

BUCHANAN RECORD.

JOHN C. HOLMES, Editor. THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1890. John Jacob Astor died Saturday, in New York, aged 67.

Arizona has been treated to a breaking of a water reservoir, almost equal to that in Johnstown in the enormity of its horrible details.

Chauncey M. Depew in the characteristic pose of an after-dinner speaker will be the subject of a full-page drawing from life, by T. de Thulstrup, to be published in Harper's Weekly, February 26th.

There was great hilarity in Chicago Tuesday evening, over the vote in the house at Washington locating the World's fair in Chicago. Now if Chicago will get up a good fair we shall all go. That is such of us as are still traveling about on the surface of this mundane sphere in 1892.

The report of a meeting of a large Horticultural Society in Ocala, Florida, shows a strong sentiment among its members for protection. The Ocala Banner finds but one fault with the sentiment. The members are all Democrats, and in order to be protectionists it finds it necessary for them to vote the Republican ticket, which would never do. No, not in Florida.

Minnie Worley, telephone exchange operator in South Bend, and Frank Middleton, occupying the same position in Michigan City, were married last week by a LaPorte justice, the ceremony being performed over the wires. The whole performance was intended to be a joke, but they are now confronted with a sturdy fact, and are trying to conclude what is best to do about it.

A new method of increasing the volume of greenback circulation appeared "Tuesday, in a bill reported in the house to authorize the purchase of gold and silver bullion and the issue of treasury notes in payment thereof. The bill directs the purchase of silver bullion to the amount of $4,500,000 a month, and of as much gold bullion as may be offered and the issue therefor of treasury notes, and it repeals the law directing the coinage of 2,000,000 silver dollars per month. This, if it becomes a law, will add nearly $100,000,000 a year to the circulating medium of the coun_ try, instead of $24,000,000 as under the $2,000,000 a month silver coinage law.

Our Democratic friends are very fond of parading Mr. Cleveland's popular ma-jority, but when you ask them how it was obtained they don't hear you. They know very well that a free ballot and fair count in the South would have given Gen. Harrison a very much larger popular majority than was returned for that beneficiary of Southern frauds and outrages, Grover Cleveland. They know that through Southern oulldozing, regulatorism, negro killing, ballot-box stuffing and false counting the Republican party was robbed of scores of thousands of votes in the Dandles of the Time of Charles I. When Villiers, James I's and Charles I's favorite, went on his mission to Paris in 1625 he had no fewer than seven-and-twenty suits of clothes made, the richest that embroidery, lace, silk, velvet, gold and gems could contribute, one of which was a white uncut velvet, "set all over, both suit and cloak, with diamonds valued at four score thousand pounds, besides a great feather, stuck all over with diamonds." "It was common with him," says a contemporary, "at an ordinary dancing to have his clothes trimmed with great diamond button, and to have diamond hat bands, cockades and earrings; to be yoked with great and manifold ropes and knots of pearl; in short, to be manacled, fettered and imprisoned in jewels."

To the prevailing extravagance in dress the satirists again allude in the severest terms. "I have much wondered," says Henry Peacham, "why our English, above other nations, should so much dote upon new fashions, but more I wonder at our want of wit that we cannot invent them ourselves, but, when one is grown state, send presently over into France to seek a new, making that noble and flourishing kingdom the magazine of our fooleries, and for this purpose many of our tailors lie leger (i. e. reside there, and ladies jest over their gen tlemen ushers, to accouter them and themselves as you see. Washington has her great unknown land, like the interior of Africa, says The Seattle Press. The country shut in by the Olympic mountains, which includes an area of about 2,500 miles square, has never, to the positive knowledge of old residents of the territory, been trodden by the foot of man, white or Indian. These mountains rise from the level country, within ten or fifteen miles of the Straits of San Juan de Fuca in the north, the Pacific ocean in the west, Hood's canal in the east, and the basin of the Quinault lake in the south, and, rising to the height of 6,000 to 8.000 feet, shut in a vast unexplored area. The Indians have never penetrated t, for their traditions say it is inhabited by a very fierce tribe, which none of the coast tribes dared molest. Though it is improbable that such a tribe could have existed in this mounwhen he was strolling in a moody hutain country without their presence bemor through a lonely gorge, he met a coming known to the white men, no man has ever ascertained that it did not exist. White men, too, have only vague accounts of any white man haying ever passed through this country, for investigation of all the claims of travelers has invariably proved that they have only traversed its outer edges. The most generally accepted theory is that it conin regard to this country is that it con-sisted of great valleys, stretching from the inward slopes of the mountains to a great central basin. This theory is Times. supported by the fact that, although the country around has abundant rain and clouds constantly hang over the mountain tops, all the streams flowing toward the four points of the compass are insignificant and rise only on the outward slopes of the range, none ap-pearing to drain the great lakes shut in by the mountains. This fact appears to support the theory that streams flowing from the inner slopes of the mountains feed a great interior lake. But what drains this lake? It must have an outlet somewhere, and, as all the streams pouring from the mountains rise on their outward slopes, it must have a subterranean outlet to the ocean, the straits or the sound. There are great discoveries in store for some of Washington's explorers, -Ex-A Numerous Family. There are some good sized families in Maine today, but probably none so large as one mentioned in the histories of old colonial days. It is told on the authority of Cotton Mather that the first royal governor of Boston was one of a family of twenty-six children, and was born in the woods of Maine near the mouth of the Kennebec in 1651. His mother was left a widow when he was a child, and is said to have had all she could do to provide for the wants of her family. It is hoped that when the governor got $100,000, a knight-hood and a goblet valued at $5,000 as a reward for finding a Spanish treasure ship that had gone to the bottom half a century before, he remembered his mother and made her last days easier than her earlier ones had been .--

