THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1878.

The Exposition of Paris will open to visitors May 1.

The House bill to repeal the law providing for the coinage of twenty cent silver pieces has been passed by the Senate.

The repeal of the Bankrupt law strikes in the House, but will probably be passed by that body before adjourning.

An "honest money league" has been formed in the town of Buchanan, and are taking the active part. This is one of the strong holds of the Nationalists.

Those who know best about it say that Beecher has so far injured himself by the Beecher-Tilton affair as to wholly unfit him for preaching the gospel, and ask that he step down and out.

A severe storm has visited nearly the entire western country, covering Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri and Tennessee, the last week, in many places doing great damage by heavy winds and hailstones, to lives and property. The heavy fall of rain has been general in all of this section.

The greenback inflation party is now linked to the passengers of a staunch ship at sea, when a squall was approaching, put off in a skiff for safety. Now the squall is over and specie resumption is at hand, they are still in their skiff and drifted so far that it requires a bit of humiliating exertion to return to the ship.

The Republican State Central Committee held a meeting in Detroit on Thursday, and it was decided to hold the State Convention in Detroit on Thursday, June 13. It is gratifying to know that the members of the committee and prominent Republicans present at the Wednesday meeting were strongly in favor of a sound currency platform, and the righteous principles which have been upheld by the party since its organization.

Heavy defalcations are now the order of the day. But a short time since the Treasurer of a large manufacturing establishment in Fall River, Mass., to the amount of a half million of dollars, and now it turns out that George T. Hathaway, a cousin of Mr. Chase, the former, and Treasurer of the Border City and Sagamore mills, at Fall River is a defaulter to the tune of $800,000 or $700,000.

Now that resumption is an actual fact and the gold coin is being used in many places as freely as the greenbacks, the fault-finders call it a sophist move, and that legal resumption and actual resumption are different things, and that the first is to be shunned as that which is to plunge the country into utter ruin. How absurd that to legalize an act that the welfare of the country demands for a prosperous condition of its business interests, and which those interests have already placed in operation, should have so ruinous an effect upon the country.

The National Greenback-Independent-Inflation Party, having run short of something to find fault with, have issued a forged circular with the heading of the New York Banking Association, and apparently signed by James Buell, Secretary, and distributed it among banks and newspapers throughout the West, asking for an insertion and an editorial comment, all to be paid for at advertising rates. The circular reads as follows:

"The prospect is that in six months there will not be a greenbacker left in all the land. Overtures have been made by the leaders of the greenback movement to President Hayes to abandon the greenback cause, providing he will give good official positions to about twenty of the most blatant of the clamorers for more money that is based on nothing."

Besides this circular another has been sent, advising banks to do all in their power to sustain such of the press as will oppose the issuing of greenback paper money, and to withhold patronage or favors from all who are not willing to oppose greenback or government issue of paper money. Also advising them to be sure and see their member of Congress at once, and engage him to support the interests of the bankers. It is only necessary to say that no such circulars were ever issued by that association, and the first Mr. Buell ever knew or saw of them in the papers that published them, and from bills sent for remittances. Both were base forgeries gotten up by the National party for political buncombe. Mr. Buell is endeavoring to find the perpetrator of this joke with the immediate prospect of giving him the benefit of the law regarding forgeries.

From Three Oaks.

