Deaf Smith's Duel. AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 12 .- Of all famous duels perhaps none was more remarkable than that fought near this city, by Deaf Smith and Colonel Mor-

About two years after the Texas revolution, a difficulty occurred between the new government and a portion of the people, which threatened serious consequences. Briefly, the constitution made Austin the permanent capital, but empowered the President to order the temporary removal of the archives in case of danger from a foreign enemy or sudden insurrection. Thinking that the exceptional emergency had arrived, as the Comanches were committing outrages within sight of, the capitol, President Houston, who then resided at Washington, on the Brazos, dispatched an order commanding his subordinates to send the State records to that town.

It is impossible to describe the excitement which the promulgation of this order raised in Austin. The keepers of hotels, boarding-houses, groceries and faro banks, were aghast. The measure would be a death blow to their business. A mass meeting was called, and the farmers of the surrounding country, who were all more or less interested, came in. After many fiery speeches it was unanilost between us, says he, and I could musly resolved to prevent the removgive ye a good charackthur to any al of the archives. Four hundred armed men volunteered to guard the State House. The commander of this force was Colonel Morton, who had distinguished himself in favor of independence, and more recently in two despêrate duels, in both of which he Father Corrigan himself, says he, had cut his antagonist nearly to pieces with the bowie knife. Indeed, for his vindictiveness as well as courage, it was thought that President Houston would renounce his purpose as soon as he should learn who was the leader your own hands,' says he, 'and if at of the opposition. Morton swore that any time ye see anny one ye like bet- if the President succeeded in removter nor me, marry him, says he, 'Ah, ing the records, he himself would hunt Nora, says he, for the first time speak him down like a wolf. He even wrote ing it solemn like, 'Ah, Nora, what is the hero of San Jacinto to that effect. The latter replied in a note of laconic brevity.

"If the people of Austin do not send the archives, I shall certainly come and take them; and if Colonel Morton can kill me he is welcome to my

On the reception of this answer the guard was doubled around the State House, chosen sentinels were stationed along the road leading to the capitol, armed men patrolled the streets, and a select committee went into permanent session in the City Hall.

One day this committee was surprised by the sudden appearance of a stranger, whose mode of entering the room was as extraordinary as his looks and dress. He did not knock at the closed door, but, climbing a small, bushy-topped live oak, which grew beside the wall, he leaped through a lofty window. He was clothed in buckskin, carried a long heavy rifle in his hand, wore at the bottom of his left suspender å large bowie-knife, and had in his leathern belt a couple of pistols half the length of his gun. He was tall, straight as an arrow, active as a panther in his motions. He had a dark complexion, luxuriant, jetty hair, and piercing dark eyes. "Who are you who thus presume to intrude among gentlemen without invitation?" demanded Colonel Morton in his most ferocious manner.

The stranger returned his stare with compound interest, and laid his long, bony finger on his lip.
"Who are you? Speak! or I'll cut an answer out of your heart!" shouted Morton: The stranger removed his finger from his lip, and laid it on the hilt of his monstrous knife. The fiery Colonel drew his own knife, but was seized and held back. "Let him alone, Morton, for God's and disappeared through the window as suddenly as he had entered. "What," exclaimed Judge Webb, Gis it possible you intend to fight that man, Colonel? He is a mute, if not a maniac. Such a meeting, I fear, will sadly tarnish your laurels."

"You are mistaken," said Morton. with a smile; "that mute is a hero whose name stands in the records of a dozen battles, and at least half as many bloody duels. Besides, he is a favorite emissary and bosom friend of Houston. If I have the good fortune to kill him, I think it will tempt the President to retract his yow against venturing any more upon the field of honor.'

"You know the man, then? Who is he?" asked twenty voices together. "Deaf Smith."

"No, that cannot be. Deaf Smith was killed at San Jacinto," said Judge

Webb. "There, again your honor is mis-taken," said Morton. "The story of Smith's death was mere fiction, gotten up by Houston to save the life of his favorite from the sworn vengeance of certain Texans, on whose conduct he had acted as a spy. I found that out twelve months ago."

"Then, you are a madman yourself!" exclaimed Webb. "Deaf Smith was never known to miss his mark.'

