BUCHANAN, BERRIEN COUNTY, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1880.

OUT IN THE COLD.

BY B. R. LONG.

Out in the cold now I'm wandering alone, Far from my friends and far from my home; Fur from the scenes of my childhood so dear, Shrinking before the cold world's heartless jee

Once I had friends I thought loving and true; Once, amid pleasure and honor, I grew; Once, Oh! the word has a sorrowful tone, For pleasure has left me and honor is gone.

Children at one time I fondled with glee; Where are they now, with light hearts and free! Where are the dear ones I once loved so well? Why here they left me, can say one fall?

Myself and my two sons stood close by her side; She took both their hands, and whispering said-

The homestead I gave them; 'twas all I could give; Beneath its old roof they said I could live, But soon a change came, and I, poor and old, Was turned from its threshold out in the cold.

Take care of thy father when mother is dead.

Father, forgive them the deed they have done.

Though they have plenty and I have none; Though their old father is left all alone, Far from the ones he loves, far from his home.

Soon the cold waters of death rippling by Will waft my frail spirit to regions on high; There will I meet my dear children of old, That once turned their father out in the cold.

MADELINE.

All the girls who were leaving school

Madeline rode, for the first time, up the avenue leading to her aunt's house.

came to the door to welcome her. Mr.

Chathard was not at home; Mrs Chat-that Madeline would come to her there.

She found her lying on the sofa, busy with some sort of knitting—a sallow,

It was three mortal weeks before he presented himself again. When he did come, it was in a ghostly fashion. Madeline's hot blood leaped up in revolt. Words hovered on her lips that, cool as he was, could not but have placed an effectual barrier between them. Something arrested them. A pained look was in his eye, anguish about his mouth, showing dimly through the mask of cynicism. A new impulse possessed her.

"Cousin," she said, gently enough,

What to Read.

"As many persons, so many opinions," says the Latin proverb. Can there be a Ten Commandments for reading whose obvious universal simplicity and wisdom prove them by the mere statement? Not yet, if at all. At present the question, What shall we read? is almost as universal as the question, What did the Sirens sing? The utmost that can well be attempted is to set down a few hints about the present state of things in the matter of reading -hints, if possible, not entirely useless to the scholar and, if possible, of some on earth; though, of course, the routine drudgery of business and investigations in physics do not require it. Let the general rule, therefore, be to have all your reading and all your thinking upon the best and fullest body of historical knowledge that you can acquire. Read, to begin with, one good summary of universal history, and commit to memory a short chronology, at the rate of one or two facts and dates to a century; read one good history of your own country (Hildreth's is the best one,) and one of your own State and town, if such there be; then a good history of England, then one of France, one of Germany, and so on, filling out the se-time he tries); the great poets, historians, philosophers, even theologians. Any one who has well read the masterpieces (to read well a masterpiece is very nearly to deliberately study it) has the principal material for a well-furnished mind. The Bible, Homer, Virgil, Dante, Shakspeare, Milton, Goethe, Burns, Wordsworth, Hugo, Æschylus, Sophocles, Aristophanes, Moliere, Herodotus, Thucydides, Livy, Sallust, Cæsar, Tacitus, Plutarch, Gibbon, Hallam, Plato, Aristotle, Bacon, Locke, Kaut, Hamilton, Spancer, the "cooch meking" ilton, Spencer—the "epoch-making' names, as the Germans well call them; one who knows even moderately well the chief works of those men is already liberally educated-and boys and girls can enjoy them all, unless, perhaps, it be the final list of the philosophers. To understand such works as these is to understand human life and history in a broad, comprehensive way, as one understands the main slopes and great rivervalleys of a country by mounting its highest peaks and looking abroad from

"Fond of dogs!" echoed the immord. "I hate dogs."
"But this animal here?"

The two men roared with laughter, and DeMusset made a friend. Late that day a yellow dog crossed the frontier of the Rhine at Strasbourg with the air of an animal that scored upon the tables of its memory a decidedly unpleasant recollection, and headed for Constantinople with undimin-

Damages for Flowage. A Boston merchant contending in a Connecticut court where a shrewd old farmer had claimed large damages for flowage upon some apparently half marshy and worthless land, was astonished at the evidence produced. There were three or four witnesses who testified on the plaintiff's side to the value of his land and the damage incurred. One spoke of planting a crop of corn there. A second responded similarly in the following examination: Plaintiff's Lawyer—"Have you ever used this land for agricultural purposes?" Farmer—"Hey?" P. L.—"Have you ever planted anything there?"

