MR. C. J. SMITH, of New Troy, is announced as candidate for register of deeds. He has Wash Harmon and Wm. A. Wetherby to compete with, and it will make but little difference to the public which is victorious, as either will make a first class officer.

The colored people of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph are making great preparations for celebrating emancipation day, August 1, at Benton Harbor. Hon. R. B. Elliot ex-member of congress from South Carolina will deliver the address. There will probably be a large gathering of the colored population.

It is estimated that about 250,000 crates, or 125,000 bushels, of strawberries were shipped from St. Joseph and vicinity to Chicago. The City of St. Joseph took over one night 11,500 crates, the largest load ever taken out. The raspberry crop bids fair to be as large if not larger.

A COUPLE of mink were killed in the mill yard this week. The mill company say they do not want them disturbed as their presence keeps the entire neighborhood free from rats, a pest that was too thick for comfort before the arrival of the mink family. The few spring chickens they kill are more than compensated for by the good they do in scattering the rats.

MR. JOSEPH COVENEY, Jr. had his abdomen pierced by a sharp scale of steel that flew from a hammer in Geo. Merrill's shop, while he was waiting for some work Monday. He went to Dodd's drug store, where he had the wound probed by Dr. Dodd, who discovered the piece of steel, but it was not removed. When first wounded, Covenevy thought he had been shot by some one.

RUSTICATORS.—A jolly party went from this place to Diamond Lake, Tuesday, for a two weeks' frolic, and if they do not make it lively for the island it will not be because it is the wrong crowd. The company includes Dr. Baker, Harry Richards, W. S. Wells, and their wives, the Misses Lucy and Mary Richards, Hattie and Ella Hahn, Kittle Kingery, Hattie Boyle, Mrs. H. B. Duncan, Mrs. Luebner, Clyde Baker, Geo. Rogers, Frank Treat, Lewis Boyle, H. F. Kingery and Alf. Richards. Full camp equipage was taken along, making the baggage man on the train think that the town was moving out. It is understood that camp duties will be divided something like the following: Camp hands, Frank Treat and Hattie Hahn; picket duty, Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Wells; camp surgeon and general roustabout, Dr. Baker; foragers, Harry Richards, Geo. Rogers and H. F. Kingery. Rogers is expected to keep the camp in butter-milk and Kingery with taffy, while Richards gathers crabs for bait in bass fishing, and cuts bait. Clyde Baker and Treat, special detail to conduct morning and evening religious services, with the Hahn and Richards sisters for choir; captain of boating crew, Alf. Richards, with Hattie Boyle and Kittle Kingery at the oars; Lewis Boyle, cook; Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Richards, fish scalers. The camp will be under strict discipline, and no one will be expected to laugh so that it can be heard outside of the county.

BUCHANAN has experienced a ripple of excitement over the appearance of a quantity of "queer" in form of raised bills. A few weeks since Elijah Weaver left a twenty dollar bill at Dodd's drug store in payment of a small debt, and a few days afterwards it was discovered that the bill was in fact a ten that had been rather bunglingly manipulated into a twenty, and as a matter of course it was returned to Weaver to be corrected, when he denied connection with the case, and has been arrested charged with passing counterfeit money, and given bail to appear for examination before the United States Court Commissioner. A similar speculation placed W. A. Severson in possession of a $2 that had been paid to him as $5, and yesterday afternoon Christ Schwartz gave Dr. Henderson $20 in payment of a small fee, and the Dr. not having the change took it to Chas. Treat for change, when he detected its character. Schwartz gave such a history of the bill, since substantiated, that proved him innocent of any knowledge of its character. It was somewhat amusing to see people about town sneak off to some corner and quietly examine their roll of money to find how many raised bills they had in their possession. The bill in Dodd's possession was a new, bright $10 green-back, and the pieces that had been pasted on were dirty and soiled, making the counterfeit plain to be seen by any one who was looking for anything of the kind, although it might readily be passed to one who pays no particular attention to the character of the money they receive, as is the case with the majority of people.

SAMBO'S HOME LIFE.

How the Colored People Live Down in Florida.

(Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.)