"The thing is settled," said Morton, "I have agreed to meet him. There can be no disgrace in talking before such a shot, and if I kill him it will be the greatest feat of my life." Toward evening a vast crowd assembled to witness the meeting, and so great was the popular recklessness as to affairs of this sort that bets were offered and taken on all sides upon the result. At sunset the two men arrived, with long, heavy rifles, took their places, back to back, and at a given signal walked slowly and steadily off in opposite directions, counting their steps until each had measured fifty. They both completed the given number at about the same instant and wheeled around. As the distance was great both paused for some seconds. The face of Colonel Morton was calm and smiling. The face of Deaf Smith was as stern and impassive as ever-The Colonel was in broadcloth, the scout in smoke-tinted leather. The two rifles exploded at the same instant. Colonel Morton sprang into the air and dropped to the earth, dead. Deaf Smith quietly reloaded his rifle, and walked away into the forest.

Three days afterward General Houston, accompanied by Deaf, Smith and ten other men, appeared at Austin, and removed the State papers.

Deaf Smith was one of the most extraordinary characters ever known in the West. He made his advent in Texas at an early period, and continued to reside there until his death, which occurred, I believe, about 1850. But although he had many warm friends, no one ever learned where he had been born or any particulars of his previous history. When he was questioned on the subject he laid his finger on his lip: His eye was quick and far-seeing as an eagle's, and his nose as keen as a raven's. He could discern objects miles away on the prairie, when others saw nothing but earth and sky, and the savages used to declare he could catch the scent of a Mexican or an Indian at as great a distance as a buzzard his dinner. He could never be persuaded to sleep under the roof of a house or even a tent cloth.

Tight Boots.

I had on tight shoes. They were number seven when I started, but were no more than fives now, and still diminishing. I walked two hours in those shoes before we reached home. Doubtless I could have the reader's sympathy for the asking. Many, people never had the headache or toothache, and I am one of those myself; but everybody has worn tight shoes for two or three hours, and know the luxury of taking them off in a retired place and seeing his feet swell up and obscure the firmament. Few of us will ever forget the exquisite hour we were married. Once, when I was a callow, bashful cub, I took a plain, unsentimental but second banded clothing, and that girl to a comedy one night. A Tame Rat. During the winter evenings, when the children were engaged with their lessons, our tame rat, Billy, was usually to be found on the table rummaging among their books and catching at their pens; which latter amusement he enjoyed very much after the manner of a kitten running after a knitting-needle drawn quickly up and down the table; but, as these amusements rather interfered with the studies, Billy would occasionally be dismissed to the kitchen, to which he had a great dislike. He never stayed there longer than he could help, but on the first chance would rush up the stairs and scratch, or rather I should say gnaw for admittance. Speaking of this gnawing leads me to observe that one objection I had to receiving him was the fear that he would be very mischievous; but fortunately I 250 pounds, and the female perhaps never found him so. He had free access to a pantry where a variety of eatables, usually considered dear to a rat's heart, were to be found; but I never knew him to injure anything or even to cut the paper covering of any parcel, no matter what it contained. No doubt it was partly owing to his being so well fed that he was not driven to theft by hunger. I generally scattered for him on the shelves some grains of rice or pickles or starch, and to these he helped himself when inclined. From soap or candles he turned away in disgust, being far too well-bred a rat to indulge in such low tastes; but he dearly loved a bit of plum-cake; and, shall I confess it, he was by no means a teetotaler; if ale was used at dinner, he would rush eagerly about the glasses until he was supplied with some in a spoon. I beieve, before he came to us, he had been accustomed to stronger potations, in which, however, we did not indulge him. I have said he was not mischievous, neither was he, as mischief among rats is generally understood; upon a common bedstead. The anibut there is no rule without exception. and Billy had a decided penchant for kid gloves. If any were left carelessy about, he was sure to get hold of them, and have the fingers exten off in a few minutes. I cannot tell how many gloves he destroyed, until repeated lessons of this sort enforced more tidy habits. I must not omit to mention his love of music; when he bering, in the following appropriate

While girls unquestionably have their uses in the economy of nature, and possess merits exclusively their own, it may be boldly asserted that they are totally unfit to pursue in company with young men, the studies which constitute the curriculum of every respectable college. One of the earliest studies of the freshman year is the art of getting the janitor's cow into the fourth story of the dormitory. This can be readily mastered by any young man of good abilities and habits of industry and perseverance; but between girls and cows there is a great gulf fixed. The girl, from her earliest youth, looks upon the cow as a ferocious beast, prone to keep young ladies in sir in positions fatal to the proper arrangement of the back hair. To suppose that three or four young lady students are capable of the complicated pushing and pulling necessary to induce a cow to climb several flights of stairs is to suppose that the natural feminine fear of cows can be eradicated by the mere force of matriculation. Thus we see one of the very easiest of college studies is quite beyond the range of the female intellect.—New York Times.

