SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION

CURE.

A SIMILAR CASE.

BY F. H. CURTISS. Jack, I hear that you've been captured With a matrimonial noose; Doubtless now you feel enraptured And old ties will soon cut loose.

I was almost immolated At Bar Harbor last July; It was there, I think you stated You proposed-well, so did I. No doubt you left the others

In the ballroom, for they say Chaperons and watchful mothers At such times are in the way. Then you strolled along together Underneath the starlit sky; First you talked about the weather And the season—so did I.

Then your left hand sought to take hers, Finding it within your reach, While you listened to the breakers As they thundered on the beach. After that your heart grew bolder As you saw that none were nigh; Then you drew her close and told her That you loved her-so did I.

All the rest is repetition, And I'm sure I wish you joy In the change in your condition-I'll expect a card, old boy. But what makes you look so wilted? Why that heart-devouring sigh? You don't mean that you were jilted! That's a good one—so was I.

WHAT WAS IT?

BY FITZ-JAMES O'BRIEN.

It is, I confess, with considerable diffidence that I approach the strange narrative which I am about to re ate. The events which I propose to detail are of so extraordinary and unheard-of a character that I am quite prepared to meet with an unusual amount of incredulity and scorn. I accept all such beforehand. I have, I trust, the literary courage to face unbelief. I have, after mature consideration, resolved to narrate, in as simple and straightforward a manner as I can compass, some facts that passed under my observation in the month of July last, and which, in the annals of the mysteries of physical science, were wholly unparalleled.
I live at No. — Twenty-sixth Street, in this city. The house is in some respects a curious one. It has enjoyed for the last two years the reputation of being haunted. It is a large and stately residence, surrounded by what was once a garden, but which is now only a green inclosure used for bleaching clothes. The dry basin of what has been a fountain, and a few fruit trees, ragged and unpruned, indicate that this spot, in past days, was a pleasant, shady retreat, filled with fruits and flowers and the sweet murmur of

The house is very spacious. of noble size leads to a vast spiral staircase winding through its centre; while the various appartments are of imposing dimensions. It was built some fifteen or twenty years since by Mr. A —, the well-known New York merchant, who five years ago threw the commercial world into convulsions by a stupendous bank fraud. Mr. Aas every one knows, escaped to Europe, and died not long after of a broken heart. Almost immediately after the news of his decease reached this country, and was verified, the report spread in Twenty-sixth Street that No. — was haunted. Legal measures had dispossessed the widow of its former owner, and it was inhabited merely by a caretaker and his wife, placed there by the house-agent into whose hands it had passed for the purposes of renting or sale. These people declared that they were troubled with unnatural noises. Doors were opened without any visible agency. The remnants of furniture scattered through the various rooms were, during the night, piled one upon the other by unknown hands. Invisible feet passed up and down the stairs in broad daylight, accompanied by the rustle of unseen silk dresses and the gliding of viewless hands along the massive balusters. The care-taker and his wife declared they would live there no longer. The house-agent laughed, dismissed them, and put others in their place. The noises and supernatural manifestations continued. The neighborhood caught up the story, and the house remained untenanted for three years. Several parties negotiated for it; but somehow, always before the bargain was closed they heard the un-. pleasant rumors, and declined to treat any further. It was in this state of things that my landlady—who at that time kept a boarding-house in Bleecher Street, and who wished to move farther uptownconceived the bold idea or renting No. - Twenty-sixth Street. Happening to have in her house rather a plucky and philosophical set of boarders, she laid her scheme before us, stating candidly everything she had heard respecting the ghostly qualities of the estab-lishment to which she wished to remove us. With the exception of one or two timid persons—a sea captain and a returned Californian, who immediately gave notice that they would leave—every one of Mrs. Moffat's guests declared that they would accompany her in her chivalric incursion into the abode of spirits. Our removal was effected in the month of May, and we were all charmed with our new residence. The portion of Twenty-sixth Street where our house is situated—between Seventh and Eighth avenues—is one of the pleasantest localities in New York. The gardens back of the houses, running down nearly to the Hudson, form, in the summer time, a perfect avenue of verdure. The air is pure and invigorating. sweeping, as it does, straight across the river from the Weehawken heights, and even the ragged garden which surrounded the house on two sides, although displaying on washing-days rather too much clothes-line, still gave us a piece of green sward to look at, and a cool retreat in the summer eyenings, where we smoked our cigars in the dusk, and watched the fire-flies flashing their dark-lanterns in the long grass. Of course we had no sooner established ourselves at No. — than we began to expect the ghosts. We absolutely awaited their advent with eagerness. Our dinner conversation was supernatural. One of the boarders. who had purchased Mrs. Crowe's "Night Side of Nature" for his own private delectation, was regarded as a public enemy by the entire household for not having bought twenty copies. The man led a life of supreme wretchedness while he was perusing the volume. A system of espoinage was established, of which he was the victim. Once the black nothing but a little blue point of light butler asservated that his candle had been blown out by some invisible agency while in the act of undressing himself for the night; but as I had more than once discovered this colored gentleman in a condition when one candle must have appeared to him like two, I thought it possible that, by going a step farther in his potations, he might have reversed this phenomenon, and seen no candle at all where he ought to have beheld one. Things were in this state when an incident took place so awful and inexplicable in its character that my reason tairly reels at the bare memory of the occurrence. It was the 10th of July. Af er dinner was over I repaired, with my friend Dr. Hammond, to the garden to smoke my evening pipe. Indedependent of certain mental sympathies which existed between the doctor and myself, we were linked together by a secret vice. We both smoked opium. We knew each other's secret and respected it. We enjoyed together that wonderful expansion of thought; that marvelous intensifying of the perceptive faculties; that boundless feeling of existence when we seem to have points of contact with the whole universe; in short, that unimaginable spiritual bliss, which I would not surrender for a throne; and which I hope you, reader, will never-never taste. Those hours of opium happiness which the doctor and I spent together in secret were regulated with a scientific accuracy. We did not blindly smoke the drug of Paradise, and leave our dreams to chance. While smoking we carefully steerel our conversation through the brightest and calmest channels of thought. We talked of the East and endeavored to recall the magical panorama of its glowing scenery. We criticised the most sensuous poets, those who painted life ruddy with health, brimming with passion, happy in the possession of youth, and strength, and beauty. If we talked of Shakespeare's "Midsuummer Night's Dream," we lingered over Ariel and avoided Caliban. Like the Gebers, we turned our faces to the East, and saw only the sunny side of the world. This skilful coloring of our train of thought produced in our subsequent visions a corresponding tone. The splendors of Arabian fairy-land dyed our dreams. We paced the narrow strip of grass with the tread and port of kings. The song of the Rana orbo-rea while he clung to the bark of the ragged plum tree sounded like the strains of divine orchestras. Houses, walls, and streets melted like rainclouds, and vistas of unimaginable glory stretched away before us. It was of us enjoyed the vast delight more perfectly because, even in our most ecstatic moments, we were ever conscious of each other's presence. Our pleasures, while individual, were still twin, vibrating and moving in musical

