Boncourt Castle.

I dream of the days of my childhood; I shake of my tresses of gray; I call to my mind the home-places I long had deemed vanished for aye.

High over the shadowy ledges, A castle rises in state; I know the spot, 'tis my dear home— I know the stone bridge and the gate.

Distinctly upon the escarpment Each lion appears with a frown; Salute each old-time acquaintance, And quickly the courtyard around.

And there lies the Sphinx by the fountain And thither the churchyard is green; And yonder I step my first slumber, Behind that antique casement's screen.

Then slowly I enter the chapel, And seek out mine ancestor's graves; There sit and there from the column His swarthy drops down to the pave.

My eyes, tear-bemisted, cannot follow The monument's deep-green lines; Through the stained glass of the window The sun fall and bright on it shines.

So standeth thou, home of my fathers, Thus fixed in my memory dear; Though of thy one splendid foundation The plot lands give many a year.

No fadings, O garden below! I bless thee with heart and soul; I wish thee to bless him who ever Thy yearn to the plowshare doth guide

And thou wilt rise up, no bowe me; My harp will I take in my hands, And far over the Earth will I wander, And sing of my home in all lands.

BIANCA, THE TAMBOURINE GIRL.

BY LOU LAINE.

"Go away instantly, I say! Leave the place at once! We don't allow tramps around here!"

The speaker was a kindly, good-natured woman, who stood before the door of her little white cottage, nestled among the New Hampshire hills, and with a gesture of impatience ordered the old organ-grinder and the little tambourine girl to leave her door. They turned to obey, when little Harry Thorne spoke up—

"Oh, mother, see the little girl! How much lovelier she looks! And, mother, she looks like a real prima donna."

Mrs. Thorne turned quickly. How strange that she had not noticed it before. The little girl did surely look like her dead daughter. With tears in her eyes she drew the child toward her.

"What is your name, my child?" she asked.

"Bianca Correni, madam."

"How do you come to be here, Bianca?" inquired of the organ-grinder, who was waiting in the last stage of consumption.

"No," he said, feebly. "She's just a nobody, without kith or kin, that I found in New York, and took along for convenience."

The old man had hardly finished this sentence when he fell to the ground. Farmer Thorne arrived on the scene, lifted him up, but it was found that life was extinct.

What was Bianca's grief on being told that wild was dead. He had been her only friend and protection from earliest childhood.

The old man was buried by the town authorities, and then the question arose as to what was to be done with the child.

"She must be sent to the poor house," they said.

"Must she go to the poor house, mother?" asked Harry.

"Oh, my dear boy, you must come with me! It may be of some advantage to hear the new primadonna. They say she's divine. Everybody is raving about her. Surely you would not miss a chance to see Bianca Correni."

"Bianca Correni?" cried Harry, in amazement.

"Yes, the new prima donna, you know. And here we are now. Come now—you shall see her."

"Without a word more Harry suffered himself to be led into the open house. As one in a dream he took his seat. Bianca Correni a prima donna! What could it mean?"

He had not long to wait. The curtain rose, and revealed to his startled gaze Bianca—his Bianca—the stage, and fairly ablaze with jewels. The house shook with the thunder of applause which greeted her. Harry devoured her every feature. Yes, it was his own adopted sister, the little tambourine girl, now the idol of the public.

"And the poor family's son forgotten forever!" he thought, as he gazed at the girl on the stage.

"Magnificent creature, girl!" said his friend, noting his admiration. "Not at all like the rest of them—all paint and powder on the stage, and frightful to behold when you approach near enough to see through the disguise."

At that moment, Harry fancied he caught the singer's eye. For a moment he saw her start and gasp convulsively, but only for a moment. Then she went right on with her delightful song.

He was right; she had seen and recognized him.

Just before the curtain fell on the last act, Harry caught a light look on the singer's face. Turning quickly, he saw a boy, who passed him a card, on which was written in a delicate hand, which he recognized at once—

"Will Mr. Thorne please follow this little boy for the sake of an interview with Bianca?"

Fred Crosby must have thought his friend insane, for he seized "his" hat, and hurried after the boy without a word of explanation or protest.

Arriving behind the scenes, he was ushered into a pretty room, and found himself face to face with Bianca.

