Talk of a grand revolution in the method of counting time in this country. Counting from 1 to 24, and doing away with the a.m. and p.m. part of it. The scheme was concocted by the railroad companies, and may work well enough for railroad, but think of the fellow who has to get up at 24 o'clock at night, and go traiping around the house hunting for the paregoric bottle. GEORGE G. ROBINSON. GOVERNOR ELECT OF MASSACRUSETTS.

----:0:----The Republicans of Massachusetts have recently elected as Governor, Mr. George G. Robinson, one of the most distinguished of their number, He is a native of Lexington, Mass., and was born on the 20th of January, 1834, of the old revolutionary stock. His an-

What a pity that a little town ke ours cestry on both sides, fought in the bat-tles of Concord and Lexington, and his cannot unite their strength in one parents, Charles and Mary Robinson are still living. His early life was spent on the farm of his fathers, near Lexington Common. When sixteen years of age he entered the Lexington Academy and soon after the Hopkins Classical School, at Cambridge. Here he prosecuted his studies with a zeal and diligence which gave promise of brilliant achievements, Graduating in 1856, he was immediatly chosen as principal of high school in Chicopee' Mass. Leaving here he entered the law office of his only brother, Charles Robinson Jr., at Charlestown, Mass., where he remained until his admission to the bar in 1866. He began the prac-tice of law at Chicopee, where his energy and talent won the admiration and respect of all. In 1874, he was elected to the State Legislature, where he served on the Judiciary Committee. He was elected State Senator in 1876 and later in the same year was elected to the vacant seat of Chester W. Chapin, in the Forty-fifth Congress. Here his abilities immediately received merited recognition. He was made a member of the committees on Improvement of the Mississippi and on Expendi-tures. On his re-election to the House in 1878, he was given a seat in the Judiciary Committee, where he displayed extraordinary ability as a legislator. In Congress he exhibited sound judgment, a keen perception and a fluency of speech which enabled him to cope with the veterans of legislation from the outset. As a speaker he is more forcible than polished, and his manner of delivery, while not particularly graceful, is effective in the extreme. He has won distinction through life, and especially during his legislative career, as an indefatigable worker. In his opinion the duties of a Congressman are so numerous, that each district should be represented by three men. One for the work of legislation, another to serve his consti tuents at the departments and public offices and a third to do the social honors of the position. His efforts in

Also his letter acknowledging his receipt of the 500 mile coupons, and his subsequent letter, asking for another book for himself and one for Mrs. Begole, only one of which was sent. The letters taken in connection with his utterances in his inaugural and his message to the legislature, show him to be not only a dead beat, but what is worse, a hypocrite and liar. ATLANTIC, Nov. 9, 1883. FRIEND HOLMES:-It has been some two years since dropping you a line. Like the Quaker, the "spirit" has moved many times, but the want of a more "convenient season" has permitted each opportunity to pass until now. The past season, in the State, has been one which the farmers will never forget. The supply of good seed corn was very limited. The railroads, desirous of seeing a bountiful corn crop, carried free of cost, all corn for seeding purposes, from Kansas and Nebraska to any stations along their respective lines. It is safe to estimate that one-half of the entire acreage of corn planted in this great State was of foreign seed. What is the result? The season being cold, wet and backward did not allow imported seed to mature, hence, you can see vast numbers of fields, with stalks from eight to twelve feet high; but upon low lands no corn, and on high lands soft corn. Domestic seed producing four-fifths of an average clop. All branches of business are more or less affected, and the farmers don't want to see any more "imported" corn planted in Iowa. Nothwithstanding this, it is wonderful to see the amount of improvements upon every hand throughout this State, the city of Des Moines ranking seventh, leading even the magic city of Kansas City. in the amount of funds expended, in new buildings, of all the larger cities of this country, passing Dubuque in population, and is now the metropolis of Iowa. Occasionally I meet some person from home, with whom I am acquainted, but in traveling over some five thousand miles of territory, the "Buchanan Wagons," "Zinc Pads," and the "Buchanan Beds," are the objects which are seen that reminds you of her com. mercial resources. They also bring to your mind the faces of those who are the proprietors of the various establishments, and the men who are employed in them, until you feel like making a remark, frequently heard concerning Buchanan, that "it is a beautiful place, and one of the liveliest | in the arrangements, Mr. Ryan thinks

The "Massacro of Wyoming." ["Gath's" Letter.]

The further we get from the inci-dents of the Revolution the more philo-sophically we consider them. The late civil war made us a more rational people to judge our Revolutionary forefathers. A committee was appointed from the descendants of the Revolutionary men of Wyoming, on the one hundreth anniversary of that battle, to prepare a memorial volume. Mr. Johnson, who accompanied me riding, was one of that committee, and he gave me the memo-rial book, of which I read a portion the same night.

There it is conceded that the British behaved very respectably and protected those who could come in. The British commander was a regular officer, named Butler. He allowed the people after the battle to surrender, and politely asked their clergyman to act as secretary of the convention, which he did, and this man wrote out the cartel, which was faithfully kept.