On the evening in question, the 10th of July, the doctor and myself found ourselves in an unusually metaphysical mood. We lit our large meerschaums, filled with fine Turkish obacco, in the core of which burned a little black nut of opium, that, like the nut in the fairy tale, held within its narrow limits wonders beyond the reach of kings; we paced to and fro, conversing. A strange perversity dominated the currents of our thought. They would nct flow through the sunlit channels into which we strove to divert them. For some unaccountable reason they constantly diverged into dark and lonesome beds, where a continual gloom brooded. It was in vain that, after our old fashion, we flung ourselves on the shores of the East, and talked of its gay bazaars, of the splendors of the time of Haroun, of harems and gold palaces. Black afreets continually arose from the depths of our talk, and expanded, like the one the fisherman released from the copper vessel, until they blotted out everything bright from our vision. Insensibly we yielded to the occult force that swayed us, and indulged in gloomy speculation. We had talked some time upon the proneness of human mind to mysticism and almost universal love of the Terrible, when Hammond suddenly said to me: "What do you consider to be the greatest element of Terror?" The question, I own, puzzled me That many things were terrible, I knew. Stumbling over a corpse in the dark eholding, as I once did, a woman float ng down a deep and rapid river, with wildly lifted arms and awful, upturned face, uttering, as she sank, shricks that rent one's heart, while we, the spectators, stood frozen at a window which everhung the river at a height of sixty feet, unable to make the slightest effort to save her, but dumbly watching her last supreme agony and her disappearance. A shattered wreck, with no life visible, encountered floating listlessly on the ocean, is a terrible ebject, for it suggests a huge terror, the proportions of which are veiled. But it now struck me for the first time that there must be one great ruling embodiment of fear, a King of Terrors to which all others must succumb. What might it be? To what train of circumstances would it owe its existence? "I confess, Hammond," I replied to my friend, "I never considered the subject before. That there must be one something more terrible than any other thing, I feel. I cannot attempt, however, even in the most vague definition. "I am somewhat like you, Harry," he answered. "I feel my capacity to experience a terror greater than anything yet conceived by the human mind. Something combining in fearful an unnatural amalgamation hitherto supposed incompatible elements. The calling of the voices in Brock-den Brown's novel of 'Wieland' is awful; so is the picture of the Dweller of the Threshold in Bulwer's 'Zanoni': but," he added, shaking his head gloomily, "there is something more horrible still than these." "Look here, Hammond," I rejoined; "let us drop this kind of talk for Heaven's sake. We shall suffer for it, depend on it." "I don't know what's the matter with me to-night," he replied, "my brain is running upon all sorts of weild and awful thoughts. I feel as if I could write a story like Hoffman tonight, if I were only master of a literary style." "Well, if we are going to be Hoffman-esque in our talk I'm off to bed. Opium and nightmares should never be brought together. How sultry it is! Good night, Hammond." "Good night, Harry. Pleasant dreams "To you, gloomy wretch, afreets, ghouls, and enchanters."

We parted, and each sought his respective chamber. I undressed quickly and got into bed, taking with me, knowed I was up in de work house fur of Monster's"—a curious French work, chickens in my bag, of co'se!"

then in, was anything but an agreeable companion. I resolved to go to sleep at once; so turning down my gas until glimmered on the top of the tube, I composed myself to rest once more.

water; seventeen days without either eating or drinking; and only five days when eating solid food without drink-The room was in total darkness. The that a horse should never be watered atom of gas that still remained lighted oftener than three time a day, or in twenty-four hours. This is not only a did not illuminate a distance of three inches round the burner. I desperately drew my arm across my eyes, as if to shut out even the darkness, and tried to think of nothing.

It was in vain. The confounded themes touched on by Hammond in the garden kept obtruding themselves on my brain. I battled against them. I erected ramparts of would-be blankness of intellect to keep them out. They still crowded upon me. While I was lying still as a corpse, hoping that by a perfect physical inaction I would hasten mental repose, an awful inci-dent occurred. A Something dropped, as it seemed, from the ceiling, plump upon my chest, and the next instant I I felt two bony hands encircling my throat, endeavoring to choke me. I am no coward, and am possessed of considerable physical strength. The suddenness of the attack instead of stunning me strung every nerve to its highest tension. My body acted from instinct, before my brain had time to realize the terrors of my position. In an instant I wound two muscular arms around the creature, and squeezed it, with all the strength of despair, against my chest. In a few seconds the bony hands that had fastened on my throat loosened their hold, and I was free to breathe once more. Then commenced a struggle of awful intensity. Immersed in the most profound darkness, totally ignorant of the nature of the Thing by which I was so suddenly attacked, finding my grasp slipping every moment by reason, it seemed to me, of the nakedness of my assailant, bitten with sharp teeth in the shoulder, neck, and chest, having every moment to protect my throat against a pair of sinewy, agile hands, which my utmost efforts could not confine—these were a combination of circumstances to combat which required all the strength and skill and courage that I possessed. [TO BE CONTINUED.]

Mysterious Sounds. When rendered concave by a gentle breeze, the wide spread sails of a ship are excellent conductors of sound. A ship was once sailing along the coast of Brazil, far out of sight of land. Sud-denly several of the crew, while walk-ing along the deck, noticed that when passing and repassing a particular spot they always heard with great distinctness the sound of bells chiming sweet music, as though being rung but a short distance away. Dumfounded by this phenomenon, they quickly communicated the discovery to their mates, but none of them were able to solve the enigma as to the origin of these seemingly mysterious sounds. Months afterward, upon returning to Brazil, some of the listeners determined to satisfy their curiosity. Accordingly, they mentioned the circumstance to their friends, and were informed that at the time when the sounds were heard, the bells in the cathedral of San Salvador, on the coast, had been ringing to celebrate a feast held in honor of the saints. Their sound, wonderful to relate, favored by a gentle, steady breeze, had traveled a distance of upward of one hundred miles over the smooth water, a similar kind, trust-worthy authorities claiming that it has often happened under somewhat the same circumstances.

and had been brought to a focus by the sails at the particular locality in which the sweet sounds were first heard.

