AN ABSENT-MINDED MAN.

My sweetheart is a poet; he is graceful, slim, and tall; His hair is dark and curly, and it's long; His face is like a saint, he can play, and dance, and paint.

But he's always in a dream, and to strangers he might seem Like one who has a purpose or a plan; Yet he's not so very tame, for he gets there at the same.

Though they reckon him an absent-minded man. The editors all state that some day he will be a poet.

That he "stomps" where other people creep; Though to see him in his walk, and to listen to his feet, you'd think he were a poet.

You'd surely think the man was half poet, But he never loses temper, and he never seems to fret.

And money to his pocket freely flows; That he don't know where it comes from it is very safe to bet.

And safer, that he don't know where it goes. I get so very nervous when he takes me out to dine.

I often feel as though I'd like to scream; For I frequently prevent him adding catnip to his wine.

And stop him putting salt in his ice cream. Yet he says I am an angel, and the star that shines in his eyes.

And then, you know, he loves me all he can; Though I really don't suppose he ever will propose.

He is such a very absent-minded man. Exchange.

HOW I WAS SAVED.

The little clock on the mantel rang out the half hour, startling me from my slumber.

"What's that?" I asked, and I looked at the clock. It was ten o'clock.

Republican State Convention.

HEADQUARTERS (REPUBLICAN STATE) Convention, Chicago, Ill., July 12, 1890. A State Convention of the Republicans of Michigan will be held at the Detroit rink, Detroit, beginning at 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, August 28, 1890, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state offices and for Justice of the Supreme Court, to fill vacancies also for the purpose of selecting a chairman of the State Central Committee and two members thereof from each congressional district, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at Grand Rapids May 10, 1876, every county will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 of the total vote cast for Governor at the last State election (November, 1888), and one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to 300, but each organized county will be entitled to at least one delegate.

Under a resolution of 1888 no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the convention who does not reside in the county he proposes to represent.

The delegates from each congressional district are requested to meet in caucus at 10 o'clock a. m., Wednesday, August 27, and select candidates as follows: to be represented to the State Convention for confirmation: Two members of the State Central Committee, one Vice-President, one Assistant Secretary and one member of the Executive Committee on "Resolutions," "Resolutions," "Permanent Organization and Order of Business."

In compliance with a resolution adopted in Detroit, June 23, 1889, the secretary of each county convention is requested to forward to the secretary of the State Central Committee (No. 24 Griswold street, Detroit) the earliest mail after the delegates to the State Convention are chosen, a certified list of such delegates as are entitled to seats in the State convention from their respective counties, and also the names and address of the chairman, secretary, and members of their county committee.

GEO. H. HOOKER, Chairman. H. C. TILLMAN, Secretary. Berrien county will be entitled to 21 delegates, Cass 11 and Van Buren 15.

Detroit News Washington correspondent has been looking up the record of Michigan congressmen, on the nine most important measures that have come before congress during the present session. He finds the following record of votes on these measures by congressman Burrows: Voted for the admission of Wyoming; for the admission of Idaho; for dependent pension bill; for McKinley tariff bill; for Lodge election bill; against unlimited silver coinage; for limited silver coinage; against original package vote; for bankruptcy bill.

The house elections committee has made a report on the Breckenridge-Clayton contest for the Arkansas seat, declaring the seat vacant. This was a case of democratic election methods, in which the ballot boxes in some of the republican precincts were stolen, and Breckenridge declared elected on the result of the count of the remaining ballots. When Clayton, the opposing candidate, began proceedings to contest the election was ordered. Detectives were sent into the neighborhood to secure evidence on the case, and two men seen conversing with him were also murdered. As the contestant in this case is dead, the committee can do as it deems the seat vacant.

In the United States court of Texas, last week, was held the trial of those arrested for participating in what is known, in Kansas, as the Stevens county seat war. Nine of these, including Jerome B. Chamberlain, formerly of Buchanan, have been found guilty of murder, and sentenced to be hanged on December 10.

