IN SCHOOL DAYS.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,

And blackberry vines are running.

The warping floor, the battered seats,

A ragged beggar sunning;

Around it still the sumachs grow,

Within, the master's desk is seen,

Deep scarred by raps official:

The jack-knife's carved initial.

The charcoal frescoes on its walls,

Its door's worn sill, betraying

Went storming out to playing!

Lit up its western window panes,

It touched the tangled, golden curls,

And brown eyes full of grieving,

When all the school were leaving.

Where pride and shame were mingled.

Of one who still her steps delayed

For near her stood the little boy

His cap pulled down upon a face

Pushing with restless feet the snow

The blue checked apron fingered.

The Force of Example.

General Grant's Arabian Horses.

Grant's Arabian steeds is told by Mrs.

Hooper. When the horses were delivered to the American official who was deputed to represent General Grant he found that through some hocus-pocus of the employes of the Sultan's stables one of the horses selected had been exchanged for a dismal beast, unmanage-able and generally unsound. Our countrymen did not want to forward so wretched an animal to the United States, yet what was to be done? To refuse the Sultan's present would have been a deadly insult, and, besides, he had no right to do anything of the kind;

while to find fault with it would have been a deadlier. Finally a bright idea stuck him. The unsound horse happened to be black; so he went for the high and mighty Turkish official who had the matter in charge and regretfully informed him that, though Generat Grant was enchanted with the two noble steeds that were accorded him by the magnificence of the Sultan, he would, unfortunately, be unable to use the black one, as horses of that color were only employed for funerals in America, and to offer or accept one as

A certain little story about General

Early last evening one of our prominent town officials stopped for a moment in front of the post-office to speak with an acquaintance. He was eating peanuts at the time, the aroma of which was so tempting to the ac-quaintance that he immediately pur-chased a pint, warm and fresh from the roaster by the fountain. As he did so he noticed two men watching him, and as he stepped to one side each of them walked up and purchased a pint of peanuts. It occurred to him that these two had made the purchase because they saw him do so. He slowly walked away, eating the fruit, and before he had gone a great distance he saw two others step up and buy peanuts who evidently had their attention called to the matter by noticing what he was doing. Than he began to moralize upon the power of example. He reasoned thus: "I bought a pint of peanuts because I saw Mr. —— eating them; already four have bought peanuts because they saw me do so, or saw me eating them: I have influenced four to buy peanuts; if Mr. - influenced three besides me, and each influenced four others, and each in turn induenced four others, and this goes on in this ratio, before the influence of Mr. - dies out he will have influenced more people to eat peanuts than the population of the whole world. Verily, great is the force of example."

An Uncommon Bankruptcy Case. A little boy applied to Gen. Clinton H. Fisk for capital to go into business. Amount wanted - 75 cents. Business — boot-blacking. Station — near Fulton Ferry, New York. Profits to be divided at the end of six months. The arrangement was made and the firm began business. One morning, however, the working party came into tle

"All up!" said the General, "what do you mean?" "Oh," replied the urchin, "the firm is busted."

"How is that?" was the inquiry.
"Well," said the boy, "I had $4.92 on hand; but yesterday a man came into our Sunday school and said we must give all our money to the missionary society, and I put it in-couldn t help it—and its all up with us." We have no doubt that the firm immediately resumed business again but it is the first partnership we ever heard of that has bursted in that way! Hence the sympathy.—National S. S. Teacher.

Yankee Economy.

Since the slaughter of cattle in this country for shipping to Europe has become a business, an industry has been established in Middletown, Conn., for the purpose of working up the large bones which are cut off with the feet. The bones are sawed up by machines particularly adopted to the purpose, the solid portions are made into buttons and knife-handles, the knucklejoints ground up, and with the dust from the saws, sold for a fertilizer, and the small pieces of the hard bone granulated and used by gun and tool manufacturers in case-hardening. The bones are used while fresh, as they soon begin to color, and articles made of the stained bone would not be marketable. The buttons, when made from the fresh bone, are whiter than ivory, and are sold under the name of "Sitka are sold under the name of ivory." This single establishment received from New York during 1880 no less than 1,200,000 ox shins, and tle demand has increased to such an extent that the price rose within a year from $21 to $32 per ton; and even at that latter price gives a handsome margin for the manufacturer.