"Harry, my brother?" she cried, rushing toward him with open arms. "Have you forgotten me, Bianca?"

"Forgotten you, Bianca? I think it is you that have forgotten me. It is a year since you have received a line from me, and I have been waiting for you ever since."

"A year! Harry! I wrote by every mail until we left Europe, and since arriving in America papa has visited the old village home, but he could learn nothing of me. Still, when Harry was just a child, he told me that he would find me for a Christmas present."

"Poor Harry's face flushed. How could he tell this beautiful creature that they lived in three rooms in a tenement house on the corner of Broadway and 14th street, New York? He could not tell her that he was a poor, struggling organ-grinder, and that he had no money to give her a Christmas present."

"Pardon my intrusion, sir, and madam. I am an Italian composer, traveling for my health. At the fair last night I saw your daughter perform wonderfully well, and I would like to tell you where she learned it."

The farmer stared at his wife, but neither spoke for a moment.

"Well, my dear boy, you must come with me! It may be of some advantage to hear the new primadonna. They say she's divine. Everybody is raving about her. Surely you would not miss a chance to see Bianca Correni."

Mrs. J. D. Ross bought a splendid new phonograph while she was in Chicago. It is a nice one.

WHORTLEBERRY pickers will have business now for a while. Pretty well, however.

The band gave an open air concert in the square of Oak and Front streets Saturday afternoon.

A change was made in the time-card of the Michigan Central railroad, as published in this paper.

WHORTLEBERRIES made their appearance in market in this place Saturday morning at eight cents per quart.

Our chickens are all dying with the Gripe. Who knows of a remedy? - Niles Mirror.

Ask Dr. Horn.

The reunion of the Soldiers and Sailors of Cass county will be held at Diamond Lake, August 22. Van Buren veterans will participate.

This will be a good season for bee hunters. A great many swarms have gone to the woods to take up their abode.

MISS MATTIE BROWN, compositor in this office, is taking a vacation this week visiting her sister Mrs. N. Nims, of Berrien township.

MARRIED.—Miss Arvilla Burrus, daughter of William Burrus, of this township, was married last Friday, July 4, to H. M. Alvord.

THE Inter Ocean of Monday contains an extended notice of the works of Eld. J. V. Himes, well known in this place.

THE heavy rain Sunday night and Monday was not a very pleasant thing for farmers who have harvesting to do, and that means nearly all of them.

THE agent of Louis Cook, the manufacturer of the Cincinnati cheap bugles, is in town with a stock of the different styles.

J. S. TUTTLE, of Niles, is said to have been Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School in that place for twenty-nine consecutive years.

THE Buchanan Band now receives the high compliment of being called, by good judges, the best band in this part of the State.

THERE are thirteen voters working in one manufacturing establishment in this place, not one of whom are mentioned in the new directory.

INSANE.—Last Saturday Mr. A. L. Drew, Supervisor of Chickaming township, took Mr. Henry Perham to the insane asylum at Kalamazoo.

THE costs in the case of Mrs. J. R. Boyce vs. Henry Schafer, amounted to over $300. Not a very profitable bond of whisky for Schafer and his drinks-men.

THE prospect for a very large crop of potatoes in this vicinity is good at present, and the prospect that the price will be small equally good.

COUNTERFEITS of the daddy dollar are in circulation in this vicinity. If any one offers to make you a present of one look out for it.

A CHILD named John Scheld, a young newsboy, was drowned in the river at South Bend, last Thursday. The body was recovered the next morning.

THIS far Buchanan has escaped the trouble and expense of a circus, and it is earnestly to be hoped it may continue to do so in the future.

TWO sheriff's sale notices have been running in the Niles Republican since December 12, on account of frequent adjournments of the sale.

SIX car loads of gravel from the Pokagon pit were left at Dayton Saturday evening, which is to be drawn on the road between that place and Mount Zion.

MR. W. O. HAMILTON cut and put into his barn over thirty tons of clover hay, from Monday morning to Thursday evening of last week.

A LENAWEE county school marm keeps her pupils from chewing gum by taking it away from them and chewing it herself. Can our teachers obtain a valuable hint from this?

THE Marshal of the village of Benton Harbor has given notice to all citizens of that burg to keep their dogs either muzzled or tied, lest the dogs get shot. Gallen proposes to try the same tactics.

