What his belief?"

JUST IN TIME.

For life is brief,

I was coming up on a steamboat from New Orleans to St Louis. The night was oppressively warm, and I had gone out on deck to get a breath of fresh air. There were only two other persons there, a man and a woman. who were walking back and forth, con-versing together in low voices. As I passed them I heard her say: "Do you want to drive me crazy? ell you I can't forget him; and it's no ise talking to me about my duty. I don't believe a word that wicked woman says. He isn't married again—he isn't dead. He's alive and true to me, I'm sure of it."

The words were low, but intense and passionate, and I stopped involuntarily. "Don't get excited and unreasonable, my dear woman. Look at the facts of You haven't heard from your husband in nearly two years; he eft you with scarcely a week's provismoney; if it hadn't been for me you and your child would actually have starved. Yet you talk as if it was your duty to remain faithful to such a man; and that, too, in spite of the proof you have received, by a direct revelation from heaven, as it were, that he not only deserted you, but he married another woman, and lived with her as his wife three months before he

I can't tell how it was, but there was something in the smooth, insinuating voice of the speaker that sounded to me like the hiss of a serpent, and inspired me with a feeling of abhorrence

American Goods, all prices. that I could not overcome. .The next morning I scanned the faces of the passengers to discover the speaker. He was seated at the breakfast table—long-haired, thin-visiaged, with thin lips and light blue eyes that looked hard and cruel; but with a general air of sanctimoniousness pervading the

A little pale-faced woman sat on his right hand, whom I recognized at once as his companion the night before. She held in her lap a child two or three years old, and was rather pretty than otherwise, although her eyes were red as if from continual weeping.

But the face that chiefly attracted my attention was that of the woman on his right hand. Her complexion, in its unearthly pallor, resembled that of a corpse; her lips were livid, and her eyes, deep-sunken and with dark circles around them, were dull and expressionless. It was a face that, at the same time, repulsed and fascinated you. She, too, as well as the other woman, seemed to be under the control of the man whom I have described. I noticed a great many curious glances directed toward these persons during breakfast. Afterward I learned who they were from the captain. The man, it appeared, was a celebrated spiritualist, with a wonderful gift of healing in his hands, who subscribed himself S. S. Johnson, M. D. The woman with the corpse-like face was a clairvoyant, who always traveled with him, and went into trances for his benefit whenever he desired. The two together were said to be very successful as healing mediums. "I don't know what to think of it," said the captain. "There's something remarkable about this clairyoyance. I am convinced that Johnson is an impostor; but as to the woman—why, I'd take my oath that she isn't conscious of what she says and does in those trances. Johnson has a curious kind of power over her, and I believe his will actually forces her in a semi-comatose state, and puts words into her mouth which she is to say."

"But who is the little, pale-faced creature that accompanies him?" I inquired. "Is she a clairvoyant. too?" "Oh, no, but her husband left her nearly two years ago, and this Johnson has befriended her, for reasons of his own, I've no doubt. There's a mystery about it somehow. I was well acquainted with her husband. He was a steady, hard-working man; but times were poor, and he thought he could better his fortune by a trip to the mountains. So he went, leaving wife and child rather scantily provided for; but it was the best he could do. He hoped that, before their money and provisions were exhausted, he would be able to send them more. This Dr. Johnson was his principal adviser in the step he took, and promised to see that his family didn't come to want From that day to this, however, no di-rect communication has ever been received from Joe Morrison. It is known that he arrived in St. Louis safely, that he embarked there for the mountains, and that is all. His wife is a weak, helpless little creature, strong only in devotion to her husband, and would have sunk under this blow if it hadn't been for the child."

The captain stopped, as if he had fin-ished his story; but I turned to him eagerly, for the conversation of the night before recurred to my memory. "Isn't there some rumor about Mor rison's being dead or married again? And what about this Johnson? Has he kept the promise he made her husband ?" The captain did not seem inclined at first to say anything more, but was finally persuaded to tell me the rest of the story, together with his own suspi-cions as to the relations at present existing between Johnson and Mrs. Mor- him with Willie in his arms, pressed order to this we must be pecu-

"I can't deny," he said, "that Johnson has befriended her, but he is a man-I wouldn't trust, and I believe he has done it for purposes of his own. As to what those purposes are, I have my suspicions. After Morrison had been gone over a year, Johnson advised her to consult Sarah White, his clairvoyant friend. Lucy, that is Mrs. Morri son, vielded to the proposal readily as a relief from the doubts and fears that distracted her. But imagine her horror when informed by Miss White that her husband was alive and well, and married to another woman! She would not believe it, and refused, at first, to have any-thing more to do with clairvoyance. But the communication had its effect, undoubtedly, on her weak and credulous nature, for, when months passed on, and there was no word of tidings, she again consulted Miss White. This time she received a direct message from her husband himself, who had been killed in a melee among some miners, according to his own assertion, and was enabled through spiritual mediumship to console his wife personally. He confirmed the former statement of Miss White, as to his having committed bigamy before he died, and expressed a degree of contrition therefor truly edifying. Lucy was overwhelmed by what she heard, and, out of sheer desperation, resolved to go to St. Louis, and there seek for traces of her husband. As it happened, Dr. Johnson was going north, and took her under his protection. It is my private opinion that he has been plotting all along how to get her into his power. Whether or not he has had anything to do with Morrison's mysterious si lence, is more than I can tell." "It is a strange story," I said, musingly, "but I am inclined to think you are right in your suspicions." And in return for the captain's confidence, I related the conversation I had accidentally overheard.

