PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, cansing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times symptons of indigestion are present as flatulency, measiness of the stomach, &c. A moisture like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendant. Internal, external and Itching piles vield at once on the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, allaying the intense Itching, and affecting a permanent cure where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain our the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cared. Frice 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, and when you cannot obtain it of him; we will send it, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by W. A Severson.

ROSELLE.

It was the last bal masque of the season-just before fashion's votaries said good-bye to the facinations of the opera and ball, and fled to country aunts and ocean beaches. The genteel loungers who had strolled to look at the costumes now sat in one of the little alcoves that opened upon the balcony, smoking and chating over their cigars.

"Where do you go?" said Henry. "To Brighton. And you?"
"To Switzerland, I think. Party of us going; all the club; all save Stand-

"And he?"
Henry laughed. "He will not be induced leave to England, or the vicinity of London, this summer," said he. He's done for, evidently." "What! You don't mean he is in earnest with the dashing Roselle? 1 fancied he was not so far gone as "I think he cares more for Roselle than he is willing to confess, even to himself. But he is off on a new scent row. There is a lovely wild rose of a girl been visiting frierds of his. She is fr m Beachville, fifty miles away. Her Tather has a beautiful country residence, and she is an only daughter. He is invited up there for shooting and fishing, by her brother. If he goes—farewell Standing. I feel forry for Roselle. "You are very lenient in your judz-ment for a man of as wide exerience as "Yes, perhaps so. My experience makes me lenient. Roselle excites my interest and pity. She always has. An orphan - with money, dash, spirits, with no caution, no adviser-she became a social code to herself. Yet nobody can lay a finger upon one wrong act in the girl's life. I wish Standing would marry her, but he hasn't the moral courage.

They moved on and did not see the figure of a woman just outside on the

It was Roselle. "So he is going to Beachville," she said; "and to her! We will see."

Two weeks later a tall young fellow in thin coat and straw hat left his luggage to follow him, and, with careless glance at the group of loungers about the little station, started for the inn, half a mile distant on the Great Northern, at Beachville.

As he walked leisurely along he heard the clatter of horse's hoofs. Looking up he saw a handsome, highspirited, black horse, on which was seated a lady in a perfectly fitting riding habit—a lady who reined in her horse when she saw him, and leaned forward with a bright smile and bow.

"Roselle, by jingo!" "Are you glad to see me?" she asked, with one of her bright smiles, as she playfully touched his shoulder with her riding-whip. * "Glad? Why, yes, of course! Always glad to see you, you know; only it's wery sudden and unexpected!"

"Oh, it was very sudden!" smiled Roselle. "I was talking with Mrs.
Thorne—Mrs. James Thorne, you know —about summer resorts and chanced to mention Beachville as a nice quiet place, where one would have plenty of air and exercise and not be obliged to dress to excess. She siezed at it immediately. Have been here a week. Heard You were coming last night."

"Who told you?" queried Standing, as he lifted his hat and run his slender white fingers through his crisp hair. "Who?—oh, Mr. Hamilton — Hugh Hamilton. He is up at the inn, and said he expected you daily." "Then you have met Hamilton?" "Yes, and his sister called upon us to-day. Such a lovely pink and white!

We all thought her very pretty, and she and I are already very friendly. I am invited there to spend the day Tra la! I will see you later!" She touched her horse and was gone, with a bright, backward smile and glance, and Standing walked on at a swifter pace. "So after all, I am to be under the same roof with Roselle," he mused. He went home with Hamilton and spent the evening. Lydia Hamilton greeted him with that quiet and well-bred reserve that was so habitual to her. How fair she was! Like a blushrose! And how low her voice! "What a difference!" he said, mentally, as he walked toward the hotel. "I wonder how it would have seemed if she had said, "Tra, la! I will see you Three or four parties were out on the balcony when Standing came up the steps.

Mr. Hamiton leaned down and called to him to come up. "I am smoking my cigar—I can't!" he answered. "Shall I come down?" said a gay voice, "and keep you from melancholy till you finish it? It was Roselle.

"Yes, come," he said; and they walked in the moonlight until all the others had left the balcony.
But that was Roselle's last hour. Standing arose the next morning master of the situation.

Most of the evenings after this were Temperance Legislation.

Special Correspondence of the Inter-Ocean.

