What has Skepticism done for the world? Nothing but to suggest doubts. It has even suggested that Rheumatism cannot be cured. Skepticism is as bad as Rheumatism.

What has Science done for the world? A good many things; for instance, it has shown that Rheumatism can be cured. It has shown that Neuralgia can be got rid of. Modern science has proved that Rheumatism is a blood disease, and has provided Athlornoros as the remedy which can completely cure it. It has proved that although the old doctors falled to overcome Neuralgia, Атигорнокоs can reach it, and eradicate it from the system.

It has proved that though these tormenting diseases were so slow and obstinate, they can be overcome in a little while by means of Athlophoros!

to what Athlornoros can do, write to some of those whom it has cured. For instance, Rev. S. Church, of New Haven, Conn., the Rev. W. P. Corbit, pastor George St. M. E. Church, of New Haven, the Rev. J. E. Searles, pastor Willett St. M. E. Church, New York city, Mr. Brummell, the well known candy manufacturer, of New York, Ex-Gov. Bigelow. of Connecticut, and many others, equally well known.

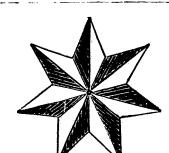

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per botte. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

The bright face raised to them was so honest and so appealing, the two young ladies exchanged glances, and "But doesn't your mamma know it

"Yes'm, long as they last. Makeeps 'em as long as we can, for the cold. Raise them in boxes in the house, you know. Ma used to live in the country, where they had lots of 'em and she knows how.

"Tell me your name?" asked Miss Church. "Name's Maggie Bridge. And sister's is Gerty." "Lilly." said Gertrude, lustily, "it strikes me this isn't a common case. My girl? Well maybe that is soft; but since take something to little Gerty for me," said Gertrude. They stepped into a confectioner's where they were known, and when they told their story, the proprietor purchased Maggie's entire remaining stock, and displayed it upon his own tempting wires. And Gertrude filled the basket with great golden oranges, and white and purple grapes for the little invalid, arranged them with her own fair hands. "Now, Maggie," she said, as they left the store, "Take your money and your basket, and run home to mamma, and tell her you sold clear out to-day. "I'm goin' to tell her I met two ladies, that I guess wasn't ladies at all.

I guess they were angles," said little Maggie. "I've sold things in the street more'n a year, but I never met any angles before, I wish you could see Gerty's eyes, when I show her these. "I wish we could," said Lilly. "Now run, Maggie."

Yes'm, I'm goin'. And I'm much obliged, and so is mamma and Gerty, and we won't never forget you," said Maggie. And with one more grateful look, she ran away. The young ladies hurried to Music Hall. They were late, of course, but they did not mind it, for the little glimpse of real life they had seen in the mimic life on the stage. "Wish we had asked the haby where she lives," said Gertrude, as they came out of the hall. "So do I. I should like to visit them." said Lilly. "Perhaps we may meet her again, and find out."

I see too much of real life in my practice, not to feel its earnestness. If I ever marry, it must be a woman who would have heart enough to help me in my work, and not hinder it by her frivolous devotion to fashion. I think must give up calling at Mr. Church's, for my own peace of mind. I'm not vain enough to think it would disturb hers at all." Dr. Dorrimer walked on with a sigh. He was a man of some means himself. and did much good among the poor who were his patients. "I wish there were more like them in this city." Little Gerty was sitting up in bed, enjoying her golden treasures. Suddenly she lifted something from the basket. and said: "Oh, look, the lady has lost her glove! And she won't know where it is!"

It was a dainty glove of old-gold kid, with twelve tiny buttons, which she held up, and the doctor was sure that the lady who had worn it, belong ed to the "upper ten." "Dear me!" cried little Maggie. "She wouldn't let the man do it, she did it herself, and I know she had on gloves just like that." "Such gloves cost something. don't know her name and where she lives, do you?" asked the mother. "No'm, I don't. Only she said Gerty was her little namesake, for her name was Gerty, too."

"Certainly, doctor," said Mrs. Bridge "And return her, with it, the grateful thanks of Maggie's mother. She has gladdened my heart more than it has been gladdened for many a day." "Both of 'em mamma! "I'll ask them, and I don't doubt they will," said Dr. Lorrimer. When he came in, a little while since, he would have doubted it very much. But now he did not-not a bit! Half un hour later, he left Mrs. Bridge's plain, humble, yet tidy room, and walked down street, with the little old-gold kid glove tightly buttoned in his vest pocket-on the left side! He was in very good spirits, too, and hurried along without heeding the jostling of the crowd; for it was just the hour when everybody is hurrying home to supper, and the streets were pouring out a steady stream of busy human beings at every corner. The doctor was thinking, as he moved along with the tide, that it was quite possible even for wise young doctors in this world, to be mistaken! And when one had made a mistake, the best thing to do was to go to work at once and set it right—as he would do! And, so, that very evening, he changed his resolution not to call on Miss Church any more, and made up his mind that he would call and restore her lost glove, which she has no doubt This baby ought to have a shawl. On the train from Nashville to Chattanooga I was very much interested in a middle-aged man of the regular smallfarmer stripe "Is the country in this neighborhood prosperous?" "Yes, very. There isn't any better country in the world. We have cotton and corn (he pronounced it 'coh'n') and fruit and everything. Within a few years northern capital has come down here and we are getting into manufactures. We have one cotton mill in operation now, and another is being built and will be in operation in a few months."