"Just the plea I thought he would urge—duty. Duty to her child, probably. The hypocrite! he knows she won't marry him for any other reason But what are the crowd doing over there?" and he pointed to the opposite side of the cabin. "Ah! I understand. Isn't that Johnson and Miss White? He asked my permission this morning to display her wonderful skill as a clairvoyant. Come along; I want to see her in a trance."

I am not superstitious, but there was something uncanny in the air that morning, and a thrill of actual dread ran over me as we approached the clairvoyant. Her eyes were open, but rolled back in her head, and there was a ghastly expression on her face that I shall never forget. She was talking and gesticulating earnestly, and near her stood Dr. Johnson, whose fixed. magnetic gaze never left her for a single instant. As soon as I could distinguish what she was saying I discovered that she professed to be under the control of Joe Morrison, and the cap-tain informed me that she imitated perfectly his tricks of voice and manner. What made this more remarkable was the fact that she had never seen him. "There is no use, Lucy, in crying any more," she said, "for I am a miserable scoundrel, and not worth the tears you shed. You are wrong, too, in neglecting your duty to Willie the way you He is your own child, rememb and I want you to consider what will be the best for his future, instead of mourning me any longer. You are altogether too headstrong and suspicious, and you won't even listen to the ad-

crowd-Mrs. Morrison had fainted. The captain and I carried her to a sofa and sprinkled water in her face; but it was some time before she regained consciousness, and not until the clairvoyant had come out of her apparent The next morning the boat reached terrupted by a sudden stir among the St. Louis. I put up at the "Planters'," as usual, and so did Dr. Johnson and his friends. I had several business commissions to attend to, and did not see anything of them for several days. But one evening, as I was going to my room, little Willie came running along the hall, sobbing as if his heart would

"What is the matter, Willie?" I said, taking him up in my arms. All that I could make out from his broken speech was that somebody had 'hurted" his mamma, and that she was crying "drefful hard," and would not even speak to him. A sudden impulse came over me to offer my friendship to Mrs. Morrison, and thwart the plans of Johnson, if possible, for I felt convinced that he had occasioned her tears. While I was thinking how to do this without wounding her delicacy, she came out into the hall, looking for Willie. He ran up to her eagerly, dragging me along, and l was really shocked at the change in her appearance. She was thinner and than when I had seen her last, and there was a look in her eye like that of a hunted animal at bay. I can't tell how it was that I gained her confidence so readily, but we hadn't been talking ten minutes before she began to tell me of her troubles. My white hair and venerable appearance had something to do with it, probably; and then, too, her need of a friend was rgent and imperative. She could not get the slightest clue to her husband, it seemed, in St. Louis and was almost ready, in her despair to believe everything the clairvoyant said. The net had been subtly laid It had placed her under pecuniary obligations that galled her womanly spir it, and made it the harder to reject his proposal. Then, too, he promised to care for and educate Willie, and love for her child pleaded strongly in the mother's heart. Johnson was going to Chicago the next day, and was coming to her in the morning for a final decision. If she refused to accompany him thither as his wife, then all was to be at an end between them. But what was she to do in St. Louis, alone and penniless? I did not hesitate as to the advice I should give her, and I promised to do all I could to assist her. I slept but little, for I was thinking of her. Late the following morning went to breakfast. Opposite to me was a traveler, sunburnt and coarsely attired, but honest and genial-looking We entered into conversation. There was something in his voice and manner that seemed strangely familiar, although I could not recollect that I had ever met him before. But it came over me like a flash of light, when he spoke of having just returned from the mountains, that this was the man whom Sarah White, the clairvoyant, had personated on the steamer Dresden. "Pardon me, sir; but isn't your name loe Morrison? And didn't vou forme ly live in——?" He started to his feet. "For God's sake, sir, can you tell me anýthing of my wife and child? It is nearly two years since I've heard a word from them." Joy seldom kills, and I had not the heart to prolong his suspense.

"Yes, yes; they are alive and well." I answered, "and here in this very house, in No.—" "My.God! it isn't possible!" he cried. rushing away from the table like a closely to his breast, laughing and crying at the same time, and frightening the child nearly to death. Mrs. Morrison was not in the room; she had gone out with Dr. Johnson, the cham-bermaid said. A thrill of apprehension ran over me. "Ed you know where they went?" I asked. But she could not tell certainly. "The gentleman had said something about Equire Dawson's," she answered. That was enough. I rushed down stairs and through the streets, drag-ging Morrison and Willie with me. We did not stop to see whether people stared or not. Just as we reached the door of Justice Dawson's office, Johnson and Mrs. Morrison came out, and my heart sank within me. Willie caught a glimpse of them, and cried out shrilly, 'Mamma! mamma!"