This is but one of several instances of Skilled Detectives. After a three years' residence in China I have come to the conclusion that the Chinese are the best detectives in the world. It is impossible for an evil doer to long elude them. They scent a crime and follow it to the last before civilized detectives would know of it. In a country of so many people, who all look alike, this is remarkable. I heard of one case which will serve to illustrate their shrewdness. A family in Tonquin was murdered and there was no apparent clew to the murderer. The entire detective corps of three provinces were placed upon the case and in three weeks the murderer-none other than the chief of the secret police who bandled the chase for the murderer-was arrested and beheaded. Think of that! Punishment follows close upon crime in this part of the world. The detective force is in every sense a secret body, and wonderfully well organized. The men have an eye upon every man, woman and child, foreign or native, in China, and in addition watch each other, Informers are encouraged and collusion is impossible. The head of the Chinese police is not known, but there is one, and a very active one, too. I have heard that the present head was once an ambassador to a European country, but really do not believe that any one knows who he is. There are said to be over six hundred thousand men under him and his assistants, who con-

A Glasgow Bell. Probably the longest inscription on any bell in the country is that which J. S. Hadden takes from the bell in the Glasgow cathedral. It is dated 1890. and is as follows: "In the year of grace, 1594, Marcus Knox, a merchant in Glasgow, zealous for the interests of the Reformed religion, caused me to be fabricated in Holland for the use of his fellow citizens in Glasgow, and placed me with solemnity in the tower of their cathedral. My function was announced by the impress on my bosom -'Ye who hear me come to learn of holy doctrine,' and I was taught to proclaim the hours of unheeded time. One hundred and ninety-five years had sounded their awful warnings when I was broken by the hands of inconsider ate and unskillful men. In the year 1790 I was cast into the furnace, refounded at London and returned to my sacred vocation. Reader! thou shalt also know a resurrection-may it be unto eternal life."-London Daily News.

Strychnine for Snake Bite,

A curious instance of one poison killing another is reported from Yack-andandah, Victora, where Dr. Mueller has recently administered strychnine in cases in snake bite. A solution of nitrate of strychnine in 240 parts water, mixed with a little glycerine, is prepared, and twenty minims injected hypodermically at intervals of ten to twenty minutes, according to the virulence of the attack. In some cases a grain of strychnine has been given thus within a few hours. The two poisons are antagonistic, and the characteristic effects of the strychnine only show themselves after the venom has been neutralized. The first independent action of the drug is evinced by slight muscular spasms and the injections must then be discontinued, unless after a time the snake poison reasserts itself.

So long as the latter is active the strychnine can be applied in quanti-ties which would be fatal in the ab-

The Tramp in America. It is estimated that there are about sixty thousand tramps in the United States. A large percentage of the number are Irishmen, native born and foreign. The German is sometimes a voluntary vagrant, but never a gregarious one. Americans are well represented; but Englishmen, Frenchmen and Italians are seldom met. There are a few female tramps-more women than girls. Boys from fourteen to twenty-one years of age are a popular addition to the fraternity. In the Western States there is a class of fellows who travel between Salt Lake and San Francisco, who are called blanket tramps because they invariably carry blankets, sleeping where night overtakes them. They are willing, however, to work at certain seasons of the year, so are shut out of the brotherhood. A genuine tramp will never work, except when compelled to in prison. He jealously guards the organization from the intrusion of "half-way beggars," who might work at a pinch. As a rule, a man becomes a tramp through drink. Of course a lazy disposition is also answerable for many a young fellow's propensity in this direction. One-tenth of the fraternity may be termed discouraged criminals, men who have tried their hand at crime, but found they lacked criminal wit. These have become tramps, because a roving life comes the nearest to their desires and expectations. It is this class which is the most successful, as they are ingenious in getting out of a scrape and triumphing over emergences. The Irish tramp is a jolly companion, never hesitating to appeal to a priest in cases of difficulty. Certain actions is common to them all. Despite nationality, a tramp vernacular is their common property and 'open sesame." In reality, this peculiar lingo is mutilated English, but so fantasti cally applied that one not initiated would find it very difficult to understand. It is a very popular feature of trampdom, and is generously used by all adepts, while it is a youthful rover's great ambition to excel in it. Almost all proficient roadsters "beat their way" on the railways, This is done by dif-ferent methods. The one most popu-lar is riding on freight trains, because these so often carry empty cars, which are comparatively easy to board and occupy unmolested. On the other hand, when a fellow is very desirous of making a quick journey he will risk the top of a passenger train at night. And once in a while he will even venture his safety on the trucks of an express. It is a dangerous way to travel, and many a tramp is killed in attempting

Military Rule in Europe. European civilization to day is based on the idea that war is not only an imminent possibility, but a probability; and a great class in every country has been trained to look upon blood-sheding as its vocation. The great prizes are reserved for soldiers; honor, fame, position and the monarch's favor go to the sons of Mars. The military budget exceeds, many times over does it exceed, the appropriations for public instruction. The salary of a colonel is earned by but few professors. The cost of the powder and shot wasted in Europe between any dawn and dusk would probably pay the running ex-penses of all her public hospitals. In each government, whether it be constitutional or autocratic, the army may with truth be said to direct legislation; for the Legislatures, willingly or unwillingly, vote the appropriations demanded by the War Department. Even if a Legislature dares to question or protest, it is quickly frightened into acquiescing by an alarming report from the Minister of War. Thus the military class controls government, and has laws passed to suit itself, and prevents all attempts to cut down or to abolish its power. It intimidates the state not less really, though less openly, than the Pretorian Guard intimidated old Rome. Kings and ministers do, indeed, assure the public that they chiefly endeavor and desire to preserve peace, but in the next breath they call for larger funds and more recruits. Kaisers meet, and kiss each other on both cheeks; they extol the sweetness of brotherly love; they attend each other's grand maneuvers; and then they increase the garrisons along their

Soaking Pencils in Oil. A new discovery has been made by railroad clerks in Pittsburg regarding the saving of lead pencils. This will be a boon to those who are continually using expletives and borrowing pocke knives on account of the frailty of good, soft lead in a pencil. Every one vho has much rapid writing to perform perfers a soft pencil, but nothing has come to public light so far by which the lead can to an extent be preserved. The P., C. C, & St. Louis clerks have brought about a new era in the pencil business; also have they morally benefited humanity, inasmuch as they decrease violation of the third commandment. The new idea to preserve a soft pencil is to take a gross of the useful article and place them in a jar of linseed oil. Allow them to remain in soak until the oil thoroughly permeates every particle of the wood and lead. This has the effect of softening the mineral, at the same time making it tough and durable. It has been found very useful and saving, an ordinary pencil being used twice as long under the new treatment.-Toledo

