What Came of a Photograph.

"To morrow. Louisa Lovebird, the dearest friend upon earth, is to come to stay; and we will have such expeditions together. She is very pretty; but you are not to admire her, mind. Her:husband is in India." "Admire her!" I said reproachfully.

"Could I?" "And your photograph—you promised that for to morrow. I declare this is the fourth valse I have given you to-night. But I suppose I must.' daughter," an article which seems to have a mysterious fescination for mankind. She was not exactly pretty, but "so nice," her better favored friends protested. The "only" was enough for me. Her name was Lucy Henwitcher, her father being the reverend of that name.

Forget the photograph for which she had expressed a wish and reserved a place in an album so stout and gorged that it could not be laced or buttoned to! I had sat and sat again to Cameron Skewner for one of his choicest "Cabinet-Minister" size. That artist had taken infinite pains: but at first he could not satisfy himself, and on succeeding attempts did not satisfy me. I sat four times, each result being worse than the one before. The last, however, he declared could not be better; and he went into such ecstasies over his own work that he persuaded me. Yet, on the ground of its being so unflattering, I thought it very doubtful if it could be like. However, he assured me that "it was my born self; that it would be known if it was set up at Charing Cross''—a contingency so improbable that it could never be adopted as a

The morning after the ball I went to receive a copy, which was to be placed on a gaily-caparisoned snow-white steed, which was to set it offin other words, to be "mounted." The effect seemed to me unsatisfactory, and the operator, seeing the shad ow on my face-my own face-humanely came to my relief, declaring that he would have it transferred to one of his "boudoir" mounts, which would give the desired effect, and send it up in an hour.

I had left my likeness on the table in the show-room, and had passed into the operating chamber, being curious about a nervous patient "posed" in front of the instrument, when I observed a well-dressed lady, in a snowy embroidered shawl, standing at the table, with my lately-done picture in her hand. Her behavior was certainly excited. She was a pale, elegant how a particular flower was getting creature, tall and interesting to a de- on, a present from herself. She was gree, with an air of almost pensive romance in her face. She held the picture near, and then at a distance; laid it down, standing up on the table; drew a chair in close, and pored over it-now smiling, now clasping her hands like some devotee. Finally, she raised it slowly to her lips; and printed on it a long, slowly-given kiss, drawing away her lips, as it were, reluctantly. It may be imagined how singularly affected I was at this extraordinary proceeding. I did not, of course, rush out and acknowledge myself as the original; for I was so embarrassed by the situation, that, when she rose, and, with my picture in her hand, advanced towards the operating room, I instantly drew aside and passed out on to the stairs. There I listened. "What is the price of this?" she He explained that it was engaged -was waiting for a "boudoir" mount,

"I don't care," she answered. "I must have it. It shall be mountedin my boudoir. Here is half a sovereign—a sovereign, if you like—"

The operator looked bewildered. "Well, as you are so bent on it, I of suspicion as she saw us thus confiwill send up to the gent; he was here dentially engaged. Hurry to my rooms and wait for what the old romance writers would call "my fair incognita?" I did so; but she never came though I waited for nearly an hour after the time fixed when I was due at Lucy Henwitcher's. I thought of calling at the operator's again; but I did not relish having him as a confidant so, ruminating as I walked, and very distrait at this singular adventure, I betook myself to the place of appointment. My poor mother always said that I had a sly way of my own; and I had read of the late Mr. Wilkes, who boasted of not being more than a quarter of an hour behind the handsomest man. What an adventure! The "only" child received me rather petulantly. Why had I kept her waiting? There was some better attraction, she presumed-some young lady, perhaps? Had I been with Miss Numes, the rector's daughter, whom she knew I admired? I fear I looked a little foolish, and, perhaps, colored. "Where is the picture for my al-

"I don't want boudoir mounts," she said. "I hate them! Ill paste it in without any card at all. Send up for it."
Much confused again at this situation, I faltered out that I would go myself; and hurried away, glad to be released. I knew that my Lucy was | castically. "No doubt. My wishes, of a jealous turn, rendered sensitive by the fact of thinking that she was sought only for her money; and that she was thought to be only "so nice," and not to have personal charms.

My photographer smirked a good deal, but declared it was impossible to furnish another picture before evening. It should be sent up, indeed, about dinner time, dismounted or unmounted; and with that I was forced to be content.

I approached Lucy's drawing-room with a certain trepidation. I heard voices, which relieved me, so went in with a certain gaicty and abandon. These were the words of an "only | There was a white Indian shawl there in." -a tall figure. That face! that form! as they say in the melo-dramas. In short, it was my photographic female, as I might call her.

"My cousin, Louisa Lovebird," said Lucy, introducing us. The Lovebird smiled, and put out her hand. "We almost seem to have met before," she said. "You are quite familiar to me, from descrip-

"Oh, it's nothing, dear," said the Lovebird. "Let's talk of something else."