She started and turned, and Morrison sprang forward with the child in his arms, but before he could catch her, she had fallen prone upon the pavement. But she came to quickly, and the greetings between husband an wife were silent, but affecting. A little later she returned to the hotel, lean ing upon Morrison's arm, a proud and happy woman. My fears were unfounded: she had refused to marry Johnson. even after he had decoyed her to the office of Justice Dawson As to the mutual explanations of this happy reunion, I have little to say.

use of Lucy and the child. And he could not help mistrusting that their correspondence had been intercepted, for neither husband nor wife had received a single one of the letters they had written to each other. Neither of them ever saw Johnson again. He disappeared that very day. We heard afterward that he married Miss White the clairvoyant, and that

ple, she being an accomplice.

The following memorial sermon was preached by Rev. J. D. McCord, at the Presbyterian Church in this place, on Sunday morning, Sept. 24, 1881:

Matt. x: 29—"Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing, and not one of them shall fall without His notice?" The teaching of this text is: That God's providence is over all; that it takes in even the sparrow, and the lily, and the very hairs upon our heads.

The argument is: That if God cares for these little things, he will much more care for men and nations. In the exercises of their care He prevents He permitted the assassin, Booth, to destroy our Lincoln. He permitted another assassin to destroy the life of the Czar of Russia, and many other such evils He permits. God's providence does not contravene the liberty of man in the commission of evil. whether that liberty be exercised in profaning His name, or in murdering a President, unless such restraint is wisest and best. Sometimes God does so restrain the evil. Sometimes He does not. Why He does not always, is a mystery. Finite minds cannot judge the infinite in this. Nothing is more sure than this: That God pre-

We as a Nation for ninety days were bowed with grief for our dying President, and now that he is dead, a palllike sorrow overspreads the land, and has brought affliction to many hearts and homes all over the Christian land. This we suffer from the permissive providence which suffered that demoniacal Guiteau to assinnate that most guiltless and most honored man of our Nation, James A. Garfield.

How strange it is that two men so inoffensive, so patriotic, and so Chris-ian like as Abraham Lincoln and

James A. Garfield, raised to the loftiest position in the power of a Christian Republic, should be suffered to fall by the hand of such miscreants as Booth and Guiteau. But so it is. Both are dead, and both died by the assassin's bullet. But our grief to-day is peculiar. For eighty-nine days our President was the subject of prayer, public aud private, throughout the Nation. Yea! throughout Christendom. But, notwithstanding all this, and notwithstanding he was himself a man of faith and prayer, he is dead. The skeptical world have derided our faith and our God, and ridicules the idea that God hears and answers prayer, and they have pointed to this case as one eminently fitted to prove to the world the efficacy of prayer if, indeed, it were efficacious. And, with bowed hearts, and earnesty entreaty the whole Christian world has entreated for his recovery, yet he is dead! Now Ingersol and Lyndall and all the skeptical world will say, with a sneer, "Where is your faith in the power of prayer?" I doubt not, also, that from this event, not a few will give up their faith. But we know that all prayer is made in humble submission to the Divine will. Every true prayer for our President's recovery had in it these conditions: "If it be Thy will." "If Thou can'st consistently," "If it is the best for us, and for Thy glory."- Evidently, God says to us, "It is not my will; it is not best, for you nor my glory, but it is my will that President Garfield shall die. It is best for the Nation and for the highest good." And though it is hard for us as a Nation, yet God has taken him home, and we are left to mourn our loss and gather up the lessons which the great affliction teaches.

What does this providence mean? ist, I answer, it means chastisement. "The Lord's arm is not shortened that he cannot hear, but your sins have separated between you and your God, and your iniquity has hidden his face Nations in this world, individuals in the next. Garfield was too good a It seems to me that God called this Nation into existence that we might honor him and serve him in an eminent degree. It seems to me that our early history, and, indeed all the provi-

intensely so. The love of money is eating us up. It is the lever that moves the mighty engines of the entire nation. It is the motive power of our entire national machinery, and moves us as a people, from Congress down to constable. The strife for place under each new administration is ample proof of this, and has become a giant evil. I believe this very thing led to the assassination of our Presi dent. The strife for the position of collector of revenues in New York City gave rise to the break between President Garfield and Conkling. This grew to the exciting and terrific struggle between the "Stalwarts," as they were called, and the administration. Guiteau, in his madness, came to the rescue of the "Stalwarts" with his pistol, and when he shot the Chief Executive, cried out: "I am a Stalwart of the Stalwarts. Now Arthur is Presi-Morrison was thunderstruck by the dent." Guiteau became strongly allied treachery of Johnson, in whom he had to his party in the struggle for place, placed such implicit confidence as to and struck the blow which he thought send him large sums of money for the would secure victory for his candidate. Of course this was a personal and an individual affair. No one was responsible directly but himself. But to my mind, the love for money and place, which shows itself in every change of administration, which love is fostered by the spoils system, lies at the bottom he lives by lecturing and deluding peoof our affliction to-day. That Conkling strife, incited by the love of money and position, killed James A. Garfield. in my opinion. Railroad and other merchantile traffc on the Sabbath shows our excessive love of money. 2d. Another of our national sins, which has called down upon us this judgment, is intemperance. Not that the National Congress legislates in favor of it, but they know the evil and do not crush it. They take large revenues from the manufacture and sale of the terrible curse. It kills 60,000 of our citizens every year, and makes 75 per cent, of our criminals and of our crimes. It fills our land with a wail of sorrow, is an offense against God, and a blight upon our civilization. Notwithstanding all this, the evil lives and flourishes by the tacit consent of the national government.

