during both terms. In 1855 he was elected to succeed Edward Everett in the United States Senate, and during his term of office he labored incessantly against the slave power. At the time of the assault on Mr. Sumner, he was challenged to duel by Mr. Brooks, for remarks made about the propriety of the assault, but declined. In 1861 he was appointed chairman session of 1861-2 he introduced the bill abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia. He continued to hold s position in the Senate until 1872, when he was elected to the Vice Presidency, which place he filled to the time of his death. DEATH OF SENATOR FERRY.

Hon. Orris S. Ferry, of Connecticut, died at his home in Norwalk in that State, on Sunday last. Mr. Ferry was born at Bethel, Conn., Aug. 11th, 1823. After graduating from Yale College, he chose the profession of law, and early took an active part in politics. He was elected to the State Senate in 1855 and 1856, and in 1857 was a candidate for Congress on the Republican ticket, but was defeated by 16 majority. In 1859 he was again a candidate and this time elected, taking his seat in the Thirtythird Congress in December of the same year. He served in the war, becoming a Brigadier General. In 1867 he was elected to the United States Senate, and was re-elected in 1873, his present term expiring in 1879. Mr. Ferry was a very able man, whose public service was of much value to the country. The Governor of Connecticut being a Democrat, of course he will appoint a member of that party to fill the place now made vacant, who will hold the position until the next Legislature.

The citizens of South Bend were startled, on Monday afternoon, by the shooting of C. T. Murray, editor of the Herald, by Justice Will. Palmer. When on the way to his office from his dinner he was met by Mr. Palmer, on the stairway leading to the office, and shot, the ball entering the right, just below the collar bone. passing through his lungs and coming out at the back, just below the shoul der blade, and lodging in the side-walk at the foot of the stairs. He was immediately taken care of by his friends, and at last accounts was doing as well as could be expected. At first he was supposed to be fatally shot, but we learn there is now some hopes of his recovery. Palmer was arrested immediately after committing the deed and, the local papers say, not a moment too soon, as an excited crowd rushed after him, and would no doubt have summarily disposed of him if they could have got the wretch from the officers.

Thomas Cottrell, of South Bend, who deliberately shot and intended to kill Carl Sherman, and who has, for a long time, been feared by all who were near him, lest he would commit some desperate act, and against whom no one dared to testify, has been fined the paltry sum of $1, and sentenced to imprisonment in the State prison at Michigan City, for two years. A pretty cheap way of dealing out justice, this!

It is reported that Hickman, who was sentenced to imprisonment for life in the Indiana State Prison at Michigan City, for the murder of the Chihanski family, last spring, has put an end to his punishment by starving himself to death, having lived nineteen days without food of any kind.

Two tramps were sent from Kalamazoo to the House of Correction at Detroit, for four months, for stealing a ride on the cars of the Michigan Central Railroad, last week.

WRITTEN BY BY S. F. MO'OMBER.

Half a century ago, the spirit of enterprise and speculation was as active as now, but the results were not quite so rapid or abundant, owing in the main to the lack of ready modes of inter-communication between distant points. Men were very much the same then as now, and undoubtedly the pioneer was, A. D. 1825-30. animated by nearly the same motives as prompt the speculator in towns of the present day; that is, the ends to accomplish are, or were the same.

ent limits of the town. It seems that in order to the better enjoy each other's society, as well as for personal safety against the attacks of hostile savages. And thus it was that when John Hamilton laid out the original village plat in 1842, there were something like a dozen cabins in this vicinity. At the time Buchanan village was located, Berrien County was being rapidly developed, and as the new town was situated in one of the richest portions of the county and upon the banks of a stream affording an excellent water power and the best of facilities for all kinds of manufacturing, there was nothing remarkable in the fact that the inhabitants looked forward to a future of rapid growth and prosperity. It is true, Buchanan did not escape many of the annoyances and inconveniences incident to the growth of all new towns, and no doubt numerous are the tales that might be related by the early settlers of hair breadth escapes from the wily savages and the privations and hardships of pioneer life, but our space is too limited to admit of the narration of anecdotes, we must confine ourselves to matters of an historical nature only.

