Is It Done?

BY ELLA WHEELER.

It is done. In the five's fitful flashes

In a tiny white heap of dead ashes

Lie buried the hopes of your world.

The last line has withered and curled;

There were mad, foolish yows in each letter-

And the ring-ah! the ring was a fetter-

It was better removed, and returned.

Where letters and tokens were cast,

Have you burned up the mind that remember:

Do you think, in this swift, reckless fashion,

To ruthlessly burn and destroy The months that were freighted with passion

The dreams that were drunken with joy?

Have you burned up the touch of warm fin

Or the sound of a voice that still lingers,

And hurts with its hunting refrain?

In spite of its strength of control?

Is it done? Is the life-drama ended?

Can the actors go home and forget?

and in sorrow, anguish, and weeping,

JUSTICE OF THE PRACE.

ever do justice to each other." And then she rang the bell and ordered the servants to bring tea, and pressed Bachelor Bunting to stay to partake of it. There was a maiden aunt of eighty in the house, to play propriety, and allow her to have as many bachelors to tea as she chose, and Mr. Bunting forgot his jealousy, and was once more happy. He was, truth to tell, very much in love with the widow, who was his junior by fifteen years. He liked the idea of living on the interest of her money, too. She was a good housekeeper and a fine pianist. She was popular and good-looking. He intended to offer himself for her acceptance as soon as he felt sure that she would not refuse him. But this dreadful Professor La Fontaine, with black eyes as big as saucers, and long side whiskers—black, also, as any raven's wing—had the advantage of being the widow's junior. This opportunity to make a fool of herself is so irresistible to every widow. It troubled his dreams a good deal-not that he thought him handsome. Oh, no!

But still, at fifty a man does not desire a rival, however he may despise him.
"She did not ask him to stay, and she did me," said Mr. Bunting, and departed, after a most delightful evening, during which the maiden aunt (who was at least as deaf as a post) snored sweetly in her chair. But alas! on the very next evening his sky was overcast. Professor La

Fontaine took the widow to the opera. He saw them enter the doors of the opera house, and having followed and secured a seat in a retired portion of the house, also noticed that the Professor kept his eyes fixed on the lady's face in the most impressive manner during the whole of the performance, and that she now and then returned

"It can't go on," said Mr. Bunting to himself. "I can't allow it. She'll regret it all her life. I must remonstrate with her. No woman likes a coward. Faint heart never won fair lady. She 'll admire me for speaking out." 'Il admire me for speaking out.''
And that very evening Mr. Bunting trotted up to the widow's house, full of a deadly purpose, and with a set speech learned off by heart. The speech he forgot as he crossed the threshold. The purpose abided with him. Those ware the usual remarks him. There were the usual remarks about the weather. The usual chitchat followed, but the widow saw that

Mr. Bunting was not at his case. At last, with the sort of plunge that a timid bather makes into chilly water, he dashed into the subject nearest his

"He's a rascal, ma'am, I give you my "Oh, dear! Who is it?" cried the widow. "That frog-eater," replied the bachelor. "Upon my soul, I speak for your own good. I am interested in your welfare. Don't allow his visits. You don't know a thing about him." "Do you allude to Monsieur La Fontaine?" asked Mrs. Hunter solemnly. . "I allude to that fellow." said Bach-clor Bunting. "Why, his very presence proves him to be a rascal. I—I'd enjoy kicking him out so much, I—"

"Sir," said the widow, "if you have n't been drinking, I really think you

"Ma'am!" cried Mr. Bunting.
"Perhaps, however, I should take no notice of such conduct," said Mrs. Hunter. "Perhaps I should treat it with silent contempt." "Oh, good gracious!" cried Bachelor Bunting; "don't treat me with silent contempt. It's my affection for you that urges me on. I adore you. Have me. Accept me. Marry me, and be mine to protect you from all audacious The widow's heart was melted. She burst into tears.

"Oh, what shall I say?" she sobbed "I thought you merely a friend. I—I -I-am engaged to the professor; he proposed yesterday evening." Bachelor Bunting had dropped down n his knees while making the offer.

Now he got up with a groan—not entirely caused by disappointed love, for he had the rheumatism. "Farewell, false one," he said, feeling for his hat without looking for it; "I lcave you forever.'' He strode away, banging the door after him, The widow cried and then laughed, and then cried again. In fact, she had a regular fit of what the maiden aunt called "stericks," and the chambermaid "high strikes," before she was brought to and prevailed on to drink a glass of wine, and something hot and comforting in the edible line. After which the thought of her fiancee consoled her. Days passed on. Bachelor Bunting did not drown himself nor sup cold poison.

The wedding was fixed.
The housemaid informed her friend that Mrs. Hunter "kept steady com-The maiden aunt, who had no income of her own, curried favor by being almost always in a state of appar-

The widow was in the seventh heaven of bliss, and all went merry as a marriage bell, until one evening, as the betrothed pair sat before the fire in the polished grate, there came a ring at the bell, and the girl who answered it soon looked into the parlor to announce the fact that a little girl in the hall would like to come in. "Oh, let her in," said Mrs. Hunter. I am so fond of the dear children in the neighborhood. It's one of them,

I presume." But, while she was speaking, a small but old looking girl, in a short frock, with a tamborine in her hand, bounced into the room, and throwing herself into the professor's arms, said with a strong French accent: Darling papa, have I then found you? How glad mamma will be! We hought you dead." "I am not your papa!" said the Frenchman, turning pale. "Are you mad, my dear girl?" That thrilled thro' each pulse and each voin, "No, no, no; you are my papa!" cried the child. "Do not deny your Estelle. Does she not know you? Ah, my heart, it tells me true. Dear mamma and I have almost starved, but she would never pledge her wedding ring, never. She plays the organ, I the tamborine. We have suffered; but You have put all the lights out, and yet, now papa will return to us. Ah, heaven!" tho' the curtain, rung do in, has descended. "My gracious! the morals of furriners; he'd have married missus!" cried With a strange restle-s pain at their hearts the servant girl at the door. Will dream they are playing their parts. "She tells one black lie. Never before have I seen her; believe me, madam!' cried the poor Frenchman.

