

FOR PRESIDENT, JAMES C. BLAINE, OF MAINE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, JOHN A. LOGAN, OF ILLINOIS.

September 15 to 19 are the dates decided upon for the state fair at Kalamazoo.

It cannot be said that the Republican candidates of '84 are unknown quantities.

One most encouraging thing about the Republican nomination is that the Democrats do not like it.

The Pacific Slope delegation to the Republican Convention went to Maine with the delegates from that state to visit the next President.

Oregon was the first of the states to hold an election this year, June 2, and opened the ball by giving a good Republican victory.

There is a desire with some business men for the coinage of a half cent piece.—Mirror.

Some mistake about that, sure. No business man in this country is that small.

Ben. Butler will probably be nominated for President again June 19. The American party holds a Convention in Chicago on that day, and he expects to gather them into the fold.

The highly intellectual and educated Greenback Governor of this state finds the word "Geo zuz" in his spiritual vocabulary. The great and growing state of Michigan is proud of him.

It is not to be wondered at that Cuba should want some one to buy her. Her entire sugar crop, which is her leading crop, lacks several million dollars of being sufficient to pay her tax to her owner, Spain.

The morning papers of to-day contain an open letter from Samuel J. Tilden, politely and profusely declining to allow his name to be used as a Democratic candidate for President. This is the strongest evidence we have had that Mr. Tilden is a smart man. He evidently foresees the fate of the coming Democratic nominee.

A French astronomer has discovered, beyond all doubt in his mind, that the moon is inhabited and covered with luxuriant green fields, and abounds in evidence of a high state of modern civilization. It will now be in order for some enterprising Yankee to bring a telephone wire and have a breakfast chat with the man in the moon.

The board of fish commissioners are anxious to get as full information as possible in regard to the success of their efforts in stocking the lakes and streams of this state with food fish. Therefore, they ask the co-operation of all persons interested in the matter, to furnish them a report as full as possible of the present condition of the lakes and streams throughout the state. Any information in regard thereto will be thankfully received by the board. Address all communications to A. J. Kellogg, No. 1 Larned street west, Detroit.

The Democrats are having considerable hilarity because the Harper's Weekly, Brooklyn Eagle, and a number of other papers of a semi-Republican character have kicked over the traces since the nomination of Blaine and Logan. They forget that almost the same list of papers performed in precisely the same way four and eight years ago, and are considered nowhere as unhappy unless barking. George Williams Curtis went into the convention, a delegate, with the threat that if the nomination was not exactly in accordance with his views he would not support it, and after it was made did not know whether he would support it until he had heard from his maker, Harper Brothers.

Some of our Republican exchanges have been exulting over Col. L. F. Copeland's political change of heart. We have been writing very patiently for friend Holmes, of the BUCHANAN RECORD, where the Col. lived several years, to lift up his dulcet voiced in the chorus, but it don't lift; and the Record is a shining light in the party of great moral ideas, too.—Paw Paw Courier.

The great change that has come over the "Col." is a sad stroke to the Democracy. The affinity between the "Col." and that party was perfect. Our sorrow at their loss has been beyond the expression of words, and we were waiting for our disgust at the new acquisition to the "party of great moral ideas" to so far abate that the words that pass through our mind would be suitable to appear in print.

The Republican Convention finished its work Thursday by the nomination on the fourth ballot, Hon. James G. Blaine for President and John A. Logan for Vice President, there being but seven dissenting votes against the latter. This Convention had the moral courage that was lacking in others that have gone before, to place before the people the most prominent and able men in the country, instead of putting them aside for men who are practically unheard of. The ticket could not be made stronger by looking the country over, and that will carry victory before it, and one that is already creating an enthusiasm that has not been known in many years.

Following is the platform adopted by unanimous vote of the convention: "The Republicans of the United States, in National Convention assembled, renew their allegiance to the principles upon which they have for so long and successful a career been engaged, and reiterate their faith in the administration by which the Republican party has, after saving the Union, done so much to render it happy and free, and to secure the safeguard of liberty and the embolism of the best thought and highest purposes of our citizens. The Republican party has gained its strength by quick and faithful response to the demands of the people for the freedom and equality of all men for a United States, assuring the rights of all citizens, and the maintenance of the Union, and the promotion of the progress and reform. We lament the death of President Fremont, whose sound sense, manly, long and successful career, gave promise fully realized during the short period of his administration. We regret the loss of the distinguished statesman in war and peace had endeared him to the hearts of the American people. In the administration of President Armitage we recognize a wise, conservative and patriotic policy of the country, and we believe his administration will be remembered with respect and honor by every citizen.

It is the duty of a good government to promote the interests of its own people, and the largest diversity of industry is most productive of general prosperity and the highest good of the people. We therefore demand that the impolicy and extravagance of the present administration be corrected, and that the revenue not be used for the purpose of a war, but for the benefit of the people.

