EVENTIDE. PY WILLIS H. SCOFIELD. Now wanes the golden light of day,
As slowly sinks the sun to rest,
And leaves behind a golden ray,
The soul to cheer, the sight to bless;
Soon will the velvet pall be spread
By dark-winged goddess of the night,
And sleep—twin brother of the dead—
Weigh down the eyelids by his might

From bramble near and quickset hedge
Is heard the whip-poor-will's lone cry,
While in the ancient oak o'erhead
The hooting owis their high notes try;
The flowers fold their tiny hands,
As if to breathe a prayer to Him
Who gave them all their brightest hues,
His earth to deck, His fields to gem.

The weary granger slowly plods
His homeward path from daily toil
Of hobbling o'er the sun-baked clods
To gain his bread from off the soil;
His good dame, maid of all work—is Cook, governess and milkmaid, all—
Stands calling at the pasture bars
The cows, that answer with a bawl. The busy mart is all aglow With lamns that supersede the day,

The busy mart is all aglow
With lamps that supersede the day,
And laborers from their shopwork go,
As distant sounds the noisy dray;
The tradesman, low o'er day-book bent,
Recounts again his daily sale,
And reckons loss, and gain, and rent,
That he, like others, may not fail. What mean those sweet strains of music That gently ficat upon the air Through the window of your mansion, Where's thronged the young, the gay and fai Oh, within there's a ball to-night, In honor of the eldest son, Vhom mammas court, both left and right— To-day's the last of twenty-one!

The night is spent in gayety,
While flying feet to music sweet
Keep time with regularity,
Until the "first day's" timid peep.
Oh, proud, proud ones of humankind,
That grace your lovely mother earth,
Reck ye not that you He'll find,
E'en 'mid gay jollity and mirth? A sound of reveiry is heard A sound of reveiry is heard
Within the palaces of sin,
Where's spent the price of daily bread
For poison whisky, rum and gin;
While down yon dark and lonely street
An old and squalid cottage stands,
Where sits with heart too sore to weep
A pale-faced woman with clenched hands.

No light within, and scant the fire,
That smoldering lies upon the hearth,
While starving children round her are
That once were full of joy and mirth.
It is the home of him who once
Gave early promises of good,
But love of wine has been the curse
That robs his children of their food. But 'ere Luna her night-robe dons,

Of flowing zephyr, fleecy white,
And little stars, with night-caps on,
Come forth to dance the livelong night,
Old Sol sends light, his daughter fair
(Who wedded heat from Hades out),
Intrusted with a missive rare
Of what the day has brought about. Maid Dawn, in early fragrant morn, Rolled up the curtain of the night, Rolled up the currain of the hight, Whilst Aurora, from her mountain h Welcomed all with smiles of light; And drumming on an ancient log, With never-ceasing roundelay, While fieldward farmers are agog, The pheasant heralds in the day.

The flowers first the sunshine claim To mark their modest golden line. And then the waving verdant grain That's wet with morning's gentle dew;
A nation's born, a mation dies,
"I'ween sun and sun of every day;
One filled with mirth, another cries;
Commingled are the sad and gay. Sol made his boast of colors gay That's seen in heaven's golden hoop, Of travelers famished by the way Where he'd dried all the water up;

And then a list of other things—
But here rude Boreas grasped the sheet,
And bore it 'neath his stormy wings Unto his home upon the sea.

A Confederate Hero. Richard Kirkland was the son of John Kirkland, an estimable citizen of Kershaw county, S. C., a plain, substantial farmer of the olden time. In 1861 he entered, as a private, Capt. J. D. Kennedy's company (E) of the Second South Carolina volunteers, in which company he was a Sergeant in December, 1862. The day after the sanguinary battle of Fredericksburg, Kershaw's brigade occupied the road at the foot of Marye's hill and the ground about Marye's house, the scene of their desperate defense of the day before. One hundred and fifty yards in front of the road, the stone facing of which constituted the famous stone wall, lay Sykes' division of regulars, United States army, between whom and the Southern troops a number of the states army. whom and the Southern troops a murderous skirmish occupied the whole day, fatal to many who heedlessly exposed themselves, even for a moment. ground between the lines was bridged with the wounded, dead and dying Federals, victims of the many desperately-gallant assaults of that column of 30,000 brave men hurled vainly against that impregnable position. All that day those wounded men rent the air with their groans and their ago-nizing cries of "Water! water!" In the afternoon the General sat in the north room, up stairs, of Mr. Stevens' house, in front of the road, surveying the field, when Kirkland came up. With an expression of indignant remonstrance pervading his person, his manner, and the tones of his voice, he said: "General, I can't stand this." "What is the matter, Sergeant?" asked the General. He replied: "All night and all day I have heard these poor people crying for water, and I can stand it no longer. I come to ask permission to go and give them water." The General regarded him for a moment with feelings of profound admiration, and said: "Kirkland, don't you know that you would get a bullet through your head the moment you stepped over the wall?" "Yes, sir," he said, "I know that; but, if you will let me, I am willing to try it."

After a pause, the General said:
"Kirkland, I ought not to allow you to run such a risk, but the sentiment which actuates you is so noble that I will not refuse your request, trusting that God may protect you. You may go."

The Sergeant's eyes lighted up with pleasure. He said: "Thank you, sir," and ran rapidly down stairs. The General heard him pause for a moment, and then return, bounding two steps at a time. He thought the Sergeant's heart had failed him. He was mistaken. The Sergeant stopped at the door and said: "General, can I show a white handkerchief?" The General slowly shook his head, saying, emphatically:

"No, Kirkland, you can't do that."
"All right, sir," he said, "I'll take the chances," and ran down with a bright smile on his handsome countenance. With profound anxiety he was watched as he stepped over the wall on his errand of mercy—Christ-like mercy. Unharmed he reached the nearest sufferer. He knelt beside him, tenderly raised the drooping head, rested it gently upon his own noble breast, and poured the precious life-giving fluid down the fever-parched throat. This done, he laid him tenderly down, placed his knapsack under his head, straightened out his broken limb ground his grounder the broken limb, spread his overcoat over him, replaced his empty canteen with a full one, and turned to another sufferer. By this time his purpose was well understood on both sides, and all danger was over. From all parts of the field arose fresh cries of "Water, water; for God's sake, water!" More piteous still the mute appeal of some one who could only feebly lift a hand to say, here, too, is life and suffering. For an hour and a half did this ministering angel pursue his labor of mercy, nor ceased to go and return until he relieved all the wounded on that part of the field. He returned to his post wholly unhurt. Who shall say how sweet his rest that winter's night beneath the cold stars?

The following pleasant thing in the way of definition once occurred in one of the public schools of a city in Massachusetts. A member of the committee, causetts. A member of the committee, Capt. X., was visiting the school, and; the class having read from Webster's address at Plymouth, the Captain asked the class, "Who was Webster?" One boy said, "A statesman;" another, "An orator." "But what is a statesman?" asked the Captain. "A man who goes round making speeches," answered a boy. "That is not quite right," replied boy. "That is not quite right," replied the Captain; "I go around sometimes making speeches, but I am not a statesman." A bright little fellow spoke up, "I know. It is a man who goes around making good speeches."

