The Supreme Court of Mississippi reversed and remanded the case against J. L. Sullivan for prize fighting, but he is held under his bond to answer to such indictment as may be found at the next term of court. This will probably end the case, and he got out of serving one year in jail, which was the verdict of the lower courts.

The dispatches tell of immense excitement in High Shoals, Georgia, because a "nigger" has been appointed gauger in a one-horse distillery in that place. No very great excitement is occasioned by a dozen other "niggers" being employed in the same distillery, but employed by the proprietor, but this special "nigger" is appointed by the government, and is a government officer, hence the excitement.

Underground Voyages Near Boston.

Many parties have voyaged in the tunnel, underground, from Newton to the reservoir at Chestnut Hill, a distance of four miles, and the journey is an exciting and novel one. The water is about two feet deep, and the current runs about two miles an hour. Twenty millions of gallons in twenty-four hours is the usual supply. Manholes are placed at intervals along the main and a descent into one of them was made by the writer. A ladder leads down to a temporary landing of boards placed across the tunnel, through which the water glides noiselessly. The place was like a dungeon, and the light which the manhole admitted from above was speedily lost in the pitchy darkness which pervades the conduit.

The boats which are used in the summer time to convey parties of explorers from point to point are provided with torches fixed in the stern and bow of the boat to light the way. The current carries the boat along, and poles are used to guide the progress. There is also a remarkable echo here, and a stamp of the foot upon the boards evokes thunderous explosions of sound that boom and boom like distant cannon, as the sound rebounds from the manhole along the main. One of the party sang a few notes and the sound was multiplied into a choir of mysterious voices, the effect being indescribably weird.—Albany Express. An Animated Duster.

One of the most enthusiastic collectors of rare books I ever knew was a young man-now dead-who was for a good many years employed as a clerk in one of the local railroad offices. He was a frequent visitor at my store, and would spend hours at a time rummaging around in odd corners in the hope of finding some literary curiosity hid away, and whenever he chanced upon some volume of more than ordinary interest his enthusiasm knew no bounds. His salary was small, and would not permit of his indulging his tastes to any great extent, but I was always glad to see him come in. It made no difference to me whether he made a purchase or not. for he was of great benefit to me in a very peculiar way. You see, books, especially old ones, will get covered with dust, and need moving around to prevent the accumulated dust from injuring them seriously. The consequence was that so long as he fre quented my store he helped, by handling the books and moving them about, to keep them clean. This may seem a little strange at first thought but you can readily see the logic of it. -Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Why Women Are Barely Robbed.

It is singular that more ladies are not robbed on the public thoroughfares, for the majority of them carry every cent they possess in their pocketbooks, which in turn are carried in their hands. I suppose, however, the reason thieves do not snatch more of these money books is that they know well the chances are they would get little, even if successful in evading the police, after an assault of the kind upon a woman. The great handsome

In an interview with the celebrated preacher, Massillon, Louis remarked: 'I have heard many great preachers, and the effect they produced on me was that I felt thoroughly satisfied with them. Every time I heard you I have been dissatisfied with myself."-Chamber's Journal.

How to Eat Grape Fruit.

When the remedial virtues of the grape fruit of Florida are as well known as they should be, the fruit will be used by that large class of people who find something of a tonic nature essential to their good digestion. No one can fail to benefit by eating an orange before breakfast every morning. The grape fruit has all the good qualities of the orange in an increased de gree. Many people to whom I have recommended the grape fruit, "the quinine of fruits," some people call it, have complained that the fruit is bitter to the taste. This is because they do not know how to cat it. The envel ope of each section of the grape fruit, which is after all but a variety of orange, is very bitter. This should be removed, and the juicy part of the interior eaten only, and, my word for it, it will be preferred to any other orange ever tasted.-Dr. Robinson in Globe-

The Rev. T. Lewis O. Davies, in his "Supplementary English Glossary," describes "beauty sleep" to be the sleep before midnight, and gives the following references to the use of the expression:

"Are you going? It is not late; not 10 o'clock yet." "A medical man, who may be called up at any moment, must make sure of his beauty sleep."---Kingsley, "Two Years Ago," chapter 15. Would I please to remember that I had roused him up at night, and the quality always made a point of paying four times over for a man's loss of beauty sleep. Dauphin, manager of the Louisiana lottery, thinking he could see a point, donated $100,000 on the part of the lottery company, for levee purposes. Gov. Nicholls, however, would not have it that way, and has gained an enviable reputation for himself by returning the check to Mr. Danphin. Here is the Governor's letter:

The Sugar Question.

