During this time nothing has been spared to make the Berrien County Abstract Office all that an abstract office should be, and the reputation it now enjoys as trustworthy authority in all matters touching realty interests, is sufficient proof of its success.

Careful buyers no longer accept as satisfactory the "IT'S ALL RIGHT" of the would-be seller, for experience teaches that nothing is easier than to be mistaken, and without an abstract one cannot know what errors have been made, and responsible sellers are equally careful, for one cannot safely warrant a title without a knowledge of its history.

AN ODDITY. It was toward the close of a pleasant June day, and on the piazza of the Langtry hotel stood a group of people waiting for the afternoon stage. One. a fashionably-attired young lady with a cold, passive face, appeared anxious and a trifle impatient as the moments passed. "Do you think she will come, Miss

"Rose Elton? On most likely," re-"I do hope so," said another one of this novelty." Sara Talmage smiled, and turned her eyes to the road again. The stage was just appearing over the brow of a distant hill, and soon after the panting horses with the lumbering vehicle behind them drew up in front of the "Langtry." Three people alighted; an old lady who had come to the mountains for her health, and her companion; and following them, a tall, hand-

Sara seized the young man as he ascended the piazza steps, and drew him "Frank, didn't she come?" she asked. Frank shook his head.

"Nor send a letter?" "Yes, here it is." He handed her the square, white pistle, superscribed in a pretty, running hand, and then sauntered away, while Sara hastened to her apartment to read the letter, which was very brief, unlike those which Rose usually sent,

"DEAR SARA:-I am sorry to disappoint you, but I cannot come to the mountains this summer. Circumstances alter cases, you know, and circumstances with which you are probably acquainted alter this case considerably. Thanks for your kind invitation, how-Yours truly,
"Rose Elton"

Miss Talmage read it over several times, and her smooth brow puckered into numerous wrinkles. What did Rose mean? It was a puzzling letter, truly, and sounded a trifle spiteful, so stand it at all. But Rose always was a conundrum, and this is her latest and oddest freak." The wrinkles were still perceptible

No, Rose isn't coming. Don't ask me any more." one knew that Rose Elton had not arrived; she was not coming at all that summer; they would lose their novelty; and all were sorry. No, not all. Frank Talmage was glad, exceedingly glad. His sister had said enough for him to know that this novelty was coming particularly for his benefit; he was expected to entertain her, and he disliked "odd-sticks." So he whistled a gay air, thanked his lucky stars that Rose Elements of the little with the start of the little with the littl ton stayed at home, and felt a little the Swiss clock, where she would be sure to see it upon her return.

"From Sara!" Rose cried, the moment her eyes fell upon it. Then, without removing her out-door wraps, she sat down by the window and perused its contents. Mrs. Elton looked up at her as she sat there; the letter was coming here next Friday. I have aroused the boarders' curiosity, and you don't know how anxious they are to see her. She will afford us a deal of amusement this summer, with her queer ways, and arch, innocent speeches; but, dear me, one needs something to amuse them in this dull place. That is one reason I invited her; another, rhich must remain a secré you and me, is on account of Frank. She is wealthy, you know, and would

"When will you go?" "Next Friday; the same day I in-am all ready, you know." So Rose wrote the letter that seemed such an enigma to Sara, and dispatched it. Short as it was, it took her a long time to accomplish it, for the tears would fall from the long lashes and blind her so she could scarcely see the lines. But on the following day she started for her aunt's country resi-

"Mary, what do you say about our taking a summer boarder?" Rose and her aunt looked up at the speaker in surprise.

"Well," replied Uncle John, "there's a young man, a friend of Mr. Bradley's, who wants to procure board somewhere in this neighborhood; and as Mr. Bradley's rooms are all taken, he asked me if I'd accommodate him.

"And he's a nice young man." "Perhaps." "And would be good company for "My niece, Rose Elton, Mr. Talmage." They looked at each other, bowed, and looked at each other again; and during the meal there were furtive glances cast across the table, and Rose fancied she saw a merry twinkle in Frank Talmage's blue eyes, and a covet smile half hid under the brown rooms, they each made a mental estimate of the other. "And she is the oddity, Rose Elton!" reflected Frank. "Well, she certainly does differ from the majority of her sex; but I like her, I do, indeed. What would Sara say if she knew of this? but she shall not know yet awhile. And to think I should have wished to avoid this charming girl. Well, well, after all, Frank Talmage, you've not escaped

The days passed by, and Rose discovered that the summer boarder was really an agreeable person; while he, in turn, confessed that, although he had an antipathy to "odd-sticks," he certainly made an exception of this one. She was so piquant and artless; to her power, and fell desperately in love with her. Uncle John and Aunt Mary cast significant glances at each other: they understood it all, and prophesied how it would end.