Same Thing with the Ancients. There was an expression of unusual pleasantry on the face of the wrathful Achilles that morning, and the crafty Ulysses accosted him with more than his wonted heartiness on that account. "You're out early this morning," remarked the wily one. "Yes," said the sulky one, "but then I was out late last night. You see, I had a pretty good thing on my mind, this morning, and I was afraid if I slept too long, I might forget it. I was out last night, went down to see Briseis, in fact, and sat up pretty late. Fact is, I'm clear gone there. No use talking, she just breaks me all up. Well, when I came away somebody had sat on my hat. new Broadway style, and we had a time straightening it out. Greeley on Lawyers. The late Horace Greeley did not like lawyers. A gentleman tells this

"Mr. Greeley," said Partridge, "this is Denslow, a young attorney." Greeley uttered a short grunt of recognition, but did not even look around. I, embarrassed, shrunk away to one corner, and took a chair. He went around the room, looking at pictures, and what not, and in about five minutes, when his back was turned on me, and I thought he had forgotten me, he suddenly, without looking at me, said, "Hem! so you are an attorney, are you?"

I confessed it. "I hate lawyers; they do more mischief than their heads are worth."

"I suppose they are a necessary evil," "I suggested deprecatingly.

"Wholly unnecessary," he insisted.

"I suppose you will acknowledge," I said, "that they promote good order and remove impediments to good government." ernment." "Just the contrary! just the contrary!"

he squeaked in his old falsetto; "they cause disorder, and are the chief obstaele to good government." I thought the man was crazy. "Perhaps you will tell me," I suggested, "how had debts could be collected without attorneys?" "Don't want 'em collected! don't want 'em collected!" he squeaked; "if A lets B have his property without payment I don't see why C, D, E, F and all the rest of the alphabet should be called upon to act as police to get it back! No debt should be collected by law. It's monstrous. Let a man trust another man at his own risk. Even a gambler pays debts that he isn't legally to pay, and calls them debts of honor; but men will put their property out of their hands to prevent the legal collection of their grocery bills. Abolish all laws for the collection of debt, and that will abolish most of your lawyers-good rid-

Manner and Manners. The distinction between a womans manner and her manners is thus bought out by the Christian at Work: It has been well said that a lady may oossess very excellent manners, and yet have a very unfortunate manner, and the

To illustrate. There is a girl who has been carefully taught from her childhood how to enter and leave a room how to address and introduce people, how to behave at the table and in company, yet, notwithstanding continual essons in deportment, she has a manner which is not winning. She is proud, or vain, or cold, or disdainful, and this is shown by her manner even when her manners are agree-We often go into a little store kept. by a woman whom we desire to help by our custom. But nearly always her air of supercilious indifference, and her icy remoteness from the least interest in us or our purchases, sends us away half frozen. On the other hand, we know certain saleswomen, in some of the great stores in New York, who are so sunny, so genial and so delightful in their way of serving us, that to buy from them is a perfect pleasure, and they often persuade us into taking what we really do not want, solely by the charm of their sweet, unaffected grace.

The Antiquity of the Spoon. The use of our common table utensil, the spoon, is widespread, and its invention, as it appears, dates from remote antiquity. The form that we use at the present day—a small oval bowl provided with a shank and flattened handle—is not that which has been universally adopted. If we examine into the manners and customs of some of the people less civilized than we—the Kabyles, for example—we shall find that they use a round wooden spoon. The Romans also used a round spoon, which was made of copper. We might be led, from the latter fact, to infer that the primitive form of this utensil was round, and that the oval shape was a comparatively modern invention. But such is not the case, for M. Chantre, in making some excavations on the borders of Lake Paladru, the waters of which had been partially drawn off, found, in good state of pres ervation, wooden spoons which in shape were nearly like those in use at the present day—the only difference being in the form of the handle, which was no wider than the shank. The lacustrine station where these were found dates back to the ninth century, and we therefore have evidence that oval spoons were already in use during the Carlovingian epoch, and learned men tell us that spoons of a primitive kind have been found among the fossils of the reindeer ays an exchange, throw off their natural girlish habits and attire, don long skirts, skoot up the hair, and affect the air and dress of young women, they would often be surprised to know what their elders really think of the improvements. One such young miss went to the depot re-cently to meet an aged friend of the family, and was surprised to find herself not recognized upon greeting the visitor as she stepped from the car. "Don't you know me, auntie?" "Why, this isn't Maria, is it?" "Certainly; don't you think I look better than I did last summer when you

"No," replied the honest soul, looking the girl over, "to tell you the truth, I do not. Go home and let down your hair, and be young while you can, for it will not be many years before you'll be glad to have people take you for a girl." A man has invented a chair which can be adjusted to 8,000 different positions.

An Independent Elector. It was the intention of the founders of the constitution that Presidential electors should be untrammeled in voting for a President. But custom has long since made them but registers of their party's nomination. Only one case is known in which an elector, elected to vote for a certain candidate for the Presidency, voted for another. It was William Plummer, formerly Govenor of New Hampshire. In 1820, he was chosen a Presidential elector, and his course is described in his son's biography of him as follows:

His name had been placed at the head of the list, without his being consulted as to whether he would serve or how he would vote. It was on the occasion of Mr. Monroe's second election. Gov. Plummer did not regard himself in this more than in other acts of his life as the tool of a party, or the mere exponent of other men's opinions. By the provisions of the constitution

the people choose the electors; and it is the duty of these electors to choose the President. In the exercise of this duty he voted for John Quincy Adams instead of James Monroe, who received every other electoral vote in the Union. This single vote against Monroe (for it was regarded chiefly in that light) excited much wonder and some censure at the time. It, however, created no surprise to those who knew him, as it was the natural result of his general rule of independent action, combined with his avowed opinions respecting some of the leading measures of Monroe's adminis-

The Worst Old Pelicans in the Deck. One of the most remarkable things noticeable in social life is the unanimity with which people shake their relatives. Recently a gentleman arrived in Carson with a letter of introduction to one of our leading citizens from the citizen's uncle. After the Carsonite read the letter, he remarked:

"Glad to see you, sir. Glad to see anybody who knows my uncle in Cleveland. How are all the folks?" "Splendid. I spent six weeks there last fall, and I don't think I ever met such a fine family of genial, hospitable and cultivated people."

