JOHN'S MINNIE.

John's Minnie was twelve years old; John himself was fifty, and a coal miner.

"I didn't hurry any after I met Miss Wren," replied Minnie. "Did you see me anywhere on the way home?" he questioned. "No, father," replied Minnie, with little quiver in her voice. "Why?"

"Nothing, child, come here and kiss me.'' Minnie clasped her arms about her father's neck, clung to him and kissed him twice, then, fearing he would suspect something, she said; "You love me better when there's supper in the

had been kind to her when mining was good; for her sake he would have done anything she had asked him, but now everything going wrong —low wager, little work, bad counsels and hunger had driven John Jansen back almost to the condition of a

"I shall do it, mother. Never fear for me, nor Miss Florence, nor for father. I'm going to do right, and I'll have God to tell me how to do it, and you keep asking Him to take care of me, and He will. Good-bye, mother! You'll be up with the babies and let me in when I come." With a hurried kiss on the warm, sleeping little faces side by side in the trundle bed, and a long clinging one on her mother's cheek. Minnie set forth. The snow had ceased to fall. Up above the cold clear stars were twinkling away with all their might to each other; and the wind was doing its best at mixing up snow and stars in one blinding whirligig. Minnie rejoiced in the whirling snow; it covered up her footprints nearly as fast as they were made, and would do wonders at concealing everything she had to do and wished to conceal.

The little lantern in her hand ready to light, the matches in her pocket, and a brave heart under Carl's heavy jacket, gave Minnie courage. The river twisted itself in and out among the high hills, and by the river ran for miles the railroad toward which Minnie took her way. It was a bleak, lonely walk through the snow and the night for a girl only twelve years, but John's Minnie was not afraid for herself. Once she thought she saw some one, approaching; she left the track and went into concealment among the trees that skirted the river bank, but no one approached. Through the night came a rush and a roar; it was the train that Minnie knew had passed in safety the place where the train wreckers meant to do their work. The engine driver, looking out, saw the boy on the track in that lonely spot, and gave a whistle of warning, Minnie quickly obeyed and ran lightly aside, waiting for the train to go whirring on its way. "Now I must hurry," she thought 'the other train will be along soon,' and she tried to step from sleeper to sleeper through the snow. At last, almost ready to lie down with weariness and sleep, she came to the long, long stretch of straight track where she knew the train men must see her lantern if she began to signal with ic the instant the head-light could be

Two of the strikers who fired the Lebanon Valley railroad bridge in Pennsylvania, have confessed and been sentenced to five years in peniten lary, and pay $1,000 fine and costs of suit.

A bill was introduced in Congress Monday, by Senator Jones, providing for the comage of silver dollars of the weight of 4121 grains Troy, at any coinage mint or the New York assay office, in exchange for silver bullion upon the same terms and conditions low them to rule in every case. They as gold bullion is deposited for coipage under the existing laws. The bill also provides that no charge shall be made for the coining of standard bullion into these dollars, and proposes to make them legal tender for all sums in payment of all public or private debts, ex cepting such as a der existing contracts are expressed therein to be otherwise payable. Congress is also wresting with the famous resumption act. Schator Hereford has introduced a bill that proposes to repeal the two clauses in the Specie Resumption act which provide for the redemption of United States hotes in excess of $300,000,000, and for the redemption of outstanding legal tenders on and after January 1, 1879, in coin. The remainder of the Resumption act is not referred to.

In the Senate, Tuesday, Senator Wallace introduced a bill to provide for the issue of a long time bond, for the investment of savings and a lawful note and a coin currency.

"The bill directs the Secretary of the Treasury to issue in lieu of an equal amount of 4 per cent bonds authorized by the act of July 14, 1870, a sum not exceeding $100,000,000 of United States coupon bonds in denominations of $25, $50, and $100, in equal sums, each denomination redeemable in coin at the present standard value after sixty years from the date of their issue, and bearing interest payable semi-annually in such coin at the rate of 3.65 100 per cent per annum. These bonds are to be exempt from all taxation.

The remainder of the bill is as fol-Iows: "The Secretary of the Treasury shall keep said bonds for sale at the different Sub-Treasuries of the United States, and shall dispose of the same at par and accrued interest for coin or United States legal-tender notes at the rate at which they may stand in the market, and such legal tender notes shall be reissued, but their proceeds and the coin received for such bonds shall be applied to the redemption of outstanding 5-20 bonds of the United States."