"Oh! Alphouse!" cried the widow. But there, I will be firm. My best friends warned me of you. Take your hat-go! Never enter my presence again. Go with your unfortunate child-your poor, half starved little girl. Go home to your deserted wife

"Ah, madame, zese is falsehood!" cried the unfortunate Frenchman, losing his temper in his excitement. "Be-

"Out of my house!" cried the wid-"Peggy, open the door. Go! Oh, what an escape I have had!" The professor departed. Mrs. Hunter threw herself into a chair and burst into tears. After a while she grew more calm, and, taking a letter from a drawer, she perused it. "Ah, me! what deceivers these men are!" she said as she leaned pensively back on the cushions. "Only to think he could write a letter so full of love. and prove such a villian; but I am warned in time." And she tore the letter into fragments. The maiden aunt, who had not heard a word, demanded an explanation. Biddy howled it through her ear trumpet in these words: "The scoundrel has ever so many wives and families already, playin' tambourines for their bread—the ras-And in the midst the door bell rang and Mr. Bunting walked in with a polite bow, and approached the widow.

Biddy and the aunt slipped out of the room. "I called to apologize," said Bunting. "I was hasty the other day. Had I known the gentleman was dear to you, I should have restrained my speech. I wish you happiness; I—"
"Don't, please," cried the widow.
"He's worse than you painted him.
I've found him out. I hate him. As for me, I can never be happy again." "Not with your own Bunting?" eried the bachelor, sitting down beside

"I am afraid not."

"Are you sure?" "No, not quite," drying her eyes. "Then marry me, my dear, and try it. Do, oh, do!" Mrs. Hunter sobbed and consented.

After having a white watered silk made up and trimmed up with real lace it was too bad not to figure as a bride after all. She married Bachelor Bunting, and was very happy.

It was well, perhaps, that she had not the fairy gift of the invisible cap, and did not follow Mr. Bunting to a mysterious recess in the rear of the theater, whither he took his way after parting from the widow on the night of his engagement. There he met a little girl, small, but old looking, the same, indeed, who had claimed the professor as her papa, and this is what he said to her: "Here is the money I promised you, my child, and you acted the thing execcdingly well. I know that by the effect you produced. She believes that he's a married man, and he can't prove to the contrary. I knew you'd be able to act it out when I saw you play the déserted child in the trage-

Then $100 was counted into the little brown hand, and Bachelor Bunting walked off triumphantly. To this day his wife does not know the truth, but alludes to poor, innocent Professor La Fontaine as that wicked Frenchman. Cigars.

To the world in general a cigar is merely a thickly-rolled packet having brittle fragments of dry leaves within, and a smooth, silky leaf for its outer wrapper. When it is burnt, and the pleasantly-flavored smoke is inhaled, the habitual smoker claims for it a soothing luxury that quiets the irritable nervous organism, relieves weariness, and entices repose. Science, scouting so superficial a description. examines first the smoke, second the leaf, third the ash. In the smoke is discovered water in a vaporous state, soot (free carbon), carbonic acid, and carbonic oxide, and a vaporous substance condensable into oily nicotine. These are the general divisions, which chemists have still further split up, and in so doing have found acetic, for mic, buteric, valeric, and propionic acids, prussic acid, creosote, and carbolic acid, ammonia, sulphureted hydrogen, pyridine, viridine, picoline lutidine, collidine, parvoline, corodine and rubidene. These last are a series of oily bases belonging to the homologs of aniline, first discovered in coal-

Applying chemical tests to the leaves, other chemists have found nicotia, tobacco camphor, or nicotianine (about which not much is known), a bitter extractive matter, gum chloro-phyl, malate of lime, sundry albumi-noids, malic acid, woody fibre, and va-rious salts. The feathery white ash, which in its cohesion and whiteness is indicative of the good cigar, yields the fair—(the banker alludes either to potash, soda, magnesia, lime, phosphoric acid, silica, and chlorine. The ingredients extractable from a poor and cheap cigar would be fearful and wonderful to contemplate! Here is a list from a Parliamentary report on the lattr—(the bathed attraces either to the Leipzig or Frankfort fair of his time)—in order not to be obliged to pay. But that is not the way that wonderful to contemplate! At the sound of a pistol shot in a fight at a ball, in Las Vegas, New Mexico, the janitor turned off the gas, believing that darkness would stop the row. Pistols continued to go off without aim, but so damagingly that one man was killed by seven bullets, and many were less seriously hit.

A Pleasant Remedy for Toothache.

Baltimore Practitioner. "Our cook," says T. C. Osborn, M. D., Greensboro, Ala., "presented herself to me with a swollen cheek, asking for something to relieve the toothache, from which she had been suffering all night, and for which she refused to have the tooth extracted .-As there was nothing of the usual kind at hand, I was on the point of telling her to call around later at my office, or go to a dentist, when it occurred to my mind that there was in the house a 'compound tineture of benzoin,' which I had been using upon a young mother as a protection against sore nipples.

"After cleansing the decayed tooth, I saturated a pledget of cotton lint with the tineture and packed it well into the cavity, hoping this would suftice for the time, and bidding her come back in two or three hours if she was not relieved. I was turning away, when she remarked that it might not be necessary, perhaps, as the pain was already gone. Supposing her faith had a large share in the relief, I would not allow myself to think that th, medicine had anything to do with the cure any more than so much hot water would have done.

"But when I arrived at my office there were two other patients awaiting me with the same affliction, and I determined by way of experiment, to use the same remedy. To my agreeable surprise both patients declared themselves immediately relieved, and begged a vial of the tincture for further use. "During the winter a number of similar cases applied, and were instantly relieved by the same treatment, all expressing much satisfaction with the remedy. "In December I told my druggist of the discovery, and recommended him to sell it to any person applying for 'toothache drops." This he reports, he has done, and every one seems delighted with the medicine."