I saw in an instant that I must be cautious here, or I would peril all my chances. This was a bold, fanciful woman, of whom there were but too many about, to whom the ruin of others was but sport. After all, Lucy was the main, the 'only' chance; so I was determined to be on my guard.

At this moment a female visitor was announced, who was dying to see accordingly taken to the green-house. I seized the opportunity, and stooping over, said hurriedly:

"You must take care, and not be indiscreet. I saw all that this morning. I must own it is flattering, but, unfortunately, it's out of the ques-

She looked at me in haughty astonishment. "What can you mean?" "I mean, you must be on your guard here. Your charming cousin is lynx-eyed, and would put the worst construction on what you do. She suspects something as it is, and is as iealous---"

And she has ventured to insinuate that to you. But I know the reason, perfectly. She never forgave my'being married before her. At school it was the same. Because I had good looks, and she had money, she has always had this feeling towards me. I don't care what she thinks. I shall carry out my own fancies, regardless of her humors."

"But you will be cautious," I said imploringly. "Here, you know-we might meet elsewhere—and——" "Sir!"

Here Lucy entered, giving a start

An Easy Landlord. Daniel Webster was fond of a joke, but generally a harmless or benevolent one. He had, across the river from his Franklin (N. H.) farm, a small piece of sandy, barren land, with a poor house upon it, in which a very destitute family had been living without paying rent. During one of his visits to the place, the good woman expressed her anxiety about being able to remain. She expected to be turned out, and didn't know where to go. She hoped Mr. Webster would not be hard with her. He heard her through, and toldher with great gravity that he knew it was a hard case for her; he wished to consider her case, and didn't wish to be unkind: but he had a great many to provide for. Yesterday, after many abortive attempts to adjourn had been made, about ten minutes after the clock had struck two p. m., he sent one of the pages out and procured a large piece of middling meat, which he proceeded to broil on the coals in one of the large projecting fireplaces of the House. Soon the dinner-suggesting odors of that broiling meat began to spread through the House and salute the olfactories of battling but hungry members, and in less than five minutes another motion to adjourn was made and carried like a shot."

A New Use for Photography.

Dr. Vogel, of Berlin, gives an account of a curious novelty devised by a Paris physician, which may ultimately result in an altogether new and useful application of photography. It consists of a flame burning at an opening made in the head of a drum of some very elastic membrane. Any noise, as by speaking, singing, etc;, sets the membrane in vibration, which vibration is communicated to the flame. If now a rotating mirror is placed behind the flame, and revolved at the proper rate of speed, a succession of intricate figures is thrown upon the wall or a screen, which figures vary according to the sounds emitted. It has been suggested that by employing a flame of high chemical intensity, the figures produced by it in the mirror might be photographically, reproduced upon a properly prepared sensitive surface passed before the mirror at the idea a little further—that is to say, should it be possible to interpret the images thus continuously produced—we will then be able to take down speeches, addresses, etc., photographically, instead of reporting them stenographically, as is now the custom.— Harper's Magazine for May.

Optical Deception.

Years ago, when we went to school

in a little weather-beaten school-house,

what exciting contest there used to be over the teacher's favorite exercise of having the scholars estimate with the eye the size and weight of different objects in the room. He would hold up his cane, and have each one tell how long it was, and it was a lucky child that could come within half foot-of the right length. He would measure an urchin, and then have the scholars try to reproduce the measure on the wall. He would mark off an inch, or a yard in some conspicuous place, and then see how near anybody could come to chalking the same length upon the blackboard. And it was astonishing how wide astray one would go. The fact is, our eyes deceive us ridicuously, even upon the commonest things. At first thought, which would you say was the taller, a three-year old child or a flour barrel? and could anything but actual measurment convince you that the same child is half as high as a six footer? There is an old saying that a child two years old a few experiments in measurment one | a new dollar and cost no work. can easily believe it, but not before.-Boston Transcript.

A writer residing in Vermont, when alluding to the best breed of horses for service of all sorts, says that "the horse" that answers most nearly the wants of farmers is the "horse of all work," as he-will have all kinds of work to perform. Such horses must be medium in size, courageous, but kindly in disposition, with speed enough to make good roadsters, with early maturity and hardiness to enable them to perform the work of the for market. They must have style, beauty, substance and speed enough to make them good driving horses for gentlemen. The more nearly they come up to all these requisites the more they will bring, and the better they will remunerate the raiser and eighteen feet in length by five feet breaker. The reason Vermont horses class of horses than any others. As it costs so much to keep a span of horses, a great many men besides farmers do not feel able to incur the expense of keeping one or two horses

Farm and Household.