Notwithstanding all the many drawbacks, Buchanan moved steadily forward, churches were organized, the Methodists being first, and these avaunt couriers of "the faith" were followed by others, merchants were attracted, mechanics and all the various classes composing the integrals of a town. New additions were laid out, prominent among which were DeMont's in 1846, and ten years later that of honor of inaugurating mercantile pursuits in the place. John D. Ross, of the National Bank, first came to this county in 1834 and engaged in the blacksmithing business, and in 1847 he came to Buchanan and established himself in mercantile business, and has continued to be prominently identified with the place ever since. Mr.

Ross erected the first brick store in Buchanan and was for many years the leading merchant of the village.

The diminutive cabins gave place to more sightly structures, the water power was utilized and manufacturing interests were inaugurated, which also contributed to the growth to such an extent as to nearly double the population in the last ten or twelve years.

Better than all, however, was the fact that Buchanan and her surrounding country contained within itself sustaining force. The soil was of the richest possible character and it was peopled with a hardy and industrious race of men and women who had their competences to acquire and whose

The manufacturing interests of any community are, or should be, of first importance, so we invite attention to those of Buchanan, commencing with

BUCHANAN MANUFACTURING CO.

The manufacture of furniture by machinery has become one of the most important features of the industrial interests of the country, and vast capital, and thousands of men are employed in the various enterprises of this particular nature. And matters to be considered in the inauguration of a business of this kind are varied and numerous. First of all is a knowledge and experience in the business. Facilities for procuring lumber is a matter that should be taken into consideration. Facilities and means for marketing the products, good machinery, experienced workmen, all are requisite to a successful prosecution of the business. A knowledge of the vast timbered regions of Michigan, and a glance through the Buchanan Manufacturing Co's works is convincing proof that all of the above necessary requisites are well represented in this, Buchanan's most important manufacturing enterprise. This enterprise was inaugurated in May, 1872, and a constant increase in the demand for the goods made, which consists of Bedsteads, Lounges, Tables, Stands &c. Their goods when brought into competition with those of other establishments, have ever brought the highest price, which fact may be accounted for by the quality of timber used and the superiority of the work. The management of this enterprise is vested in a stock company with Wm. Pears as president, H. J. Howe, treasurer, and Wm. Osborn, superintendent and secretary, and who is also the A. C. Day. The establishment in question, as regards the facilities for operation, in the way of buildings, machinery, etc., is not inferior to the best in the West. With a large brick structure, affording capacity for the employment of nearly a hundred men, the benefits received to the town are readily observed: The "Original Buchanan Wagon," of which they make a speciality, bears a reputation in market unsurpassed. and likewise in regard to other classes of work. Three large mills, all in constant operation, add much to the extent of business matters. The Buchanan mills, Rough & Pears proprietors, are located in the heart of the town, and are supplied with the best and latest improved machinery, and bears the name of being one of the best mills in this section of the State. The Rural mills, owned by the same parties, are located a short distance from the village, and are of equal reliability with the other establishment. The enterprise is supplied with the best of machinery, and under the management of experienced and practical men, is bound to achieve the utmost success. We notice, on glancing through the establishment, a good stock of goods, made from the best of material, and comprising everything pertaining to the trade. This is an enterprise that should be classed among the manufacturing interests of the place, and deserving of a liberal support. THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK is an enterprise of more than ordinary importance and an extended outline of its career will be appropos to this occasion. Inougurated in 1872 it at once assumed a position in the moneved circles of the State, second to no other of like capital, and stands today an ornament to the town, and a lasting monument of pride to the originators. The President, Mr. Wm. Pears, is an old resident of the place and has been actively and extensively engaged in business matters here for many years. The directory of the pare in point of quality, at least, with institute comprises men of well known probity of character and ample wealth and numbers some of the oldest and most prominent business men of Berpien county. This institution is the direct outgrowth of the private banking firm of Ross & Son, the former being no less personage than John D. Ross, for many years the leading merchant of the place, and the other, A. F. Ross the present cashier of the institution. The earnings of the institution is a matter of pride to the management and equal to those of much greater capital. They have one of the finest banking offices in the State, which for beauty and convenience is unsurpassed and supplied with all that is necessary to render the institution safe and secure to its patrons, and under the present efficient management, we bespeak for the First National Bank of Buchanan a long and prosperous future.