"Then there is no feeling against Northerners down here?" "Not the slightest. We want them to help develop our resources. If a northern man comes down here and behaves himself, if he don't like the niggahs better than he does himself, and acts with us, he will have no trouble in getting on as well as he would anywhere."
"What do you mean by behaving

"Behaving himself? Why he must behave himself, you know. musn'i go to runnin' things and bein' too prominent in politics and things of that kind. He musn't go to turning in with the niggahs to set 'em crazy, but he must go and attend to his business like. and go on with what he come down here to do. If he does that there will be no trouble and will get on. We want more of 'em all over the State." He was not only willing but anxious that the Northerners should come with money and skill to develop the country, to his advantage, but they must leave their political convictions at home. And more, the coming man must not presume to take any part in governing the country, but must leave that entirely to the wisdom of those native and to the manor born. This was his notion of welcoming capital and skill.

Understand, this sort of a fellow doesn't live in the better parts of Georgia and Tennessee, nor would it be fair to say that he was a representative man. In Atlanta and Chattanooga such a fellow would be laughed at by the most pronounced southerners, but in the small villages in the two States they are altogether too plenty. However, they are a harmless sort of insect and not worth attention. The bottom fact of this feeling is the dread the former slaveholder has of the negro in politics, for in many localities they are in the majority, and would really be a formidable element, were they under shrewd leadership and adroitly handled. Were Boss Tweed alive and in the south, what a power he would become as against the hardheaded men who refuse to recognize the race, and by thus refusing make them the property of whoever chooses to lead them and have the power to protect them, and choose to attain poitical power by that way. It is amusing to notice, however, that this hatred and fear of the "niggah" is felt more keenly by the poor white who in the old times, if negroes had been selling for ten cents couldn't have bought the paring of one's toe nail. The wet grocery loafer, the hanger-on at bars, the inhabiter of a cabin which has no glass in its windows, these fellows talk more of the "lower race" than the actual planter who could once count his negroes by the hundred. In the north the bar-room loafers are, to credit their talk, the most broadminded and comprehensive financiers we have. They pay the National debidaily leaning against lamp-posts, and settle tariffs and other great problems with great ease, sitting on dry goods The corresponding grade in the south, who are infinitely inferior to the negro, are the ones who look down upon them and affect the most fear of their attaining supremacy. The lower a man is in the scale of humanity the more he wants it understood that there is somebody still lower. Everybody wants somebody to look down upon. In the south the planter looks down upon the farmer, the farmer upon the poor white, the poor white takes his revenge out of the "niggah." The "niggah" has to get on without anybody to look down upon just now. It may be different twenty years hence. There is some reason why these classes, north and south, the bar-room statesman in one section and the grocery hangers-on in the other, are permitted to exist, but it has never yet been made manifest. They don't eat much, it is true, and wear less, but what they eat and wear is just that much wasted. The only use found for them so far is each counts one in the census, and they swell the population of aspiring States and cities .- Toledo

Much excitement has been created n Baltimore among oystermen by Gov. McLane proposing a bill to place an additional tax of three cents per bushel on all oysters caught in Maryland waters, besides placing the control of the entire Chesapeake beds under one man's control, the official in prospective being Prof. Brooks of Johns Hopkins university, who is now employed by the State to study cultivation of oys-ters caught or packed in this State. In retaliation the State oystermen have proposed a bill requiring a tax of three cents per bushel on oysters taken out of the State. The mutual agreement of Maryland and Virginia to close the Potomac will make all the oyster vessels get out the regular license of $3 per ton. This, with the revenue derived from the oysters taken out of the State, would yield the State a revenue of nearly a million dollars annually. It would be very burdensome to the northern dredgers, especially those who carry seed oysters out of Maryland wa-

It has probably struck every one who has had much experience in that line that there are a great many things to be avoided in poultry raising. A correspondent of the Country Gentleman cautions against the dangers of high feeding, saying that even though the fowls may be comfortably housed and cared for, yet they may be too crowded and fed too high. Fowls require a change often, and considerable coarse, bulky food. There is a difference also in breed, but all may be forced to an excessively fat condition, which is always injurious, especially with young fowls that should be urged into laying at as early an age as possible after completing growth. The large, or Asiatic fowls in particular, after fully grown and matured, should have the rations of corn stinted, and be fed largely on coarse, bulky feed, such as moistened bran, wheat screenings, corn meal ground with the cob, etc., so that they may not gorge themselves with rich and fat producing food, unless it is desired to fatten them for market. Plenty of vegetable and animal food is necessary to promote health, when the fowls will generally

Mr. Wilson found it to be sapphire corundum, a mineral worth $200 per ton. The investigation proved the existence of a 38-inch vein of corundum. As there is but one mine in the State, and very few in the world, the find is particularly valuable. A Boston company has come to the front and bought the tract upon which the vein was found. Last week the price asked for the tract was $300 but the price paid was $50,000. The tract was barren and sterile and lies outside the coal measures. Proposed New Oyster Laws. The Hon. Frank James having been equitted of all charges of crime in Missouri, and discharged from jail with his character vindicated, and made as pure as snow, is in a position to commence libel suits against every newspaper in the known world. If he is innocent, as he has been declared by the courts, he has been damaged by the charges of murder and highway robbery, and the papers that have in-dulged in the luxury of calling him a thief and a murderer ought to pay for the luxury. Since he has been vindicated the Sun has felt that the poor man has been traduced and his life nade sad indeed. There is no one thing that makes an honest man feel worse than to be charged with murder and highway robbery. It takes him a long time to prove his innocence, and while he is proving it, he feels that there are people who believe the charges, and he is cut by society. This has been a great blow to Mr. James. those which have been made against Col. James, and he must go to doing something, and as there is a growing feeling against the business of high way robbery, there is nothing left for Mr. James but to begin libel suits, which is probably as near highway robbery as a business as anything. There is a rumor that the government will now arrest Mr. James and try him in the United States courts for train robbery, but this act will bring up the question of state rights, and perhaps bring on a war. Certainly if Missouri, one of the States of the Union, certifies that Mr. James is a clean and pure man who never robbed and murdered, the government is taking its life in its hand by trying to prove that Missouri is a liar. The delegates are unusually intelligent, and many of them are persons of considerable wealth and refinement. A number of the delegates are mulattoes, and among them are editors, lawyers, clerks, etc. The call for their convention was weeks ago issued by T. J. BUCHANAN, March 25, 1884. Notwithstanding the rain and general disagreeableness of the day, Berrien county, from eighteen of her townships, sent forty-seven delegates to our Prohibition Convention.