"Yes, indeed-I never spent a pleasanter time in my life. How to Cure a Toothache. Some months ago an English tourist, lingering in a country churchyard, was present at a faineral, and observed among the group of mourners a young man who particularly attracted attention by his swollen face and the utter dejection of his appearance. "Here at least is one true mourner," thought the Englishman. While this thought was passing through his mind, the supposed mourner took up a skull which lay on the top of a heap of dry mold and crumbled bones. He raised it to his lips, and, with his own teeth, extracted a tooth from it. Horror filled the stranger as he watched this proceeding, and saw him throw the skull carelessly away, while he wrapped the tooth in paper and put it in his pocket. "Can you tell me why he did that?" asked our tourist of an old man who had stood beside him during the funeral ceremony. "Ah, surely, your Honor, the poor boy was very bad wi' the toothache, an' it's allowed to be a cure if you draw a tooth frae a skull wi' your ain teeth. He'll sew the tooth in his clothes an' wear it as long as he lives." "You don't tell me so! Do you think the remedy will be effectual?" "It's like enough, sir," replied the old man, showing where a tooth was sewed in the lining of his own waistcoat. "It's five years since I pulled that ane the same way, an' I never had Never was the ancient adage, "there is no accounting for tastes," more quaintly illustrated than by a surprising story which reaches us from Neustadt in Bohemia. One Peschka, an innkeeper of that town, was bitten some weeks ago by his own house dog. Unwilling to slay the animal on bare suspicion of its sanity, he consigned it to the town gravedigger, enjoining the functionary to take care of it until further orders respecting its ultimate fate should be imparted to him. A few days later, however, Peschka was attacked by hydrophobia, of which horrible malady he died in excruciating agony. The sanitary authorities of Neustadt forthwith applied to the gravedigger for the mad dog committed to his custody, intending to have it destroyed. Their asn answer to their requisition, calmly observed: "The mad dog? I have eaten him!" "You have eaten the mad dog?" incredulously exclaimed a horror-stricken sanitary official, "Better that than he should eat me!" rejoined the philosophical gravedigger. It would appear not only that this man of strange appetites had swallowed and Vitiated Air. Dr. Willard Parker, in a lecture before the students of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York, used the following apt words: "If, gentle-man, instead of air, you suppose this room to be filled with pure, clear water, and that, instead of air, were exhaling twenty times a minute a pint of milk, you can see how soon the water, at first sparkling, would become hazy and finally opaque, the milk diffusing itself rapidly through the water. You will thus be able to appreciate, also, how at each fresh inspiration you would be taking in a fluid that grew momentarily more impure. Were we able to see the air as we are the water, we could at once appreciate how thoroughly we are contaminating it, and that, unless there be some vent for the air thus vitiated, and some opening large enough to admit a free supply of this very valuable material, we will be momentarily poisoning ourselves as surely as if we were taking sewage matter into our stomachs."

The Difference. No doubt men and women differ essentially in character. It is shown in every experience of life. When, for instance a man is driven to the verge of despair, his natural impulse is to shut himself up alone in his chamber and tear his hair. If, on the other hand, the same sad fortune overtakes a woman, she at once takes a firm hold of her husband's hair. It is this fact which leads some one to say that the smoothness of the husband's crown is the sure criterion of the wife's misfortunes.

TUMBER 21 OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

The sunny days of June were creeping O'er flowery beds, fringing a romping stream, Where in their midst a fawn lay sleeping, And his dappled sides through wavings gleam Shrill and distinct locust notes descended From away through the winding wildwood path; Above the brook, mirrored waves ascended Bright and clear from out that crystal bath.

The Young Hunter.

'Cross the mazy wold a lonely plover Zig-zagged his course to the nearest wood In search of his mate, his only lover, That rose at his call from the underwood. Through darkened depths of a spreading thicke. A glittering flash came thundering near; The bird alert on his swaying wicket Flew like a dart to the shade in fear.

The sleeping fawn in a frightened spasm Sprung to his feet a picture rare; And the hunter, down in his tangled chasm, Saw the pictured form as it stood right there.

At the beating heart of molded beauty

His deadly aim seemed sure indeed, While blushing flowers, exalt to duty, Bowed their heads to weep for the coming deed. A bleat arose from the trembling creature, Which drew to its side a pretty lass; It lay its head on its loving teacher, Then the hunter saw through a colored glass

He lowered his gun, his form outbending, And shaded his eyes with his ruddy palm; He dare not move, but stood, contending With his yielding heart, and that living balm. "Can it be I dream? I never wander In my midnight visions. None I miss With midday sun away up yonder; I never had such a dream as this. ⁴ The prize I sought, why, it has vanished! For love has drawn up his archers dim, and they pierce my soul with darts to banish That awful sport of death, within. "I've lost the field; the battle is over;

The trophies seroll o'er that loving scene; I'll hunt no more the fawn or plover,
But search the world for that lovely Queen." The Drummer-Boy in the Snow. One cold December morning, about eighty years ago, a party of tourists were crossing the Alps—and a pretty large party, too, for there were several thousands of them together. Some were riding, some walking, and most of them had knapsacks on their shoulders. like many Alpine tourists nowadays. But instead of walking-sticks they carried muskets and bayonets, and dragged along with them some fifty or sixty can-In fact, these tourists were nothing less than a French army; and a very hard time of it they seemed to be having. Trying work, certainly, even for the strongest man, to wade for miles through knee-deep snow in this bitter frost and biting wind, along these narrow, slippery mountain-paths, with precipices hundreds of feet deep all round. The soldiers looked thin and heavy-eyed for want of food and sleep, and the poor horses that were dragging the heavy guns stumbled at every step.

But there was one among them who seemed quite to enjoy the rough marching, and tramped along through the deep snow and cold, gray mist, through which the great mountain peaks overhead loomed like shadowy giants, as merrily as if he were going to a picnic. This was a little drummer-boy of 10 years old, whose fresh, rosy face looked very bright and pretty among the grim, and about five feet is the length worn afterscarred visages of the old soldiers. When the cutting wind whirled a shower of snow in his face he dashed it away with a cheery laugh, and awoke all the echoes with the lively rattle of his drum, till it seeemed as if the huge black rocks around were all singing in chorus.
"Bravo, Petit Tambour!" (little drummer) cried a tall man in a shabby gray cloak, who was marching at the nead of the line with a long pole in his hand, and striking it into the snow every now and then to see how deep it was "Bravo, Pierre, my boy! With such music as that one could march all the way to Moscow." The boy smiled, and raised his hand to his cap in salute, for this rough-looking man was no other than the General himself, "Fighting Macdonald," one of the bravest soldiers in France, of whom his men used to say that one sight of his face in battle was worth a whole regiment. "Long live our General!" shouted a hoarse voice; and the cheer, flying from mouth to mouth, rolled along the silent mountains like a peal of distant thunder.

But its echo had hardly died away

when the silence was again broken by another sound of a very different kinda strange, uncanny sort of whisperingfar away up the great white mountain-side. Moment by moment it grew louder and harsher, till at length it swelled into a deep, hoarse roar. "On your faces, lads!" roared the General; it's an avalanche!" But, before his men had time to obey, the ruin was upon them. Down thundered the great mass of snow, sweeping the narrow ledge-path like a waterfall, and crashing down along with it came heaps of stones and gravel and loose earth, and uprooted bushes, and great blocks of cold blue ice. For a moment all was dark as night; and, when the rush had past, many of the brave fellows who had been standing on the path from every mouth: "Where's our Pierre? Where's our 'little drummer?'" Where, indeed? Look which way they would, nothing was to be seen of their poor little favorite, and, when they shouted his name, there was no answer. Then there broke forth a terrible cry of grief, and many a hard old soldier, who had looked without flinching at a line of leveled muskets, felt the tears start into his eyes at the thought that that bright face would never be seen among them But all at once, far below them, out of the shadow of the black unknown gulf that lay between those tremendous rocks, arose the faint roll of a drum, beating the charge. The soldiers started and bent eagerly forward to listen; then up went a shout that shook the air.

"He's alive, comrades! our Pierre's alive, after all!" "And beating his drum still, like a brave lad! He wanted to have the old music to the last!" "But we must save him, lads, or he'll freeze to death down there. He must from behind, and the General himself was seen standing on the brink of the precipice, throwing off his cloak.