Literature in the Home. Among the many excellent suggestions made by Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, in her valuable book entitled "The Complete Home," we find the following suggestive account of a visit to a farm home:

"I was at Cousin's Ann's son's farm one day, and Reed was walking about with me showing his territories; and, indeed they were so well kept that they were a treat to see. The cattle looked like prize cattle. He had names for them all, and one handsome young heifer he called 'Books,' and a big sheep 'Maga,' which he informed me was 'short for magazine,' and a family of black Spanish hens ran to the call of 'Papers.' "I asked him what in the world it all meant. He told me that when he married, his mother gave him a pair of black Spanish fowls, and told him to let them keep him in newspapers. He accordingly called them 'Papers' for fun, and he found that their eggs and chickens would keep him hand-somely supplied with good newspa-pers. When the supply exceeded the demand he would lay the surplus by to begin a fund for providing his children with reading. His wife had suggested that the heifer should be dedicated to the cause of a library; and so he, after substracting the cost of the animals keep, meant to use her produce in buying books. The sheep had been a pet lamb, given to his wife by her sister, and she having paid her board, secured for them their maga-

"The truth is we were brought up on books, and we could not live without them. I expect to make a decent fortune here, but I received all my first notions of the value and care of stock from books and papers. I noticed all that I found on that theme; it interested me; I carried out many of the suggestions, and I found them valu-Cultivation and Absorption of Water. It seems from correspondence from East India the agriculturists there are noticing the effect of water absorption by deeply cultivated land, and its consequent ability to maintain vegetation, while shallow worked soil became parched and barren. Thus, in India as here, the question of substituting cultivation for irrigation is engaging the attention of the people. 'A writer in the London Agricultural Gazette maintains the affirmative of the proposition. It seems a cyclone visited the Madras country in May, and in a short time about four and one-half inches of rain fell. The observer writes: "I have rarely seen so marked a result of the after effects of the rough cultivation as this storm afforded. Although in most places the land hereabouts was broken up about a month or six weeks ago, after some unusual showers which fell then, the river which flows past my house rose rapidily, showing that evidently a very considerable portion of the rain which fell over the country in general ran off the surface. On some land which has been under, comparatively speaking, deep cultivation for several years, the surface drains scarcely showed that there had been any flow of water in most places. The significance of this fact can be well understood; for, if we can, by the simple process of deep-ening our arable soils, retain in them a great proportion of the rain which falls on them, we shall, of course, be better able to withstand drouths, by making use of the rains which do fall and which fall so frequently in heavy falls at widely distant periods.

A Rothschild Autograph. A sale of autographs at Frankfortou-the-Main recently brought to light a letter from A. M. Rothschild, the celebrated founder of the house of the same name. The letter is addressed to a Hessian minister and dated 1804.— The chirography has nothing remarkable in it, but the sentiments expressed by the good banker are worth quoting. they are as follows, fully explaining themselves: "So his grand-ducalhighness is not preparing for the payment? It seems that he believes that a Prince does not require to be exact in paying up; if that were so, I confess that, although I am well satisfied in my humble position, 1 should like to be prince for one single day—the settlement day of the third week of prince enjoyed such immense privithe prince paid up after this admonition. But the autograph is dumb on the subject.

An Iowa Falls woman put a couple of dozen eggs into her bed so that they shouldn't freeze while she was absent four or five days, and on her return late at night bounced into bed and bounced out again.

A Coin in His Crop.

An incident, says Chamber's Journal, will be in general recollection connected with the late Mr. Brunel, the eminent engineer, who planned the Thames Tunnel and the Great Western railway. One day while diverting a child with tricks of sleight-ofhand, by causing a half-sovereign to mysteriously disappear and reappear, a stunning disaster occurred. The trick consisted in advoitly concealing the coin in his mouth, and pretending to bring it out at his car. All at once, before he was aware, and to his dismay, the half-sovereign slipped down into his gullet. He tried to cough it up without effect. There it stuck. Every surgical device was tried to get hold of it without avail. It became evident that if the coin could not be dislodged, fatal results would ensue. In the dire dilemma into which he had needlessly brought himself, Brunel's presence of mind did not desert him. He devised a wooden structure to which he could be strapped head downward, in the hope that the half-sovereign would fall out of his throat by the force of gravity. He was fixed to the machine head downmost, keeping his mouth open. To his inexpressible relief, the coin dropped from its lurking-place and rolled to the floor. On one occasion a sword-swallower got into a fix even more dreadful than that of Brunel. He professed to be able to perform a trick with a bayonet fixed on the end of a musket. It was an awfully hazardous prank, far beyoud that of swallowing a sword. He held the musket aloft with the butt-end uppermost, and opening his mouth allowed the bayonet to go down his throat. Having got it this length, he clenched the part of the bayonet next the handle with his teeth, and holding the musket with his hands, to prevent it from swinging to one side or other, walked about with it in this perilous attitude on the stage. At a performance one day of the pipeful.

bayonet and musket trick, something was seen to go wrong. There was a stagger, a flutter. The observers were surprised, horror-struck. The swaying of the upraised musket had caused it to snap off at the part of the bayonet where it was sustained by the teeth of the performer, the result be-ing that the shaft of the bayonet was left sunk out of sight or reach in his throat. Anything more appalling than this can hardly be imagined. Perhaps in the agony of the moment the performer recollected the device resorted to by Brunel in similar circumstances. At all events, he instantly threw himself on his hands, and, with the aid of hisassistants, stood with his feet uppermost against the wall. The effort was successful. By its own weight the bayonet descended from its place in the throat, and at length it was pulled from the mouth.

Advice to a Theatrical Aspirant. A letter from Clinton, Ky., signed Brutus Booth Hawkins, asked the Detroit Lime-Kiln Club as a body whether it would advise a fairly-educated, average-looking young colored man to take the stage for a profession. He could, he stated, take the part of old man, young man, doctor of divinity or butcher-boy, and his imitations of a parrot or a blue-jay were simply immense. All he wanted, he believed was a little encouragement from his own race. He had worked some at throwing up a bed for a railroad, but he felt more at home behind the foot-"De queshun am one which kin be

The discovery of silk is attributed to one of the wives of the Emperor of China, Hoang-ti, who reigned about two thousand years before the Christian era; and since that time a special spot has always been allotted in the gardens of the Chinese royal palace to the cultivation of the mulberry tree—called in Chinese the "golden tree"—and to the keeping of silk-worms.—The first silk dress mentioned in history was made, not for a sovereign nor for a pretty woman, but for the monster in human shape, Heliogabalus.
Persian monks who came to Constantinople revealed to the Emperor

Justinian the secret of the production of silk, and gave him some silk-worms. From Greece the art passed into Italy at the end of the thirteenth century.— When the Popes left Rome to settle at Avinton, France, they introduced into that country the secret which had been kept by the Italians; and Louis XI. established at Tours a manufactory of silk fabrics. Francis I. founded the Lyons silk-works, which, to this day have kept the first rank. Henry II. of France wore the first pair of silk hose ever made, at the wedding of his

The word "satin," which in the original was applied to all silk stuffs in general, has, since the last century, been used to designate only tissues which present a lustred surface. The discovery of this particular brilliant stuff was accidental. Octavio Mai, a silk-weaver, finding business very dull, and not knowing what to invent to give a new impulse to the trade, was one day pacing to and fro before his loom. Every time he passed the ma chine, with no definite object in view he pulled little threads from the warp and put them to his mouth, which soon after he spat out. Later on, he found the little ball of silk on the floor of his workshop, and was attracted by the brilliant appearance of the threads. He repeated the experiment, and by using certain mucilaginous preparations, succeeded in giving new lustre to his tissues.

