The provision in the Michigan Suffrage which requires a woman to be able to read the English language before voting, is receiving quite varied comment. The wrong is not that women are required to be able to read before being able to vote, but that men are not. The Illinois claims that a man who cannot read his ballot should not be allowed to put it into a ballot box.

Another of the beauties of having a cabinet containing ex-confederates came to light last Thursday, when Sec. Herbert of the Navy Department discharged the last of the Union soldiers from the Department of records, and appointed an ex-confederate in his place. It has been the practice heretofore to have men of both parties employed in compiling these records and caring for them, but now it does not stop with party lines, but the naval records of the country, including the naval history of the rebellion, are in the entire charge of ex-confederates. They may be properly cared for.

This country seems to be going crazy over the visit of royal personages to our shores. There is no action too "soft" when a "polished" American gets a chance to bow before some "His" or "Her Royal Majesty." This is particularly noticeable since the arrival of Paulina, the Spanish princess, in this country. Yesterday's Chicago papers contained a lot of starchy gush over her arrival in that city, that makes an average "common" American feel like kicking the scoundrels who took part in the display. Think of Mayor Carter Harrison, but in hand, stepping forward, bowing low in salute, and kissing the finger tips of her gloved hand. What a fine appearance he must have made? Dosh.

A coteries of "big guns" in the Democratic camp have come to grief in the sum of several thousand dollars each. In 1889, L. M. Weston, of Grand Rapids, one of the most prominent Democrats of this state, interested a number of wealthy Democratic politicians, among whom were Grover Cleveland, Secretary Whitney, Don M. Dickenson and a number of others who belonged to the Cleveland set in national politics, in the manufacture of sulphite pulp, and they built large mills in Maine, but owing to bad management the expenses were much larger than the receipts, hence they had to stop operations. It is said these gentlemen and some of their friends have sunk from $25,000 to $2,000 each in the venture.

It may be said with safety that nearly half the pensioners of the present day are nothing less than robbers. They are vandals who live off the government through frauds and fraudulent representations they have been able to make.—Arkansas Democrat.

JUSTICE BATEMAN & Co., wool Commission merchants of Philadelphia, in their bulletin to their customers of June 1 make the following comment upon the wool market and its prospects, which we copy for the benefit of our readers who have wool to market: There is an improved demand for wool, limited, however, to certain qualities wanted to finish old orders for cloth. Concession in price are necessary in order to reach buyers whose views as to value are in a free wool basis. While the tendency of prices is downward, the volume of sales is large. Secretary (Gardner) is reported in the Boston Commercial Bulletin (protection) of May 27 and the Boston Herald (Democracy) of May 27 to have stated "free wool" would be in operation within six months of the calling of the special session; that is to say, about March 1. This practically aird in effect repeats the McKinley Act (so far as it relates to its influence on American wool), as it destroys the confidence of buyers in the value of wool, and as the latter is known to be far above the free trade basis, the inclination of prices is towards London values. Merino secured wools have declined 10 cents per pound since May 1. The tone of the market is almost wholly in buyers' favor.

For the Record. WE ALL WEAR MASKS. S. E. H. W. This life is one grand masquerade, And we all are actors too; The characters we represent, Are various, and not few. We all wear masks, and pronounce In words that never mean, Upon the world's great rostrum, Lies the truth that we conceal. And our disguise is so complete, That what we say is lies, The characters of those we meet, Most kindly it deceives. But were the mask once lifted, How would we all be known? We could read tales just as wondrous As the most romantic romances. For in all hearts there are secrets, Written not in rhyme and song, Each its own experience telling, Expressed by the passing throng. And two lives we all are living, Acting each a double part, One is hidden in the heart.

WOMEN AS POETS. Good Writers They May Be, but They Never Have Become Artists. Mr. Edmund Gosse delivered an address in the Hall of Newnham college, Cambridge, on "The Poetry of Women," taking as his particular text the poems of Christina Rossetti. No sound critic will pretend that woman has added anything to the sum of male attainment in these major branches of art. The reason is apparently that the artistic nature is not strongly developed in her. She has energy, imagination, sentiment, invention, but she has not the artistic impulse. The consummate poets of the world have been great artists. In Shakespeare, Corneille, Goethe, Pope, and Keats, the artist above all else, above the man of intellect or vision. In a much lower rank of poets we find the vision or the ethical bias preponderating. In the greatest men of the art is paramount.

But women, if the main entrance seems to be closed, they find other ways to the honours of poetry by other doors. Lyrical verse owes so much to them that we may easily forgive their limited success in other directions. The lyric, which is a spontaneous jet of music, an ejaculation forced from the heart by an excess of feeling, demands less art than any other form of poetry. It is perhaps the only species of poetry which can be excellent in its kind and yet wholly artless. The border ballads have no art, and yet are exquisite; and the history of poetry is adorned by certain female names which will always preserve their freshness, and which yet were outside the canon of art. Such are Emily Bronte in England and Marceline Desbordes-Valmore in France. We do not know whether, with extended opportunities, women will continue to show themselves insensible to or incapable of the highest literary art. Hitherto they certainly have not done so.