And she spoke true; for in the following September the marriage bells chimed loud and clear for the union of Frank Talmage and Rose Elton. **** **** **** It was the second week of September, and the majority of the boarders at the "Langtry" had departed for their city homes. A few lingered, however, and among these was Sara Talmage. She stood upon the piazza one afternoon, and waited as she had done three months before, for the evening stage to arrive. She had received a letter from her brother, apprising her of his coming, but no mention was made of Rose. Accordingly, when the stage door opened, and Frank stepped out, accompanied by a pretty, smiling young girl, Sara was greatly surprised. A second glance told her who the girl was, and a slight blush dyed her usually colorless face, for she had learned of the mistake she had made in regard

It is seldom that a bill introduced into the Legislature has within it the key to a romance, but such a one is that presented by Assemblyman Farrar, of Onondaga, providing that the marriage of Daniel Walrath to Emma A. Sawyer be declared null and void. The story of the marriage, which is thus sought to be set aside, is a strange one. Mrs. Walrath lived at Chittenango, and she and the man to whom she is wedded were schoolmates and playfellows. As they grew older, they kept company with each other to some extent although Mrs. Sawyer objected to her daughter seeing much of Walrath One evening he called upon the girl when she was alone, and without any preamble invited her to walk to Minister Irwin's house and be married. Miss Sawyer demurred at first, but

Training Vicious Horses. A new and very simple method of training vicious horses was exhibited in West Philadelphia recently, and the manner in which some of the wildest horses were subdued was astonishing. The first trial was that of a kicking or "bucking" mare, which her owner said had allowed no rider on her back for a period of at least five years. She became tame in about as many minutes, and allowed herself to be ridden about without a sign of her former wildness. The means by which the result was accomplished was by a piece of light rope which was passed around the front jaw of the mare just above the upper teeth, crossed in her mouth, and thence secured back of her neck. It was claimed that no horse will kick or jump when thus secured, and that a horse after receiving this treatment a few times, will abondon his vicious ways forever. A very simple method was also shown by which a kicking horse could be shod. It consisted in connecting the animal's head and tail by means of a rope fastened to the tail and then to a bit and then drawn tightly enough to incline the animal's head to one side. This, it is claimed, makes it absolutely impossible for the horse to kick on the side of the rope. At the same exhibition a horse which for many years had to be bound on the ground to be shod suffered the blacksmith to operate on him without at-

moved to another place outside of the city. When the location of the graveyard was changed all of the graves were opened and the remains taken up and again interred in their new resting place. We say all the graves, yet they were really probably not all found, for the reason that some paupers had been buried there, and as no stone or mound had been erected above their graves, the elements had so obliterated all traces of them that many of them could not be found. Hence it was that years after, when the old graveyard was used as building sites, that in digging the cellar to these residences the workmen frequently came across the bones of some of the original occupants of the soil. No attention was paid to these ashes and they were thrown out to decay. Recently, however, there have occurred some most mysterious transactions and noises in the houses located in this former home of the dead. Strange sounds and strikings would be heard in broad daylight as well as at night under cover of darkness. These noises would sound as though in the same room as the occupant, yet nothing could be seen, and the closest inspection revealed nothing. Sometimes these noises would sound like the fluttering of a bird about the room, yet nothing could be seen; again, other times there would occui sounds as of a person digging a grave—the sound of the spade in the gravel could be heard, the creaking of the coffin as it was lowered, the sobbing of friends around the open grave, the dull, heavy thud of soil falling in, then all would be brought, but the mysterious proceedings would still continue. At first the residents were much annoved and frighened by them, several families selling out at a great loss in order to rid themselves of the annoyance: yet those who remained have become so used to them now that they pay no attention to them. These antics do not occur at regular intervals, however, as sometimes months elapse between these manifestations. The residents are unable to account for them. Some persons have spent months trying to discover, if possible, the true source from which these sounds come, but all to no purpose. Spiritualists say that they are the spirits of the persons whose bones were disturbed and left to decay above ground, coming back to remonstrate against such unchristian-like treatment, but, as none of the persons in whose houses these manifestations have occurred are spiritualists, this theory is not readily accepted by them, and each day the mystery still deepens. The noises are heard most frequently at the residence of F. W. Clapp, a lawyer of this city, but are not entirely confined to his house, and have been heard in several other houses in that vicinity. Night before last one of the parties who lives on the street was annoyed by knockings nearly all night, the rappings coming thick and fast, like paddies to a wake. At times the noise would seem to be directly over the bed in the ceiling of the room, then again in the walls on the sides, and from these places often changing to the head of the bedstead and then back again. A lamp was lighted and a search instituted, but all to no purpose, as meanwhile the racket went on as before. Several who some of the sleepers would be roughly shaken, and continued rappings would be heard upon the head-board, sometimes soft, sometimes loud, and often rapid and then again slower. A light

Mr. Jones was passing a dry goods store the other day when he saw his wife standing near a counter, and the idea occurred to him to give her a little start, so he walked boldly in and as she she stood with her back to him gave her a rousing slap on the shoulder. The effect was not exactly what he anticipated, there was a hollow renverbating sound like the vibrations of a smoke stack, the elegant bonnet which looked so familiar to him fell off, and a headless woman stood before Jones, who realized the fact that he had taken the store dummy for his wife. There was considerable audible mirth as he silently retreated, wondering how two women could look so much alike. But he did not say anything sections of this country are paying more attention to pasture for hogs now than heretofore. One who has given the subject no little study, and tried various experiments in that behalf says that there is no question about green oats and peas being a most appropriate food for pigs, and that it comes at the very season when pasture is apt to be short. Corn being the almost universal fattening food for hogs in the west after cold weather arrives, it is very important that the summer food of pigs should be more nirogenous and better adapted to the development of muscle and bone than corn. The pea is very rich in muscle and bonebuilding elements, and oats are also superior to corn in this respect. The oats, also, assist in holding up the peavine, so as to prevent early lodging, and thus cause it to retain its succulence longer. The crop should be sown in the proportion of two bushels of of peas and one of oats per acre, and of the crop. The succulent pea-vine is