F.—"O, yes, lots on it; planted two crops o' corn there." P. L.—"Oh, you did? Did any one else ever do any planting there?" F.—"Yes; the man that hired it arter me for one season planted a big crop of pertaters."

The defendant at this testimony looked extremely blank, and whispered despairingly to his lawyer. That functionary, however, when his turn came to cross-examine the witness, elicited the following: Defendant's Lawyer-"Did I understand you, Mr. Farmer, to say you had planted two crops of corn on that Faimer—"Yaas, sir." D. L.—"Well, now, I want to be ex-

D. L.—"Yes, sir! On your oath, sir." F.—"Wall," said the farmer, with a grin; "none o' that kim up at all." The climax was reached when the other farmer who planted the potatoes, and who was summoned by the plaintiff, and had been fuming and fretting in court for two days at being taken away from his spring work, testified as follows: Lawyer-"Mr. Rusticus, you hired testimony. Keeping Children After School.

There is one common practice of the public schools which ought to be abolished at once and everywhere without question or parley. That is the practice of imprisoning the children in the school-houses beyond the school hours. Pretty nearly every school-house in the land is thus turned into a penitentiary in which children are immured every day, some of them for imperfect recitations, others for faults of deportment. This method of punishment might, if the teachers were all judicious, be resorted to occasionally with good effect; but teachers are not all judicious, and thousands of children are thus detained every day to whom the detention is a serious injury and a grave injustice. For some trifling bunch of order, like turning in the seat or dropping a poneil, for some small failure in a recitation, and often for no fault at all—whole classes being kept on account of the indolence of some of their members, and the innocent thus suffering with the guilty—the children are shut up in the school-houses, sometimes during the intermissions, often after the close of school. Thousands of children in delicate health, to whom the regular school hours are too long, are permanently injured by this system of confinement. If only the stupid and the willful and those in sturdy health were thus punished, there would be less reason of complaint; but any careful investigation will show that such discrimination is not generally made, and, from the nature of the system, cannot well be made; and that the injury to the health of pupils resulting from the practice more than outweighs any good that may result from it. The health of the pupil is a subject to which the averis liable to result in the impairment of the pupil's health ought to be forbidden This plea is based upon an observation of the working of this system in several towns and cities, and upon the concurrent testimony of many medical men. In some places the rules of the governing boards forbid the imprisonment of children, but the rules are generally set at naught by teachers. They ought to be enforced. It must be that there are methods of discipline for schools less injurious and more effectual than imprisonment.—Good Company. Postage Stamps.

Their Language.—The language of postage stamps, instead of flowers, has been invented by a practical American. Thus, when a postage stamp is placed upside down on the left corner of the letter, it means "I love you;" in the same crosswise, "My heart is another's;" straight up and down, "Good-by, sweetheart, good-by;" upside down in the right-hand corner, "Write no more;" in the center at the top, "Yes;" opposite at the bottom, "No;" on the right-hand corner at a right angle, "Do you love me?" in the left-hand corner, "I hate you;" top corner on the right, "I wish you friendship;" bottom corner on the left, "I seek your acquaintance;" on a line with the surname, "Accept my love;" the same upside down, "I am engaged;" at right angles in the same place, "I long to see you;" in the mid-dle at the right-hand edge, "Write immediately."

Stamp-Collecting.—It is said that postage-stamp collecting originated in India, where the missiouaries are able to reclaim from the heartless Hindoo parents the little babies they are accustomed to sacrifice before their idols, by trading postage stamps for them. For some reason the barbarians covet these paper tokens, either to offer to their gods after the manner of the Chinese, or to decorate their huts. The fact, becoming known in England, worked a change in the economy of canceled stamps. There are charity schools in England to which admittance is gained by presenting a certain number of defaced stamps. Allarge counting-houses throughout the realm carefully preserve every envelope, and the junior clerks make it their business to soak off the Queen's heads and paste them on huge rolls of wall paper. They are presented to some worthy lad who makes an exchange of them for learning.

