During the summer of 1811 the British had laid claim to all that portion of the district of Maine lying east of the Penobscot. Shortly before the arrival of the English squadron, Commodore Samuel Tucker had been sent around to Penobscot bay to protect the American coasters, and while the British sailed up to Castine he lay at

It was a schooner that the commodore commanded, but she was a heavy one, well armed and manned; and she carried the true Yankee "grit" upon her decks, of which the enemy had received from them rather too many proofs. On the morning of the 28th of August a messenger was sent down from Belfast with the intelligence that the British frigate was coming from Castine to take him. Tucker knew the British feared him, and also that Sir John Sherbrooke had offered a large mount for his capture. When the commodore received the intelligence his vessel was lying at one of the low wharves, where he would have to wait two hours for the tide: but he hastened to have everything ready to get her off as soon as possible. The schooner was just cleared from the mud, and one of the men had been sent upon the wharf to cast off the bowline, when a wagon, drawn by one horse, came rattling down to the spot. The driver, a rough looking countryman, got out upon the wharf, and then assisted a middle-aged woman from

"Where is the body?" asked Tucker.

"In the wagon," returned the woman, at the same time raising the corner of her shawl to wipe away the gathering tears. "I have some money with me, and you shall be paid for the trouble. "Tut, tut, woman; if I accommodate you there won't be any pay about it." The kind-hearted old commodore was

Some words were passed by the seamen as they were putting the coffin on board, which went to show pretty plainly that the affair did not exactly suit them. But it may have been but prejudice on their part, but the seamer should be allowed a prejudice once in a while, when we consider the many stern realities they have to encounter.

Ere long the coffin was placed in the hold and the woman was shown to the meant for us," uttered Carter.

An up-town lady is the owner of a cat that loves to jump after flies. The lady wishing to rid herself of some flies, purchased several sheets of sticky fly-paper, and Saturday morning placed one of them on the writing desk in the dining-room and went about her work. Soon she heard a remarkable noise, the next instant the cat went through the room with such speed that it could only be likened to a cat being shot from a cannon. It was nothing but a dull, gray streak. In the rear attached to one of its hind feet, followed the sheet of fly-paper. The animal was perhaps the wildest cat ever seen. She took in every room, staircase and hallway in the house, going through them all at the same gait, except increasing it slightly in going down stairs, owing to the fact that she didn't stop to count the steps, and wherever she went the fly-paper followed like grim fate, and the cat would still be "scooting" through the house like a veritable specter, had not its owner in attempting to shut one of the doors, so as to narrow the scene of operations, caught the paper fast. As it tore loose from the hind foot of the cat she gave an awful vowl and disappeared under the ice-box, not returning to her usual serenity until several hours after.-Since that time whenever she sees a bit of fly-paper with wonderful sagacity, learned by experience, she makes tracks with the

A romantic story comes from Plainfield, N. J., where Mr. Zebbins Crompton and wife were astonished at the entrance into their house of a son of whom they had not heard in nineteen years, and whom they had long given up for dead. Before the war he was a druggist's clerk, and joining the navy, he was attached to the surgical staff. Iu 1862 they had a letter from him. when he was on board a ship taking sick soldiers to New Orleans. They learned indirectly that he had landed in that city, but no further tidings had reached them. He said he was drugged in New Orleans, and found himself on board a slaver at sea. After one unsuccessful attempt he made his escape in an African port and reached Cape Colony. Here he settled down, married, and had one child. He drifted from there to India and other parts of Asia, and finally to Australia, and came home from there to see his parents once more. They were completely overcome by the return of the wanderer, and his mother fainted with joy. His friends and relatives in Plainfield all recognize him. He says that he wrote three letters home, but he dreaded to return for fear of being arrested as a deserter from the navy.

Soon she went to the taffrail and she came and stood by the binnacle again. "Look out or you'll jibe the boom," uttered the passenger.

Carter started, and found that the mainsail was shivering. He gave the helm a couple of spokes apart, and then cast his eyes again upon the woman. "Thank'e ma'am," said Dan. "Ha, hold on-why, bless my soul, there's a big spider right on your hair. No-not

The last ejaculation Dan made as he seemed to pull something from the woman's hair which he threw upon the deck with the "ugh!" above mentioned. I know'd there was no 'oman there, and so l tried her. Call somebody to the wheel and let's go and look at that coffin." The commodore was wonderstruck by what he had heard, but, with a calm presence of mind that made him what he was, he set coolly to thinking. In a few minutes he called one of the men aft to relieve Carter, and went down to look after his passenger. The latter had turned in and seemed to be sleeping. Tucker returned and took Carter one side.

though nothing had happened. The two approached the main hatch and stooped to raise it, when Dan's hand touched a small ball that seemed to have been pinned up under the break of the hatch.