Against the social-economic system of the Democratic party, which would destroy the labor of the foreign stranger, we enter our earnest protest, and we demand that the country be relieved of the burden of unnecessary taxation, and that the people be enabled to acquire property, and that the means be provided for the victims and indiscriminate process of horizontal reduction, but by such methods as will result in the preservation of the people, and the greatest productive interests of the country.

There are a few in the west part of town who have for a number of years been carrying on a promiscuous help-yourself-to-your-neighbor's-fruit, that will be tolerated until they can be detected, which will be soon if they continue their depredations in broad daylight, as they did Sunday afternoon, and then they will get shot either with a load of bird shot or a warrant for petty larceny. That kind of work is getting entirely too common in that part of the commonwealth.

A PROPOSITION is before the owners of property in the vicinity of the large lumberyard, two miles west of this place, to put an eighteen inch tile in the drain across George Boyl's farm and lower the water three or four feet below its present level. This would make the marsh dry enough for cultivation, and make a number of hundred acres of good land out of what is now practically worthless. The estimated cost of the work is about $1,500, but this is small in comparison with the benefit that will be derived from it.

The Democratic County Convention held in Berrien Springs Monday was attended by delegates from all but two townships in the county. Rather queer, it is not that a township should so far forget itself as to allow a convention of a great reform party to pass unattended? The delegates from this township are Wm. Osborn, to the State, and John Mansfield to the district convention. One of them means Tilden and the other doesn't.

Mr. JOHNSON, living in the north part of this township, had the model of his patent fire escape in his place Tuesday, on exhibition. He has a patent for this country and has sent his model to Canada for a patent in that suburb. The machine consists of a heavy truck, on which is mounted a folding ladder that is operated by a series of cranks from the ground. The ladder carrying with it a hose, the whole quite ingeniously and effectively arranged.

MICHAEL HAGERTY, a Frenchman from the Emerald Isle, a professional tramp who has grown grey in the business, came before Esquire Dick yesterday, charge vagrancy and goes to Ionia for six months. He has been playing the deaf mute dodge, and hanging around town for a number of days, and making a general nuisance of himself.

Those who are anxious to hear of the developments of the narrow gauge railroad extension will please be patient. The man that we are able to learn is that there is no bad news, which is encouraging so far as it goes. We have had so many promises regarding the future of the road that we are apt to look upon all new ones with distrust. We have faith, however, that they are genuine this time, and expect to see dirt move before long, or sooner.

THE Michigan Central, "Niagara Falls Route," has arranged for three grand excursions via Toledo, Detroit, Niagara Falls, the peerless St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Lake Memphremagog, Bethlehem, Fabians, the White Mountains, through the Notch and North Conway, to Portland, Maine, and the Sea-shore, Wednesday, June 25th, Tuesday, July 15th, and August 5th, 1884. A round trip ticket from Buchanan for either excursion will cost $27.95, and will be good for 60 days.

THE stockholders of the Michigan and Indiana branches of the narrow gauge railroad met in this place last Thursday and succeeded in consolidating the two companies, under the name of the Michigan part of the road, "St. Joseph Valley Railroad," and elected a new corps of officers. Following are the officers elected by the consolidated company: President, Thomas B. Innes, New York; Vice President, George H. Richards; Secretary, J. H. Matthews; Treasurer, J. L. Richards; Auditor, R. D. Dix; General Manager, E. C. Chase. The Directors are Thos. B. Innes, Geo. H. Richards, J. H. Matthews, R. D. Dix, Warren Chapman, A. F. Ross, Thos. S. Stanfield, E. C. Chase and Wm. R. Rough.

THE wife and relatives of Mr. Seb. A. Johnson would take this opportunity to return their most sincere thanks to their special friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted them through Mr. Johnson's illness; and also the many friends and acquaintances who came and paid their last tribute of respect to the deceased. Special thanks are due and are tendered to the Buchanan choir, and also to Rev. Isaac Taylor, C. G. Thomas and W. S. Jakways for their presence and assistance in the funeral ceremony.

WHAT shall we do with the tramps? is a question that is worrying the minds of the Justices. Since the Supreme Court decided against sending these vagabonds to Ionia, where they are made to work, there is no punishment to be meted out, but to send them to jail ninety days, which to them is a luxury, and they put themselves in the way to be sent there. In some towns such cases are sentenced to work at breaking up stone for paving purposes, or some other public work, with the usual convict ornaments. Such towns are not overrun by tramps. It has been suggested that the presence in town of a whipping post would act as a preventive. It probably would.

The vacancy was quite acceptably filled by Hons. J. C. Burrows, and J. W. Baxter, of Jonesville, who was in Berrien Springs on official business connected with the State board of charities, of which he is a member. The crowd was considerably smaller than in former years. The newly elected officers of the association are: President, Levi Sparks; Vice-Presidents, James F. Higby, Geo. H. Murdoch, J. D. Ross, Perry Noggle, James F. Haskins; Secretary, Wm. J. NOW there are those who are complaining because the council has had the side-walk in front of lots belonging to poor widows torn up, and allow those in far worse condition to remain at the front of business blocks on Front street where they are tramped over a hundred times more. BOUCICAULT ON ACTING.

