So in the evening, while Eleanor and Amelia were "primming," as Jell styled it, she crossed the field to the house of her bosom friend and confident, and did not return until she was sure the caller would be gone. Her sisters were full of new topics.

"And just to think, Jell," said Eleanor, "he asked papa if he had no other daughter, and when papa said yes, but that you were at a neighbor's, I actually thought he seemed disappointed; but of course it was fancy;

After drinking, the stranger introduced himself, and abruptly inquired if Jell was not Miss Evans, and, on her acknowledging her identity, he said he had met her sisters, but there seemed to be some fate against his becoming acquainted with herself, as when he called she was, out, and on Sunday she remained at home. Then they talked of various things until school time, and, since he was there, main and see some of the exercises.

Thus it came to pass that Eleanor, looking from the door about four o'clock, saw Mr. Landreth and Jell walking up the lane. She returned, however, before tea, with her hair arranged in somewhat better order, and a white rose at her throat. After this Mr. Landreth : managed to drop in this pleasant circle quite often-very often, in fact. And Mrg. Evans puzzled herself considerably as to which of her daughters attracted him. He turned Eleanor's music, criticised Amelia's drawing, and discussed "Sartor Resartus" with Jell. If he took Eleanor riding in the morning, he was quite sure to walk with Amelia in the afternoon, and just as sure to meet Jell coming from school and persuade her to go rowing. School was over, and her two eldest sisters had gone for a short visit. The house seemed lonely, and the day passed slowly; but evening arrived finally, and with it Mr. Landreth. And Jell was glad that it was too dark for him to see what he might have seen there, and that none but he and the oriole swinging in its nest in the walnut heard the reply. John only held her hand fast, and they sat there in silence, until he said:

"Do you know when I first loved you, Jell?"

He drew her up close to himself and smoothed the hair back from her wonderful white brow, while the ache in the breasts of both grew heavier and heavier. The hour of parting came -all too soon for those two young, loving hearts. The clock was striking two as he held her in the parting embrace, and kissed her white, trem-

She was a short, fleshy woman with red hands and a face that showed much fat under the ky. eyes. He was a slim man with a pale face, partly obscured by the smoke from a brier-wood pipe, which he nonchalently held between his teeth, as he leaned with his back against the counter, and asked the butcher if he ever saw times as hard as they were this winter. She was prodding a small steak with a fore-finger-doubtfully prodding it, as if there lingered a suspicion in her heart that it was not as tender as the suave butcher stood ready to affirm on oath. She looked hesitatingly over a pile of pork chops, lingered for a moment on a roasting piece, and finally compromised on two pounds of beef liver and a quart of beans. These were deposited in the basket after being weighed under her keen supervision, and the twain started out.

"Liver, Maria?" he asked. "Yes," said she; "the steak was as tough as my old shoe, and the pork was fat enough to grease a back-stoop. teeth in and out again without crackit-no bones and scraps like beef and

Bret Harte on Death Rates.

Bret Harte was lecturing in Pennsylvania a short time ago. At one of his appointments he felt very much depressed. It is a peculiarity of humorists, we are told, to be unaccountably melancholy and gloomy at times. Harte was in this mood now. One of the committee went in back of the scenes to see him, and the depressed humorist welcomed him as a gleam of unusual good sunshine. They shook hands, Harte earnestly and the committeeman decorously,

"Mr. Harte," he said gravely, "you will find this an unusually healthy city."

"Ah!" said the pleased humorist. The death rate is only one "Yes. day." At this juncture Harte took the committeeman by the arm, and hurriedly asked: "Is he dead?" "Dead!" ejaculated the committee man. "Who dead?" "Why, the man for to-day," the grave reply.