"No noise now, Carter; follow me as

"It's a ball of twine," said he. "Don't touch it, but run and get a lantern," replied Tucker. Carter sprang to obey, and when he returned a number of men had gathered about the spot. The hatch was raised, and the commodore carefully picked up the ball of twine aud found that it was made fast to something be low. He descended to the hold, and there he found that the twine ran in beneath the lid of the coffin. He had no doubt in his mind now that there was mischief boxed up below, and sent Carter for something that might answer for a screw driver. The man soon returned with a stout knife, and the commodore set to work. He worked very carefully, keeping a bright lookout for the string. At length screws were out and the lid very carefully lifted from its place. "Great God in heaven!" burst from the lips of the commodore.

"By Sam Hyde!" dropped like a thunder clap from the tongue of young Dan. "God bless you, Dan!" said the commodore. "I knowed it," muttered Dan. The two men stood for a moment and gazed into the coffin. There was no dead man there, but in place thereof was material for the death of a score. The coffin was filled with gunpowder ing the coffin from without communicated with the triggers of each. The first movement of the commodore was to call for water, and when it was brought he dashed three or four bucketsful into the infernal contrivance and then he breathed more freely. "No, no," he uttered, as he leaped from the hold. "No, no-my men. Do nothing rashly; let me go into the cabin first. Commodore Tucker strode into the cabin, walking up to the bunk where the passenger lay, and grasping hold of the female dress he dragged its wearer out upon the floor. There was a sharp resistance, and the passenger drew a pistol, but it was quickly knocked away-the gown was torn off, and a man came from the remnants of calico

The fellow was assured that his whole plot had been discovered, and at length he owned that it had been his plan to turn out in the course of the night and get hold of the ball of twine, then he intended to have gone aft, carefully unwinding the string as he went along, then to have got into the boat, cut the falls, and as the boat fell into the water he would have pulled smartly upon the twine. "And I think you know," he continued, with a wicked look, "what would

When a sick man gets in such a condition that the attention physicians do not know whether to say fatal or hopeful, but for appearance sake, use the latter word, his may be considered a critical case. This has been about the condition of affairs with the patient at the White House, who is being anxiously watched by the whole civilized world. The reports of the past few days have been anything but favorable. The physicians say that the wound is doing finely, but that the present difficulty arises from a failure of the stomach to receive and digest the nourishment taken into it, and the appearance of malarial symptoms.

The report from the President this morning is more favorable. Following is the situation as recorded by the Inter Ocean this morning: It appears clear to the medical attendants of the President that his critical condition was caused simply by a form of dyspepsia. While the effort was being made to increase the vitality of the body and fortify it for the exhaustion attending the suffering and constant discharge from the wound, the diet was too rapidly increased and produced the relapse. The discovery of this fact will be productive of beneficial results in the immediate future. More patience will be exercised, and the building up of the system will be slower and surer. Again the cloud seems driven from the prospect, and his millions of well-wishers are taking comfort from the knowledge that the pulse is reduced again, that the President declared he felt much better yesterday, and, best of all, that a few teaspoonfuls of liquid food was drank by him yesterday and retained by him without nausea. The last official bulletin is of an encouraging nature. Dr. Bliss believes that by the time the President recovers from the gastric attack the wound will be heal ed. It is already far advanced in the healing stage, and the resumption of its functions by the stomach will be the only thing needed to bring the patient to the long-looked-for convales-