WESTERN BUREAU OF THE INTER-OCEAN, OMAHA, March 26.—The subject of intemperance and its cure or prevention has received un extraordinary amount of attention from the Legislatures of Nebraska and Kansas. The remark has of late been frequenty made, and probably truthfully, that here has been developed in these newly settled States a more earnest, aggressive, and determined sentiment seemed to fascinate and charm the than has followed generations of growth gentle Lydia with her wit and her reand culture in the east. It would be unfair, undoubtedly, to say that the people of the Eastern States hate the evils of intemperance less, or love the virtue of sobriety more, than do the inhabitants of Kansas and Nebraska, but as it is the habit of these young commonwealths to treat with vigor all questions which involve convictions. you call her—is charming," said Lydia, the next day, to Standing. "I like her so it happens that they have addressed themselves with more force and boldness to the great question of temperance legislation.

This fact will never be mentioned to their discredit, but it will be interesting to make note now of the experi-

nents, widely differing in methods, but united in the same worthy purpose, for which the legislation of these two room of the inn, reading the paper, and States has provided. Addressing themselves with equal earnestness and vigor to the work of decreasing drunkenness and promoting temperance, the States of Kansas and Nebraska have Suddenly the attention of Standing committed themselves to policies which may said to be exactly opposite and between which the friends of temperance everywhere have been perhaps always pretty nearly equally divided. In Kansas the policy chosen is one of absolute prohibition; in Nebraska, one of radical restriction. To show how literally true is this, and exactly what is meant by it, let me state in as condensed substance as possible the result of legislation in these States, as follows: Kansas has made a part of her constitution lithe spring, like a young panther, the utter prohibition of the "manufac-Hugh Hamilton stood before the last ture, sale, or barter of any spirituous, malt, vinous, fermented, or other in-toxicating liquors," and has backed this up with a prohibitory law the "You have lied, and defamed a friend of mine," he said in a low, quiet voice. "Retract what you just now said, or I most extraordinary ever enacted. This will knock your teeth down your law is extreme in every line. In this prohibition, "to sell or give away" ci-"I-I beg parden," he said. "I didn't der or wine manufactured in the State suppose she was a friend of yours. is liable to a heavy fine, and for the third offence, imprisonment. No physician can prescribe wine or beer even for a weak person, but he must swear that the patient is absolutely sick. No one can obtain a prescription save by an application on a printed form to which he has made oath, and the physician giving the prescription must make oath before a Propate Judge. No club or association can keep any kind of liquor, and, under this law, any minister can be arrested for giving wine at the sacramental board; and if the county attorney don't prosecute all cases he is to be removed from office, but for every one he convicts he gets $15 cash and 10 per cent.

of the forfeited bond. The Nebraska Legislature refused to take steps for incorporating a prohibi-tory amendment in her constitution, or to pass prohibitory legislation, but did enact a licence law, which imposes the severest and most radical restrictions upon the sale of intoxicating liquors. Some of the more important features of this restrictive law are as follows: It makes the cost of license in any township or town of less than 10,000 inhabitants $500, and in cities of over 10,000 people $1,000. To obtain a license a petition signed by a number of freeholders must be obtained, and if objections are made to issuing license the County Board shall hear the case after giving due notice of the same. Parties interested shall have process to summon witnesses and appeal may be taken to the District Court. Bond of $5,000 must be given by saloon keeper, and unusual precautions for ample securities of this bond are made. The bond may be sued upon for damages if the licensed party shall sell to minors, habitual drunkards, shall sell on election days, "A man is a fool who grieves his life away over any woman," he said. Every one interested in this greatest of all social reforms may well study with attention the effects of this extreme prohibitory law in Kansas and this iron-clad statute of restriction in Nebraska. The enforcement of these laws in both States will have the su port of a temperance sentiment among the people of both states wonderium strong and determined, while the tria of these two policies for suppressing intemperance will be made in adjoin ing States in which the conditions of wealth, intelligence, morality, and all other elements of social and political character are very similar. The comments of the press and the open rebellion of whole communities in Kansas to the extreme character of the pro hibitory law, which goes into effect there May 1, do not give the most auspicious promise of success, but with so fair a trial of these experiments in these States already opening up before us, there exists no temptation to prediction or prophetic comments. Friends of the good cause everywhere may well hail the earnest and determined spirit with which these young States have attempted to lay strong hands upon the crime of intemperance and may hope for success alike abundant to each: but while waiting and watch ing the experience of both, may learn that which will enable them to temper their own zeal with wisdom.