THE knife game was in town Monday afternoon and Tuesday. If you could throw a two inch harness ring over a knife you won the knife or five cents. Cheap way of making money.

RED RIBBON meeting at the Presbyterian church Friday evening. Also election of officers. All who have an interest in temperance should be present.

A JOPLY company went from this place to Diamond Lake, Tuesday morning, for a fishing excursion. No one can doubt but that they are having a good time.

LIGHTNING struck the house of Moses Pike, of South Bend, Sunday night, badly shattering it, and injuring Mrs. Pike and two girls who were in the house.

A CASE in the Berrien Circuit Court, between William Hurley and Hoyt Collins, et. al., of St. Joseph, is creating considerable stir among the papers of that part of the county.

A BARN belonging to Mrs. Eleanor Swift, in Niles township was struck by lightning Monday evening. No serious damage other than to make a few splinters.

ACCIDENT.—Ellen Fox, son of Wm. H. Fox, fell from an apple tree on J. W. R. Lister's place, Saturday afternoon, and dislocated his right wrist. The dislocation was reduced by Dr. E. S. T. D.

THE son of A. B. Wright, who was mentioned in our "Three Oaks Items" last week as having injured his eye with a knife, so cut the eyes to allow the aqueous humor to escape, and will probably lose the use of the eye.

THE Michigan camp meeting at Bay View will commence July 29. Tickets will be sold by all Michigan railroads, up to Sept. 30, with return limit to Oct. 31, for two cents per mile each way. Are you going?

THE editor of the Berrien Springs Journal takes pains to accuse us of poisoning the labor of his ponderous brain in copying the list of apportionment of school funds from his valuable paper without giving him credit for it. We will not say he lies, for that would not be nice, but he does the same as we do when we are mistaken.

WE have in our possession to acres of land of the very best quality that can be bought now for $1,000 cash. Thirty-five acres are under improvement, a house and barn, a good well that cannot be drawn dry. This is a rare bargain, and to secure it application must be made at once.

HARVESTING.—Uncle John Rougl, spent his "fourth" in the harvest field by cradling a swath around a twelve acre field, and then did his equal share toward binding the remainder of the field after the reaper. This is considered a pretty good day's work for a boy of his tender years, which number 82.

NILES has set their traps to work on the street and in case they refuse to work, they are fed on bread and water diet. The consequence is Niles is becoming less bothered by tramps. Tramps and work usually mix about like water and oil.

THE Premium Lists for the Berrien County Agricultural Society have made their appearance, and those who wish to see them can do so by calling on Mr. N. Hamilton who has a supply. The Fair will be held in Niles, September 25, 24, 23, and 22.

THE sidewalks on the east side of Oak Street, from the race to the railroad, and on the west side, between Front and Fourth Streets, need the attention of the Marshal. There are several places that are in a dangerous condition for passers by.

ANY person wishing to secure a lot on the Crystal Springs camp-meeting grounds can do so by letter or personal application to the committee who will be on the ground each Tuesday until August 12, the day of the opening of the meeting.

THREE or four young fellows went from this place with one of Batchelor's teams, the Fourth, and when somewhere in the vicinity of Gallen, tipped into a ditch, and in some way managed to pretty badly demolish both themselves and the buggy. The boys have a peculiar faculty of keeping mum, and just how it was done does not transpire. They came home on the train the next morning.

THE heavy wind that preceded the rain Sunday evening, brought down the two tall stove pipes on the top of Oliver Dalrymple's building, without stopping for courtesy. Wheat shocks that were out at the time suffered the same fate.

PROF. HOWELL returned yesterday. He reports having had a splendid visit during his absence.

THOSE in this place who use coal for fuel are getting their supply on hand now. The greater part is sold by Captain Bartlett.

THE people of Benton Harbor claim that 5,000 people celebrated the Fourth in that village, and St. Joseph raises the amount to 8,000 for that place.

THE Post & Tribune of Saturday contained a four-page supplement with the proceedings and history of the first Republican State Convention ever held in Michigan, besides other historical items of interest.

THERE will be more bushels of wheat in this State this year than ever before. The crop in nearly all parts of the State is very heavy and of the best quality. In this vicinity the crop will, if possible, exceed that of last year.