About New Zealand. The furniture made in New Zealand is said to be very beautiful. It is made of the mottled kauri wood, and is artistically designed. New Zealand produces the finest wood in the world, and manufactures some of it. The cheif imports from this country are hardware, edge tools, and agricultural implements; tobacco, canned fruit, and wooden ware, including wagons and carriages. The inhabitants have a par-tiality for American watches, but do not take to American whisky. The only article sent from New Zealand to this country is kauri gum, which is largely used in the manufacture of varnish. One firm, which ships direct to the United States, send four or five times a year cargoes worth $100,000 each. The gum is very transparent one can see through a block of it a foot in thickness. It has the appearance of amber, and is found about the roots of the kauri trees. The natives make very artistic figures of their gods with this gum, carving heads and busts of Such a reduction in a national debt as has been made in this country since 1865 has never before been known in the history of the world. The total reduction in that time has been $1,-054,956,414, besides a reduction in annual interest charge of $92,987,610.

The first shot of what has the appearance of being a second 1877 strike was fired at Brighton, Ill., June 1, by a mob of strikers who attacked a train on the Chicago, Alton & St. Louis 10ad, that was taking a gang of dock laborers to their homes. As usual the striking mob is composed entirely of Union men, who have taken it into their minds to create a disturbance, notwithstanding the fact that those of them who ever work at all were getting good wages. And as was the case in 1877, the leaders are a set of roughs who do not deserve the name of workingmen. Judge Pillsbury was seriously wounded in the affray.

The test case of the Pond liquor tax law in Ohio has just come to a decision in the Supreme Court of that State, and it has been decided unconstitutional, as the constitution prohibits the licensing of the traffic, and that the tax is a license. The law is essentially the same as the Michigan' law, and there is now some talk among liquor men of an attempt to bring about the same state of affairs, but so long as the court of this State decided in 1875 that a tax is not a license, that the make-up of the court is the same now as then, and that the clause in our constitution prohibiting the licensing of liquor selling has been repealed, there appears but little ground for hope for the dealers.

THE Berrien Springs Journal thinks that the man to beat Burrows must be some one who can carry the opposition, which means that it must be some man who is a greenbacker to a greenbacker; a hard money man, to that wing of the Democracy; white to a black man, black to a white man, and have as many sides as a round lamp post. Anything to beat the Republican nominee. That would be good engineering, truly.

The First Trouble.

When the strike which began on the 1st instant was threatened, this paper expressed a belief that once begun it would be followed by serious disorders. This has been verified much sooner than we expected. On the evening of June 1, while 20 non-union men (some colored) employed by the Joliet iron and steel works were en route from Chicago to Joliet, the train was stopped and 50 strikers and friends surrounded the train; five jumped upon the engine, and present-ing revolvers at the heads of the engineer and fireman, prevented them from starting the train. Another de-tachment pulled all the workmen out of the train they could recognize, including half a dozen colored men and one white. The crowd outside beat, kicked and stamped on them, injuring them severely.

It is not fair to say that these are the natural result of strikes, but they are the natural result of trades-unionism as taught in some parts of the country.

2. Being in it we own the exclusive right to work in it. 3. No person shall come in unless he belongs to our association. 4. No person shall be put out without the consent of our association. 5. When we disagree with our employers and quit work, we continue to own the exclusive right to do all the laboring in this mill. 6. Whoever comes to work in our places is a trespasser. He is doing us a voluntary wrong. He is robbing us of our labor.

7. Therefore, we have a right to beat iim and drive him off. That is a plain way of putting a palpable fact. It is needless to say the non-union men have as much stomach to fill and as many families to feed as the union men have. And if they desire to work in the places of the union men they have a right to do so, which only reckless lawlessness will interfere with.—Post & Tribune.

Mr. Burrows Stirs Them Up.

WASHINGTON, June 3.-In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Burrows of Michigan took up the castigation of

job yesterday, and finished it in an able and masterly style. The House met this morning, all prepared and ready to continue the "firing out" process which they have so busily attended to for weeks past. Mr. Lowe first took the floor and delivered a long and carefully prepared speech in his own be After he had concluded, Mr. Burrows took the floor. The members. knowing his ability as a speaker, and aware of the fact that when he speaks he always says something, crowded around his desk in anticipation of something interesting. Mr. Burrows as a speaker and a defender of his party was at his best to-day. He commenced by severely criticising the action of the Democrats, and said that the 47th Congress would pass to history as one in which the Democratic minority sought by every means possible to resist the power organization of the House and the seating of members who were legally elected and as a Congress that sought by means, hitherto unheard of and unemployed in parliamentary practice, to prevent the House from being judge of the qualifications and election of its own members. Turning to the Democratic side he told them that it looked to him like a regularly organized effort on the part of the Democrats, under the leadership of Mr. Randall, to prevent the unseating of southern Democrats, without any reference to the manner in which they were elected. He said it looked to him, and to other members on the Republican side, as if northern Democrats realized that without a solid south they could do nothing, and they well knew that a solid south could not be secured with anything like honesty at the polls. He then proceeded to read with good effect extracts from papers in the south, in which Democrats of the House were entreated and commanded to do everything in their power to prevent the unseating of men who were never elected. "This is the true cause of the present struggle, said Mr. Burrows. "This is the order that has gone forth to Democratic members. If it is not complied with the party in the south would be weakened, and if northern Democrats do not stand shoulder to shoulder with their southern brethren the bottom would be knocked out of their cause altogether." Mr. Burrows' peroration was very fine, and when he sat down he received hearty applause aud the congratula tions of the entire Republican side of the House. His conclusion was as folthe Berrien Springs people who want lows: "We want an honest ballot and to go to Chicago on the Accom- a fair count. The republic could withstand the shock of revolution. -Muskegon Chronicle.