"No, no, General!" cried the grenadiers with one voice; "you mustn't run such a risk as that. Let one of us go instead; your life is worth more than all of ours put together."
"My soldiers are my children," answered Macdonald quietly," and no fa-ther grudges his own life to save his son. Quick now, boys! cast loose the drag-in mid-air, down, down, down, till he vanished at last into the darkness of the cold black depth below. Then every man drew along breath, and all eyes were strained to watch for the first sign of his reappearing; for they knew well that he would never come back without the boy, and that the chance was terribly against him.

Meanwhile Macdonald, having landed safely at the foot of the precipice, was looking anxiously round in search of Pierre; but the beating of the drum had ceased, and he had nothing to guide "Pierre!" shouted he as loud as he could, "where are you, my boy?"

"Here, General," answered a weak voice, so faint that he could barely dis

And there, sure enough, was the lit-tle fellow's curly head, half buried in a huge mound of snow, which alone had saved him from being dashed to pieces against the rocks as he fell. Macdonald made for him at once; and although he sank waist-deep at every step, he reached the spot at last. "All right now, my brave boy," said the General, cheerily. "Put your arms round my neck, and hold tight; we'll have you out of this in a minute." The child tried to obey, but his stiff-ened fingers had lost all their strength; and even when Macdonald himself clasped the tiny arms about his neck their hold gave way directly.

What was to be done? A few minutes more, and the numbing colds of that dismal place would make the rescuer as powerless as him whom he came to rescue. But Gen. Macdonald was not the man to be so easily beaten. Tearing off his sash, and knotting one end of it to the rope, he bound Pierre and himself firmly together with the other, and then gave the signal to draw up.

And when the two came swinging up into the daylight once more, and the soldiers saw their pet still alive and un-hurt, cheer upon cheer rang out, rolling far back along the line, till the very mountains themselves seemed to be re-

"We've been under fire and under snow together," said Macdonald, chafing the boy's cold hands tenderly, "and nothing shall part us two after this, so long as we both live." And the General kept his word. Years later, when the great wars were all over, there might be seen walking in the gar-den of a quiet country house in the South of France a stooping, white-haired old man, who had once been the famous Marshal Macdonald; and he leaned for support upon the arm of a tall, black-mustached, soldier-like fel-low, who had once been little Pierre, the drummer.

MIS(S)TAKEN. BY MRS. J. V. H. KOONS.
He sought her window softly,
And gently kneeling there
The sweetest notes of music
Burst on the balmy air.
The moon laughed down in beauty,
Glance ran from star to star,
As if they whispered, "Listen
To the lover's light guitar."
"I love thee, dearest, love thee—
Throw ope thy window wide—
No longer, darling, from me
Thy form angelic hide,
Hark! now I hear thy footsteps,
And soon thy face I'll see,

Thy form angene man Hark! now I hear thy footsteps, And soon thy face I'll see, For light, love, from thy window Is streaming over me. Be still, my heart, thy mistress Hath heard thy fondest prayer.' Feet Distortion in China. The binding of a child's feet is not begun until she has learned to walk and lo certain things for herself, as it would be difficult, if not impossible, to teach her afterward. The rich bind their children's feet from the 6th or 7th year, but the poor do not begin until they are 12, or even older. Parents who have been forced by poverty to sell a daugh-ter as a slave when she was a child, will bring her back afterward if they can, and then, no matter how old she is, they bind up her feet and marry her as a lady. But the pain of binding a full-grown foot is said to be most intense. Strong white bandages two inches wide are manufactured for the purpose. Those worn the first year are two yards long, ward. The following, according to Miss Fielde, is the method adopted: "The end of the strip is laid on the inside of the foot at the instep, and then carried over the top of the toes and under the foot. drawing the four toes with it down upon the sole; thence it is passed over the foot and around the heel; and by this stretch the toes and the heel are drawn together, leaving a bulge on the instep and a deep indentation in the sole, under the instep. This course is gone over in successive layers of bandage until the strip of cloth is all used, and the final end is sewn tight down." To please a Chinawoman, the "indentation" must measure an inch and a half from the part of the foot which rests on the ground up to the instep. The toes are then completely drawn over the sole, and the foot is so squeezed upward that in walking only the ball of the great toe touches the ground. Large quantities of powdered alum are used when the feet are first bound, and always afterward, to prevent ulceration and lessen the offensive odor. The bandage is taken off only once a month. At the end of the first month the foot is put in hot water, and, after it has been allowed to soak some time, the bandage is carefully unwound, "the dead cuticle, of which there is so much, being abraded during the process of unbinding. When the foot is entirely unbound, it is not unusual to find ulcers and other abominations. Frequently, too," we are told, "a large piece of flesh sloughs off the sole, and it sometimes happens that one or two toes drop off."

When this happens, the patient considtional suffering by having smaller and more delicate feet than her neighbors!

The Colored Juryman. Gen. Thomas Harrison, who was commander of a Texas regiment during the war, and known by the boys as the "Jim Town Major," was soon after the war elected Judge of one of the districts of Texas. Shortly after his election he visited one of the counties in his district for the purpose of holding his court. He arrived at the county town on Sunday evening, and sent for the Sheriff and asked him if a jury had been summoned for the court, and if any upon the jury were colored. The Sheriff replied he had summoned a jury, but there were no colored men on the jury, and but few in the county. Judge Harrison told him, under the recent order of the Department Commander, no legal jury could be impaneled unless one or more negroes were on it, and ordered him to have some negroes in attendance on the following morning, to be placed upon the jury. The Sheriff, after some trouble, succeeded in finding three or four negroes, and upon organizing the court Judge Harrison placed one on each jury.

About the first case called was one against a party for murder. After hearing the evidence, arguments of counsel, and charge of the court, the jury started down-stairs to consider their verdict, the colored juror happening to be in the rear. Following them was the attorney for the defendant. At the head of the stairs (and in hearing of the colored juror) the attorney was asked by a friend how he thought the case would be decided. The reply was, "I think the defendant will be acquitted or the jury will be hung." The jury went down the steps and out in the yard, and upon looking around the colored member was missing. Upon investigation, they saw him making 2:40 time in the direction of the brush. The Sheriff was called; and, after a vigorous pursuit, Mr. Juror was captured and brought before the court and asked why he had run away. His reply was, "He had heard a gentleman say if the man wasn't cleared the jury would be hung, and as he hadn't done nothing he didn't started the question, are not the American women losing their thinness? and it expressed the belief that they are losing it steadily and perceptibly. Oblosing it steadily and perceptibly. Observation shows that it is so, especially in large cities, where there is more ease and material comfort, more freedom from anxiety and petty cares, than there can be in the country. Our women do not look as they did twenty-five years ago, for their proportions have visibly increased, as a general rule. Still we think hard-working farmers' wives are, as a general thing, less "stocky" than their mothers were.

Psesident Hayes gives it as his opinion that Garfield is sure to carry Ohio by an overwhelming majority, and have an excellent showing in Indiana.

Gen. Grant brands as a malicious falsehood the report of the Times Galena correspondent that he favored the election of Hancock or ever predicted his election.