"The bill to provide a lawful note and coin currency States, introduced by Mr. Wallace by request, provides for the coinage of $400,000,000 in value of a coin metal called goloid, and consisting of gold silver and copper, in perpertions of one pound, twenty four pounds and three quarters of a pound, respectively, to be paid for by issues of 4 per cent bonds, redeemable in ten and payable after twenty years, and to be paid out in exchange for the bonds bearing a higher rate of interest as the latter are retired. The 'goloid' coins are to be exchangeable with United States notes. The bill also requires the Sec. retary of the Treasury to cause to be issued $400,000,000 legal-tender in notes to exchange for those now out standing, and to keep at least $350. 000,000 of the new issue out of the Treasury in circulation."

EDITOR RECORD :- One week ago to-day the Citizens' National Bank, of Laporte, Ind., added its name to the long list of insolvent institutions, whose true inwardness has been made public, only to reveal the fact that it was due, as the managers of these concerns say, to "bad luck," shrinkage of "collaterals" held for security on loans, and we might add poor management and using the money of the depositors in an unlawful manner. Frequently we meet those who have lost their savings for years past, by the failure of these various banks, saved by depriving themselves of many comforts which make life pleasant, by economical living, by hard work, and rigid financial management, only to be squandered or stolen by some person who has betrayed his trust or has made an assignment on account of not being able to meet dollar for dollar the wants or demands of the depositor. By these numerous failures the confidence of people throughout the country has been terribly shaken. So much so that we frequently hear the inquiry of who can we trust now? It is very evident that the day is not far distant, when the several States, and the Government itself, will be compelled to enact more stringent laws for the protection of the people in this respect. Business has been somewhat better this fall than last, and if these unfortunate (for the depositors) failures had not taken place, trade, in all of its branches, would and may yet succeed any fall since '72. Your correspondent earnestly wishes to see it increase and the prospects are favorable, as gold is quoted at 1.02%, which will make prosperity permanent when it does return.

ED. RECORD:—The last intelligence you had from Ohio I think must have been of the election. And I wish that those who conceive themselves wise in such matters, are endeavoring to find out its significance. It may furnish good exercise of all their ingenuity in "guessing," till the time of another election, when some real issue is involved. Then unless this State denies its record it will be found on the side of sound government. I know nothing of how it might be in other portions of the State, but in this county, reasons sufficient were involved to secure defeat in some cases, where a different result was counted upon. Intelligent people have seen too much of "Rings" and their methods to alwill refuse sometimes and somebody gets hurt. Thousands of Republicans stayed away from the polls. Comparisons will show they did not go and vote for the Democratic candidates. When the time and occasion call, they will be ready.

We are having our second installment of the Equinoctial, but it comes in a most favorable time. Most people are well prepared for it. Rains have descended in torrents, but so late that little damage is done to the harvests. These have generally been well secured, and farmers are rejoicing in abundance, with promise of remunerative prices for all surplus. We have had no severe frosts yet, and our gardens furnish fresh tomatoes for the table—a thing quite uncommon in this latitude, up to the last of

Our Murphy temperance movement still justifies its good beginning. It has done a great work among us. Some fall, but the great majority of those reached by the reformation are true to their pledge and are making good citizens, and doing something to aid others. Nothing is perfect, but we will rejoice in all that is good. One result of this movement has been here as in other places, a greater harmony among Christians. We see working side by side, sects in religion, which have been wont to speak ill of each other. It is refreshing to see Roman Catholics sitting with and speaking from the same platform with their Protestant brethren, hand in hand, striving to save the erring; speaking kindly of one another, and recognizing the proper work which each has to do. One can do what the other cannot. It is pleasant to see them acknowledge this. All do what is possible to carry forward the great reform. It is better than casting obstructions in the way of progress, and to forget that to save men is more vital than to destroy sects.

General Sherman arrived here two weeks ago and the people gave him a grand reception. A salute of fifteen guns was fired, had fire works in the evening with splendid music both during the day and evening. The General made a neat little speech, referred to his trip across the continent, &c.