The inability of the members of the Committee on Ways and Means to agree among themselves as to how the sugar tax should be arranged is all that prevents the reporting of a tariff bill. The other schedules have been practically agreed upon, so that the bill could be reported to morrow were it not for the split on sugar. Meetings are being held night and day, and an earnest effort is being made to reach a conclusion that will allow the final touches to be put upon the bill. There are eight Republican members on the committee. They are divided on the sugar question as follows: Messrs. Burrows, Gear and La Follette are in favor of free sugar, with the payment of a bounty of one or two cents per pound to American producers; Mr. McKenna of California is unalterably opposed to this proposition and wants the duty kept at a high rate. He is opposed to any cut beyond 25 per cent, and will only consent to this under protest. Chairman McKinley is also opposed to free sugar first, last, and all the time. He is against the bounty system and is urging his colleagues on the committee to arrange for a reduction of from 33 to 50 per cent as the best solution of the difficulty that confronts them. The remaining three Republican members of the committee

In the early part of the century shad was so cheap that they sold for ten of age, 12,000 at 20 and then drops to 8,000 at 21, when in the natural course cents apiece. Queer Things Do Come to Pass.

-Louisville Post.

There are now living in Washington a married couple, Paul and Albina Hellmuth, who were born at Baden, Germany, Feb. 1, 1847, within four miles of each other. Even through their childhood, playing in the streets of the same town, they were strangers to each other. In the course of events they came across the ocean to the land of promise, and at different times and different paths they drifted to Washington, where they met and loved and wedded. Upon comparing notes to take out their marriage license they discovered, to their mutual surprise and gratification, that they were not only natives of the same place, but rejoiced in exactly the same ages to a day.-Washington Star. Giant Worms.

The work of earthworms, in the operations of nature, is a very important one. Darwin has shown us that they are constantly occupied in making the soil more mellow by perforating it with their galleries, and that they enrich it by collecting in these subterranean passages earth that has been sub-ject to change in their intestines, and also leaves, which have fallen to the ground and are dragged into their retreats: But if these little beings can accomplish such wonders, it would be interesting to know whether the Megascolides Australis, an earthworm of Australia, has a like mission. This creature is of the size of an ordinary adder, and at least six feet long. A writer in La Nature says that it is usually to be found on the banks of small rivers, though it occasionally seeks the open country, where one may come upon it by pulling up a stump or upturning the earth. It is not an easy matter to drag this worm from the winding galleries which form its retreat. It glides about the sinuous passages with great rapidity, inflating its anterior and posterior extremities at will, and thus bracing itself against the walls, which it renders slimy by a secretion from its own body. Its moist substance slips easily through the hands which would retain it, and when once fastened to the adhesive walls of its home, it can only be removed by breaking its length in two.

Preserving Fabrics from Decay. A Belgian chemist has, according to The Textile Manufacturer, discovered a means for rendering fabrics, no matter how delicate in texture or color, proof against the ravages of decay. The wonderful state of preservation which the head bands of Egyptian mummies exhibit is due to their having been impregnated with a kind of resin. This led the inventor to make certain experiments with the substance extracted from birch bark, to which the peculiar aroma of Russian leather is due, and he found out that the green tar which was left over after the oil used in tauning had been extracted from the white bark of the birch tree yields neither acid nor alkaloid, and that in solution with alcohol it forms a liquid of remarkable fluidity with power of resisting, when once dried, even the action of alcohol itself. This substance will, it is said, unite

ORIENTAL VENGEANCE.

