The bridges were swept away so often by floods. or burned by the enemy, that Miles was as necessary to the Confederate army as Jackson himself. One day the Union troops retreated, and burned a bridge across the Shenandoah, Jackson determined to follow them, summoned Miles. "You must put all your men on that bridge, said he; "they must work all night, and the bridge must be completed by daylight. My engineer shall furnish you with the plan, and you can go right ahead." Early next morning, Jackson, in a very doubtful frame of mind, met the old bridge-builder. "Well" said the General, "did the engineer give you the plan for the bridge?" "General," returned Miles, slowly; "the bridge is acters of living light; and should be done. I don't know whether the picter is or not.

JOHN G. HOLMES, Editor.

THURSDAY, NOV. 22, 1883.

A new direct line of railroad from Michigan City to St. Louis is among the possibilities of the near future.

Thursday morning the Rush street bridge in Chicago was run into by a lumber schooner and broken down. No lives lost.

The Greenbackers of South Bend are indignant. Their organ, the Era, has been sold out to the Democrats. Shively, the editor, turned the office over to a friend of the great anti-monopoly cause, and the friend disposed of what he evidently discovered to be dead stock, as above.

A telegram from Albany, N. Y., says the news reached the prison authorities that President Arthur had pardoned Seargeant Mason. It will be remembered Mason was convicted in 1881, by court martial, of firing at the assassin Guiteau while doing guard duty, and was sentenced to eight years in the Albany penitentiary.

Indiana has a state law providing a heavy penalty for the sale of trashy and flashy illustrated papers, but it has not been enforced. The Superintendent of Police of Indianapolis, by order of the Mayor and Prosecuting Attorney, has served notices on all newsdealers of that city to cease selling that kind of literature. Would that our Legislature would give this State such a law, and that it would be enforced.

Gov. Begole's private secretary explains his employer's way of managing the "little red book" of the F. & P. M. railroad in a long interview with the reporters of the Evening News, by stating that the chief servant had business connections by which he and his partner pay that company large sums of money for lumber freights, and in consideration of which he is entitled to these favors. The convenient private secretary will now be very useful if he will explain how his employer comes in possession of the annual pass he uses when riding on the Michigan Central. He uses this only when the car is sparsely filled, paying his fare when he is surrounded by men who by their appearance show prominence, and a liability to be acquainted with him.

Murders and robberies are becoming of alarming frequency, but the most horrible of these of late record occurred at the farm house of Jacob D. Crouch, seven miles southwest of Jackson, Wednesday night of last week, in which Mr. Crouch, an old and wealthy farmer aged 74 years, his daughter Mrs. Eunice, her husband, Henry D. White, and a stranger named Polly, who had come into the neighborhood from Mercer county, Pennsylvania, for the purpose of buying stock, were all chloroformed and then coolly slaughtered, like so many pigs. The victims were found in their beds, where they had retired the night before, with from two to five bullet holes through them. There are all sorts of rumors, but it is plainly evident that the murderer was actuated by the desire to plunder. Empty cartridges of 32 caliber were found about the rooms, showing that sufficient time had been taken to reload the weapon. On the whole it was one of the most coolly performed and outrageous murders ever committed in this State.