CHAMBERLAIN gives his explanation of the difficulty. "I was in PARIS, Texas, July 26, 1890. Thinking that there might be some at my old home who have an interest in my welfare, and feeling it a duty I owe to my relatives and friends, I give this explanation of the cause of my arrest and conviction. "In the year of 1885 law abiding citizens of different parts of Kansas and other states, started in search of a place where they could better their condition and build up homes for themselves and families, and concluding they had found the garden spot of Kansas, they located in what is known as Stevens county, Kansas. They built the little town of Hugoton, dug the first wells, and furnished water for families from ten to fifteen. Chamberlain being in the county seat. The county kept filling up until it was thought there were sufficient inhabitants to organize our county, and have laws to protect our lives and property, and to organize schools for our children. The census was taken and a memorial sent to the Governor, praying to have the county organized and Hugoton designated as the county seat. The Governor granted our prayers and appointed me as one of the commissioners, and I have since been elected three times by the people of the county. I have tried to do my duty honestly and according to law. But like Eden of old, a devil appeared in the person of S. N. Wood, and began to undermine strife and discord in the minds of our citizens. He commenced proceedings to disorganize our county and throw us back to the mercy of the cattleman and cowboys. They commenced to threaten and intimidate the Wooddale men, and the Wooddale men, the supreme courts of Kansas sustained us in all of our doings, and not knowing what else to do to get rid of the leading men of our county, we were obliged to take the law into our own hands. He sent his hired desperado to our quiet little city to kill our citizens, shoot at our city officers, and passing my place of business shot three shots at me. One striking in my window as above my head, one in the sidewalk at my feet. Nor was this all. Four of our citizens, with their wives and children, were invited to the woods, and sent to the Beaver river, in No Man's Land, on a fishing and hunting expedition. One of the desperadoes being in our city, went straight to Wooddale, and invited the Wooddale men to their leaving. They immediately got up a posse and followed them about forty miles from home and demanded their surrender, telling them that if they did not surrender they would step their foot in a carriage would be killed. Our people knowing it was certain death to surrender, planned for one of their number to mount a fast horse and leave by that way to divide the Wooddale men, their number being then sufficiently strong to hold the rest at bay until they could get home with their wives and children. To their surprise the most of the men took after the fleeing horseman, leaving only two to guard the remaining men, women and children. The desperadoes, before leaving, started a messenger to their town for reinforcement with this word: "We have them surrounded; send us ten good, true, and tried men quick." The messenger being sent to the sheriff of our county, who was one of their number. The women driving, our men with their Winchester rifles in their hands passed the guards and arrived home about 10 o'clock that night, and reported what had happened. How they were chasing a citizen of our town, and his poor weeping wife begged of us to go to the rescue of her husband. A crowd was started to his rescue. Reports came that they were surrounded and some killed. Other parties started to their rescue, and finally I started with a party and when within about two miles of Wild Horse lake, in No Man's Land, we could see the flashes and hear the reports of the rifles. We arrived there, we found out that there had been a fight and five of the ruffians were killed. Two eyes witnesses, my makers there, saw positively that we were not there until twenty minutes after the killing was done. Thirty men were then indicted, some of whom have not been acquitted and some have not yet been tried. We have been taken down here into Texas, between 500 and 1000 miles from home and friends, to be tried, and on perjured testimony, by people of a different mind than people of this State, and an amount of our testimony not allowed by the Judge. Several of the juryman said on the streets, after their verdict was given, in that the Kansas case is a disgrace to the general principles. The trial has cost the United States about $100,000, and the U. S. officers here seemed to think we must be contented on an amount of the expense we had been to the government. The case is appealed to the Supreme Court of the U. S. The people of Kansas are enraged at our conviction and are working hard for our release. Knowing there is a God in Heaven, and asking Him to guide my pen to speak the truth, I tell you my five comrades and I are innocent of the charge against us. J. B. CHAMBERLAIN.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS JOHN C. COVENEY, of Benton Harbor, formerly of this township, will be a candidate before the Republican county convention for the office of Prosecuting Attorney. We learn also that John A. Watson, of St. Joseph, and Mr. Hamilton, of Niles, are so candidates for that office. It is also rumored that Mr. Bridgman would accept of a nomination for a third term. Third term candidates do not usually run very well, no matter how efficient they may have been in the office, and the convention will not nominate that way.