A Boston Woman's Pets. The Boston Herald of Sunday says: Most ladies choose a dog, a cat, a canary, or pony for a pet, and often set their lives upon them, but rarely does one hear of a lady attaching herself to such strange pets as the writer saw at Mrs. Lincoln's, No. 54 Howard street, a day or two ago. Living in the family are a couple of lions, 21 months old, brought up by the hands of Mrs. Lincoln. They are African lions, a species not easily reared in this country, but Mrs. Lincoln has succeeded, by the exercise of great care, in rearing them to their present age and size. The male weighs about 50 pounds less. They have been at the house since last September, and, until within a month, have had the 'run of the place,' going about the rooms with considerable freedom. As a measure of caution, the police thought the creatures should be restrained, and their quarters are now more limited than formerly, although they have a safe out-door run and a room adjoining the kitchen, with only a strong wire door separating the apartments. Mrs. Lincoln is as free with her pets as ladies are with their poodles. She plays with them, fee is them from her hands, and has taught them various tricks. They will kiss her at her bidding, jump through a hoop, etc. Before the police restrictions were placed upon them, the animals were accustomed to walk into the kitchen or parlor among guests, and go back to their quarters without offering harm to any one. The greenbackers are in a quandary. They don't appear to know whether it is best to take Secretary Sherman into their ranks, or give him a probation of six months. Perhaps Mr. Sherman is not very particular about being taken in by them at all. He is a Republican, and as such announces himself as being able to resume specie payments by July first, and to sustain the payment thereafter, the very thing the greenbackers have so long objected to. The most proper way to relieve the minds of those most directly concerned, is for the greenbackers to stick to the old party that has had the management of governmental affairs the last eighteen years, and will in due course. of time bring about a healthy state of financial affairs in the regular way, and that is right, and for the best interests of the country at large.

Senator Ferry, who has been long classed as a greenback expansionist and silver remonetizer, now expresses himself satisfied with Secretary Sherman's views in regard to resumption. He believes that the policy outlined by Mr. Sherman, of saving up coin, redeeming six per cent bonds with greenbacks, and substituting four percent bonds for them, taking greenbacks for tariff duties, and keeping $300,000,000 at least of greenbacks afloat, will steady the entire currency and give an impetus to business this spring. Mr. Ferry says this policy should be allowed to go on to its full test. It is certainly a large concession to the "soft-money" men. - Lansing Republican:

NEW ZEALAND-THE CITY OF WELLING. Wellington was selected as the seat of government for the colony in 1865. The city contains many fine buildings and shows remarkable enterprise and progress. It is essentially a city of wood; there being but few concrete or brick buildings, and they of recent construction. A prejudice exists against brick buildings on account of smart shocks of earthquake which were forcibly felt in Wellington up to within a few years, in fact, a good portion of the town is built on a tract better purposes, and the proprietors seeking some legitimate business, of land that was upheaved, in a body, from the sea, within the memory of others than the oldest inhabitant, and not a score of years ago the water all went out to sea, leaving the ship in the harbor high and dry, until it chose to come back, which it did about six hours after. As the seat of government, naturally some of the finest buildings are those containing the public offices. Government house, the residence of the governor, is weak organization, a thing of the past, large and commodious, and surrounded by extensive grounds, they are surrounded by a fence so high I could not climb over, and so tight I could not see through; and as the governor did not send his card down to me, I did not go to see him; but I conclude the grounds are well laid out and the lawns nicely kept, as the governor is said to be industrious, and a gentleman of good taste, and as nearly as I can learn, has little to do except to draw his salary. The houses of parliament are fine gothic buildings built of wood, on an eminence overlooking the town, and contain, besides the necessary chambers, committee rooms, etc., a fine library and reading room. The colonial museum near by is remarkably extensive and complete in. connection with which there is a philosophical society in a flourishing condition. The government offices are in a large, imposing building, erected on ground reclaimed from the sea, and are very elegant in their interior finish plunges into a tunnel one and a half and furnishings, as well as convenientmiles long, and then winds about ly arranged. The foregoing is a just and true statement of all moneys received and expended, and or the financial condition of the village of Buchanan, on the 14th day of March, A. D., 1878, as far as can be accertained from the darch, A.D., 2000, and papers in my possession.