To Keep Herbs.

When herbs are hung up to dry in loose bundles they soon loose their odor. They should be spread out, shaded from the sun, and when dried pressed together tightly and put into paper bags. It is a good plan to strip off the leaves, rub them fine, and put them into wide-mouthed bottles, labeled. Equal proportions of sweet mar-joram, tarragon, and sage, dried and rubbed together, and kept in a widcmouthed bottle, make a good seasoning. A few sweet herbs should have a place in every garden. Every cook and house-keeper knows the value of a little patch of herbs, upon which she makes daily drafts in summer, and which furnishes her with a nice collection of winter seasoning, without which Thanksgiving turkey would lose all flavor, while strong kinds are excellent for medicine.

Our Pacific Seal Skin Interest. An abstract of the preliminary report of a special agent of the United States Census Bureau, shows that the total seal skins and sea-otter skins taken on our Pacific coast during 1880 was about 160,000. Of sea-otter having an average value of $50 per skin, there were $500 captured in Alaska and 75 in California. Of the fur seal there was a total of 155,000 taken, of which 147,-000 were taken in Alaska, valued at $10 each; 6,000 in Washington Territory and 2,000 in California, valued at only $5 per skin. The total value in first hands is about $1,750,000. The total capital invested in the business. excepting Indian canoes and material. which no attempt was made to value, is about $750,000.

The Fool in Rubber.

"Those rubber garments are such a blessing!" remarked a fat man, as he brought into a street car a perfect deluge of water. The lady at his right. who modded one side of his coat with her costly dress, agreed with him perfectly, the man at his left, who caught about a pint of the drippings in his shoe, could scarcely conceal his admiration, while the young miss to whom the fat man gallantly offered his seat a few minutes later, went into perfect ecstasies as she sat down into a pool of water left on the seat.

"My wife, Maria, has astrayed or been stolen. Whoever returns her will let his head broken. As to trusting her, anybody can do so if they see fit; as I never pay my own debts, it's not likely I'll pay her'n." Such is the stirring pronunciamento of an Indian philosopher.

John Steffen, a Kansas youth who has been in the employ of B. H. Eaton, on the high line irrigating ditch, some ten miles south of Denver, was brought in yesterday in a fit of temporary insanity. It appears that in his occupation as teamster he had developed a sort of fondness for the span of mules he was driving, and about a month ago he quit work because he was given another team. He resumed a short time since on getting his old team. On Friday last one of the mules was put in another team, and thereupon Steffen was taken with a fit of melancholy which increased in extent till it resulted in total delirium. As they refused to leave the State they were confined in jail in South Bend to await a requisition, and will no doubt soon be brought to this county for trial.

For the better protection of the business part of town there ought to be a legally established fire limit within which the erection of no frame structure will be allowed: a thing that does not now exist here, and when once established to be rigidly enforced. There are some places either side of Front street that in dry weather are but little better than a powder house, and each of which, when once on fire, would seriously expose other more valuable property, and the object should be to rid the town of these places as fast as is practicable, and then not allow the same kind of tinder traps to replace them. Will the Common Council attend to this?

The above is the title of a book of about 150 pages, compiled by Frederick Morley, commisioner of immigration, and just issued from the press of the State printers. It is an exhaustive work, and the facts are gathering largely from State departments and statistics furnished by the most eminent authorities upon the subjects

In his introduction the commission er has given the following facts in regard to the extent of territory embraced in Michigan; its growth, industries agricultural productions, institutions, and means of transportation, as well as descriptions of its soil, climate, timber, financial condition, situation of its unoccupied lands, and a review of its general characteristics as a home:

The area of Michigan is 56,451 square miles, not quite 2,000 less than the area of England and Wales. It is 9,000 square miles larger than the State of New York, 10,000 larger than Pennsyl vania, 16,000 larger than Ohio, 23,000 larger than Indiana, and 1,000 larger than Illinois. The six New England States embrace an area not quite 12,-000 square miles larger than Michigan When admitted to the Union in 1837 its population was 174,467, and its rank among the 27 States was 23d. It now has 1,636,331, and ranks as the 9th among 38 States. It has a coast line of 1,600 miles, around which vessels of 2,000 tons may sail without losing