HOW THE CHINAMAN HAS PAID HIS DEBT TO THE CAUCASIAN.

He Was Forced to Buy Opium, and He Has Taught the White Man to Smoke It-A Terrible and Constantly Spreading

Nearly half a century ago the Chiness were induced, by use of the cannon argu-ment and the slaughter of uncounted thou-sands of their brethren to permit the impor-tation of opium from the East Indies. In thus "opening a market for trade," civiliza tion forced a terrible vice upon a vast people and reaped an apparent profit in hard cash from the bloody transaction. But the outcome of the business demon strates that the profit was far more ap-parent than real. A baffled Oriental does not limit his dreams of vengeance by the boundaries of a lifetime. He makes his hatred hereditary, and bequeaths to his son the accomplishment of the plans he has been unable to carry out. Sooner or later patient, persistent, unrelenting hate will carve some way to its appointed goal and stand grinning in ghastly glee above the corpse of the victim.

A civilized nation compelled China to us opium. China in return has presented the whole world with a pipe for use in smoking the drug, and introduced an almost incurable vice among the Caucasian race. Her majesty's Indian empire no longer grows the poppy for Mongolian consumption alone, for slaves of the narcotic exist everywhere at the present day. Not long since a gentleman who has spent several years as a merchant at Canton said: "Abstractly China does not care for the emigration of her citizens. They are allowed to go abroad for the purpose of bettering their condition, but I think I am in a position to state it as a fact that when they depart they are given to understand that one of their duties is to spread the habit of opium smoking. To my mind they are made the agents of a fiendish Oriental revenge for past injustice and injury."

At any rate, it is from the Chinese that the habit is acquired, and it is by them that the implements for self destruction are furnished. These latter are cheap or costly, according to the means of the purchaser, and consist of a pipe, a howl, a lamp, a tray, a bottle of oil, a yin hoc or bodkin, and a toy or box for holding the prepared opium. The pipe is of bamboo, and is tipped at either end with bone, ivory, silver, gold or mother of pearl. The lowest price of a new pipe is $1.25, but the same stem when thoroughly seasoned into which the bowl is inserted. The bowls are of three grades. Those of red china clay cost eight cents each; the second grade, of dark gray or slate color, are valued at thirtyfive cents. and the highest quality, the black brings fifty cents. The lamp can be pur chased for sixty cents; but if it is caged with East Indian silver filagree work it may be held at as high a sum as $100. The tray is simply an ordinary tea tray for holding the various utensils. The oil used is either olive or peanut, and the yin hoc is a bodkin of steel pointed at one end and flattened at the other. The toy is an air tight box, in which the supply of prepared opium is kept. It may be of hone, worth only forty cents, or of solid gold or silver and diamond studded. The opium is of four grades, and is sold in packages of five taels. The cheapest variety is worth $7.50 a can and the costliest $11.50. These are the materials and here is the manner in which the keeper of an opium "joint" utilizes them in serving his customers: First he cleans out the bowl and dampens the top with a sponge. Then he takes the cover from the toy, dips in the sharp end of the bodkin and brings out a bit of pasty opium the size of a pea. He holds this half an inch from the flame of the lamp until it swells to the dimensions of a small walnut and the original color changes from that of black molasses to a Vandyke brown. The sizzling globule is next withdrawn from the fire, carefully rolled about on the bowl of the pipe and again subjected to the flame. After a third and final cooking it is deftly deposited in the center of the bowl. One long whiff of twenty seconds' duration and the pill is gone. The process of cooking occupies about two minutes. Five pills will make an amateur drowsy and eight will pu him to sleep, but a "fiend's" daily ration is forty pills and upwards. So many difficulties and dangers hedge about the acquirement of the habit that it seems wonderful that any one persists in smoking the deadly drug after the first experiment. If even the slightest breath of air enters the mouth when the smoke is inhaled the devotee is certain to suffer from an acute attack of wind colic, for which the only specific is a slice of lemon covered with burnt opium. A curious thing about the prepared drug is that it hardens if exposed to the air, but the atmospheric effect on a cooked pill is to soften it to its original semi-liquidity. Opium smoking is no longer confined to the back rooms of Chinese laundries. It has gone beyond that now, and finds its home and its white patrons in more luxurious quarters. Probably no large city in the United States is without at least two or three lavishly appointed resorts where the unhappy victims of the vice meet to indulge in their suicidal propensities. They are arranged in series of apartments abounding in rugs and couches, and it is the custom of the regular patrons to group themselves in parties of four, generally two men and two women, who recline about the little flickering lamp and pass the deadly pipe from hand to hand, the most expert of the quartet attending to the cooking of the pills. In New York city several "joints" lie within a stone's throw of Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth street. Near this corner is a fruit store which is open day and night. The clerk on duty after dark is an expert mandolin player, and the place is a favorite resort for the sated "fiends," who sit hour after hour dreamily listening to sweet strains of music and indulging in reveries born of poisoned blood and semi-paralyzed brains. As they muse and ponder the hours slip away and the dawn comes on apace. The mandolin tinkles out the "Sweet By and By" and the pale faced relics of lost manhood and womanhood glide out to seek fresh distraction or the mer-