Is it not enough to know that Hancock and English are Democrats and candidates of the "solid South" to defeat them past all redemption? Whatever else may be said of them, is this not enough?

D. H. Denton & Co., of Chicago, have issued a pamphlet containing some valuable tables, showing the prices paid for the several articles of trade handled at the board of trade at Chicago for each month from 1859 to 1879 inclusive.

Harvey Strayer, a sixteen-year-old lad of South Bend, was recently shot in the neck by the careless handling of a revolver by one of his friends. The ball passed close to the arteries but did not injure them. It injured some of the nerves of the neck so as to paralize the entire body for a short time.

Wade Hampton, in his speech in the Cincinnati convention, promised Hancock the solid 138 electorial votes of the south. The query arises, what promise has Hancock given this solid south for these 138 solid votes if elected President by their influence.

The Butler Democrats of Massachusetts denounce the Democratic nominination because they were made simply on account of availability, and that the head of the ticket has not the least sign of a record outside of his military. They sustain the Republican nominations.

As a direct result of reading trashy blood-and-thunder literature so commonly dealt out to the youth of this country in wholesale quantities, three boys under twenty years of age were hanged in Canton, Ohio, last Friday, two of them for the murder of an old man and the other for the murder of a young companion. They were all habitual readers of this sort of trash.

The Free Press dubs the Inter Ocean as pledged to support Hancock before he was put into the field because it published the following:

"The Inter Ocean stands uncovered in the presence of battle-scarred heroes, and will strike whoever lifts an arm against them; and whenever the principles for which they contended are assailed it will find voice to denounce.' Does it follow that the Inter Ocean in order to stand for "the principles for which they contended," must support the representatives of the army | States in the typographical appearance that fought to overthrow them?

After the Confederates got control of both houses of Congress, in 1879, they swelled the net ordinary expenses of the government for this year to more than $192,000,000. The three previous Republican Congresses expended only about $170,000,000 per annum, but they didn't pretend to be

Mr. Daniel Dougherty, in his speech in the Cincinnati convention nominating Gen. Hancock, very forcibly remarked that he would be inaugurated if elected, the sentiment receiving a grand round of applause by the convention. No one for a moment objects to that, but he might well have added, that Mr. Hancock nor any other man will ever be inaugurated as President unless he does receive a majority of the electoral college as they are elected by the people.

Hancock was a brave general in the Union army and fought the rebels with commendable desperation. Now he consents to represent these same rebels who still retain the self-same principles he fought to overcome, and who, with Hill of Georgia, claim that the war in which Hancock fought settled nothing excepting that the North was more powerful than the South, and with Blackburn of Kentucky, are clamoring to obliterate from the statute books every remnant of legislation growing out of the war. It can but be taken for granted that he holds the same belief as they, and if elected will assist them in carying out their nefarious designs.

He then placed the revolver to his own head and fired, killing himself instantly. Miss Dacey regained consciousness after a short time, but her death is almost beyond a question.

An interesting fact worthy of the attention of those Democrats who are confident of electing their candidate for President is brought to mind by a correspondent of the Post and Tribune. The Constitution says in regard to the election of Presidential electors: Act. II. Sec. 2. Each State shall appoint, in such manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a number of the electors equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress; * * the Congress may determine the time of choosing the electors and the day on which they shall give their votes; which day shall be the same throughout the United States.

This leaves with the Legislature of the several States the power to meet on the day appointed for this purpose, and appoint the Presidential electors without leaving the question to the popular vote. This manner of choosing electors is not without its precedents. In the earlier elections the majority of the States made the appointments in this way, and not by popular vote. In 1824 the States of Delaware, Georgia, Louisiana, New York, South Carolina and Vermont chose their electors through their Legislatures. The State of South Carolina chose its electors through its Legislatures from its earliest moment down to secession The State of Florida in the election of 1868 chose her electors through her Legislature. The State of Colorado in 1876 chose her electors through her Legislature. The situation now appears like this In the eighteen States, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin, the Republicans hold control of the Legislature and the executives, and which States are entitled to 198 electors, or fifteen more than enough to elect, and the President is theirs without ado or campaign expenditure. Thus it will be seen that despite all shot-guns or New York repeaters, the Democrats are beaten at the outset.

The Inter-Ocean of June 28 publishes the following letter that very plainly explains itself: TREASURY DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON,)

Office of Secretary, June 22, 1880. H. Lusey, Esq., East Des Moines, Iowa, Sm:-In reply to your letter of the 17th inst., asking to be informed on what date the Hon. James A. Garfield paid into the Treasury his back pay, and how the Treasury books show this transaction, I have to inform you, it appears from the records of this office that the sum of $4,548 was deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of United States in the name of James A. Garfield, on account of "retroactive increase of salary," on the 22d day of April, 1873, and that this amount was covered into the Treasury by miscellaneous covering warrant, No. 704, second quarter, 1873, and cannot be withdrawn except by act of Congress. very respectfully. J. K. UPTON, Assistant Secretary.

The Appleton (Wis.) Crescent finds rapture in the thought that "Hancock's name contains seven letters — the lucky number, and an omen of success." It takes eight letters to spell Garfield's name. Sorry to make ourselves disagreeable; but it's 8 to 7 again, ain't it?

The Berrien County A prominent Democrat was asked on Friday by a fellow Democrat how he liked the nomination of Hancock. He replied: "I don't like it. For years we have been fighting against military rule. The Democratic party fought General Grant mainly on the ground that the army was not the right school n which to learn to respect the rights of others. The military service is despotic and military men are despots. Their word is law, and, being accustomed to command, they are arbitrary and have no regard for the rights of the masses. No, sir! I fought Grant because he was a military despot, and now Lam asked to swallow Hancock because he belongs to the same breed of dogs. The democratic convention has attempted to steal republican thunder and glorify the heroes of the war. It won't work! With Seymour or Tilden we could have won, because they. were honest and made no hypocritical pretensions to glorify a war which the democratic party condemned. As long as the party takes false grounds it will be beaten. I am disgusted with this eternal cringing hypocrisy." This is no doubt the real feeling of a majority

Let some of our townspecple drive into such men's orchards and hitch a horse to an apple tree of ten or fifteen years' growth and we mistrust they will begin to notice a difference.

THE South Bend Tribune thinks that Col. (?) Copeland does not stick to the truth in his speeches for the Democratic nominees, and cites an instance, his statement that a majority of the soldiers voted for McClellan and against Lincoln, when the fact is Lincoln received 119,754 and McClellan 34,291 votes, or over three to one. What else could you expect, Mr. Tribune, from a man who is a hard money Democrat in one place and a Greenbacker in another? The Newaygo (Mich.) Tribune claims him as a Greenbacker from his admissions to the editor.

CANNOT a telephone exchange be established in Buchanan? The Superintendent at South Bend ventures the remark that if ten or fifteen subscribers can be obtained here an exchange might be started with the prospect of obtaining more. In that place an exchange was started with forty subscribers, requiring an immense amount of coaxing to raise the required number, when now, within John Caleb, 9 1-10 " less than a year after, the number is fast approaching 200, and it would be hard work to convince any one of them that they could possibly live without the telephone. One here, connected with either Niles or Berrien | Ouis Fuller, 11 venience and would be well worth the cost. Who will be the one to make a John Shaw, 9 4-10 move toward working up this enterprise?