The electoral vote of the solid south next fall will be 159. If New York with 36, New Jersey with 10 and Indiana with 15 votes are carried by the Democrats, the total Democratic yote will be 220—three short of a necessary majority. Stealing Michigan's Electoral Vote. The Democrats under this arrangement will secure as many electors as they can carry districts. It insures them some electoral votes from Michigan, whereas they had no hope of carrying the state and securing all. There are said to be flaws in the law by which it may be declared unconstitutional in the courts. where it is to be contested. It is to be hoped that the contest against it may be successful. For the Benefit of Grand Army Men. There are thousands of comrades who fought during the war under the four great generals, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and McClellan, who would have purchased the memoirs of these historic captains when published had the price been placed at a reasonable figure. There is an opportunity now, however, as "The Cosmopolitan Magazine" has purchased 600,000 volumes of the memoirs in the original subscrip tion editions, bound in green and gold cloth, and is almost giving them away in connection with a subscription to that popular magazine. Not only should members of the Grand Army be interested in the offer, but every man and woman in the country who is at all up to the times will be interested in these books. The writers are dead; the memoirs can never be rewritten. They contain the personal history of the great commanders, and form an indispensable part of the history of the country. No library, private or public, large or little, is complete without them. By special contract the RECORD is enabled to give its readers the benefit of this great offer, as fully explained on our advertising pages. What Tin Has Cost. The public has heard many jeremiads from the agents of British tin-plate manufacturers in this country of the immense burden which the duty on that article is going to place upon the American consumer, but nothing as to what it has already cost them by not having a tariff, which would encourage home manufacture. On that topic the American Economist, speaking in the ight of statistics and established facts. says that while we produce nearly all the iron we need ourselves, we are dependent upon British manufacturers for our tin, and it introduces the following table of comparative prices of sheet iron and tin plate (the cheaper quality used for canning purposes since 1878, to show what it has cost

our co	nsumers:

From this table it will be seen that while iron, which has been protected, has fallen in price 50 per cent since 1878, tin plate, or sheet iron coated with tin, has risen in price 8 per cent during the same period. Now, why is this? Why, simply because home competition under protection has reduced the price of sheet iron, as it has of everything else protected, while under free trade we have been compelled to ourchase all our tin plate from the Welsh tin plate trust, which, of course, has raised prices to suit itself.

The Bangor (Me.) Courier, taking the above table for a basis of calculation, gives the following interesting and significant figures: Now, if under protection we have been able to reduce the price of sheet iron 50 per cent, it is safe to assume that if tin plate, which is 98 per cent sheet iron, had been adequately protected, we could have correspondingly reduced its price; for the pig-tin, which forms but an insignificant part of the tin plate, we can procure on just as advantageous terms as the British. The total quantity of tin plates imported into this country in the twenty years from 1871 to 1891 was 3,622,750 gross tons, and the total foreign value of these importations was $307,341,404. In addition to this sum our people paid freight and importers' profits. Making, therefore, a conservative estimate, and allowing for breaks in production, we have paid in these twenty years some $100,000,000 more than if we had produced our tin plate at home. Instead of paying $300,000,000 to the Welsh tinplate trust, we would have paid $200,-000,000 to American manufacturers, to be paid by them in wages to American laborers, while the $100,000,000 that we have been paying to the trust in the form of higher prices would have remained as additional savings in the

THE RECORD has met the managers of the Ohio paper mill, in Niles, and heard their side of the straw story, a misunderstanding existing between them and the straw producers, which would seem to indicate that a meeting of the two and a plain everyday business talk might be beneficial to both. Ir is seldom the RECORD refers to the ways and methods of Democratic officials, but when such work as is done by our present county crew comes to view, it is difficult to refrain. There is the deputy Game Warden in Benton Harbor, for instance. He came to this place last September to look after some fellows who were putting in their enthe bride's parents upon the return of tire time slaughtering quail out of days, collected sufficient evidence to convict. "YES more than is nesary," he writes, but because the board of Supervisors refused to allow his bill for expense in a Niles case where they thought the convicted party had paid the bill once, and our Supervisor had something to say in connection with the bill, he says he will attend to the cases here when he thinks best, which thus far has not been. Putting his actions here with what we read of his methods near his home, we conclude that he doesn't amount to much more than the average Democratic official,

Open Cars to Be Remodeled. "The days of the street car, grips as well as trailers, having the seats arranged crosswise instead of parallel with the car, are numbered." This remark was made a few days ago by a well known Chicago physician who is the medical examiner for an accident insurance company which insures the lives of many street car employees as well as "Why do you say that?" was the query of a friend. "For this reason—the cars built with the seats crosswise almost invariably have footboards running alongside so that the passenger may get on or off the car 'at any spot in the road,' as the sport would say, and these footboards facilitate a passenger in getting into danger. For instance, the rules of all the car companies require the passenger to get on or off the car on the side nearest the sidewalk. This rule was intended to keep the people off the track of the car going in the opposite direction. But these rules are not obeyed, and street car companies must pay damages when any one is hurt, and the conductor has no opportunity to stop his car if the passenger takes a notion to get off without signaling him to stop, and many people are injured while getting off a car while it is in motion—sometimes by behg struck by a vehicle or another car, sometimes by slipping on the treacher ons footboard or by making some kind of a misstep.

"The car with the end door as the only means of exit is the one which protects the company from many damage suits. The open car with the running footboard may be cheaper in construction, but statistics will show that nine-tenths of the accidents caused by getting on and off cars occur on open cars or grips with the cross seats and running footboards. I think there should be a city ordinance against their use. Besides, the street car companies will some day awaken to the fact that cars of that style sometimes cause in one minute damage equal to their first cost."-Chicago Times.

Albert Edward's Slumming Experience. There are just now stories flying about of the Prince of Wales visiting the 'slums" under a rather comical disguise, but though it is known that the prince. accompanied by Lord Carrington, made himself acquainted with the "seamy side of life, very little art was required to conceal his identity. Indeed, it is surprising, though Englishmen are as a rule familiar, more or less, with the appearance of their future sovereign, how often his presence in a place where he is not expected passes without recognition.

Some years ago the prince, quite incognito, traveled down to Folkestone to meet Princess Louise, who was coming over from the Continent, and as there was some time to wait before the arrival of the steamer, he strolled about on the quay and ultimately went out with a boatman of local fame for a short cruise in the channel. When they got safely back the prince remarked, "Perhaps you would like to know who I am?" "I don't know as I cares: it ain't no odds to me," came the reply.

"Well, I'm the Prince of Wales." "The Prince of Wales!" ejaculated the old mariner, giving his customer a playful dig in the ribs. "Get along with yer!"-London Cor. Chicago Times.