ADDENDUM.

The above report shows the condition of the village finances at the time the outgoing Treasurer and Marshal made their reports to the Common Council, and which were audited by that body March 15th, 1875.—Since that time the Marshal has paid the Treasurer the balance in his hands, and the latter officer has paid out on orders of the Common Council the following sums, and shows how much cash was received by the present Treasurer when he took charge of the books March 20, 1878:

From this it will be seen that $500 additional has been paid upon the village indebtedness, which properly will come into the financial statement of the next fiscal year, but on the 20th of March actually leaves the village in debt only the sum of $772,66 instead of $1,272,66 as given above.

There are also items of interest on the debt, and on the amounts due the rillage which should be computed, but not having the data in my possession from which to get at the exact figures, I have omitted both, but think one side of the interest account will about belance the other.

A man in Woolwich, Maine, 83 years old, offered $1,000 to a young-woman of 23 to marry him, and she sold herself to him at that price. A. T. Stewart & Co. have resumed specie payments. Gold and silver coin are now used indiscriminately in making change in their store. Two Iowa men traded wives eight years ago, and now wish to swap back, but one of the wives objects, and there is much trouble in consequence.

We are using: 112,000,000 postal cards a year. Gov. McCreary, of Kentucky, has rejected 1,993 applications for pardons within 30 months. A negro was sold at auction in the streets of Hickman, Kentucky, last week. He had been previously convicted as a vagrant, and the verdict of the jury was that he should be sold into servitude for six months, as the law provides and directs.

The Legislature of Mississippi has enacted a law providing the same penalty for rape as for murder-death or imprisonment for life, at the diecre tion of the court.

Morrison, the treasurer of the Grand Lodge, has returned to Sturgis and claims that he is no defaulter, and proposes to prosecute everybody who has published him as such. Rather a big job he has on his hands if he undertakes that. Three liquor dealers in St. John's have been fined an aggregate of $138.12 for selling liquor to minors. Miss Lizzie Tuck, the Michigan artist, who completed her education in Europe, is in Chicago taking numerous commissions for portraits. She was a student of Prof. Gardner of Hillsdale college in 1871,

A mass vein of copper, varying from 6 to 28 inches in in thickness, has been discovered on the property of the Saginaw mine; Isle Royale.

Chicago parties have tried in vain to buy lumber at Ludington, at an advance of $1.50 over last year's prices. We have made diligent inquiry of farmers respecting crop prospects, and with one accord they claim that the outlook for wheat was never better. In fact a majority claim that they never saw so fine a growth at this time of year. Fruit also promises exceedingly well and if we have no late frosts an abundant yield is a certainty.—Cass County Republican. In the spring of 1822 the corpse of a Frenchman was conveyed from Shiawassee county to Detroit, the distance of 78 miles lashed on the back of an Indian pony, for Christian burial, by rites of the Catholic church. Pontiac grangers have a faint idea that they have been sold. They paid $6,50 for plaster in grange lots and find that it can be bought of private parties for $5. The copper production of Michigan last year was worth $6,460,000. The iron ore production was worth about $3,800,000; pig iron, about $1,000,-000. Total mineral product, about $11,200,000.

A. E. Wood, of Pewamo, has invented a steam plow, or rather a steam carriage for drawing plows, which is thought to be a great improvement upon anything of that kind ever invented. Strawberry vines are in bloom in Adrain. Cornwell Bros. of Detroit are fill-ng a large order for wrapping paper for a house in London.

There is not a saloon in Kalkaska county. At one time there were 14 in the village of Kalkaska alone. Public sentiment did it.