THE DRY GOODS HOUSE of Redden & Graham, our next place of observation, is a commendable feature as regards the commercial interests of the place. A business community is made up of the various classes of enterprises necessary to the wants of the public, and there is probably no feature of more actual importance, as regards the public wants, than the dry goods store. And in the establishment in question the bill is filled in every particular. The stock is complete, the goods of superior quality, and the apartments of the store superb. Established here four years here eighteen years ago, and the present firm of Redden & Graham has been in existence for the past seven

The Kinyon is also engaged in market proprietors, who have been residents of the place for many years, are well and favorably known, not only in business circles but as citizens; and the honorable and square dealings at all times has made the house of Binns & Rose one of the most popular in Berrien County.

THE DRY GOODS HOUSE

of S. P. & C. C. High, although of quite recent organization, has nevertheless stepped into prominent notice in business circles, and bids fair to become a formidable rival to the best establishments of Berrien County. Here the stock differs somewhat from other similar enterprises, in as much as dry goods and notions are made an exclusive speciality. The stock, which is an entirely new one, presents an attractive appearance, and indicates not only good taste in the selection of goods and the arrangement of the same, but also experience on the part brick structure, is one of the most of the manager. Mr. C. C. High is well known among our citizens as a gentleman of good business qualities, and with their excellent opening display, we bespeak a future attended with success:

H. J. HOWE has been identified with the business matters of Buchanan for the past fourteen years, and as we find him to day at the head of a large, well appointed mercantile establishment, we are justified in the assertion that his efforts have been successful. The stock here is of a general character. Dry goods groceries, boots and shoes, clothing, hats, caps &c. being fairly represented Mr. H. is an old resident of Buchanan, well and favorably known to the public; and many an other could be spared from the business circles of the town better than he.

Hats, caps, clothing, boots and shoes are as essential as food and drink, and the traffic in the same has therefore become as staple as the sale of flour, sugar, tea, &c. And the firm name heading this paragraph, as the representatives of that particular class of goods, assume a position in business matters not only useful and commendable, but an enterprise that ranks in extent and appearances with the best establishments in the county. In brief, they carry a first class stock of clothing, furnishing goods, boots and shoes, hats and caps. Mr. L. P. Fox is an old resident of Buchanan, and his son, G. W., and upon whom the principal management devolves, is a native of the place, well and favorably known to all.

S. L. ESTES, as a dealer in ready made men's and boys' clothing, assumes a prominent attitude in the commercial interests of the place, and a word as to his rela tions with the public will be appropos to this occasion. Mr. E. has been a resident of Buchanan for twenty years past, ten of which have been devoted Previously the lumber business was aleading feature in matters claiming his attention. To-day we find him with a first class stock of goods and a standing with the public, of which no man need feel ashamed.

THE BOOT AND SHOE BUSINESS. especially the custom trade, has an able representative in the person of Wm. D. Thomas, Mr. Thomas, who is possessed of many years' practical experience, has been located here for a year and a half, and a constant growth in his business, not only demonstrates his ability and worthiness, but is another evidence of the general spirit of enterprise manifested in the business matters of the town. Mr. T. will soon add a complete line of readymade work, when his establishment will be a formidable competition to more extensive dealers.

THE BOOT AND SHOE BUSINESS, as conducted by G. W. Noble, is a commendable feature, as regards our business matters, and if perfection is attainable in that particular line, we find it here. The stock which is complete, and comprises goods from the best makers in the country, will comthe best establishments of southern Michigan. The sale of the Buell boot, manufactured at Waterville, N. Y., is a special feature, are custom made, and known throughout the country as the "boss" goods in the market. Mr. N. is a live business man, and during the past nine years of his business life in Buchanan, has demonstrated the boot and shoe trade, also the sale of hats and caps, a success.