The Letter R—How to Walk on the Stage—A Few Aphorisms.

(Cor. Chicago Herald.)

Mr. Boucicault, in his lecture on "The Art of Acting," said that there are three essential things to be studied by an actor—the management of the voice, gestures above the waist, and position of the body from the waist downward.

As for elocution on the stage, Mr. Boucicault had, he said, a contempt for it. As for gesture, it should slightly precede the words. There is too much gesture on the stage, especially in moments when the actor meditates.

Remember that the stage is a picture, and the proscenium arch is the frame. Don't try the stage trick of looking at the center of the stage or to talk to the house, as we say. In old plays of Shakespeare's plays the principal character was on one side of the stage.

Don't play to the audience. Only American and English actors are capable of observing this rule. In going about the stage (don't turn back to the audience if you can help it.)

Don't mind your clothing, but study the aesthetic side of the character you are to assume. Buffonery has displaced comedy. It is blasphemy of art. Irving and Booth can't do what Salvini does, because they are afraid of the critic, who would think they were going too far.

Collecting Autographs. (The Hour.) We may easily ridicule, if we please to do so, the passion for collecting autographs. It is often developed to a degree that is abnormal.

There is really good reason why a letter or signature of William Shakespeare or John Milton, of Napoleon Bonaparte or George Washington, should give its possessor a well-defined pleasure, a hint—which we could not so well imagine in the absence of such a token—of the great man so represented.

The signature may not be important in itself; it may be connected with no great event; a trivial occasion may have filled it out; but it has a value for us some part of a visible presence; and, by a subtle law of association brings us nearer to the great actor in the world's history, or in the world of thought.

Hitherto it has puzzled eminent surgeons to account for sudden death occurring in some of the most vital parts of the body, such as the heart, by the prick, without penetration even of a needle.

A small boy was taken to an Austin justice's court, that the affray took place on a Sunday. "How do you know it was on Sunday?" "Because that day I had to go to the side door of the saloon to get beer for dinner."

R. W. Conant: What can be more pathetic than the money of the poor? More pathetic than even their wants, for the little they have tells still more eloquently of the much they lack.

MRS. TOM THUMB. Her Appearance in Society—Possibly Not Done Growing. (The Hour.) Speaking of Mrs. Tom Thumb across Mrs. Tom Thumb the other day in the elevated railroad car.

My companion was short and feminine. Said she: "Bless your heart, that little creature isn't practically any more than a good many of the rest of us. Woman's rights are cruelly disregarded by railroad managers, if you take the trouble to notice. They give us shorties a choice between practically standing and not standing on the platform leaning against a seat; or squarely seating ourselves and letting our feet dangle unsupported. Look at that row of women across the car. The only one who sits on the one seat back of the other is the support intended for it, and her feet flat on the floor, is just as tall as you are. All the rest are a dozen sizes too small for the seats. If sitting away back properly, they only touch their feet to the floor—like a line of bullet girls tiptoeing on the stage. Why shouldn't a happy medium in the height of public seats be struck? Why shouldn't a man be made to sit on a level a little below their knees instead of perched on a seat so low that adjustment on our less lengthened seats? Really, I think of writing to Susan B. Anthony about it."

Comfort, Economy and Speed.

The time when the seeker of a new home in the far West and his wearied family were required to suffer the fatigue and discomfort of a long journey in a regular stage coach, with no beds; but the seats, long since passed by a great majority of such passengers being unable to provide their families with the luxuries of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, or account of the expense.

The Agent of the Company at Kansas City will take special pains to locate passengers of the same nationality together, and classify passengers with some consideration of accommodation and congeniality, so as to make their trip as comfortable and enjoyable as possible.

Parties desiring any further information, will be glad to answer the undersigned, receive prompt and courteous attention. Gen. Agent, 54 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

THE PHOTOGRAPHER'S SKILL.

"Aside from the mental impression upon the sitter, in what manner is the sphere of the artist exercised or applied?"

Before answering, Mr. Rockwood placed himself in a sharp, severe light. For the face of those who imagine that the camera is a mere mechanical contrivance, and that the action of the lens is a mere matter of optics, he has a most striking illustration.

THE GREAT ASTOR LIBRARY.

The three generations of Astors are each represented in the great Astor Library. The first generation, John Jacob Astor, founded the library and erected a noble building for it; the second duplicated the gift in books and another similar structure alongside; and the present generation has added a third and more magnificent building, so that now the library and aggregated structures are well worth the journey of Dom Pedro, of Brazil, to this country, as he declared to the Astors, "I have seen the best of the world."