3d. Another sin, which brings upon us the judgment of Heaven, is the crime of Mormonism, which is only organized adultery. This cancer is suffered to live and flourish by the national government, and is an ulcer which is corrupting the life blood of the nation, and is a heinous offense both to God and man. 4th. Another national sin of enormous spread, which, though forbidden by the laws of the State and of the Nation, yet which is an awful and prevailing vice, is fornication or adultery, and it calls upon us the just judgment of God. "Thou shalt not commit adultery," is the solemn edict of the Almighty. Yet, even in Christian America, it is the vice of vices, Houses of prostitution and of assignation flourish under the shadow of the capitol, and it is said that they have the patronage of not a few of our Congressmen. From Washington to San Francisco, and from New Orleans to the Lakes, this vice holds high carnival, involving even our children. No wonder God says "Woe to thee, oh land!" 5th. Another and a growing sin in our land is infidelity. Ingersoll goes from ocean to ocean proclaiming his infidelity and is everywhere received by crowds who fill his coffers and applaud his blasphemies. He is followed, in his views, by very many who are emboldened by his bravado and success, to proclaim their unbelief, and so the work of undermining the faith and the morals of our people goes rapidly on, especially among our young men. 6th. Another great sin, and one which lies at the foundation of all the rest, is irreligion. By this I mean, no religion. The masses of our nation have no regard for God, nor love for the Savior, but refuse his law, or re iect his salvation as offered through

Profanity and Sabbath breaking are

God and His worship are neglected and treated with contempt. Will God permit all this to go on without rebuke? Will He take no notice of these sins? Will He smile upon the people or bless the nation when such things prevail? We know better. We are not heathens. We are exalted to Heaven in point of privilege, in knowledge and opportunity, and if we misimprove them, we will be blotted out with Capernium and Chorazin, and Babylon and Nineva. "Righeousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

7th. One more sin I must mention, viz., the coldness, worldliness, pride formality and unbelief of the churches Ten righteous men would have saved Sodom and the cities of the plain. But ten thousand times ten thousand could not save our President. I take this' providence as a rebuke to the churches of God throughout the land. God says to us. Your sins, etc. . In the first place, this national affliction means judgment—a visitation of God upon-us for our sins. Like the cloud between the children of Israel and Pharaoh, on the earth side, it is all dark, but viewed from Canaans side it will be glory-lit. Heaven will throw upon it a light which will bring out the love and wisdom and goodness of our God. But, even now, there is one glimmer, of heavenly lightness. He, a Christian, a Christian minister with acknowledged eminence in Christian graces, has stood up before the gaze of the nation and the world for six months, as the President of our republic. For eighty-nine days he has been the focus of the eyes and ears of all the civilized world. Every word, every look and act has been telegraphed to every nation under Heaven. But not an act, or word, or look, but what has honored the religion he possessed and the Savior whom he loved. All have felt the power of his courage in the presense of death, and the submissiveness of will and the serenity of his faith, and the buoyancy of a Christian hope. The world has seen how a Christian can

But there were unseen attendants near. If the angles bore Lazarus to Paradise, were they wanting at the dying bed of Garfield? True, the noble wife, the patient, helpful, trusting wife and children, and cabinet officials and physicians, sat near by with streaming eves and said their goodbys with sobs and sad, sad kisses, but there was in that room of the dying President another band—an angel cchort. They came straight from Paradise, with hurried wing, to he the convoy of our Christian President to the mansion which Jesus has prepared for him. And the moment his spirit was loosened from its earthly house, they bore it with swiftest wing, and with rapture and shout to the Paradise of God, to Jesus, and to the innumerable throng of the redeemed in Heaven. For he who careth for the sparrow will gather his sainted spirits home. Now, free from care and strife, away from a land of storms, and sin, and pain, and death, he bathes in the light and rests in the bosom of his Lord.

Thither let us go, when our battle is fought and victory is won. There we, too, may rest when the toil is past. In a little while, He who notes the sparrow's fall, will send for you and me, and we shall be at home in Paradise. Ah, what a God is our God! How strong! how safe! how sure! Guiteau's case was taken up by the grand jury Monday, and after examining eight witnesses adjourned to renew the case the next day. Garfield colleges, professorships, streets, avenues, churches and nearly everything are springing up in all parts of the country as monuments to the memory of our beloved President. The reduction of the national debt for September was $17,483,641, making a decrease of $41,742,886 since June 30, 1881. At this rate our national debt

Since then suspi cions have been aroused that deceased came to his death by foul play, and his wife, Mary, went before Coroner Wil-son and made an affidavit that she had good reason to believe that her hus-band died "from injuries at the hands of some person or persons unknown." Accordingly, last Friday, Sheriff Clarke, Coroner Wilson, and Prosecuting Attorney Kellogg repaired to the cemete ry in Pipestone, summoned a jury, and took up the remains. The jury went through the formality of viewing the body, and adjourned until the 10th inst, when a thorough examination of the matter will be made. It is believed that it will be clearly shown that Hackstadt was poisoned.