CHARLES TERRIERE put his thumb against a "yankee whittler" while at work in Black & Willard's shop, Monday forenoon, and cut about half of the flesh from one side of it. It does not improve the appearance of the thumb very much.

IT is awful hard work for some people to celebrate the fourth. They come home looking as if they had been driven through a knot hole a dozen times, and don't get over it in a month. It is probably a great deal harder for the whiskey they spoiled.

REMAINING in the Post Office at Buchanan, Wednesday, July 9, 1879. Beeson, Martins, Foster, Griffin, Noble, Lowell, Joseph, Tull, Allen, Nobles, Henry, Tucker, Andrew J.

A PECULIAR CASE.—Yesterday morning J. B. Cornwall of Weesaw was brought before Justice Ballengee on complaint of John DeArmond, charged with assault and battery, and fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $14.95. The trial brought out the facts that the two men had been playing poker, when a dispute arose about the game, and Cornwall grabbed the stakes and at the same time struck DeArmond in the face. DeArmond made another complaint against Cornwall and had him arrested before he left the court room on another charge of assault and battery, and promises as soon as that is passed to have some other charge against him. When they get through fighting among themselves it is the duty of the Prosecuting Attorney to prosecute them both for gambling. The second trial is set for Saturday forenoon.

HARVEST WAGES.—We hear some complaint that $2.50 to $3.00 is being charged by some for harvest wages, however this we think is exceptional, the general price ranging from $1.75 to $2.00, and this, when compared with wages for other work, is high. Men who work in the gravel-pit for $1.00 per day, and board themselves without grubbing, should be content with $1.50 and board for no harder work in the harvest field. Since the commencement of what was known as the hard times in 1873 there has been a great cry about the use of machinery to throw laboring men out of employment, and it is just such demands on the part of the laboring men that compel the farmer to use machinery. The rule used to be in the "glorious times before the war" that one bushel of wheat should pay for a day's work, and the same was followed pretty closely during the rage of high prices, but to charge two and even three might be considered outrageous.

AN INTERESTING BOOK.—We have before us a copy of a book entitled "The Mistakes of Ingersoll," that at this time is of considerable interest. It contains Bob Ingersoll's noted lectures, "The Mistakes of Moses," and lectures on "Skulls." Also replies to his several works by Rev. David Swing, Dr. Ryder, Dr. Herford, the Jewish Rabbi, Dr. Gibson, Dr. Robert Collyer, Chaplain McCabe, Dr. Swazey, and others, compiled by J. B. McClure, and published by Rhodes & McClure, of Chicago. The great popularity of Ingersoll's lecture on "The Mistakes of Moses," and of those whose replies are published in this book, tend to make it one of more than usual interest at this time. It will be mailed to any address, by the publishers, on receipt of $1.00.

BUCHANAN, July 7, 1879. EDITOR RECORD.—In the last number of the Reporter appears an article under the signature of "Merchant" that ought to at least receive a passing notice, to show how some men can go off "half-cooked" when, too, there is not the least necessity for the waste of ammunition. When the paper came out and people read the article, many supposed "Merchant" was friend Franklin, of the Grange store, but he denies this "soft impeachment." From quite conclusive circumstances that have come to my knowledge, I am led to infer that the article was written by the editor of the Reporter himself. Why he should falsely accuse the Council of being "mean" and "misery," and then attach a signature to his production, in his own paper, is a question that probably only himself can answer. It is a procedure in journalism outside the usual practice of editors, I believe, and is usually only resorted to by those of the profession who are not manly enough to make an open attack. I quote from the article in question: "The action of the village board in refusing to put in a crossing is unaccountable. The reasonableness and justice of the cause of the petitioners should have influenced the board rather than a mean, miserly policy."

Now this is simply bold, and the writer must have been aware of it before his article went into print, for in the adjoining column to his "letter" he publishes the proceedings of the Council, and in them appears these two paragraphs relating to this question: "The committee on streets, side-walks and bridges, to whom has been referred the petition asking that a crossing be made over the M. C. R. R. at the south end of Oak street, asked for further time in which to report."

Moved by Mr. Roe, supported by Mr. Bates, that the committee be granted until the next meeting of the Common Council in which to make their report. Motion adopted."