HORACE F. STRONG, manufacturer of boots and shoes, has been established here for the past thirteen years, and has built up an extensive and remunerative trade. Possessed of long practical experience in the business, and an extensive acquaintance throughout this section, his business has increased from year to year, until his facilities for doing work are unsurpassed. The sale of ready-made goods, gloves, mittens, &c., is also a prominent feature. This enterprise adds much to our commercial importance, and we can but wish the proprietor increased success.

C. H. REA the leading saddler and harness maker of Buchanan, claims for a few moments our attention. For twelve years Mr. Rea has identified himself with the business interests of Buchanan, and none have better deserved the success that has attended his efforts in business matters. We find him with a large and complete stock of saddles, light and heavy harness, trunks, valises, and in fact all that goes to make a first class establish ago, it stands to-day at the head of ment. J. P. BINNS & CO., of the grocery and bakery business, represents a prominent feature in business matters, the omission of which would leave a breach impossible to supply, as regards the estimation of public sentiment, at least. This enterprise, under the present management for the past two years, is an old established house, and a well known land-mark to all citizens of the place. A good stock of groceries and crockery are observed, and as regards the facilities in the bakery department, which is replete with all that goes to make up a first class establishment, the public will sustain the assertion that thereis no more popular or reliable place of business in Buchanan.

S. & W. W. SMITH are among the leading representatives of the grocery and provision business of Buchanan, and as a matter of course entitled to a foremost position in this review of the commercial interests of the town. This house established originally, July 1874, as Smith Bro's. & Co., and recently changed to the present, has ever assumed a leading place in the ranks of trade. Both gentlemen are experienced in business matters, and Mr. W. W. Smith especially, has been identified with the interests in Buchanan for several years. Their stock is a complete one, large and carefully selected, and with a store 90 feet in length, filled to the utmost capacity, presents a front equal to the best establishment in the county, and a leading feature in the business matters of the town.

THE MAMMOTH STORE

of Smith & Son is, in every respect, what the name would indicate, and as regards the grocery and provision interests of the place, occupies a foremost position. The present enterprise was established about six years ago; but the proprietors have been identified with the business matters of the town for many years. Mr. S. Smith has been a resident of Buchanan since 1847, and for a number of years made one of the most efficient of village marshals. In the inauguration of the mammoth store, where may be seen one of the largest and most complete assortments of groceries, crockery and glassware in Berrien county, the town has secured a very important addition to her business interests, and the public a desirable place of patronage.

THE HARDWARE HOUSE of Geo. Churchill is an extensive establishment, and fills quite an important position in the business matters of the town. This House was established about twenty-five years ago, and as one of the oldest in the place has become well known to the public. The stock which consists of all kinds of hardware, stoves, tin, sheet iron and copper ware, jagricultural implements, etc., is a good one. Mr. C. is a practical business man which fact has contributed largely to his past success.

S. A. WOOD

is a dealer in hardware, stoves and tinware, and being a practical tinner has, notwithstanding the fact of being established only since April last, a future outlook of the most flattering character. In 1859 Dr. E. S. Dodd came to Buchanan a practicing physician, and in two or three years later commenced the manufacture, in a small way, of his now popular remidies, namely: Dodd's German Balsam, Liver Pills and German Tonic Bitters, without any effort on his part in the way of advertising, but solely on the merits of the preparation, a demand was created at home and has constantly increased from year to year until to day we find them doing an extensive business, which reaches all over the west and north westren country. During the past year they have also established a complete drug establishment and added a printing press and greatly enlarged their facili ties, necessities of the rapid and increased demand for their goods. Dr. D. is known as a reliable gentleman, and a physician standing high in the

of A. F. White, is a leading feature in the business interests of Buchanan, and worthy of more than a passing notice. This house was established by Wm. Osborn about twelve years ago. For the past four years Mr. White has been at the helm and today we find a store possessing all the elements of a first-class establishment both as regards extent and quality of the stock of school and blank books, stationery and fancy goods are also represented. This is an enterprise that would do credit to the larger cities.