WE hear some talk of a firemen's tournament to be held in this place the 29th and 30th of September. To this we object, most decidedly. The fair at Niles is advertised for those two days, $111,949,930, in 1872, $103,988,463; in and as there are plenty of other days in the month that will be just as good for a tournament as those, some other time should be selected for that. Mrs. Dunning commenced the work of repairing her house on the lot she has just purchased, next west of the post office. There has been something said about fire limits in this connection, and the question arises: Have we an ordinance in this place establishing a limit within which no frame structure shall be erected or combustible material shall be stored in large quantities? As we understand it, Mrs. D. wanted to build a frame house at that place, but the objection was raised that the lot is located within the fire limits, and she must build a brick. Now, so far as the danger is concerned we fail to see a difference between a new house made of the parts of this old one, and a new one made where this now stands, after this shall have been removed; and farther, we understand that there is no ordinance establishing a fire limit, nor has there ever been; but that, at some time in the past, a Common Council of the village of Buchanan appointed from its number, Messrs. B. E. Binns, J. D. Ross and John Buckles as committee on fire limits, which committee drew up a resolution suggesting the boundary for this limit, and this report was accepted and adopted and the committee discharged. Since that time nothing has been done about the matter, excepting that when any one wanted to erect a frame building on the ground included within the limit proposed by that committee, they did so. In all other business that is done by resolution of the Common Council the resolution is renewed by each succeeding Council, or the subject reduced to an ordinance or

In paying off the National debt, created chiefly by a Democratic rebellion, the Republican party has made for it-se f a financial record not equaled by that of any political party since gov ernments were instituted. On Aug. 1 1865, the public interest-bearing debt was $2,381,580,295. Of this amount $$30,000,000 was at 7½ per cent., $1,-281,736,439 at 6 per cent., $269,175,72 at 5 per cent., and $618,128 at 4 per cent. On July 1, 1881, the interestbearing debt was $1,639,567,750. Of this amount $196,378,600 was at 6 per cent., $480,841,850 at 5 per cent, $250, 000,000 at 41/2 per cent., and $739,347, 800 at 4 per cent. This shows an actual payment of $741,962,545 on the debt between these two periods. The estimated state of the debt on Sept. 1 1881, as a result of Sacretary Windom's wise refunding operations, will be $250,000,000 at 415 per cent. $789,-347,800 at 4 per cent., and $575,000,000 314 per cent, making the total debt $1-less than $62,000,000. The following figures show the annual interest on the public debt since the close of the war: În 1865 it was $150,977,698; in 1866, $146,068,196; in 1867, $138,892,451; in 1868, $128,459,598; in 1869, $125,523,-998: in 1870, $118,784,960; in 1871, 1873, $98,049,804; in 1874, $98,796,004; in 1875, $96,855,690; in 1876, $95,104, 269; in 1877, $93,160,643; in 1878 $94,-654.472; in 1879, $83,773,778; in 1880, $79,633,981; in 1881, $75,018,695. Each of these years dates from July 1, with the exception of the first, which dates from Aug. 1. On Sept. 1, the annual interest will have been reduced to about three-fifths of the original amount; and these gigantic payments of interest and principal have been made without serious burden to the people, for the money has been secured from internal revenue derived through a protective tariff system. All this has been accomplished in 16 years, and the credit of our government is equal to that of any other on the globe. The Republican party not only saved the life of the nation, but it has given it such financial prosperity as was never before known in its history.—Lansing Republican.

One of the encouraging signs in the South is the gradual subdivision of the large plantations into small farms and the consequent more thorough working of the same. In 1860 in Mississippi there were 42,840 plantations with an average acreage of $70. In 1870 there were 68,023 plantations and farms with an average acreage of 193 acres. In 1880 the number of farms had increased to 75,205 and an average acreage had been diminished to 185. The acreage of cultivated land is no larger than in 1860 yet the production of cotton is nearly twice as great. -Post and

A Grand Rapids physician tells the Leader that much of the sickness in that city is attributable to the unwholesome meat sold by dealers. He states that cattle are purchased in the country and dogged through the heat and sand to the city, and then slaughtered and the meat placed on sale while yet full of animal heat. This, he states, is very unhealthy, and is the cause of so much bowel complaing and disease of the stomach, which are usually charged to eating early fruit and vegetables.

The largest mortgages ever seen in these parts were recorded in the register's office this week. There were two of them, for four and one-half million dollars each, interest at six per cent. per annum. One of these mortgages is due in 1911 and one in 1921. They are given by the D., M. & M. R. R. Co., one to Detroit parties and one to a trust and loan company in New York. The descriptions are extensive, covering the road and over 400,000 acres, and the recording amounted to over $1,400.—Chippewa Co. News.

