ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity...

With that truth which leans on the future...

How that young, light heart would have plighted...

And how many things are gone...

A CONTRAST.

Can you open that ebony case?

Look, this is the key; but stay!

Think only a few moments.

Which I kept to burn some day.

Yes, that looks like a quaint and ancient;

But leave it, dear, with the ring,

And give me the little portrait.

Which hangs by a crimson string.

I have never opened that casket.

Since many long years ago.

It was sent me back in anger.

By one whom I used to know.

But I want to see the portrait;

I wonder if you can trace

A look of that smiling creature

Lost now in my faded face.

It was like me once, but remember

The weary, relentless years,

And life, with its fierce brief tempter,

And its long, long reign of tears.

Is it strange to call it my portrait?

Nay, smile, dear, for you may not

Think of that radiant vision

And of what I am to-day.

With restless, yet confident longing

How those blue eyes seem to gaze

Into deep and exhaustless treasures,

All hid in the coming days.

With that truth which leans on the future,

And counts on her promised store,

Think of that radiant vision

And how—hope—but to trust no more.

How that young, light heart would have plighted

Me now—if her dreams had shown

A quiet and weary woman

With all her illusions faded.

Yet I—shall soon be resting,

And have passed the hardest part—

And that which was the worst.

On that young unconscious heart.

It is strange; but life's currents drift us

So surely and so swiftly on.

And how many things are gone:

March, and the aged and bowlered glimpse of her husband passed over her graceful, flaxen head with utter lightness.

Her chief attention, indeed, was not centered on them, she was listening to Avery Wilson; laughing at his wittings, which were copious, and responding to his badinage with prompt and appreciative brightness; behaving,

in short, as a charming and inevitable behaves with a lively young man who openly admires her.

"Delightful day for sleighing," Avery observed, with his eyes on Stella.

"Isn't it?" she murmured, without even looking through the window.

"What do you say to a turn up the road, March?" Avery pursued, as he folded his napkin. "I'll get a double sleigh, and we'll go for a spin up to the Half-way House for something hot, and be back at five. Glad I thought of it!" he said, as he rose,

with an unobscured attempt to imply that he very much enjoyed it all the morning. "I'll be round by the time you've got your things on. Bundle up, Miss Harvey."

The hall door slammed behind him and a long sigh.

"How nice!" cried Stella, clasping

her hands in impulsive joy. "Isn't it delightful?"

She floated to the door with a waltz-ing step, and flew out into the street.

"How nice!" she cried, in poignant despair. "How can she be so unprincipled, so conscienceless? She isn't dull; she knows perfectly well that she's leading him on. I can't understand it; she seemed so sweet.

And I am sure Aunt Clara is strictly religious. She couldn't have brought her up so—so to meanness, and shallow, and a heartless life. I am ashamed to think that she is a relative of mine!"

THE HENRY'S MINSTRELS gave an entertainment in Rough's Opera House last evening, and as is usual when he visits Buchanan, the hall was full. Some parts of his entertainment were excellent, chief among which are the violin solo, the juggling, and Mr. Henry's cornet playing. Some of the end man's jokes were something in the line of baked chestnuts. He has, on the whole, given better entertainments in Buchanan than this.

A MEETING of business men of Buchanan was held in the engine house, Tuesday, to organize a citizens association, the prime object of which shall be to look more sharply after the pecuniary interest of the village of Buchanan with a view to securing the location of more factories and improvements. There was a good attendance and the feeling was unanimous for pushing such work. G. W. Noble was selected chairman and W. A. Palmer secretary and a committee of three, consisting of Robert H. Rogers, O. E. Aleshire and A. F. Ross, appointed to draft constitution and By Laws for the organization. The meeting adjourned to Monday, Oct. 10.

UNDER the new school law the secretary of the county board of examiners is required to visit all of the schools of the county and see that all are running properly and in good order. The Board met Tuesday in Berrien Springs, and elected Cyrus B. Groat, of Berrien township, to that office, which is now a very important one, as on his success or failure of the schools. The county is fortunate in the selection of Mr. Groat as he has been actively connected with the school management for a number of years and is supposed to understand the work thoroughly. The salary, under the new law, is $1,000.

THE St. Joseph Republican, whose editor is a strong advocate of prohibition, and the originator of the first organ in the county, remarks that it is not the place of the Prohibitionist to secure petitions for the adoption of the local prohibition in this county, but that it is the duty of the saloon-keepers to do that. This is consistent, surely. It seems that it would be a very difficult task to secure the signature of one-fifth of all of the voters in the county to such a petition, but some one must circulate the petition. If those who advocate prohibition wait for the saloon-keepers to do it, it will probably be done at once, of course.

AN Explanation.