How Virginia was Carried. There is a singular obtuseness on the part of Gov. Begole and his friends in Since Thursday's dispatches to the assuming that the exposures of that Republican from here, a mass of inforofficial's impositions upon popular cremation has been received from letters dulity are dictated by personal hostilfrom all parts of the state, and from ty to him. A gentleman of high character in It does not require malice to expose humbug.-Detroit Post and Tribune formed me to-day that a friend of his who was making a purchase of some sort at a store in Baltimore a week before election and, therefore, four days before the bloody work at Danville. was told that during the brief time he tree near Edmore, November 17. was in the store seven orders for firearms were there received from Danville. Another prominent citizen told me that as early as July a funder told him that his party intended to buy all the votes they could, and when they had exhausted that process they intended to bully enough to make the thing sure. Another man was told boastingly by a Bourbon in October that on the 7th of November his party would spring something on the coalitionists that would beat them, and it would be too late for them to counteract it. It is now evident that the mine thus to be exploded was the race issue, and that the instrumentality was to be the Danville circular. This is shown by the fact that this precious document was sent into the counties prior to Nov. 1, with directions to withhold them from circulation until that day. The circular was the chief burden of discussion at Bourbon meetings between the 1st and 5th. On election day dispatches were sent from Danville saying that the white men were standing in their doorways, with shot-guns, protecting their wives from violence at the hands of the negroes, and they dare not leave their homes to go to the polls. These infamous roorbacks were printed and fell as thick as showflakes around the streets of the southwest The Bourbons in these localities would take them and hold them up to conservative white readjusters and would say: "Are you a white man? Well. if you are, here is the evidence that the fight has come down between the white race and its enemies; which side are you on?" Photographs were exhibited, one of a colored teacher shaking his fist at a delicate white child, causing it cry, while another represented a black school trustee holding a write child on one knee and a black one on the other. The confident manner in which the Bourbons declared that the whites of Danville were at the mercy of the blacks, and the aggressive tone in which they demanded that their listeners should instantly decide which race was entitled to their sympathy and support, overpowered the amazed and bewildered communities where few blacks resided, and took them completely off their feet. The wildest panic was created by this bold and infamous fraud, and there is no room for doubt that the declaration that a vote for the coalition candidates would be a vote on the side of the Danville negroes, led to the natural inference that to cast such a vote would be to invite personal violence.

Here's a good one on Brown and Toombs. During the days when these two Georgians fought each other bitterly a friend of Gen. Toombs said to that gentleman: "You'd better let Brown alone. He never fails in anything. He'll get the best of you on earth, and on resurrection day, when you are fumbling about, he'll rise right up and lead the procession of saints to the golden gates." "Well," said Toombs, "he may. But whenever the Lord sees that procession coming He Sojourner Truth, the noted colored woman lecturer, died at Battle Creek, Monday morning. She was born a slave in New York between 1775 and 1777, and lived in bondage, changing masters several times until 1828, when she became free under the act of emancipation passed by the New York Legislature. Although illiterate she bad a native sagacity and wit which enabled her to progress so rapidly that in 1843 she began her career as a lecturer in New England. She thought she was called to preach the Gospel, and soon attracted the attention of leading abolitionists. She traversed Western New York in company with the Hon. George Thompson, of England. Since that time she has labored assiduously in behalf of the colored people, lecturing throughout the country, speaking in Congress, interviewing and receiving tokens of friendship from Abraham Lincoln, Garrison, Phillips, and many other great men. Her quaint, elastic, and pertinent though uncultivated oratory rendered her conspicuous in many abolition, woman's rights, and temperance conventions. She had five children.

If the Southern newspaper press would follow the example of the Vicksburg (Miss.) Post the shot-gun would soon cease to be the chief factor in southern politics. In commenting upon the Copiah murder, in which a Republican was shot down because he refused to abide by a Democratic notice to stay away from the polls, the Post says: "Every bullet that was shot into Matthews will be worth thousands of votes to the Republicans. because it will be said, and it cannot he denied, that he was killed on account of his politics by intolerant Democrats." What is needed from the southern press is an equally frank admission of the character and purpose of the political murders when they occur. That will be a decided step in the direction of suppressing them. But this Instance is entirely exceptional. As a rule the election outrages are suppressed and misrepresented, and murder as a political policy is thereby condoned and encouraged. Every bullet fired in such a cause ought to be worth at the very least a thousand votes to the Republican party at the north, for there is no practical way to contest the sulous methods employed by the South-

A member of the military company sent from Richmond to Danville to preserve order, says that the negroes kneeled at their feet, and clasping them around the knees, poured out their thanks to God for the arrival of protection. The number of the bodies of dead negroes found since the day of the massacre is unknown, but it is believed to be much greater than the public has yet learned.

