King Baliol was a prisoner, and England's supremacy was acknowledged by all the Scottish nobles, save the brave and youthful Sir William Wallace, who lived secluded in the glen of Ellerslie, with his beautiful bride Marion, whom he had tenderly loved from childhood. Suddenly summoned to Douglas Castle, a small iron box, left with Douglas by the captive Bailol, was confided to Wallace's care, with the charge:

Do not Face the Light When at Work. Statistics kept by occuliate employed in infirmaries for eye diseases have shown that the habit of some persons in facing a window from which the light falls directly in the eyes as well es on the work, injures their eyes in the end. The best way is to work with a side light, or, if the work needs strong illumination, so that it is necessary to have the working table before the window, the lower portion of the latter should be covered with a screen, so as to have a top light alone. which does not shine in the eyes when the head is slightly bent over and downward toward the work. In the schools in Germany this matter has already been attended to and the rule is adopted to have all the seats and tables so arranged that the pupils never face the windows, but only have the side lights from the left; and as a light simultaneously thrown from two sides gives an interference of shadows, it has been strictly forbidden to build school rooms with windows on both sides, such illuminations having also proved injurious to the eyes of the pupils. We may add to this the advice not to place the lamp in front of you in the evening, but a little on one side, and neglect the use of a shade, so as to prevent the strong light shining in the eyes. This is especially to be considered at the present time, when kerosene lamps, with their intensely luminous flames, become more and more common.—Medical Journal. It Takes Two to Make a Divorce.

A woman on North Hill, being counted out the other morning, after a debate on the question, "Who shall arise and build the fire?" got up and split her husband's wooden leg into kindling wood, and broiled his steak with it. It made him so mad that he got hold of her false teeth and bit the dog with them. She cried until she had a fit of hysterics, and then fillipped out his glass eye, and climbed upon the bed-post and waxed the glaring eye to the ceiling with a quid of chewing gum. Then he took her wisp of false hair and tied it to a stick and began whitewashing the kitchen with it. Then she started off to obtain a divorce, but Judge Newman decided that he couldn't grant a divorce unless there were two parties to the suit, and there was hardly enough left of them to make one. Mr. Jenkins, while elaborately describing the dresses and appearances of Mrs. Haves, has singularly omitted all detailed account of the President's appearance. We may briefly say that he wore a claw hammar coat, cut low in the neck, with a place in the tails to put his handkerchief; white vest; a pair of black, two-legged pantaloons, held in place with a pair of green striped suspenders, with nickel-plated buckles, bearing the well known brand of Raad Brothers, Burlington; low shoes, white socks,

SUNSHINE AND CLOUD.

With every joy we haste to meet, In hopelessness or pride,
There comes, with steps as sure and fleet,
A shadow by its side.

And ever thus that spectre chill
With each sweet hope has sped,
And when the gladden'd soul shall thrill
The stricken heart lies dead!

The poets blow the wreath entwines—What weight falls on the breast!
Upon the sword where glory shines,
The stains of life-blood rest.

So, where the rosiest sunbeam glows There lies eternal snow! And fame its brightest halo throws, Where death lies cold below

Fun Alive.

Last Monday afternoon the eleven Boblink boys surrounded and caught an enormous shaggy, strong-smelling, wicked-looking goat of the masculine gender, turned him loose in Burdock's garden, nailed up the gate, and then went home and then flattened their eleven little noses against the back windows to watch for coming events.

Before his goatship had spent three minutes in that garden he had managed to make himself perfectly at home, pulled down the clothes line, and devoured two lace collars, a pair of undersleeves and a striped stocking belonging to Mrs. B., and was busily engaged sampling one of Burdock's shirts when the servent girl came rushing out with a basket of clothes to hang up.

"The saints preserve us!" she ex-claimed, coming to a full halt, and gazing open-mouthed at the goat, who was calmly munching away at the

"Shew! Shew! Shew! there!" screamed the girl, setting down her basket, taking her skirts in both hands, and shaking them violently at the intruder.