Michigan is bounded on the north by the largest body of fresh water in the world, on the west by the second largest, and excepting these there are no larger than that upon its eastern border. Its climate has no equal in the moderation of its temperature in any State or Territory of the same degree of latitude east of the Rocky moun tains. Most of the southern peninsula lies between the same lines of latitude as the State of New York. The shore line of the upper peninsula is mostly south of the latitude of Quebec, and no bandman, and can be purchased for pays in Michigan is evinced by the reports of the U.S. department of agriculture, which shows that in a series of five years previous to and including 1879, the average cash value per acre of eight leading productions of the farm, taking in 12 of the principal farming States of the Union was the greatest in Michigan. Seven-tenths of all the wheat raised in the country is grown in nine States, and only three excel Michigan. It is also one of the best fruit-producing States in the Union, and ranks among the highest in its yield of wool. Its principal products are staples for which there must be a constant and growing demand.

The number of farms in 1880 was 118,941, embracing 10,977,105 acres, of which 6:211,209 were improved. There were assessed for taxes in 1881, 29.-306,820 acres; the increase for 10 years being 42 per cent. The average size of the farms is a fraction over 92 acres, and a tenant farmer isscarcely known. As regards labor, any man with an honest desire to earn a living, and willing to render a fair days' work for fair wages, can always find something to do for which he will be well paid. The farms, the mines, the furnaces, lumber camps, mills, manufactories, and mechanic arts of the States, which are continually increasing in number and variety furnish a growing and diversified demand for labor, and there here as soon as anywhere else. The State is practically free from debt. Its public buildings are paid for, and the constitution prohibits it from borrowing money in excess of $50,000, except in time of war. The entire local indebtedness of its cities, villages, towns, counties and school districts, is less than $10,000,000. State taxes are low, and one-third of them all is applied to educational purposes The population shows 1,247,989 of. native birth and 388,846 of foreign birth. A large portion of this population came from New England, most of it from the rural counties of New York, and all bears the impress of genuine American thought and character, as is exhibited in the institutions of the State, the nature of its laws, and the ideas which control popular expressions. The process of assimilation has gone harmoniously forward, and there are no sectional or national distinctions between its citizens. Business and political successes are open alike to all, and even differences of languages are lost after the lapse of a generation. This may be ascribed largely to the school system, which makes education free to all. The primary interest to one seeking a home in a new country are given in this work telligible form, but are too extensive for reproduction in a newspaper article. It is doubtless the most reliable

These disclosures look dark, but when we consider that he formerly preached at Niles, his fall has not been so great after all.—Dowagiac Times.

CATSKILL, Dec., 1880. Messrs. Ely Bros., Druggists, Owego, N. Y.,: I have suffered for many years from chronic catarrh and tried a great number of remedies without any permanent relief; but some six weeks ago I was induced to try your "Cream Balm," and with the very best results Relief was almost instantaneous, and continued use has resulted in an almost complete cure. Therefore I take pleasure in recommending your Cream Balm to all who may be suffering as I was. S. M. Green, Book-Keeper, Office N. Y., Catskill & Athens Steam boat Co. Price 50 cents.

From all reports I hear Ely's Cream Balm, for Catarrh, Cold in the Head and Hay Fever, has great merit. We have customers who claim they were cured of catarrh by the Balm. SIBLEY, Druggist, Muskegon, Mich. Price 50 cents.

Beware of Alcoholic Bitters. Thousands have been ruined for life by drinking popular nostrums, the principal ingredient of which was alcohol Such "bitters" are deceptive in their effects; they cause intoxication and temporary relief, while they foster the drunkard's appetite. Dr. Kennedy's 'Favorite Remedy" does not heat and inflame the blood; it cools and purifies it. Better than this, even, it has cured many a raving appetite for drink. It will do you good, not evil, all the days of your life. All druggists sell it. Dr. David Kennedy, Proprietor, Rondout

THESUN NEW 10ak, 1882.