The opposing counsel sneaked back into the room and changed the place of all those bookmarks. In the afternoon, the lawyer, taking up his books, referred the court to his authorities. His Honor noted every volume and page very carefully, and took the case under advisement In rendering his opinion, he said: "I was inclined, after hearing the argument of counsel for defendant, to non-suit plaintiff, but I find that, on referring to the authorities quoted by counsel, none of them bear on this case, and I am led to think that the gentleman has willfully been trying to insult this court. He has referred me to an action of an Irish woman who sued the proprietor of a monkey for damages for biting her, to a case of arson, one of burglary, two of petty larceny and three divorce cases, beside other matters, none of which bear on an action to recover on a promissory note. Perhaps the grossest insult to the court is referring it to the case of Duckman vs. Boozyman, an action charging defendant with breach of promise. Judgment for plaintiff, with costs." Nowhere is the sentiment of home stronger than in Spain. The Spanish father is absolute king and lord by his swn heart-stone, but his sway is so mild and so readily acquiesced in that it is hardly felt. The evils of tyranny are rarely seen but by him who resists it, and the Spanish family seldom call for the harsh exercise of parental authority. This is the rule. I do not mean to say that there are no exceptions. The pride and jealousy inherent in the race make family quarrels, when they do rise, the bitterest and the flercest in the world. The Increasing Cost of Paupers and Criminals.

The California Legislature not long ago published a report prepared by Chancellor Hartson, of Napa, Chairman of the Committee on Prisons, which contains some startling statistics. The cost of maintaining criminals and paupers is shown as follows:

It is calculated that the census for 1880, when completed, will show an outlay of over $20,000,000 per annum for the cost of maintaining criminals and infirm people. This does not include the enormous outlay incurred by the arrest and trial of criminals, but simply to

The money was paid, George resigned his wife, and lent the $2,000 to his brother Abner, of Dutchess county, to be invested in improvements upon a farm. Rely upon it that you will experience speedy relief. Such, at least, is the testimony of those who have used it. The remedy is likewise successfully resorted to for throat liseases, sprains, bruises, etc.

Escaped from Toils, Jno. Bacon, Laporte, Ind., writes: "Hurrah for Spring Blossom; its all you recommended it to be. My Dyspepsia has all vanished. Why don't you advertise it? What allowance will you make if I take a dozen bottles so that I could oblige my friends occasionally?" Price 50 cents, trial bottles 10 cents.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass. says: "In the fall of 1876 I was taken with a violent bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I was so weak at one time that I could not leave my bed. In the summer of 1877 I was admitted to the City Hospital. While there the doctors said I had a hole in my left lung as big as a half dollar. I was so far gone at one time a report went around that I was dead: I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the lunga- I got a bottle, when to my surprise and gratification, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel in better spirits than I have in the past three years. "I write this hoping every one afflicted with Diseased Inngs will be induced to take Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the lungs, and beonvinced that Consumption can be cured.

Is a purely vegetable bitter and power ful tonic, and is warranted a speedy and certain cure for Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, and all malarial disorders. In miasmatic districts, the rapid pulse, coated tongue, thirst, lassitude, loss of appetite, pain in the back and loins, and coldness of the spine and extremities, are only premonitions of severer symptoms, which terminate in the ague paroxysm, succeeded by high fever and profuse perspiration.

It is a startling fact, that quinine, arsenic and other poisonous minerals, form the basis of most of the "Fever and Ague Preparations," "Specifics," "Syrups," and "Tonics," in the market. The preparations made from these mineral poisons, although they are palatable, and may break the chill, do not cure, but leave the malarial and their own drug poison in the system, producing quinism, dizziness, ringing in the ears, headache, vertigo, and other disorders more formidable than the disease they were intended to cure. Aven's Ague Cure thoroughly eradicates these noxious poisons from the system, and always cures the severest cases. It contains no quinine, mineral, or any thing that could injure the most delicate pa-

NOTHING like advertising when anything is wanted. Last week we mentioned the fact that the residents of west Front street were tired of wading through the mud at F. M. Gray's place, and this week he is building a new brick walk there.

FARMERS are getting high prices to make up for the shortage of crops and the nonproducing part of the population are the ones who suffer. Wheat $1.48 to $1.50; corn 60 cents; potatoes $1.25; apples $1.25; pork, alive, 6 cents, and other things in proportion.

WHEAT was sold in this place last Saturday for $1.47. There has been a steady rise in the market the past three months and the cause that made it rise still exists. The price yesterday was $1.48, and this morning is S1.49.

A LARGE number of well-loaded teams passed through this place on their way to the fair at Niles, Thursday. If there was an equal attendance from all directions, the fair ground must have been too small to hold the crowd. Many of those who attended report the showing of exhibits small for a county fair.

A VISIT to South Bend tells us what led the Tribune reporter, who attended the reunion in this place, to make the remark he did about Buchanan having more pretty women than any other town in the State. He is so unused to seeing that kind that he could not withhold the remark.