Then the goat, who evidently considered her movements in the light of a challenge, suddenly dropped his old wicked head and darted at her with the force of an Erie locomotive, and iust one minute later by the City Hall clock, that girl had tumbled a back sumersault over the clothes basket, and was crawling away on her hands and knees in search of a place to die, accompanied by the goat, who butted her on the bustle ground every third

It is probable he would have kept hutting her the next two weeks if Mrs. Burdock, who had been a witness of the unfortunate affair, had not armed herself with the family poker and hurried to the rescue. "Merciful goodness! Annie, do get on your feet!" she exclaimed, aiming a murderous blow at the beast's head and missing it by a few of the short est kind of inches. It was not repeated, owing to the goat suddenly raising up on his hind feet, waltzing toward her, and striking her in the small of the back hard enough to loosen her finger nails and destroy her faith in a glori-"ous immortality.

When Mrs. B. returned to consciousness she crawled out from behind the grindstone, where she had been tossed, and made for the house, stopping only once, when the goat came after and butted her head first into the grape arbor.

Once inside the house the door was locked, and the unfortunates sought the solitude of their own rooms, and such comfort as they could extract from rubbing and growling, while the goat wandered around the garden, like Satan in the book of Job, seeking what he could devour, and the eleven little Boblink boys fairly hugged themselves with pleasure over the performance.

By the time Burdock returned home that evening, and learned all the particulars of his arnica-soaked wife, the goat had eaten nearly all the week's washing, half the grapevine and one side of the clothes basket.

"Why in thunder didn't you get him out, and not leave him there to to destroy everything?" he demanded, "Because he wouldn't go, and I wasn't going to stay there and be killed, that's why!" answered his wife, excitedly. "Wouldn't fiddlesticks!" he exclaimed, making for the garden, followed by the entire family. "Get out of here you thief!" he shouted, as he same into the garden, and caught sight of the shaggy and highly perfumed visitor.

The goat bit off another mouthful of the basket, and regarded him with a mischeivous twinkle of his eyes. "You won't go, hey?" exclaimed Burdock, trying to kick a hole in the enmey's ribs. "I'll show you wheth..." The sentence was left unfinished, as the goat just then dropped his head on Burdock's shirt bosom, and before he could recover his equilibrium he had been butted seven times in seven fresh spots, and was down on his knees crawling around in a very undignified manner, to the horror of the family and the infinite glee of the eleven young Boblinks next door. "Look out he don't hurt you!" screamed Mrs. Burdock, as the goat sent him flying into a snow pile. When Burdock had, got his hald head out of the snow, he was mud all over his clothes, and tried to clutch the brute by the horns, but desisted after he'd lost two front teeth and been rolled in the mud. "Don't make a living show of yourself before the neighbors," advised his wife. "Come in, pa, and let him be," begged his daughter. "Golly, dad, look out; he's comin"

a moment later, when the goat's attention seemed to be turned away: Burdock sprang to his feet and followed his offepring's suggestion. He was legging it in superb style, and the chances of him reaching the house seemed excellent, when the fragrant brute suddenly clapped on more steam, gained rapidly, and darting between his legs, capsized him into the ash box.

His family dragged him inside, another candidate for rubbing, arnica and blessed haven of rest. The back of the house had been hermetically scaled, and Burdock now proposes extending an invitation to the melita regiment of Brooklyn to come down and practice marksmanship off the roof, promising to furnish a live goat for a target, and a silver-spated napkin ring as the first prize. The goat still holds the fort.

The Wonders of Blue Glass. It will afford Gen. Pleasanton considerable gratification, says the Austin Reveille, to learn that his blue glass remedy is being thoroughly test-ed in this vicinity with eminently satisfactory results. A friend of ours was induced to place a pane of the material in the front room window. and during that week the roof stopped leaking; the blue rays vaccinated two of the children; and an importunate creditor, while approaching the house to collect a bill, fell down and broke his leg. In another case where it was tried, the head of the family informed us that he played pedro all night without being stuck, and his mother-in-law died the next morning. Among the numerous instances which have come to our knowledge of the beneficial effects produced by blue glass, may be mentioned that of the president of the Sazerac. He carried a piece round in his pocket, and came very near going to church once, and has only been drunk twice since he commenced the practice.