As the season is coming for graft ng, I would like to say one word about it. Almost all farmers, or others that own land, have lots of scrub apple-trees on their land that bear nothing but cidar apples, and some of them not fit for that. There are a great many of that kind of trees in the fields and pastures and beside the roads, that if trimmed and grafted this spring would begin to pay in about three years. Now, readers, will you do it? And please urge others to do it. I think it would look better to see the trees in five years from now full of good nice winter or fall fruit, besides making the land worth more that they stand on. Almost any one can learn The Frankfort (Ky.) Yeoman tells to graft in one hour. The grafts can an instructive story of the method embed out any time now and put into moist sand and kept in a cellar. A for he will take more pains. Good wax can be made in this way: One pound of rosin, six ounces of beeswax, five ounces of tallow; melt all together, and when a little cool turn into a pail of cold water, then oil the hands and work it like molasses candy; then it is ready for use: It works just right on a warm day.—N: E. B. in Mass. Ploughman.

> Scientific men say that ozone is one of the most powerful agents in purifying the atmosphere. Indeed, many chemists and scientists say that localities infected with malaria may be freed from it by cultivating flowers and plants possessing green leaves and aromatic odors.. Of this class are mint, bergamot, mignonette, hyacinths, heliotrope, lemon, etc. Large quantities of ozone are exhaled by these plants and flowers under the heat of the sun.

WINDOWS IN BARNS.—A farmer who has profited by experience writes this sensible paragraph:-"In building a new barn, I would study to put get in, of course not making a greenhouse of it, but as many as most folks put into dwelling houses. It is so much better doing the work in a light barn than in a dark one, cattle are more oasily taken care of, and more quiet and better contented in a light place than a dark one."

> CLEANING KNIVES.—A small, clean potato, with the end cut off, is a very convenient medium of applying brick dust to knives, keeping it about the right moisture, while the juice of the potato assists in removing stains from the surface. > ARRANGING FLOWER BEDS. - A few simple rules for the arrangement of flower beds may materially enhance the effect produced. Among these are the following: Avoid placing rose colored next to scarlet. orange, or violet. White relieves any color, but do not place it next to yellow. Orange goes well with blue, and yellow with violet. Rose color and purple go well together.

TO CLEAN THE INSIDE OF ANY TEA Por.—If the inside of your tea-pot or coffee pot is black from long use, fill it with water, throw in a small piece of hard soap, set it on the stove and let it boil from half an hour to is half as tall as it will be; and after an hour. It will clean it as bright as

> A light that will burn on or under water has been made, to be used upon the sea. A small box, weighted at one end, and ending in a small copper wire at top, is filled with phosphate of calcium. When thrown overboard, it stands upright in the water, and on removing the nib, water penetrates the box, and phosphureted hydrogen escapes through a perforated tube in brilliant jet of light.

If you wish to sleep well cat sparngly of early suppers. Avoid all arguments of contested subjects near night, as these are likely to have a bad effect upon one who is troubled with sleeplessness at night. Avoid having too much company. Many persons become so excited with the meeting of friends that sleep departs for a time. There is probably nothing better, after cultivating a tranquil mind, than exercise in the open air. By observing these simple rules, sleeplessness in the majority of instances may pe wahlly cured:

postal rates is announced by its author and champion to have for its object to make the Postoffice Department self-sustaining. That is certainly a very laudable purpose, if it is practicable, but there is considerable room for doubt as to whether the proposed end can be obtained by the proposed means. Under the present law the postage on second class matter, which consists of publications regularly mailed to subscribers, is two cents a pound for one kind and three cents a pound for the other; while that on third class matter, which covers all transient matter except letters, is sixteen cents a pound. Letters pay three cents a half ounce, or 96 cents a pound. Now the Postmaster General figures that he makes a profit upon the letters carried, but loses twice as much on his second and third class matter. One would say that if his statement is correct the heaviest loss would be that upon second class matof the matter carried in the mails, and is carried for one-eighth the amount charged for third class matter, to raise the postage on second class matter. But Mr. Hamlin not only refuses to do this but actually purposes to reduce the postage on this class, while he keeps up the full rate on third class, though the Postmaster General testifies that the doubling of the charges upon third class matter by the legislation of a year ago has esulted in an actual reduction of the revenue of the department.