Wednesday afternoon a little son of Wm. Cade was leading one of his father's horses by the halter strap, and to aid him in holding the horse he tied a loop in the strap and placed it over his shoulder and under the opposite arm. The horse took fright and run away, lragging the boy for twenty rods injuring him severely. He is ruptured, caused by the horse stepping on him, and under his arm the strap made a painful wound. Mary Cook, a young lady of Dowagiac, was badly burned Friday evening while preparing supper. She was standing with her back toward the stove, when her brother's wife, who was in the same room, discovered that her dress was on fire. She rolled her on the floor and threw water on her and succeeded in putting out the fire, but not until Miss Cook was very badly burned on the back and limbs, although probably not fatally. Her sister-in-law was burned some on the hands and arms while trying to extinguish the flames. It is supposed that a spark flew out of the stove and ignited the dress, which was of light material and burned very quickly-Free Press.

Stop Scowling.

Don't scowl; it spoils faces. Before you know it your forehead will resemble a small railroad map. There is a grand trunk line now from your cowlick to the edge of your nose, intersected by parallel lines running east and west, with curves arching your eyebrows; and oh, how much older you look for it. Scowling is a habit that steals upon us unawares. We frown when the light is too strong, and when it is too weak. We tie our brows into a knot when we are thinking, and knit them even more tightly when we can not think. There is no denying that there are plenty of things to scowl about. The baby in the cradle frowns when something fails to suit. The little toddler who has sugar on his bread and butter tells his troubles in the same way when you leave off the sugar. "Cross" we say about the children, and "worried to death" about the old folks, and as for ourselves, we can't help it. Butwe must. Its reflex influence makes others unhappy; for face answereth un-to face in life as well as in water. It belies our religion. We should possess our souls in such peace that it will reflect itself in placid countenances. If your forehead is ridged with wrinkles before forty, what will it be at seventy? There is one consoling thought about these marks of time and trouble—the death angel always erases them. Even the extremely aged in death often wear a smooth and peaceful brow, thus leaving our last memories of them calm and tranquil. But our business is with life, Scowling is a kind of silent scolding. For pity's sake let us take a sad iron or a glad iron, or some smoothing tool of some sort, and straigten these creases out of our faces before they become indelibly engraven upon our visage.

Not to Know the German.

Young man, you may own one of the finest dress suits, cut a la swallow-tail, in the town; your head may be stored with useful information, enabling you to converse intelligently upon a given subject; you may have learned to assume forms of a "swell" politeness, which is a cross between stable manners and idiocy; but if you have never mastered the German, you stand amid the glitter and glare of society, even as the guest at the Scriptural bridal, without the wedding garment. Better for you, oh young man, that you make for yourself a cravat of mill-stones and seek a watery grave. -The Capital.

When a boy walks with a girl as though he were afraid some one would see him, the girl is his sister. If he walks so close to her as to nearly crowd her against the fence, she is the sister of some one else.

Is a purely vegetable bitter and power ful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain care for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arse-

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. Aver's Ague Cure thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate patient; and its crowning excellence, above its certainty to cure, is that it leaves the system as free from disease as before the attack.

There will be a meeting of all committees, and citizens interested in the Reunion, at Rough's Opera House tonight (Thursday) at 71/2 o'clock, to complete the arrangements for decorating, etc., etc. It is earnestly requested that everybody, and especially the BRIDGMAN has the most patient man we ever heard of. A correspondent says in the St. Joseph Traveler-Herald: "He was from three o'clock one afternoon until six the next morning getting a balky horse forty rods. He never lost his temper for a moment and only moved when the horse moved."

THERE is a promise that Buchanan is to have the largest crowd next week that she ever had, and no pains should be spared to make them comfortable. The responses to the invitation sent out show that the largest reunion of soldiers and sailors ever held in Michigan will be held here next week.

THE fruit growers of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph are making preparations to represent the fruit interests of this county in the Boston horticultural exhibition, which begins September 8. They ought to be able to make as

A COMPANY of managers of the St. Joseph Valley Railroad went yesterday, accompanied by the Civil Engineer, to locate the line of the road between Berrien Springs and St. Joseph. > THERE seems to exist a slight error on our part in the statement that Dr. Slocum had some scarlet fever cases in Galien, and our correspondent at that place came out in quite positive terms in the question last week. We met the doctor on his way home from that place, and he said there were two or three cases of scarlet fever in Galien, and from this, with the fact of his being on the way from there, we took it for granted that he was attending them, and so stated.