The American settlers were allowed to stay upon their farms and enjoy their property on condition of not enlisting against the British government. The valley was evacuated by Butler and his command, and was not again invaded by them.

All this is put down in the sober second thought of a hundred years. If you sleep on any thing a hundred years, except lobster salad, you will change your mind.

Again, the Wyoming Memorial committee discreetly says that the probable cause of any invasion was the intolerance of our patriots, who began the war by driving off their inoffensive and numerically weaker Tory neighbors. To reinstate those poor people the British line came, not unexpectedly, backed by some of the same savage Iroquois we had used for a hundred years to invade and murder the French in Canada. Our patriotic forefathers knew all about the nature of their warfare, and merely received some of its consequences.

The memorial report asserts that not one woman was either killed or abused by the victors at Wyoming.

Hints to Talkers. [Chicago Herald.]

If the ministry were better versed in the art of elocution they would undoubtedly make more converts. Writers on that art hold that the end of oratory is to persuade, and that in order to persuade one must be clearly understood. This refers to a clear enunciation of speech. There is perhaps not one minister in fifty, even in cities, where they have all advantages, who speak clearly and distinctly enough to be understood by even their nearest auditors. They may speak loud enough but the articulation being indistinct the meaning is lost in the sound.

Aside from the prevalent habit of "ranting," consequent upon emotion, a great many ministers really do not seem to understand that it is necessary to open their mouths to any extent, but "chop off" their words in their great haste to emit the next. This rapid speaking or "telescoping" words makes articulation impossible, to say nothing of the "chopping off" process, which prevents the speaker from being understood, no matter how slow he might speak. To be heard is not always to be understood, and there can be no persuasion or conviction unless the auditor understands what the minister is saying.

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE. The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city

Massachussetts Supreme Court, writes as follows: "78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882. MESSRS, J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen: Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at right, and burned so intense-ly, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years. I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite im-prored almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allaydd, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough wero also curred by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cont stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSARARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good. Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS." (From the Courier.) Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creck Locks, Ulster C., N. Y., had the misfortune to entirely lose the sight of one of her eyes, through an accidont, and endured painful inflammatory action therein for two long years; the other eye finally becoming sympathetically affected, her gen-eral health seriously suffering; indeed she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. In this terrible strait she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. She quietly but firmly said: "All right, Doctor, but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband sit by my side during the operation, and I will neither cry out or stir." The work was done and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of solthe poor woman kept her word. Talk of sol-dierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To re-store her general health and give tone and strength to the system, Dr. Kennedy then gave the "Favorite Remedy," which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long-suffering woman. She rapidly gained health and strength, and is now well. The "Favorite Remedy" is a priceless blessing to women. No fumily should be without it. Your drug-gist has it. "You know we cannot stop tolling up the hill, though." "Surely we cannot, and nor myself I don't fud fault with that necessity provided the ad-vance in life is not attended with calamity or suffering, for I have had my share of that. What Might have Been Done Without Him, Shi "Well, wife," said Dr. E.—. as he entered his house, which was situated in a cosy village in central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride away down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man wouldn't live till morning, when the fact is he had only an or-dinary attack of colic. If the sympletons had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPCINE PUROI'S PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, swallowing the cup of steam ing tea which his wife had just poured tor him. Dr. E.— was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. A Description of Denmark's Charm ing Capital.

[Cor. Boston Advertiser.] The approach to Copenhagen from the sea is picturesque. Situated on the sound, the water highway between the Baltic and the North sea, it is covered with hundreds of sail passing in and out the great thoroughfare, which at Elsinore is not more than two and a quarter miles in width. The entire shore between Copenhagen and Elsinore is made accessible for a fine road, along which villages and villas are located, run close by the sea, the distance being twenty-five or thirty miles. Upon this road is situated Charlottenbund, a royal palace and park, consisting of eighty acres, and the Jægersborg Dore Have, or deer park, of 4,200 acres, in the southern part of which, upon some 2,800 acres of magnificent beech forests, vast herds of stags, red deer and fallow deer may be seen grazing in its glades or lying down under the welcome shade.

Copenhagen, although darting from the twelfth century, wears, compara-tively speaking, a modern aspect, owing somewhat to the extensive fires that have devastated it, for in 1728, 1,640, houses were destroyed in 1795, 950, and in 1807, 905 were laid in ruins by the English bombardment. The city consists of two parts-Copenhagen proper. on the island of Sealand, and Christianshavn, on the island of Amager. The streets are exceedingly well paved, and are kept clean in a way to put Boston to shame. The people are cheerful, and appear to be occupied about their own affairs, although courteous to the wants of a stranger.