A man named Bye, living near Cass City, Tuscola county, was routed out of his house one night this week, chased into the woods, captured, tied to a tree and severely horsewhipped. His neighbors did it as a slight token of their appreciation of his habit of beating his wife.—Evening News.

The Berrien County Record: Buchanan,

Just before the afternoon performance of Forepaugh's show in Lansing, last Friday, the keeper went into the lion's den to clean it out, when the beast attacked him, fastening his teeth into the man's arm. After trying all other available means to loosen the grip, the other attachees of the show commenced firing on his lionship, and at five shots killed him. They then pried his jaws apart and released the victim. As soon as the skin could be removed the other animals were treated to a feast of fresh lion steak.

The Brooklyn correspondent of the Jackson Citizen says: "Mrs. O. Phelps, of this township, has finished a fine log cabin quilt made of silk and worsted. The quilt contains 2,628 pieces, and Mrs. Phelps, who is 67 years old, made and bound it in eight days. Who can beat that?"

Mr. Woodward, aged 50, living near Midland, cut one of his legs with a scythe when a boy, and the wound healed perfectly to all appearance. But not long ago, nearly forty years after the accident, the old sore began to pain him, inflammation set in, and he is to have the leg amputated to save his life.—Jackson Patriot.

Deservedly Popular.

It is only a few days since the news flashed over the wires announcing the laying of the last rail on the Denver extention of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, and the reception it has met at the hands of press and people seems a fair criterion of the immense popularity justly enjoyed by this giant corporation. This wonderous popularity of the great Burlington Route has been fairly earned and acquired, and in the records of railway progress and improvement during the past fifteen years it stands at the head. Among the most valuable of modern appliances and comfortable devices to render life on the rail an enjoyable luxury a large number originated or have been first in use at the C. B. & Q. headquarters, the management having always exercised the most painstaking carefulness to guard even the minor details in all that could tend to make travel over the lines safe, swift and luxurious, the facilities provided representing all the latest developments of science and industry and the teachings of experience. To the tidy and clean sixteen wheel sleepers, the dining cars, with tables groaning under every procurable delicacy, the parlor cars richly and tastefully furnished have been added an elegant system of smoking cars for exclusive use of firstclass passengers and the state-room car, most brilliant gem of them all, giving absolute privacy and special accommodations for ladies or parties traveling together; all of which combine into their construction every point of detail and minutia calculated to increase the comfort of the passenger and surround him with the luxuries of home life.

The construction of the new Denver extention adds also to the of the most remarkable feats of railway building, a distance of 213 miles having been covered in 219 working days, from August to May, including, of course, the winter months.

The traveling public, prompt to recognize merit, are awaiting with impatience the day when the C., B. & Q. coaches will carry them through from the Lakes to the Rockies.

Everybody Going to Dowagiac To see the Handsomest Woman in the World, and 22 Performing Elephants 1,000 Wild Beasts, Colossal Circus in Two Rings, and Grand free Procession of Industry at Downgiac. The Great Forepaugh Show exhibits at Dowagiac, Monday, June 12. In addition to a grandly great circus in two great rings, and a monster menagerie of 1,000 wild beasts, all transported by four great railway trains, there is to be a great, grand, free Procession on the day Forepaugh exhibits there. Every town in this county will be represented in this huge, highway holiday parade. In addition to this, the great pageants of "Cleopatra" and "Lalla Rookh" will be presented in the show parade. This latter spectacle is described as being the most gorgeous ever seen upon the streets of an American city. The loveliest lady in the land has been secured to personify the beautiful Eastern Princess, Lalla Rookh, whom poets describe as "more beautiful then any of those heroines whose names and loves embellish the songs of Persia and Hindostan; more perfect than the divinest images of the House of Azor." In this gorgeous, glit-tering, oriental pageant, Lalla Rookh is seen reclining in her sumptuous howdah, borne aloft upon the back of a ponderous and kingly elephant, the largest on this continent, whose embroidered velvet trappings touch the ground; a fair young female slave sits fanning the Princess through the rosecolored veils, with feathers of arguspheasant's wings, and the lovely troupe of Tartarian and Cashmerean maids of honor ride upon each side of the Princess upon small Arabian horses. Rajahs and Mogul Lords follow, accompanied by Cavaliers in costly armor, mounted upon Steeds with their housings of rich silver spun, Their chains and poitrels glittering in the sun And Camels, tufted o'er with Yemen's shells

Shaking in every breeze their light-toned In keeping with the author of Lalla Rookh's description of this grand, glittering, lavish and luxurious spectacle are seen the Guards of the Great Keder Kahn, with their silver battle-axes, and maces of gold, followed by the Great Nazir, or Chamberlian of the Harem and the retinue of the Court of Delhi mounted upon elephants, camels and Arabian horses, decorated in oriental trappings, and bearing aloft the royal standards,—the entire scene recalling to the beholder the glories and the grandeur of the distant Indies; the whole forming the most magnificent, picturesque and realistic oriental spec tacle ever presented in the New World requiring the expenditure of a hundred thousand dollars in its preparation, eclipsing all displays of pageantry ever produced by any exhibition, and in tself worth miles of travel to behold Remember, this superb spectacle is presented daily, between the hours of 9 and 10 A. M., and is a great, grand, gorgeous, free public festival for all to look at and admire.