> THE Marshal has concluded that the law regarding all kinds of gambling schemes, such as wheels of fortune, roulette wheels, &c., shall be strictly enforced in the village of Buchanan during the continuance of his term of office, and so those who are making great calculations for that kind of business during the reunion next week, can change their plans before hand, and save extra trouble. There will be nothing of the kind allowed. A TEAM hitched to a wagon loaded with household goods, and with a cow tied to the hind end of the wagon, was left standing near the corner of Oak and front streets, Monday, from eight o'clock in the morning until after five o'clock in the evening, in the broiling sun, and with neither food and drink. If the citizens of Buchanan indorse the utterances of the RECORD in its late references to this city, they are a narrowminded, bigoted and jealous people. But we have a better opinion of them, and are disposed to think the RECORD reflects its own, and not its supporters sentiments. The cowardly flings in that paper last week aimed at our citizens are outrageously mean and contemptible. If the editor of the RECORD has anything to say against any citizen, or citizens, of Niles, he ought to be man enough to say it in a way that he could be held responsible for his utterances. Any other course is cowardly.—Niles Republican.

The usually sound judgement and moral reputation of the Republican is the only thing that makes the above worthy of a moment's consideration. Just before August 3 a circular was issued from the awfully righteous city of Niles, than which nothing more "outrageously mean and contemptible" can be imagined. This circular was written in Niles and taken to South bend to be printed, and then by a Niles committee was distributed throughout the county, was referred to by the speakers in that great and good city as something smart, and the Niles Republican has not a word to say in condemnation of this "outrageously mean and contemptible act" by the citizens of the city of Niles, the Republican included, through their committee. The RECORD may not be "responsible for its utterances" but if we have said anything that the Republican wants any further responsibility with it than appears, if that paper will name its subject we will try to see that it is accommodated, and will then listen for something more about what is "outrageously mean and contemptible."

One day last week a young man named August Berg, of Bremen, undertook to step upon the cap of a grain separator, but struck his head against ing fell, feet foremost, into the cylin der, which was running at full speed. empty. His feet and legs were ground to pieces, the teeth of the cylinder cutting into his body. He died in a few minutes after being taken out of the machine. Stepping over the cylinder has been one of the tricks of threshers since threshing-first became fashionable, and it makes no difference how many of them get killed in the attempt, they will doit. " all over America as the greatest Hamlet of the century. In the season of 1864-65, at the Winter Garden Theater, New York, he acted that part for a hundred nights in succession, accomplishing thus a feat unprecedented in theatrical annals. Since that time Henry Irving, in London, has acted Hamlet 200 consecuremarkable than Edwin Booth's exploit deeply offended at this. He drew him-

declaration than a second-story window

THE census figures show that more than three-fourths of the people in the United States live at an elevation of less than 1,000 feet above the sea. THERE is in Springfield, Mass., a piano made in 1770 by an uncle and brether of John Jacob Astor, both of whom were

It is this temperament, combined with a somber and melancholy aspect of countenance, at that time piano makers in London. The grasshopper has between his throat and his stomach an apparatus called a gizzard, with more than 200 first to speak, when on a night many years ago, in Saciamento, they had dressed for St. Pierre and Jaffier, in "Venice Preserved." Edwin, as Jafier, had put on a close-fitting robe of black velvet. "You look like Hamlet," teeth in it, for grinding his food.

WHITE alligators found in Brazil travel far and well on land. Their skulls and bones are frequently seen in the forests, and they deposit their eggs in the woods. THERE lies buried near Naples, not only the cities of Herculaneum and Pompeii, but another which flourished 1,000 years before Christ, the ancient city of Cume. Few remains now exist to stimulate the mind of the traveler. - More than one-tenth of the inhabitants of the United States live in ten cities—New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, San Francisco, New Orleans and Oleveland-whose aggregate population is 5,033,760.

The whistle of a locomotive can be heard 3,300 yards through the air; the noise of a train 2,500 yards; the bark of a dog and the report of a musket can be heard 1,800 yards; the roll of a drum or an orchestra 1,600 yards; the human voice travels 1,000 yards; the croaking of frogs, 900 yards; the chirping of crickets, 800 yards.

DR Johnson tells an extraordinary story of a sea-cucumber which he pos-sessed. He forgot to furnish it with fresh water, and the creature became sick and dejected. Under this neglect it wasted away in a most remarkable manner. One by one it ejected its tentacles, its teeth, its digestive tubes. These fragments lay here and there, scattered about the aquarium. Still what was left of the creature was not dead. Its empty sack contracted at the least touch. As soon as fresh water was provided the animal began to revive again, reproducing one after another of its lost organs. appeared to be as well and as happy as before.