The question has been asked many times why Elder Moore has not united with the Union (2) tent meeting, and I have been severely censured by some for my course, and so I take this public way to explain. Before Mr. Parrott came with his tent one of the leading ladies of the U. B. church said to me that Bro. Parrott had written to Elder— to invite all the churches in the place to unite in this effort, for he wanted this a Union meeting. I replied, that is strange. I have heard nothing about it and we have had no such invitation. She said she knew he had so written and he wanted all to co-operate. I had an engagement for a meeting at Galesburg, to commence the 21st, but being very anxious for the conversion of sinners in Buchanan and knowing that nothing was so successful in reaching them, and of convincing men of the reality of religion as real union of effort and friendly, brotherly feeling between different denominations (Jer. 17:23), I immediately took up my engagement at Galesburg so as to enter heartily and unselfishly in the tent meeting, but soon found we were left out of the "Union" as we were not "Orthodox" or "Evangelical," and so we have been compelled to keep out of the "Union."

I want the public to know that it was in our heart to unite with every effort for the saving of men. Please read Isa. 65: 5.

Yours for real Christian Union. A. P. MOORE.

NILES MIRROR.

G. V. Rough has shipped 2,850 baskets of grapes, or 20,000 tons and still he has grapes. Sid Clark has a bad cheek bone and a bad eye. The way it happened he was playing ball and was looking up and running to catch one and Morgan Wynn was looking up for the same purpose, and Wynn's elbow came in contact with his cheek bone, making a bad bruise.

The school census showed 1142 children of school age, an increase of 14 over last year. What you can do in a few short months is to go direct to Buchanan and South Bend over the new railroad. An overloaded freight car on the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan railroad broke down, about two miles from Benton Harbor, and delayed the noon train several hours, and the passengers were obliged to walk the remainder of the distance.

State Items.

Jackson has had snow this week. Gas has been found in limited quantities at St. Ignace.

Yellow in Saugatuck peach orchards again.

A movement is on foot in Van Barren county to adopt local prohibition under the new law.

The Mr. Morris Reflector is thankful for a peck of cucumbers. Such are the benefits of country editor's life.

This far the estimated yield of corn per acre in this state does not exceed 35 bushels, while oats run at about 30 and potatoes at 30.

Wright, Hillsdale county, has a citizen, who within the town derives its name, who was 101 years old in June and is hale and hearty.

Mary Hotop, the three years old daughter of Godfrey Hotop, of Kalamazoo, fell into a pail of water, Tuesday morning, was scalded, probably fatally.

A man who had been hired to sow some clover-seed, at Edmund, Michigan, went through the motions, but kept the seed in the bag, and then carried it home and sowed it upon his own land.

It is estimated that the new marriage law will bring to the various county clerks in this state an aggregate of nearly $5,000 additional fees, exclusive of the charges for the affidavits, which will foot up another $5,000. While the latter may be paid largely to justices or notaries, as any official authorized to administer oaths may complete the affidavit, yet it is likely a large proportion thereof will go to the county clerks. The various ministers and justices are saved the recording fee of 25 cents required by the present laws and will be so much ahead.

A Convis farmer and his hired man dug six bushels of potatoes in four hours. Who can beat that?—Battle Creek Journal. We can. A Pine Grove farmer and his hired man and son dug one bushel in six hours last week.—Kalamazoo Telegraph. Well now, these may both be records hard to beat but we know a man in this town who dug thirty-six hills to get one potato as large as a hickorynut and then didn't get it.

A United States mail pouch, containing letters and general mail matter for points along the Michigan Central road and its branches and Chicago, was stolen Sunday evening at the Central depot, Detroit. The pouch was delivered to the transfer clerk at the depot, and was missed before the 9:15 P. M. train for Chicago left. The pouch was found half an hour after it was missed near Eighth street elevator, cut open and only three letters left in it. There were no registered letters in the pouch.

The pious young men who run the Lansing Journal solemnly assert that the high school of that city is a very hot bed of superstition—on the girls' side. If one of them trips on a projecting nail in the sidewalk she will turn around and slowly walk over it again, to save being hoodooed; she expects peccolates over her left shoulder three times to avoid bad luck, and if she puts on her stockings wrong side out, it stays that way all day—wouldn't turn it for the world.—Detroit Journal.

A gentleman, a recent visitor in this city, who has traveled abroad, and more especially in Holland, was heard to say in conversation the other day, that Americans had but little idea of what extent their products and inventions were in use there. "Do you know," he remarked, "that when I was admitted to the apartments of the king in the royal palace at Amsterdam, I passed through a door hung on brass hinges and secured by a brass lock coming from a Massachusetts manufacturing factory. A stove, the first article of furniture to attract my attention, was branded in conspicuous letters, 'Detroit Stove Works.' Near it was a very comfortable looking and neat, but not extravagantly upholstered Grand Rapids chair, with a cuspidor at the left, the product of a Baltimore manufacturing. Over the mantel designed by an American hung a landscape by Thomas Moran, of Philadelphia, and on it among other ornaments a Colorado slag vase and a box of Michigan tooth-picks.—Holland City News.