> Treatment of Consumption. Three millions of persons die annually of consumption. Medical resources seem to be baffled by this malady. Dr. Talbot Jones confessed, in the New York Medical Journal, that climate is the physician's only dependence for the cure of his consumptive patient. The article expresses the following opinions:

1. No zone enjoys entire immunity from pulmonary consumption. 2. The popular belief that phthisis is common in cold climates is fallacious, and the idea, now so prevalent, that phthisis is rare in warm climates is as untrue as dangerous.

3. The disease causes a large proportion of deaths on the seashore, the mortality diminishing with elevation up to a certain point.

4. Altitude is inimical to the development of consumption, owing chiefly to the greater purity of the atmosphere in elevated situations, its freedom from organic matter, and its richness in ozone. 5. Moisture arising from a clay soil or due to evaporation is one of the most influential factors in its production.

6. Dampness from the atmosphere, from whatever cause, or in any altitude, predisposes to the development of the disease, and is hurtful to those already

7. Dryness is a quality of the atmosphere of decided value. 8. The most unfavorable climate postible for a consumptive is one of uniform high temperature and a high dew point (warm and moist).

9. The effects due to change in the atmosphere are by no means so pernicious as are generally supposed, and on this subject present views require modification. Dr. Jones commends the climate of Minnesota, and thinks those predisposed to consumption, or laboring under its first stages, would very likely be benefited or cured by a residence there. Between the pleasant rolling prairie, the wooded lake region, and the dense pine forests of the northern section of the State, they can choose what seems most agreeable and best adapted to them, while the dry, bracing atmosphere will enable them to live much of their time out of doors without fear of taking cold. He insists, however, on the inutility of sending patients thither who are in the advanced stages of the disease.

Three Good Lessons.

When I was 11 years old (said Mr. S., an eminent American merchant), my grandfather had a fine flock of sheep, which were carefully tended during the war of those times. I was the shepherd boy, and my business was to watch the sheep in the fields. A boy who was more fond of his books than the sheep was sent with me, but left the work to me, while he lay under the trees and read. I did not like that, and finally went to my grandfather and complained I shall never forget the kind smile of the old gentleman, as he said: "Never mind, Jonathan, my boy; if

"What does grandfather mean by
"I don't exthat?" I said to myself. "I don't expect to have sheep." My desires were moderate. I could not exactly make out in my mind what it was; but he had been to Congress in Washington's time, so I concluded it was all right, and I went back contentedly to the sheep.

After I got into the field, I could not keep his words out of my head. Then I thought of Sunday's lesson: "Thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things." I began to see through it. "Never you mind who neglects his duty; be you you watch the sheep, you will have the faithful, and you will have your reward." I received a second lesson soon after I came to New York as a clerk to the late Mr. R. A merchant from Ohio, who knew me, came to buy goods, and said, "Make yourself so useful that they cannot do without you." I took his meaning quicker than I did that of my grandfather. Well, I worked upon these two ideas until Mr. " ad me a partnership in the business. The first morning after the partnership was made known, Mr. G., the old tea merchant, called to congratulate me, and he said, "You are all right now. I have only one word of advice to give you. Be careful whom you walk the streets with."

This was lesson number three. And what valuable lessons they are Fidelity in all things; do your best for your employers; carefulness about your associates. Let every boy take these lessons home and study them well. They are the foundation stones of characters and honorable success.— New the luscious and seductive peanut. The peanut and the goober are one and the same. There are seven counties in Virginia that make a specialty of growing the peanut. The crop year begins Oct. 1, and ends the following September. In 1879 the peanut crop amounted to 900,000 bushels. They sail down in Ole Virginia for $1 a bushel, which makes a pretty good item when rolled up together. The modus operandi by which the nuts are separated, cleaned and classed is somewhat as fol-lows: The third story of the building contains thousands of bushels of peas in bags. First, there is a large cylinder, in which all the nuts are placed, in order that the dust and dirt may be shaken off of them. They pass from this cylinder into the brushes, where every nut receives fifteen feet of a brushing before it becomes free. Then they pass through a sluice-way to the floor below where they are dropped on an endless belt, about two and a half feet in width, and passing along at the rate of four miles an hour. On each side of the belt stand eight colored girls, and, as the nuts fall from the sluice on the belt, the girls, with a quick motion of the hand, pick out all the poor-looking nuts, and by the time the belt reaches the end two-thirds of the nuts are picked off, allowing only the finest to pass the crucible. Those that do pass drop through another sluice and empty into bags on the floor below. When the bag is filled it is taken away by hand, sewed up and branded, with the figure of a rooster prominent on its sides. The peas caught up by the girls are thrown to one side, placed in bags and carried into another room, where they are again picked over.