Had a Right to Laugh.

There is a legend affirming that the snow was seven feet deep on the streets of Detroit. On that day not a woman was seen down town, but next day, when the snow had settled a foot or so, they were abroad as usual. They were out yesterday, wading through the slush and jumping the pools, and one of them fell "kersplash!" as she passed the Soldiers' Monument. A man standing thirty feet away began laughing uproariously. He got red in the face, tears came to his eyes, and his hat fell off as he laughed and cried out:

"Went right down like a bag of sand—slush a foot deep—starched up to kill-never saw anybody look so cheap—oh! ho! ho! ho!"

"You are no gentleman, sir," remarked a man who had witnessed the "Can't help that—ha! ha! ho!"

that style, and I—ha! ha! ha! "I don't, see anything so very funny in it," growled the other.
"No, you don't, but I—!" And he hung to the lamp post and laughed till his legs weakened. When he had recovered his breath he explained to the crowd. "It was my wife, you see. She probably wanted a pair of shoe-strings or two cents worth of silk twist, and it took her three hours to curl and twist, and powder and fix up to come down here and wade around. Then to fall flat with all her best duds on, and to be helped up by a rag-buyer, and to hear the boys yell out, why, it just takes all the-ho! ho! ho! muscle right ha! ha! hout of me!" Planting In Youth. Geron, an old man of 80 years, was sitting at the door of his rural dwell-

When he heard the number of his years, he marvled at his healthy and vigorous appearance, and asked Geron what he had done to enjoy such strength and serenity in the winter of his life. He answered, 'My son, this is like every good gift from above. Yet we must do something here below to obtain it." elrigge, plunging his sword in her de-Cartlane crags with the heart-break-"Oh, my murdered wife! my unborn babe," cried the agonized Wallace. "Give me power, Almighty Judge, to avenge this angel's blood, me?" The first nobleman to join this daring crusade was the rescued Earl of Mar. But he was speedily captured and Bothwell Castle was seized by the Scotch Lord Soulis and the English Aymer de Valence, both of whom had sued in vain for the hand of the Earl's daughter, the lovely Helen Mar. Dreading their violence, she escaped with her cousin Andrew Murray, by a secret passage to the priory of St. Fillans. Her father and his wife were confined at Dunbarton Castle, Wallace and his few followers were hemmed in on the Cartlane crags by swarms of English soldiers, and lady Helen, decoyed from the priory, fell into the hands of the brutal Soulis. Crossing the mountains by night, he sought to take the utmost advantage of his helpless prisoner, whose hand was raised to save her honor by plunging a knife into her own breast, when an unknown knight suddenly fell upon him, wounded him severely, and spir-

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, boggies, instruments, rings, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectually removed which every suffers, no ordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectually which every suffers, no ordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every suffers, no ordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectually.

of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure. Its ingredients are so skilfully combined that the full alterative effect of each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and corruptions which develop into loathsome disease. The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it proves their experience of its usefulness. experience of its usefulness.

The New York Tribune calls attention to these points in the President's decision to withdraw the troops from the Columbia State-house, which deserve general recollection: The point of the President's determination is not that Hampton has the better claim to the office; his decision is merely that it is not his place to decide. South Carolina must arrange this matter for herself. If she can arrange it by a lawsuit, good; if she prefers merely to acquiesce in the assumption of the disputed dignity by Hampton, and that is her affair, not the President's.