The Convention was called to order by F. N. Potter, of Niles, opened by singing Gospel Hymns No. 51, reading of Scripture by Rev. L. S. Matthews of Berrien Centre, and Rev. J. L. Cleaver engaging in prayer. After singing No. 280 Gospel Hymns, the roll was called and the business of the Convention was in order.

F. N. Potter, of Niles, was elected temporary Chairman, and Chas. Kingston, of Niles, temporary Secretary.

An address of welcome was then given by Rev. C. G. Thomas, of Buchanan M. E. church, in which the delegates were most heartily and cordially welcomed to Buchanan, and reminded that if it was rainy and disagreeable out doors, and in consequence they had not drawn out the full force, still those who had come, by so doing showed their devotion to the cause. We were reminded that there is no compromise with the liquor interests, and that we should press forward and take our stand for the right, even if we should stand in the minority. Response in behalf of the committee and for the Convention, by Mr. J. L. Seward, of Niles, who gave a brief resume of the Central Committee's labors. Moved and carried that Merrit Moore, of Ionia, the State Organizer, with other gentlemen, present from neighboring towns, be admitted to all the privileges of appointed delegates.

Moved that Mr. M. Moore be allowed five minutes to explain the political standing of the Union party.

Mr. Moore stated in clear terms that the Union party was not an annex of any other party, neither Democrat, Republican, nor Greenback; that it stood on its own platform, independent of any or all; that like new machinery, new parties are subject to criticism and investigation, and the Union party invites close scrutiny.

Moved that Mr. M. Sherrill, of Avery, Galien township, be elected Chairman of the Convention. Carried. Moved that Chas. Kingston, of Niles, be elected Secretary of the Convention. Carried.

The following committees were then appointed:

One day last summer a farmer's wife in Shelby went to the garden for vegetables for dinner, and while there pulled up various weeds, throwing them in a heap to wilt, and returned to the house, brushing back her hair from her forehead as she went. She had been in doors but a little time when a sharp, stinging pain commenced in her right hand and that side of her face, followed by rapid swelling, the skin assuming a copper color. A physician was speedly summoned and the weeds were examined but gave no clue to the mysterious illness, which resulted in great suffering and after all these months, the hand and arm are still useless members. It is supposed that some bug or worm was touched, as the weeds were only such as are common to all gardens .-- Mt Clemens Monitor.

tic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power. During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, Aver's Sarsaparitta has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other bloodpurifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used. Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured. "Aver's Sarsaparilla has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years.

CHRONIC DISEASES A SPECIAL STUDY FOR YEARS. B. BREWER

Has made Chronic Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Blood and Nerves. A special treatment for years. He is not a boastful, ignorant pretender, but an educated physician, seeking to do good, by devoting his talent and energies to the treatment of a class of maladies that have been with him a long and patient study. To be able to treat successfully chronic diseases it requires that a physician should be a sound, thorough scholar in the art of science and medicine generally. He should give his entire time to their study, be thorough in his investigations and have a long and varied experience. Dr. Brewer claims to work no wonders or to do any more than any well educated physician can do who devotes his whole time to the study and treatment of chronic diseases exclusively and has had his many years of experience. For years Dr. Brewer has visited the places he now visits, and has obtained his reputation by being honest in his dealings, candid in his opinions and reasonable in his charges. Those who are afflicted are invited to call, investigate and decide for themselves. It will cost nothing to do so. Address all letters to F. B. BREWER, M. D., Lock Box 350, Cilicago,

> DURING the past few weeks of fine weather the streets of Buchanan have been so crowded with teams that hitching space was at a premium. This was especially true last Saturday, and the roads in some parts of the country next to impassable.

THE street and sidewalk committee put in the day Monday examining into the condition of the sidewalks in various parts of town, and have ordered a number of changes made at once. The places where safety demands changes are quite numerous.

REV. C. G. THOMAS' little daughter was run over by a team while crossing the street in front of the parsonage, Saturday night, and quite severely, although not seriously, injured. A grey woolen shawl she was wearing could not be found, and was probably carried away by the rig that ran over her.

They had a few weeks since is in Chicago this their examination yesterday and were held for trial. The old lady give bail but her husband, son and daughter have gone to jail. The stolen goods were found in their house.

Miss Thurston, who has been employed as teacher in the grammar department of Buchanan school the past term, will teach here no more this year. She can get better wages for less work in Cass county, and Buchanan school renews its old and oft repeated experience of losing a good teacher by the competition of our neighbors who know the value of good work in a school room.

DIED in Jackson, Mich., March 4, '84, deorge Cottrell in the seventy-seventh vear of his age. He leaves to mourn the loss of a kind father, four sons and one daughter and several grand children. His funeral was attended at Three Rivers by Eld. James Ferris, of Kalamazoo. Words of comfort were spoken from Job xiv: 14, "If a man die shall he live again?" We have been having some pretty hot sunshine for this part of the year. On Monday Mr. Nelson Parketon placed a package of dry goods in the rear of his buggy, so that the sun shone on it, and in a few minutes the bystanders discovered the package to be on fire. He had placed the package in a dishpan, which acted as a concave mirror

THE new Council starts out with one good move, in prohibiting dealers in agricultural implements and other bulky goods from blocking up the streets for the purpose of display. Any injury that might accrue to any one by being thrown against such machinery, in case of a runaway or other accident, would render the village liable for damage, the same as in case of a dangerous sidewalk. The same is true where the street is blocked up with saw logs, as is the case in a number of places about town.