Owing to the disease of the vine, the area of the vineyards in France has decreased by about 4,000 acres since the year 1874; though a great portion of the soil in which the vine formerly flourished is unfit for any other culture. The area of vineyards in the country is at present about five million

A Smoke-as-You-Please-Match.

The following story of a pipe contest is told on the authority of the Reliquæ Hernianæ:

"1728, Sept. 5.—Yesterday, at two o'clock in the afternoon, was a smoaking match over against the theatre in Oxford, a scaffold being built up for it just at Finmous's on ale house evening." The chronicler, like many others of his time, was a great believer in the virtues of the narcotic weed, and he loses no opportunity to tell us of its merits. Under the date of Jan. 21, 1720-21, he says: "I have been told that in the great plague at London (i. e. 1665) none that kept tobacconists' shops had the plague. It is certain that smoaking was looked upon as a most excellent preservative. Insomuch that children were obliged to smoak. And I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was a veoman beadle, say that when he was that year, when the plague raged, a schoolboy at Eton, all the boys at that school were obliged to smoak in the school every morning, and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoak-

Tobacco pouches, boxes, and stoppers form a branch of the paraphernalia of a smoker that have a curious interest, and one of the directions in the early books of etiquette was:-"Gentlemen hung the tobacco bag on the arm as ladies do their reticule."-Expensive tobacco boxes were part of the outfit of Elizabethan dandies, and the old plays and pamphlets of those days contain frequent satirical allusions to them. These boxes were often cunningly engraved with quaint pictures, and were capacious enough to carry all a smoker required besides tobacco and pipes, tinder, flint, steel and stopper. n some of the old English ale-houses a public box was kept of ingenious construction. A penny dropped in at the proper opening drew back a bolt and allowed a drawer to open, from which the smoker could fill his pipe; but none could open it till he had deposited his penny. Beyond that his honor was trusted to take only one

Insect Stings.

The pain caused by the sting of a plant or insect is the result of a certain amount of acid poison injected into the blood. The first thing to be done is to press the tube of a small key from side to side, to facilitate the expulsion of the sting and its accompanying poison. The sting, if left in the wound, should be carefully extracted; otherwise it will greatly increase the local irritation. The poison of stings being acid, common sense points to the alkalies as the proper means of cure. Among the most easily procured remedies may be mentioned soft soap, liquor of ammonia (spirits of hartshorn), smelling salts, washing soda, quicklime made into a paste with water, the juice of an onion, tobacco juice, chewed tobacco, bruised dock leaves, tomato juice, wood ashes, tobacco ashes, and carbonate of soda. If the sting be severe, rest and coolness should be added to the other remedies, more especially in the case of nervous subjects. Nothing is so apt to make the poison active as heat, and nothing favors its activity less than cold. Let the body, be kept cool and at rest, and the activity of the poison will be reduced to a minimum. Any active exertion whereby the circulation is quickened will increase both pain and swelling. If the swelling be severe, the part may be rubbed with sweet oil or a drop or two of laudanum. Stings in the eye, ear, mouth or throat sometimes lead to serious consequences. In such cases medical advice should always be sought as soon as possible.

Wonderful Presence of Mind.

Clarence Connelly is a plucky man, and it is to his grit and coolness that he owes his life. A few days ago, while working in the Allegheny shaft, on east Fryer hill, he prepared a blast and lighted the fuse, and jumping into the bucket gave the signal to hoist away. The shaft is two hundred and forty feet deep, and when about forty feet were gained the toggling gave way and the bucket started back for the bottom of the shaft. Connelly felt it giving way, and managed to catch hold of the loop at the end of the rope. As soon as he found that he had a hold he began to yell to the men above. They, thinking he was in a hurry to get out of reach of the blast, put on extra steam and jerked him a hundred feet in a twinkling. When about fifty feet from the surface Connelly felt that his strength was giving way. He knew that he could not hold out until the top was reached, and made up his mind to risk a bold stroke for life. Throwing himself across the shaft, he let go the rope, and with wonderful dexterity and good luck he managed to lodge with his back against one side and feet against the other. Thus braced he managed to remain until the rope, which had reached the mouth of the shaft empty, was sent down to him, and he was rescued from his perilous position. - [Leadville Democrat. Plants Irrigating Themselves.

It has been shown by the experi-ments of the late Prof. Habberlandt, that plants sometimes irrigate on their own account and thus draw nutriment from dry soils. He undertook a series of experiments on the phenomena of vegetation of plants grown in an absolutely dry soil. For this purpose he allowed the lower portion of the roots of the plants experimented on to dip down into distilled water, while the upper portion was re-tained in a soil so dry that the plants would otherwise, as was practically demonstrated, inevitably be withered up. The results of these trials went to show that the portions of the roots lying in the upper dry stratum of soil rich in nutritive constituents of plant life does not remain inactive, as has been generally maintained, but ischiefly occupied in supplying the plant with the constituents of its ash. As there is no absolute want of water, this being supplied by the lower por-tion of the root, the upper portion is able to secrete a certain quantity of moisture which is taken up by the immediately surrounding soil, and dissolves its earthy constituents, which are then taken up directly by simple endosmosis.

The Healthiest City in the United States.