Don C. Henderson, of the Allegan Journal, announces himself as candidate for the appointment as public printer at Washington. Mr. Henderson was an apprentice of the great king of printers, Horace Greeley, was one of the first members of the New York Printer's Union, and if appointed to the position will do the country a good service. On Friday last the question of County Superintendent of Schools was brought before the House at Lansing for the third time, and after having been discussed pro and con, from almost every conceivable standpoint. was brought to a vote and defeated by 46 to 39. The outlook now is that the office of township superintendent will continue to exist until another Legislature shall be elected, at least. A Senate joint resolution in the State Legislature, March 29, to appropriate $12,000 to the managers of the Michigan Department of the Centennial Exposition for expenses, was amended to make the amount $8,600, and was finally lost by a vote of 20 yeas to 10 nays. The President ruling that a two thirds vote was required to appropriate public money for private purposes. The United States does not have all of the business failures in the world. A coal merchant in Darlington, England, recently failed, with liabilities of £200,000. The Legislavtve Joint Committee on the Douglas-Rose University defalcation has completed its search, and reported in such a manner as to entirely free Dr. Rose from suspicion, and leave the missing wealth with Dr.

Geo. R. Wilcox, of this city, is now in Chicago, with T. M. Fulton, selecting a fine stock of entirely new goods, with which these gentlemen will open a large store in Buchanan, Mich. While we are not wholly pleased that George and his family are about to leave the city, where they have spent nearly all their lives, and have friends as numerous as their acquaintances-still "transplanting" is very often good for a young business man, especially one of George's energies and capacity. The business circle of Buchanan will find Mr. Wilcox a man eminently worthy their confidence and esteem, while the trading community will soon know him as a merchant of judgment, probity, energy and tact-who will always present for their purchase goods bought with skill, and sold upon honorable representations. It may be a hackneyed expression, but is nevertheless very truthful in this case, that Aurora's loss, in both busi-

(Ill.) Beacon. Mishawaka rejoices in another sensation, and it's genuine. A cat belonging to Willie Sandiland has given birth to four kittens, or perhaps we may say to one kitten subdivided by four and all bound together Siamese twin fashion. At all events there are four of this litter-four separate kits, but one piece of flesh, and they are all alive and vigorous, being now five days old. The bodies of two of the kits seem to be very closely joined together, the same hide seeming to cover both backs, but there are two heads and eight legs. The other two are a little more loosely joined, but all four are one. Where one cat goes, the whole platoon, marching in a line, must go. These kittens have had a great many visitors during the past few days. We have not been able to go up and see them, but receive our information from a trustworthy source: One cat is bad enough in spring-time, when birds mate and the Tom cat's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love; but when they are born doubled up twice, and one cat is endowed with four parts-four separate and distinct individualities - and each one of those having nine lives, we think of the limited supply of boot-jacks, cologne bottles, slippers and things at our house, and shudder. Whatever misgivings with respect to this bridge may have been created by the disaster at Ashtabula, the inspection shows that they had no foundation. engineering skill could suggest to render such a calamity impossible. This bridge was built by Mr. Rochling in 1853-54. Its four towers are each 90 feet in height and constructed of cut-stone blocks 18 inches thick. The base of each tower is 16 feet square and the top 8 feet square, the cap stone being 10 feet square. Each tower is surrounded with an iron saddle with collars upon which rest the cables, firmly holding the saddle in position. The rollers allow the cables to move easily, so that in contraction and expansion there is no additional strain upon them or the towers. At all other points of bearing are cut-stone caps securing every-A massive arch connects the towers some 20 feet from the base fabove which is the railway track, and below, the carriage way. The wires, brought to a tension of 1,200 pounds, are looped upon the shafts at the anchorage, which is filled with masonry and concrete, rendering it almost solid rock. The wire for the cables was put through a process of boiling in oil, with a glutinous mixture, being kept in the cauldrons thirty minutes, and then dried in the sun. It passed through this process three times, the wire being thoroughly annealed and rendered imprevious to water It was then spliced. Each, cable is composed of 5,000 strands, which is so spliced as to be in fact one continuous wire, 1,250 miles in length. Each strand was laid with a tension of 1,-200 pounds. The man who doesn't read usually has a mission; it is to grow corn and pork, and pay taxes, or work through the week at his bench or forge as a machine. His home is a place to eat and sleep, his life a round of drudgery, a struggle only for bread and butter. The man who does not read falls behind the age in which he lives, drops into the narrow groove of his personal observation, and declares the progress around him to be departures from the virtue and goodness of by-gone times. Every day has a superstitious sign; every change of the moon, every sudden variation in the weather, fills him with prophecy which bodes everybody ill luck. The man who does not read misjudges the common natural laws of matter. The easily explained changes of vegetable and animal life are subjects of superstitious dread and trouble. [Berrien Springs Era.]