MR. FRED SMITH returned from Florida last Thursday evening. Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Roe stayed in Chicago until the next evening, when they followed. The Doctor has been dispensing information to the curious in large doses since. F'rinstance, the way they tell in Florida, when one of their hogs is fat enough to butcher, is to lift the hog up by the ears, and if the snout is heaviest he needs more grass, but if the tail goes down he is good meat. The dictor appears to be pleased with some features of that State, but the indolence of the inhabitants is hardly compatible with the industrious habits of the Doctor.

ST. JOSEPH has an improvement association, composed of ladies of that place, whose purpose is to improve Lake Front Park, which they will commence soon. The location of this park is unexcelled for its beauty and extensive views. It is about threefourths of a mile in length, fronting upon the lake and river, about 70 feet above their level. It is covered with a fine sward, and has several natural groves of junipers. There are several picturesque ravines in it which will be partially cleared and spanned with rustic bridges. When the improvements contemplated are completed the park will challenge comparison with any in

A Prohibition Convention for Berrien county was held in Good Templars' Hall Tuesday. There were delegates from the several townships who, under the instructions of Mr. Moore who was sent here for the purpose, decided that for the best interest of the temperance cause it was necessary to have a new party, that shall defeat the Republican party and throw the control of affairs into the hands of the avowed enemies of all temperance legislation or enforcement, as has been done in a number of other states where third party temperance work has been tried. The record of the meeting shows a unanimous vote on this question. The Convention adopted a platform substantially the same as that of the state organization, and chose delegates to a State Convention. The majority of the temperance people in this section do not believe in this method of cutting off their own noses, but it requires but a few fanatics in each neighbarhood to form an organization, and defeat the end for which they pretend to be working.

THE denizens of the county capital are laughing themselves sick at the expense of the democratic county clerk. Two germans came into the office to be naturalized. O'Hara invited them to be seated while he made out their papers. When this was done and were ready to depart, they asked the fee and were told that he would charge them $1 each This they thought pretty high, and after sizing them up the generous clerk dropped to $1 for the two. And finally asking of their circumstances learned that they owned only twenty acres each of poor Bainbridge sand. This touched his heart and he told them he would charge them nothing. They were very thankful, and asked him when they could vote. He kindly informed them that if they remained in this state they might vote at the next fall election. At this they were highly elated and excaimed: Py Cott! Datist schust vat ve wants. De tam Democrats ish kitting too tick town in Painbridge und ve wants to glean dem ouet. "If I had known that," says O'Hara, "I

NEW ORLEANS, March 25. — The Picayune's Calera (Ala.) special says transactions were consummated to-day involving the investment of $1,500,000 here by a Michigan company, of which Anderson and Fox are the principal men. A large iron furnace and agricultural implement manufactory will be established.

NEARLY forty years ago a raft con-taining about thirty black walnut logs, of nearly four feet in diameter each, was broken and sunk in the St. Joseph river about ten miles from its mouth. This winter a speculator from Kentucky, hearing of it, has been raising and getting them to market, doing the work so quietly that no effort was made to stop him. The logs were sound, and being water cured—the best seasoning they can get—they brought him about $75 per thousand.—Downgi

A queer frenk of the imagination is that of one of Berrien township's oldest citizens, who has seen his four score and four years, and is quite intelligent and talks rational upon all subjects but the bug question, which he has been wrestling with for the past four or five years. The old man says he was eating a watermelon and had it partly eaten when he made the discovery that it was literally alive with little creeping bugs, which he had been eating, and now they are creeping all through his flesh and over his body He keeps his eyes shut to keep the pesky bugs out. He works day and night brushing the bugs off with his hands or with a common horse brush onto a paper or on the floor, where he rubs them under his boot, killing them in his imagination. They got to put ting in their work too lively one day and the old man took refuge in the hay-mow, where he was found covered up in the hay trying to get away from his tormentors, the bugs. The disease he is supposed to be afflicted with is creeping palsy.—Berrien Centre Cor Niles Democrat.

Love cannot die. ANECDOTE OF A QUEEN.

A Story Concerning Queen-Dowager Emma of the Hawaiian Islands. [Cor. San Francisco Call.]

The arrival in this city the other day of that "Queen of Tahiti" who was no queen of Tahiti at all, reminds me of a story the Queen-dowager Emma of the Hawaiian islands told me of her experience the first time she visited San Francisco. "Emma," as she is familiarly but always respectfully spoken of by her people, is three-quarters "white," as the expression goes, being the daughter of an English father and a "half white" (Hawaiian and English) mother. She is therefore not darker than a decidedly brunette Caucasian. In her suite of females were a number of half-white and pure-blooded Hawaiians. One of the latter was a strapping big girl, with the independent swagger and upright carriage peculiar to Sandwich Island women of all classes, and this woman nearly everybody here who saw the party insisted upon was the queen. She was b'g and very dark, which satisfied the popular idea con-cerning Emma better than the queen's own proper description: Petite in person and comparatively light in complexion. "Lalani"—that was the big girl's name—received the homage of clerks, shop people, chambermaids, waiters, bell-boys, and the uninformed public generally with such evidences of royal condescension as she thought the occasion demanded, being encouraged in maintaining the common delusion by the queen, who thus escaped in and out of the hotels and stores, etc., unnoticed and inconvenienced. The party was in a fashionable dry-goods house one day, when, as usual, the crowd was thickest around Lalani, and thinnest about Emma. The former, seeing some particularly rich and dazzlingly bright silk and velvet, ordered a liberal supply for a dress, to be sent to her hotel. "And when shall I send the bill, your majesty?" inquired the ever cautious though obsequious salesman. Oh, never mind about that; Lalani will pay the cash now," replied Lalaui herself, and then, attracting the queen's attention by speaking in native to her, added in English: "Here Lalani, see what my bill is and pay it, please."