In the annual tables of vital statistics, lately published by the Health Department of New York city, among the exhibits is the comparative rate of various cities, America and foreign. The exhibit gives the population and death rate of over three hundred and fifty cities in different parts of the world, in which sixty are American and the remainder foreign. It appears from these tables that the city of Burlington, Iowa, with a population in 1875 of about 20,000, enjoys the pre-eminence for health, its annual death rate being only 4.84 deaths per 1,000 souls. Stockton, Cal., stands next, 7.47; but this is 62 per cent more unhealthy than Burlington. There are probably a few, but only a few, more favored places than the latter in all the world. The death rate for New York city is 23.93 per 1,000; New Orleans, 50.71; London, 23,40; Paris, 24.71.

BUCHANAN, June 8, 1880. Mr. Editor:-You said in last week's RECORD that "a ride across the country to the south-east from this place leads one to the decision that to beat the present prospect for an enormous wheat crop is hardly expected." Now, Mr. Editor, I can take you into fields of wheat along that line that to the passer-by look all right, and one month ago bid fair to yield an average of twenty bushels at least per acre, which now give evidence that not more than five will be realized. The late heavy winds have revealed to us and many others the sad work of the Hessian fly. Their work is found in many fields. Those farmers who are disposing of their wheat at $1 per bushel had better drive a little slow and not place too much confidence in the coming harvest.

Yes. Well, that reminds the Record that four years ago last August it published a warning to farmers against sowing their wheat too early, so as to avoid the depredations of the Hessian fly. Three years ago the RECORD published the same thing again. Two years ago it was repeated, and several farmers came to us and said they knew better. They had sown part of their wheat very early, and part of it very late, and they could see no difference. It was all badly eaten where the two South" must be divided by the peacewere side by side, so next year sowed ful agencies of the ballot, and all honjust as much of their wheat in August as they could, and now they reap the benefit of it. It must not be forgotten that the RECORD re-echoed the warning last year. Nineteen twentieths of the wheat on Portage prairie and in the vicinity mentioned above, was sown before the first of September. Now, the RECORD wishes to remark once more that if No farmer in that vicinity will sow one kernel of wheat earlier than the 16th or 20th of September, and will continue that practice, in three years' time there will be no sign of the Hessian fly in the wheat, but for one which we are so prosperous, and thus

GHN. JAMES A. GARPIELD FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

CHESTER A. ARTHUR

THE CONVENTION.

Since the last issue of the RECORD there has been four days' session c¹ the Republican National Convention at Chicago. The first two of these, Friday and Saturday, up to midnight, were occupied in perfecting the prehminary arrangements and the making of speeches in nomination of the several candidates, when the Convention adjourned to Monday at 11 o'clock. at this time the Convention convened and the balloting commenced and continued up to 2:30 o'clock, when an adjournment was taken until 7 o'clock, when the balloting was again resumed and continued to 11 o'clock at night, after taking the twenty-eighth ballot, when the Convention adjourned to morning to resume the steady roll call the next day. By the following table, giving the results of the different ballots, it will be seen what a determined attempt was made by the friends of each candidate to secure the nomina-

Immediately after the announcement and the consequent excitement had subsided, the Convention proceeded to ballot for Vice President, resulting in the nomination of Gen. Chester A. Arthur of New York, on the first bal-

The nomination of Gen. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, is one that gives universal satisfaction among Republicans in all parts of the country as one against whom not a complaint can be made, and whose career as a public man has been without a stain and ever active. His nomination has the peculiarity of being one in which the office seeks the man, and contrary to the determinedly expressed wish of the candidate, instead of one in which the man seeks the office and applies every possible means to secure it. No objection can be made to the nomination of Gen. Arthur for the second place on the ticket. He is an able man, of unblemished character and unsullied reputation, and will add great strength to the ticket in the East where he is best known. The only ones who have any objections to the nominations are the Democrats, who are as morally certain of defeat as they are of their existence. The platform of principles cannot well be found fault with by any Republican, and is worthy of consideration by any sane man. It is as follows:

PLATFORM. The Republican party, in National Convention assembled, at the end of twenty years since the Federal Government was first committed to its charge, submits to the people of the United States this brief report of its administration: It suppressed a rebellion which had armed nearly a million of men to subvert the National authority. It reconstructed the Union of States with freedom instead of slavery as its corner stone. It transformed 4,000,000 human beings from the likeness of things to the rank of citizens. It relieved Congress from the infamous work of hunting fugitive slaves, and charged it to see that slavery does not exist; it has raised the value of our paper currency from 38 per cent. to the par of gold. It has restored, upon a solid basis, payment in coin of all National obligations, and has given us a currency absolutely good and equal in every part of our extended country. It has lifted the credit of the Nation from the point where 6 per cent. bonds sold at 86, to that where 4 per cent. bonds are eagerly sought at a premium. Under its administration railways have increased from $1,000 miles in 1860 to more than $2,000 miles in 1879. O foreign trade has increased from $700,000,000 to $1,150,000,000 in the same time, and our exports, which were $20,000,000 less than our imports in 1860, were $264,000,000 more than our imports in 1879. Without resorting to loans, it has, since the War closed, defrayed the ordinary expenses of Government besides the acruing interest to the public debt, and has disbursed annually more than $30,000,000 for soldiers' and sailors' pensions. It has paid $880,000,000 of the public debt, and, by refunding the balance at lower rates, has reduced the annual interest charge from nearly $150,000,000 to less than $89,000,000. All the industries of the country have revived, labor is in demand, wages have increased, and throughout the entire country there is evidence of a coming prosperity greater than we have ever enjoyed. Upon this record the Republicar party asks for the continued confidence and support of the people, and this Convention submits for their approval the following statement of the principles and purposes which will contin-

ne to guide and inspire its efforts: First-We affirm that the work of the Republican party for the last twenty years has been such as to commend it to the favor of the Nation; that the fruits of the costly victories which we have achieved through immense difficulties should be preserved that the peace regained should he cherished; that the Union should be perpetuated, and that the liberties secured to this generation should be transmitted undiminished to future generations; that the order established and the credit acquired should never be impaired; that the pensions promised should be paid; that the debt so much reduced should be extinguished by the full payment of every dollar thereof; that the reviving industries should be further promoted, and that commerce already so great should be steadily encouraged. - The constitution of the United States is a supreme law and not a mere contrict. Out of confederated States it made a sovereign Nation. Some powers are denied to the Nation, while others are denied to the States but the boundary between the powers delegated and these reserved is to not by the State tribunals. Third—The work of popular education is one left to the care of the several States, but it is the duty of the National Government to aid that work to the extent of its constitutional ability. The intelligence of the Nation is but the aggregate of the intelligence in the several States, and that the destiny of the Nation must be guided not by the genius of any one State, but by the average genius of all.