WILLIAM E. STEWART, a former resident of Buchanan, has had charge of the South Haven Sentinel thirteen years this month. He gets up one of the best local papers that strikes this print shop, showing that his thirteen years of experience has not been without its beneficial effect.

MR. JOHN BUCKLES has made arrangements with George Churchill for building a fine dwelling house on his vacant lot between that where he now lives and John Weisgerber's property, on Day's avenue. This is a move in the right direction, and we hope to see others move in the same way.

BERRIEN SPRINGS beats all of the places on the outside of this little globe for small, little, trifling, petty, one-horse quarrels, that are a disgrace not only to those who keep stirring them up, but to the town. It has been that way a good while, and is getting about old enough to learn better.

JIM BROWN, the little colored bootblack, better known as "Skip," is the champion of the day. He attended the fair at Niles last week, and by a little running in a foot race, gotten up for the boys, he brought home a silver and glass dish worth $6.

WE are informed by one of the passengers returning from Chicago on the Kalamazoo Accommodation last evening that a woman was killed at New Buffalo by day express going west. We are unable to learn her name.

ALL who are interested in the question of highway taxes should be present at the Highway Improvment Association meeting, to be held in Berrien Centre Hall, Oct. 11. This is a question that is being agitated in all parts of the State, and the general discussion of the tax question is what is wanted at this time, that the commission appointed for that purpose may be able to report to the Legislature the wants of the people in reference to their taxes.

A MEETING of the Buchanan Library and Lecture Association was held Monday evening, when the following officers were elected: J. F. Jordan, President; A. A. Worthington, Vice Pres.; A. F. The object of the organization is to conduct a course of lectures and entertainments in this place during the Fall and Winter season, for which none but the best talents will be employed. With this object in view correspondence is solicited from entertainment bureaus.

By the new arrangement in our mail we are enabled to get the RECORD into the hands of our subscribers nearly 24 hours earlier. By the former arrangement the papers could not leave this place before 10:30 Friday forenoon, were taken to Niles, where they were kept sometimes five and sometimes thirty hours, and then returned on the day express, which goes west at four o'clock. Now they leave here at midnight, Thursday night, are taken to Niles, where they stay until four, next morning. They are then carried west and brought back and distributed on the mail Friday morning, the one that used to start them from here. DRIVE WELLS, - The Dowagiac Times has the following that is equally applicable in this county: "The papers of this county are, with few exceptions, publishing the an-nouncement that owners of drive wells are to be called upon to pay a royalty for using the so-called patent drive well. Of the legality of this claim we know nothing. Of its justice we can certainly say it is very much like a great wrong to the farming community of Cass county. Many will pay this royalty rather than to have a law suit, never knowing or being satisfied as to whether the money is obtained legally from them or not. There is one way, though, to know, and not an expensive one: Let them join together, hire competent advice and counsel, and let the courts decide it. And you cannot be too quick about getting together and forming such an agreement that you will make a test case of it. Ten dollars royalty on every drive well in Cass county is too much to pay unless it is right. It would aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars, while to test it would cost but little more if you were beaten, and but a few hundred if you defeated them. Our laws are wrong. A thing of such general use and utility should not have become so common, and then so large a royal-ty be a legal tribute to its use. Then too, the man who happened to take such a greedy shark by the seat of the breeches and pitch him into the road can be fined just as much as the man who threshes a decent, tax-paying citizen. Let your motto be "millions for war, but not one cent for tribute"until you are forced to pay tribute.

will be visited soon." The gist of our information on the subject is to the effect that no royalty can be collected in this case, from the fact that the patent will not stand investigation. We have made no personal investigation of the case, but hese fellows are asking for a larg pile of money from this community, and it should not be paid if not absolutely necessary.

Call your meetings at once, for you

September 24 Dr. Vincent, of Deckerville, wrote to a gentleman at Buchanan that, although Deckerville was almost entirely destroyed by fire, not a cent's worth of relief had been received up to that date by that community from any of the committees, and all they have had to depend upon is what they could get from their neighboring towns.—Evening News.

THE South Bend Tribune has the following to say about salt in Berrien county:

"Mr. George I. Blowers, of this city, has recently put down a tubular well on a farm belonging to Sol. Rough of Buchanan. The farm is situated in Berrien county, about ten miles north of New Buffalo, and only half a mile from the shore of Lake Michigan, The soil is heavy clay to the depth of near ly 100 feet. At the depth of 260 feet a vein of salt water was reached. Still further down, 20 feet, another vein of saltier water was reached, and 20 feet below this, 300 feet from the surface, water so salt as to be bitter was found. The well as finally completed is 320 feet in depth, and the water comes within 15 feet of the surface. A quart of the water boiled down will make a tablespoonful of the finest table salt The water, as it comes from the well is clear as crystal. In a pailful of it, left standing a short time, a thick sediment of salt will gather at the bot-

We have for many years observed Dr. Price steadily advancing his favorite doctrine for the cure of chronic ailments, and disseminating the principles which he concedes to be the true, scientific and unerring basis of medical practice. We know that Dr. Price is not of those one-idea, all-idea and no-idea doctors who exist but for a day, he seems to be of more enduring material, free and clear from medical fashions and superstitions, with an independent system of his own, drawn from the secrets of nature and common sense. This proprietor is the father of a girling of from 5 to 6. She had taken the habitude to go each morning to give to eat to the trouts, at the aid of crumbs of bread.