THE SUN for is-2 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, shining, as always, torall, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unhappy, kepublican and bemocratic, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. THE SUN'S light is for mankind and womankind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours tot discemfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked.

THE SUN of ISS was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multifinde of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting upon affairs with the tearle-saness of at solute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of The Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modeled after The Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of The Sun's example.

THE SUN of ISS2 will be the same outspoken, THE SUN for i8-2 will make its fitteenth an modified and bettered by the force of The Sun's example.

THE SUN of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and interesting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an abundant prosperity affords, we shall make it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it into readable shape, and measuring its importance not by the truditional yardstick, but by its real interest to the people. Distance from Printing House Square is not the first consideration with The Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the particulars, whether in Brooklyn or in Bokhara.

In polities we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secret of The Sun's political course.

THE WEEKLY S'N gathers into eight pages the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequaled merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence complete The Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the larmer's household that was ever printed.

Who does not know and read and like The Sunday Sun, each number of which is a Golconda of interesting literature, with the best poetry of the day, prose every line worth reading, news, humor—matter enough to fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more varied and entertaining than any book, big or little: If our idea of what a newspaper should be pleases you, send for THE SUN.

Our terms are as follows:

For the daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of The Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid.

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, mandrake, yellow deek, with the iodide of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most effectual alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so ences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula and all scrofulous diseases. Erysipelas, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Biotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Ricum, Scald-head, Ring-worm, Ulcers, Sores, Rhemmatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility. By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood and cause derangement and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give Ayer's SARSAPARILLA a fair trial.

It is folly to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures, of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. Ayen's Sarsapanilla is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been widely used for forty years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

STAMPEDE.-Last evening, while the Anthony & Ellis Uncle Tom's Cabin Company were performing in Peak Hall, in Niles, to a crowded house, the alarm of fire was sounded, and the usual scene of confusion followed. The cry of false alarm soon rang out, which had the effect to partially quiet the excitement, but it was not long before the alarm was renewed, and the general stampede followed, clearing the hall. The members of the troupe inform the RECORD that they knew of no one being seriously injured.

Ir there is one thing worse than another, it is the almost universal practice of parents lying to children to frighten them. Last evening we overheard a nearly full-grown girl fretting because she did not dare to go past the hearse house in the dusk, and the first thought was, what terrible liars her parents must be. Parents who cannot obtain obedience by other means than this should give up the management of their children to some one else who can, and if they must lie about spooks and hobgoblins do so to those who have arrived at an age to enable them to detect the foolishness, but speak the truth to children if to no one

BRIDGMAN ITEMS.

Dec. 12, 1881. The dedication of Olivet Congregational church of this place, on Tuesday last, was a very pleasant occasion. Although the furnishing of the house was not complete, the skill and kindness of friends found means to supply all needs. The presence of many citizens, some from a distance, manifested a gratifying interest in this first service of the kind in the town. The services were opened by the invocation, by Rev. M. M. Martin of Three Oaks, followed by reading of the Scriptures and prayer, by Rev. A. S. Wood of St. Joseph. The sermon was by Rev. Leroy Warren of Lansing, and the dedicatory prayer by Rev. Martin; benediction by Rev. James Webster. These services were alternated by appropriate music. A historical statement was given by A. S. Wight, showing that the cost of the building, including donations, has been $1.350, and there is no debt. Important aid, outside of home subscriptions, has been received from churches at Three Oaks, St. Joseph and Dowagiae; a chair for the pulpit, from Andrews & Co. of Chicago; Mr. J. Whitten of this place, built and donated a pulpit of elegant workmanship, valued at $75; Mr. J. D. Thompson, $100 in carpentry; siding, lath and ceiling, by Baumer & Co. The ladies' church social has furnished money for the purchase of 100 chairs. A Bible was the gift of a friend of Mrs. G. Bridgman. A pleasing occurrence was the unexpected presence of Rev. and Mrs. James Webster of Parma, Mich., well known in this community in former years. The last meeting of the ladies' church social, at the residence of Mrs. C. M. Smith, was practical, pleasant and successful. Friend Charlie seemed to enjoy it. The next will be at "Aunt