To have rebuked the hussy there would have made a scene, but that consideration aside, the splendid assurance of the girl, and the sight of the halfgrinning, half-affrighted faces of the other women in the suite, drove out of her mind whatever indignation the queen may have felt. Stepping to the salesman, she inquired, "How much, please?

The queen rather choked at the answer, "One hundred and fifteen dollars, please," but swallowing her amazement the best she could, proceeded to settle the bill in good gold coin, while the triumphant and only slightly trembling real Lalani regarded the success of her joke in apparently queenly indifference to such trifles as dry-goods bills.

In telling this story Queen Emma concluded: "I never even rebuked the girl, who I afterward learned, played the joke on a 'dare' from the other girls. I thought I owed that much to her for the share of the public attention intended for me which she relieved me

Protected His Family. [Arkansaw Traveler.]

A Little Rock lawyer of prominence went home the other morning at an unseemly hour. 🔏 🦠 "Why are you so late?" asked his wife.

"I am not late. I am early." "Why didn't you come home last

"Drunk." "Couldn't you walk?" "Not without staggering."

"Why didn't you stagger home, "Well, I'll tell you. My house has the name of being an orderly place, and I didn't want people to be seen staggering into the yard. Every man must protect his family, you know." IN MADAGASCAR.

The Land of Grasshopper Roasts, Deified Crocodiles and Myriads of Insect Terrors. [Cincinnati Enquirer Interview.]

"How did you like the country?" "Like it! Why, there isn't a redeeming feature about it. Why, it was enough to sicken one to see what the people eat there. In the market at Tamatave I have seen great heaps of small locusts dried and exposed for sale. They were about half-roasted, and made me sick to look at them. There are no roads-barely bridle paths-through the woods, and travel is accomplished on foot or in palanquins-long bamboo poles borne on the shoulders of natives. The interior of the country is filled with dense forests, and during the rainy seasons great quantities of decaying vegetable matter are brought down. There is a great deal of lake an I marsh on the coast and plains bordering on the sea, and these give rise to the Malagasy fever. The baths and herbs which induce perspira-tion. Quinine is also used in large quantities. Why, you can judge of the unhealthiness of the country, for the French, who for years have tried to establish colonies there, called it 'the Churchyard,' and the Dutch, who were equally unsuccessful, nick-named it 'the Dean Island. "Many wild animals abound there?"

"The woods are full of them; vicious, venomous serpents of extraordinary size. Not snakes, but huge serpents—bodies as big as a man's, and thirty or forty feet long; powerful enough to kill a horse or swallow an ox. They hang down from the limbs in the forests and snatch up the natives going along and make a breakfast off one with as much unconcern as a fly taps a sugar cork. Near Andavaka Menarana is a deep cave called 'The Serpents' Hole.' and it is so full of them that they frequently drive the villagers all indoors. Then they have a sort of monkey there called the 'Aye-Aye.' It has teeth like a chisel and a claw with a prong or hook to it. It lives on bugs that it digs out of the trees; and then the rivers swarm with crocodiles, the biggest I ever saw. These the natives worship as water-gods, and are super-stitious about killing them. They try to propitiate the creatures by prayers and throwing in charms or odys, but their virtue is owing to the noise and shouting and beating the water with which the offering of ody is always accompanied. Why, these animals eat up all the sheep and hogs, and even larger cattle that come anywhere near the banks; and they don't refuse women and children who venture near. "At Jtasy, which is a fine lake, sixty miles west of the capital, the people be-lieve that if a crocodile be killed a human life will within a very short time be exacted by the monster's brother relatives as an atonement for the death. When I was there some Frenchmen shot several, and they had to leave the country at once, or the people would have murdered them. The earth has white cats, the air wild bees, sand-flies and musquitoes as big as beetles, and whose sting hurts like a dog's bite. The ants are the greatest pests I ever saw. They eat every article of provision or apparel; scarce any precaution can elude their vigilance and cunning. They raise a hollow cyclinder of earth perpendicularly toward their object, and through it, as by a ladder, they ascend by thousands. They are terrible persecutors of the sick; they will reach the bed in a night's time, though hung at a a distance from the ground, when their bites, like scalding water poured upon the skin, was more intolerable than the disease itself.

"The sand-flies and musquitoes were terrible plagues, but nothing to compare with the wild bees, who would swarm in the bed-rooms and sting every intruder. Locusts come two or three times in a summer and eat up everything green. But nature is so prolific here that in eight days the verdure will be all out again. There were baboons as big as good-sized boys. Of poisonous spiders there are two kinds whose bite is deadly. One, a small black fellow, is called menarody. Those who are bitten fall into a swoon, and their bodies become as cold as ice. The other one is called the foka, or crabspider. The bite is followed by swelling, which begins at the part wounded, and spreads through the whole body. The animal is maroon-colored, and death ensues in five hours."

Bulwer's Gambling.

[Exchange.] Early one morning Bulwer, the novelist, returned to his hotel from a gambling-house, where he had been passing the last hours of the night. For the first time in his life he had played high; and, with the insidious good fortune so frequently attendant on the first steps along what would otherwise be the shortest and least attractive pathway to perdition, he had gained largely. The day was dawning when he reached his own rooms. His writing desk stood upon a consote in front of a mirror; and pausing over it to lock up his winnings, he was startled and shocked by the reflection of his face in the glass behind it. The expression of the countenance was not only haggard, it was sinister. He had risked far more than he could afford to lose; his luck had been extraordinary and his gains were great. But the ignoble emotions of the night had left their lingering traces in his face, and, as he caught sight of his own features still working and gleaming with the fever of a vicious excitement, he, for the first time, despised himself. It was then he formed a resolution that, be the circumstances what they might, no inducement, whether of need or greed, should again tempt him to become a gambler.