Cherokee Strip Laud Boomers. What is known as the "Cherokee strip" in the Indian territory is attracting the attention of "land boomers." It was thought that the strip would be legally opened to settle-ment at an early day, and Guthrie, Oklahoma, became the headquarters of hundreds of peo-ple ready to make a grand skurry across the dividing lins. Carpenters were busy building small frame houses and mounting them on wheels, so that when the rush came they could be whirled across the country to the desired spot and the claim held by the best title possible in the scramble. The other day false intelligence came that the president had opened the strip to settle-ment, and in a night 10,000 people rushed in. They are now, of course, liable to expulsion. The experiences of those who settled the Oklahoma country do not seem to have taught their successors the lesson that in a wholesale grab either for realty or gold ten lose their little all where one makes a fortune. The lottery of life is about the same at the mines or on the virgin prairie as in the big cities-

The victim, a sister of charity named Piatnizky, was well known for her many good deeds. Her body was found in a sack, the flesh being hacked from the bones and cut into small pieces. The head was picked up in a quarter of the city far distant from where the trunk was discovered. The crime was fastened on a medical student, Belsowsoff by name, who, after arrest, committed suicide. No reason has developed for the murder and mutilation. The woman's life was spent in doing good, and it was not known that she had an enemy in the world.

Guarding Against Diseased Cattle. The English house of commons is preparing to consider measures ( prevent more fully the introduction of diseased cattle into the British isles. The main country of export aimed at seems to be the United States, and in a recent debate one of the members of parliament asked the government to ascertain if cattle from the western states of America were free from contagion, and, if they were free, whether they could not be conveyed to England without contact with animals from the eastern states, among which disease might exist. Curiously enough no facts were ex-hibited on which to base the slightly alarmist legislation proposed.

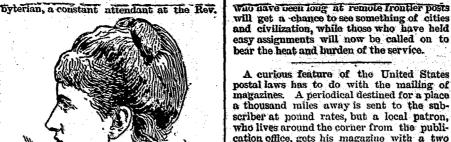

The United States Life Saving Service.

Recent statistics regarding the United States life saving service are of value. They show that since the present system was intro-duced, ten years ago, 7,908 persons have been succored and over $60,000,000 worth of proprty saved. The cost of maintaining the service for the decade was less than $10,000,000 There are 226 stations-165 on the Atlantic coast, eight on the Gulf of Mexico, eight on the Pacific and forty-five along the shores of the great lakes. The wages paid are small, the maximum salary of a keeper being $800, while the men get $50 a month during the active season. Out of this they are expected to buy their own food and clothing.