The Banker's Daughter. The public are under obligations to Mr. Freer, manager of Music Hall, for bringing to this city the best play that has ever been given here and the best company that has ever played here "The Banker's Daughter" was rendered in really elegant style by Collier's Combination, and from beginning to end the acting was pronounced capital and high-toned. Lillian was charmingly rendered by Miss Lizzie Hudson, and in the dramatic climaxes her acting was telling. John Strebelow is strong character, and was strongly taken by Mr. Collins, who made a de cided impression. Mr. Babbage and

Mr. Brown were capitally taken by Mr. Burnett, who brought out the fur of the character to perfection. West-brook by Nalod was good, and G. Washington Phipps, Wm. Wilson, gave us an insight into a new vein of fun The character was really rich, and the audience fairly roared. Walter Collies acted well as Routledge, especially in the duel scene, and Clarence Montaigue as the Count was powerful. The art-critic was well taken by Mr. Bankson, and Edna Bankson as the child Natalle, did some capital acting. Mrs. Bankson filled the part of the Aunt children, sold in this place by MRs. well. Mrs. Brown was rendered by WELCH. Get your little boy one for a Miss Gertie Malmene, and she was pi quant, and merry, and quite captivat Christmas present, and keep the little ing. American and English Flires. Apparently one of the most delightful certainly one of the most dangerous as well as the nost despicable occupations, is that silly waste of time and perilous playing with edged tools, called generally, "flirting." No country holds the monopoly of this questionable diver-

The following paragraph is from the eloquent Chalmers: About the time of the invention of the telescope another instrument was formed, which laid open a scheme no less wonderful, and rewarded the inquisitive spirit of man. This was the microscope. The one led me to see a system in the other lad me to see a system. in every star; the other led me to see a world in every atom. The one taught me that this mighty globe, with the whole burden of its people and its countries, is but a grain of sand of the high immensity; the other teaches me that every grain of sand may harbor within the tribes and families of a pusy population. One told the insignificance of the world I treed more, the other redeems world I tread upon; the other redeems it from all insignificance, for it tells me that in the leaves of every forest, and the waters of every rivulet there are worlds teeming with life, and numberless are the glories of the firmament. The one has suggested to me that, stove and beyond all that is visible to a man, there may be fields of creation that sweep immeasurably along, and carry the impress of the Almighty's hand to the remotest scenes of the universe; the other suggests to me that, within and beneath all that minuteness which the aided eye of man has been able to ex-plore, there may be a region of invisi-bles, and that, could we draw aside the mysterious curtain which shrouds it from our senses, we might see a theatre of as many wonders as astronomy has unfolded—a universe within a compass of a point so small as to include all the powers of the microscope, but where the wonder-working God finds room for the exercise of all the attributes, where he can raise another mechanism of worlds, and fill and animate them all with the evidence of his glory."

Wonders of the Creation.

The Etiology of Diphtheria.

Dr. Hubert Airy has made a report to the local government board of England, of the results of his investigations into several local outbreaks of diphtheria. The disease did not seem to be affected by elevation or dampness of site, nor by foulness nor over-crowding. He found abundant instances of its contagionsness, as in schools, from visits to the dwelling of a diphtheria patient, from making purchases at a shop where the shopwoman had diphtheritic sore throat. There was one striking case of the conveyance of diphtheria to a new locality, by a person who had been in contact with a diphtheria patient, but had not herself contracted the disease. This would show that the poison can attach itself to the person or clothes of a visitor or occasional attendant, and be thus transported for some distance. Dr. Airy concludes that diphtheria is caused by an organism which can multiply both within and without the human body, its increase in the latter case being promoted by clay soils, by the season, and by moisture. It is also capable of infecting both water and milk and seems to flourish best in the autumn months.

The Conductor.