O. E. WOODS & CO. are the representatives of a popular enterprise in the drug line and deserving of an extended notice in this connection. This house, although an old established one, has been under the present management only about two years, but has under the supervision of Mr. Woods, a complete and experienced druggist, taken a foremost position in the business matters of the town. The stock is complete chanan has become noted for the manwith all that goes to make up a firstthe corner of Front and Main streets, are represented, and all of which have is one of the best in the place, and is been more or less successful. Mr. C. will be found a pleasant gentleman to deal with, and as his stock a good class of goods in all departments will be found a desirable place of observation.

IN THE CUSTOM TAILORING

business, S. W. Eply is the pioneer in the place. For sixteen years Mr. E. has been catering to the wants of the public in his line, and has established a reputation commensurate with his ability and unsurpassed by the best establishment in the county. If experience and a constant practical application to the business of the past forty years is any criterion, Mr. E. should be accredited a foremost position among the craft. Mr. Eply is possessed of every facility found in the largest establishment for doing business, and it affords us pleasure to commend the gentleman to the public as a reliable and competent business MRS. > > MRS. E. A. DEVINEY is a representative of one of the leading millinery establishments of Buchanan, and a nessessary spoke in the great wheel of our business interests. For six years Mrs. D. has been catering to the public wants in her line, and judging from appearence the results of observation of a resent visit, her career as a milliner has been one of mutual benefit to both herself and patrons. To say the least she has a superb stock of goods and we are assured that they will be sold as low as in other first-class establishment. MRS. LOU D. BUNKER, the representative of an establishment possessing many attractions for the ladies especially, form a link in the chain of commercial enterprise, not only indispensible to the public wants, but also a desirable addition to the business interests of Buchanan. Nearly all the time for the past six years Mrs. B. has been identified with the millinery and dress making business of this town and although the enterprise in question was but recently inaugurated and is in the engagement of a good trade. We find her with a nice stock of goods, and also making the sale of domestic papers patterns of which she is the sole agent, a leading feature.

In the present instance, the comparison is productive of the most gratifying results. The Dunbar is in keeping with the best features of the town, a hotel of modern and first class accommodations. A large three-story brick structure, with rooms neatly furnished, and tables par excellence; and so long as under the management of "mine host," Charley, and L. S. ("Peg.") Lambert, who, by the way, is a prominent and indispensable personage, and whose presence adds much to its popularity. will ever be a favorite resort with the traveling public.

C. W. SMITH keeps a first class livery and feed stable, a feature, deprived of which, the business interests of no town would be complete. April last Mr. S. stepped into his present business. Taking the concern under the most unfavorable circumstances—stock run down, and the tendency to decay stamped upon everything. Mr. S. commenced at once the work of recuperation, making changes for the better, until to-day we find a new order of things. His stock is in good condition, his carriages and buggies stylish as well as substantial, and with the best location and feeding facilities not excelled enterprises that help to make up the list of our business interests: Richard & Bates, manufactures of clothes bars, etc., quite an extensive business, and as foundryman and machinist, B. T. Merrill, post-master, also quite extensively engaged in the nursery business, are all worthy of notice. There are, in addition to these, two meat markets. another saddlery and harness shop, barber shops, etc. The professions are all well represented, and we can boast possession of men of talent. Last, but not least, we allude to the newspaper, THE BERRIEN COUNTY RECORD, the only paper published in the place, is a large eight column folio, possessed of the largest circulation of any paper in the county, and is therefore an excellent advertising medium. THE RECORD office is supplied with steam cylinder press, large variety of material, and the facilities for job work of all kinds is not surpassed in any country office in the State.

of more use in a family, especially where there are children, than a good medical book-one fully adapted to the wants and comprehension of parents and the people generally. Such a work, we are pleased to say, is now being circulated in our county. Who has not heard of Dr. Gunn, the world renowned author of the old work,

"Gunn's Domestic Medicine?" Here by the same author. Do you want a physician in the house—one that you can rely on at all times? Then get

Dr. Gunn. Do you wish to escape sickness or preserve the health of your family? Get a copy of this work.