Can any one construe the above quotation to make it mean that the Council refused to grant the prayer of the petitioners? So far as the necessity of more crossings of the railroad track is concerned, nearly all will agree with him, and I do not think a single member of the Council will question it. That people are sometimes detained at the Portage street crossing is a well-known fact. But how can it be avoided at present? Is not "Merchant" aware that the Common Council of Buchanan has no more right to appropriate the property of the M. C. R. R. Co. and make a wagon road through it than it has to appropriate his garden and make a street through that? If he is not let him inform himself, and he will find that in order to make a crossing over the railroad track at the foot of Oak street, it will be necessary to first obtain the right of way, either by grant or purchase. This is the view the Council took, and the proper committee is endeavoring to ascertain what can be done, and the result of their labor will no doubt be made known at the next meeting.

MEMBER. ITEMS FROM DAYTON, July 7, 1879. Quite a number went from this place to Michigan City, some to Kalamazoo, Buchanan, &c., to spend the Fourth. The clerk of the reaper is heard, when it don't rain. Shephardson & Needham have sold in the Dayton market twenty-four Champion machines, (reapers and mowers), so you see Dayton is not dead. The M. E. Church has received a new coat of paint, and will soon be re-painted and grained inside. P. M. says "dot leadle paby grows fast and hollers like smoke."

There is to be a concert given by Dayton Sabbath School soon. Justice S. K. Wilson has turned over his books to his successor, John Gogle J. P. Cret says he can ride a goat now, joined the I. O. O. F. last week. Mrs. Frank Hamilton and Mrs. Kern do not recover very fast. PLUG.

ITEMS FROM BRIDGMAN, July 8, 1879. Splendid soaking rain. The Good Templars held an ice cream social a few days ago in Lemon's hall, which netted the Lodge over $13. The Fourth passed off very splendidly. The Odd Fellows secured the services of the Berrien Springs band. The procession formed at 10 A. M. at Odd Fellows hall, led by the band, followed by President of the day T. C. Hebb and the speaker, Rev. I. R. A. Wightman of St. Joseph, in a carriage, followed by the Odd Fellows in regalia, after whom came the Good Templars in regalia, who presented a fine appearance; then followed a long string of teams. The march was about three-fourths of a mile to Bridgman's grove, where was held a grand banquet picnic. The exercises consisted of an oration by Rev. I. R. A. Wightman; reading of Declaration of Independence by Dr. J. F. Berringer; music by the band; singing by the club club, etc. We noticed several teams from Stevensville; also several from Brown's. Hon. Alonzo Sherwood, of Weesaw, was also present and made a few remarks. Take it all in all it was a very pleasant gathering, and nearly everybody turned out and enjoyed themselves. The festivities closed with a ball in Lemon's hall in the evening. The barn of Mr. Taggart was burned about 11 A. M. on the 4th. We understand that carelessness in setting fires to burn brush is the cause. Wheat harvest is in full blast; also haying. Wheat is a good crop. LAKE SHORE.