Origin of Worcestershire Sauce.

[London World.] Although inferior in money-making power to a pill, a sauce, too, can make the guineas roll briskly in, and notably has this been the case with Worcestershire. A scrutiny of the label-will show that it is prepared "from the recipe of a nobleman of the county." The nobleman is Lord Sandys, and Messrs. Lea & Perrins connection with the sauce came about rather curiously.

Many years ago, Mrs. Grey, author of "The Gambler's Wife," and other novels, well known in their day, was on a visit at Ombersley Court, when Lady Sandys chanced to remark that she wished she could get some very good curry powder; which elicited from Mrs. Grey that she had in her desk an excellent recipe, which her uncle, Sir Charles, chief justice of India, had brought thence and given her. Lady Sandys said that there were some clever chemists in Worcester, who perhaps might be able to make up the powder; at all events, when they drove in after lunch they would see.

Messrs. Lea & Perrins looked at the recipe, doubted if they could procure all the ingredients, but said they would do their best, and inductime forwarded a packet of the powder. Subsequently the happy thought struck some one in the business that the powder might, in solution, make a good sauce. The experiment was made, and by degrees the thing took amazingly. All the world to its remotest ends now knows of Worcestershire sauce as an article of commerce; and notwithstanding that, in common with most good things, it is terribly pirated, an enormous trade is done in it. The profits, I am told, amount to thousands of pounds a year, and I cannot but suppose that liberal checks have passed from the firm to Mrs. Grey, to whom it is so heavily in-Grey, to whom it is s debted for its prosperity.

[Youth's Companion.] Charles Sumner, when in London, gave a ready reply. At a dinner given in his honor, he spoke of "the ashes" of some dead hero.

"Ashes! What American English!" rudely broke in an Englishman. "Dust, you mean, Mr. Sumner. We don't burn our dead in this country."
"Yet," instantly replied Mr. Sumner, with a curious smile, "your poet Gray tells us that 'Even in our ashes live their wonted fires!"" The American was not criticised again that evening.

JUSTICE WAITE'S DILEMMA. Amusing Adventures of the Head of the Supreme Court. [Washington Cor. Chicago News.] Having an imperative engagement in Baltimore some time ago, Chief Justice Waite, of the supreme court, hurried to the Baltimore & Ohio depot ten minutes before the train started. As he was about to purchase a ticket he discovered to his horror that he had only a few pennies in his pocket. Helco'sed around for a friend, but, finding none he resolved to use a desperate measure. He filed up in the line to the ticketwindow. As he reached the agent he smiled an awful smile across the full width of his enormous mouth, and asked the ticket agent if he knew him.

"No, I don't," snarled the agent;
"and what is more I don't want to. What do you want?"

"I want a ticket to Baltimore and return. I am the chief justice of the supreme court. I have no money with me. It is purely accidental. I can give you my personal check," replied the representative of justice. "Oh, I know you. I know all the bloods. But that dodge won't work on me. I have just had two members of the cabinet try to bilk me out of tickets and no chief justice dodge gets me. Take your ugly mug out of the window and get out of the way of people who have money." The chief justice glared. He could not fine the young man for contempt of court. He felt worse than if he had been a real fraud, and he blushed and perspired so that the agent had his belief strengthened. The chief justice dashed out of the station to see if he could not find some one to identify him. He had only five minutes left. It was too short a time to run to the capitol. He saw no one. Across the street there was a saloon and an eating-house. The chief justice made a rush for the place, but stopped at the door. Spying a private entrance, he rushed in and accosted the proprietor with the frantic inquiry, "Do you know me?"

"Yer bet yer head I do, yer honor," said a short-haired, freckled-face man behind the bar; "ye are the boss of the shuprame coort. I see ye ivery day going by here on the cars."

"Will you cash my check? I have no time to explain." Here the justice graphed a piece of paper and a per grabbed a piece of paper and a pen upon a desk near by, and began to write hurriedly. "Shure I will. I have seen old boys off on a tear before, get out of money. Trusht me, sor. Is it a twenty ye wan:? Here it is. Will ye have a drop before ye run?"

But before any further explanation could be made the chief justice grabbed the money and was running across the street. In some way the ticket agent had learned of his blunder during the the judge's absence, and was all politeness when he saw the money. Mr. Waite barely made the train, but he has not had such a shock to his dignity since he went upon the bench of the supreme court.

CHINESE GORDON'S PLUCK.

One Hundred and Fifty Miles in Seventeen Hours to Win His Clasps. [United Service Monthly Review.]

Yes, Chinese Gordon (then captain of Royal engineers) very nearly had to put up with a docker for the China campaign of 1860. But, perhaps, before relating the following anecdote, I ought to explain the meaning of the word docker. It is the British soldier slang term for a war medal without clasps, and originated in the Crimea-a medal only being awarded to soldiers who arrived after the docks were blown up on the evacuation of Sebastopol by the Ru sians. In like manner in China a medal only was awarded to soldiers who were in the country, but not present with the army before Pekin on October 6. 1S60.