Reckoning the rate of postage at one cent an ounce, this ught to leave a fair profit to the Sovernment, to be allowed for the deficiency on more expensive routes. In view of these facts it would seem that the Postmaster General's estimate of losses on third class matter, for which he shows no data whatever, must be wide of the mark. In his calculations he sets down the total cost of trans-$32,126,414.58, and the receipts at | call." What shall we do with our $25,213,865.84; this leaves a defi-ciency of $6,912,548.74, which must be accounted for somehow. It is accordingly distributed in this fashion: After allowing a profit of $4,212, 390.70, which is claimed to be made on letters, or first class matter, a loss of $6,993,023.91 is charged to the account of newspapers and periodicals sent to subscribers from publication offices—second-class matter—and a loss of $4,113,915.53 is charged against transient printed matter and on which to base this calculation, it must be regarded as a mere estimate. The fact is that, with so wide an area of country over which our postal service is extended, and with the Postoffice Department constantly enlarging our postal facilities, it is impossible to make the department selfsustaining at the present cheap rates of postage. In a small and thickly populated country like England the Postoffice Department may even become a source of revenue, but if it is made so in the United States we must either greatly increase the rates of postage, or cut off the service altogether from the more sparsely settled sections of the country. We do not believe that it would be good policy to do either. To increase postage is to levy a tax upon intelligence; to cut off postal service is to discourage the settlement of our vast western domain. It is much better to make up our minds to face an annual deand meet from the sources of nation-

Burned to Death. A terrible case of fatal burning on Friday afternoon, is reported to us from near Terre Coupee. The victim was Peter Reed, aged about 25 years, a son of the late Hormel Reed, of Oiive township. The victim of the burning was assisting a man to burn brush in a field being plowed right west of Blackford's saw mill, south of Terre Coupee station. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon. Reed was observed sitting near a pile of burning brush, attempting to light his pipe with matches, and when next seen he was lying prone in the fire, writhing helplessly in the flames. He was dragged out as quickly as possible, and carried to a small stream of water close by where the work of extinguishing the flames was completed. The unfortunate man was subject to fits, and the reasonable presumption is, that he undertook to secure a brand to light his pipe, and in so doing was seized with a spasm and fell forward into the fire. The appearance which ficiency in the Postoffice Department, he presented on being rescued was of and meet from the sources of national revenue, than to attempt either of his head and the eyebrows were burned close off. THE AMENDMENTS. The people of this State will have another opportunity to vote upon Amendments the State Constitution ber. There has been voting on new constitutions for amendmets of one kind or other, at the elections of 1860, 1862, 1866, 1870, 1874 and at the spring election of 1868, with de-appear unless there shall be further clination to hoard it, there are reasons or a depreciation in the quoted value of greenbacks would lead to it. Greentime, or the latter may rise to 90 or buy up the silver coin with greenbacks and melt the coin into bullion for export. At the same time the disposition to hoard the silver coin will increase in deference to the principle that the inferior currency always floats and displaces the superior. If there is to be a serious and permanent effort to keep silver in circulation (and this certainly ought to be the purpose) something more than the retirement of $30,000,000 or $40,000,-000 fractionals must be accomplished.

There is reason to believe that such provision would remove the danger we have described. If this were the law, sustained by the proper facilities for coining the silver, the effect would be to equalize the value of silver and greenbacks. At all events, the silver would never exceed the value of the greenbacks, as the latter could be exchanged therefor by the same easy process as fractional currency is now exchanged for silver coin; and, if the greenbacks should become worth more than silver, that would not be serious. There is a strong probability that both would gradually and equally appreciate. The decline of the value of silver is mainly owing to its demonetization in Germany. Germany bought £66,000,000 gold ($330,000,000) for new gold coinage and £10,000,000 silver ($50,000,000), for new silver coinage. Prof. Jevons estimates the net demonetization of silver in Germany as equal to £40,000,000 ($200,-000,000), on the theory that £16, 000,000 of the old silver was retained. But the effect of this demonstration was not merely to depreciate the value of silver by throwing $200,000,000 of it on the market, but to appreciate the value of gold by withdrawing $200,000,000 gold from the market.