[Philadelphia Ledger.] What an alert type of men the conductors on the steam silroads are! Probably the engineers are also, but there is no good chance to get a look at them while they have their hands on the levers, and their eyes peering along the line of track as far as keen vision can reach. But the conductor is all alive under his quiet and impassive exterior. There is little in his car he does not see, even while his whole attention appears to be concentrated by the ticket he holds in one hand to be cut by the punch in the other. And there is nothhe does not hear and understand down to the most needless question. Amid the clangor of the swift moving train, the slightest unusual noise or jar about the running gear tells its story to his acutely educated ear and quickened senses. And if anything is wrong, or suspected to be wrong, how promptly, yet how quietly, with what perfect freedom from fuss, or anything approaching flurry or panic, he moves toward the right place. He is the very embodiment of self-poised qui viue. What soldiers these men would make!

Ambition in Life.

That life is a poor one which is without ambition-which has no object to work for, no height to strive to reach, A person may be good and kindhearted while willing to live in idle ignorance, and let the world go on growing in wealth and wisdom, without his taking an active part and interest in its onward movements. He may be good, but most certainly he is dull of mind and sluggish of body. No individual destitute of ambition will make his mark in the world. He will come and go; few will note his coming, and few will grieve at his going. Ambition it is that gives to men the will and energy and the deter-mination to accomplish great things.

Who Will Follow? [Literary World.]

Longfellow, Emerson, Whittier, Holmes, Lowell—what are we to do for authors when these are gone? Who is in the succession? On whom will their mantles fall? These questions are often asked in a despondent tone, as if American literature were to die with these For one answer to them, it is enough to ask whether American literature died with Irving, and Cooper, and Poe? And if this is not enough, other answers are by no means wanting. One such other is that in literature achievement is seldom repeated, and, therefore, fame is seldom duplicated. There has been but one Homer, one Dante, one Chauncer, one Spenser, one Shakespeare, one Milton. Each individual genius makes his own mark in his own place, and passes away. No one copies it. He who attempts to copy it proves himself not a genius. It is not to be desired, that we should have new Longfellows, Emersons, Whittiers, Lowells, Holmeses. We do not want their sacred touch to become a common performance. Their followers must strike new paths for themselves.

There is another thought. Great fames may be rising around us which we are too near to measure. The older generation of American authors, of which Bryant was one, have been before us so long as to become invested with some shadowy grandeur of the historic personage. The present public has grown up, as it were, into their presence. It found them in possession of the field. They were already of the past, and the past is venerable. They were before the war, and the war has were before the war, and the war has shoved the years that preceded it back into an honorable antiquity. Ours is a new era. It cannot yet be that the men who belong to the new era should seem to be of the same stature with the men of the old. They are too near us. We touch them daily. They are bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. But for the generation which shall come after, they may be looming up into the proportions which other figures wear to-day. They have not yet assumed the historical perspective those lines alone determine

But there is another thought still. We shall never know, as a wise and thoughtful scholar said to us the other day, how much the civil war decimated our literary ranks. Ours is a thinned out generation. We are the one-armed soldier. Our best members are missing. Poets, essayists, historians, philosophers, in the embryo, highest promises of future performance were cut down in-the days of 1861-65. We shall never know what American literature lost in the losses of those terrible years. Perhaps there must be an interregnum of mediocrity until the youth of to-day have attained their capacity of to-mor-

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so, said the friend. "How," inquired the lady. "By using Hop Bitter, that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe." Read of it.

Longfellow is threatened with the growth of a cancer in his face.

hearts and idle heads—this flinging of stones and arrows at a living mark, which if sport to the one, is often death to the other, and both sexes sin alike in about equal proportions. Male flirts, who do all but make the decisive offer, are matched with female coquettes, who lead men on to the conclusive confession, only to turn round blankly and say:
"No, I never meant it." Jocondo has Jocrisse, Don Juan "her frolic Grace," as their several counterparts and foils; and when these meet those no harm is and when these meet those no harm is done; for the heartlessness of the one is well matched by the heartlessness of the other, and diamond cut diamond in the most approved fashion.