The national financial adjusting party met at their hall, on Friday evening, to listen to a speech by Gov. Levi Sparks, of Buchanan, Mich. Mr. Sparks appears to be a jovial, good natured sort of a fellow, at least he said so. He commenced by eulogizing the Democratic party; said it once had been the party of the People. (Cheers from the Democratic corner.) He then referred to the noble record of the Republican party. (Cheers from the Republican side.) Then he said the Democratic party had been the tool of the slave power, and the Republican party the tool of the money power; that the Greenbackers were laying around loose; that a spontaneous collection of them had met at Toledo, and their having the largest National Convention was to prove their principles were right. He said the outs wanted to get in, (cheers) and the ins wanted to stay in. (One cheer from the Three Oaks Postmaster.) He said the Three Oaks P. M. held his office at the instigation of a Democratic Postmaster General, who never voted the Republican ticket; that the two old "skin flint" parties were trying to whip the "Baby"—and told the story of the boy who whipped his dad, (but that did not prove the boy the best financier.) He quoted from the platform; said he had none with him to refer to, (although the editor of the Independent was present who advertised platforms at 10 cents per dozen); referred often to the "skin flint" Democrats, money sharks, peelers and skinkers; the angel Gabriel passing athwart the heavens, and once referred to hell, hard pan, bad rock, skiff and letter. That intrinsic value that so many speak of was all dogeodge, a sophistry, a fancy, a bubble, and that they would create money; admitted that the National bank paper now in circulation is the best that ever circulated in this country; said if he had money he would be a National banker. There were two ways of making a paper dollar worth a gold dollar. One way is to make it a gold dollar. Banks are redeeming, but the people wanted the greenbacks. He said when Sherman went to New York, the greenback went up, and January next the bankers would go down and take what little gold Sherman had. Said they proposed to take Congress before 1880, and then would take the Government and at once repeal the Resumption act. (Cheers.) Said he would inflate, (cheers) didn't believe that the President or Congress has a right to say how much money the people shall have. Let it adjust itself to the wants of the people. (I suppose the real meaning of the latter is to have a few financial adjusters throughout the country, for instance one at Buchanan and one at Three Oaks.) He referred to Dick Traveler, quick; but Dick could not travel quick the first time he was here until friends raised him $1.50 to travel on with.

One other speaker said they intend making paper dollars with no time set for resumption, and put them in circulation, instead of currency—and another said they would call them dollars because they were called inflationists. They passed around the hat and I noticed they did not favor the greenbacks just then—hard money was used. Adjourning.

One Who Was There.

The Republican national platform in 1865 contained the following passages: "We denounce all forms of repudiation as a national crime; and the national honor requires the payment of the public indebtedness in the utmost good faith to all creditors, at home or abroad, not only according to the letter but to the spirit of the laws under which it was contracted."

"The best policy to diminish our burden of debt is to seek to improve our credit; that capitalists will seek to loan us money at lower rates of interest than we now pay, and must continue to pay, so long as repudiation, partial or total, open or covert, is threatened or suspected."

The Democratic platform for the same year contained the following: "Where the obligations of the government do not expressly state upon their face, or the law under which they were issued does not provide, that they shall be paid in coin, they ought in right and justice to be paid in the lawful money of the United States."

* * * Equal taxation of every species of property according to its real value, including government bonds and other public securities. * * * One currency for the government and the people, the laborer and the officeholder, the pensioner and the soldier, the producer and the bondholder."

Upon these platforms the two parties joined issue. The canvass was conducted by the publication in favor of the payment of the public debt, principal and interest, in coin, unless expressly agreed to the contrary; while the Democracy argued in favor of paying the debt in treasury notes, not bearing interest and not redeemable at any time, unless there was an express agreement to the contrary. Horatio Seymour, the Democratic candidate for President, even went so far as to take the stump in favor of the platform of his party, and to throw the weight of his character and eloquence on the side of repudiation.

If the people ever understood an issue and voted fairly and squarely upon it, it was in 1868. They elected U. S. Grant on the Republican platform by 305,000 majority of the popular vote and 194 majority of the electoral vote, with a Congress strongly Republican in both branches to back him.

In March, 1869, within a fortnight of Grant's inauguration, there was passed that famous "act to strengthen the public credit," declaring in substance (like the Republican platform quoted above) that the whole bonded debt of the country should be paid, principal and interest, in coin, unless expressly agreed otherwise. Under that act the aggregate national debt has been reduced $480,000,000, and the interest on our bonds has been reduced to half of what it was in 1868. There is $38,308,000 less interest paid per annum than nine years ago, and the 4 1/2 per cent bonds of the United States are worth as much in the market as the six per cent bonds were at that time.