FRENCH newspapers report the discovrand, algiers, by the archeologist M. Tarry, of a city which had been intombed in the sand. M. Tarry's attention had been awakened by the mound-like appearance of the sandy soil, and some digging brought to light the minarets and upper portion of a mosque. Further excavations laid bare a terrace, a tower and about a dozen houses, all in excellent preservation. He reported his discoveries to the Government of Algiers, which has undertaken to have the site thoraughly explored. The place is in the southern part of the province, not far from the town of Ouargia, and ex-posed to the full blast of the sandy winds from the desert. Probably a succession of siroccos bearing clouds of sand completely filled up the streets and houses, making the town uninhabitable, and so drove out the population. At present there is no ground for conjecture as to the date of the occurrence.

A Boon for Gentlemen.

An agency in Paris furnishes men to make calls at a fixed rate per hour. If this conventional sort of sham visiting is insisted on no American city, say of 30,000 inhabitants and over, should be without so admirable an arrangement. It is true that few earnest men make calls before they are married because of "business," and after they are married it is well known that the wife makes all the calls in every well-regulated family. None the less, the unmade call is a terrible barden on the masculine conscience. There is first the vague feeling that he ought to have made the call, the series of doubtful excuses for not having made the call, and, lastly, poignant remorse that it is now too late to make any call. Under these successive shocks a social conscience, seared as with a hot iron, is at last developed, and a man gracefully accepts all manner of hospitality, from a dinner down, with never a call to acknowledge the debt. An agency will cure this after a fashion, and an agent-"calls executed with neatness and dispatch"—would probably learn how to leave, when to leave, and, above all, not to sit and say nothing, silent as a sentry box.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Amusing Blunders.

Blunders on public occasions are often as mortifying as they are amusing. For instance:

At a military dinner in Ireland, the following was on the toast-list: "May the man who has lost one eye in the glorious service of his beloved country never see distress with the other." But the person whose duty it was to read the toast accidentally omitted the word "distress," which completely changed the sentiment, and car merriment by the blunder.

The Oldest City in the World? Damascus is the oldest city in the world. Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore; Baalbec is a ruin; Palmyra is buried in a desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the Tigris and the Euphrates. Damascus remains what it was before the days of remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a center of trade and travel—an isle of verdure in the desert; "a presidential capital" with martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries. It was near Damascus that Saul of Tarsus saw the light above the brightness of the sun; the street, which is called Strait, in which it was said "the prayed" effluence through the which is called Strait, in which it was said "he prayed," still runs through the city. The caravan comes and goes as it did 1,000 years ago; there is still the sheik, the ass, and the water-wheel; the merchants of the Euphrates and the Mediterranean still occupy the streets "with the multitude of their wares." The city which Mohommed surveyed from a neighboring height, and was afraid to enter, "because it was given to man to have but one paradise, and for his part he was resolved not to have it in this world," is to-day what Julian called the "Eye of the East," as it was, in the time of Isaiah, "the head of Syria."

From Damascus came the damson our blue plums, and the delicious apri-cot of Portugal, called damasco; da-mask, our beautiful fabric of cotton and sik, with vines and flowers raised upon a smooth, bright ground; the damask rose introduced into England in the time of Henry VIII.; the Damascus blade, so famous the world over for its keen edge and wonderful elasticity, the secret of whose manufacture was lost when Tamerlane carried the artist into Persia, and that beautiful art of inlaying wood and steel with gold and silver, a kind of mosaic, engraving and sculpture united—called damaskeening—with which box es, bureaus and swords are ornamented. It is still a city of flowers and bright waters; the streams of Lebanon and the "silk of gold" still murmur and sparkle in the wilderness of the Syrian gardens. -Exchange.

Brief and to the Point. A lady resident of Milwaukee visited one of our prominent families, bringing with her a pair of twin sons, of whom she is very proud, both being handsome, sprightly and precocious little fellows in a degree that would excite the pride of any fond and appreciative mother. A short time ago a gentleman sent, as a gift to the lads, a pair of "Colorado jacks," which, of course, tickled their boyish fancies innecessely after they had learned the important lesson of non-intearned the "4.3" Ites is sold of non-interference with the business end of the animals. One of the boys had been giving a lady caller a glowing description of the pets, which led to the query:

"Are your jacks gentle, Frank?"