ITEMS FROM THREE OAKS, July 8, 1879. Farmers are happy. Business men and laboring men the same, because of the favorable crop prospects. The wheat crop has matured and is now being secured. There are two things necessary to make business lively this fall and next year. The first we have secured, viz: resumption; the second is good crops, which are now being secured. However much the farmer may have to sell, the money will be on hand to pay for the same, without further intimation, and the paper dollar is equal in value to a coin dollar. Thanks for the good crops and the good dollar. Mrs. Capt. Bradley is at Three Oaks visiting among relatives and friends. Every one is glad to greet Mrs. B., the young as well as the old, and while she is here the Capt. is caring for those on the poor farm. The Fourth passed off very quietly in our village. Some became noisy from an overdose of beer, but a kind word from our worthy Marshal quieted them. Quite a good many went to the picnic at Wilkinson's, in Chickaming, and as many more went to Michigan City. All arrived home safe except Miss Belle Chamberlain, who was thrown from a carriage, fracturing a limb just below the knee. Dr. Wilcox of this place, and Dr. Greenmeyer of Niles were in attendance. Thompson & Co. bored a well for Mr. Hauser last week. They also put down a well for Mr. Helmholtz. They commenced at 8 A. M. and at noon had a well 27 1/2 feet deep, with 20 feet of water. Will McGee has bought a horse, buggy and harness, although he insists on going back soon to that orange grove country, San Bernardino, Cal. John L. Smith, of Portland, Oregon, writes some very interesting letters about that country and its people. John advises all poor men in this section of country, (his former home) and China, to stay at home and not come to Oregon or California. John is all right since he got into the Custom House. He is down on those who disregard the moral law and the statute law of Oregon. But, John, Josh has not paid the oysters yet. Those farmers who sell their wool before going to market, at less than market price, should take a paper and study market quotations. "Ed Wade" of New Carlisle, puts in an appearance quite often. He pastures a good many cattle and sheep in this section. Our gravel road is one of the best in Berrien county. Try it. Daniel F. Bommerheim, our popular landlord, goes to Chicago to-day, and to-morrow he starts for Philadelphia, Pa., where he has lived most of his lifetime, probably to stay. We will miss him, for no better fellow ever struck Three Oaks. Stephen Martin is opening a new grocery in the Hess building. Success to him. He is a competent business man and will succeed. Dr. Bonine called yesterday to see Miss Belle Chamberlain. A free fell and killed two beef cattle belonging to John Barkart, our butcher. Emma Stevens goes to Rev. Mr. Goslin's at Coloma, to stay until the close of M. E. Conference. Whortleberries are coming to market. The Good Templars are to have a raspberry and ice cream festival Wednesday evening next. John Foreman, of Chickaming, fell and broke his ribs. Henry Pefiam, of Chickaming, was taken to the insane asylum. He is in very poor health, and his mind is somewhat affected. Several years ago he had the spinal fever and has never fully recovered from its effects. He leaves his family in Chickaming, Henry was a hard-working, pleasant, gentlemanly fellow. School meeting next Monday evening. Ladies who are entitled to vote at school meetings should be there and assert their rights, as law and justice dictates. ITEMIZER.

COUNTY PRESS. [Niles Mirror.] Geo. H. Jerome discovered that some of the large gold fish in his upper pond at his residence had spawned to the extent of several thousands. Rosa Dean, a bright 13 year old daughter of Thomas Dean, was struck in the eye with a lighted fire-cracker on the 4th, and it is feared that the sight of the eye will be destroyed. [Niles Democrat.] Lisle Bacon, son of Mrs. Arabella (Knox) Bacon, while climbing a tree after a hawk's nest on Thursday of last week, had the misfortune to fall, striking the ground with his head and shoulders, producing serious injuries to the head and spine. The symptoms were quite alarming at first, but we are glad to hear that he is now improving, and strong hopes of his recovery are now entertained. [St. Joseph Republican.] George Clemens, a man who has been acting in the capacity of fireman on the government tug, now stationed at this place, was drowned in the river yesterday. It is stated that he became intoxicated, and in attempting to jump from the dredge on to a scow near by, missed his calculation and fell into the water, and sunk before assistance could reach him. The body was recovered in about a half an hour after the occurrence, and the Coroner returned a verdict of accidental drowning. He was a native of Baltimore, (Md) and was a single man.

W. A. SEVERSON, PRACTICAL DRUGGIST

Domestic.

Rice Cakes.—Take one cup of cold boiled rice, one pint of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, two eggs beaten lightly, and milk enough to make a thick batter; beat all together well and bake on a griddle...

Cabbage salad needs finely-cut cabbage according to the eaters, and this dressing: One egg, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, butter the size of a walnut, two tablespoonfuls of ground mustard, a little salt, and well together, then stir in one pint of cold vinegar, and continue to stir until it boils. Pour while boiling hot over the cabbage.

Potato salad in German fashion is thus made: Potatoes boiled cut evenly into slices, and while still warm mixed with five oils of oil. After having drained with this for a little while, add salt, pepper, chopped onions, and mix all this by shaking it up, and spoon upon the broken potatoes and make them unbroken; finally add good vinegar. Serve moderately warm. Should the salad get dry, freshen it up with meat broth.

Scalloped Eggs.—Make a force-meat of chopped ham—ground is better—fine bread-crumbs, pepper, salt, a little minced parsley, and some melted butter. Moisten with milk to a soft paste, and mix with a small quantity of cold water. Add the mixture. Break an egg carefully upon the top of each, dust with pepper and salt, and sit some very finely powdered cracker over all. Set in the oven and bake until the eggs are well set, about fifteen minutes. Eat hot. They are very nice. You can substitute ground tongue for ham.