These fishes were become so entamed that they skipped out of the water to attrap the crumbs which the infant child heid in the crevice of her hand. It arrived one day that she lost the equilibrium, and she fell, the head the first, in the pond, of which the water was enough to profound.

A Fragment of Life.

When one breaks camp in the morning, he turns back again and again to see what he has left. Surely he feels that he has forgotten something. What is it? It is only his own thoughts and musings he has left, the fragment of his life he has lived there. Where he hung his coat on a tree, where he slept on the boughs, where he made his coffee or broiled his trout over the coals, where he drank at the little brown pool in the spring run, where he looked long and long into the whispering branches over-head; he has left what he cannot bring away with him—the flame and the ashes of himself.

USEFUL HINTS.

According to Mr. Fairthorne, benzine may be freed from all offensive odor by shaking it up well with quicklime—about three ounces to the gallon.

To MAKE cisterns and tanks water-proof, paint thickly on the inside with a mixture composed of eight parts of melted glue, four parts of linseed oil boiled with litharge. In forty-eight hours after application it will have hardened so that the cistern or tank can be filled with water. To REMOVE pitting and old pock-marks simple oil, pomade or ointment, medicated with croton-oil, and of a strength just sufficient to raise a very slight pustular eruption, is probably the safest and most effective of all the preparations that are employed for the purpose. It should be applied at intervals extending over several weeks. To restore whiteness to ivory-handled knives: Wash with soaped flannel and luke-warm water, then wipe very dry. Soak them occasionally in alum water that has been boiled and allowed to cool.

Let the handles lie for one hour in this. then remove them and brush them well. After this take a clean linen towel, dip it in cold water, squeeze it out, and while it is wet wrap it around the handles, leaving them to dry gradually, as, if dried too rapidly out of the alum water, they will be injured. POPLAR or white wood treated as fol lows will assume the appearance of the finest black walnut: The wood must be dry and warm, and then coated once or twice with a strong aqueous solution of extract of walnut peel. When half dried the wood is brushed with a solution of the wood is brushed with a solution of the wood in the wood is brushed with a solution. tion compounded of one part by weight of bichromate of potassa in five parts of boiling water, and, after drying thoroughly, is rubbed and polished. The stain penetrates to the depth of from one-twelfth to one-sixth of an inch.

To give a beautiful gloss to shirtbosoms, procure two ounces of fine white gum arabic and pound it to pow-der, put it into a pitcher and pour on to it a pint or more of boiling water, according to the degree of strength you desire, and then, having covered it, let desire, and then, naving covered it, let it set all night. In the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle, cork it, and keep it for further use. A table-spoonful of gum-water stirred into a pint of starch that has been made in the usual manner will give a beautiful gloss to shirt-bosoms, and to lawns (either white or printed) a look of newness to which nothing else can restore them after washing. It is also good for thin white muslin and all kinds of laces.

In order to preserve the hands soft and white, they should always be washed in warm water, with fine soap, and carefully dried with a moderately-coarse towel, being well rubbed every time to insure a brisk circulation, than which nothing a francoarant and soft surface. If engaged in any accidental pursuit which may burt the color of the hands, or if they have been exposed to the sun, a little lemon juice will restore their whiteness for the time, and lemon soap is proper to wash them with. Almond paste is of essential service in preserving the delicacy of the hands. The following is a serviceable pomade for rub-bing the hands on retiring to rest: Take two ounces of sweet almonds; beat with three drachms of white wax and three drachms of spermaceti; put up carefully in rose-water. Gloves should be always worn on exposure to the atmos-

A Great Duelist.

Baron de Sen Malatn, a Sicilian, and a noted duelist, went to Paris, not long ago, to find a test of his skill as a combatant. He had fought forty duels, but in none of them had he been the chal-langer. It is told of him that, during s heated political canvass, in the course of a discussion in a public square with a first cousin, the latter called him by some opprobrious epithet. The Baron

"Will you repeat that in five min-

"Assuredly."
The cousin went home and returned with a revolver in his hand. The Baron

"Giuseppi, see here: That revolver knew what an expert swordsman he was, begged him to spare her son's life. He replied:

"Giuseppe shall return from the field even without a scratch."

The duel took place. The cousin attacked furiously. The Baron only parried. At last he turned his head and looked at his seconds until his adversary became so weak that he could no longer hold his sword, when the seconds interfered and ended the duel.