THE AMENDMENTS —At the elec-tion, next Monday, we will be called upon to vote for two amendments to the State constitution. The law gives the required form for tickets, pro and con, only one of which has been fur:

nished by the county clerk. He gives as his reason for furnishing but one kind, that the amondments will be more apk to pass, which is perhaps frue, but a question as to the propri-cty of a public officer's liberty to thus proposed is in regard, to the appointment of a Clerk of the Supreme Court. As the section now reads, the County Clerk of the county in which the court is held will be the Olerk of the court, and if the proposed amendment be passed the Justices of the court will be empowered to appoint some other person if they wish. The second amendment has reference to the liability of individual members of joint stock associations for the wages for work done for the association. Under the present condition of things, each stockholder is holden for the whole amount of wages due, but under the amendment, they will be liable only to the par value of their stock. In this case if a company owe $1,000 for work, and there should be but one stockholder who is worth a million dollars, but owned but $100 stock in the business, but $100 could be collected of him toward the $1,000. Whereas,

under the present reading of the law,

he is held responsible for the entire amount in case of an inability on the part el the other stock-holders to pay their portion. Thus the amendment has the effect to remove a portion of the protection of the laboring man

from being swindled out of his pay.

About two car loads of buggies were brought to this place last Monday from Cincinnati, to be sold at auction. ready to make good all defects in their work, should any such appear. As a rule it is always policy to patronize your home dealers. Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, witl. Pars of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifting, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement withouts prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Visits made regularly.

Farm and Household.

Attend to Business

Nothing but ultimate ruin stares that farmer in the face who does not pay personal attention to all the most minute details of his form. There are a thousand small leaks about the management of an ordinary farm, that if not closely attended to will surely bring the most hardworking farmer to ruin and bankruptcy. Ninet aths of the sinking farmers can attribute their present distress to no other cause than a lack of close attention: to the small details of the farm; a ches supervision of machinery and tools, the stock and their feed, a place for everything and everything in its piace. No one is so much interested in the attending to those details as the boss. Such a course will in a few months, or in a year or two at most, enable many farmers who are now on the down grade, to again to begin to second. If heroically persevered in, it will surely make headway against whas now looks so hopeless. A fear of sunburnt hands and face, dirty clothes and boots, and a desire to lavo a reputation that he does not work on the farm, has been a fruitful source of loss to many farmers. A course of this kind once entered on will be hard to depart from.—Farm and Fireside.

Something Worth Trying.

Aremedy for catarrh is crushed cubebs smoked in a pipe, emitting the smoke through the nose; after a few trials this will be easy to do. If the nose is stopped up so that it is almost impossible to breathe, one pipeful will make the head as clear as a bell. For sore throat, asthma and broncihitis, swallowing the smoke effects immediate relief. It is the best remedy in the world for offensive breath, and will make the most foul breath pure and sweet. Sufferers from the most horrible disease, ulcerated catarrh, will find this remedy unequalled, and a two months' use will cure the most obstinate case. A single trial will convince any one. Eating the uncrushed berries is also good for sore throat and all bronchial complaints. After smoking do not expose yourself to cold air for at least fifteen minutes. The berries are perfectly harmless, and there is no use in going to "catarrh doctors" while you can procure this remedy. They can be procured at any drug store. - Chicago Tribnne.

Bells For Sheep.

The cheapest and best insurance against dogs killing sheep are bells— plenty of bells. The sheep-dog is a great coward when in pursuit of mischief, and he wants to do it quietlywants no noise, no alarm. Bells bought at wholesale do not cost much. Buy a side of bridle leather at the courter s, on every sheep, if your flock is small. The price of one sheep will buy a gross of bells and leather enough and buckles to strap them. Put this gross of bells on a flock of sheep, and they will frighten every dog out of the field. Flockmasters are slow to adopt a simple and cheap remedy like this, but will go to the legislature, hire lobby influence, and spend sums of money to little purpose. Members of the legislature are fond of dogs themselves, and do not want them taxed. They own no sheep, and care but little about their protection .- South-

Fertilizers for Fruit Trees. There is nothing better than stable manure, but not enough can be had. Muck is good if we get the right kind, fibrous and not too much decomposed. It may be profitably composted with stable manure, six or seven loads to one of the latter, with ashes and salt. The coarse grass which grows on muck swamps, if piled up with it, helps decomposition. Salt was recommended as good fertilizer for all kinds of fruit trees. It helps to decompose plant food. Ashes are good, and leached ashes, 300 bushels per acre, are excellent on sandy soils, helping mechanical texture, and furnishing needed manural elements.—Rural New Yorker.