The reign of terror still continues there, and a committee of forty is about to make an investigation under Bourbon direction. The entire truth it will be difficult to ascertain at any time, but a committee of the U.S. senate would doubtless be able to obtain testimony enough which could not be controverted to show that the Danville affair and many lesser deeds of violence elsewhere in the state, together with the highly wrought condition of the public mind produced by the lawless methods of the Bourbons, prevented anything like a free expression of the popular will in the recent so called election. From whatever portion of the state men come, all bring accounts of doings fearful to contemplate in a country in which liberty and law are said to exist I give a few specimens which I recall from conversation I have heard. Some time before the election at the county seat of Madison, a man demanded to know of two colored servants how they would vote. They replied they intend-ed to vote the coalition ticket. He said if they did they could no longer work for him. They declined to give up their right to vote as they pleased, and left.

The enraged employer followed them and when near them drew his pistol on the one nearest him and exclaimed, "I believe I will kill you anyhow." The negro turned, opened his coat and said "You can kill me if you want to." The words were hardly out of his mouth before he was shot dead.

At Staunton a negro stood on the sidewalk. looking down to the ground. when a man came along with a shotgun and when within about ten feet of him exclaimed loadly: "I'll kill any d-d nigger that insults me," leveled his gun and discharged the contents of it into the negro's abdomen. This muderous act was without provoca ion. for the assailant and he had never met before, and no word, look, or gesture passed between them before the shooting. It was simply an ontbreak of

A reliable man telegraphed from Floyd Court House on election day as follows: I just arrived here, and learn that the Bourbon-funders introduced the ku-klux shot-gun policy in this county to-day, by sending some of their clan to make raids upon innocent, lawabiding citizens. Alex. Nolan was shot twice this day, while out in his field, because he was a readjuster, and would not agree to vote the Bourbonfunder ticket. The tool selected to do this dirty deed was a man by the name of Prince E. Short .- Washington Republican.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 .- During the early part of this afternoon a man evidently sixty years of age entered the lobby of the Fifth Avenue Hotel. His

He walked through the corridors with his hands in his inner coat pockets. It was evident that the stranger was look-ing for some one in particular, and acted nervously and suspiciously. When Detective Prior approached him and asked him his business he replied, "I have a duty to perform." Detective Prior directed him to the stairs, when the man shouled, "I am a Colonel from Kentucky, and I have made this trip the men for the places are difficult to find. Skilled workmen there are in various special kinds of work; but not so the men capable of assuming the direction of the work of others in a manner to produce the best results. The fault for this lies with the printers themselves for the most part, because they will not take the pains to learn anything more than the kind of work they are likely to be called upon to do. Ask them to arrange an office so as to best utilize the room and the facilities upon to make a selection of materials for a new concern-or even for an old one-they will fire at random and omit numberless things that are of daily necessity, and get others of little use. As long lists of wedding presents and longer lists of denors are becoming quite numerous, and of interest only to the donors, we have adopted the rule for those who wish to occupy the space of the RECORD columns with this kind of matter, to charge 25 cents per inch of column length occupied by the list. It is not an uncommon occurrance to find a list of from a dozen to fifty names attached to one article. and such literature becomes something of a bore to both printer and reader.

There would be less abjection to lists of presents with these long lists of names omitted, but when they are published, hereafter, it will be at the above rate, as advertising.

THE Mayor of Niles threw a bomb in the Council of that city, on the 19th, which stirred up the members to a white heat. In a communication he > accuses the Council of regarding the treasury as public plunder. He says about $20,000 have been collected in taxes this year, and they cannot show any improvements for this large sum of money. The Republican, whose editor is one of the members of the Council, publishes the communication and challenges the Mayor to specify, by charges or otherwise, who the guil ty ones are. What ought to interest the tax-payers of that city is that the Council of Niles is Democratic; the Mayor is a Democrat; the chairmen of all the important committees are Democrats, and their acts in squandering the people's money (if the Democratic Mayor tells the truth) is truly Democratic. Let the people change the political complexion of their Council, and they will be surprised at the improvements.