THE Red Ribbon State Convention met at Jackson on the 23d and 24th. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting, at which every county in the State was represnted. There were present 527 delegates, representing 208 Red Ribbon organizations. Besides there were also present delegates from the National W. C. T. U., State W. C. T. U., Good Templars and Sons of Temperance. The organization of the State is now complete, and with a committee at work in every county. The object of this move is to secure in the interests of temperance an amendment to the Constitution of the State prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. There are now in circulation thousands of petitions asking the Legislature to submit the question to the people at the next election. Success to the movement.

ORGANIZE. - Notwithstanding the fact that Garfield and Arthur clubs are being formed in the larger towns in the county we do not hear of any work being done by our Republican friends in the rural districts. It is time all were getting ready to do effective work for our standard bearers and the party. Now is the time to organize and find out who are on our side, and then attempt the conversion of the opposition from their erroneous doctrines. There is not one member of the great Republican party who cannot do something to help along our noble cause, and now is the time to commence. Let every school district, every neighborhood, at once unite to carry on the work; let neighbor confer with neighbor as to the most effective means to help our cause, and if thoroughly united we will show to the world, when the votes are counted in November, the largest Republican majority the party has ever received in Berrien county. Go to work!

DASTARDLY.—They have a fellow down at New Buffalo who would be a good subject for the hangman if detected. Saturday morning Henry Wiegle, a farmer living near there, went to his pasture and there found both of his horses lying dead near each other. Mr. A. A. Jordan informs us that each had a wound in the bowels, one on the right and the other on the left side, that had the appearance of having been made with a butchers knife, and large enough to admit a man's three fingers. The grass near where the horses laid was all tramped down and covered with blood and the bodies cold, showing that the fatal wounds were made during the early part of the night, and that the horses were left to die a slow death. The perpetrator of this miserable act is not known, but it is safe to say that had he been discovered his carcass would have graced the boughs of some neighboring tree, such was the feeling created by the discovery of his crime.

The Pond's Extract Company—as an additional protection to their patrons-have begun using a seal label on both the top and bottom of their outside wrappers. This is intended to prevent unscrupulous druggists from taking some of the Pond's Extract out of the bottles for use in mixing up a preparation of the bottles for Witch Hazal by measure, and then refilling the bottles with water, and replacing them in their original wrappers for sale to the public as genuine Pond's Extract, now the bottles cannot be tampered without defacing the seal label. It is a protection to which the public is entitled.

Republican Club.

A number of the Republicans in Buchanan and vicinity met at Hamililton's hall on Saturday evening, June 26, for the purpose of taking preliminary steps to form a Garfield and Arthur Republican Club.

On motion of E. M. Plimpton, LeRoy H. Dodd was elected Chairman. On motion of N. Hamilton, seconded by B. D. Harper, A. A. Worthington was appointed Secretary of the meet-

Moved by E. M. Plimpton, and carried, that a Garfield Club be organized with the proper committees for the purpose of carrying on the present campaign. A number of names were then enrolled as members.

Moved by W. I. Himes, and seconded by J. J. Van Riper, that a committee of three be appointed by the Chair on permanent organization. E. M. Plimpton, John G. Holmes and Walter I Himes were appointed by the Chair as such Committee.

Moved and carried that N. Hamilton be appointed as a committee to procure a room for holding the Garfield Club meetings in.

Moved by F. T. Plimpton, and carried, that the meeting adjourn to July

ATTEMPTED MURDER.—Last week Joseph W. Weimer employed a colored man to help him a few days at his livery barn. On Sunday the colored man was well under the influence of liquor, and being neglectful of his work and very insolent, Mr. Weimer discharged him. A little later on Sunday morning, while Mr. Weimer was at the steamboat dock, the darkey slyly crept up behind him and struck him a severe blow with a loaded cane about two inches above the left ear bodly bruising and cutting his head and knocking him down. Mr. J. H. Graham saw the cowardly blow, and made a desperate and almost successful attempt to hold the would-be assassin, who was of herculean strength and frame, and during the struggle Mr. Graham received a severe blow in the face. Just as the darkey got away from Mr. Graham, Mr. Weimer began to realize the situation and started in pursuit of the criminal, and notwith standing that Joe staggered and reeled like a drunken man from the effects of the blow on the head, falling several times and bruising himself badly, and that the blood was streaming down over his face and neck, he chased his assailant to near the depot, about eighty rods distant, when he became entirely exhausted and had to be taken home. He has almost entirely recovered the shock, and says so far as he is individually concerned he does not want to put the county to the expense of capturing and prosecuting the colored man. However, since the occurrence, J. R. Clarke, deputy sheriff, has been trying to capture him. The darkey is a tramp and a fugitive from justice under a charge of strik-

James Woodford, living two miles east of the city on the Edwardsburg road, whom Tom Cottrell tried to kill about a year ago, had another effort on his life yesterday morning. When working in the harvest field he was bitten by a large rattlesnake. Saleratus and ammonia were at once applied to the bite, and he drank freely of whisky. After this he came to town and Dr. Bonine prescribed for im. At last accounts he was getting along comfortably [St. Joseph Traveler-Herald.] The Republicans were so anxious to organize for the campaign that, pursuant to call, a number met at the City Hall at different times on Saturday evening and the result was two Republican Clubs. On Thursday evening, in response to call by the President of each club, both assembled at L. C. Fyfe's office and united, with the following as officers: President, L. C. Fyfe; Vice-Presidents, W. W. Cooper, Dr. A. H. Scott; Secretary, Will Sesser Treasurer, O. O. Jordan; Executive Committe, N. C. Rice, Ed. F. Platt, Jas. R. Clarke, G. F. Happ, F. Pixley, Sam Hannon, Alex. Jones, Jas. G. Jennings, Carl Anderson, D. H. Kedzie, W. W. Bell, T. T. Ransom, A. D. Kent, Will Stevens. The Club will undoubtedly make a good showing during the campaign....Strawberries did not "pan out" well for the growers. The average yield was about twenty-five bushels per acre, and the net proceeds light.

no good reason, and yet many will allow impure blood, weakness of the kidneys, imperfect digestion, and urinary troubles to undermine and break down their general health, and carry them to a premature grave. Some seek relief among mineral poisons, in pill form, etc., others resort to extensively advertised alcoholic beverages and fermented liquors, only to feel themselves for a time somewhat better, but after a while much worse, Now, why should this be so? It is well-known by the intelligent portion of our community that Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla will surely remove all these disorders. This medicine is the wonderful discovery of an eminent French physician, and has proven itself in a thousand of instances to be the best vegetable purifier known to medical men. It never fails to effectually cure Scrofula, Syphilitic disorders, weakness of the kid neys, all nervous disorders and debility, and all urinary and digestive troubles. It makes the old feel full of vouthful vigor, and young energetic and gay, restoring perfect manhood and womenhood, especially when the disease has a tendency to weaken the mind, body and nervous system. Do not dispair. A single bottle will conconvince of its great merit as a health renewer for it begins at once to give new life and vigor to both body and mind, never failing to remove all symptoms of any and every disease that can be cured by cleansing, renovating, purifying and strengthening the human system, driving out, as if by magic, the many ills that flesh and blood is heir to, and building up new health, new vigor and new life. THE Era rather prematurely, we think, spends nearly a whole page in commendation of some of those it favors for the nomination for the several county offices by the Republican convention. Its favorites appear to be mostly those who have already held the several offices two terms. After the convention it will be easier to tell eating and talking. It was a narrow who will be the favored ones.