Practical Temperance. I know a town-one out of manywhere a ladies' temperance society holds a weekly prayer meeting. They have hired a pleasant room, warmed and lighted, for this purpose, and their meetings are regular, and I am told fervent. Now, what if these ladies should take the money they pay for that room, and hire another on som lower floor, light and warm it, put in cheap, comfortable chairs and tables and each of them spend the one hour a week they now give to the prayer meet ing in making good coffee and tea which some one hired for the purpose can dispense every night, at cost prices to these men who want a place to be comfortable in, and cannot get it out of the saloons? I believe in prayer as fully as they do, for I have tried it in straits few of them can ever have known; but we can all pray as the Master bade us, in secret, with as much if not more efficacy than in public. I believe faith without works is dead: and I cannot but remember these words, "If a brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, 'Depart in peace; be ye warmed and filled;' notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body, what doth it profit?" Not one of these good women ever knew, probably, what suffering from thirst or cold or hunger means; if they are tired, they have a comfortable lounge to rest on, or easy chair to sit in, fires and lights and pleasant rooms always ready for them. carnets under their feet, good, even luxurious food when nature is worn with labor and needs some stimulus to spur her flagging energies. If their husbands or fathers or brothers come in tired, they can give them tea or coffee, a dish of hot ovsters, a cup of strong soup. They know nothing at all of the demand that lies at the bottom of the liquor supply,-a demand that is born with every human being. that is exasperated by hard labor and poor conditions, that must and will be supplied in the legitimate or illegitimate way. Which shall it be?—Rose Terry Cooke in Christian Union.

"Let him alone," said her husband, "he helps to shingle our roof for us." The young man heard the remark. A sense of his degradation came over him; he arose, left that saloon forever, went home to his family, and the next Sabbath he went with them to the house of God. He was converted, joined the church, and became a good, true man. Months afterward he met the saloon keeper on the street. "Why don't you come around any

Another novelty is announced—a talking picture book—for the invention of which Brand, of Sonneberg, Germany, has seenred a patent. From an English publication we learn that the book consists of a series of animals with apparatus for producing sound in imitation of each creature represented. Opening the book the illustration is on one side and the letter-press descriptive of it on the page facing. The covers conceal mechanism, comprising bellows and whistles of peculiar construction, for imitating various voices. The bellows are blowed by page, the botton belonging to the picture on view being pulled to produce the sound in imitation of the cry of the animal exhibited.

Representative Emory Speer, of Georgia, independent Democrat, writes to the Philadelphia Press an instructive letter. He says the people and press of his State "no longer accept a doctrine merely because it is said to be sound from a party standpoint, and no longer reward men because they are strict Democrats nor punish them for divergence. They now insist that good reasons shall be given for every propo-sition of their political leaders." This proves that continued Republican rule in the nation has been productive of good to the south, and points to a time not far away when parties will be more nearly balanced, greater freedom of discussion and action will exist, and capital and immigration will flow in. The people of the "Empire State of the south" are getting ripe for a new departure; and when a man like Alex. H. Stephens puts himself in line with Senator Mahone of Virginia, there is a revolution brewing which will "aston-ish the natives," and lay the hidebound old bourbons forever on the shelf.-

When a railroad passenger hears the whistle sounding an alarm, it is his first impulse to look out of the window, but this impulse is often restrained by second thought, except in the case of green travelers. A few days ago an old man and his wife were passengers on a Lake Shore train, and as the section men were making repairs on the line in various places, the whistle was sounded pretty often. The old couple were fully alive to every "toot," and each time the old man would stick his head out of the window. "Does it mean any thing, Samuel?" asked the wife every time his head came back, but he could give her no satisfacthem finally warned the old man that he ran a risk by sticking his head out, but at the very next toot he was at it again. He wore a plug hat which looked fully twenty years old, and its less would be nothing great. Preparations were quietly made behind him, and every thing was all ready when next the whistle sounded.