PHUN AND PHYSIC.

A farmer who had some cider to sell was pricing teas and found that they had risen several cents a pound. "What's made tea riz?" said he. "Scarcity of tea chests," said the merchant. However, he agreed to take some to be paid for in cider. "How much's your cid asked the merchant. "Twenty cents." "Twenty cents!" cried the merchant. "What are you asking such a price as that for?" "Cause bung-holes is scurce," said the farmer. Linked Together.

The party will leave Buchanan on the St. Joseph Valley railroad at 7 a.m. for Berrien Springs, thence by steamer May Graham to Benton Harbor, returning next day. Tickets for the round trip, $1.

LAST summer, while N. L. Williams & Co., were at work on the narrow gauge railroad grade, A. L. Williams tried to arrange some method of keeping dirt from tumbling out of the wheel scrapers while being drawn, but failed, and gave it up for a bad job. Mr. W. H. Talbot then tried his hand at it, and succeeded in making an automatic end-gate that works nicely, and applied for a patent, but Williams entered a cross claim as first inventar, and did his best to beat Mr. Talbot out of the fruits of his labor, hut has made a miserable failure of this as he did of his inventing. Mr. Talbot has recently been informed that his patent has been granted. His invention is a good one, and we hope to see him receive a good benefit for it.

THE schools in this place close to-day for the long summer vacation. The graduating class contains but two members, Miss Mattie Smith and Miss Anna Estes. The graduating exercises will be held in Rough's Opera House this evening, and instead of the usual reception, the graduates will give a picnic on Batchelor's Island, to-morrow. The company will be taken to opposite the Island by the narrow gauge railroad, and ferried across by the new pleasure steamer. The fare for the round trip will be 25 cents. Tickets are now on sale at the bank.

THE marriage of Miss H. May Jakways, daughter of the M. E. Pastor, Mattawan, and O. E. Hawthorn, agent and operator at Vermontville, was solemnized on Wednesday, the 7th inst., at 10 o'clock A. M., the Rev. W. L. Jakways officiating. A large number of relatives and friends of the parties were present. The bride was elegantly attired in ashes of roses poplin, trimmed in lace, and looked charming and happy. They were the recipients of numerous beautiful presents, including an elegant set of silver knives and forks, presented by the Mattawan M. E. choir, of which Miss Jakways has been organist during the past year. The happy couple took the 11:43 train east, on Thursday, en route for Vermontville, where they begin housekeeping immediately. (Cassopolis papers please copy.)

ONE of the largest gatherings of Masons ever held in Buchanan was here on Monday evening. Members were present from Niles, Three Oaks Berrien Springs, New Carlisle, St. Joseph and other places, to the number of about 150, who came to see Summit Lodge No. 192 work in the third degree, the "victim" being Geo. W. Rough, our popular County Treasurer. After the Lodge closed, all repaired to Kinyon's hall, where the members of Summit Lodge, with the assistance of their ladies, had prepared a supper. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion, and the three tables extending the whole length of the room were filled with all that the appetite could desire. Here a short time was spent, when all dispersed, highly pleased with their evening's entertainment.

County Court.

The Circuit Court convened on Monday, Judge Smith presiding. The first case on the calendar was the People vs. Simon Van Sickle, charged with bigamy. No prosecuting witness appearing the accused was dis-charged, after being confined in the county jail for near two hundred days. The case of Frederick Smith, charged with sheep killing, was laid until Lena Foreman, a kleptomaniac, from Benton Harbor, one of Cush Burr's charges, plead guilty to the charge of grand larceny. Chas. Drew, charged with assault with intent to commit rape, gave an increased bail in the sum of $2,000, and had his trial postponed until next term. The prosecuting witnesses in this case were also held in the sums of $500 and $200 respectively for their The following cases were continued: Ed. Statterly vs. H. A. Chapin, assump-

[Berrien Springs Era.] Officer Cush Burr brought to the county jail on Monday two negro girls from Benton Harbor, charged with robbing a man named Wm. Bradley of $68. The court is at a loss to know what to do with these female minor criminals, there being no penal institution in this State where they can be sent to, and they either have to be sent to the county jail and kept at the expense of the tax-payers, or turned loose upon the community to continue their evil ways. This state of things should occupy the attention of our State Legislature.