It is not necessary to relate how

Capt. Gordon was ordered to the seat of war, suffice it that he arrived by steamer from Hong Kong at the Taku forts some time during the day of October 4, 1860, where he immediately heard of the taking of the forts, followed by the advance of the allied armies on Pekin. To join his comrades at the front and take part in the siege and occupation of the capital was his first thought, but how to get there was another thing. He was told that there was no conveyance faster than the usual convoy of all stores and spare ammunition, strongly guarded on account of the many desperate bands of la-la-longs (thieves, marauders) that are always to be found hanging on the outskirts of an advancing army in an enemy's country. But Churley Gordon was not the man to be denied. He skirmished round and eventually picked up a stray Tartar pony, brought it to the transport stables, got a bridle and numna there, put ship's biscuits in his pocket, slung a water bottle, buckled on his sword and revolver, jumped on his pony, and the next minute was going at a hand gallop, amid the cheering of the men, along the road leading to Pekin, which he had never seen or heard, or read of before, and infested with thieves-distant 150 miles. Well do I recollect the night of the 5th-6th of October, 1860, although now nearly twenty-four years ago. For two weeks we had been working hard getting the breaching guns into posi-tion, and on the morning before dawn they were to open, when a breach being practicable we were to storm. A few of us were discussing our positions in the morning's work, sitting and standing around the camp-fire when an highish officer covered with dust rode up on a woe-begone pony and inquired if this was the engineer camp. Before any cou'd answer he threw himself of, saying, "How are you Graham, old fellow?" seeing Maj. Graham, royal engineers, who was one of our party, and an old comrade of Gordon's in the

You may imagine our astonishment when we recognized in the newcomer Charley Gordon. He had actually ridden the 150 miles in seventeen hours, most of the time with revolver in one hand and sword in the other, and what between shooting and shouting he had managed to escape scot free the many attempts that were made to capture him, arriving just in time to take part in the operations of the morning.

After a few minutes' conversation he went off arm in arm with his old friend to get some refreshment and an hour or two's sleep, for Graham was to lead the tormers in the morning, and it was largely surmised that Gordon wou'd ask permission to accompany It was a daring ride, and the whole army talked of it and how Gordon saved a docker.

People with Short Memories. [New York Sun.] "I see many curious cases here," said the detective, "of people who forget just what they most wish to remember, who do precisely the thing that they did not intend doing, and who go just where they had no idea of going. I had a short-minded case last week of a man who has given me more or less trouble for two years past, but this time be excelled himself. He was hardly aboard of his train before he was off again and rushing for this room; he had lost something, of course. But what was it? He went over and under the benches, turned his pockets inside out, and even searched his hat. The train had been gone fifteen minutes, and he had not even got so far as to remember what he was searching for. At last he gave it up, and went to the tele-graph office, where he wrote out a mes-sage to a Philadelphia friend to watch every man who left the train which he had intended to take, and try to recognize any of his property, particularly his 'models.' He was an inventor, and thought the lost article might have been a model. Then he started back to his office to see if he had left his lost prop erty there. As he was crossing West street he chanced to run against what he was looking for. It was his son, a bright lad, whom he had taken to business with him in the morning. That telegram to Philadelphia cost him $3.

"I believe I have now on hand an assortment of every known variety of short memory in the market. The remark most frequently heard from the great unreliables is, 'There, I told that man to remind me of it. They are the men who forget because they don't give attention to anything; they are always in a hurry, and always get left. One of my customers has a memory which may be called doubly short. Yesterday he forgot where he had put a package, spoke to me about it and found it five minutes afterward in his coat tail pocket. This morning he came run-ing up to me and asked me if I had heard anything about his lost package. I said I thought he would find it in his tail pocket, which he did. He first forgot the article, then remembered after he got home—that he had forgotten it, but forgot that he had found it. It's rather tough when you come to look

Bread from Grass. [Scientific Press.] On the west coast of England grows a sort of sea grass (porphyra laciniata) which is made into something very like bread. In the main it is gathered by women; they then wash it and pluck all other plants carefully from it. After this it is boiled for some two hours; then the mass is cut in pieces with knives and kneaded into loaves. Oat meal is then strewed over it to give it greater cohesion and a more inviting appearance, and then it is baked. It keeps in summer for four days, and in winter for eight. Many women on the coast of Devonshire earn their living by selling this bread, and most of it is sent to Swansea, in Wales, where it is much

[Scientific Journal.] A profound political economist connected with the University of Berlin tells his classes that the nation which will finally take the lead in the world will be the one which will annually raise the largest amount of the best fertilizers. The virgin soils of America, Africa and the great islands of the sea will be all brought into cultivation in the course of the next century or two, and all the nations will have steam, electricity, and a whole patent office of labor-saving machines. Then the balance will lean towards the people that can put into the soil the best and the most fertilizing ingredients.

ommercial Travelers at a Wayside Inc Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fil; your experience of the world; your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that, you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last Auguest and was addressed to a semidirele of commercial travelers scated on the porch of the Lindell Hoel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes," re. ponded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he runs his risks, toorisks outside the chances of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instances?"

"This, for instance," said Mr. W. D. Franklin, who was then traveling for an Eastern house, and is known to mychants in all parts of the country; "The risk—which, indeed, amounts almost to a certainty—of getting the drspepsia from per_ctual change of dict and water and from having no fixed hours for cating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say was, for I am all right now."

"No discount on your digestion?" broke in a Chica<sub>2</sub>o dry goods traveler, lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia runed my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC I tried it and fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth, in my opinion, equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia.

t. , ....ema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an an are state of the blood. To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and naural condition. Aver's Sarsaparilla has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

It is an English novelty and the first that came had a water-mark of a Roman soldier's head and below the letters "B. C. 55."

The Paleographic is an exaggeration of the same idea. The cover of the box says that the paper was found in Pompeii, and it certainly looks so. The A guaranteed cure for Gonorrhea and Gleet. Varieties of Dyewoods. Exchange.

The different kinds of dyewoods used in this country are logwood and fustic, from the West Indies; lima, from the shores of the Pacific, and the bar and cam woods from Africa. The woods mentioned, with the exception of fustic, which is yellow, are red, but of various shades. The sapponia wood, which is: delicate pink, comes from the Eas: Indies. The costs of the woods in the rough are, according to The Providence Journal, as follows: Logwood, from $20 to $25 a ton: the red woods, from $40 to $70 a ton, and the cam wood about $150 a ton. The latter wood comes from the interior of Africa, costs considerable for transportation, and is becoming scarce. Cam wood is used mostly by woolen manufacturers in making their dyes. This wood is drawn to the markets in Africa by slaves, and very frequently staples and chains are found attached to the logs when they arrive in this city, and poisonous insects of that clime are often found in the hollows of the wood, which are speedily anteresting Incidents of Tom Hood's

In a recently published diary of Joaquin Miller, he tells some interesting incidents of his life in London.