"I wonder what's on the track now?" queried the wife, as she moved around uneasily.
"I dunno," he replied; "I believe

Out went his head, his face toward the engine, and a smart rap with a cane from the next window knocked his hat off, and sent it flying into a swamp. He pulled back with such a rush that he almost went over his wife into the aisle. "Land a stars! but did it mean any thing?" she cried, as she grasped him.
"I should think it did!" he yelled, "It meant that I was a durned cld fool, and had got to go bareheaded all the rest of this summer!" The hard-hearted conductor refused to stop the train and recover the hat, and at the end of a hot discussion the bareheaded victim brought his fist down with shivering force, and exclaimed: "Waal, now, I want you to understand that if there is any law in this land, this 'ere railroad has got to move its fence-corners back. 'Sposen' them rails had given me a wipe on the jaw?"

The Actor's Hard Times. Take the histories of any of the great artists now so well known all over the English-speaking world — Miss Lotta, Maggie Mitchell, Annie Pixley, John T. Raymond, Billy Florence, Ed. Harrigan, John McCullough, Joe Murphy, the Williamsous, Tony Hart, Emily Rigl, Annie Ward Tiffany and others, whose names would fill a column. All of these struggled against fate, one would have thought, in their callow days, and sur-mounted difficulties that would have crushed less bold or persevering people. The record of the California stage shows how terrible were the hardships some of these persons endured, and how gigantic were the obstacles to be overcome. Miss Annie Pixley, who has made such a reputation in "M'liss," told us herself, when she was playing at the Standard theatre last season, that she went through scenes and troubles in the mining districts of the Golden States that were calculated to appeal the stoutest-hearted men in her company. Frequently she had no better stage on which to play than three billiard tables put together. Five or six shawls pinned together sufficed for a drop-curtain, and the scenery was lit up by tallow dips. Imagine a Lady Macbeth on a billiard table, or a melancholy Dane on a green baize cloth. Miss Lotta began her theatrical career at San Francisco in the rear of Mike Cohen's Cheap John store as a jig dancer. Ed. Harrigan was a caulker, but discovered one night on the Pacific slope that he could do more with burnt cork than he could with oakum and pitch. Maggie Moore and Mary Anderson could tell queer

A local Talmage held a series of meetings near Amsterdam, Boletourt County, Va., in which he was quite successful. At the closing service of the meetings he rose for his farewell address. He spoke of "the great ingathering of souls" at a place of so little tendency to religion; of the many sheaves that had been gathered, whence he had heard only leaves could come. Walking rapidly back and forth, gesticulating furiously, he woke the echoes for miles around. Waving his bony hands above the congregation he shouted: "I have done a good work here! I am like the celebrated Napoleon who upon an occasion of great success exclaimed, 'Sic semper tyrannis -I came, I saw, and I conquered!"

The Wool Crop.

The wool clip of the world has increased five times since 1830, when it was about 320,000,000 pounds in weight. In 1878—the latest year for which there are complete figures—Europe produced 740,000,000. River Platte, 240,000,000; United States, 208,000,000; Australia, 850,000,000, and South Africa, 48,000,000 pounds, making a total of 1,586,000,000 pounds. Great Britain and France consume each about the same quantity of wool-380,000,000 pounds a year. Germany consumes about 165,000,000 pounds; United States, 250,000,000 pounds, and Russia, Austria, and other countries, 400,000,000 pounds.

Plant Beautiful Roses. Among the many Floral Catalogues low issued, we know of none more enitled to confidence than the "New fuide to Rose Culture," published by the Dingee & Conard Company, Rose Growers, West Grove, Chester Co., Pa. It is finely illustrated, describes over 500 varieties of roses, and tells all about their culture and treatment. It is sent free on application. The Dinree & Conard Company have fifty large houses devoted to roses alone, and are the most extensive growers of roses in this country. They send roses safely by mail, postpaid, to all post offices in the United States, and can always be depended on for reliable plants at reasonable prices. They have a national reputation for prompt and liberal dealing, and are said to give away more than fifty thousand roses a year in pre-

RESCUED FROM DEATH. William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. Wm. Hall's Bulsam for the lungs. I got a bottle, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have in the past three years. "I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Lungs will be induced to take Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the lungs, and be convinced that Consumption can be cured.' Sold by druggists.

A CURE AT LAST. - Specifics without number for the cure of Catarih have been extensively advertised, and doubtless there is some virture in all, but the evidence is overwhelming that Ely's Cream Balm goes more directly than any other to the seat of the dis ease, and though it is a comparatively new discovery it has resulted in more cures within the range of our observation than all the others put together.— Wilkesbarre, Pa., Union Leader, Dec. 19, 1879.