At another time he was challenged by the best broad-swordsman in Sicily, while he himself was not skillful with this weapon. The broad-sword was selected by the seconds. On the field the Baron took his sword in both hands and rushed upon his adversary, using the weapon as if it were a club. His adversary retreated. They were put in position again. The Baron disarmed his dversary. A third time they were put in position; at the first pass the Baron's sword broke within eight inches of the hilt; his adversary kept on; the sec-onds did not interfere. The Baron became furious, rushed on his adversary, wounded him; then turned on the seconds and wounded every one of them,

Inflamed Throats.

cold than a sore finger, though it may be one of the indications. A cold is attended by a shivering chill, dryness of the skin, with more or less of contraction of the surface and a general commotion of the whole system, and may be attended by a sore throat, or tightness across the lungs, or bowel derangements, feverishness, etc. Such a cold closes in an unusual amount of morbid waste matter, ordinarily escaping through the pores, and may be the first stage of many forms of diseases. The remedy is plain—opening the pores by a sweat, by warmth of the body, by friction of the surface with a cram, flesh-brush and the like—simply removing the causes.

But a sore throat is not removed, necessarily, by these means, simply because it does not always, or generally, originate in a cold. Most of these inflamed throats, in my opinion, are produced by derangements of the stomach, in consequence of dietetic errors and abuses. These inflame and even ulcerate this organ, and, by a law of the system based on sympathy, all similar surfaces, if contiguous, are more or less affected similarly. Hence the physician looks at the tongue to learn of the state of the stomach. If this is "coated," so is the stomach: if this is red and angry, the mucous surface entirely removed if it is cracked, that is in a similar condition.

And if a surface so far removed from the stomach is thus affected by sympathy it is not strange that one between—the throat—should show signs of irritation and be sore. Indeed, it is not only true that the whole course of the food-pipe is thus inflamed and diseased, but that the stomach, even more diseased, gives less evidence in the matter of sensation, in consequence of a merciful provision, that

The cure of such a throat is found in the care of the stomach, mainly by reasonable fasting, the use of plain food in moderate quantities, etc. Gargling alum water will be of some service. Also only a very moderate use of salt and the irritating spices will effect much by way of prevention, which is much better than cure.—Dr. J. H. Hanaford.

With lash on cheek she comes and goes;
I watch her when she little knows;
I wonder if she dreams of it?
Sitting and working at my rhymes,
I weave into my verse at times
Her sunny hair, or gleams of it.

Upon her window-ledge is set
A box of flowering mignonette—
Morning and eve she tends to them—
The senseless flowers, that do not care
About that loosened atrand of hair,

If I could once contrive to get Into that box of mignonette
Some morning when she tends to them—
She comes! I see the rich blood rise
From the throat to cheek!—down go the eyes,
Demurely, as she bends to them.

An imitation for floor boards, etc., has been made in this country of compressed straw. It is said to resemble a hard, close-grained wood, can be planed, holds nails well, etc. It has no flaws, is not subject to dry rot, is water proof, will not warp and has greater tensile strength than wood. If all this be true we may shortly be making houses out of straw

So FAR from persistence being an associate of weakness and inferiority, it is itself a power which underlies and upholds all others, and without which they could never develop into value or effi-ciency. The feeble, inefficient, inferior man is he who, whatever may be his latent abilities, lacks the force necessary to make the most of them.

Lamentations.

Life is a strange mass of contradictions. When you expect least enjoyment you obtain the most; where you think you have given most satisfaction, you have given least. When you are sick, you would be well; when well you suck, you would be well; when well you try to be sick. When you fancy yourself the wisest of men, you are the dadoist of fools. The girl you are most in love with is least in love with you. What you cannot get you would obtain; what you have you do not value.

Did Not Understand Journalism.

I recollect sitting at table in London beside the editor of a leading journal. He said: "I am in distress; I have lost one of my regular writers." I did not know about journalism at the time, so I remarked: "I suppose you! will have to get another." He replied:

"Get another! I will have to get three, and I will be surprised if at the end of a year one of these three writers does as well as the writer I have lost."- eccuitating a Surgical Operation Loving Mother Attempts to Take Pair of Shears from Her Child. PARENTS BE CAREFUL.

Domestic accidents are common to women, and some of them are very serious. Mrs. Warner, of South Rondont, Ulster Co., N. Y., some weeks ago attempted to take from her child a pair of shears with which it was playing. A slight struggle ensued, in which the point of the shears entered Mrs. Warner's left eye, entirely destroying the sight. Her family physician did what he could, but intensely painful inflammation arose, which, but intensely painful inflammation arose, which, by sympathy, threatened the loss of the other eye. Total blindness to a woman having the care of a household is an irretrievable calamity. In this strait Mrs. W—applied to the well-known and skillful Surgeon, Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout N. Y., who removed the injured eye by a very successful operation, setting aside all danger of further harm to the sight of the other eye. But, owing to pain and mental distress, her system deeded a tonic and restorative medicine. To do this work the Doctor prescribed "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," which sustained its reputation and laid a sure foundation of health.

Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" removes all impurities from the blood, regulates the Liver and Kidneys, cures Constipation, and all diseases and weaknesses peculiar to Females. It is for sale by all our druggists at ONE DOLLAR a bottle.

The young Savoyard wandered all day about the city, but, finding no trace of his relative, returned in the evening to Marco's hut, that name having been given to the bear. My home was in Titusville, Pa., and I was on the way to it from Washington, where my

When it became known on the train that the assassin of Lincoln had been arrested and was on that very train, the excitement was intense. It had been telegraphed along the line of the road that Lincoln's murderer was under arrest, and would pass through on his way to Titusville.