Not the least interesting question to be solved is the status of the colored population. Sambo owns his little hut, his twenty or forty acres, as the case may be, and only works for "the white folks" when he has no other way of getting some coveted piece of furniture, or a new garment for Mrs. Sam or the "chilrens." In a few miles ride one comes across several of these oddball clusters of beautiful wild orange trees, their banana plants, their fig trees, the pigs running everywhere, the children of the same color (for the native pig is black as your hat), little grinning gings, showing all their frowns, standing about the door, almost always beginning to dance and about with characteristic gestures when white "folks" come in sight. The father, a stout, middle-aged fellow, among the cotton, geeling up his melancholy little oxen, so small that they look like lilliputians beside our strong northern oxen. Sometimes the whole family, from the old man to the baby, play feet and headgear of towering red or white, to the smallest knock-kneed little 2-year-old, or in the field working like black slaves, or in the woods snoring up to see our black boy, Tony, a 10 or 11 year old urchin, drop and cover cover. I could scarcely follow him, and my admiration boiled over in a flood of words, and in the order and the most fervid interjections.

Gastronomic Fancies of Great Men.

Dr. Forcely, the distinguished English surgeon, had one special day.

Dr. Forcely confessed his love of hot boiled lobsters, with a profusion of shrimp sauce.

Pope says: One loves the pheasant's wing, and one the water dropwort.

The vulgar bolt, the learned rook an egg.

Dryden said that a chine of honest bread was his appetite more than all the narrow puddings.

Sir Isaac Newton, when writing his "Principia," lived on a scanty allowance of bread and water, and a vegetable diet.

Dr. Johnson was partial to new honey and clouted cream, and all his lifetime had a voracious attachment for a leg of mutton.

Dr. Paley, having been out fishing for a long time, and with his return if he had met with good sport. "Oh, yes," he answered, "I have caught no fish, but I have made a sermon."

Ben Brummel, speaking of a man, said: "He is a fellow, now that would send his plate up twice for soup."

Pepps, of Charles II's reign, having come to the conclusion that "I had for them a barrel of oysters, a dish of uetogues and a dish of anchovies; with wine of all sorts, and ale."

Pope, who was an epicure, would lie in bed for days, and in boiling water, unless he were told that there were stewed lamprays for dinner, when he rose instantly and came down to the table.

Franklin at one time contemplated practicing abstinence from animal food; but having seen a cod which contained some small fish, said to himself: "If you eat one another I see no reason why you may not eat me, accordingly dined on the cod with no small degree of pleasure."

English Rural Society.

(Cor. American Chronicle.)

Society in rural England is divided into as rigid districts as it is in the cities.

The squire steps aside to let my lord pass, and the tenant-farmer takes of his hat to the agricultural laborer, he doffs his hat to every one, from the great man of the district down to the "squire's man," whose business it is to keep his master posted on all the small concerns of the community he lords it over.

The English agricultural laborer is a singular individual. Except that he has a permanent home, he is not a free man. The tramp hands who are employed upon great western farms, when the season comes around, he is absolutely uneducated, and he knows little more of the world than the child who follows the plow or the sower. He begins life as a crow-ly, sitting on a fence and shouting all day long, and he ends it as a beggar, plundering the furrows; he ends life a man of full size, but only a child in intelligence still.

An Ingenious Cotton-Picker.

(Chicago Times.)

The coming cotton-picking season is to witness the test of a newly-perfected machine which is intended to do the work of eight hands in gathering the fully-opened bolls without injury to other parts of the plant.

Many of the machines are now in progress of manufacture, and by next planting a number of them will be completed, and ready for use.

This ingenious mechanism is drawn by horse-power, and is drawn along between the plants, plucking the perfect bolls as they pass. It is so constructed that it is a minimum, and its 136 picking stems are oiled from asingle cup.

ON THE CATTLE RANCH.

A Round-up Party—Branding in the Circle—Driving in the Cattle—Eating in the Corral.

(Cor. Philadelphia Times.)

A round-up party takes from six to fifteen wagons, furnished by the stockman owning the herd.