This kind of open flirting exists only in England and America, where the women, more especially the unmarried girls are free. Even where flirting is girls, are free. Even where flirting is allowed to the married—as in the Southern nations, where the girls are kept alone prisoners, and only their mothers may move in liberty—even then, when the mother is forty, no such open and confessed flirtations go on in society as do in the two great English-speaking coun-tries. Whether the result is favorable to manners, and even morals, or the contrary, is a question on which there is much to be said. One thing we can all see, and that is the greater boldness of manners which this modern freedom of habits has induced in both English and Americans, and because the scale of that freedom is so much higher with the latter than the former, the consequent increase of boldness in the children of our cousin. American men and American women are perhaps the boldest and most uncompromising flirts in the world. It must needs be so in a society which banishes mothers as superfluous, old ladies as nuisances, and any kind of chaperonage as an infringe ment of the glorious transatlantic birth-right and an insult to human nature. We do not say for a moment that this unchecked, uncontrolled intercourse between the young men and women in America leads to grave mischances; but we do say that it leads to an organized system and recognized tone of flirting which strikes us, used to more reticence and less freedom, as odd, to say the least of it, and essentially "bad form," as the youth of the day would call it. If an Englishman were to permit himself to say to a single favored one anything like what any American man would say to any girl whatsoever with whom he might converse, society would mark him as dangerous, and careful mothers would keep their daughters out of his way, as watch-dogs guarding the lambs from prowling wolves. But the American girl would and does think nothing of it. She is used to close sailing, and gives as she takes. She has made one of a party of youths and maidens who meet up in the mountains for a summer, and who pair day after day and far into the night, among the lonely valleys and in the dusky glades of the silent forest, thinking at think of it and not supposed that ing nothing of it and not supposing that anyone else will think more than she does. She has been used to being taken to dancing parties by the young man of the hour, who calls for Wer and is her "friend" for the occasion. The mother does not go, and the girl is confined to the care of her male chaperon without hesitation or repugnance.-London

A Well Always Full of Ice. About half a mile from Brownsville, Minn., is the natural ice well. On visiting it we found a shaft about twenty feet deep, and we could plainly see ice upon it. We then visited a shaft a few feet distant, and immediately upon entering it a cloud of steam, caused by the cold air coming in contact with our heated bodies, rushed forth. This shaft was excavated for the purpose of ascertaining, if possible, the cause of the ice forming in the well, some of the inhabitants believing in the theory of a large cave being connected with it. After reaching the depth of 180 feet without result, drifting was abandoned. Before the shaft was made it is claimed that the well filled with ice to within six feet of the top. A thermometer marked 30 degrees Fahrenheit. About six feet back from the mouth of the tunnel the floor and sides are in many places covered with ice. A strong current of air constantly flows from the excavation that is very preceptible 100 feet distant. With the thermometor at 90 degrees an

Surgeon. Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abram Ellswor h, of Port Ewen, Ulster county, N.Y., had realized this truth. His disease involve I the whole of his thigh-bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb-asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who was con-sulted, held a different opinion, and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood Specific FAVORITE REMEDY to afford tone and strength to the system, prevent the return of the disease, and system, prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Ellsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This geutleman's disease was the ofispring of foul blood, and Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Very Good Except at Home. Concerning a very disagreeable old person who may have done his best to be a Christian, but who does not seem to have made a success of it, the Constitutionalist remarks: "He was cross and fretful at home. He was a terror to his wife and children; still he was a deacon and a 'pillar' in the church. Yet the was by no means wholly bad. On the other hand, he was very good every-where except at home—home, of all the places in the world the very place which should be a little heaven below. And, worst of all, he was typical, to a certain extent, of a great many men who, though not so bad as he, nevertheless

The Man with the Flail. Detroit Free Press. It carried the beholder back to thirty years ago, when the thrashing-machine was heard only at rare intervals, and the honest farmer spread his golden stalks on the clean barn floor and flailed away with such tempered blows that not a kernel was broken. The man who had it sat down on one of the benches in the West Circus Park. The rare sight of such an article halted every pedestrian, and the man had to keep explaining over

"Well' I'll have some beans to shell

"I handled that for over ten years," he said, as he picked it up and spit on his hands. "Seems like old times to get hold of this hickory again." He stepped out one side to give the crowd an exhibition on the grass, and his success was great. At the second blow the flail end hesitated in mid-air, wobbled about and finally came down with a whack on the patriot's head, making him see more stars than a winter's night ever brought out. He dropped the weapon with the remark that he was already ten minutes late in keeping an appointment, and he was rubbing his skull as far down the street as he could