Fourth — The Constitution wisely forbids Congress to make any law respecting the establishment of religion. but it is idle to hope that the Nation can be protected against the influence of sectarianism, while each State is exposed to its domination. We, therefore, recommended that the Constitution be so amended as to lay the same prohibition upon the Legislature of each State, and to forbid the appropriation of public funds to the support of sectarian schools. Fifth-We reaffirm the belief avow ed in 1876 that the duties levied for the purpose of revenue should so discriminate as to favor American labor; that no further grants of the public domain should be made to any railway or other corporation; that slavery having perished in the States its twin barbarity, polygamy, must die in Territories; that everywhere the protection accorded to a citizen of American birth must be secured to citizens by American adoption. That we deem in the duty of Congress to develop and improve our water-courses and harbors, but insist that further subsidies to private persons or corporations must cease; that the obligations of the Republic to the men who preserved its integrity in the hour of battle are undiminished by the lapse of fifteen years since their final victory. To do them honor is and shall forever be the grateful privilege and sacred duty of the American people. Sixth-Since the authority to regulate immigration and intercourse between the United States and foreign nations rests with the Congress of the United States and the treaty-making power, the Republican party, regarding the unrestricted immigration of Chinese as a matter of grave concernment under the exercise of both these powers, would limit and restrict that immigration by the enactment of such just, humane, and reasonable laws and treaties as will produce that result. Seventh-That the purity and patri otism which characterized the earlier career of Rutherford B. Hayes in peace and war, and which guided the thoughts of our immediate predecessors to him for a Presidential candidate, have continued to inspire him in his career as Chief Executive; and that history will accord to his Administration the honors which are due to an efficient, just, and courteous discharge of the public business, and will honor his votes interposed between the people and attempted partisian

Eighth-We charge upon the Democratic party the habitual sacrifice of patrotism and justice to a supreme and insatiable lust for office and patronage; that to obtain possession of State Governments and the control of place and position, they have obstructed all efforts to promote the purity and to conserve the freedom of suffrage, and have devised fraudulent ballots and invented fraudulent certification of returns; have labored to unseat lawfully elected members of Congress to secure to all hazards the vote of a majority of States in the House of Representatives; have endeavored to occupy by force and frand the places of trust given to others by the people of Maine, rescued by the courage in action of Maine's patriotic sons; have, by methods vicious in principle and tyrannical in practice, attached partisian legislation to appropriation bills upon whose passage the very movement of the Government depended: have crushed the rights of the individual; have advocated the principles and sought the favor of the Rebellion against the Nation, and have endeavored to obliterate the sacred memories of the war and to overcome its inestimably valuable results of Nationality, personal freedom, and individual equality. The equal, and steady, and complete enforcement of the laws, and the protection of our citizens in the enjoyment of all privileges and immunity guaranteed by the Constitution, are the first duties of the Nation. The dangers of a "Solid South" can only be averted by a faithful performance of every promise which the Nation has made to the citizens. The execution of the laws, and the punishment of all those who violate them, are the only safe methods by which an enduring peace can be secured and genuine prosperity established throughout the South. Whatever promises the Nation makes the Nation must perform. A Nation cannot with safety relegate this duty to the States. The "Solid est opinions must there find free expression. To this end the honest voter must be protected against terrorism, violence, or fraud. And we aftirm it to be the duty and the purpose of the Republican party to use all legitimate means to restore all the States of this Union to the most perfect harmony which may be possible, and we submit to the practical, sensible people of these United States to say whether it would not be dangerous to the dearest interests of our country at this time to surrender the administration of the National Government to a party which seeks to overthrow the existing policy under bring distrust and confusion where there is now order, confidence, and The Republican party, adhering to the principle affirmed by its last National Convention, of respect for the constitutional rules covering appointments to office, adopt the declaration of President Hayes, that the reform of the civil service should be thorough radical and complete. To this end it demands the co-operation of the legislative with the Executive department of the Government, and that Congress should so legislate that fitness, ascertained by proper practical tests, shall admit to the public service. That the tenure of administrative offices, except those through which the distinctive policy of the party in power is carried out, shall be made permanent during good behavior, and that the power of removal for cause, with due responsibility for the good conduct of

Druggists and Merchants generally. Be Wise in Time. It is a fact well-known by almost all intelligent families that Ďr. Wistar's

Balsam of Wild Cherry has cured more eases of Consumption, Asthma Bronchitis, etc., than any other physician's perscription ever compounded. It relieves, as if by magic, all soreness and irritation of throat and lungs. It is quieting and soothing in its effect. and is unexcelled as a general tonic. A few doses never fail to cure an ordinary cough or cold. Price of large pint bottles, $1.00. Have your drug-their full allotted time, enjoy good health and be happy? Surely there is no qood reason, and yet many will allow impure blood, weakness of the kidneys, imperfect digestion, and urinary troubles to undermine and break down their general health, and carry them to a premature grave. Some seek relief among mineral poisons, in pill form, etc., others resort to extensively advertised alcoholic beverages and fermented liquors, only to feel themselves for a time somewhat better, but after a while much worse. why should this be so? well-known by the intelligent portion of our community that Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla will surely remove all these disorders. This medicine is the wonderful discovery of an eminent French physician and has proven itself in a thousand of instances to be the best vegetable purifier known to medical men. It never fails to effectually cure Scrofula, Sy philitic disorders, weakness of the kidneys, all nervous disorders and debility, and all urinary and digestive troubles. It makes the old feel full of youthful vigor, and young energetic and gay, restoring perfect manhood and women, especially when the dis ease has a tendency to weaken the mind, body and nervous system. Do not dispair. A single bottle will conconvince of its great merit as a health renewer for it begins at once to give new life and vigor to both body and mind, never failing to remove all symptoms of any and every disease that can be cured by cleansing, renovating, purifying and strengthening the human system, driving out, as if by magic, the many ills that flesh and blood is heir to, and building up new health, new vigor and new life. A large quart bottle, $1.00. Have your druggist get this excellent preparation for you-take no other.