Treatment of Enlisted Men The United States navy now has an investigation on hand similar in kind to the one at present agitating the army. The latter, it will be remembered, had to do with the charge that a private soldier was subjected to excessive punishment for not obeying an illegal order given him by a lieutenant at Fort Snelling, Minn. 9.8 The soldier has been released and the officer is undergoing court martial. The naval episode

Last winter's world wide visitation of the influenza, or grippe, has brought in its train curious exaggerations of many well recog-nized characteristics which, The London Lancet asserts, call for appreciation and for treatment almost as much as the disease in which they originated. One of the most striking of the mental perversities noted was that the disease should be treated in a "common sense" manner. As a result many people dosed themselves with drugs of whose powers and properties they were wholly ignorant, and because of the unwise use of antipyrin, resulting in numerous cases of death from heart failure, it has been thought advisable in some of the large cities of America and Europe to forbid the sale of the drug except under doctors' prescriptions. Mr. Labou chere, the well known English editor and member of parliament, upon being seized with influenza recently took thirty grains of

MORTGAGE SALE. First publication Jan. 2, 1890.

First publication Jan. 2, 1840. DEFAULT has been made in the payment of a cer tain sum of money scenred to be paid by an indenture of mortgage dated September 28, 1878, made by John Hoff and Caroline Hoff to Jacob F. Kellar, and recorded October 5, 1875, in Liber 22 of Mortgages, page 18, and was assigned by said Jacob F. Kellar to Joseph Good on the 25th day of Angust, 18-S. Said mortgage and the assignment thereof duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds in Bernen County. State of Michican. There thereof duly recorded in the office of Register of Deeds in Bernen County, State of Michigan. There is claimed due on said mortgage at date of this no-tice seven hundred and sixty-four dollars, and no. proceedings have been finitized to collect the same. Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale con-tained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided. notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described therein sold at the front door of the Court House, in the village of Berrien Springs, Berrien county Michigan, on Saturday, the 29th Day of March, 1890, at one o'clock P. M. of said day, to satisfy the amount then due, costs and expenses allowed by law, and an attorney fee of thirty dollars provided for in said mortgage. The premises to be sold are described in said mortgage as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the town-ship of Buchanan, in the County of Berrien and State of Michigan. to-wit: "The south-west quar-tor of north-east quarter of section twenty-one, town seven south, of range eighteen west, con taining forty acres of land, more or less. MISS SALLIE HARGOUS The richest unmarried women in New York

-that is, rich now, and in their own right? Well, to begin with, the fortunes of the rich women in the metropolis have been greatly exaggerated. There are not many that enter the million mark, and as to the hundred thousands-they do not tempt the imagination as they once did. Neither are they, to the rich woman herself, of the same practical importance since expenditure has become so much more lavish than it was a generation or so ago.

The richest unmarried women in New York are probably the Misses Rhinelander, who live in a big mansion, one of the fine old resi-dences of the city, at the corner of Fifth avenue and Washington square. It faces the square, big, silent, solemn and lonely, like some mausoleum of departed grandeur, and almost the only sign of life it ever shows is when the children who romp and play in the square come and sit on the steps or clamber on the fence. But the two sisters, both of them be-ex-Mayor Edward Cooper and the granddaughter of Peter Cooper. From the latter she received a large legacy, enough to make her independently rich. She and her hus-band have a beautiful home on Washington square, and are among the most brilliant and intellectual members of the Four Hundred. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has several claim to prominence-her beauty, her social position, her wealth and her jewels. Her dia-mond necklace is famous. It consists of sixty big stones, bored and strung like beads, and is of fabulous value.

In a little while the face of the stone was exposed with the inscription as shown in the illustra-tion. It was laid May 25, 1755. At that time the hospital was some distance from the built up portion of the city, and was reached by a path through the fields. The ground on which the building stands was purchased for £500. The president of the board of managers in 1755 was Joshua Crosby. The hospital is the oldest in the United States.

Florence Nightingale's Seventieth Birthday. In May of the present year Florence Nightingale will celebrate the seventieth anniversary of her birth, and the day is to be appro-priately observed in many parts of the civil-ized world. Her lifelong work in behalf of the sick and suffering is well known, and her special services-personal during the Crimean war and advisory at the time of the American civil conflict-have endeared her name to untold thousands of beneficiaries.