THUS far the only Agricultural fair advertised in this county is the one to be held in Berrien Springs, September 26 and 27. Agricultural fairs do not appear to run very rich in this county. The Berrien County Agricultural Society managed to worry along through twenty or twenty-five years, its exhibits and attendance growing gradually less each year until it finally went under, and its property was sold to pay debts. The Benton Harbor fair flourished a few years, but became a losing game and last year was abandoned as a poor investment. The show at Berrien Springs appears to be on a sound financial footing. It gives no premiums, charges no admissions, incurs no expense, and is made a sort of general visiting time for farmers, who want to show their big turkeys and pumpkins, and swap yarns about the hardships of the poor untold trapper, and so on in its way a success. There has for a few years been entertained a similar gathering upon the same financial basis at Three Oaks. Thus far we have seen no announcement for this year's fair.

MRS. ADAMS, the woman who tried to negotiate the sale of a road to J. E. Kirby, on Thursday, and who was jailed, is pronounced in a serious condition by Dr. Miller, the attending physician, who has ordered her removed to St. Joseph, Mo. The woman has not spoken a word since her incarceration, and is indeed unable to do so at all. She is in a pitiable condition. —South Bend Times.

When there may not be a chance for some sport with the one who caused Mrs. Adams' arrest? She is arrested for trying to dispose of a forged note. No note was found upon her or among her effects. Two men accuse her of it and she denies all knowledge of the transaction. No other evidence is found against her. She is now in a hospital in a pitiable condition, the Times says.

THREE OAKS ACCORS. We had a nice shower on Sunday. Miss Snyder, of South Bend, is visiting her niece, Mrs. John Habel. Mr. Hurlbut, of Ishpeming, Mich., is spending a few days with his sisters. We understand that Mr. M. H. Nye has secured a good position at Washington, D. C. We wish to congratulate him and extend our best wishes for success. Three Oaks has lost a good citizen and a good business man, and Washington has gained one. Dr. Peck was in town Tuesday. Mr. Kemp and wife, of Chicago, spent Sunday with Mr. Benj. Platt. Mr. Kemp is Mrs. Platt's brother. Mr. Watson, of Canada, gave a lecture at the M. E. church last Friday evening. The sick are improving. FRISKY.

THE farmers who are anxious to receive an increase of their straw, should see to it that they do not set the price so high that the mills can ship it at a cheaper rate. In making any contract for the purchase of straw, the profit of the middlemen, they should take into consideration that the mills must have straw regularly and if the farmers are to displace middlemen they must enter into a bonded contract so to furnish it. It cannot be delivered as may suit the convenience of each individual farmer, but the supply must be constant and regular. This is expected of the middlemen, and we trust the farmers may not overlook the fact that there are two sides to this question as well as most others—we may say this, too, interested in the farmer receiving the highest price for everything he produces. —Niles Democrat.

The Detroit Tribune has published reports of 17 banks doing business in that city, the combined deposits of which were nearly $30,000,000. Two-thirds of these deposits were in the savings departments. That is not a bad showing for a city of 200,000 inhabitants. —Ann Arbor Courier.

The Michigan Supreme Court held Friday in the People vs. Bonclard that a saloon added on Saginaw Bay was not within bounds of any township and therefore was not amenable to the state tax. The Columbia Theatre, Monroe and Dearborn streets, Chicago, at Hayman and Will J. Davis, Lessee, A. F. Hayman, Acting Manager, Anniversary Announcement 1890-91.

"The Country Fair" which will be submitted to Chicago theatre goes for the first time at the Columbia theatre, August 25, reveals cheery scenes, lovable people and homespun ways. Abigail Truitt, with her prim curls, old maidish ways, her big bonnet and her willing hands is pronounced a most delightful creation. "Hardly a creation," says one writer, "but a duplication," for I had met and talked with her before she came to the stage. My attention was attracted by the events of the first act, and I was to take place. How like a New England home that I could recall, even to the smell—that unmistakable smell of horse hair furniture and mahogany varnish. I fancied I could even see the bright painted ornaments on the what-not—why, I even looked for a box with the gay, the blue, the green, the red, the yellow, the white and the black, and I could have run my fingers over the brown paper topped tumbler full to the brim with tempting jellies and preserves. I knew that I had met the girl who had been in a bordered ingrain carpet; I could almost hear a clock drowsily tick and that red cover on the old-fashioned table was like a friend one has not seen for many a long day. My mind went back to the old days, and I could almost hear a clock drowsily tick and that red cover on the old-fashioned table was like a friend one has not seen for many a long day.