The news of the Ohio election was received here Wednesday morning but did not create much excitement. I believe that the financial policy of Sec. Sherman is ruining our country and is in the interest of the national banks, bond-holders and gold gamblers. The times are growing harder as the time for resumption draws near. Thousands of laboring men are rushing here thinking that they will better their conditions, but when they get here they find they have to compete with the Chinamen, and they live well and flourish where a man of any other nationality will starver I wish that I could speak to every laboring man in Michigan and urge them to remain there in preference to coming here. Silver and the Public Debt.

The

The only material objection that has over been urged against the remonetization of the silver dollar is that siuce 1873 the value of silver has declined and that to recein it and make it logal-tendor at its present ratio with gold would be an injustice to the public creditor. Upon this point have been rung the changes of bad faith, repudiation, and violation of national honor. There is, however, nothing m this objection. The recoimnge of the silver dollar and its restoration as a legal-tender will violate no contract, expressed or implied with the public creditors, or with any other persons, even if such silver dollars shall happen to be worth less in gold than they were in 1873. In the first place, the contingency spoken of is not likely to happen, and, oven if silver should be less than its former value, it will remain so but for a short time. The passage of a law remonetizing silver and authorizing the free coinage of the silver dollar will at once, by opening a new market, limited only by the capacity of the mint, have the effect of raising the value of the metal to a point where the silver dollar will be equal to the gold dollar. It is not necessary that silver shall reach the value per ounce that it had when the coinage of the silver dollar was abolished. Then the silver dollar was worth over 103 cents in gold, when silver shall reach that value again, the coinage of the silver dollar will cease, or its weight must be reduced from 15.98 of silver to 1 of gold to 15.5 of silver to 1 of gold, which is the French standard.

The question, however, at present is the morality of coining silver dollars of the old standard weight, while silver as a metal is worth less than it was when the debt was contracted. All the debt of the United States payable in metallic money is by express stipulation payable in coin and not, as is supposed, in gold. That gold has been the coin generally in use in the United States as a logal-tender is true, because the gold dollar was worth less than the silver dollar, and was therefore the cheaper or inferior money. Prior to 1834 silver was the cheaper money and in general use. In that year Congress debased the gold coin by reducing the weight of pure gold in the gold coins, and gold became the cheaper coin and supercoded the silver. Congress then adopted the practice of every nation of the earth under like circumstances, and paid its debts in that coin which was the least valuable, and which it had by law reduced below the value of the other. Gold continued to be the cheaper coin from 1834 until 1875, and was the coin generally used by the Government and by the public in ated, Congress, however, reserved the option to pay in either gold or silver. option to pay in either gold or silver. Lenawee county agricultural society In 1870 that reservation was written because it did not use land he gave in the Funding act, and is printed on | it for fair purposes. for the United | week. In ten days it travels 3,500 | all the bonds, that the United States miles over plains, mountains and riv- should pay the same in the gold or silver coin of the United States, of the weight and fineness as provided by the laws of the country in force at that date. The law in 1870 required ing country. I have traveled about as | the gold dollar to contain 25.8 grains, nine-tenths fine, of gold, and that the silver dollar should contain 412.5 grains of silver of the same fineness.

That was the contract with the creditors. The debt was to be paid in dollars of those weights. The Government could not lawfully pay the debt with silver dollars of less weight, nor with gold dollars with fewer grains of gold, but it retained the option to use either or both at its pleasure. In nor that silver should maintain the value in gold it then commanded. It did not guarantee permanency of value of either metal. All it promised was to pay gold or silver dollars, the dollars to contain the quantity of pure metal then provided by law. The contract began and ended there. The fact that silver had declined in value as compared with gold does not change the contract. If silver shall before the maturity of the bonds recover its value, and the silver dollar shall again be worth 103, that will not take from no one was hurt. It was a close call the Government the privilege of paying the bonds in gold or the cheaper dollars. The Senate Committee on the silver question thus disposes of this matter: The promise of the United States to the purchasers of bonds under the act of July 14, 1870, is not to pay money, but to pay "coin" of the then "standard value," meaning of the weight and fineness of the gold and silver dollars then being coined at the mint. Both parties took the risk of the fluctuations of the metals. The United States received no guarantee against their fall. The assumption that the agreement of the United States was to pay coin of the then market or commercial value is to the last degree absurd. The United States agreed to pay a specific thing, not a specific value.