[Berrien Springs Journal.] In accordance with the new appropriation bill, St. Joseph receives $12,-000 for the improvement of her harbor; New Buffalo, $5,000; South Haven, $7,000, and Michigan City $80,000.... According to the Steuben (Ind.) Republican, excitement exists across Indiana State line over a proposition to change the boundary between that State and Michigan so as to give the latter a strip of territory about 4½ miles wide. The Berrien County Record: Buchanan,

The Pioneer Association of Berrien County held their annual meeting in Barnard's grove in Berrien Springs yesterday. A finer day for such a gathering could hardly have been made to order. It was a bright, clear day, and cool enough for greatest comfort. There was as large a gathering of people from all parts of this county and Cass as has ever been in attendance at the meeting of the Association, the number being variously estimated from 8,000 to 12,000 people. The following J. M. RUSSELL, Marshal. business was transacted by the Association: The meeting was called to order by Vice President Chas. F. Howe. Cogshall, and an essay by Mrs. S. Parks of Pipestone. A number of old settlers were then called upon to relate their experience, which was followed by music by the glee club and band, when the Association adjourned.

Sunday School Association.

At a meeting of Sunday School workers, held in the Oak Street Advent church Tuesday, June 6, a Township Sunday School Association was organized, with the following officers: President, W.A. Severson; Vice President, A. Richards; Secretary, Mrs. S. Whitman; Treasurer, L. Fairbanks.

After the business incidental to the organization, the audience was highly entertained by addresses by E.K. Warren of Three Oaks, and Rev. W. I. Cogs-The singing, under direction of Rev.

After an intermission of five minntes, during which Brother and Sister Warren took their leave, various topics connected with "our work" were discussed by a large number of those present. [St. Joseph Republican.] In conversation with one of our fruit raisers concerning the prospects for this fruit crop, we were told that the outlook as it now stands furnishes good grounds for believing that the season will be a very profitable one. The crop of most every variety will probably be very light, but good prices will prevail which are far more valuable to this section than a full crop and consequently low prices. [Niles Democrat.]

We learn that the Michigan Wire Shovel Company have called a halt, also preparatory to a change in the business management of the concern. In this, as well as in many other cases, lack of capital alone seems to be the main trouble. We understand the company have met with fair success in selling their goods during the past (their first) year, and having added one or two other lines of equally salable goods, were looking forward to a fine trade the coming season. We learn that one member of the firm who owns the patents under which the company were working, does not believe that the company, as at present situated, financially, would be able to meet the demand for goods likely to be made upon them in the near future, and declines to make the attempt without an increase of capital. Failing to obtain t here, there is no doubt that the manufacture will be resumed at some other point where the necessary capital can be obtained.

vens' Thresher: In answer to your favor, I will say, have run threshing machines (several different kinds) about 20 years, and ought to know something about them. I fed the STEVENS with a table and a pitcher on both sides. It feeds easy and even, and threshed as fast as they could pitch, and cleaned it good without wasting grain. I consider it the best Separator in use, both for the farmer and parties running it. Very respectfully, WILLIAM BREWER. As far as fast threshing and good work is concerned, the STEVENS caps the world. The straw stacks show for themselves. You can't find any wheat growing in them or around them.

A BROKEN pane of glass in a cathedra library, in England, admitted the ten-dril of an ivy branch, which grew and grew until it attached itself to a row of books worth hundreds of pounds. Then, in rainy weather, it conducted water as though it was a pipe along to the tops of the books and soaked them through and through. The rain coming in over a skylight in one library of rare books rotted some Caxtons and other early English books, one of which, in spite of its rotten condition, sold for $1,000.

THE devout Hindoo regards the cow as a deity. It is the incarnation of the wife of Vishnu, the pure and holy ideal of woman who rose out of the sea. It is also the visible representation of the female element in nature—the universal mother who supplies milk for the helpless young. To see a cow on starting on a journey or commencing any enter-prise is an au-picious omen. The Hin-doo when in danger of starvation will eat the meat of a Luman being in preference to that of a cow. Instances are frequent of their starving on shipboard because there was nothing but sait beef to eat. A Hindoo who cats beef becomes an outcast forever. Beef is not regarded as unclean, as park is by the Jews. It is simply the product of a sacred thing—a part of the deity.

Forn barrels of water of the Great Sai: lake w.li leave, after evaporation, near y a barrel of salt. The lake was discovered in the year 1820, and no outlet from it has yet been ascertained. Four or five large streams empty themselves into it, and the fact of its still retaining its sa'ine properties seems to point to the conclusion that there exists some secret bed of saline deposit over which the waters flow, and that thus they continue salt; for, though the lake may be the residue of an immense sea which once covered the whole of this region yet, by its continuing so salt with the amount of fresh water poured into it daily, the idea of the existence of some such deposit from which it receives its supply seems to be only too probable. For the past fifteen years, until 1879 year, the lake has been gradually rising, but that year it receded two or three feet -a most unusual occurrence—owing to the exceptionally warm weather. There are no fish in the lake, but myriads of small flies cover its surface. The buoyancy of the water is so great that it is not at all an easy matter to drown in it. The entire length of the Salt lake is eighty-five miles, and its breadth forty-five miles. Compared with the Dead sea the Great Salt lake is longer by forty three miles and breaden between ty-three miles and broader by thirty-five

Prayer.

The following brief essay on prayer journalist, William A. Bartlett, who died a few days later. The article was read at his funeral by Bishop Clark as evidence of the religious feeling of the deceased:

"There is just at present a particularly animated discussion going on as to the province and efficiely of prayer.