Three samples of ore from the Wolverine Silver Mine, situated in the "Tin Cup" mining district. Gunnison county, Colorado, owned by our townsmen, Chas. A. Kuapp, Hull T. Suttón, George F. Anderson, and A. N. Perrault, of Colora lo, was assayed by E. J. Weeks of the firm of E. J. Weeks & Co., of this city, the result of which must certainly be very satisfactory to the owners of the property. The following is the assay of Mr. Weeks:

GENTLEUEN—The samples of ore given me by you for silver assay I am pleased to report the following upo 1:

No. 1, Wolverine Lode—General character: sulphurets of silver and lead carbonate. Contains silver per ton of 2,001 lbs., 2,301.2 troy ounces. ounces. No. 2, same lode—General character: Galens ounces.

No. 2, same lode—General character: Galena with lead carbonate. Contains silver per ton of 2,000 lbs., 1543 29 troy cunces.

No. 3, same lode—General character: Ironstained quartz with Galena and lead carbonate. Contains silver per ton of 2,000 lbs., 218.70 troy ounces.

E. J. WEE.KS, Assayer.

The cash value of these several ore specimens is as follows:

No. 1—3.2678 is per ton.

No. 2—31,7.8 48 per ton.

No. 3—8.44 85.

The Star has been to some pains to ascertain something more about this mining property. And it has learned that the ownership has been extended; a company has been formed, under the laws of the State. the certificates of stock have been engraved and are on sale. The officers are as follows: President, A. N. Perrault; vice Pr sident, Dr. Miar McLaughlin; Secretary, George F. Anderson, Treasurer, Chas. A. Knupp; Superintendent of Mines, H. G. Sutton. Directors—Miar McLaughlin, Theophilus Ruyse, George F. Anderson, Morris Knupp, Howard G Sutton. In addition to the mine above named as having been assayed, there are the following mines that Join the Wolverine, with a cash value to the ton of:

Bonanzu. $2,576.

Jinnay Mack., $3,504.

Tin Cup, $1,72.2.

Gold Cup, $7,937.20.

The company purposes to put 40,000 shares upon market, and begin working early in the spring. And though the stock was only offered for sale on Fec. 9, the Co already have 1,530 shares sold. IN MEMORIAM, Mr Rozalvo Morgan, the son-in-law of Mr. Samuel French, passed away last Tuesday, the 12th inst., having been afflicted for several years with consumption. Everything that love and sympathy could do was done for him. But the best skill of physicians, the best nursing by friends, the mildness of a southern climate could not stay the progress of the disease. He is not, for God has taken him, and his wife and child are left to mourn their heavy loss, while kindred and friends share with them their sorrow. But, in the midst of their grief, it is a great joy to them that he had a foretaste of Heaven in his joy in his Savior. For several weeks before he died he was resting upon Christ as his Savior, and all fear was taken away, and peace and hope and joy took its place. He was a great sufferer, but patient as a child, and longed to be free and at rest. His sun set in glory. He was forty-three years old next June, having been about twelve years a resident of Michigan. But now we believe he has become a resident of Heaven, where he awaits in glory the coming of his kindred. "We shall meet beyond the river by and by."

The funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. Samuel French, conducted by Brother W. W. Wells, now of Richland. The friends desire to extend their thanks to all who showed him so many kindnesses; to Brother Wells and the choir who officiated at the funeral. J. D. McCord.

There is a limit beyond which the housewife who has eagerly plunged into the canning and preserving season cannot go. There are only 1,500 known methods of putting up peaches. It may take her sometime to get to the last one, but she'll reach it in time. The latest estimate places the number of fruit jars estimate places the number of 100 000 No. on sale in this country at 30,000,000. No housewife can secure more than her proportion of these. After she has asked her husband seventy-eight consecutive times to "send up another dozen of those cans," there must come a lull. She may then demand her share of the crocks and jars and jelly tumblers of this great and growing country, but winter is only three months away. By and by there will come an end to this asking for "another twenty pounds of that same kind of sugar." The stock on hand in this country will not allow any family to consume over 5,000 pounds in putting up preserves. The woman who goes beyond that must do so at her peril. While the average husband feels a thrill of exon sale in this country at 30,000,000. No the average husband feels a thrill of ex-altation as he realizes that plums are played, he must not be plu-ged into despair to learn that peaches will go down to fifty cents before the last of the crop to he so plenty. No cellar can hold more than it can. After the jugs and jars and cans and pitchers are stacked from floor to joice, the wife has either got to lay off her big apron and quit or else rent space from the neighbors, and the chances will be that they will have none to spare. In two weeks more she'll have to give up on peaches and pears. Then she'll begin on tomato pickles and catsup, jump to cucumbers—slide off on apple butter— work up a bushel of quinces—boil down a barrel of cider, and then sit down and give up the mequal struggle. That is she'll suddenly remember that every can and jar and jug must be lifted up or taken down and opened and heated over, and if perchance she finishes the job before reperenance sale minshes the job before spring the mince-pie season will serve to keep the house stirred up. They were born that way, and men must suffer and endure.—Detroit Free Press.