The committee man stared with all his might into the immovable face of the lecturer. "Isn't there a clerk here, or registrar, or coroner, or something like that, of whom you could find out

"Why, yes, I suppose so," slowly eplied the committee man. "Would you be so good, then, as to find out, and before I commence the lecture, if possible, whether that man is dead? If he is dead, then I am all right, for I am to leave the city early to-morrow morning; but if he isn't dead I cannot help but feel uneasy

The $7,500 man at once bought an interest in the grocery house by which he was employed, at the same time keep ing his former position, his experience and capital realizing an increase of $3,000 or $4,000 per annum. This was not enough, however, to satisfy his ambition, and in two or three months he found it expedient to sell out to his partners, who gladly paid him $7,500 for his interest. In six months he reached his bottom dollar and was in search of a situation. For a time he was employed about a ticket-scalping office, and afterward traveled for three wholesale houses, never retaining a position longer than a month. Business men eyed him with something bordering on suspicion, and at last, overcome by his misfortunes and drink, he determined to end his mortal career, and a night or two ago he was trying to buy morphine and arsenic at several drug stores. His efforts in this direction were unsuccessful, for the drug clerks heartlessly turned a deaf ear to his pathetic appeals for an agent to help him across the River Styx, and his demise has not yet been announced. It is presumed that he has decided to take the slower but equally certain path to the other shore. He has only to shorten the intervals between drinks to accelerate his speed and achieve

· Leaf Photographs. A very pretty amusement, especially for those who have just com pleted the study of botang, is the taking of leaf photographs. This very simple process is this: At any druggist's get a dime's worth of bil chromate of potash. Put this in a two ounce bottle of soft water. When this becomes saturated—that is the water has dissolved as much as it will -pour off some of the clear liquor into a shallow dish; on this float a piece of ordinary writing paper till it is thoroughly moistened. Let it become nearly dry in the dark. It should be of a bright yellow. On this put the leaf; under it a piece of soft black cloth and several sheets of newspaper. Put this between two pieces of glass (all the pieces should be of the same size), and with spring clothespins fasten them together. Expose to a bright sun, placing the leaf so that the rays will fall upon it as nearly perpendicular as possible. In a few minutes it will become brown but it requires from half an hour to several hours to produce a perfect print. When it has become dark enough, take it from the frame and put it in clear water, which must be changed every few minutes, till the yellow part becomes perfectly white. Sometimes the venation of the leaves will be quite distince. By following these directions it is scarcely possible to fail, and a little practice will make

If pork barrels have become musty or have had rusty or damaged pork in them, they should be thoroughly purified by putting in lye or brine water, or lime and ashes with water, and then thoroughly scrubbing with a broom. Beer kegs are sweetened by burning a little sulphur in them, and we have no doubt that by igniting sulphur, and turning the empty barrel over it so as to catch the sulphur fumes, it would sweeten the barrel better than anything else. Sheep have abundant protection against cold in their fleece, but these serve no protection against rain and snow. In truth, they serve to hold the moisture, which makes them uncomfortable a great length of time. Sheep do not require expensive buildings for their protection, but they need sheds that have a tight roof, a dry floor, and walls that will keep out the driving snow. The farmer who neglects to provide these loses in feed, flesh and fleeces.—Rural World.

The question is often asked at what time in the day fruit should be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better it is, and the later, the worse. In hot weather. many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion, then declines in power with the decline of the day, and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes, owing to the presence of the saccharine matter: The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.

You can be gracious and winning and lively, and yet repel personal liberties. Some gentlemen can never do anything for you, never offer a courtesy nor show an attention, without touching your hand, taking you by the shoulder, or getting hold of you in some way. They are not men of genuine delicacy and reverence for women. They are fond of ladies' society, but they do not make women better, nobler or purer. Look out for the man who wants to make a "sister" of you. What right has he to use all a lover's freedom and intimacy of intercourse, and give you only a thousandth part of his heart? Such a man has usually a great many sisters. Your caresses and affectionate familiarity are worth a great deal more than he gives you in return. Frank, friendly and helpful you may be, and yet keep a maidenly reserve of your favors. And beware of the man who talks love to you, and so claims a right to caresses perfect. The photographs, if well and familiar freedom, yet never asks taken, are very pretty as well as inyou to marry him. A lover, who never means to be a husband is a mean man. He pretends not to believe in engagements, and so does not bind himself in any way, but expects from you all a lover's privileges. You

Quite a number of the local journals of New York talk of pushing forward Senator Conkling as the candi date of that State for the Republican nomination for President; though whether the party in New York will decide to present the name of any candidate from that State in the Republican National Convention it is still too early to predict.