The effect on silver as estimated in gold value was consequently about the same as if $400,000,000 had been added to the stock of silver bullion, or equal to the product of the American mines for ten years. If, now, there be an American demand for silver for coinage amounting to, say, $125,000,000 (which would be equal to the substitution of silver for the fractional currency and for that amount of greenbacks which were to be retired gradually as the issue of National Bank notes increased), then the value of silver will be gradually enhanced until it will probably become worth 95 cents in gold. Greenbacks would go up with silver as long as they should remain redeemable in silver. To reduce the amount of outstanding greenbacks to $300,000,000 by this process would require, perhaps, a couple of years. During this period there would be no contraction of the currency, and at the end of that time the greenbacks and silver would probably be worth 95 cents in gold, which would add 7 or 8 per cent. to the value of the currency, and impart confidence and stability to all classes of business, and these are the essential preliminary steps before there can be only at the general election in November, as at present. This amendment One of the most salutary influences Herewith I return Senate bill No 172, entitled "An act fixing the salary of the President of the United States" without my approval. I am constrained to this course from a sense of duty to my successors in office, to myself and to what is due to the dignity of the position of chief magistrate of a nation of more than 40,000,000 of people. When the salary of the President of the United States was fixed by the Constitution at $25,000 per annum, we were a nation of but 3,000,000 of people, poor from a long and exhausted war, without commerce or manufactures, with but few wants and those cheaply supplied. The salary must then have been deemed small for the responsibilities of the position, but justifiably so from the impoverished condition of was desired to cultivate in the repu lic. The salaries of Congressmen under the Constitution were first at $6 per day for the time actually SEC. 2. Congress-> salaries from time to time since, until finally they have reached $5,000 each per annum, or one-fifth that of the President before the salary of the latter was increased. No one having knowledge of the cost of living at the national capitol will contend that the present salaries of the Congressmen are too high, unless it be the intention to make the office one entirely of honor, when the salary should be abolished, a proposition repugnant to our Republican ideas and institutions. I do not believe the citizens of the Republic desire their servants to serve them without a fair compensation for their services. The sum of $25,000 does not defray the expenses of the executive for one year, or has not in my experience. It is now onefifth in value what it was when fixed by the Constitution in supplying demands and wants. Having no personal interest in this matter, I have felt myself free to return this bill to the House in which it originated with my objections, believing that in doing so I meet the wishes and judgment of Refunding the Debt.

There is great danger that Congress will adjourn without taking any step to provide for the further prosecution of the business of refunding the national debt at a lower rate of interest. There are outstanding United States bonds to the amount of $985. 000,000, bearing 6 per cent. interest in gold, amounting to nearly $60,-000,000 annually. In 1870, Congress authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to exchange $500,000,000 of 5 per cent. bonds for an equal amount of 6 per cents., and $300, 000,000 of 4 1-2 per cents. and $700,000,000 of 4 per cents. for equal amounts of 6 per cent. He has exchanged the 5 per cents. for the 6 per cents. at an annual saving of $5,000,000 for interest. The Secretary has applied to Congress to increase the amount of 4 1-2 per cent. bonds to $500,000,000, and to make the bonds payable thirty days after date; at that rate and at that time he thought he could make the loan. Such an exchange of bonds would be equal to the reduction of the annual interest $700,500,000. The successful negotiation of this loan would prepare the way for the exchange of the remaining 6s into 4s. The saving of interest on the $500,000,000 of debt at the rate of $7,500,000 a year, would amount in thirty years to $225,000,000, or equal to 45 per cent of the principal of the bonds.

There will be no trouble, as far as is to strike out the clause prohibiting fluctuate and continue uncertain in the Legislature from granting licenses value, as they would slowly but stead-

The nervous, weakly invalid does not enjoy life, but merely "drags out exist-ence," as the phrase is. Unfitted for the active pursuits of life, and incapable of partaking of its pleasures, to which health alone can give zest; disinclined to social intercourse, and a prey to melancholy the valetudinarian is indeed an object of pity. Yet there is nothing in all this that cannot be remedied by that genial alterative tonic and nervine. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which supplies deficient stamina, braces the nervous system, and overcomes those bodily irregularities to which nervous weakness is most frequently attributable. Diseases of the kidney and bladder, imperfect digestion and uterine troubles are fertile sources of debility. Their eradication, however, becomes a matter of certainty when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are systematically used for that purpose. The Bitters likewise annihilate and prevent fever and ague and other debilitating febrile complaints of a

From present indications, the year 1876 s about to witness a very extensive move ment westward, from the Middle States The class of emigration promises to be very different in character to that of past years, and we shall watch with interest the result. In previous years numbers have started westward with the chrimerical idea that the possession of 80 or 160 acres of land would bring them fortunes even though they lacked both the means, and the knowledge to cultivate a farm with profit. These men have failed in the West, just as they were bound to fail anywhere, whereas, others who had small capital, some experience and the will to toil, have n nearly every instance been successful, and some of them in a high degree. It is of this latter class that the bulk of this years' emigrants consist of-men who know the difficulties attending the founding of a new home, and men who go to meet and overcome those difficulties. The matter of selection is so important, however, in these days of Railroad Land Grants and seductive advertising, that the intending emigrant will do well to make his selection in person.

We are pleased to see that the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad Company, recognizing the importance of this, and feeling confident of the excellence of their Iowa and Nebraska lands, are inviting inspection and offering special aid to this end by the adoption of low rates for round trip tickets, from Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, all Junction points on the Chicago Burlington & Quincy Railroad, to Lincoln, Nebraska, and other points. Moreover, they offer to refund the fare to purchasers of land on six years! credit, and one-half of it to those who buy on ten years' time. This is a move that bears the ring of true metal, and we take pleasure in calling attention to the fact. The lands of this company are well and favorably known, and for agriculture or stock raising they will compare with any lands in the mar-Full information can be obtained by addressing the Land Commissioner; B. & M. R. R., Burlington, Iowa.