THE call for the Republican congressional convention appears in another part of this paper. Local committees should now be making their calculations for the appointment of delegates and other business.

Cass county papers tell of a lady in that county who goes about from house to house selling "real" lace for only $1 per yard, after buying a stock of the merchants at ten to twenty cents per yard. A considerable amount of improvement has been going on in Dayton the past few weeks. Mr. Kern has made his building nearly as good as new, repainted it, newly roofed it, and built a new platform at its front, while a new walk and fresh paint serves to improve the oposite side of the street.

A writer of the household department of the Post and Tribune recommends sprinkling currant bushes with chloride of lime, as a preventative of the ravages of the current worm as one that never fails. The lime does not injure the fruit or plant, and is said to effectually protect them both. It may be worth a trial by those who are bothered with these pests.

APPLE and pear trees appear to keep up a continual blossoming this at year. Mr. W. O. Hamilton says his orchard contains blossoms on nearly every tree, and Mrs. Shinn reports having a pear tree that has been continually in blossom since their first appearance early in the spring, and that the tree bears fruit in all stages from the blossom to the size of a walnut.

THE contract for building the St. Joseph Valley railroad was let, last Thursday, to N. L. Williams & Co., Syracuse, N. Y., at an exceedingly low rate. They contract to do all the work of building the road ready for the rolling stock. The contractors say they expect to have the road in operation by October 1, or before if not hindered by lack of material that is to be furnished by the company. Work will be commenced as soon as the section stakes can be placed.

OWING to the softness of the ground on the prairie, that cord-binder failed to give satisfaction to Mr. Rough and he returned it. This did not spoil the maching, however, for Mr. Hamilton sold it to a man living near the poor farm in Berrien township, and it works like a charm. Binds every bundle and that in good shape. They are bound to be the machines used by farmers for harvest purposes.

Town dogs, seeing their country neighbors coming to town without muzzles and go away perfectly unharmed, are beginning to take a hint and are gradually kicking off their own muzzles until the muzzled dog is among the "has been" of Buchanan. One was seen going down the street a few days since with a a "muzzle" on and a large sized beef shank in his mouth. His master is evidently a liberalist.

SEVERAL weeks since Dr. Seeley caused a letter to be published in the is well. Reporter announcing to his creditors here that if they would forward their claims to him, at Marietta, Ohio, he would cash them. A few sent their claims, but did not get the cash. Another few, of which ye editor was one, thought they knew a better way and so attached his goods as he was trying to get them out of the country by shipping from South Bend. Mrs. Seelev claimed the goods as her own, and the right of property was tried before Justice Corning, in that place last Friday, which resulted in sustaining the levy, giving judgment for the amount of the claims and costs of suit. There are few circumstances under which such men pay their debts, and this appears to be one of them.

An oriental traveler describes this busy scene, witnessed on historic shores: "Our steamer landed on a beach which was the port of Antioch, where the disciples were first called Christians. There was no town on the water's edge, no people, no wharf. The passengers and the merchandise were out a shore in lighters, which ran up in the sands. A troop of camels, with their driver, lay on the beech, ready to transfer the goods into the interior. Among the articles landed were boxes marked 'Dr. J. C. Aver & Co., Low-ELL, MASS., U. S. A.,' showing that they contained medicines and whence they came. These with other goods were hoisted on the backs of camels, for transportation to Antioch. Thus the skill of the West sends back its remedies to heal the maladies of populations that inhabit those Eastern

So he was turned into a pasture, or left to crop the grass without any one to disturb or

But the funny thing about the old horse was that every morning, after grazing a while, he would start on a tramp, goin ground and round in a circle, just as he had been accustomed to do for so man years. He would keep it up for hours, and people often stopped to look and wonder what had got into the head of the venerable animal to make him walk around in such a solemn way when there was no earthly need of it. But it was the force of habit. And the boy who forms bad or good habits in his youth will be led by them when he becomes old, and will be miserable or happy accordingly.

Household Recipes.

To remove stains from books-Translate them into better language. To remove spots of grease, oil or fat from woolens—Saturate the cloth with kerosene or naphtha, and press it with a hot iron on the wrong side. Then treat it with a lighted match. This is the only sure way to remove grease from woolens.

To make your chimney draw—Send it to a Boston school, where it can have the advantage of regulation instruction.

To cleanse brass—Turn the hydrant on the sewing machine and book agent that knocketh at your door. To preserve woolens from moths-Give them to the poor.

To keep bread from molding—Give it to the poor woman who keeps boarders To prevent cake getting dry—Give the small boy access to the pantry.

Blowing Out a Kerosene Lamp. A very common method of extinguishing a kerosene lamp is to turn down the wick until only a minute flame is visible, and then blow down the chimney. This is a most dangerous practice, being very frequently the cause of explosions. People who use kerosene lamps should make it an absolute rule never to attempt to extinguish a lighted lamp that way, however small the flame. Scientific reasons might be given for such advice, but the best reason that can possibly be given is the fact that explosions frequently result from a neglect of it. It is as easy to blow into the lower end of the chimney as the top, the only difference being that in the former case the person blowing is required to stoop a little, while in the latter the inflection of the body is not as a certain and speedy cure for whooping-cough. Dr. H. A. Mott, who has been experimenting with his own children as well as many others, states, in a paper recently read before the New York Academy of Sciences, that the best time to administer it is just after a coughing spell and just before retiring at night. As regards the size of the dose, this should depend on the age and severity of the case. From three to five grains of powdered quinine can be put on the tongue of a grown person and allowed to dissolve. For a child from three to five grains may be dissolved in two ounces of sugar and water, and one teaspoonful can be given as stated above. The sugar and water help to keep it longer in contact with the parts. Quinine administered in gelatine or sugar-coated pills is of no use whatever.

Frightful Vengeance.

A respectable old peasant farmer in Roumelia, smitten by the charms of a young gypsy girl belonging to a tribe that had squatted in the neighborhood of his farm, induced the maiden to listen to his addresses, and finally obtained her consent to become his wife. He received several warnings from sundry of her gypsy lovers, couched in threatening terms, but was so infatuated by her surprising beauty that he disregarded these monitions and married her. On his wedding night a number of stalwart gypsy youths broke into his house, seized him in his bridal bed, bound him to a plank, and deliberately sawed him in two, having previously strangled his young wife before his eyes. On the same night the tribe struck its tents and decamped, nor have the authorities yet succeeded in laying hands upon the perpetrators of the crime.

Raising Poultry.

It is strange that so few of our countrywomen turn ther attention to poultry raising. It is a health-giving occupation, and the average woman has a nature well fitted to care for the little peeping chicks. A woman is all patience, sympathy and love, qualities that will insure success in the poultry fancy. Out in the air at early morn will soon bring to the snowy cheek a healthy glow. How it will send the blood leaping through your veins! If you cannot keep poultry, you can keep birds, and when the burden of life's cares seems almost to crush you, how their sweet songs will cheer up the aching heart and tired body! If you fill your house with pets, it will fill your hearts with over for all of God's helpless creatures.