Mr. Lamar was a member of Congress before the war, but with most of the South went heartily into the Rebellion. Since the war ended he has shown great readiness to adapt himself to the situation of things, and withal will make as good a Democratic Senator as Mississippi could produce.

MICHIGAN SHIP CANAL.

A convention of delegates from Allegan, Saugatuck, Plainwell, Kalamazoo, Augusta, Bellevue, Comstock, Ypsilanti, Eaton Rapids and Galesburg met at Battle Creek, Jan. 4th, to discuss the feasibility of a ship canal across the State, via the Kalamazoo River, Charlotte, and thence to some point near the head waters of Lake Erie. Local committees were appointed to raise money for a preliminary survey of the route, to procure facts, statistics and signatures to a petition to Congress for an appropriation. Some short speeches were made by several of the delegates and the following resolutions drawn and unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, The question of cheap transportation has become one of prime importance, as involving the in terests of the producers, and consequently the interests of all classes:

WHEREAS, The proposed Michigan ship canal forms one of the great links in the chain of prospective water-ways connecting the great West with the extensive markets of of the Atlantic board and of Europe, and opening to the future access to market of the vast productions of the country in the Mississippi valley; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the construction of a ship canal across the lower peninsula of the State of Michigan, uniting the waters of Lake Michigan with the waters of Lake Erie, we believe to be fully practicable, and that the construction of such a canal would largely conduce to the prosperity of the people, affording cheap and easy transportation of the products of the West.

Resolved, That we fully concur in opinion with the report of the commissioners of Michigan, made in 1838 that a canal can be constructed throughout the entire distance, and at as reasonable an expenditure, taking the whole line together, as works of a similar nature in any other section of the Union, and that an abundant supply of water may be produced at all seasons at a moderate expense.

Rescived, That in order to demonstrate to the producing states the importance and feasibility of this canal, we recommend that a committee of two from each locality here represented be appointed to procure facts and statistics and signers to a petition asking Congress to make an appropri- holding the Indians in check. > Evidently the small force on the Pacific coast cannot be cut down, with the memory of the Modoc War still fresh, and with Alaska to take care of. The force on the Northern frontier, stretching from Maine to Puget Sound, is as small as can be already. Its duties are to help prevent smug-gling, take care of all the frontier forts, and preserve order all along the enormous line it covers. The force on the Mexican frontier is now too small—so small that it cannot suppress Mexican brigandage, having to guard the line from California to the mouth of the Rio Grande. The force on the Atlantic coast is now so small as to afford only about a corporal's guard to each of our many important forts. A ments is this very contingency. The new Southern rebellion could again, as country at large has no sympathy in 1860-1, seize a large number of our forts which are without proper force to guard them. In the Southern States we have twenty-five hundred men, certainly a small force, which is every little while occupied in aiding the United States marshals to capture illicit whisky stills in the mountains, or in putting down riots in wild parts of the country, and whose presence is necessary in certain places and States to prevent bloody race conflicts. There remains the Indian country, with less than eleven thousand men, and with the constant threat of a general Indian war to guard against, and with the Black Hills business to settle, by force, if necessary, and the whole line of frontier settlements and mining country to guard. From what part of these assignments can a reduction be safely made ?—Detroit Post.