With the finances of the country on this improved basis, with our currency of treasury notes, national bank notes, gold and silver coin, within a trifling fraction of equal value all around, why should the cry of "fraud and swindling" be raised, in the face of the decision of this precise question in the election of 1868, and in the face of the immense benefit of reducing the burden of annual interest? If men would be patient and cease their inflammatory outcries against capital for three months in this country, capital would rapidly seek for profit in manufacturing and other kinds of business, and labor would have employment and good wages.—Lansing Republican.

The Dog Tax.

NEW ZEALAND—CHRISTMAS IN THE COLONIES.

The observance of Christmas comes with Christmas eve, when services are held in most of the churches, and some of them are of a very high order. The celebration of the birth of Christ is observed on the 25th of December, and the services consist of the usual form of evening prayer, after which the congregation, led by the excellent choir, sang Christmas carols until the service closed. The church, which is a fine Gothic structure, was beautifully decorated, a description of which I quote from a local paper: "From the junction of the arched ribs, massive festoons of evergreens and lot (a beautiful pampas grass) were carried to the corbels on either side, where they were finished, with the rich coloring of choice flowers, and from the point of junction with each arch overhead was a pendant of evergreens, at the end of which was suspended a large open work basket, filled with choice ferns, variegated geraniums, lobelias, etc., the whole imbedded in delicate mosses. Along the whole of the church was a series of these festoons and hanging baskets, and in the chancel a similar decoration was employed, but with two pendant baskets, placed towards the sides. These were composed of choice flowers, exquisitely arranged. In the center of the chancel was a pyramidal group of pot plants, composed of choice conifers and ornamental foliage and flowering plants. In the adornment of the choir stalls, bouquets and flowers were largely used, and for the reading desk, light wreaths, principally composed of ferns and flowers. The pulpit was adorned with an elegantly worked wreath of evergreens and flowers, both at the upper and lower edges of the panels, and with the two lines thus formed, loops of evergreens and flowers were used. The centre of the front, was occupied by a beautifully grown tree, fern, springing from a ground-work of evergreens and flowers and on the steps of the front choir plants in blossom were arranged. Over the entrance doors triple wreaths of evergreens and flowers were placed, and a wreath was also carried along the upper side of the chancel arch."

As you can only imagine, produced a brilliant glow in the evening, with hundreds of gas jets burning. Christmas day is observed as Sunday, with every thing being quiet and all places of business closed. The day following Christmas is a general holiday, also, and is called "boxing day," when the midsummer sports take place and the day is given over to general hilarity, all business being at a stand still and every one bent on having a good time. "The new year" was ushered in by a general fusillade of fire crackers, guns, pistols, etc., and the ringing of all the bells in the city, while troops of boys, dressed in all sorts of fantastic costumes paraded up and down the streets until long past midnight, some with life and drums, others singing in chorus such familiar airs as "Marching through Georgia," "John Brown," and just about daylight I heard a trio of full grown voices under my window, badly mixed up in, "We won't Go Home till Morning," "Johnny Fill up the Bowl," and "Who Will Care for Mother Now?" In all this, hilarious singing I heard none but American melodies, and saw no loud, boisterous, profane, fighting parties, such as I have seen under similar circumstances in older and more enlightened countries.

The police at Galesburg, Ill., succeeded Tuesday morning in arresting a gang of youthful burglars, aged from 12 to 16 years, who had been committing their depredations in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy territory. Large quantities of tobacco, cigars and confectioneries have been stolen; much to the annoyance of the company.

LETTERS OF E. G. BEARDSLEY, NEW ZEALAND.