On one of those steamers that plowed the waters of the Mississippi in days gone by a quiet party was deeply im-mersed one evening in the mysteries of that somewhat uncertain game called poker. One of the party, a Colonel or Judge, or Major—history does not re-cord which—in a fit of abstraction took the four soes from the pack with which the game was being played and laid them on his knee. The game progressed, and the Colonel almost "raised" his antagonists out of their boots. When the "draw" came, he threw away his legitimate five, called for one, and reached for the four aces on his knee. They were gone! Rising, he cried in tones of virtuous indignation: "Gentlemen, this thing has gone far enough.

When the first lease expires the term is renewed if possible; but if there are no means of renewing the lease, or the relatives are forgetful, or the family extinct, the remains are taken up and buried again in a common trench, or relegated to a catacomb, as the case may be. In some of the burial grounds of Paris the condition of things is really frightful. Here the ground has been used over and over again, till it has lost not only all its original antiseptic properties, but has become a distinct source of corruption. It is no uncommon thing for the grave-diggers, whose unpleasant duty it is to exhume the bodies which have been buried for a longer or shorter time, to suffer from the miasma arising from the graves they are opening, and it has been more than once suggested to the Municipal Counservice to the average intelligent youth.

The roof and framework of the cupolas weigh 1,800 tons, and the gilding on the latter has already consumed more than half a ton of gold leaf. Above the center cupola is a massive bronze cross, which can be seen from every part of Moscow. The bronze frames of the windows, each nine yards high, weigh nearly three tens, and the hinges of the bronze doors have to support five and one-quarter tons of metal. Inside, the walls are gorgeously decorated in the usual style of Russian churches, and contain a number of jasper pillars, each of which cost upward of £2,000. The total cost exceeded 20,000,000 rubles, or £2,500,-000. The year soon to close has been to the people of this State one of general prosperity and peace. We have reaped abundantly of the fruits of the earth, and our enjoyment thereof has been undisturbed. Our industries have quickened, and labor has found steady employment with ample recompense. A stable currency has stimulated enterprise whereby our manufacturers have increased our mines been better developed, and our lines of railway extended. The public integrity has been strengthened and the public burthen lessened by a steady reduction of our National and State debts. We have enjoyed in a marked degree the blessings which spring from home and its hallowed associations. Knowledge has been diffused in our midst, and the opportunities for learning enhanced. Order has been maintained, morality respected, religion honored, and libertv preserved.

In consideration of our graitude for these manifold blessings. I hereby designate Thursday, the 25th day of November instant, as a day of thanksgiv-ing to Almighty God for his great goodness and favor to us as a people. And I do earnestly request all the in-habitants of this State on that day to assemble at their usual places of worship, and at their homes, to render such tribute of grateful praise. Let as also remember that our offering will not be complete if we fail by deeds of benevelence to the wants of the worthy 21 Numbers of Scribner's for $5. The richly illustrated November number of Scriber's Monthly, the decennial issue, appears in a new cover, and begins the twenty-first volume. The increasing popularity of the mag-azine is strongly evidenced by recent sales. A year ago the monthly circulation was about 90,000 copies; during the past nine months it has averaged 115,000 while the first edition of the November issue is 125.000. The first part of the now famous seri al by Eugene Schuyler,"The Life of Peter the Great," was finished in October With November begins part second, "Peter the Great as Ruler and Reformer," which will be an advance, in point of popular interests and wealth of illustration, upon the part already published. To enable readers to secure part first the publishers make the following special offers to new subscribers after October 20th, who begin with the November number.