Do you wish to curtail your doctor's bills? Would you like to inform your health, disease and the constitution, laws and operations of your own physical system? Then get this work, for we know of none so well calculated to give all this information. A new feature has lately been added to the work, which, we think, is alone worth the price asked for the entire volume.

It is styled a "Guide to Diagnosis," and is peculiar to this work, being found in no other book of the kind now before the public. It is a novel and ingenious contrivance, by the aid of which any one can readily "diagnose" a case of sickness, or, in other words, tell from the symptoms what ails the one who is sick. An eminent physician recently remarked: "Too much cannot be said in praise of this "Guide." Enough to say that it completely meets the objection so often and so truly brought up against all previous works of the kind, that "they can't tell what the matter is." The work is designed to make every man richer and happier who studies it .- It is well adapted to relieve the woes and sufferings of humanity. Besides the medical knowledge which it contains, it abounds throughout with sound philosophy, true practical wisdom, and the most wholesome Christian counsel.

The author is a genuine philanthropist. How much suffering and pain might be avoided if the plain and simple rules of this book were generally observed! Here the young and inexperienced mother is directed at every step how to manage her child in sickness as well as in health. Every delicate and afflicted female has the symptoms of her disease clearly explained, and she is pointed to the sources of relief without telling her physician her infirmities. The book contains, in fact, a whole library of Medical Knowledge. Physicians have not hesitated to recommend it, and many even to rely on it as a wise counselor with whom they might consult in difficult cases. There is not;

within the compass of our knowledge, another volume of like size that contains such a fund of valuable and practical information. The work is not for sale in book stores, and can only be had of the agent, Mr. J. A.

Rudduck, whom we are pleased to recommend as a genial gentleman.

He is now taking orders for it in this

The Evening Nors, now in its third year, is the acknowledged great newspaper success of the decade. Established just on the eye of the financial panic of 1873, in a city containing four other daily newspapers, and papers too among the ablest in the west, it has in this short period, and under these adverse circumshort period, and under these adverse circumstances, by sheer force of energy, snap and spirit, won for itself a circulation far exceeding that of all its Detroit contemporaries combined, an immense popularity throughout the State, and a sound financial standing such as any paper three times its age might envy.

It has an actual circulation (October 1876.) of over 16,500 copies. Of these, about 8,000 are taken in the interior towns and villages of Michigan, as far west as Niles, and north to Ludington and Traverse City. Wherever it is once taken it rarely loses its foothold.

The Evening News is independent in politics.

Few papers in the country present all the news of the day in a more racy and readable shape, everything dull, prosy and tedious, being rigidly excluded from its columns. Trivial pass, while really important events secure all the attention that the largest and costliest sheets could give them. Thus, the Evening News was the only Michigan newspaper to send a member of its own staff to Philadelphia to report on the progress of the Centennial, and it will be the only Detroit paper to maintain in Washington the coming winter, an exclusive correspondent detailed from its own staff.

No Detroit paper gives more faithful attention to market reports, although less voluminess them in the larger journals. Improvement consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the

In view of the Centennial celebration, the Presidential election, and the financial and other great questions which will agitate the country, the year 1876 will be one of peculiar interest, and one in which the intelligent citizen should take a daily newspaper if ever.

Dear Sir:—My wife first became lame nine years ago. Swellings would appear and disappear on her hip, and she was gradually becoming reduced, and her whole system rotten with disease. In 1871, a swelling broke on her hip, discharging large quantities, and since that time there are several openings. Have had five doctors, at an expense of $125, who say nothing will do any good but a surgical operation. July 16, 1873, he writes thus: My wife has certainly received a great benefit any one offends me, I'll never forgive from the use of your Discovery, for she him," says one. Well, if you do not was not able to get off the bed and was you will never enter paradise, that's not expected to live a week when she commenced using it, a year ago. She has been doing most of her work for over six months. Has used twenty bottles, and still using it.