THE HAT BOY'S FACULTY.

Never Forgetting Which Hat of a Hundred Goes with Which Face of Five Score.

[New York Sun.] There is a special line of work required from hotel employes, which needs the exercise of extraordinary powers of memory. 'The "hat boy" who succeeds in the metropolitan hotel in filling his place acceptably is sure of a berth for life. In all large hotels of the city the hats of the guests are likely to be left before any meal in a room adjoining the dining-room, and they are left in charge of the hat boy. Perhaps the most remarkable of all hat boys in New York is an attenuated little man who has charge of the hats of the guests of the Fifth Avenue hotel. He is small and wiry, and seldom seems to take his eyes from the racks which line the ante-room on either side. When he takes a visitor's hat he glances at his face carelessly, and puts the hat on one of the several racks. When the man comes out of the dining-room, an hour later, the boy picks out his hat without a moment's hesitation, and hands it to him. Often he has from 500 to 400 hats in his racks at one time, and in the course of six years he has never been known to make a mistake. The hats look very much alike, and it is a mystery to the majority of diners how he remembers their faces and their hats at the same time. The attendant was asked a night or two ago how it was his memory served him in so many cases, and he said: "I don't know. It seems to come natural." "Do you pick out any particular feat-ure of the wearer's face by which you fix him in your memory?" "Oh, no; that would never do. I remember the face itself. I look along the rack and I seem to see the face that fits every hat, and when a man comes out I go to the hat that is associated with his face naturally. It doesn't make any difference whether the man has his hat on when he comes in or not. He hands it to me and I look at his face, and somehow I cannot forget it. The gentlemen of the house often try to fool me, but they have never sucto fool me, but they have never suc-ceeded in catching me in a blunder. For instance, sometimes two of them will come in looking somewhat alike and wearing hats that are exactly the same pattern. One of them hands me the two hats. When they come out I give each man his hat separately. I never give the wrong hat to the wrong man, although I had no positive proof which man owns the particular hat.

"Time Table" of the Yellowstone Park Geysers.

[Laramie Boomerang.] Through the kindness of Mr. Owen we are furnished with the following facts regarding the principal ones, giv ing time and duration of eruption and height to which the water is carried :

Old Faithful, plays every hour from three to five minutes; height of column, seventy-five to 180 feet. Beehive, plays every seven to twenty five hours from three to eighteen min-utes; height of column, 200 to 219 feet. Giantess, every fourteen days for twelve hours: height of column, 250

Saw Mill, very frequent from one and three quarters to three hours; height of column, from fifteen to twenty feet. Grand, every sixteen to thirty-one hours from ten to twenty minutes; height of column, ninety to 200 feet. Turban, plays every fifteen minutes from fifteen seconds to five minutes; height of column, twenty-five feet. Castle, plays every forty-eight hours for thirty minutes; height of column, 100 feet.

Giant, plays once in every four days from one and one-half to thirty hours; height of column, 130 to over 200 feet. Oblong, once or twice daily for six minutes; height of column, fifty to sixty feet.

piles of cotton stuffs, received in trade from the far off coast, and representing to these natives a considerable amount of wealth. In the vague, half-determined notions which the people here have conceived as to a future existence, everything in the spirit world is supposed to be a pale copy of things existing on the earth, so that for this eason they put cloth, ves-sels of pottery, and, in the case of a chief, dead slaves into the graves, in or-der that the deceased on arriving in the land of shales may not appear unprovided with the necessary means of making a fresh start in a new life. The grave in which this man was buried had been dug in a hut, and the head of the corpse was not much more than two feet below the surface. We could not ascertain whether the hut, or rather iouse-for it was a substantial building of poles and thatch-would be abandoned or not. I fancy not, as it is only in the case of a chief that this is done; and the man that was dead, although rich and influential, was, after all, only he favorite slave of the chief.