From the Hub. There is perhaps no tonic offered to the people that possesses as much real intrinsic value as Hop Bitters. Just at this season of the year, when the stomach needs an appetizer, or the blood needs purifying, the cheapest and best remedy is Hop Bitters. A small, lively yellow bug, called the rose bug, is making rather sad havoc on Rev. J. F. Bartmess' place, just west of town. The little pest attacks nearly every green thing and especially those that are of value, eating the peaches and apples on the trees, small grapes, rose blossoms, and the wheat, eating the kernels out of the head and leaving it worthless. A head was brought to this office with a dozen or more of the bugs clinging to it. Mr. Bartmess says he has been bothered with these bugs for several years, they making their appearance at about this time of year and lasting about two weeks, but never have they been quite so ravenous as this year. He says he would like to know just how to get rid of them. They grow fat on Paris green, and the only thing that he has found that materially affects their happiness is kerosene oil,

Hungarian Grass.

A correspondent of the Boston Cultivator gives a number of facts drawn from his experience in cultivating and feeding Hungarian grass, which will bliseases of the Liver, Stometh be of interest to our readers. We quote as follows:

It would be impossible for me to keep the stock I do upon a farm so limited in area as my own, if I did not sow considerable Hungarian, most of which I make into hay, feeding little of it green. Hungarian has been charged with almost everything of which mind could conceive. One charge is that it is a great exhauster of the soil, and so it is, for it bears a very heavy crop, and no farmer should expect to store a heavy crop in his barn and have the material that produ-ces the crop still left in the soil. Hungarian is no greater exhauster of the soil than any other plant that produ-ces so great a yield. It has also been said that if over-ripe the seed might produce abortion in cows. I have fed Hungarian when over-ripe, but it never produced abortion in my herd, never had a cow in my barn which had such a misfortune. I have, however, had the misfortune to cut my Hungarian in an over-ripe condition; the result of which was a shrinkage of milk. The same would be the result should any other fodder crop be allowed to stand till it was over-ripe. In my own practice I generally follow clover with Hungarian for my first crop. I have now about two acres of land from which I took last year three crops of clover-one June 20th, another August 1st, and a third I fed green in October and November. After the Ist of May, or perhaps not till the middle of that month, I shall plow this spreading the manure broadcast and harrowing in, while from the 20th of May to the 1st of June, I shall sow about a bushel and a quarter of Huugarian seed. In putting in the Hungarian seed I think it better to be a few days late than too early. If sown too early the seed is slow in germinating, even if it germinates at all. When it is slow in coming up the weeds are too apt to get a start, which at first almost overshadowsit; but if plowing is deferred they will make some start, which plowing will afterwards destroy. If the land lies a week or ten days after plowing, it gives the weeds another opportunity to start, for destroying which the harrow may be used. The land also gets warmer, which will give the seed a quick start, and it will then push ahead of weeds, giving the satisfaction of clean culture. Seed sown by the 1st of June will be ready to cut on or before the 1st of August. It should be cut without fail as soon as headed out good, and, if the sowing is delayed till the ground is pretty warm, it will be likely to head nearer together than if sown a little too early, when the ground is colder.

Worth Knowing.

It frequently happens, especially in the winter, says the American Farm Journal, that a horse receives a severe sprain, and it is not always convenient to call in a veterinary surgeon. At such a time a certain cure that is possible for every one to possess, is worth something surely. Bathe the limb in strong salt and water as hot as the hand can bear: then bandage and let it dry: don't wet the bandage. When dry rub very thoroughly with the following liniment:

One ounce powdered camphor gum, organum, one ounce ammonia, one ounce oil of hemlock, all dissolved in one pint of alcohol. Shake before using. Give the animal perfect rest if possible. After two or three days, or when the swelling and heat are gone. the hot fomentations and bandage may be discontinued, but continue to use the liniment, even after the horse appears well, for a joint or chord that has been sprained is very liable to be again. If the case is an obstinate one you must be the more persevering. A regular horse doctor would charge $5for the very same treatment. Apply the liniment as often as twice a day.—
It is as good for human sprains and bruises as for animal ills. This recipe like many others, is lacking in one important essential. owing to carelessness of the writer.-No mention is made of applying hot fomentation after rubbing with the liniment. We will supply the omission. As soon as rubbing in of the liniment is completed apply again the hot salt water and bind up, and continue this treatment till the inflammation is reduced.

The American vs. the English Dairy. We have on previous occasions, says the London Live-Stock Journal, pointed out that we in England were losing ground in the race, and that America was gaining it, and that the difference was owing to the improved methods and appliances in general use in the latter country. The disparity is only less marked because the soil, the herbage, and the climate in this country are each and all better than those in America for cheese-making purposes. It is purely a question, then, of practical ability, superior management, and we say so advisedly. Ten or a dozen years ago the quality of American cheese sent to this country was such as to cause our own cheese-makers to smile: but now the smile is on the other side of the face. At that time no one thought for a moment that we had anything to fear from the quality, whatever we had to do from the volume. of American competition in cheese; but now we are beaten all along the line. And this is not so much because the quality of English cheese on the average is lower than it used to be, as that the quality of American is so greatly improved. Careful inquiry into scientific principles and scrupulous attention to details of management are the means by which our American friends have so much bettered their dairy products. Increased knowledge, quickened energies, and incessant activity in adopting every improvement in appliances and modes of management, will alone enable us to compete successfully.