Congress authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds of three kinds,—five per cents, four and a half per cents, and four per cents, -and to sell and dispose of the same at par in coin, and with the proceeds take up outstanding six per cents. The amount of five per cents was limited to five hundred millions of dollars, all of which have been issued. There being no sale at par in coin for the other bonds, none have been issued. Senator Morrill now proposes by his bill that the Secretary issue and sell at not less than par in legal-tender notes the four or four and a half per cent bonds,-the legal-tender notes received in exchange for the bonds to be considered finally redeemed and to be canceled. The second section of the bill provides that all contracts made after the 1st of January, 1878, shall be payable in the legal-tender of gold or silver unless otherwise provided in the contract, and that all National Banks shall be required to hold in coin, as part of their reserve, after

This Territory is preparing for admission as a State. The convention now convened will prepare a constitution and get everything in readiness for the coming change of condition. The opposition to the admission of this Territory has been bitter and stubborn. It is about ten years since the people of Colorado first presented themselves and asked to be made a State. Congress once passed an act measure as will defeat not only that granting their prayer, but President Johnson vetoed it. Another enabling act was passed, and the people voted against changing their territorial form of government. The last Congress passed an act favorable to admission, and it is probable Colorado will become a State during the Centennial. A bright, beautiful, healthy Territory, with inexhaustible mineral wealth, abundant pasturage, high mountains, and lovely parks and plains, and a people intelligent and active, there is a future of no common promise awaiting the new State. Then the navy yards must be all closed, and then mechanics and laborers thrown out of employment, and help cut down mechanics' wages by seek ing other employment. Then, as the army is cut down, so that it will be too small to protect the West from Indians, another poor man's hope will not be struck down, for it will not be sale to push out into the West as a pioneer settler. Besides, without army protection, as Gen. Morrow says, miners cannot explore or open new mining fields; and so the production of gold and silver, through the labor of this class, will be diminished. In short, the main plan of the Democratic economists is to save money by taking work and wages, or necessary protection, from the poor and laboring classes; but, at the same time, keeping up the high salaries to Democratic Congressmen and their appointees.

January

When these Democratic Congressmen were fishing for votes, before their election, they told the people that the election of a Democratic Congress would benefit the laboring man, by giving him increased work and wages, and by reviving industry everywhere. It was promised that the Government would furnish employment, if necessary, to thousands of needy men. But, now those loud promising Democrats have secured their election, they propose to "economize' by taking from the laboring classes all the work and wages possible, and by increasing largely the number of men out of employment, so as to still farther reduce wages, -Detroit Post.

The True Army Figures.

The Army and Navy Journal has been carefully figuring over the War expense of items which are clearly not military, such as river and harbor improvements, the weather reports, buildings, surveys, etc., it finds the sum of twenty-three and a half millions of dollars remaining, charged to the army proper. But of this sum twelve and one-third millions are expenditures by the Quartermaster General, including transportation, etc.: and it says that "it is the enormous hardly be materially reduced so long reduced, it would still have to cover er than at present; hence the cost of transportation would be likely to be increased, instead of diminished. This is shown by the distribution of the army at present, which is such that eighty per cent. of its whole strength is now on the plains and Pacific coast, with all the force we now have in the Indian country, instead of having too

STRUCK Too HARD. - Sylvester Otto, for some time an employe in Needham & Wilson's mill, at Dayton, was killed on Friday afternoon last. He had been receiving as pay for his work, orders on Redding & Smead for flour. A. J. Glover, the miller, instead of allowing him to receive the full amount of the orders, would keep back a part of each to pay for flour received some time before and not paid for. On Friday Otto appeared at the mill with another order for flour, which Glover proceeded to give him, in part, keeping back a por-tion, to which Otto objected, stating that he was in need of the flour and that he must have it, and on being further refused, proceeded to help himself, when Glover struck him over the head with a heavy stick that he used about the mill, and knocked him down. Otto got up and walked home, but feeling sick from the effect of the blow, went to bed and in about two hours he died. Glover immediately gave himself up to Justice Wilson. The next day he was brought before Justice Alexander, of this place, when he waived examination and was consigned to jail to await trial at the coming term of circuit court. The attorneys being dissatisfied with this, took him to Niles, where they were allowed to give bail in the amount of $1,000. The citizens of Dayton are very indignant over the fact of his being released upon any condition.