What Does History Teach?

[Elevated Railway Journal.] It is not our intention to decry the study of history, if we really have any-thing worthy of the name. We recognize it as one of the ornamental branches necessary to a "finished education." But what is its comparative practical value? To what real account can one young man in a million turn his knowledge of Pompey's battles, Casar's conquests, the triumphs of Alexander, or the brilliant victories of Napoleon, ad-mitting that he is familiar with all that has ever been written concerning them? What lessons of practical wisdom can the girl derive from studying the lives of Dide, Cleopatra, Elizabeth or Catharine, as they are presented by the ancient or modern historian? We do not ap-prehend any danger from too much attention being given to this branch of study by the youth of either sex, whether it is as the elder Walpole thought, "nothing but lies," or as Macauley defined it, "philosophy teaching by ex-ample." It is a great deal more ex-tolled than read, and much more commended than studied, and it is likely so to continue.

Dangers of Toboganning.

The Louisville Commercial's reporter got an interview with the city solicitor of Toronto at the exposition. The so-licitor said: "Toboganning is great sport. My friend Smith had a valuable horse that once made a mile in ten sec-onds on a toboggan. The animal lost its sight, however, the frost needles having cut its eyes out of its head as it flew down hill. The horse had incautiously strayed to a toboggan hill in the night, and had accidently stepped on one of the slippery things, and away he went. There was a slender, long-necked boy who was the most skillful tobogganer in western Canada; but he met with a painful accident that winter that put a stop to his favorite sport forever. As he was going down hill one afternoon he carelessly turned his face to one side, and the wind twisted his whole head square round, so that the eyes looked down the back of his neck, and, lingering for several years in a retro-spective way, he died insane-his brain was turned

Chloroform. (From the Courier.)

In the Grocery, Bakery and Crockery business. Everybody Mrs. Schoonmaker, of Creek Locks, Ulster C., N. Y., had the misfortune to entirely lose the sight of one of her eyes, through an accident, and endured painful inflammatory action therein for two long years; the other eye finally becoming sympathetically affected, her gen-eral health seriously suffering; indeed she was a mere wreck, a walking skeleton. In this terrible strait she consulted Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who told her at once that the injured eye must be removed. Sh - quietly but firmly said: "All right, Doctor, but don't give me chloroform. Let my husband sit by my side during the operation, and I will nel-ther cry out or stir." The work was done and the poor woman kept her word. Talk of solthe poor woman kepther word. Talk of sol-dierly courage! This showed greater pluck than it takes to face a hundred guns. To re-store her general health and give tone and strength to the system. Dr. Kennedy then gave the "Favorite Remedy," which cleansed the blood and imparted new life to the long-suffering woman. A STATE OF PREMONITIONS OF DANGER

A Railroad Engineer Gives His Experience. [Washington Critic.]

"A fortnight or so ago I was on my way to the far west, traveling on a fast through Baltimore & Ohio express. On a bright Sunday morning I awoke in my berth and realized that the train was starding still. I raised the curtain and peeped out. The sun was well up in the heavens, and the train stood in a dense wood, away from any living creature. It did not move for some time, and I arose, made my toilet, and went outside. The train stood partially on a long trestle-work or open bridge, and I could see smoke rising from the end of the structure furthest from us. I walked out past the locomotive and on the bridge, where I met a number of gentlemen talking.

"What's the matter?' I inquired of one.

"'Oh, a section of the bridge has

"'Lucky the engineer saw the fire in time to save us,' I remarked, gazing down into the water below, and shuddering at the thought of being piled up, in a sleeping-car, in the chasm that yawned for me.

"'But the engineer says he didn't see any fire when he stopped,' exclaimed Life is something like a spiral staircase; we are all the time coming around over the spot we started trom, only one degree further up stairs."