There is no tribunal to determine what the changes are in the market or commercial value of dollars. No prudent Government or individual would give an obligation so shadowy and indefinite, and no prudent capitalist would accept such an obligation. In issuing bonds under the act of July 14, 1870, the United States took the risk of a rise in the value of both the metals. The parties accepting the bonds took the opposite risk of a fall in the value of either of them. The chances against the United States were wars and political disturbances in the mining countries, such as caused a decrease in the production of gold and silver between 1809 and 1848, or that the mines would be from any other cause less productive, or that countries not using gold or silver might decree their use as money, and thus make a new demand for them, or that a change of fashion might increase the consumption of the metals in the arts. Either of these circumstances, or all combined, might raise the value of the metals very materially. On their part, those who accepted the bonds took the risks of an increased production of either or both of the metals by the discovery of new gold and silver mines or by the more vigorous working of old mines.

or that commercial countries might demonetize one or both of the metals, or that great amounts of gold or silver might be liberated by the suspension of specie payments in important countries, or that the habits of the world might be so changed that less amounts of gold and silver would be used for other purposes than as money. Either of these circumstances, or all combined, might depreciate the value of one or both of the metals very mate-

Record.

Buchanan,

It is sometimes said that the more recently-issued bonds should be paid in gold, because the United States receives gold for them. The obligations of a bond are not governed by the price, or the species of money, or the nature of the consideration received by those who issue it. They are govnot by what it is sold for. A bond sold at 105 can have no other construction than a similar bond sold at 50, and a bond sold for gold can have no other construction than a similar bond sold for silver or greenbacks, or given in payment for supplies or services. The promise, and not the consideration, governs. If it were really true that what is received for bonds determines what they promise, the holders of a majority of the outstanding bonds of the United States would be in a much loss favorable position than they now occupy.

We do not imagine that there is an intelligent man who questions the legal and equitable right of the United States to pay its debts in silver coin of 412½ grains weight in the dollar, and, having that legal and equitable right, there can be no immorality, repudiation, or national dishonor in so doing, especially as the decline in silver will be temporary. Had the mints been open to the free coinage of silver dollars, it is possible that, in addition to our stock of national coin, we would have from 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 of silver dollars, and the value of silver would have long since recovered its former relation to gold .- Chicago Tribune.

freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit

N. B.—I wish those gentlemen who go into my back field to steal corn would be more careful to take the rows clean as they go; also to pick the small ears as well as the large ones. It is very unfair, gentlemen, for you to gather all the big ears, leaving the little ones for me. Fair play is the jewel, remember.

P. S.—Farmers back of me say when you steal theirs out of the shock you don't husk the shock clean. You should be more particular.

Our Prosecuting Attorney, J. J. Van Riper, has had a large list of criminals to overhaul this term of Circuit Court. There were more cases on the docket than ever before. and he has successfully prosecuted them all, with one or two exceptions. The case of Dennis Bunbury, for the assault of Thos. Gaines with intent to kill, was thrown out of court because of a failure on the part of the Justice to make the proper returns. The others have received their full dose of justice at his hands, for which he received many tokens of praise from other members of the bar.

This town is now without a hotel of any description. Smith & Simonds having been warned to close the Kennard House last Monday, which is to be put to some other use by the proprictors. This leaves a fine opening for some man with means to erect a fine brick building and open a firstclass hotel. There is no reason why such an establishment may not pay a good income if kept in good order. There are two suitable lots on Front street, either of which may be bought at a reasonable price, and either in good position.

The people living at Grown Point, Ind., and other places in the vicinity of the Kankakee Marsh, are entering complaint that their lands are overflowed and made untillable by a dam in the Kankakee river, at Momence, Ill., and are endeavoring to have it removed. As soon as they are done shucking and before the hands get dry, if they will crack one of the nuts and rub the kernel over the colored part of their hands, the coloring will all come off on the kernel and leave the hands white. THE YELLOWS .- One of our subscribers, who raises quite a good crop of peaches, wishes to live a little in-formation concerning this troublesome disease. He gave as his experience something like the following: One of his trees, during the hot season, showed every symptom of the yellows, the fruit ripening too early, and being spotted and the tree was somewhat withered; and upon close examination he found seven large borers. about the size of the cutworm, under the bark of the trunk of the tree. There were no very plain signs of their presence in the outside appearance of the bark, it appearing smooth and no gum exuding, and were found, only upon removing the bark. He is of the opinion that the borers were the cause of the diseased condition of the tree. He would like to know if others have the same experience and if so, have they any remedy. Any communications bearing upon this subject we will gladly publish.