ELECTION.—On Thursday evening last occurred the annual election of officers of the Buchanan Fire Department. Nearly every member of the company was present, and the utmost good feeling prevailed throughout the meeting. The following officers were elected, with scarcely no opposition: Chief Engineer, George Churchill; First Assistant, G. W. Devin; Second Assistant, B. E. Binns. The above named will no doubt be appointed by the Common Council, at their next meeting. The officers of the company were chosen as follows: David Montgomery, Foreman of Engine; D. Wainer, 1st Assistant; W. P. Wood, 2d Assistant; Chas. E. Terriere, Foreman of Hose; Leroy Dodd, 1st Assistant; C. O. Griffin, 2d Assistant; B. E. Binns, Treasurer; L. S. Binns, Secretary. After the business of the evening had been transacted, the members of the company; together with the members of the Common Council, as invited guests, repaired to Kinyon & Vincent's lunch room, where an excellent oyster supper was served, and to which all did ample justice. The firemen's room in the engine house, has recently been renovated with paint and paper, and now presents quite an attractive appearance, which makes the "boys" feel happy. A new carpet, we learn, is soon to be added. This is as it should be: We have a good, efficient fire company, and their headquarters ought to present an attractive appearance, and be open at all times for their accommodation. Books, papers and magazines ought to form a part of the furniture of the room, thus inviting them to spend their idle moments in their "home" instead of lounging around in stores or perhaps worse places.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for Februry is before us, ahead of all others, and containing, as a Supplement, a fine large-sized steel engraving, after Col. Trumbull's celebrated picture, 'The Declaration of Independence,' the Centennial Gift of the publisher to the subscribers for 1876. The plate is very carefully engraved, with fifty-six portraits, and can be taken out and framed if desired. Besides this costly Supplement, there is the usual steel-plate, and a charming one it is, called, "Snow Birds;" a colored pattern, and more than a score of other embellishments of fashion, &c., &c. "Peterson's" is one of the few magazines that gets better and better the accident on Thursday. He was runnomars a year, postage free, with great deductions to clubs. A GOOD ADVERTISEMENT. - We nothere is a merchant in the town in which the paper is printed, who, whenever a man buys a good bill of goods from him, makes the purchaser a present of the village paper, in which he advertises, for one year, and thus he manages to keep the customer constantly reminded of his business—and he will never forget such a present. Should that man give his customers two dollars in greenbacks or in goods, it might soon be forgotten; but when he is once a week, for fifty-two weeks, placed in receipt of his friend's bounty can any one doubt its being a good way to advertise? This is worthy of imitation by business men .- Exchange.

The Maintenance of Health. The maintenance of health is often nore difficult then its recovery. Vitiated conditions of the atmosphere, unhealthy occupations, extremes of heat and cold, and constant exposure to rough weather, are all so many provocations of disease There is but one sure way of effectually guarding the system when thus subjecting to influences prejudicial tonic and alterative medication, vigor of the body and regularity of its functions. The properties of an invigorant and corrective are happily combined in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, at the same time that it infuses unwonted vitality into the system overcomes all tendency of the stomach liver, bowels and urinary organs to deviate from regularity in the discharge of functions upon which the welfare of the entire physical organization is dependent. Health cannot be more effectually maint ined than by using the Bitters.