More Eggs. There should be more eggs on the tables of farmers and others who produce them. They are entirely wholesome and nutritious when fresh, and should take the place of meat as an article of diet when they are plenty and cheap. Besides "ham and eggs" and a "boiled egg for breakfast," there are many other ways of utilizing them - in wholesome puddings, omelets, custards, etc. There is more nutriment in an egg than in any other natural product of the same weight. Eggs are supposed so be particularly adapted, as food, to brain-workers, and is not all supposition, either. But what is good food for a brain-worker is not bad for a muscle-worker. A thoughtful farmer or mechanic should be classed as both a brain and muscleworker, and ought to be well fed.— Dr. Dickie.

To measure the height of a tree or other standing object, near enough for practical purposes, place a small mirror in level position on the ground at a little distance from the tree, then step backward until the top of the tree is reflected in the center of the mirror. The height of the tree equals your height multiplied by the distance of the tree from the mirror, divided by the distance you stand from the mirror.—Factory and Farm.

GOOD CEMENT. - One of the strongest cements, and easiest applied, is lime and white of an egg. To use it, take a sufficient quantity of lime and mix thoroughly. Apply quickly to the edges, and place them firmly together, when it will soon become set and strong. Plaster of paris will answer in place of lime.

How to Make Coffee.—It is not at all dificult to make good coffee. That it is so often spoiled in the making is a perpetual wonder to us. Given, good coffee, boiling water, a clean coffee pot, a good fire, and condensed milk or cream, it seems to us that a most delicious beverage is sure to result.

English sparrows were introduced nto the country in 1858, by Mr. Deblois, of Maine. They were brought to New York by the Commissioners of Central Park in 1864, in Boston in 1868, and into the public squares of Philadelphia in 1869 by the municipal authorities. In the twenty years that have elapsed since the first English sparrows were brought to the United States, they have increased amazingly. There are milions of them, and they are to be found in nearly very section of the country, and the fear is expressed by many that they will eventually become a great nuisance, as they are not only destructive to fruit buds and fruit, but two grain fields also, and are so pugnacious as to make fight against all other birds, generally succeeding in driving them away. They will singly attack birds three times their size, and when occasion requires it they will combine and make such presistent and fierce attacks that they generally conquer.

Of Catarrh:

Giallemen,—Thereby certify that I have had Catarrh for ten years, and for the last six years have been a terrible sufferer. I was rendered partially deaf, had buzzing in the head, pains across the temple, dizzy spells, weak and paintal eyes, swollen and ulcerated tonsils, hard and constant cough, severe pain across the chest, and every indication of consumption. My head ached all the time. The matter accumulated so rapidly in my head and throat that I could not keep them free. Frequently at night I would spring out of bed, it seemed to me, at the point of suffocation. I would then have recourse to every means in my power to dislodge the mucus from my throat and head before being able to sleep again. For aperiod of six years my tonsils were ulcersted and so much inflamed that I could with difficulty swallow. I finally consulted an eminent surgeon in regard to an operation on them, but at his request postponed it. The constant inflammation and ulceration in my throat caused by the poisonous mater dropping down from my head had so irritated and inflamed my lungs that I coughed incessantly.—a deep, hard cough. Meanwhile my system began to show the effects of this disease, so that I lost fiesh, grew pale, and showed every symptom of an early death by consumption. When matters had reached this stage, or about six months ago, I began the use of SANFORD's RADICAL GURE FOR GATARHIL. After using the first bottle I began to have of san to improve rapidly. The first does exemed to clearny head as I had not known it to be for years. It seemed gradually to arrest the discharges. It stopped my cough in three days. By using it as a gargle I soon reduced the inflammation and swelling of my tonsils, so that they soon cassed to trouble me. The sorcess across my chest disappeared, the buzzing noises in my head cessed, my senses of seeing and of hearing were completely restored, and overy symptom of disease that had reduced me to the verge of the grave disappeared by the use of SANFORD's RADICAL GURE FOR GATARHI.