"It is very easy for unbelievers to ridicule prayer. They say: 'Does it rain when you pray for rain?' 'Does it stop raining when you pray for sunshine?'

"Then they laugh at the idea that a universe which is manifestly governed by general laws should be influenced by special prayers.
"In reply to all this it may be stated that all spiritual and religious affairs are enveloped in mystery. We see them as through a glass darkly. "But what seems to us a very powerful argument in favor of prayer, and, indeed, unanswerable, is the universal instinct to fall down before a higher power and petition for help and relief under afflictions for which there is no human remedy.

"By the death-bed of our beloved who would not pray?
"Then it will not do to make light of prayer-to attempt to ridicule the whole world on its knees; for alike saint and sinner-the revered pastor and the pirate in a storm—supplicate the same God for forgiveness and preservation."

THE bride was led up the broad aisle,
Got up in the most killing staisle.
When asked if she'd be A true wife to be,
She promptly replied: "I should smaisle"

And then for a few days thereaughfter
There were smiles and kisses and laughter—
Then he tried to compeller
To forsake her old feller,
But she kicked and said "I dont haughter."

The Lady Waitress.

A correspondent of the New York World, who has been to Mount Washton, discourses as follows of the lady waitress:

A scornful young person thrust the bill of fare before us, and stood in a protesting, self-conscions way to receive our orders. She was a "lady waitress," a school teacher from Bangor. Portia in some way, being native to this sort of thing, made her answer questions; but she did so always in the same high and mighty manner. "Are there many lady waitresses here?" asked Portia. "Yes; there are ten school teachers in the dining-room, twenty student chambermaids, and the head laundress and under-house-keeper are Boston doctresses.'

Think of having ones disgust at sloppy coffee or an overdone steak observed critically by the light of German philosophy and Greek culture! Think of asking a creature who may be a contributor to the Atlantic Monthly to bring you the tooth-picks! I couldn't do it. The scornful young person, who leisurely carried in our breakfast by such easy loads that no two viands were eatable at the same moment, received no earable at the same moment, received no command from my lips. The coffee went down without milk or sugar; the butter went down in a pellet, all by itself; the superior one had forgotten to bring me bread, and as for fish-balls instead of steak, why, I swallowed them without a market. without a murmur.

After a while an Englishman sauntered After a while an Englishman sauntered in, took a seat-near mine and called out to our Hebe: "Heah! Ah, I say, waiter." You should have seen the Scornful. She sniffed the air, she bounced, she flounced and flushed and bit her lip; the angry tears were in her eyes, and she banged down a bill of fare before the offensive stranger as if it were a havel of lead. The stonished were a barrel of lead. The astonished man curtly and sharply gave his order, and Hebe saunt red down the room, and was evidently agitating her wrongs with the rest of the culture that posed about the pantry door. "I'm a'raid you've offended that young person, sir," said our professor to the Englishn au. "Offended the servant? How?" the dull creature asked.

"Why, by calling her 'waiter." "Oh! peg pardon; should it be waitress?"

"Ne ther, sir." "Weil, and what should she be called. then?"

Even the professor couldn't answer that. The funny man suggested "high-toned youthful individual" as a name that might go trippingly on the tongue. But how the lady waitress is really to be addressed remains for Congress, or posterity, or some other great but irresponsible power to determine. I Can and I Will.

How many boys there are who can, but never do, because they have no will power, or if they have, do not use it. Before undertaking to perform any task you must carefully consider whether you can do it, and once convinced that you are able to accomplish it, then say "I will do it," with a determination that you will never give up till it is done, and you will be successful. The difference between "Give up" and "I can't" and "I can and will" is just the difference between victory and defeat in all the great conflicts of life.

Boys, adopt for your motto, "If I can I will," and victory will be yours in all life's battles. "I can and I will," nerves the arms of the world's heroes to-day, in whatever department of labor they are engaged. "I can and I wil," has fought and wonall the great battles of life and of the world.

I know a boy who was preparing to enter the junior class of the New York University. He was studying trigonometry, and I gave him three examples for the next lesson. The following day he came into my room to denou strate his problems. Two of them he understood, but the third—a very difficult one—he had not performed. I said

"Shall I help you?" "No, sir! I can and I will do it, if you will give me the time." I said, "I will give you all the time you wish.

The next day he came into my room to recite another lesson in the same study. "Well, Simon, have you worked out that example?" "No, sir!" he answered, "but I can and I will do it, if you will give me a little more time.' "Certainly; you shall have all the time you desire."

I always like those boys who are determined to do their own work, for they make our best scholars, and men, too. The third morning you should have seen Simon enter my room. I knew he had it, for his whole face told the story of swear. Yet he had it, the story of swear Yet he had it to the story of swear Yet he had it to the story of swear Yet he had it not with the design of the second yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of swear Yet had it not with the design of swear Yet he had it not with the design of the same and the second of the same and the sam of success. Yes, he had it, notwithstanding it had cost him many hours of the severest mental labor. Not only had he solved the problem, but what was of infinite greater importance to him, he had begun to develop mathematical powers, which, and the inspiration of "I can and I will," he has continued to cultivate, until to-day he is Professor of Mathematics in one of our large colleges, and one of the ablest mathematicians of his years in our country.

My young friends, let your motto ever be: "If I can, I will."—Golden Days.