Niles Correspondence. NILES, Jan. 10, 1876. Editor Record:—Saturday even ing at 8:30 we were again startled by the alarm of the fire bells, and following the direction taken by the crowd soon arrived at the scene of the blaze, which was located in a couple of barns between Third and Fourth streets. The fire was first discovered in the old stage barn, and was communicated from this to the stable adjoining, owned by Mrs. Col. Fitzgerald. The engines and hose carriages were quickly set to work, but the buildings were of such a character as to make it impossible to save them, and the attention of the firemen was directed to the adjoining property. The wind was blowing very fresh at the time, but fortunately in a direction to make the danger to the dwellings on the west, less than if it were from the east or north. The loss will reach $600. An old shed connected to the stage barn on the east contained three fine Concord coaches worth about $2,500, belonging to the old stage firm of Coffinger & Smith. These were run out into Fourth street and saved. For a time it was feared that the use of the long and not straight some of the churches fronting the fire ditch, If they were low, a certain on Fourth street would burn, and a number of ships would pass through arge spark was seen to alight and remain for a long time upon the roof of Trinity church, but finally went out. About one hour previous to the breaking out of this fire the barn of Mr. Virtue, on Hickory lane, was discovered to be on fire. Separated from this barn by only a few feet and in the rear of Nos. 12 and 14 Oak st., were the stables of M. Pattengell and Dr. E. Cady. These, together with a large number of private dwellings, would certainly have been destroyed but for the timely discovery and prompt action of the citizens in the locality. It seems that a gang of incendiaries are at work in the city, their object no doubt being to get a crowd out and then to commit robbery. The citizens are working up the case and will make it very hot for any one caught at this business. Special policemen were appointed to watch these places Saturday evening in the hopes that the fiends would return to finish the work. During the progress of the last fire considerable exitement was exhibited through the large crowd in attendance by a report that D. C. Johnson had fallen from his barn and was then dying. After several inquiries into the facts of the bushel? case we found that he had fainted, caused by anxiety and his efforts to save his property on the north of the plea of "not guilty." Permission being given, he plead guilty, and Judge Stanfield fined him $1, and sentenced him to the penitentiary for two years.

The Other Side of the Michigan Ship Canal Question. We have given believers in the advisability of digging a ship-canal across Michigan, from the mouth of the Kalamazoo river to some point on the Detroit river or Lake Erie, a fair showing, by printing a number of letters in support of the project.

It would no doubt be a marked-advantage to have a broad and navigable water-course straight across the peninsula between Lakes Michigan and Erie. If the inhabitants of that section had created the State, they would doubtless have arranged to bring this about. All that would be needed is the erection of a couple of parallel ranges of hills and the subsidence of part of the valley between them. But as Nature did not cause this and man cannot, the only way to make the improvement now is to dam the rivers and dig a ditch clear across the peninsula. The ditch would have to be deep enough to float ships carrying from 1,000 to 1,200 tons of freight, for as soon as the improvements on the Welland Canal are finished, the trade of our great inland seas will be carried. on in vessels of that burden. This would require a clear depth of 14 feet. The ditch should be large enough to allow two large vessels to pass each other. If only turn-outs were provided, the delay and consequent expenses would be increased. At least a dozen locks on each side of the summit would have to be built. These, as well as all the rest of the work, would have to be constructed in the most substantial manner possible, for tugs would necessarily be employed in drawing the vessels through from lake to lake, a distance of about 200 miles, and the wash for the paddles would speedily destroy anything but stone walls on the canal part of the route. After the canal and slack-water part had been constructed in this costly fashion, in all the necessary length, breadth, depth, and thoroughness, it would be in constant danger of running dry, especially the very season, midsummer, when it would be most nceded and used. The puddles which are known as "lakes" along the projected course would be hard-taxed at any time to keep the great ditch full, and could not do so when the heat of summer was sucking their waters into the earth and evaporating it into the air. We will, however, suppose that the needed amount of water could be got on the upper levels in the dry season. Would the canal pay? The yearly revenue would have to pay interest on the cost of canstruction and meet the running expenses, including the heavy repairs which every canal constantly needs. The only source of income would be tolls. If these were high, they would defeat their own object by preventing the canal, but we fear nothing like the number necessary to make the investment a profitable one. The extra expenses of towage for so great a distance and the slowness of the navigation and inevitable delay would make many, perhaps most, captains prefer the broad open lakes, where they could go from 8 to 10 miles an hour by steam and pay no tolls to anybody, to where they could be towed only 2 or 3 miles an hour and pay for both this and the privilege of using the artificial course. Not a day would be added to the navigation. The narrow, shallow, still sheet of water in the canal would be frozen before the Straits were closed. The lake season' always exceeds, by weeks that on the Eric Canal. Probably, too, the cost of transportation would not be decreased a penny,—perhaps increased. There might possibly be a scanty saving of time in a passage, but this would be more than counterbalanced by the extra expenses and dangers already catalogued. How, indeed, under any circumstances, could grain be carried from Chicago to Buffalo for less than the water-rates of the past two years, $-2\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 cents per One point remains. Where is the money to come from? This is no time to ask for subsidies from a nation already taxed almost beyond endurance. No subsidy could be got at Washington unless this scheme were joined with a number of others even more impracticable in an "omnibus bill," and the whole thing was then carried through by active log-rolling. This would involve in the end hundreds of millions, and add the same to the national debt. The State of Michigan will not build the canal. No State in the Union could afford to enter into such a dubious speculation. The only reasonable resource is private capital. Who will furnish it? It is not necessary to proceed a step further in the discussion until that question is answered. - Chicago Tri-