On Saturday aftenoon last, M. D. Taylor brought into town a fine young white swan, measuring from tip to tip of wing, 6 feet, 7 inches, which he shot on the wing, in the neighborhood of S. Tudor's place on the St. Joseph river. This is of the specimen Cygnus Americanus, or whistling swan. The bird had been harboring in this neighborhood for quite a while, and it was a pity that he should have met with this untimely end.

Encouragement for the Feeble. Debility, whether it be inherent, or caused by overtaxed strength, or protracted illness, has a most depressing influence upon the mind, breeding an abject melancholy nearly akin to despair, and enforcing the abandonment of cherished projects and high hopes. Happily, the enfeebled system, even in extreme cases, is susceptible of invigoration. It is proved by incontrovertible evidence that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an unfailing strengthener of the weak, and that in addition to vitalizing the physical organization, it establishes regularity among those organs upon whose efficient discharge of the duties imposed on them by nature, continued vigor and health depend. Thousands of instances might be cited to show the regenerating influence of this health-giving agent in cases of debility, liver disease. dyspepsia, nervous ailments, constipation, intermittent fever, urinary and uterine troubles, gout and rheumatism, and other ures may not be amiss. The horticulturist should carefully examine his trees, in order to ascertain how many, and which, are invested with bark-lice, so as to be ready to attack them as soon as the young are hatched and emmerge from beneath the mother scales, as then is the only real vulnerable period of their existence. As the young are very minute, it would be well for him to carry with him a small pocket magnifier, so that, when passing through his orchard or nursery, he can always be prepared to ascertain whether the eggs are hatched or not. If no young are seen, a few scales can be raised with the point of a knife-blade and the condition of eggs observed. As soon as the young appear then let him attack them at once with his brush and acrid solution of lime, soap, or diluted kerosene.

If the bunches of eggs, cocoons, and particles of crumpled leaves, so often seen glued to the twigs have not been removed during the winter, this ought to be attended to at once. They should be removed and-burned or carefully destroyed by crushing, or otherwise. Each egg, nest, and co-coon destroyed now, will be equivalent to the destruction of hundreds of caterpillars during the summer. The collar of the trunk just below the surface of mulch or soil, should be carefully examined, and if there are any signs of the woolly aphis it should be treated with strong soap suds, and afterwards some leached ashes should be placed around it. If, on the contrary, nothing, or only black ground beetles or ladybugs are found, leave it undisturbed; these friends will look after it. If the canker-worm look after it. If the canker-worm has made a lodging in the orchard, the tin bands ought to be at once fastened on the trees; even now it is probably too late in some orchards. Remember—first tack a piece of rope around, and on this the tin strip, three around, and on this the tin strip, three around, and on this the tin strip, three or four inches wide, leaving a wide projection below and also a projection above. If the inner side of the rope which is next to the tree is first tarred so much the better; the rope should be of sufficient thickness to cause the tin to stand out well from the trunk..—Prairie Farmer.

that he will balk again, and if this remedy is repeatedly tried the bad habit is confirmed. In nine cases out of ten the entire absence of anything like a whip, or cross language, and the presence of anything which will give the animal a new idea or take his attention from the trouble, will usually cause him to start promptly. In some cases simply raising one fore-foot until the horse starts will answer the purpose; in others, a string tied tightly around one ear will produce the same effect; a rag or bunch of cotton stuffed into one ear, a string tied tightly around the foreleg, a small rope tied around the root of the tail passed in front between the fore-legs and drawn tight, all seem to have one and the same effect of taking the horse's attention and diverting it from balking. In many cases the trouble is caused by a nervousness on the part of the driver the presence of anything which will give the animal a new idea or take vousness on the part of the driver which easily communicated to the animal, and can be remedied by allowing the animal to stand quiet until the trouble is forgotten. In any case the whip is the worse remedy that can be tried, and its improper use is probably the most prolific cause of the difficulty.