(1.) New subscribers may obtain, for $5.00. Scribner's Monthly for the coming year, and the previous nine numbers. Feburary to October, 1880, which accepting this offer, twenty-one numbers will be had for $5.00. (2.) They may obtain the previous twelve numbers of Scribner's, elegantly bound in olive-green cloth (two volumes,) containing part I. of Peter the Great, all of Cable's novel, "The Grandissimes," with the numbers named above, and a year's subscription, for $7.50. (Regular price, $10,00. All book sellers or news-dealers will take subscriptions and supply the numbers and volumes mentioned in the above special offers, without extra

Those who remember this troupe having performed in this place three years ago can testify to the ability of the actors.

The cannon from Niles received its third spiking in this place. The first time was when the rebels captured it at Chicamanga it was spiked by the Michigan boys. The next time it was spiked by the rebels when the Union forces recaptured it at Mission Ridge Both times were under rather different circumstances than when it was done in Buchanan.

Tms sleighing we are having makes some pleased and others otherwise. It starts the stream of saw-logs and makes business lively, and sleigh-riding jolly. On the other hand, it finds a good many acres of corn unhusked, and the present appearance is that if the owners want to use it this winter they will have to dig it out of the snow.

BUCHANAN, Mich., Nov. 13, 1880. To the many friends who sympathized and assisted me during my husband's long seige of sickness, and my late bereavement, (especially would I mention the noble action of the employer and employees of the Buchanan Manufacturing Company who so substantially assisted my deceased husband and myself). I do hereby tender my sincere and heart-felt thanks. MRS. THOS. SWARTZ.

We are authorized to receive subscriptions for Demorest's at the regular price, $3.

Burglars attempted to enter Mrs. Wicks' residence on Day's Avenue, Monday night. They gave S. W. Redden a visit a few nights before, taking his vest into the cellar and scattering the contents of the pockets. It is plainly evident that this work is done by some scalawags living in this place. and it looks as if they ought to be captured, or hurt them pretty badly in the attempt.

JOHN MORRIS has a "new fangled" organ in his restaurant that is operated something after the style of a grindstone, but makes good deal better music. It cost him $75, and now he proposes to give it away to some fellow who buys 25 cents' worth of goods of him. He wants to make 3,000 such sales before he decides who that fellow is to be. Philo Smith has the tamest ferret | Some folks may think he is pretty particular about his present making, but perhaps it is all right.

THE Republicans of this place had their long contemplated jubilee last Thursday evening. Those who participated appeared to have lots of sport. especially Abe Baker who snatched the banner from the boy's hands and threw it into the bonfire. He heard something drop, soon after. The only trouble with that performance was that it did not drop hard enough. There was no speaking owning to the exceeding cold wind that made it next to impossible for any one to remain upon the street any length of time.

The Mirror says, "By money, deception and fraud, they" (referring to the Republicans) "have a warrant from the people to riot on the spoils and public plunder another four years, and hence the rejoicing." This is virtually an acknowledgement that "to riot on the spoils and public plunder" was just what the Democrats were fighting for and now mourne because the people said, "No; we prefer an honest and prosperous government, and are well pleased with the present management.

Don't wait until you have found, to your sorrow, that mineral poisons and alcoholic stimulants, bitters, etc., will only agravate diseases of the blood, kidneys and liver. But now, before another day passes, make haste to procure and use Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It never fails to cure all blood and skin diseases, all liver complaints and urinary troubles. For Thirty Years. For thirty years Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry has been kept for sale by druggists generally, and in all that time there has not been a single complaint made, but on the contrary the druggists and the people acknowledge it to be the best remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Bron-

Many people think it cheaper to buy 25 cent sizes of a proprietary medicine. But they make a mistake. For instance, Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry contains about eight times the quantity of ordinary 25 cent cough palsams. Besides it takes a less quantity of Wistar's Balsam to cure a cold. A single dose is often sufficient. For leep seated Colds and Consumption it has proven itself to be the best and quickest cure ever discovered. Don't Make a Mistake. Why will you use salves and lotions, and other outward applications for the cure of skin diseases? The reief thus obtained can only be tempocary. Why not strike at the root of all skin diseases by getting your blood and liver in a healthy, vigorous condition? This can only be done effectively and thoroughly by the use of Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsapa-Old, Tried, and True. Remember Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparılla is not a new, untried compound. It has stood the test of forty years' use, and has proven itself to be the best vegetable compound ever discovered for curing scrofula, syphilitic disorders, skin and blood diseases, liver complaints, urinary troubles, etc. peaches. For terms and particulars inquire at this office.