Success Upon Merit —If there is an instance upon the records of our country where an article of American manufacture has made its way to universal favor solely upon its own merits and without extraneous aid, it is that of D. B. DeLand & Co.'s Best Chemical Saleratus. It has only to be sold in one place, and it is demanded in another; and so it has gone on increasing in favor until the products of the extensive Chemical Works of D. B. DeLand & Co., at Fairport, Monroe Co., N. Y., are now immense. This article is made only at these works by a process known only to the proprietors, and it is better for all purposes than Soda. FROM GALIEN.

Times here are better. The handle factories are employing almost their full corps of men. Our merchants appear more cheerful, and the farmers say wheat in general looks good, and that they have their oats ground ready for the seed.

Our school year of eight months closes next Friday, when the postmaster can be bored by questions, and the station agent by boys jumping on trains the entire day.

An accident happened here last Sunday to Thomas Gallivin, an employe of the Michigan Lake Shore Railroad, who attempted to jump on a freight train which was pulling out from this station. He missed his hold and was struck on the shoulder by the hind end of the caboose, bruising his shoulder, straining his back, and doing him some internal injuries. He is doing well at present. KNOTT.

NILES, April 24th, 1876. EDITOR RECORD:—In sending you this communication we have some doubts about suiting the Niles Democrat, but as we are determined to furnish truthful facts and not attempt to cover them up for fear of offending a certain few, we will fire away, regardless of the protest of the mogul Horn, and trust that we shall not be compelled to emigrate West under the same pressure that was employed to coax this loyal (?) editor to hasten from the South to the North.

Friday morning last we were pained to hear of the sudden demise of the estimable wife of the Rev. Dr. Robert McMurdy, rector of Trinity Church of this city. Mrs. McMurdy was enjoying her usual good health up to 8 o'clock Thursday evening, whon she was stricken with apoplexy, and al- | cery store at Buchanan. It is to be gaged, she succumbed to the fell destroyer, and died at 10:20 Friday morning. She had been a resident of Niles but a few short weeks, but had succeeded in gathering more than the usual number of friends, to whom she had become very dear, and by whom she will be greatly missed and mourned. Her funeral occurred Sunday, from the church.

This same day proved a very bad Friday for us. In the evening, as the Earl Zouaves were marching up Main St. to the Armory of the Niles Rifles, a team owned and driven by Geo. Swagart, became frightened by the music and ran away. When at the corner of Main and Front Sts. they came in contact with Chas. Harter's buggy and smashed it. One of the runaway horses was thrown in the gutter, and getting one of his legs under the walk it was broken and the horse had to be killed. He was a very good one and was valued at $200. Four car loads of machinery have arrived for the new Woolen Mills and are being put in place. The buildings of the company at the dam are quite extensive. The main building is 40x

100 feet, three stories and basement, also a large and commodius strre room, boiler room, etc., all of brick. They expect to be running soon, and will employ from 120 to 150 hands, and will no doubt add not a little to our wealth and rapidly increasing population. We understand a large Flouring and Grist mill is talked of on the east race. Should it be built we will then have six large and extensive mills of this description. Friday morning at two o'clock, fire was discovered in a couple of barns, belonging to B. Y. Collins, on Mill Street. They were both consumed, entailing a loss of four or five hundred dollars. About one hour after this the fire bells were again clanging for a fire in the house of P. Ellis, 97 State Street. It was unoccupied at the time, and this, as well as the one before, was clearly the work of incendiaries. The city fathers have a standing reward of $300 for any one caught in this business. Only a few nights-before, a beautiful cottage residence owned by J. R. Crandall, on Oak St., was set on fire and burned to the ground. Saturday evening at 8:30, the bells announced another blaze in West Niles, the same being the residence of J. Kingsfelder, and being out of the fire district, the engines did not reach the scene, and the house was destroyed. Some of these house and barn burners will surely get nabbed some time, and then for a hanging bee. You bet! The street commissioner is busy with a large force of men and teams, cleaning up the streets and alleys. which is truly good. The city street sprinkler made its appearance Saturday, which is also good, as his services were very much There is great scrambling for the city offices at the disposal of the Council, and the session this week will undoubtedly be very warm. Will give you result next week.

are polygamists as well as Mormons, as one claims six and the other three better-halves left behind in Mormon "Light-Running Domestic," busily land. This town has been blessed with revivals this winter and spring, as about every faith, with the exception of the followers of Mahomet, have been represented here by a longwinded revival. We now await the Right Rev. Robert Ingersoll to come along and top them all off with his free theology.