The Skull of Confucius.

The London Globe announces that the skull of Confucius is for sale in a curiosity shop in that city, but that so far it has found no purchaser. It was found at Peking during the plunder of the Summer Palace of the Emperor by the allied French and English troops in 1860, and was then mounted in gold and ornamented with diamonds to the value of $50,000. It was brought to London in 1862, and exhibited in the Universal Exposition, where, on account of its mounting, it attracted attention. Sixty thousand dollars were offered for it, but now that it has been stripped of its gold and jewels it cannot find a purchaser at any price.

SEEDING FOR IMMEDIATE PASTURE.--On land plowed last fall, or in cornstalks, we would advise sowing, as soon as the land is in order in spring, a bushel of oats per acre, with a peck of timothy, ten pounds of red clover, two of white, and a few pounds of blue grass. Keep off the cattle till the oats have covered the ground; then, if you do not stock too heavily, you will have pasture continuously. Seeding down on spring plowing is uncertain, if the season is dry. The increased interest in cattle-growing will demand a largely-increased acreage in grass, and many farmers, we find, are needing pasturage the coming summer who have made no move so far toward it. We have tried the above plan and succeeded very well. The oats disappear in July, but the timothy will then be abundant.—Hon. James Wilson.

Three drummers stood swearing from hour to hourThey'd made not a sale in the whole wide town;
They swore at their luck and they raved at the times
Their names were Robinson, Jones and Brown.
For jaws must wag
When prices are weak,
And jaw must be supPlemented by cheek.
Yet they at the "bar" stood groaning.

Could not the doctor's fee be justly called ill-gotten gains? LITTLE Carrie G— said she liked sea-bathing, "only her mouth leaked and let in the salt water."

Take care of the pennies and your wife will take care of the dollars every time she wants a new bonnet. A young lady was asked recently which she preferred of two brothers. She responded: "When I am with either of them, I prefer the other." "Papa," said his little girl, aged 6 years and 9 months, to him one day, 'why do you say step-daughter? Is it because she has been trodden upon?" "Isn'r that your friend, Mme. S., who is dancing there?" "Yes." "That's a frightfully ill-made dress she has on." "Yes, but if it wasn't it wouldn't fit

ADA (aged 4), who was doing something, and was told to desist by her mother. Mother-"Ada, am I to speak to you again?" Ada-"Yes, ma, you may, if you like." "To CALCULATE the entire cost of a trip to the top of Mt. Washington you have merely to summit up," remarks a witty individual. We presume, however, it would answer the same purpose to foot it up.

A REPEATER tried to vote for a dead man in San Francisco, and a little Irishman objected. "On what ground?" said the Judge. "Because, begorra," said Pat, "the man died in the Fourth ward, and ye are after voting him in the Third. "What do you ask for that article?" asked an old gentleman of a pretty shop girl. "Five dollars." "Ain't you a little dear?" "Why," she replied, "all the young men tell me so." The old gentleman looked as if he thought he had been misunderstood.

An exchange has an article on the "Curiosities of Courtship." One of the curiosities of courtship, which the author forgot to mention, is when the girl's father shakes you by the land and says he is glad to see you. It is curious because it rarely happens.

A MAN, noted for the non-payment of his bills, remarking that he "sprang from Mother Earth," a bystander said: "If that's so, you are a disgrace to your maternal ancestor." "How so?" inquired the impecunious man. "Because she always settles in the spring, and you never settle," was the reply. MOONSHINE.—This is no relative to the "honey-moon," notwithstanding it is very nice. Beat the white of two eggs very light. Sweeten to taste. Then slice in very thin pieces one banana, and stir into it; or, if you choose, take two oranges, or any kind of fruit will do. Do not make it until just before going to

Ar a school some time since a boy was reciting a poem referring to some ancient mariner who insists upon living by the seaside because he cannot dwell beyond old ocean's roar ; but, unfortunately, "grim palsy holds him to his bed."
"What is grim palsy?" cried the schoolmaster, interrupting the boy. "Grim palsy, sir? please, sir, it's his wife, sir,"

"On, dear! I feel so tired," sighed Mrs. Hickenloper, as she sank into a chair. "Well, I should think you would be," growled Mr. Hickenlooper, as he put on his coat to go out; "you tramped around more'n seven miles this afternoon making your silly calls. I shouldn't call myself half bright if I did such a thing." And then he went down street and walked nine miles around a billiard table, poking ivory marbles with a stick at 25 cents an hour, and she thought how hard he had to work at his business, poor man, when he came home at midnight and dragged his enfeebled

A LITTLE boy, 4 years old, having often been told it was wrong to ask for anything at the table, was down at dessert. After patiently waiting for some time without being noticed, he exclaimed: "Mamma, please may I have an orange if I don't ask for it?" "Yes. dear," was the reply. But, after a considerable interval, the little fellow, not getting his orange, again addressed his mother with: "Please, mamma, I'm not asking for an orange." This time he was duly rewarded.

THE editor of the Sauquoit (N. Y.) Register suggests that persons sending in big eggs will please accompany them by several ordinary-sized ones, not for publication, but so that the contrast will be apparent, and as a guarantee of good f. ith.

They were sitting together Sunday evening, with an album or two between them, when she pleasantly asked: "How would you like to have my mother live with you?" In just fifteen seconds he had his hat half-way down over his face and was bolting through Mistress—"Bridget, didn't you hear me call?" Bridget—"Yis, mum; but ye towld me the other day niver to an-swer ye back—and I didn't."

Physic, says an old surgeon, is the art of amusing the patient while nature cures the disease

Courting in South Africa. The Boers of South Africa have a singular courting custom. A young man takes a fancy to a girl and calls upon her in the evening, presenting her with a lighted wax candle. If she blows out the light and returns the candle, it is his sign of dismissal, and he makes no further effort in that direction. If she accepts the candle he considers it an acceptance of his suit. In that case the mother of the girl takes the candle and sticks a pin in it. All the members of the family then leave the room, and the lovers are free to do their courting. When the candle burns down to the pin, however, he must take his leave.

A City Built of Shells. Perhaps you do not know that the city of Paris is built mostly of shells, the cast-off houses of uncounted millions of little sea creatures. Each shell is not so big as a millet seed, and the little creatures lived in them ages ago. There were so many of them in the sea that they settled into real mountains, became cemented together, and now the mountains of shells form the quarries where most of the Paris building stone is procured. The shells are shaped like that of a snail, and are so plentiful in the Paris stone that one inch (cubic inch) is said to contain 58,000 of them. Beside this, they are found all over the world, not only in stone, but in the sands on the shore.

INSECTS ON HOUSE PLANTS.—Place the pots on a table or platform on which there is an inch or two of sand. Cover them with any inverted vessel, the sand making the edges fit closely. Or place over them a light frame or a support, and cover them with a cloth. Then burn tobacco under the cover, and let the smoke remain fifteen minutes. This is better than syringing, because the smoke pen-etrates every corner and crevice. When the open soil is infested with insects. caused by a free use of fertilizers, a good remedy is to cover it when dry with a fourth of an inch of soot and water liberally, which kills the insect and leaves the plants.