Killing Snakes for a Living. There resides at this place a celebrated hunter, trapper and snake-tamer, by the name of John Geer. He is married, and has a family of children. During the winter months Geer earns a living by hunting birds and trapping foxes, bears and other animals, for which this region is noted. His summers are spent in catching raitlesnakes, which are very numerous around Basket. Geer knows where there are several rattlesnake dens, and he frequently visits them with as much unconcern as though he was going on a whortleberry expedition. He has a dog that usually accompanies him to the mountain when on a rattlesnake hunt, which, by long practice, has acquired as great skill in dispatching the reptiles as the hunter and trapper himself.

While hunting and trapping pays,

Geer says he can make far more money by killing rattlesnakes and selling the oil. He always carries a crotched stick. When he comes upon a snake, he carefully places the crotch over the reptile's neck, just back of the head. Then, if he desires to keep the snake alive, he removes the poison by the aid of instruments made for the purpose. But he seldom keeps the snake alive, but kills them, and has a regular process for extracting the oil from their bodies. This oil is very valuable, and sells readily for one dollar per ounce. It is said to have great curative powers. Geer says the present has been an exceedingly good year for snakes, and that he has killed nearly a hundred during the past three months. He claims that he can make a good living at the snake business. He is not afraid of the reptiles, and asserts that he can cure their bites without fail. -New York Tives.

Ought to Seen Them Wasps Singe, Boys a d wasps are natural enemies Bors t wasps and wasps nate boys. the wasps are viet rious and a is an intrview with a wasp gets over the grand much faster than the boy seet on an ermad. The boy does the election eering shorting, but the wasp does the real work of the campaign. It is so rare that a buy gets even with the wasps that when he does so, the event is worthy of more than a passing notice. Down near Kingston, Ont., a boy had a heated discussion with some wasps and the latter got the better of the argument—at least they made more pointed applications. As the stings burned, the boy thought about fighting his Satanic Majesty with fire. It was a brilliant success. The next neighbor's barn and grain were the first to go, and the peo-ple barely escaped from the dwelling house. The woods and fields of wheat next went with stacks and other combustible matter, while every now and then the burning of a house and barn added variety to the scene. The destruction was very great, but as the delighted boy afterwards remarked, "You ought to see them wasps singe!"

All the Particulars.

There is always something of a startling nature to furnish large headlines for the dailies, and just now it is camp meetings. In various parts of the country enormous out door religious meetings are being held, and they are written up in the most sensational manner by reporters for the great dailies, and headed with black type half an inch high. When the war was ended, and peace had been declared we wondered what the dailies would do for their startling headlines but there has always seemed to be enough. The entire country might be so quiet you could hear a pin drop, and we are convinced it would make no difference to the great dailies. They would appear as usual in the morning with headlines in big black type which would read, "Extraordinary Quitude!—Unearthly Tranquility Pervading the Entire Universe!—The Ominous Silence Believed to Portugal Committee of Crimes tend a Coming Holocaust of Crimes, Fires and Pestilence!—Opinions of Leading Citizen: Interviewed by our Indefatigable Reporters!" The papers would then publish a whole page of special dis-patches from their correspondents in all parts of the country, who were on the spot and were eye-witnesses of the whole affair, all going to show that never in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant was there anything like it, and people would rush in crowds to get a paper, and stand aghast as they read the horrifying intelligence. The Chicago Times which is an "elastic" paper, publishing a little paper when there is but little news and a big paper when there is lots of news, would come out with sixteen pages crowded full, and have to leave out advertisements. The New York Herald would fairly shriek with the intense dullness that pervaded the entire country, and would immediately send out a scien-tific expediton to discover the cause. Let us suppose that the dullness continued for three days, and at the end of that time a man in Missouri should cut a dog in two. The great sensational dailies would at once rise equal to the emergency, and next morning would contain a full account of the affair under the same kind of headlines: "Atrocious!—A Maudlin Monster in Missouri Murders a Miserable with the contained with Mongrel!-The Pale air Streaked with Pilgarlic!-A Vicious Mob Vowing Vengeance-Diagram of the Position Occugeance—Diagram of the Position Occupied by the Puppy and his Murderer at the time of the Tragedy—with Accompanying Map of the Surrounding Country—From Our Own Correspondent—Special Dispatch." But, as we said, it is religious meetings that furnish the leading sensation for the great dailies now, and we have no doubt that crowds congregate around the bulletin boards at the newspaper offices, blocking up the sidewalk and street, eager to learn the very latest, as each dispatch from divine service is received and handed out. Let us be thankful that we live in an age of