The people of the colony, as a rule, are very polite. Buy but a penny stamp at the postoffice, the official thanks you, and so at the government telegraph office and railway ticket office. The bar-maid thanks you for the sixpence you pay for your glass of sherry and the good deacon who passes the contribution box in church, bows his head and moves his lips, evidently expressing his thanks to each depositor. "Ode hears none—or very little—profane language, and the habit of chewing tobacco is almost wholly unknown, or if practiced to any extent, carefully concealed. Smoking is very general and mostly paid for in good cigars are exported. All drinks of the bar—I am told—are sixpence each, but colonial beer, bottled English ale, brandy or whatever you choose to call for. When you drive on the road, meeting another vehicle, you invariably turn out to the left. Two wheeled vehicles are mostly used, the hansom cabs in the streets and the dog carts on the country roads; farmers use heavy carts instead of four wheeled wagons for farm use, and when they come to town or church with their families, come in a spring cart, a modification of the dog cart for more general use. There are few American buggies in use, but mostly of the side spring concord pattern and very heavy. Reptiles are entirely unknown in the colony, it being supposed that when St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland, he did a likewise good thing for New Zealand. At the theater our dress circle is the stalls, and the gallery the dress circle, and the ladies leave their hats, with their wraps, in the cloak room. Between acts the gentlemen all go out "to see a man," and the people are just as apt to commence before the curtain drops as in many other places. Cricket is the national game here, base ball being almost entirely unknown. The churches are, many of them, in debt, and people complain about government taxes exactly as they do in Aurora. Altogether, the country or the people disappointing you, the country very incapable beautiful and her people most excellent, and hospitable to a fault.

Washby Begins to Cheer Up.

I feel rejoiced, for things are as they should be. The Northern Democracy have repented in sackcloth and ashes for the devilishness from docting during the four years of war, and they get down to where they belong. We use the South are running the Government. The gray uniform is now a badge of honor, and we walk the streets of Washington with head erect and with a scorn for them who want our officers. What we lost at Appomattox we have regained at Washington. We control the Senate, next year we will have the House, and in 1880 we will have left us the Presidency, which is to say we will have a Democratic President, one in name as well as in fact. We use the South will have all the officers, instead of a little over half, and we shall then have things our own way, exult ye. Then, "Hallelujah," it is encouraging. I am not without hope; that I may be Postmaster us the Corners myself before another month glides gently into the fucher. In politics, now, almost anything is possible.—Toledo Blade.

One of the repudiation shriekers declares that since 1865 the volume of our circulating medium has been reduced more than $1,200,000,000 by retiring or destroying the people's money (greenbacks), and this is one of the "objections" which the people have to "retire and condemn." Johnson's cyclopaedia—the best historical and statistical authority in the country—in its article on "Currency," says that in 1865 the total paper circulation of the United States was $669,000,000; in 1866, $750,000,000; and it fell from that point to $692,000,000 in 1869, but rose again to $782,000,000 in 1873. This was the highest point ever reached by our paper currency, and it was simultaneous with the great financial panic. An inflated currency therefore did not save our business interests from injury or ruin. The "yearn" that our medium has been reduced $508,000,000 more than it ever was, thus gets complete refutation from Johnson's cyclopaedia. The idea is a clear impossibility and contradiction on its face. We suppose these repudiation shriekers mean to include as circulating medium several forms of interest-bearing notes and obligations which the government issued. But this is supreme nonsense, for the interest-bearing obligations were all hoarded by capitalists, banks, etc., just as rapidly as they fell into their hands. They were chiefly issued in large, not small denominations, the lowest being $10 compound-interest notes, while most of them ran up to $50 and $100 or over; they have kept it for sale, instead of putting it into active business. It has been no more used for the general purposes of money than jewelry, or bullion. But now that specie payments are partly resumed, nothing is to be made by keeping gold coin for sale for a few special purposes. Its owners cannot afford to let it lay idle, now that there is no longer anything to be made by holding it for a rise. Therefore the whole volume of gold coin in the country, outside of the National Treasury, will be, and is being, added to the volume of circulating currency. Its owners are beginning to put it into business and other investments. On this point the New York Bulletin says:

"Only a small part of the $150,000,000 gold coin which is estimated to be held in the whole country has for the last 18 years been used actively as money. By far the largest part—fully three-fifths—has simply been a hoard of merchandise, and as such it has had to be carried the same as any commodity. It has no special slight difference between old dollars and legal-tender notes disappears, then this whole stock will immediately be added to the active circulation, and this will cause such an expansion in amount as has not been seen since the war closed, and such in reality as has not been known to this country since suspension at the beginning of the war. It is not surprising, therefore, that farsighted men have already begun to take steps to buy various kinds of property, or that at the Stock Exchange—which is the first to reflect general changes—the buying movement has already set in."

Thus, resumption, instead of contracting the currency, will add at least one hundred millions of dollars—real coin dollars—to the currency.—Evening Telegraph.

COPELAND. HIS HISTORY.

The Career of a Rascal.

For the benefit of those of our readers who have held most perfect confidence in L. F. Copeland, and have taken him to their special care, that he might live a "virtuous and upright life," and that none others of our townpeople may be led astray or be entrapped by the rascal, we publish the following short sketch of his eventful life, which we condense from papers and letters in our possession: He was born in West Rush, Monroe county, N. Y., in 1841. His father was a poor man, a common laborer, and a drunkard, and was reported to have been killed in a drunken brawl in a low gambling place in Cleveland, in 1852, although this is not certainly known. The children, five in number, were taken by relatives and cared for, Lucius being taken by an uncle near Scottsville Station, on the C. & B. R. R., and by the next efforts of the family, he being the youngest, was given a liberal education. When he was about fifteen, he, with his youngest brother, Philetus, who was drawn into it by L. F., broke into and robbed the Station House at Scottsville of six tickets to Elmira; and soon after broke into their uncle's house and stole a watch and other valuables, for all of which they were arrested and sent to Rochester Penitentiary for six months. After their release Lucius worked for two years as a farm laborer, and then went to Macedonia, where he learned the harness maker's trade. He then went to Rochester and worked as a journeyman, and from there he went to Unionville, where he worked for a while. Wood, after working three or four months he married Miss Adelia Wood, daughter of his employer, and entered into partnership with her father. In the spring of 1866 he left his wife at home and went West in search of a place to locate, and was gone about eight months. During his absence he worked at Hudson, Ohio, and boarded with a widow named Jacques, to whom he was engaged to be married; but, having borrowed a ring and gold watch of her, went back to Unionville, and taking his wife went to St. Louis, where a daughter was born to him, which was named Nellie. Having communicated to his wife a loathsome disease he left her, since which time she has never seen him. The next we hear of him he turns up in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, as a Methodist minister, where he married a young lady by whom he had a daughter, whom he also named Nellie. While in that place, he being intrusted by an insurance company to operate for them, he negotiated a loan of $10,000 with Mr. Angel, and being empowered by Mr. Angel to draw the money, he took it and another man's wife and left for parts unknown, and for a year or two succeeding this he was in Europe living on the results of the loan negotiations. He however returned to this country, and the next we hear from him he is in Knoxville, Tenn., in May, 1876, where he is reported to have traveled and preached in a half dozen different States under about fifteen different aliases, among which were Rev. O. W. Warren, of Massachusetts; Rev. W. Warren, of Wilmington, N. C.; Rev. W. F. Horton, of Canton, Mississippi; C. W. Copeland, of Milwaukee; Erumpodius W. Simmons, of Memphis, Tenn.; and Lucius F. Horton, of Pennsylvania.