Breakfast à la Parisienne.—Take a piece of rump steak about three-quarters of an inch thick; trim it neatly, and beat it with the cuttle back, sprinkle it with pepper, dip it in oil, and fry in butter over a fire a minute or two and keep turning it until done; eight or nine minutes will do it. Sprinkle with salt and serve with a small quantity of hot mashed potatoes and a piece of butter mixed together and placed over or under the steak. Garnish with fried potatoes.

Experience in Potato Culture.—Mr. Milo Lucens Smith, Northampton, Mass., who has grown from five to fourteen acres of potatoes annually for the last eighteen years, with an average yield, as his records show, of 215 bushels per acre, recently favored the Franklin Harvest Club with an instructive discourse of his methods of cultivation. We glean some points of general interest, borrowing liberally from the report of the Franklin Harvest Club, which declares that Mr. Smith and his father have raised and sold more of "the fruit that grows at the root" than any other family in the Valley of the Connecticut. The best soil for potatoes, according to his observation and experience, is a sandy loam and it should be soft or stubble ground. Well-rotted compost is the best manure, but ashes, dry-fish and guano are good, and the best manure for manure is apt to make the tubers scabby. His experience last year resulted as follows: Twenty loads of compost, worth $3.50, yielded 34 1/2 bushels; Phelps' Nitrogen fertilizer, worth $1.50, yielded 20 1/2 bushels; dry-fish and leech shells, worth $1.95, yielded 28 bushels; dry-fish alone cost $1.23, yielded 217 bushels; sea-fowl, cost $1.10, yielded 210 bushels. Mr. Smith would plant the early and late varieties of potatoes in the same field, and plant them in hills from two to three feet apart, varying with the rankness of the tops, and have the rows three feet apart. The seed should be the best and most uniform, and not the unmerchantable, as is often the case. He would cut the potato so that each piece should have from two to four eyes, and put only one piece in a hill, and the hills should be six feet apart, and a row of six hills, and one hour of exposure is sufficient. Those early dug are best. He had them stored in a bin twelve feet wide and about four feet deep with safety. Paris green, a teaspoonful to a peck of water, is the most effective remedy for the bug, but for the blight and rot he knows no remedy. The best variety in his judgment is the Snowflake, equal to the old Carter, but it has a large yield, and the same as the one that Early Rose. The Early Rose is good both early and late, but is on the wane. Peerless is a good market potato, yielding sometimes with him 340 bushels per acre. It is taken by the market for four to six bushels of seed per acre, and he has had about 50 years ago the farmers raised crops of from 400 to 500 bushels per acre by turning over a patch of soil, after the other planting, was finished, planting potatoes, and going through them once or twice with a hoe. Now ground is not quiet so plenty now, and possibly this accounts for smaller crops.—New York Tribune.

Hens Eating Eggs.—Of all the evil habits that hens can acquire, says the Poultry Yard, that of egg-eating is perhaps the most prevailing and unprofitable, and at the same time the most incurable. In the natural or wild state, the hen hides her nest in a thicket to protect it from her companions, male and female. Here the preservation of her eggs is necessary to her success in raising her young. As the domestic hen is well, it follows the natural order of things, all well, if we deviate from it to a greater or less degree, to a corresponding degree will disastrous results follow such action. As a means of prevention is worth a pound of cure, if there are several eggs in the nest, the hen will not sit on them, and she will be seen by the patient sinner, and will offer no temptation to acquire the vicious habit of egg-eating.

Fighting Ants.—The negroes of Mauritius have an interesting way of disposing of the termites, or white ants, which destroy their houses, when they get into the country. When they get the termites, they take them to a building, they drop a train of eggs from one of these ways to the nearest nest of black ants, and the black ants are very fond of sweets, but still more fond of the termites, and they discover the trap, and follow it up till they reach the termites passage, when they at once return to their nest, and they are for ever. In a few hours a black army of endless columns of ants, which they call "the white ants," starts for the termites, and before long, the termites are their enemies, and each one in its return home, carries a dead termite probably to eat.