To The Afflicted. Since the introduction of Kellogg's Columbian Oil it has made more permanent cures and given better satisfaction on Kidney Complaints and Rheumatism than any known remedy. Its continued series of won derful cures in all climates has made it known as a safe and reliable agent to em-ploy against all aches and pains, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders. It acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering and often saving life. The protection it affords by its timely use on rheuma-tism, kidney affection, and all aches and pains, wounds, cramping pains, cholera mor-bus, diarrhoa, coughs, colds, catarrh, and disorders among children, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure when of the string, but it soon began to move slowly upward, still spinning at right angles with the string. It continued in this way to move steadily upward un-til, at length, it had traversed the entire distance, and was lost to view behind the "flies" over the stage.

When the applause that greeted this trick had subsided, the Japanese moved the doll-house to the center of the stage and placed it beside the table. He then set six tops, exactly alike in size and appearance, spinning upon the table, and, taking a seventh in his hand, indicated to the spectators, by signs, that he would send it on a journey through the doll-house. He then sat down on the floor, and curling up his legs, Turk fashion, started the seventh top spinning. It ran along the floor until is reached a sort of inclined drawbridge leading to the entrance of the little house, and then went up slowly to, and through, the open door. The jug-gler waited a moment, as if expecting some signal from the now invisible top. His suspense was relieved an instant later by the tinkling of a silver bell, which indicated that the top had entered one of the tiny rooms. The Japanese held up one finger and waited, in a listening attitude, for a second signal. It came, as before, in the tinkling of a bell, upon hearing which the man held up two fingers. Finally, when ten rooms had been visited, and ten bells, rung in this way, had been counted on the performer's fingers, he arose and pointed toward the house, and toward the table, upon which the six tops were yet spinning. After a few moments, during which he silently watched the door of the house, the top that had been ringing the bells came quickly out of the entrance, ran down the draw-bridge and drepped motionless at the test of the Japanese. That same more feet of the Japanese. That same mo-ment the tops on the table stopped, and dropped over on their sides.—"Jap-onese Top-spinning," in St. Nicholas.

Two men from Illinois, farmers apparently, sturdily built and ordinarily intelligent, entered the St. Louis Republican office, and before they left one of them had created a sensation of a decidedly startling nature, and afforded one of the most striking illustrations on record of extreme suspicion and simplicity. The men said that they wished to look through the building, and were told that they would be taken up stairs upon going to the elevator, the location of which was pointed out to them. One of the men entered the elevator, but the other, for some reason, stayed outside. The boy in charge of the elevator closed the door and pulled the rope, starting the thing upward. As the elevator began rising the man inside leaped to his feet, glared about him in terror, and yelled out: "My Ged, where am I going?" He hesitated but an instant. The elevator was moving slowly, but the transom over the door at the bottom was still visible. In a desperate endeavor to ascape, the terrified man threw himself at it head first at the same time that the boy, with rare presence of mind, jumped to the rope and reversed the movement. The action was just in time; the ascending elevator caught the passenger's head between its floor and the casing of the transom and pinched it slightly before the movement was re-versed and the head released. Then the man jerked back, and, as the descending elevator showed the glass window in the door beneath, he again plunged forward, head first, and went through like a cannon ball, striking at length on the floor of the hall leading to the street, amid a mass of broken sash and shattered glass. Then, quick as light-ning, the terror-stricken being bounded to his feet and out of the hall and up Chestnut street like the wind, follow ing his less-terrified companion, who had dashed out into the street at the first yell from the elevator.

Some Men's Robbies. A banker, well known in the financial world, died in one of the Atlantic cities, at the age of 80, leaving a property valued at millions. After his death a collection of toys was sold for over $100,000, which he had been accumulating for twenty years. Scarcely any valuable or mechanical toy had been made in Europe of which he had not a specimen, but his assortment included, also, the most trivial of children's playthings. Another, a citizen of Philadelphia, one of the foremost jurists of his day, had a fancy for collecting fairy tales. His shelves contained thousands of these volumes in every language. Manias for china, old brasses and rare editions are so common among scholarly men that the incongruity of the pursuit does not strike us. The peculiarity of a hobby, indeed, is that it is usually at odds with the general character of the person who exhibits it. It is a bit of childhood left by careless returns among the strenger by careless nature among the sterner stuff of which manhood is made. James Fisk, the most hardened and dishonest of swindlers, had a passionate love for canaries, and was surrounded by them at home. There can be no doubt that an innocent hobby (and hobbies generally are innocent) is a safety-valve for the escape of nervous excitement in men who use their brains to an exceptional degree. For this reason they usually do much toward softening and humanizing the character. Whatever is to be a boy's trade or profession, encourage in him a taste for music, or art, fishing, gunning; some hobby, in short. Before you fill the boiler and build the fire, provide the