A Storehouse of Electricity. Minnesota, not to be behindhand in marvels tells of an electric well which one of its citizens claims to have been discovered near Red Wing recently. Acpording to the story the drilled about 150 feet when they lost their drill rods and a diamond drill. The whole business had dropped to nowhere in an instant. There was quite a force of air coming out of the hole, and the men said there was no use going any farther, because there wasn't any bottom. They concluded to fish for the rods and drill, but as soon as the rods were dropped into the hole they began to shiver in a queer way.

One of the men took hold of the bar with a pair of leather gloves, and he was knocked down. Then Hollywell touched the rope and got a shock, because it was wet. There seems to be a perfect natural storehouse of electricity. It is generated in some way in that pocket where the drills went, and there is enough of it to execute a whole county at once under the New York law.-Philadelphia Ledger.

A Grand Old Commoner. Though essentially a modest man, Mr.

Smith had a certain pride of his own. Public rumor was always conferring a peerage upon him, and I suppose that had he lived he would have accepted one. But he was proud of his independent and "solf made" position as a wealthy commoner. "You see," he said to me, "I have no aristocratic connections, no family interests; indeed, I haven't a male relative alive except my own boy. I am completely unprejudiced and unfettered." He was aware of the advantage this gave him. He was rich and a plebeian, and his colleagues had confidence in him accordingly as a strong administrator.—Pall Mall Gazette. Question of Telephone Charges.

A proposal has been made by Dr.

Strecker, of Berlin, which seems to solve the question of telephone charges. He proposes to levy a fundamental charge to meet the expenses for installation, maintenance and depreciation, in addition to a time charge, to meet the working expenses. Nothing could be fairer than to charge for the use of the telephone according to the duration of conversation, and Dr. Strecker proposes to use a clock which goes as long as the conversation lasts.—New York Telegram.

A New Way to Throw Rice. A practical joke which the best man at an autumn wedding perpetrated was to deliver to the porter of the parlor car in which he saw them off a sealed telegraph envelope with instructions to deliver it at a certain station. The darky duly did so and the groom broke the seal to have a small avalanche of rice pour through his fingers.—New York Times.

It Was Not a Man. Officer C. O. White has lately been put on the Twenty-sixth street beat, which includes Puyallup avenue. White is a fearless officer, and the other night, as he was making his beat along Puyallup avenue in a deep shade close to the side of a building, he descried the form of what he supposed to be a hobo taking a snooze. Of course that would never do, so with a preliminary whirl of his club, a little cough, and a perceptible heightening of his stature he approached the hobo. "Come alang out o' that neow, will oo?" he exclaimed. The hobo moved not so much as a

"D'ye hear me? I sayed coom alang ouet o' that, will oo? Yez won't, eh? Wull, I'll show yez."

With that White grabbed the supposed hobo by the back of the neck. There was a short, preliminary growl, the clanking of a chain, and then the fur fairly flew. It was the pet black bear of the Union club saloon that White had awakened. For about twenty-five minutes there was a little the liveliest scrapping match there or thereabouts that has ever been known in police circles, and when White got out of reach of the cub he was · dollar hat, the sleeves of his uniform and his breath, and he was plus numerous wounds and scratches, bruises and black spots. And to cap the climax, the young bruin stood guard over his handcuffs, his tions furnished to the government by a local investigator, Daninos Pasha. The first two represent in one group Rameses II and Queen Hentmara seated on the same throne. This is unique among Egyptian statues. The third statue represents Rameses standing upright in military attire, a scepter in his hand and a crown upon, his head. Both bear hieroglyphic inscriptions, and both have been thrown from their pedestals face downward. Their site is on the ancient Cape Zephyrium, near the remains of the temple of Venus and Arsinoe. Relics of the early Christians have been found in the same locality. A Sleep Walker's Fearful Leap. James S. Claque, a stock raiser of Greeley, Colo., walked into the police station at Burlington, Ia., recently, hatless, coatless and generally bruised up, and told a remarkable story. He said he had left his home to visit friends in Galva, Ills., and had taken a sleeper at Denver. The last thing he remembers was retiring to his coach. When he awoke he was lying in the ditch at the side of the track not far from Burlington, badly bruised and half frozen. He walked to the police station from there. His theory was that he had jumped from the train while asleep when it was running full speed. An investigation by railroad authorities proves the truth of the man's assertion. He is now in the hospital quite ill from his terrible exposure.-Cor. St. Louis Republic.

The Czar in Plain Clothes. When the emperor of Russia passed privately through Berlin the other night he was attired in plain clothes, and it was the first time that he had ever appeared in public thus arrayed. The emperor's towering figure was not displayed to advantage in a loose suit of brown tweed, especially when contrasted with the splendid Russian uniform in which Prince Frederick Leopold appeared, and his majesty was the only personage in plain clothes. The emperor, who stopped for nearly an hour at the Stettin line station, dined on sandwiches, which he washed down with several bowls of tea, which was made on the spot by his own servants, with his own caravan tea.-London World.

Books in Russiu. It appears from the organ of the Russian Association of Booksellers and Pub lishers that the number of works published in that country last year was 4,358 and that the total number of copies sold was not far short of 12,000,000. Translations from foreign languages counted for only 51 per cent. Of these a little more than one-third were from the French. Of one work by Zola 2,800 copies were sold. Next came Gaboriau, Daudet, Hugo, Jules Verne, Moliere, Flaubert, Dumas. An edition of "Paradise Lost" sold 6,000 and one of "Hamlet" 10,000.—London News.

The First Thanksgiving. On Nov. 9, 1620, the weary wave tossed pilgrims on board the brave little Mayflower caught their first glimpse of the New England coast. A year later Governor Bradford issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation, thus instituting a festival which, after being confined for more than 200 years to New England, at length became national in its character. and is now observed on the last Thursday of each November throughout the length and breadth of our land.—Kirk

Three Costly Hothouses. This is the season of the year when the great army of gardeners employed by New York's millionaires who have a fad for flowers are putting their hothouses in shape for the winter. I met Jay Gould's chief gardener yesterday and he told me that everything was in excellent shape at the railroad king's $500,000 hothouse up the Hudson. A lot of choice plants and exotics have just arrived from India and other eastern countries. John Hoey's difficulties have not deterred him from looking after his pet flowers in his grand hothouses at Hollywood, N. J. I am told his chief gardener has had several conferences with Mr. Hoey during the past two weeks about his favorite flowers and their care. Mr. Hoey is passionately fond of flowers, and selects the seeds and bulbs himself, and at times superintends the work of his Crime Decreasing. All the criminal returns published of late have happily tended to show that crime is decreasing. The judicial statistics for the past year bear the same testimony. Whether under the head of "criminal classes at large" or "in local and convict prisons and reformatories." the figures show a steady decline. The same is true of the houses of bad character, by which is meant such as are the resort of thieves, depredators and suspected persons. In England and Wales there are 2,688 houses of this de-

It seems rather odd to be told that of these 345 are public houses and 265 beer

Is it for the reason once given by a French administrator that they serve the ends of the law by providing places where those who are wanted by the police can easily be found? The known houses of receivers of stolen goods had declined from 778 two years ago to 724 last year.—London Telegraph.