A Good Old Man. "You see, my children," he said, as a little group huddled around him, "there is no habit that you can not rid yourself is no nabit that you can not rid yourself of if you are resolved. Now, in my early youth I was a sailor, and contracted the popular habit of swearing at everything and nothing. Without provocation I would rattle off a string of oaths and violate the commandment a hundred times a day. When I left the sea my nother's only teaching returned to me mother's early teaching returned to me, and I mentally resolved that I would never swear again. That was forty years ago, and I have never violated the promise I made myself. Some of you have little habits which you can easily rid yourself of; promise me now, my dearies, that you will call up your worst habit and drop it to-night."

The promises were readily given, and

The old man smiled, and picked up a conch from the hearth. "Well, little beauty, I will let the shell tell it." He placed it to his car, closed his eyes,

"Hark! I hear the sea. It is the Mediteranean, and before me is a ship plunging upon the stormy waves. The crew are huddled about in terror, and the vessel plunges along in the lightning-rent, with no hand at the helm. But there is one form that trembles not. It stands at the bow with upturned face,

OND STYLE NEW STYLE CLAY AND SOIL No. 2.

Michigan,

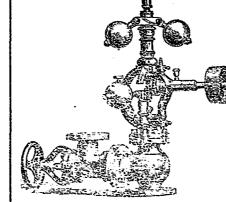

April 21,

The Chapman Tubular or Bored Well as shown in the "New Style," differs materially from the Driven Well, or the "Old Style," the latter being driven often meet obstacles that cannot be overcome, such as clay, hard pan, rock and quicksand. In making the CHAPMAN WELL all these difficulties are easily overcome by boring inside and ahead of the pipe, setting the pipe as fast as the hole is formed by the tools, (we use no point but work with pipe open), thus by adding more reached, the screen is dropped inside and the tubing or pipe drawn back until the screen is covered as at F, Fig. 1, the "check," F.g. 3, is placed and the rubber ring is expanded as at B, Fig. 1, the plunger, Fig. 2, attached to wood rods, is inserted as at J. Attach the rod to pump handle and you have a well where no driven well can be made. The "check" and "plunger," Fig. 2 and 3, are brass bodies with hard rubber balls, making them durable and non-corrosive. To repair the pump, disconnect the rod and handle, remove the top of the pump, pull the "plunger," and with a grab pull the "check," and "plunger" being submerged, the water is liften and non-torosive. Dr. Price's reputation has been acquired candid, honest dealing and years of successful practice.

My practice, not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it, does not tear down, make sick to make well; no harsh treatment, no trifling, no flattering. We know the cause and the remedy needed, no guess work, but knowledge gained by years of experience in the treatment of Chronicdis eases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinion, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or to cure everybody, but do claim to reason and commonsense. Coral. Coral is a marine production, of which there are several varieties. It was well known to the ancients, but it was reserved frown to the ancients, but has been very for the moderns to discover its real nature. It is, in fact, the nidus or nest of certain species of vermes. As an ornament black coral is most esteemed; but ment black coral is most esteemed; but the red is also highly prized.