A Race with Thumbs on Their Feet. Mr. Tremlett, the British Consul at Saigon, in his report, mentions as a remarkable peculiarity of the natives of the country that they have the great toe of each foot separated from the others, like the thumb of the hand, and it can be used in much the same manner, though not to the same extent. This distinctive mark of an Annamite is not, however, usually seen in the vicinity of Saigon, but is now confined to the inhabitants of the more northern section of the empire, where the race has remained more distinct. This peculiarity is the meaning of the native name of the Annamite race; and that the name and peculiarity are of great antiquity is shown by the mention in Chinese annals 2300 B.C. as that (or those) of one of the "four barbarian" tribes that then formed the boundaries of the Chinese Empire.

to be a member of the Theatre Francais. Recent statistics show that the share of M. Got in the profits of last year amounted to 70,000 francs; that of M. Coquelin, to 69,000 francs; that of M. Delauney, to 68,000 francs; while MM. Febvre, Thiren, Worms, and Maubant drew 60,000 francs each. Mile. Sarah Bernhardt heads the ladies with 62,000 francs; Mme. Madelene Broban, Mme. Favart, and Mlle. Jonassin come next with 60,000 francs, and MHe. Croizette with 55,000 francs. All this is quite independent of what is gained during holiday time and by private representations. By way of comparison it may be mentioned that Rachel, when she was first engaged at the Theatre Francais, received 4,000 francs a year, and when in 1840 she sent in an ultimatum demanding 27,000 francs fixed, a benefit, and two months leave, these terms, though accepted, were considered exorbitant.

Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained hy years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. We invite the sick, no matter what their ailment, to call, investigate before they abandon hope, make interrogation and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing, as consultation is free. Wilans Sponge Cake with Water. - Three cups sugar, four cups flour, one cup cold water, six eggs, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar; flavor with rose and orange water combined. Beat the eggs light; add sugar, and beat again four or five min-utes; then add two cups of flour, beat well, and bake in a moderately hot

Pretty Table Cover .- A small table cover of unique design is made of black satin. On this are sewed three or five parallel strips of maroon, dark blue or black velvet, as preferred, and between the strips (the number of which is regulated by the size of the cover) fans of different colors are cmbroidered in slip-stitch done with floss-silk. The fans follow each other straight up and down in regular succession and colors, blue, green and red. Chicken Cheese.-Boil two chickens in water enough to make them tender; take them 'out when done and remove all the bones; mince the meat very fine; season with salt, pepper and but-ter, and return them to the water in which they were boiled; cook until the liquid is nearly gone; pour into a deep dish; lay a plate over it, put on it a weight, and set away in a cool place. When ready to be eaten, cut it in slices, and it will be as firm as

Chocolate.-To each quart of new milk, or half milk and water, allow three heaping tablespoonfuls of scraped chocolate. It is best to set a coffeepot, or any convenient dish, into a kettle of boiling water; pour in the milk and as it heats add the chocolate mixed to a paste with a little milk; boil for two or three minutes and serve. Some prefer to boil chocolate only one minute, others fifteen, while others boil it one hour, setting aside to cool that the oil may be removed, and then reheating when wanted. Lightning Cake. -Persons who "just drop in" are a nuisance in the opinion of many housewives, who, nevertheless. will be glad to learn of a cake of which the making and baking occupies only fifteen minutes, and which, therefore. will serve to conceal the nakedness of the larder when unexpected guests appear. Take the yolks of four eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, the same of flour, about two tablespoonfuls of milk, and the juice of half a small lemon; the whites of three eggs are beaten to a stiff froth and mixed with the volks, flour, etc., the compound then being put in a buttered pan and placed in a quick oven.

Making Tea with Cold Water.—Did any one ever try making tea with cold water? If you never did, just do so the next warm day when a cool refreshing beverage is desired. Place the tea in a pitcher in the morning with just enough cold water to cover it. At dinner time fill the pitcher with cold water from the well and you will have the best cup of ten you ever drank—that is for warm weather. The finer qualities of tea are much more fully retained than when steeped upon the fire. And who wishes a cup of scalding tea on coming in straight from the hot harvest field and the scorching glare of our August sun?

The Chanama Talatian or Bored Well as shown in the "New Nyle," differs materially from the Driven Well, or the "Id up," the latter being driven often meet obstacles that cannot be overcome, such as cley, hard pen, rock and quicksand. In making the CHAPMAN WELL all these difficulties are easily overcrome by boring inside and ahead of the pipe, settling the pipe as fast as the hole is formed by the tools, (we use no point but work with pipe open), thus by adding more work-pipe and more tubing any desired depth can be reached. After water sufficien has been reached, the screen is dropped hisde and the tubing or pipe drawn back until the screen is covered as at F, Fig. 1, the "check," Eig. 3, is placed and the rubber ring is expanded as at B, Fig. 1, the plunger, Fig. 2, attached to wood rods is inserted as at J. Attach the "check," then use a "puller" to remove the rod and handle, remove the toop of the pump, palled with lard with a grab pull the "check," then use a "puller" to remove the screen and you have everything on top of ground. Repair and return them and your pump is new. The "check" and "plunger" being submerged, the water is Liften and not sucken.

Judge ---, now a very able judge of a western court, when he first came to the bar was a very blundering speaker. On one occasion, when he was trying a case involving the right of a client to a lot of hogs, he addressed the jury as follows: "Gentlemen of the Jury there were just 24 hogs in that drove, just 24 gentlemen, exactly twice as many as there are in that jury box." The effect can be im-

The Pall Mall Gazette says that 'women, if really anxious, as they profess to be, to make the world better than it is, might, with savantage, give up what they term their 'back jacket pockets,' it being almost impossible for a thief to resist making a grab at a purse, carried in a pocket so fashioned that it can be emptied without difficulty or danger, unless a detective happens to watch the opera-

Old Bailie Robertson of the Canongate, in Edinburgh, had not the advantage of as good an early education as most of his countrymen, but was a as most of his countrymen, but was a character in his way. A case was once brought before him for trial, in which the owner of a squirrel presented a claim of damages against a person who had it in charge, but who allowed it to escape. From the complication of the country of the habitary and the country of the case the habitary of the case. cations of the case the bailie was a little bothered. At last, after collecting his faculties, he said to the defendant, "Did you clip its wings?" "It's a quadruped, your honor," said the defendant. "Quadruped, here, quadruped there," said the magistrate; "if ye had clipped its wings it couldna hae flown aff. I mann decide against ye." The number of desertions from the British army during the year just ended, although large in comparison with any other European army, shows a very large diminution as compared with 1878. During 1879 the total number of desertions is stated to have been 5,840. During 1878, when a war with Russia, the total number of desertions advertised was 8,399. In the gigantic armies of France and Germany 300 desertions in the year is an outside figure. It is not considered creditable that, in an army enlisted by voluntary enrollment, the number of desertions should exceed so vastly the number of conscripts who shake off the irksome yoke of military service.