"That is a pretty illustration," remarked her friend, musingly, guiling into the glowing coals which radiated a pleasant neat from the many windowed stove. "You know we cannot stop toiling up the hill, though."

"Surely we cannot, and low myself I don't find taut with that necessity provided the advance in life is not attended with calamity or suffering, for I have had my share of that. Not long since my health ulterly broke down. My system wasfull of mularia. My digesion became thoroughly disordered and my nerves were in a wretched state. I was languid, ate little, and that without enjoying it, and had no strength or ambition to perform even my light household duties. Medical treatment inled to reach the seat of the trouble. The discussion of the somance. The last of these was a desperate stroggle and I was given up to die. As the crisis and partially passed, my husband heard of the merits of PARKER S TONIC as an invigorant in just such cases as mine. I took it and tell its good effects at once. It appeared to pervane my body, as though the bleesing of new like bad come to me. Taking no sthere medical to carned to improve, and am now in better health than i have been for a long time." hard by, I saw no fire. I had a pre-sentiment as I approached the bridge. Something seemed to warn me that it would not be safe to cross the bridge, and it came upon me so strongly that I just stopped the train and got out of the cab, and I hadn't walked twenty steps before I saw that the act had saved many lives, for the whole train would have gone down that hole, al-though it is but the length of two rails. The fire didn't show up much above the ties, as it was confined mostly to the timbers below. Right there in that lit-tile shed a watchman sleeps,' said the engineer, pointing to a diminutive dwelling a half dozen rods away, 'and it was his duty, and it has been for it has been for years to be out here, and to pass over the bridge just before and after us; but somehow I felt that he was not faithful, that he might be asleep, and I could see in my mind, as I approached the bridge, the whole train going down to death, and could hear the cries of the dying, and so I just stopped, as I said. The watch-man, sure enough, was asleep. Oh, you needn't laugh, for this is not the first time presentiments have cured lines time presentiments have saved lives when my hand was at the throttle. Without Him. Without Him. "Well, wife," said Dr. E.—, as he entered his house, which was situated in a cosy village in central New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride away down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. But some folks are slow to learn, " added the old physician, swallowing he cup of steam ing tea which his wife had just poured for him. Dr. E.— was right, yet people do learn even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. Croup. -- A Mother's Tribute. "While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangu-lation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing ensily. The doc-tor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude ? Sincerely yours, MIS. EMMA GEDNEY." 150 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882. Where Will Power Tells. [Cor. Saginaw (Mich.) Courier.] I am satisfied that in the case of gun shot wounds, in many instances, much depends upon the character of the person suffering, ofttimes from almost mortal wounds. Men of large self-discipline, with strong will and stubborn pride, will not surrender life without a struggle, and will withhold the sacrifice in the face of the grim conqueror of all. Those who have, in the drama of war, played parts in the comedy of life as well as the tragedy of death, will bear me witness that there are wills fate can not shake. On the other hand, I have seen, and doubtless so have others who have given the subject attention, those who have yielded up the palm of life with scarcely a struggle.

"Stonewall's" Order to Mahone.

An ex-Confederate surgeon relates in The Cleveland Leader that during the war, while a terrible thunder-storm was raging, "Stonewall" Jackson ordered Gen. Mahone to charge the Union forces. Then, tired out, Jackson lay down under a tree and fell asleep. Soon he was aroused by one of Mahone's aids, who said: "General, I am sent by Gen. Mahone for orders. He says the rain has wet the ammunition of his troops, and wants to know whether he shall return." Replied Jackson: "Ask Gen. Mahone if the rain which God sends to wet his ammunition will not also wet that of the enemy. Tell him to charge them with cold steel." Mahone made the charge.

A FUNERAL ON THE CONGO.

An Unlooked-For Expression of Feeling From an Old African Chief.