Rewards to the Good and Bad. Every schoolgirl and boy in Bellmore, I., knows Lawyer George A. Mott. A few days ago he visited the village school in that place with the pockets o his overcoat bulging out with prizes for the pupils. The prizes were for good conduct and excellence in different studies. More than a dozen boys and girls were made happy. Two prizes still remained, and then Mr. Mott requested the teacher, Miss Fish, to call up the worst boy in the school. A bright eyed urchin named Clinton Moore was produced by Miss Fish in response to Mr. Mott's request. He was presented with one of the remaining prizes and promised to try to do better. When Mr. Mott asked for the worst girl in the school saucy Jennie Hicks raised her hand. She received the other prize.—New York

What Is "Trotty?" I ask for information. I have been reading lately a very clever novel about English artist life and English smart society. Twice over in the story a smart young woman is made to describe certain articles of costume in a bride's trousseau as "quite too awfully trotty for words." I have never to my knowledge heard the phrase "trotty" used in that sense. Is it an epithet of London smart society? If so, what is its supposed derivation? Is it imported from America, as most of our slang phrases lately are? Any information on this point kindly supplied will be rewarded with the best thanks of this writer, who feels a considerable interest in slang, but likes it renuine when he can get it. -Justin McCarthy in New York Herald.

Vacation Espeditions. It is not a new thing for students in vacation to make scientific expeditions on their own account, combining camping and "roughing it" with congenial study, but an expedition of the kind which was successfully carried out during the vacation season of the present year deserves to be noted as of especial importance and significance.

A party consisting of a professor and everal students of Bowdoin college, in Maine, organized an expedition to Labrador to study the vegetable and animal growths, and otherwise to gain a scientific knowledge of the country. It was also planned, incidentally, to ascend the Grand river to the great cataract. The Grand river flows from the high plateau of northern Labrador, and the falls by which it reaches the lower level to flow into the Atlantic ocean are among the grandest on the continent. The Bowdoin college expedition was fitted out at the expense of alumni and friends of the college.

The Grand river was ascended, the great cataract viewed and photographed and its height ascertained. The students who succeeded in pushing as far up as the falls suffered many privations, but won deserved honor in the successful prosecution of their enterprise.

Their achievement is a good example for other American colleges and students. Much important information remains to be gathered about the less known portions of our continent, and geological, botanical and zoological researches, faithfully carried on, may always be made scientifically profitable and valuable, even upon ground which has been covered before.—Youth's Companion.

The sloths at the Zoological gardens are not quite so green as they were when they first arrived. We do not refer to their growing recognition of the fact that nuts and buns are not suitable food for an arboreal creature which subsists upon leaves, but to a literal change of color. It is a most remarkable fact that the sloth has in the wild state green hair, which causes it to resemble, as it clings to a branch, an excrescence of that branch covered with greenish gray lichens. In this way the sloth may perhaps sometimes escape the keen eye of a ja-

It is still more remarkable that the green color is not resident in the hair itself, but is due to the presence of quantities of minute green plants; and this explains how it is that in captivity the sloth changes color; the plants, deprived of the damp heat of their native forests, die, and are not replaced, so the peculiar gray green which is so characteristic of the sloth is changed to a brownish gray. -London Graphic.

The Sailors' Friend.

Mr. Samuel Plimsoll still keeps to his house in Park lane, and is far from well. but he has sufficiently recovered himself to be able to write a letter claiming one result-or rather the want of result-of the recent storm to legislation. Has there ever been remembered, he asks, a gale of equal suddenness, violence and duration which was not the cause o very, very much greater loss of life than that recorded of the gale which has recently passed away? A year and eight months ago, when he was fervently urging the government to assist in passing the load line bill, it was shown that the deplorable loss of life at sea from overloading was entirely preventable, and that the passing of the bill would immediately check it, while, when the act was steadily and uniformly administered, this head of loss would disappear. He points triumphantly to the recent gale for confirmation.—Liverpool (Eng.) Mercury.

Arrested Under a Queer Dakota Law.

Isaac Milliner, a rancher from the vicinity of Fort Mead, has been arrested in Deadwood, S. D., on the charge of offering beef for sale without exhibiting the hide, an act prohibited by a law, passed at the instance of cattlemen, by the last legislature, and intended to prevent the sale of stolen cattle. Mr. Milliner states that the beef offered for sale was his property, and that he has the hide at his ranch, and will produce it to prove that he has not committed a criminal act. This is the first arrest made under the law, and it occasioned considerable surprise, as the peculiar provisions of the law were not generally known. There is no doubt of Milliner's innocence, but the arrest will serve to spread a knowledge of the strange law. Milliner was released under $100 bonds.—Cor.

Omaha World-Herald. Intelligent Missionary Effort. The Rev. Dr. Storrs, the president of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, has good reasons for felicitating himself on the result of his conciliatory policy. The board's receipts for this year have been $690,921, against $465,372 the previous twelve months. To manage successfully a board which has such interests under its charge as this one, something more is needed than a determination to crush out all intelligent dissent, and keep the vast machine in operation along lines not at all adapted to increase the support of foreign missions, even among those inclined in their favor. The Rev. Dr. Storrs, with his broad outlook, has called a halt, to Good Fishing in Philadelphia. By the grading of Ridge avenue for the purpose of paying, a deep depression extending two squares has been made below Shurs' lane, Manayunk, and during a heavy rain recently a miniature lake was formed. It was promptly christened Lake Sundstrom, after the district surveyor. The water has no outlet except drainage through the soil. A citizen whose property is damaged by the change of grade began fishing from the banks. Just as a loaded street car came along he pulled up a mackerel, much to the amusement of the passengers, and succeeded in his attempt to ridicule the board of survey.—Philadelnhia Record

What Parladelphia Eats

During one year alone Philadelphia has devoured 185,475 slaughtered and dressed calves, 511,142 sheep, 548,940 hogs and 59,290 barrels and 97,390 boxes of poultry. The hens who were spared from the hatchet had to lay for the city 15,984,600 dozen eggs. Over 312,183 barrels of apples had to be shaken from the trees and 3,063 carloads of potatoes dug up from the ground. During the twelve months the city made havor of 11,118 packages of dried green peas, 119,521 packages of dried fruit and 355,337 packages of berries. The cooks consumed 16,489 tierces and 75,031 tubs of lard, and in the kitchen and on the table disappeared from view the tremendous amount of 256,591 tubs, 33,384 firkins and 87,846 boxes of butter. A huge heap of crackers must have been swallowed along with the 226,459 big boxes of During one year Philadelphia consumed nearly 3,500,000 bushels of grain, including nearly 1,500,000 bushels of corn, 877,508 bushels of wheat, 98,425 bushels of rye, 1,056,300 bushels of barley and 203,600 bushels of malt. Out of these $77,508 bushels of wheat were manufactured 195,002 barrels of flour and from this flour were baked 52,650, 540 loaves of bread. Most of the flour used by the bakers and the good housewives is shipped from the northwest, already barreled. This manufactured into bread would easily swell the total to nearly 150,000,000 loaves, or their equivilent to a certain extent in rolls, buns and bakery.