Coral is found in very great abundance in the Red Sea, the Persian Gulf, in the Mediterranean, on the coast of Sumatra, etc. It grows on rocks, and on any solid submarine body; and it is necessary to its production that it should remain fixed to its place. It has generally a shrub-like appearance. In the Straits of Messina, where a great deal is fished up, it usually grows to nearly a Straits of Messina, where a great deal is fished up, it usually grows to nearly a foot in length, and its thickness is about that of the little finger. It requires eight or ten years to arrive at its greatest size. The depth at which it is obtained is various—from ten to one hundred fathoms or more; but it seems to be necessary to its production that the rays of the sun should readily penetrate to the place of it habitation. Its value depends upon its size, solidity, and the depth and i rilliancy of its color; and is so very various that, while some of the Sicilian coral sells for eight and ten guineas an onnce, other descriptions of it guineas an onnce, other descriptions of it will not fetch one shilling a pound. The pale and fashionable pink hue, at present so much sought after, naturally realizes a very high price; in fact, the charge for the specimens is purely arbitrary. It is highly prized by opulent natives in India, as well as by the fair sex throughout Europe. The inferior or worm-eaten coral is used in some parts of the Madras coast in the celebration of funeral rites. coast, in the celebration of funeral rites.

this also used as a medicine.

The manner of fishing coral is nearly the same everywhere. That which is most commonly practiced in the Mediterranean is as follows: Seven or eight men go in a boat, commanded by the proprietor; the easter throws his net, if we may so call the machine which he uses to tear up the coral from the bottom of the sea; and the rest work the boat and help to draw in the net. This is composed of two beams of wood tied crosswise, with leads fixed to them to sink them. To these beams is fastened a them. To these beams is fastened a manify of home, twisted loosely round, and intermingled with some loose netting. In this condition, the machine is let down into the sen; and when the cond is pretty strongly entwined in the compand nots, they draw it up with a rope, which they drawind according to the depth, and which it sometimes requires half a dozen boats to draw. If incrope happens to break, the fishermen run the lazard of being lost. Before the fishers go to sea they agree for the crice of the cord; and the produce of the rice of the cord; and the produce of the shery is divided at the end of the season into thirt sen parts, of which the proprietor has four, the easter two, and the other six men one each; the thirteenth belongs to the companyin payment for boat-hire, etc.

A Slanderer Panished. A correspondent of the Lewiston (Idaho) Teller tells of two girls at Palouse bridge who found out that a tellow living half a mile distant had slandered them, so they went for him. As he appeared in sight one of the girls knocked him down with a stone, and before he had time to rise the other blackened his eyes with the club she brought with her. After giving him a thorough thrashing, they compelled him on his bended knees to promise that he would never insult a young lady again, which he did with a contrite and humble heart. She Was Strictly Temperate. "Why," thundered an unpassioned orator at a temperance mass meeting, "in only one year, in twelve short months, the people of the United States drank 27,867,915 gallons of beer, and 7,853,291 gallons of whisky! How much of that hideous aggregate did you drink?" he shricked, glaring eround at the respectable vice-presidents on the platform. And in the impressive pause that followed the corresponding secretary arose, and said that with the exception of the tonic drops she was compelled to take before breakfast and the anti-malarial bitters that Dr. Bolus prescribed for her, and a little pale ale for her digestion and a pint of beer at night, which she couldn't close an eye in sleep without it, and maybe an occasional drop of brandy for the neuralagy, she had not tasted a drop of spiritual or ferventuous liquids since she joined the society. And a great hush fell upon the meeting, like the voice of a man who has just been asked for the loan of ten dellars .-- Parlington Hawkeye.

The King and the Page. A pleasant story is told of the old King Frederick the Great of Prussia. Once when he rang his bell for his page to come and wait on him, there was no an-swer. So he we to out into the antechamber and there he found his page fast asleep. The step of the King does not waken him, so soundly is he asleep. A letter sticking out of the boy's pocket catches the King's eye, and he is curious enough to take it out and read it. Not any more honorable that, for a King than for any one else. But the boy had no reason to be afraid or ashamed of the Ki in a curiosity: for it was a letter from his permether, thanking him for sending a co praying God to reward the windness and the King attention. After remain r. took a went softly back to ins

"You have been fast asleep," said the King.
Frightened and confused, the poor boy put his hand into his pocket, and what to find but a bag of money. He took it out and, looking up to the King, burst into tears. "What is the matter," asked the King. "Ah, sir," cried the poor fellow, throwing himself on his knees before Frederick, "somebody is trying to ruin me. I know nothing about this money which I have just found in my pocket."

"My young friend," said the King, "God takes different ways of helping us.