The Fatal Shirt-Button. Dr. Sander, a physician of Elberfield, Germany, died from the effects of a singular accident, which conveys its own lesson. One morning in 1874, while dressing, he contrived in some way to get a shirt-button between his teeth. Unconsciously, while laughing, the button slipped into the back of his mouth, and thence into the larynx. All the exertions of his surgical friends to death as not very remote. He removed to a villa he had near Frankfort-on-the-Main to pass his last days in quiet. Here he was surprised by a violent fit of coughing, accompanied by spitting of blood, in a paroxysm of which the button was ejected. His health rapidly improved, and in a few months, regarding himself as quite cured, he resumed his profession-al work and endeavored to gather up the threads of his former practice. But ere long unmistakable symptoms manifested themselves that the lung had not fully recovered from the presence in its substance of a foreign body for several months, and he gradually

Wall Street, New York.

1685, a wall made of stone and earth, and cannon mounted, was built to keep off the savages. Along by that wall a street was laid out, and, as the street followed the line of the wall, it was appropriately called Wall street. It is narrow, it is short, it is unarchitectural, and yet its history is unique. Excepting Lombard street, London, it is the mightiest street on this planet. There the Government of the United States was born. There Washington held his levees. There Mrs. Adams and Caldwell and Knox and other brilliant women of the Revolution displayed their charms. There Witherspoon and Jonathan Edwards and George Whitefield sometimes preached. There Dr. Mason chided Alexander Hamilton for writing the constitution of the United States without any God in it. There negroes were sold in the slave mart. There criminals were harnessed to wheelbarrows and, like beasts of burden, compelled to draw, or were lashed through the street behind carts to which they were fastened. There fortunes have come to coronation or burial, since the day when reckless speculators, in powdered hair and silver shoe-buckles, dodged Dugan, the Governor General of his Majesty, clear down to yesterday at 3 o'clock. The history of Wall street is, to a certain extent, the financial, commercial, agricultural, mining, literary, artistic, moral and religions history of this country. Only a few blocks long, it has reached from the Canadas to the Gulf of Mexico, from San Francisco to Bangor. There are the best men in this country, and there are the worst—everything, from unswerving integrity to tip-top scoundrelism—everything, from heaven-born charity to bloodless Shylockism.—Dr. Talmage.

Nursing the Sick.

Some sensible person, who has evilently had experience in attending to invalids, thus speaks of the importance of decision and quietness in the sick-

Eight Savage Marauders.

South river valley, Mont, Charles W

Cook had a corral, in which were a number of flocks of sheep. The sheep were visited by bears, and on one occasion were so badly stampeded that Cook lest many of the most valuable ones. After ward as regularly as night came eight bears would move down the mountain and dine on mutton. Each bear clawed, killed and dragged off the fat carcass of an innocent. A band of men in Cook's employ were set to watch the enemy, but the sight of a solid phalanx of bears marching down the slopes in soldierly line and with resistless front caused a retreat. Finally, a few nights ago, Cook, accompanied by an old bear hunter, John Potter, and both armed with repeating rifles, stationed themselves in the bear path, near the corral.

The eight came; tramp, tramp, tramp, and when they sniffed the waiting ranchmen they did not so much as halt, but moved to the attack with ferocious indignation at the attempt to rob them of their feast. When the din of battle had passed and the smoke had cleared away, there lay dead on the field four of the huge beasts, while two of the others left rivulets of blood as they climbed to their den.

The Hair.