Extaordinary Impediment of peech. Mr. Edwin Cowles, editor of the Cleveland Leader, in consequence of charges of a low character which were publicly made against him as the cause of an impediment in his speech, published a statement under his own name as to the nature of his affliction, and to say the least, it is strangely remarkable. He says:
"The cause of my impediment of speech is a most extraordinary one, and I am informed that there is not a similar case on record. The peculiarity of my deafness is akin to that of color blindness. There are certain sounds I never hear. I can not, nor did I ever, hear the hissing sound of the human voice; a portion of the consonant sounds I never hear; consequently, not hearing any of these sounds when I was a child, I never made them in my articulation, and I never b. came aware of the existence of those sounds till I arrived at the age of manhood, and then I discovered their existtence and was taught to make them in my articulation. It having become second nature for me when I discovered the existence of those sounds, to speak without making them, and withal not hearing them when I do make t'em, it can be seen why I labor in my acticulation. In listening to a conversation I am governed by the sense of the remarks, and by the motion of the lips in order to understand what is said. I never in my life heard the music of the birds, and had always supposed that it was a poetical fiction till I grew up to maturity, and ascertained that it was reality. You may fill this room with canary birds and all may sing at once, and not a note would I hear, but I wou'd hear their wings flutter; the upper notes of a violin, piano or other musical instruments never hear, although I would hear all notes below the seventh octave. I can hear the street car, but never hear the car bells. I have walked by the side of a policeman and have seen him blow his whistle which could be heard half a mile away, and yet I would not hear the least sound."

A woman's house is the exponent of her character. For they are dainty, or-derly, refined; or untidy, unrestful, in-harmonious, just as she is.

The Busy Mother.

It is always a pity, says Lucy Stone, when circumstances compel the mother of growing children to undertake anything outside. A poor woman may be driven by the hard condition of her lot, by the improvidence of her husband, or by the hungry cries of her children, to earn their bread. But she is an overburdened woman doing double duty. Home-making is a business. Housekeeping is a business. Rearing children is a business. Each of these is of great importance, both for the public and the private welfare. In far the largest num-ber of families, those occupations are all combined in one; and mother is expecied to, and does undertake all. It is nevitable that she will be over-burdened in such a case. While her children are small, her care is not relieved even at night. When they are older they may give her more anxiety still. The women who are worn and haggard-looking from their over-burdened lot, are everywhere. To expect or require from the homemakers, while the children are young, any outside care or burden, is a sin. It is a very exceptional case which justifies such a woman in assuming other duties than those of her home, and, when it exists, it is almost always at the expense

Stone in the Kidney Expelled after Using Dr. David Kenneey's "Favorite Remedy" About two Weeks.

One of the most remarkable cases that has even been brought to the notice of the public is that of Mr. J. S. Beach, of Stone Bridge, Ulster Co., N. Y. Mr. Beach had suffered since October 18th 1874, from the presence of Calculus or Stone in the right Kidney. No less than seven Physicians were employed at different times, to whom Mr. Beach Add to these unlovely results the clatter of the heelblocks, and we have a total, paid hundreds of dollars for medical treatment with only temporary relief from his agony.

L By the argent solicitations of his friends he was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Rem edy"—experienced a marked improvement from the first day he began to use the medicine; on the 15th of September he voided a stone as large as could be passed through the natural channel. Mr. Beach concludes a long letter to Dr. Kenne dy by saying: "It will always afford me pleasure to recommend the "Favorite Remedy" to thos who may be suffering from difficulties of the Kidneys and Bladder, or any disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. The "Favorite Remedy" sold byfull druggists. The Doctor's only address is Rondont, New York. jun

My husband took it and 1 gave some of it to the children, and it has done them more good than all the other medicines they have taken, and we recommend it to all our friends." High Heels. Until the ladies of our day resumed the antiquated fashion of high heels, bunions were shown up only in bur bunions were shown up only in bur lesque, and there is more than their ridiculous absurdity to be condemued in wearing them. The weight of the body is thrown upon the toes, which are thus unduly burdened, and thrown forward against the front of the shoe. It is true that high heels make the instep seem higher, but surely no proper-minded person would be guitty of a sham. And further, as the heel of the foot is kept up above its proper level, the muscles whose duty is to raise it are enfeebled by the loss of that exercise. These muscles are the calf of the leg, which will thus dwindle away to the which will thus dwindle away to the leanness of decrepit age, and become a "shrunk shank," if this unseemly distortion be long presisted in. "The animal machinery," says Sir Charles Bell, "can be in perfection only when it is kept in full activity. Exercise unfolds the muscular system, producing a full, bold outline of the limbs, at the same time that the joints are knit small and time that the joints are knit small and clean. Look at the legs of a poor Irishman traveling to the harvest with bare feet; the thickness and roundness of the calf show that the foot and toes are free to permit the exercise of the muscles of the legs. Look, now, at the legs of an English peasant whose foot and ankle are tightly laced in a boot with an inflexible sole; and you will preceive, from the manner in which he lifts his legs, that the play of the ankle, foot and toes is lost as much as if he went on stilts: and therefore are his legs small and shapeless. A testimonial fund of £50,000, subscribed by the public in recognition of her noble services, was, at her special request, devoted to the formation and maintenance of an inistitution for the training and employment of nurses. Miss Nightingale has greatly assisted the