And as some of those who had aided in organizing it were going away during the winter, and no one seeming willing to take hold and manage it, it was deemed best to close and not allow the rent to accumulate and cause a financial failure.

We had hoped to encourage some, if only a few, to stay away from the saloons-those fearful dens of vice and dissipation. But alas! All efforts seem in vain. Moral sussion will not do. Liquor and beer saloons are the fountain head of all crime, and as such should be suppressed by the strong arm of the law, executed by vigilant, efficient, sober officers. Then the tramp nuisance and the cry of hard times would cease in the land. Peace, plenty, happiness, aye! almost the millennium would reign.

What She Asked Tommy. He was named Thomas and she was named Jane. They sat on a hotel oalcony yesterday for three long hours, and giving themselves dead away as being out of towners. As they eat down, Thomas took one of Jane's hands. She allowed that sort of thing to go on without a word of protest, and the flaxen haired youth finally seized the other one. They talked, and looked down upon the street, and sighed, and the hours slipped away. At the end of the third hour she said:

When the Earl of Bradford was brought before Lord Chancellor of Loughborough, to be examined upon application for a statute of lunacy against him, the chancellor asked .--"How many legs has a sheep?" "Does your lordship mean," answered Lord Bradford, "a live or a dead sheep?" "Is it not the same thing?" said the chancellor. "No, my lord," said Lord Bradford, "there is much difference." A live sheep may have four legs; a dead sheap has only two. There are but two legs of mutton; the two forelegs are shoulders."

CATARRH

Chronic, and Ulcerative, Hay Fever, or Rose Catarrh, Catarrh of the Eye and Ear and Catarrh of the Throat.

SANFORD'S RADICAL OURE,

CATARRH is a disease of the mucous membrane.

Temperaments and constitutions vary its severity in individual cases. Catarrh may arise from a cold or a succession of colds, from sudden change of atmosphere, wearing wet clothing, or exposure to inclement weather, and becoming theroughly chilled when the digestive organs are in a morbid or inactive condition, and the strength and vital forces exhausted. The disease may arise from a scrothious condition of the blood, from Scarlet Fever, Measles, and Diphtheria, in which cases the eyo and ear are generally involved and discharges from the nose, the distinctive feature in all catarrhal cases from which they come in contact, or thick and yellowish, emitting a foul odor, or clear and white like the with which they come in contact, or thick and yellowish, emitting a foul odor, or clear and white like the white of an egg. There may be an entire lack of secretion, the surfaces being dry and feverish, the face, front, and upper part of the head feeling uncomfortable, and as if it was eneircled by a tight, unyleiding band. This latter phase is called Dry Catarrh. The free mattery discharges cause the passages to swell and become thickened, rendering breathing through the nose difficult or impossible, and the sudierer finds it necessary to breathe through the mouth, thereby permitting cold air to pass directly to the bronchial tubes and lungs. The matter passing down the hose and throat, the mucous becomes hard and forms into scaps, incrustations, and hard lumps, which adhere so firmly to the nasal passages and throat as to require very persistent efforts to dislodge them. The eye in sympathy becomes infinance, red, weak, and watery, or in the morning the lids may be found glued together, and matter is secreted in more or less quantity. The ear also becomes seriously affected, discharging quantities of matter, besides being visited by the most violant neurality pain, ending frequently in inflammation, ulceration, and manife fred, weak, and watery, or SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

Riding on a Whale's Back. The most striking fish story recently is thus conveyed in a special telegram from Plymouth, Mass., to the Boston Herald, dated 4th instant: "An adventure so singular in its character happened to a citizen of this town this morning that, without the knowledge, of the parties and the evidence of those near, it would be set down as a Munchausen tale. Mr. D. Finney, with his neighbor, Ancel Bartlett, were off Gunners' Point, South Plymouth, coot shooting. They were in separate dories, as far apart as boats usually are in that sport, when a humpback whale rose some distance off and spouted. He rose again, nearer the boat, and Mr. Finney thought by the direction he was taking that the next time he came up he would come ahead of the boat, and he would give him a shot. While waiting for him to come up, kneeling in the bottom of the dory, he felt a shock, and, as he expressed it, found, himself on the whale's back dry-shod. The next thing he knew, he went down, and came up on the other side of his boat. Probably the whale sank when he found he had a rider, and drew the