The following accident, which occurred in 1890, is related by Herr von Sybel in the fourth volume of his book, "The Founding of the German Empire by William I." During a dinner at the Saxon embassy, in Berlin, Countess Hohenhausen, the wife of the ambassador, sat next to the Russian premier, who was a native of the province of Posen. It is really true that you want to fight with Austria and take Saxony! Prince Bismarck answered, with great amiability: "Certainly it is true, dear countess. From the very first day of my ministry I have thought of nothing else, and now you are low ready to see you will soon see that they are more powerful than the Austrian artillery."

"But," she added, "as you are in so frank a humor give me some friendly advice. I have two estates. To which shall I fly, the one in Posen or the one near Leipzig? If you will listen to me," answered Prince Bismarck, "you will not go to Boemia. It is there, and if I am not mistaken, it is exactly in the neighborhood of your estate that we shall meet the Austrians. You might experience some terrible adventures. Go to Saxony. Nothing will be troubled with quarreling soldiers, for your estate of Knauthelm is near no line of march."

"And I have written all this about a crude play of country life that will not stand the test of analysis," said the prince. "I have apparently been over-enthusiastic about a dramatic sketch that is valued in a literary standpoint."

But, after all, it was not the play; it was how it was acted and played upon the stage. It suggested more than it realized it was written; it was mounted with an eye to pictorial and realistic effect.

Messrs. Hayman & Davis have been for some time past endeavoring to inaugurate their regime at the Columbia. CAVES IN NEW ZEALAND.

A recent report of the surveyor general of New Zealand contains an account of a visit to the Waitemoa caves, in the King Country, New Zealand. The caves, which are known in the London Times, the Waitemoa river, a tributary of the Waipa, which passes through these caves, lies about eighty-five miles south of Auckland, in a straight line. The caves are about ten miles from Otokoanga railway station, a county of which is undulating. A quarter of a mile before the caves are reached the Waitemoa, about twenty feet in width, is seen emerging from the side of a hill under which it has flowed through limestone caverns of various sizes for about twenty caves. A light of the cave is taken along the river through the caves to within a short distance of the gorges, where further progress is barred by the roof coming down to the water. At the entrance to the cavern the stream is eight feet deep. The natives have never had the entrance to the caves reached.

The entrance to the cave is 30 feet wide and 20 feet high, and is in the face of a cliff. It is beautifully arched with numerous moss and lichen covered stalactites. The visitor is taken in a canoe ninety feet from the entrance, and is taken down the river through the caves to within a short distance of the gorges, where further progress is barred by the roof coming down to the water. At the entrance to the cavern the stream is eight feet deep. The natives have never had the entrance to the caves reached.

protection, and declared that if Austria would stand firmly by her, but that otherwise they would turn their backs on her forever. This communication from Herr von Bueset was not without influence in the decisions of the Council of Ministers in Vienna. Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated by her family physician, but grew worse. She was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle, and to her delight found herself benefited from the first dose. Such Bend Times compares the business man who invests fifty cents in advertising, and because he does not notice any immediate boom in his business declares advertising does not pay, to the old Indian who, after sleeping all night on a feather, declared white man "heap dam fool" for saying feathers were soft. The figures for the same places in 1880 are as follows: Bainbridge 1,375, Benton 2,130, Berrien 1,892, Bertrand 1,808, Buchanan 2,898, Chikaming 990, Gallen 1,392, Hagar 946, Lake 1,247, Lincoln 1,408, New Buffalo 1,101, Niles 1,663, Oronoko 1,812, Pipestone 1,495, Royaltown 1,024, Sodus 950, St. Joseph 3,560, Three Oaks 1,393, Watervliet 1,897, Weesaw 1,300, Niles City 4,107. The meeting of the farmers in the G. A. R. hall, in Niles, Saturday for the purpose of forming a straw trust, resulted in the appointment of a committee to investigate the question of what prices are being paid for straw by Niles mills and elsewhere. This movement was brought about by the understanding that J. L. Reddick had a contract to furnish to the Niles mills with straw as fast as they wanted it to use, and that he was making more money out of it than the farmers were getting. Last year this straw question was studied somewhat in this place. Parties here proposed to use the press and power in the excelsior works, buying the straw of the farmers, bale it, and ship to eastern mills, but when they discovered that by paying for the straw the price that is being paid they could not make anything at handling it, the scheme went no further. They discovered that New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio were paying more for straw than was being paid here, but not enough more to cover the freight charge.