"Well, yes, ma'am," said Frank.

"They are awful tame in front, but you bet they're awful wild behind."—Dubucue Herald buque Herald.

On the Blue Danube.

A correspondent, describing a trip down the Danube, in Austria, says: "The floating grain mills on the Dan-ube are its most curious feature. Fancy two canal boats moored parallel to each other in mid-river, about fifteen or twenty feet apart, and supporting between them the crank of a gigantic millwheel, turned by the current of the stream. Fancy, moreover, the sides of one of these boats carried up one story higher than the other, then roofed over a la Noah's ark, with windows and doors as needed, and you will have a fair idea of these Danube grain mills, some four or five thousand of which, in groups of ten or twelve together, are scattered along this watery highway all the way from Vienna to Belgrave. Each mill is inscribed with its owner's name.

ORANGE MARMALADE - Take equal weights of sour oranges and sugar. Grate the yellow rind from a fourth of the oranges. Cut all the fruit in halves at what might be called the "equator." Pick out the pulp, and free it of seeds. Drain off as much juice as you conveniently can, and put it on to holl with the sugar. Let it come to a boil. Skim, and simmer for about fifteen minutes then put in the pulp and grated rand and boil fifteen minutes longer.

BAKED HAM-Make a thick paste of flour (not boiled) and cover the ham with it, bone and all; put in a pan on a spider or two muffin rings, or anything that will keep it an inch from the bottom, and bake in a hot oven. If a small ham, fifteen minutes for each pound, if large, twenty minutes. The oven should be hot when put in. The paste forms a hard crust around the ham and the skin comes off with it. Try this and you will never cook a ham any other way. CHOCOLATE - Melt four ounces of grated chocolate over a boiling kettle, add gradually three cups of boiling water and one ounce of sugar. Set it upon the fire, and when scalding hot pour it upon the yolks of two eggs, well beaten, with one and one-half gills of cold water; add a pinch of cinnamon, and return it to the fire for a few moments to cook the egg. It must not boil, but should be beaten with an egg-beater or milled all the time. Serve very hot. MINCED VEAL.—Cut cold veal as fine as possible, but do not chop it; put to it a very little lemon-peel shred, two grates of nutmeg, some salt, and four or five teaspoonfuls of either a little weak broth, milk or water: simmer these gently with the meat, but take care not to let it boil; add a bit of butter rubbed in flour; put pieces of bread, cut thin and toasted, cut in three-cornered shape, round the dish. Fried crumbs of bread lightly strewed over, or served in little heaps on the meat, are an improvement to the looks and flavor; a little shred of shalot may occasionally be added.

GUM ARABIC STARCH—Take two ounces fine white gum arabic and prund it to fine white gum arabic and pound at to a powder; next put it into a pitcher and pour on it a pint or more of boiling water, according to the degree of strength you require, and then having covered at let it stand all night. In the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle; cork and keep it for use. A tablespoonful of gum water stirred into a pint of starch that has been made in the usual manner will give to lawns (either white or printed) a look of newness to which nothing else can restore them after washing. . THE HIRED SQUIRREL.

A lion to the squirrel said:
"Work faithfully for me,
And when your task is done, my friend,
Rewarded you shall be
With barrelful of finest nuts fresh from My own nut true." My own nut tree."
"My lion king," the squirrel said, "to this I do agree."

The squirrel toiled both day and night
Quite faithful to his hire;
So hungry and so faint, sometimes,
He thought he must expire.
But still he kept his courage up, and tugged
With might and main.
"How nice the nuts will taste," he thought,
"When I my barrel gain."

At last, when he was nearly dead,
And thin, and old and gray,
Quoth lion: "There's no more hard work
You're fit to do. I'll pay."
A barrelful of nuts he gave—ripe, rich,
And big, but oh!
The squirrel's tears ran down his checks;
He'd lost his teeth, you know.

A Dime-Novel Hero.

The dime-novel readers would rejoice in Buckshot Bill, of Nevada. He speaks twenty-five Indian tongues. Once he saw eleven comrades burned alive by the Comanches, signed with his blood a vow to have the scalps of eleven Indians who killed his brother and stole his dia-mond pin, and has on exhibition 117 scalps taken by his own hands. He is a