[Cor. London News.] Seeing their perplexity Lieut. Orban volunteered to fire off a round of twenty cartridges from his "Winches-ter." The chief and people were de-lighted. Could there be greater honor for the deceased than to receive his farewell salute at the hands of a white man, with his wonderful gun from Mquto-the mysterious region beyond the sea-the Unknown-perhaps Heaven itself? (for are not these white men sons of Heaven?) So thought the old chief as he led us to see the corpse. With an earnest, pleading tone he took our hands in his and said: "O you, who are going home!" and he pointed to the pale and peaceful evening sky. "You will send him back to us, will you not? You will tell him his hut is waiting for him, his wives will prepare his manioc white as cotton cloth, and there shall be Malafu in plenty and a goat killed? You will send him back, will you not?"

This expression of feeling quite took as by surprise. Ordinarily the African is so stolid, so thoroughly material, that one never expects from him anything like sentiment or poetic ideas. We tried as gently as possible-for he appealed to both of us in his distress-to

Two Ways of Doing It.

[Croffut in St. Paul Pioneer Press.] A celebrated singer told me this week two stories of the elder Bennett. When Parepa first came to this country she called at the Bennett mansion and pre-sented a letter of introduction which she brought from Europe. Mrs. Ben-nett, who was a dressy and rather mag-nificent society lady, received her in the parlor, and, after welcoming her, bore her to the library where her distinguished husband was at his desk. "Father," said Mrs. Bennett, "father!

here is Mme. Parepa, come to ask the protection of our paper."

Mr. Bennett expressed his pleasure at seeing her, but Parepa bridled perceptibly and exclaimed earnestly: "No! no! Pardon me! You surely mistake. I do not come to ask the protection of The Herald, but only to present a personal letter of introduction from your friends." Constraint and embarrassment followed. Mrs. Bennett was angry. Tho call was short. And The Herald never gave a word of cordial praise to Parepa till both her host and hostess were dead. Another: When Madame Gazzanigga, the finest singer of her time, was in this city, she called on Mrs. Bennett one day and waited for her half an hour in the drawing-room, and then left. On letting her out, the servant asked:

"Who shall I tell her called ?" "Tell her," said the prima donna, "that she will find my card on the piano. And there, sure enough, it was found, "Gazzanigga," scrawled in the dust that had blown in that summer morning on the polished piano lid! Instead of being offended, Mrs. Bennett was at once pleased by the impudence and liveliness of her caller, and thenceforward the two were good friends, and The Herald could never say enough for her How Londoners Dress.

[Private Letter in San Francisco Bulletin.] The streets generally were thronged with people, principally gentlemen. English ladies seem to walk but little in the streets. The London gentlemen sre a fine looking set of men. They dress remarkably well, wholly in Prince Albert coats and white vests and ties. They wear the glossiest, most shining hats, what we call "stovepipes," which make them look taller and better dressed than the "beanpots" of America. Nearly every gentleman has either a rose, jasmine or a tuberose in his buttonhole. It may be their dress or their hats that give the impression, but English gentlemen look taller than Americans. Their physical development is good; their faces handsome; their features clearly cut. Most of them are clean shaven, except a small mustache and neat side-boards. There are very few beards to be seen among the better class of young Englishmen. The streets of London are enlivened with red-coated soldiers. They are a fine looking class; their dress very bright in color and well cut. On the streets they usually wear a cap, re-sembling a smoking cap, which they jauntily perch on one side of the head, and in their hands carry a lithe or slender walking cane. Their walk is very