In Knoxville he was an ardent worker in the M. E. Church, where he did some more preaching. He soon made application and was admitted to practice law, and reported for the Chicago Times and other papers, and in this capacity went to Greenville to report the death and funeral of Andrew Johnson. This, together with a letter of inquiry from Geneva, N. Y., where he had been known as C. W. Warren, brought out his previous record, and the publication of his career in the Press & Herald. This he attempted to throw from him by a card published in the Daily Chronicle, in which he said that the misdoings referred to his brother and not to himself. This created such an excitement that on the evening of the next day, August 16, 1876, he was treated to a coat of tar and feathers, and their left the place. While in Knoxville he boarded with a man named Daniel Lee, and was engaged to be married to his daughter. At the same time he was engaged to and in correspondence with Miss Derecker, of Geneva, N. Y., under the name of C. W. Warren.

In June following his being tarred and feathered, he came to this place and attempted to enter into partnership with the lawyers here, but was not kindly received by them, since which time he has been known by all in this vicinity. He came here with an expressed wish to live the life of an honest and upright man, and was kindly admitted to the families and private circles of some of the leading citizens, and now appears in his old role, as was noticed last week.

GALIEN ITEMS. April 24, 1878. An accident occurred a few rods east of this station last evening at half past seven o'clock. A German by the name of John Frederic Koch, in attempting to jump on a flat car near the engine, while the train was in motion, was thrown between the cars, and the remainder of the train rolling and dragging him some twenty rods, cutting both legs off close to the body and below the knees, and literally grinding them to atoms; also crushing both arms, one near the hand, the other near the body. Those who saw the accident rushed to his assistance as soon as possible, but only breathed a few times, and expired. He was a stranger here, and from whom could be learned from papers found on his person, a stranger in this country. An inquest was held. Verdict: An accidental suicide, and exonerating the railroad company from the act. A woman and her so-called husband came here from Laporte, last Friday night, to have "a little fun" with the boys. He fired himself up with stagger juice, and giving his Dolan some of the same, declared he would whip six of the best Galienites; but our fistfights didn't seem to be on the war path, but our constables did; for Mr. Carlo, after taking a pistol from the so-called war, along with Mr. Miller escorted them to the State line and told them to "git," and they "got up and got." A fight occurred last Sunday. Two chaps from Rolling Prairie came here to show their bravery and exercise their muscles. They undertook to crowd Tom Maddock off the sidewalk. This was too much for Tom's dignity, so he punched one above the eye. The other drew a revolver, but as the boys who stood by didn't scare 'em put it up, and they got in their buggy and started home to their mothers. Churehill is out with his buggy—as he calls it—a cross between a phonon and a skeleton. Dr. Smith and Emery will now take his mud.

They meet at Blakeslee's Hall Sabbath afternoons. Parents should see that their children give it due support. L. S. BRONSON. Best line of White Goods in town, at Higgins. Dodd's Drug Store. Howe late merchant of this place, as also the notes due him, have been placed in my hands for settlement, and collection. All persons knowing themselves to be indebted to said H. J. Howe, either by note or on account, are requested to call at my office and make payment or settlement thereof as soon as practicable, thereby saving costs and expense. Buchanan, Mich; March 26, 1878. B. M. FULTON.

Noble's, for a few days longer. Large stock lawn curtains very cheap, at T. M. Fulton & Co's. Kid Gloves. A big bargain at 50 cents per pair, at High's. A full line of Domestic Goods lower than ever before. Look before you buy, at T. M. Fulton & Co's. Opera Kids at High's, 75 cts. per pair. Wall Paper in all the best and latest styles, at High's, 25 cts. per roll. An astonishing fact. A large proportion of the American people are to-day dying from the effects of Dyspepsia or disordered liver. The result of these diseases upon the masses of intelligent and valuable people is most alarming, making life actually a burden instead of a pleasure, extending to the mind and usefulness it is ought to be. There is no good reason for this, if you will only throw aside prejudice and skepticism, take the advice of Druggists and your friends, and try one bottle of Green's August Flower. Your speedy relief is certain. Millions of bottles of this medicine have been given away to the afflicted, and the results are results in every case. You can buy a simple bottle for 10 cents, but the doses will relieve the worst cases of Dyspepsia, indigestion, and other ailments. Nervous Debility.