Philadelphia eats daily an enormous barbecue of 510 calves, 1,410 sheep, 1,510 hogs and 7,550 poultry, besides a huge banquet of at least 6,000,000 oysters, 525,528 eggs, 856 barrels of apples and 9 carloads of potatoes.—Philadelphia Rec-

Wrecked by a Mirage. A mirage in the Carribean sea was the cause of the total loss of the new American barkentine Steadfast, while bound from Port of Spain to Philadelphia. When the Steadfast sighted the lofty peaks of St. Croix the atmosphere assumed a peculiar light color, and it became impossible to detect the sky from the island, everything assuming a similar shade and color resembling the cirrostratus clouds, hiding the entire lower portion of the island. The peaks and mountain appeared to be twenty miles

The tops of the mountains seemed to be inverted, the tall cocoanuts appearing to grow from the sky to the earth. The sugar grinding mills were pouring their smoke downward, and the workmen working upside down. The Steadfast was kept under easy sail and perfect control. Everything went well until a grinding sound was heard, and a sudden tremor went through the ship. The vessel crashed over the reefs and was soon fast on the rocky shore, where her wreck still remains. The mirage made the island appear twenty miles away.—Boston Transcript.

The Cost of Italian Opera. Talking of money reminds me that Signor Vianesi says he left the Paris opera, where he has been conductor for the last four years, because the salary was not large enough and the work too exacting. He received $2,400 a year for ten months' work, and very hard work at that. He comes to America and gets $8,000 for seven months. Mr. Abbev's salary list is a formidable one. Miss Van Zandt gets $1,000 a performance, Miss Eames, $800; Lasalle, the French baritone, $800; Mme. Albani, $600, and five other singers from $400 to $500. There is a chorus of eighty, averaging $20 a week, or $1,600, and an orchestra costing $2,000 a week.

The expenses of giving opera with such a company cannot fall below $5,000 a performance, so that even at five dollars for a parquet seat, the price for the coming season, Mr. Abbey may not make a fortune. The average cost of the German performances at the Metropolitan last season was $2,600.—New York Epoch.

The Wedding Flower. The flowering of the "Wedding Flower," at Kew this year, is an event of more than ordinary interest, both to botanists and horticulturists. It is the giant not only of the genus Iris, but of the whole natural order to which it belongs. It is found wild only in a small island off the east coast of Australia, thousands of miles distant from the habitant of any other Iris. While all other Irises may be grown out of doors, or with a little protection in winter, this one is happy only when treated to subtropical conditions. Its value in horticulture is due as much to its stature and elegance of foliage as to the size and beauty of its numerous flowers.

The flowers last only one day, but there are so many of them that the flowering season extends over a long period. This Iris is known far and wide as the wedding flower. —London Garden.

A College President's Chase. Harvard men who attended chapel one morning last week were very much surprised to see President Eliot pursuing one of the students as the men were leaving the building. Those in the immediate vicinity heard a very short but animated conversation. "Young man," said the president to the individual in question, who turned around surprised, "young man, excuse me, but you have my hat." It was indeed true. In the confusion of leaving the chanel the student had picked up the wrong hat and was making away

The Lion Scattered the Crowds. The circus gave Tecumseh, Ala., excitement enough on Sunday to last it for a year. Forepaugh's show traveled on four trains. As it is against the Georgia laws to run through this state on Sunday, it was decided to stop at Tecumseh and feed the animals and rest. At all the stations there were large crowds, and at Tecumseh there were hundred when the last train approached. As it was slowing down one of the ferocious lions managed to tear off the door of its cage. Hector, which was the brute's name, thrust its head out right in the faces of a group of negroes who were standing on the platform. They could not have been worse scared if the evil one had dropped down among them. Hector made a leap, with open mouth, into the crowd. Such a scattering and such velling were never seen nor heard in Alabama. Some of the negroes fell down in abject fright, but the most of Sold by Druggists, 75 cents.

When he got up there was:hardly a man, woman or child within fifty yards. One woman, though, who had fainted, was lying near the lion. With one bound he was on her, his ugly teeth showing and his tongue rolling out. The people who were looking on were horrified. The tamer was a long way off, and there was no one near with a pistol or rifle. To attempt to rescue her would be almost certain death.

To the astonishment of every one the beast, instead of mangling the woman. simply sniffed the body, turned it over with his paws, and after eyeing it suspiciously walked off leisurely. He thought that the woman was dead. Hector was recaptured and recaged without trouble.—Atlanta Constitution.

Death of a Noted Negro Woman. Over the eastern branch of the Potomac, in Anacosta, better known as Uniontown during the war, there was buried recently a woman whose story did much to stimulate the antislavery sentiment in the north. She was a revelation of the possibilities of patient negro ambition. Born fifty-six years ago, in Prince George county, Md., she was a little slave girl of six when her owner put her out to service in a Washington family. At that age she began to hoard money to buy her freedom. Year after year she put by the pennies, for nothing larger fell to her in tips.

She had collected $100 in coppers when the attention of some of the public men of that day was called to her. Hannibal Hamlin, then in congress but afterward vice president, became especially interested. He told the story of Emeline Belt with such pathos that $250 was contributed by northern people. Then a series of entertainments was given to aid her, and a few years before the war the girl, grown to womanhood, was able to hand over to her master $700 and receive her freedom.-Washington Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mohammed's Birthday in London. Mohammed's birthday has been duly celebrated in the metropolis of the British empire by the Anjuman-i-Islam, London—a society consisting of Indian Mussulman gentlemen residing in England-giving a dinner in honor of the prophet in the Holborn restaurant. A large number of Mussulmans assisted at the convivial assembly, at which Mr. A. A. Husanally, president of the Anjuman-i-Islam, was chairman. After the healths of "the queen-empress," "the Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the royal family," had been enthusiastically honored, the chairman proposed the toast of the evening, 'Health to his imperial majesty Sultan Abdul Hamid Khan, commander of the faithful and guardian of the Kaaba!" The toast was received with great cheering. The proceedings were brought to a close by some recitations from the Koran.—London Telegraph.