In this country it is considered unbecoming for persons to eat in public -as at a picnic, for instance, or in a tavern. When at home, the people take their meals within a fence, so as not to be overlooked; and when on a journey several of the attendants are made to hold up a cloth before them, with their backs turned to those who are eating. When no servants are available, the members of the party sit round the dishes, throw a cloth over their heads, and proceed to eat as if afraid some one was about to snatch the food out of their hands.

My companions and I had frequently to submit to this custom. No sooner lid our escort see us seated on one side of the road, than they directed some of the people to extend their loose robes in order to screen us from passersby, and those who performed the task were always careful to turn their faces away from us.

As most of the garments thus opened out for our seclusion had not been washed for months, if they ever had been, the reader's imagination may be left to conceive the odor which surrounded us on these occasions. But even if they had been washed only the day before, the smell of the rancid butter with which the natives besmear their heads would have sufficed to render any such curtain almost intolera-ble.—Youth's Companion.

A Story About Edison.

At Orange you hear numberless stories of Edison. Everybody likes him. One man, who had been for years in his employ as an experimentalist, told of a visit that a number of capitalists, including Jay Gould, Sidney Dillon, Sam Sloan and Cyrus Field, paid to Edison at his laboratory one day to inspect the workings of some induction experiment in devising the scheme for telegraphing to moving trains. Edison came out of his workroom, where he was busy, and shook hands with Mr. Field. At that instant something popped into his head apropos of the experiment he was at work on. He never gives an idea time to escape Without a word of excuse to the four magnates he turned on his heel and hurried into his den again. They waited and waited, and by and by tired out with delay, wended their way down stairs. Shortly afterwards Edi-son came out and asked, "Where did try it.

"That's right. I don't want 'em to wear the oil off my elevator." Then he stood around for an hour and swapped stories with the men in the shop. He is the greatest man living for stories, and it is a tradition among his employes that they can tell him the same story every day for a week and he'll never tire of it, nor in fact show any sign of having heard it before.—Electric Age. Fruit from Across Water.

How Passover Bread Is Made.

In the preparation of the Jewish passover bread, the kneading is done in the ordinary way. Pure gunpow-der water is the only component added. The time for the dough to be baked is reduced to the minimum. It is broken into flat cakes, and then run between rollers into very thin sheets. Over these workmen roll a pronged steel to perforate the dough, so that air holes may be seen in baked cakes. A steel hoop cuts the dough into round, flat sheets, which are then ready for the oven. The baker then stands with a paddle attached to a very long handle. With the aid of a boy he thrusts the cakes into the brick compartment, and in half a minute pulls them out ready for use. A matzath cake is round, about four feet in diameter, somewhat browned, and having slight air hole projections on its surface. They have a rather pleas-ant taste, not unlike that of crackers, and make a good substitute for bread. In some places there is a demand throughout the entire year for the unleavened cakes by dyspeptics. About eight cakes weigh a pound, which in large quantities sell at eight cents. The cakes are very brittle, and their pieces are ground up into fine meal. This is the substitute for wheat flour in the household during the passover. -The Millstone.