It is announced that the Michigan Central will, on and after the first of next month, sell round trip tickets to the principal eastern cities at greatly reduced rates.....On Wednesday ast. a house of Mr. Green's, occupied by Mr. Vohes and another family, took fire from the chimney, but was extinguished before serious damage was done. Frederick Wolf, of Pipestone, had the great misfortune on Tuesday last, of having his barn, with three hundred bushels of wheat four hundred bushels of oats, three hundred bushels of corn and a quantity of hay destroyed by fire.

BY JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. Of all the myriad moods of mind That through the soul comes throughng. Which one was e'r so dear, so kind,

So beautiful as Longing?
The thing we long for, that we are
For one transcendant moment,
Before the present, poor and bare,
Can make its sneering comment. Still, through our paltry stir and strife, Glows dawn the wished ideal, And Longing moulds in clay what life Carves in the market real; To let the new life in, we know

Desire must ope the portal; Perhaps the Longing to be so Helps make the soul immortal. Longing is God's heavenward wili With our poor earthward striving: We quench it that we may be still Content with merely living;
But would we learn that heart's full scope,
Which we are hourly wronging,
Our lives must climb from hope to hope,
And realize our Longing.

Ah! let us hope that to our praise Good God not only reckons The moments when we tread His ways,

But when the spirit beckon-! That some slight good is atway wrought Beyond self satisfaction, When we are simply good in thought, Howe'er we fail in action

Directions for Living Well. Keep good company or none. Never be idle. If your hands cannot be successfully employed, attend to the cultivation of the mind. Always speak the truth. Make few promises. Live up to your engagements. Keep your own secrets, if you have any. When you speak to a person look him in the face. Good company and good conversation are the very sinews of virtue. Good character are above all things else. Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts. If any one speak evil of you, let your life be such that no one will believe him. Drink no kind of intoxicating liquors. Ever live (misfortunes excepted) within your income. When you retire to bed think over what you have done during the day. Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper. Small and steady gains give competence with tranquility of mind. Never play at any game of chance. Avoid temptation; though fear you may not withstand it. Earn money before you spend it. Never run inte debt unless you see a way to get out again. Never borrow if you can possibly avoid it. Do not marry until you are able to support a wife. Never speak evil of any one. Be just before you are generous. Keep yourself innocent if you would be happy. Save when you are young to spend when you are old. The way to get credit is to be punctual. The way to preserve it, is not to use it much. Settle often; have short accounts. Trust no man's appearances —they are deceptive — perhaps assured to abtain credit. Beware of gaudy exterior. Rogues usually dress well. The rich are plain men. Trust him, if any one, who carries but little upon his back. Never trust him who flies into a passion on being dunned; make him pay quickly, if there is any virtue in the law. Be well satisfied before you give a credit, that those to whom you give it are safe to be trusted. Sell your goods at small advance, and never misrepresent

them; or those whom you once deceive will beware of you the second time.

Deal uprightly with all men, and they will repose confidence in you, and soon become your permanent customers. Beware of him who is an office seeker. Men do not usually want an office when there is anything to do. A man's affairs are very low when he seeks office for support.

Trust no stranger. Your goods are better than doubtful charges. What is character worth, if you make it cheap by crediting all alike; Agree beforehand with every man about to do a job, and if large put it into writing. If any decline then quit—or be cheated. Though you want a job ever so much, make all sure at the onset; and in case at all doubtful, make sure of a guarantee. Be not afraid to ask it, it is the best test of responsibility; for if offense be taken,

you have escaped a loss.

A maxim often quoted is, "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing, drink deep or taste not," etc. From this I entirely dissent. Undervaluing not in the least the worth of thorough acquaintance with every subject in regard to which knowledge is sought, I still maintain that even imperfect knowledge is better than none. All our knowledge is imperfect. There is no subject, in morals or in law, the extremest depths of which a man has ever sounded. The unknown greatly transcends the known. But even partial knowledge is power, if, so far as it extends, it be accurate. -[Judge Wm. Strong.

The old saying, that 'It takes a genius to comprehend a genius," has doubtless some truth in it, but if followed out practically it will lead to utter confusion. For a man to comprehend a work of genius, he certainly must possess some power correlative to that power which created it; but no man, were he even the mightest genius the world ever saw, can fully comprehend a great work at the first dash, any more than he can create a great work without working at all. Indeed, if we consider closely, all worth is exactly measured by the amount of intellectual and physical activity it has called into play. Do not mistake our meaning; we say physical and intellectnal activity, not conscious exertion .- [At-

THE PRIEST SAID I MUST DIE. THE PRIEST SAID I MUST DIE.