Love That Stood the Test. Those who witnesseed the solemnizing of the nuptials in which Miss Mary E. Flynn and James A. Polk were made life partners at Newport, Del., the other day, recalled a frightful accident which befell the couple one dark evening three years ago. The young lovers were run into by a fast express on the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore railroad, and hurled bleeding and unconscious to the ground. The horse was cut to pieces and the vehicle wrecked. The bride elect was hurt more seriously than the groom, and her life was despaired of. She recovered somewhat, but is a cripple for life. This frightful calamity did not cool the ardor of the lovers, and the anniversary of the accident which nearly killed both was celebrated by a marriage.—Cor. Baltimore American.

Why She Stopped the Car. On Tuesday a broken trolley wire delayed the Western avenue street cars an hour or more just at dinner time. When the first west bound car passed Twelfth street the conductor was awakened from a reverie by a cry from within the car to stop, while a younger lady was seen wildly gesticulating, apparently for his benefit. The car was stopped. The young woman, out of breath, ran up to within a few feet and shouted: "Ma, your dinner's on the table in the dining room. The cars were late and I could not wait." "Ma" shook her head and then the younger one turned and resumed her journey cityward.—Minneapolis Tribune.

A Bad Day for Shopping. The superstition that Friday is an unlucky day, so prevalent of late among women, seems to have died out. That is, it hasn't died out exactly, but Friday has given way to Monday. The following conversation between young ladies overheard in a street car has some bearing on the subject: "I'll never go shopping on Monday again." "You don't mean to say you ever did; it's awfully unlucky." "Yes, I went last Monday; I positively had to. Well, a wagon load of watermelons broke down, and the cars were blocked for an hour; and another wagon with a boiler on it, the boiler rolled off into the street; and a clothesline full of clean clothes broke and the clothes got all dirty; and the cat in grandmother's had a fit; and two cross eyed men ran into each other in the street. Wasn't that dreadful! Supposing one had followed you home?" - Philadelphia Ledger.

Value of Decayed Forests. The decayed vegetation of forests has furnished to the fields their present fertility, upon which man depends for food. In the tree growth of virgin woods and in the floor of rotted foliage beneath are stored the accumulations of centuries. Nature does not care whether this growth is useful to the human race or not. It is left for us to encourage the growth of such trees as we find valuable, to the exclusion of others. Thus an economical use is made of the resources at hand and a new conception of the forest arises. The forest primeval becomes "woodlands," while the new "forest" includes only cultivated woods. - Interview in Washington Star.

A GREAT MAGAZINE. ie Century's Programme in 1892—A New "Life of Columbus"—Articles for Farmers, etc.

That great American periodical, The Century, s going to outdo its own unrivaled record in its rogramme for 1892, and as many of its new fearers begin with the November number, new readrs should commence with that issue "THE NAULABKA," a novel by Rudyard Kipling, the famous author of "Plain Tales from the Hills," written in collaboration with an American writer, Wolcott Balestier. It is the story of a young man and a young woman from a "booming" Colorado town, who go to Indua, he in search of a wonderful jeweled necklace, called "the Naulahka" (from which the story takes its name, and she as a physician to women. The novel describes their remarkable adventures at the court of an Indian maharajah. Besides this The Century will print three other novels during the year, and a great number of short stories by the best American story-writers.

"The NAULAHKA,"

The well-known humorist, Edgar W. Nye ("Bill Nye") is to write a series of amusing sketches which he calls his "autobiographies," the first one of which, "The Autobiography of a Justice of the Peace," is in November. This number also cantains a valuable and suggestive article on "The Food-Supply of the Future," which every farmer should read, to he followed by a number of others OF GREAT PRACTICAL VALUE TO FARMERS, treating especially of the relations of the Government to the Jarmer, what it is doing and what it should do. This series will include contributions from officers of the Department of Agriculture, and other well-known men will discuss "The Farmer's Discontent," "Co-operation," etc., etc.

A celebrated Spanish writer is to furnish a "Life of Columbus," which will be brilliantly illustrated, and the publishers of The Century have arranged with the managers of the World's Fair to print articles on the buildings, etc.

One of the novels to appear in 1892 is A STORY OF NEW YORK LIFE by the author of "The Anglomaniacs," and the magazine will contain a great deal about the metropolis during the year,—among other things a series of illustrated articles on "The Jews in New series of illustrated articles on "The Jews in New York." In November is an illustrated descrip-tion of "The Players' Club," founded by Edwin Booth, and one of the features of the splendidly illustrated Christmas (December) number is an article on "The Bowery."

A POPULAR FAMILY. JENNIE: "How is it, Kate, that you always seem to 'catch on' to the last new thing? Do what I may, you always seem to get ahead of me."

KATE: "I don't know: I certainty do not make any exertion in that direction."

JENNIE: "Well, during the last few months, for example, you have taken up painting, without any teacher; you came to the rescue when Miss Lafarge deserted her Delsarte class so suddenly, and certainly we are all improying in grace under your instruction; I heard you telling Tommy Eames last evening how his club made mistakes in playing baseball; you seem to be up on all the latest 'fads,' and know just what to do under all circumstances; you entertain beautifully; and in the last month you have improved so in health, owing, you tell me, to your physical culture exercises, where do you get all of your information from in this little out-of-the way place?—for you never go to the city."

Kate: "Why, Jennie, you will make me vain. I have only one source of information, but it is surprising how it meets all wants. I very seldom hear of anything new but what the next few days bring me full information on the subject. Magie? No! Magazine! And a great treasure it is to us all, for it really furnishes the reading for the whole household: father has given up his magazine that he has taken for years, as he says this one gives more and better information on the subjects of the day; and mother says that it is that that makes her such a famous housekeeper. In fact, we all agree that it is the only really FAMILY magazine published, as we have sent for samples of all of them, and find that one is all for men, another all for women, and another for children only, while this one suits every one of us; so we only need to take one instead of several, and that is where the economy comes in, for it is only $2.00 a year. Perhaps you think I am too lavish in my praise; but I will let you seours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher. W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th too lavish in my praise; but I will let you see ours, or, better still, send 10 cents to the publisher. W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th Street, New York, for a sample copy, and I shall always consider that I have done you a great favor; and may be you will be cutting us out, as you say we have the reputation of being the best informed family in town, If that be so, it is Demorest's Family Magazine that does it."