The cab service is excellent, and to an American the charges judiciously low, being for a course in the city about 18 cents for each person, and by the hour 42 cents. The cabs carry four passengers, and are obliged to carry a tariff-book in sight. Horse-cars traverse the city in every direction, sporvel, or stations, being established at convenient points, between which the fare, 10 ere, or about 2½ cents, is paid, thus making the cost of riding short distances about half what is with us. Letter boxes about the city for the collection of letters have an excellent arrangement in the form of a dial, which the postman collecting sets to the hour when he next visits the box. The postage of letters, "without respect of size and weight, within the city itself and precincts," is about 11 cents. The Scandinavians are fond of bathing, and the bath houses abound in every direction. There being little or no tide in the Baltic, permanent houses, with every convenience for private or public bathing are erected. Everywhere the police regulations seem to be perfect. The cost of living is reason-able. Excellent rooms, with light and

Before the ink was cold I would have seven or eight men, with ladders, all over that barn. They would go over it like cats on a back fence, put points on every corner and conductors down every side. The farmer and his family would look on in a mazement, and be so pleased at the improved look of the old barn that they would not kick at the number of points. You will do it until every day your knee joints seem so hot that you wonder if they are not going to melt, and how they will ache. And all the time you are getting down further and further-your teacher per haps getting his hands on your shoulders and crunching you down to help you along now and then—until you actually do sit on your heels with your knees out—so. It isn't enough to do that. You must keep on doing it, for you must never let yourself get out of practice in anything. But the knees don't yet come out squarely enough at the sides. You put your feet as far apart as you can, and then try to put them a great deal farther apart. You keep on trying, and they do go little by little, until you can touch the ground with your body, your legs being straight out on each side of you. How the Negroes Were Provided for -- Their Allowance of Food and Clothing.

Fred Douglass, in his autobiography, thus describes the management of a Maryland estate, in the times of slavery:

"The men and the women slaves on Col. Lloyd's farm received as their monthly allowance of food eight pounds of pickled pork or their equivalent in fish. The pork was often tainted and the fish was of the poorest quality-herrings-which would bring very little if offered for sale at any northern market. With their pork or fish they had one bushel of Indian meal, unbolted of which about 15 per cent. was fit only to feed pigs. With this one pound of salt was given, and this was the entire monthly allowance of a fullgrown slave, working constantly in the less than a peck of corn meal per week. The yearly allowance of clothing consisted of two tow-linen shirts, such as the coarest crash towels are made of; two pairs of trousers, one for summer and one for winter; one winter jacket.

Then springing up the old man threw his two hands out, banged them down and said : "There, thank God, that is the last of it, the very last of it; and now I am going home to spend the remainder of my days at my dear Hermitage." Saying this he walked across the room, took a cob pipe, filled it and sat down, smoking a long time in silence.

The artist also made at the time a miniature on ivory of Jackson, which he still has in his possession. The face is heavier, fuller, than we are accustomed to see in steel cuts and paintings. The chin is prominent, massive, almost double; the hair is very thick, bristling, and like snow.

Mistaken Philanthropy. [Chicago Herald.] If the good that men do lives after them, then it is pretty nearly time that the good James Lick, the California philant Jropist, did, or intended to do, is made manifest to posterity. Seven years ago Mr. Lich died and left a fortune of over $3,000,000 to various public charities. The carrying out of his bequests was left to a board of five trustees, who were given full charge of the estate with instructions to dispose of it and apply it as the old man directed. The bequests were various. The founding of the famous Lick observatory was one. Then there was the erection of splendid free baths for San Francisco, a superb monument to Philip Barton Key, author of the "Star Spangled Banner," and other monuments, in San Francisco. There were large legacies, too, to orphan asylums and various other institutions. Finally, after all these were provided, the residue of the estate was to be divided between the Academy of Sciences, in

> Pioneers. The only provision that has been attempted to be carried out is the con-struction in part of the Lick observa-tory. It is about half completed. If Mr. Lick had divided his estate in his lifetime, like Peabody, Peter Cooper, and other benefactors of the race have done, all the beneficiaries of his bounty would long ago have been in possession of it. It is much better to attend to these things one's self.

But I want to say to you in con-fidence, that when I heard those bounds and saw the men on horseback no streak of greased lightning ever made better time than I did with that lightning-rod wagon." Getting Out Vermont Marble, [Herbert Tuttle in Harper's Magazine.]

The final rupture between a block and its ancient bed is an interesting process. Let us suppose the two cuts to be made, one nearly vertical, and the other, or horizontal one, at right angles to it, and both one or two feet deep. A series of wedges is then inserted into the openings, and a man with a heavy hammer goes along tapping them lightly one after another. As they are driven in, the men listen sharply for the effect, the crack gradually widens, the great mass of stone begins to heave and swell under the strain, the quick ear of the experts detect the critical moment, and a simultaneous blow on all the wedges throws the monster loose. Now Simple and then, of course, a failure is made, and a block splits in two. But the Stron judgment of the workmen is singularly ŚŲ^{jt} correct, and the block is generally SUPE thrown out in its full integrity. Barbed Wire vs. Fox Chasing. [Inter Ocean.]