Dr. Rowyer, Dear Sir:—tlaving suffered for years with Rheunctisen, and having about five weeks ago had an unusually severe attack, so that I was unable to get up or more without the most exerciating pane—my plays chartold me that I must die I accordingly called in the priest, who also said I mu twic; be to highbor told me or your KING of Pala, and indured me to try it, and it soon reliaved me, and in three days I was able to be around, and now am well. I would receip recommend your medicine to all who are ufflicted with that panels, used to be leave it to be all, and more than you have recommended it to be Yours with respect.

Dr. Bowyer, hear str:—About the last of September my family were all taken down with Diphtheia. First my little son Matty, for whom I called in a physician who prescribed for him, but he suffered very muce for some time and then died. Afterwards the rest of my children were taken down with the same disease, and were very bad, and hearing throng a friend of our KINST of PAIN I administe od it to them, and it has wonds fully cured them all, for which I am very thankful I would fur her say that I have been all eted with Khumatism for a long time, for which I used your medicine, and it gave me relief almost manantly.

Frazier's Root Bitters. The Best Blood Purifier and Strengthening Medicine the World Produces. They are now used by Millions of People in America, also have found their way to Foreign Lands. The result is Good Health, Strong Constitutions, and Freedom from Disease.

A CARD FROM Dr. FRAZIER. A CARD FROM Dr. FRAZIER.

Having suffered more or less for years with Weakness of the Lungs, and a scroinlous disease which appeared on my face in pimples and blotches, and after decturing with the best physicians, and trying many kinds of advertised remedies (including, Sarsaparilla), without finding my permanent cure, I experimented by compounding roots, using the medicine thus obtained. I fortunately discovered a most wonderful Blood Searcher or Medical Bitters, which not only gave me great relief, but after a few week's time effected a radical cure. I then prepared a quantity of the Root Bitters, and was in the labit of giving them away to the sick. I found the medicine possessed the most wonderful healing virtues, effecting cures of all diseases originating from bad blood or weak-mess of the system, as it by magic. Multiplied cures increased the demand, and the name of Frazier's Root Bitters has now become a househeld word all over the land.

The largest and shrawdest declars in medicines in all creased the demand, and the name of Frazier's Root Bitters has now become a househeld word all over the land.

The largest and shrawdest dealers in medicines in all the principal cities applied for the agency, and I was induced to establish a labratory for preparing my Root Bitters in Cloreland, from which I am now sending out in answer to orders from all parts of the Union, the packages which make countless numbers sharers in this great blessing that came to my knowledge through the visitation of disease,

Root Bitters are strictly a Medical Preparation, such as was used in the good old days of our ferefathers, when people were cured by some simple root or plant, and when calomel and other poisons of the mineral kingdom were unknown. For Scrofula, Consumption, Eruptions, Rhoumatism, Fits, Heart Disease, Dizziness, Liver Complaint, Ridney and Urinary Diseases, Fover and Ague, Dyspepsia, Lost Vitality, and Broken Bown Constitutions, these Root Bitters are universally admitted to be the most wonderful discovery in the world. Their searching, healing properties penetrate every portion of the human frame-For weakly, nervous young men, suffering from loss of memory, etc., caused from abuses in early life, and to delicate females, these Root Bitters are cayeically recommended. No other medicine will care Scurvey, Syphilis, Salt Rheum, Boils, Tetter, Ring Worm, White Swellings, Sore Eyes, Running of the Ears, Ulcors, Fever Sores, Catarrh, Cancerous Formations, Dropsy, Erysipelas, Pluqles, Fiesh Worms, Pustules, Blotches., and all skin Diseases so quickly as the Root Bitters. Root Bitters are benefit of my remedy, and particularly such persons as have given up all hope of ever being cured.

Root flitters are sold by Druggists and at Country Stores at S1 per bottle, six bottles, S5. My large circular filled with certificates of wonderful cures sent free.

"O wad some power the gift to gi's us, To see oursel's us ithers see us.' Behold that pale, emaciated figure, with downcast eye. I ke some criminal about to meet her fate! See that nervous, distrustful lock, as she walks along with a slow and unsteady step. The pink has left her cheeks and the cherry her lips. The once sparkling, dancing eyes are now dull and expressionless. The once warm, dimpled hands are now thin and cold. Her beauty has fled. What has wrought this wondrons change? What is that which is lurking beneath the surface of that once tovely form? Does she realize her terrible condition? Is she aware of the woeful appearance she makes? Woman, from her very cature, is subject to a catalogue of diseases from which man is entirely exempt. Many if these maladies are induc--d by her own enrelessness, or through ignorance of the laws of her being. Again, many Female Diseases, if properly treated, might be arrested in their course, and thereby prove of short duration. They should not be left to an inexperienced physician who does not understand their nature, and is, therefore, incompetent to reat them. The importance of attending e mot be too strongly urged. For if neglected, they frequently lead to Consumption, Chronic Debility, and oftentimes to Insanity. In all classes of Female Dis-