Some of the men are sent out on foot, the party being about ten. A round-up party with ten wagons has a force of about ten cowboys and a cook with each wagon, and every cowboy has a horse, and a pack of traps, and a pack of traps, and a pack of traps.

Each of the special performances in which he has been a success, as an auditor, cost over $100. Eighty thousand dollars seems a pretty steep price for a man to pay for one night's enjoyment of a drama, but when it is remembered that the actor was a man who had been a convict, and who had been a convict, and who had been a convict, the sum seems reasonable enough.

Freckish Dame Nature.

(Norristown Herald.)

Nature is guilty of some queer freaks. For instance: Throw a 10 cent dog, that has never seen water, into the river, and it will immediately drown, and when a $100,000 man, whose education in the national art has been neglected, falls overboard, he inconspicuously sinks to the bottom.

A Cheap Insect Destroyer.

A correspondent of the Fruit Recorder says he has bottled a new kind of insecticide, and finds the liquor deadly to caterpillars, lice, and many other enemies of vegetation.

The insecticide is made of a mixture of kerosene, and its odor remains for a long time to disgust insect marauders.

Eager to Swap.

(Middletown Transcript.)

"Sweet are the uses of adversity," but we will exchange a few of our old, rusty, just as good as new, for half the quantity of good luck.

POISONOUS PLANTS AND FLOWERS.

A Warning Against Vegetable Poisons—Caution to Children.

(The Druggist.)

There are many poisonous leaves, flowers, and seeds contain violent poisons, which every one should know, so as to avoid them and keep children from them.

Buttercups possess a poisonous property, which disappears when the flowers are dried in hay; no cow will feed upon them while they are in blossom. So many are the poisonous plants and flowers, and so many are the poisonous plants and flowers, and so many are the poisonous plants and flowers.

Meadow hemlock is said to be the deadliest poison known; it kills by its action on the nerves, producing complete paralysis of the arms and legs, and is a most dangerous drug, except in skillful hands. In August it is found in every field by the sea, and near mountain tops, in full bloom, and ladies and children

"Never," as a rule they gradually become ruined by high living and drinking. After they leave at night they go on a spree, in which champagne figures largely, and many get so drunk that they go to bed at midnight. One day I asked the head cook where the middles of the shad went to; he struck me I saw so many heads and tails on the table, and the waiters saw it for themselves, he replied. Well, these waiters marry, and they take their extravagant notions home, and by the way, the most common cause of cholera is the use of champagne. They can't account themselves to the sphere of life to which they have risen, and they are not used to the high living, and between the needs of a family and their own extravagance they generally go to the dogs pretty fast.

"What is the largest fee you have known given to a waiter?"

"Fifty dollars. It was given to one of my waiters, a smart young Frenchman, by a wealthy New York furrier, and it completely ruined him. From that moment he imagined himself a genius; he was constantly expecting similar fees, and would not look at anything less than a $5 bill. Finally his conceit and champagne habit got so much for him, that he joined the large army of red-nosed, shabby, out-at-the-elbows ex-waiters."

"Next to the waiters which class of employees receive the most money?"

"The chambermaids. Their wages are from $3 to $4 a week, and that is more than doubled by fees, and then they get Christmas wages as well. The maid on the third floor of my house was given nearly $200 last Christmas. As a rule, unless they have a passion for dress, they save considerable money. This girl I spoke of has been six years with me, and has in the bank nearly $8,000."

"The watchman has a good deal given them and are sober, industrious and completely ruined him. This girl I spoke of has been six years with me, and has in the bank nearly $8,000."

"The watchman has a good deal given them and are sober, industrious and completely ruined him. From that moment he imagined himself a genius; he was constantly expecting similar fees, and would not look at anything less than a $5 bill. Finally his conceit and champagne habit got so much for him, that he joined the large army of red-nosed, shabby, out-at-the-elbows ex-waiters."

"Next to the waiters which class of employees receive the most money?"

"The chambermaids. Their wages are from $3 to $4 a week, and that is more than doubled by fees, and then they get Christmas wages as well. The maid on the third floor of my house was given nearly $200 last Christmas. As a rule, unless they have a passion for dress, they save considerable money.