The fashion of crimping and curling the hair of children is positively iniquitous. Wee creatures of 3 or 4 years, and even younger, are arrayed in curl papers by affectionate and admiring mothers who are bent upon making the children charming, and who do not stop to consider how far they may be defeating their own ends by the action, or how much pain they may be inflict ing on the objects of their fond so idtude. An authority on that subject says: "Up to the age of 6 or 7 children retain what is called their baby hair,' which is injured, not improved, by cutting. It is quite different from the harsher hair which succeeds it. If the hair curls naturally it looks charming dressed in that fashion, but putting it in papers is sure to injure it and pull it out by the roots. The use of curling ironsisyet more objectionable; anything that tangles and cuts the hair is bad in the extreme, and it is to be regretted that mothers draw so heavily upon the capital of their children's hair, instead of using the yearly increasing interest of its beauty and value." By keeping the scalp of the head clean, and the hair brushed into silky softness, its beauty can be preserved until late in morning called them before him, that he might hear what they had to say, cream for her, notwithstanding he saw she had so much to do as not to have a moment to spare. The coachman alleged that it was not his business.

"Very well," said the master, "but pray what do you call your business?"

"To take care of the horses, and clean and drive the coach," he replied.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trilling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and common sense. astronomical Progress. Mr. Proctor, the astronomer, has expressed the opinion that Mars was the only planet beside the earth old enough to be inhabited. The others, he thinks, are still glowing with heat He also uttered the following opinion: "The stars are rapidly ceasing to be regarded as objects of beauty simply, and the time is approaching when in-telligent people will be ashamed to gaze in indifferent admiration upon the fir-mament and acknowledge their ignor-ance in a field which the vast strides of modern science have made accessible "Draper's discovery of oxygen in the sun is the most important fact in mod-ern astronomical research, because it shows that the sun is in part composed of elements like the earth's. "Saturn's rings will eventually resolve themselves into moons, and the dark places on the moon are not mountains or seas, but simply indentations, and therefore less luminous. The black spots visible upon the surface of the sun are but holes through the surrounding envelope through which only the parent mass can be seen."

The Minister's Illustration. A gentleman, recently returned from Europe, settled in a country town, and scandalized the rural and pious inhabitants by driving a pair of fast horses tandem to church. Remonstrances were of no avail on the part of his fellowparishioners, and at last the pastor sent for the owner of the team, to add his protests to those of his flock. The gentleman thought this was unwarrantable interference with his business, and said he saw no more harm in driving his horses in the way which he had adopted than in driving them abreast. "Hold on," said the minister, "and I will convince you that you are in error. When I go into the pulpit and put my hands reverently together for prayer, the congregation is hushed into silence; but, if I should put my hand to my nose, with fingers extended, and add to this elongation with the other hand, there would be an uproar instantly." The gentleman acknowledged the force of the illustration, and, with a regard for the eternal fitness of things, drove to church the next Sunday in a manner which did not cause scandal or attract unnecessary attention.

A Relic of Wilkes Booth. Miss Mary McHenry, of Philadelphia sent to Gen. Dunn, to be placed in his Lincoln collection, a curious relic of Wilkes Booth, with the following statement: In August, 1864, Mr. J. Wilkes Booth registered at the Mc-Henry House, Meadeville, Pa. He was there on the 12th of that month. After his departure it was found that he had, with a diamond, inscribed upon a pane of a window of his bedroom these words:

Abe Lincoln, Departed this Life August 13, 1864, By the effects of Poison.

The glass remained in the windows andisturbed until the country was shocked by the murder of Mr. Lincoln on April 14, 1865. A few days after that event Mr. R. M. N. Taylor, proprietor of the McHenry House, cut the pane from the window, framed with it the autegraph of Mr. Booth, which Mr. Taylor cut from the hotel register, and sent the whole to Gen. Dunn, just as it now is.—Indianapolis Journal.

JAY GOULD'S success in managing railroads is explained by the fact that his father used to keep a switch for his especial benefit. A BACHELOR editor, who had a pretty unmarried sister, lately wrote to one similarly circumstanced, "Please ex-change," thinking it no robbery. He told me that he was now regularly engaged as a writer for one of the leading dailies. His honest old mother said, "Writing wrappers at $3 a THERE was the potential promise of a thorough-going Pharisee in the pious little boy who was heard to say, "O Lord! make Brother Bill as good a boy

"Ir you marry Grace," exclaimed an irate father to his son, "I will cut you off without a cent, and you won't have so much as a piece of pork to boil in the pot."