The Milk Cure. Considerable has been said in medical journals concerning the value of milk as a remedial for certain diseases. An intersting article on this subject lately appeared in the London Milk Journal, which it is stated, on authority of Dr. Benjamin Clarke, that in the East Indies warm milk is used to a great extent as specific for diarrhoea. A pint, every four hours, will check the most violent diarrhoen. stomach ache, incipient cholera and dysentery. The milk should never be boiled, but only heated sufficiently to be agreeably warm—not hot to drink. Milk which has been boiled is not fit for use. The writer gives several instances to show the value of this simple substance in arresting this disease. Another writer in the same journal says: "We have also tested the value of milk in scarlet fever and learn that it is recommended by the medical faculty in all cases of this very distressing children's disease. Give all the milk the patient will take comfortably, even during the period of the greatest fever. It ceeps up the strength of the patient, ucts well upon the stomach, and is in every way a blessed thing in this ickness. Parents, remember it, and lo not fear to give it to your dear ones who are afflicted with the disease."

When and How to Eat. When fruit does harm it is beause eaten at improper time, in improper qualities, or before it is ripend and fit for the human stomach. A listinguished physician has said that his patients would make a practice f eating a couple of good oranges bebreakfast, form February to June; his practice would be gone. The principal evil is that we do not eat enough of fruit; that we injure ts finer qualities with sugar; that we I Constol Mour Mour rown them in cream. We need the redical action of the pure fruit acids our system, and their cooling, corctive influence.—Medical Journal:

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD

REMEDIES .. . The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs are

SCHENOR'S PULMONIO SYRUP: SCHENOR'S SEA WEED TONIO and Sokence's Mandrake Pills, and if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected.

To these three medicines Dr. J. H. Schouck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivaled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases.

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off-by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to beal.

To enable the pulmonic syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleante the stomach and liver. Schenck's Mandrake Pills set on the liver, removing all obstructions, relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved.

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a weatle stimulant and alterative; the alkali of which it is composed relies with the food and prevents souring. It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition, so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood; then the lungs heal, and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold.

VEGETINE.

Thousands will bear testimony (and do it voluntarily) that Vegotine is the best nedical compound yet placed before the public for renovating and purifying the blood, eradicating all humors, impurities or poisonous secretions from the system, invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by disease; in fact, it is, as many have called it, "The Great Health Restorer,"

SAFE AND SURE.

Mr. H. R. SECYMS:

In 1872 your Vegetine was recommended to me, and yielding to the persuations of a friend, I consented to try it. At the time, I was suffering from general debility and nervous prostrations, superinduced by overwork and irregular habits. Its wonderful strengthening and curative properties seemed to affect my debilitated system from the first does, and under its persistent use I rapidly recovered, gaining more than usual health and good feeling. Since then I have not heeitsted to give Vegetine my most unqualified indorsement as being a safe, sure and powerful agent in promoting health and restoring the wasted system to new life and energy. Vegetine is the only medicine I use, and as long as I live I never expect to find a better.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—About ten years ago my health failed through the deploting offects of dyspepsia; nearly a yearly later I was attacked by typhoid sever in its worst form, it settled in my back and took the form of a large deep-seated abscess, which was fifteen months in gathering. I had two turgical operations, by the best skill in the State but received no permanent cure. I suffered great pain at times and was constantly weakened by a profuse discharge. I also lost small pieces of bone at different times.

Mattors ran on thus about seven years, till May, 1874, when a friend recommended me to go to your office and talk with you of the virtue of Vegetine. I did so, and by your kinduces passed through your manufactory, noting the ingredients, etc., by which your remedy is produced.

By what I saw and heard I gained some confidence in Vegetine.

Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with ars of experience and ovidence to sustain it, does not tear down, makesick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no oncouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their afilment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.