Among others whom he met was Tom

Ecod, son of the great Tom Hood, author of "The Bridge of Sighs." Artemus Ward, our great American humorist, drew his last breath in England, and as he lay dying in Hood's arms at Southampton, he whispered to him, "Don't tell my mother, Tom. Don't let them write to her. Keep it from her for a year or two, and then she will not know it till she sees me on the other side. She is very old." These were Ward's last words, says Mr. Miller. The first evening that the latter spent with

Hood, he brought out a great basket and emptied it on the table. This was his father's scrap basket and contained all the papers, manuscripts and drawings that his son had collected and kept. Of course Miller was very anxious to see the original manuscript of the "Bridge of Sighs," but there was not one line of it preserved. They found a few lines have the translations.

He had been very kind to him, and Mr. Miller applied to the procedure of follows: during the last few years of his life, The custom of naming steamships has many curious features. fhe Puzzling Red Sunset Phenomena [Prof. Daniel Kirkwood.]

No recent phenomena has more puzded astronomers than the remarkable appearance of the atmosphere as oberved after sunset and before sunrise during the last five months. These brilliant glows have been seen in all parts of the habitable world. They were first noticed on the 28th of August, and they may still be seen, both morning and evening, when the state of the at-mosphere is favorable. It is well known, in fact, that on any clear day the matter by which the appearance is produced may be seen around the sun, extending to a distance of twenty or thirty degrees. The phenomena have been ascribed:

1. To watery vapor in the atmos-2. To meteoric matter through which the earth has been supposed to be passing; and 3. To the volcanic eruptions of Java and Alaska. The first conjecture has been disproved by the spectroscope. The second may be said to be rendered extremely improbable by the long continuance of the glows. The earth crosses the meteoric streams of August and November in a few days at most, but the present phenomena have already lasted more than five months. The volcanic hypothesis is received with most favor, and we must either accept it or admit that the true explanation remains to be discovered. In the last number of The Sidereal Messenger, I have briefly stated some objections to this theory, as follows: "No similar results—at least to any great extent had been known to follow volcanic eruptions. If the matter started from Java on the 26th of August, its rate of motion through the atmosphere till its appearance in Brazil was 109 miles an hour. Or, if we assume that the appearance in South America was derived from the Alaska outburst, we have the additional improbability that results of a character before unknown follow volcanic eruptions in opposite hemispheres at nearly the same time. Again, what force could have maintained this volcanic matter at so great an elevation during a period of several months?"

MOUNT VESUVIUS' CRATER.

In short, no explanation yet offered is free from serious difficulties.

One of the Great Freaks of Nature ---Climbing Up to the Mountain Top. ["Nasby's" European Letter.]

It is not the greatest wonder in Europe, looked at simply as one of the great freaks of nature, for everything great is a freak, whether it is a mountain or a man. The regular thing is a dead level, and anything which chal-lenges attention and holds it, is a freak. The average is the natural thing beyond is abnormal. Vesuvius is by no means as impos ing, considered merely as a mountain, as scores of others, nor does it impress the observer. Mount Blanc, lifting its snow-crowned summit into the skies, is a greater and a grander object, and so is the Jungfrau. Anl so likewise are scores of mountain peaks in the Sierras. Vesuvius is a mountain of no extra-ordinary height, clad with vines at the base and above to its very crown, as ugly as sin when you are near enough to it. There is always a column of smoke rising from its summit, which is beaut ful at a distance, but in and of itself does not either awe or inspire. As a part of a picture the mountain is wonderfully beautiful. It is a proper finish to the magnificent bay at its base, and the islands that dot the bay would lose half their beauty but for this giant among them that makes always a great back-ground. By itself it is only so so; as a part of a magnificent whole it is wonderful, because it is exactly what is necessary to the rest. Nature always finishes up everything.

To get up to the crater there are two ways. English capitalists, who are argus-eyed, saw that the whole world had to go up Vesuvius, and they immediately set about making profit out of it. A company built a railroad from the foot of the mountain almost to its summit, straight up the side, the same as the one to the top of Mount Washington. This road is extended in almost to the edge of the crater and you go that way if you choose.

Up the mountain you climb. For a few miles you ride through vineyards, olive and mulberry orchards, through little lanes and by villages all crowded with beggars. Then you come into vast fields of cinders, through which you toil painfully, until finally worn out and with a secret abjurgation at the precessity that compalled you to the the necessity that compelled you to the toil, you reach the lower edge of the lava fields.

The crater is simply a vast bottom less gulf, but with the breath of the fires in the earth's center, which cannot be described. From the gulf ascends forever the smoke of nature's torment. It is as near an approach to the old orthodox idea of a hell as can be well imagined. It is a gulf with fire in its interior, a fire that is never quenched, but burns on forever and forever. What feeds it? Who knows? Science stops short at this point, as it does at many others. Conjectures are as plenty as blackberries, but as to certainties, it is, and that is all that is known of it or ever will be. No one can ever go down into the devil's kitchen to find out, and it doesn't make much difference whether it is ever known. Like a great many other things Vesuvius is at its best at a distance. Distance softens the horrors of the cinder and lava fields. Across the bay you cannot see that horrid cavern, the crater, the smoke that ascends forever is soft and feathery, not angry and fierce as when close to it, the horrible precipices and ugly jagged rocks are softened in their outlines, and the haze of the atmosphere softens and blends what is really fearful, close at hand, into something beautiful. Vesuvius is beautiful from the Naples side—it is a terror when you are actually