MISHAWAKA, Ind, Dec. 1, 1882. DR. PENGELLY: Dear Sir.—Overwork has done for me what it does for many. Desiring to benefit suffer-ing women, I add my testimony to the value of Zoa-Phora. For five years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all those painful, weary years; but, thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am not well, but I work all the time, and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wikhes to write me for more informa-tion, give them my full address. MISS C. G. JERSEYVILLE, Ill., April 25, 1882. Dr. PENGELLY: Dear Sir:—I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter s case. I am surprised to see how she has im-proved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think feels better than she ever did her nerves are steady, and the distress in her chest is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is all that has saved her life. I am willing you should use my letter, for I am not afraid to tell what a wonderful cure your medicine is. Yours respectfully. MIS. SARAH KANDDLPH. N. B.—This was a case of suppression. From Mrs. Johu Spitler. No. 28 Will St. Fort Wayne, Ind. I have suffered for sixteen years with spas-mode pain in my head and general nervous debility. Recently I had a severe attack of pain in my head, caused by weakness and hervous exhaustion. I thought I should die. My hu-b und said we would test Zoa-Phorn thoroughly. He gave it to me according to directions for severe case, and in less than two hours I had complete relief. I advise all iddies who suffer from mervous or sick head-ache, or any form of female weakness, to use Zoa-Phora. There is no medicine to com-pare with it. drew his watch, that I was making the best time on record, and was thinking to myself how I would appal the trainmen side-tracked as I dashed through When a quarter of a mile from the station something whispered to me to stop. I didn't want to stop, and reflecting how chagrined I would be if I would have to stop when in the heat of a successful race, I tossed my head, opened. the throttle a little more, and oh, how we flew! Seems to me I never saw a train come so near flying, and yet she just lay as close to and smoothly on the track as could be. Quick as thought I was commanded by an inner being to stop, or it would make a 1 in to death; and, without effort, my hands reversed the engine and applied the air. There was no signal, no whistle nor bell sounded, and the fireman was astonished to see my frantic movements. The train lay still a few feet past the depot, and as I jumped from my engine I felt so embarrassed that I almost burned. I could make no explanation to the con-ductor or the trainmen who came about me. I looked all over the engine. Everything was all right. I cast my eyes along the train. Nothing appeared wrong. Then I walked down the track in front of the engine. When I had gone less than a hundred feet, and beyond the rays of the headlight I ran against a box car! It stood right out in front of the engine, full on the track. The switch had been left open and the wind had skewed it out. It was loaded with carbon oil. Had I not seen it, scores of persons would have been killed and burned.

Wants It "Done Brown."

[Chicago Herald.] Flood, the California millionaire, is going to ship brownstone all the way from New York for his new San Francisco palace. This will be an innovation in which health and comfort are to be sacrificed to style. Brick or stone houses in San Francisco are simply uninhabitable because of their coldness and dampness, but Mr. Flood believes that brown stone alone can give the solidity and dignity necessary to such a palace as he means to build. By the way, it should not be forgotten that Mr. Flood used to keep a saloon and attend his own bar. His tastes are, therefore, necessarily cultured and esthetic.

After Nineteen Years.

[New York Journal.] On the 21st of June, 1864, a young lady residing in Frankfort Ky., sent a letter addressed to "Lieut, J. K. P. South, Company D. Fifth Ken-tucky Infantry, Lewis' Brigade, Whee-ler's Division," which was forwarded but never received by Mr. South. After the war the letter came into the pos-session of Rev. E. C. Guerrant, of Mount Sterling, who placed it in a box with a number of other mementoes of his comrades of the "lost cause," where it was discovered by Mr. W. F. Haven editor of The Mount Sterling Sentinel, who forwarded the long missing letter to Mr. South, who received it one day last week. The fair writer at the time she wrote the letter was the betrothed of Mr. South, but is long since married to another man, and now resides in Louisville. Lieut. South is the happy father of a family residing in Reading, Pa. Mr. South intends to send the long-sealed letter after he reads the contents to the lady as a reminder of their former friendship.

Thaddens Stevens' Grave. [Letter in Philadelphia Times.] Stevens had purchased and paid for lots in the "Lancaster" cemetery before he knew that its charter limited its tenants to those in whose veins ran no African blood. He then negotiated for African blood. He then negotiated for ground in "Woodward Hill" cemetery, but ascertaining that they, too, didn't think a black man good enough to moulder to dust in their graveyard, he exclaimed: "Is it possible that they're a set of fools, too." Mrs? Smith says that the directors then offered to have the obnoxious limitation stricken out of