Going to Church in 1800

In the biography of the late Rev. Dr. Goodell, veteran missionary and oriental scholar, he gives this picture of the way they went to church in Templeton, Mass., his native place, at the beginning of the century: "The old puritanical horse seemed to know as well as the most pious of us that it was holy time, and stood at the door saddled and bridled, with his head reverently bowed down, as in solemn meditation upon the duties he was expected to perform. My father, with one of the children in his arms, rode before; my mother sat behind on a pillion, and carried one of the children in her arms, and still another child rode behind, clinging as closely to her as she did to her husband. I recollect on one occasion, in ascending a steep sandy hill, the girth of the saddle gave way and there was an avalanche the whole load, father and mother and three children, with saddle and pillion, over the horse's tail plump into the sand-bank. The old rheumatic horse never seemed amazed at anything that might happen, but this time he simply opened his large eyes wider than usual, and wheeling half round looked to see if he could help, us any

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of themselves. A man meets his neighbor, and the first solutation is, "How are you?" or "How is, your health?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well, with the exception of a cold." Most persons lightly regard a cold. Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and retards circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which is quite apt to lead to Consumption. "Ob," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." True, but that cold is really a mild form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course, will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most disagreeable, offensive affections in the catalogue of disenses. The passage to the nose is obstructed, the sense of smell impaired, and there is a disagreeable sensation of pressure in the head. In the more advanced stages there is a discharge having an of fensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can just as well be aured of it? Dr. Soge's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst forms of Catarrh; in fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy which has yet been offered to the public. Many harsh, rritating preparations may, for a time, relieve the urgency of the symptoms, but they do not cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing n its effects, and when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all Druggists.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard: and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color. making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D., State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPA-RATION for its intended purposes."

but few outside of it.

The presidential contest is certain to be the most hotly contested campaign that has been lought since the organization of the Government. The Democratic party, long and justly excluded from power, but encouraged by their successes in 1874, will make a most desperate and determined struggle to get control of the National Government. Believing that the success of this organization would be a national calamity, The Tribune will spare no energy of means or pen to prevent so direful a result. Maintaining Republican principles, such as it believes best for the general welfare, and holding party organization as simply an agency to carry them into effect in the administration of government, it gives to the Republican party an outspoken and hearty, but never blind and dishonest, adhesion. Faults of policy and abuses in administration it will not be slow to point out and seek to have removed, to the end that the people shall be better served. It will labor unceasingly to cultivate such a public sentiment, and to diffuse such general information on all questions of politics as shall lead to a grand and glorious Republican triumph, with H. Dr Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with the laws of experience and evidence to suctain it, does not tear down, makesick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no gages work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no oncouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim, to reason and common sense. We divite the sick, no matter what their allment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogations and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, asconsultation is free. Visits made regularly.