Any one whose privilege it has been to enjoy the friendship of successful women of letters knows how much more they are always occupied with literature as a profession than as an art; how little they are able to conceive the doing of work for its own sake, not for its result, but for the excitement, the industry and persistent they are, and how little they are troubled with the scruples and the lassitude of the artist. It is their lyric gift, their cry from the heights or the depths of feeling that has won them that place upon Parnassus from which no De Quincy nor Guy de Maupassant can eject them.

I have denied poetic art to women mainly that I may give myself the luxury of attributing to Miss Christina Rossetti. To screen myself from the charge of extravagance I will say at once that I think the main interest of the position of this writer in the history of poetry is the fact that she indubitably possesses this quality which is denied to many men of genius and to almost all women. Mrs. Browning was a force in literature—a personage demanding universal recognition for her intellectual power, her majestic imagination and her independence of other literary influences; but she was not an artist. That title applied to George Sand or George Eliot would be equally a misnomer. What Lord Tennyson was, what Flaubert was, it is surely plain that these great women could not be. But precisely this, in a restricted measure, it seems to me that Miss Rossetti, in that translation hers, as apparently the solitary woman poet of the Anglo-Saxon race who cultivates poetry as one of the fine arts, gives the study of her verse an especial interest.—St. James Gazette.

A Handy Music Pen. A pen for copying music consists of a pen and penholder with two tubes, which project from either end of the pen very much after the style of the swizzle stick, which plays an important part in the evolution of the sundry refreshing beverages affected by West Indians. These tubes are straddled at the end with pieces of rubber in the shape respectively of open and closed music notes, and an ink pad is also supplied. In writing minims or semibreves the "open" tip is pressed tightly on the pad, and then the characters are quickly dabbed on the music lines, and the "closed" tip serves for crotchets, etc., the upright stroke being made by the pen.—New York Telegram.

Women in Many Industries. Harriet Martineau found American women engaged in only seven industries exclusive of domestic service. This was, comparatively speaking, only a few years ago. Today their participation in the world's work is practically only limited by the number of industries possible to be engaged in.—New York Times.

Random Shooting. A Tekonsho (Aitch) sportsman, who objected to the sparrows eating the seed he had provided for his chickens, thought that his shotgun would discriminate between the pests and the pullets and blazed away. His shooting resulted in the death of one sparrow and three chickens.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Soldiers and Pocket Handkerchiefs. Some years ago pocket handkerchiefs were not considered a necessary part of a soldier's kit. I myself knew a sergeant-major who, when drilling a squad or battalion, would not permit any man to use one, although one day he did order a recruit to fall back and blow his nose, scolding him at the same time for not having "blowed it."

"Please, sir, I did blow it," answered the man, but it wouldn't keep blowed."—Leeds Mercury.

The Size of the Pyramids. The largest of the pyramids was originally 481 feet high and 833 on the sides, the top being 113 feet. The stones, which are 298 layers, average 60 feet in length. One account says that 350,000 men worked for twenty years in fashioning the Titanic pile.—St. Louis Republic.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report. Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Heaviest Part of the Body. Bulk for bulk the heaviest part of the body is the head. Not only are the bones constituting the skull more dense than those of any other portion of the skeleton, but the brain, which they protect, is bulk for bulk, heavier than any other organ. The average weight of the adult human brain is 2.37 per cent of that of the whole body, but with the newborn child the proportion is nearly much greater, averaging 14.8 per cent. The relative weight of the entire skeleton to the body is 13.33 per cent, and that of its muscular investment 43.1. The heart, which keeps the blood flowing through going, the motive power and support of vitality, has, notwithstanding the immense amount of work it does and the muscular energy it has to bring to bear upon that work, merely a relative weight of 0.73 to the whole framework.—Yankee Blade.

One Way of Marking Clothes. A young woman who has a weakness for novelties has invented a new way of marking her belongings. Indelible ink she scorned as belonging to the distant past, and embroidered monograms and initials she voted commonplace. Even the pretty device of embroidering her possessions with her favorite flower finally lost its charm, and her latest fancy is to have her own face produced. She had some tiny and not unflattering photographs taken, and they are now being transferred to the corners of her handkerchiefs, the bands of her skirts, the capes of her collars and all the other places where the sign of possession is usually fixed.—Buffalo News.

A Hint For Typewriters. Typewriters ought to write the names of the persons to whom they write letters in capitals. To use ordinary letters shows lack of consideration and good taste. No printer of any standing would issue a letter printed in that way. His training in his art has distinctly taught him not to do it. Manufacturers of typewriters claim that their machines are self-acting—last the operators must necessarily become proficient in the punctuation and the proper use of capitals. But somehow this little matter of propriety and good taste in address and signature has thus far been greatly overlooked.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

Reading His Own Works. I only once heard Thackeray allude to his works, and that in a serio-comic spirit, which amused both him and us. "I was traveling on the Rhine," he said (in company no doubt with "the Kickleburys"), "and entering one of the hotels on the banks, exhausted and weary, I went into the salon and threw myself on a sofa. There was a book on a little table close by, and I opened it to find it was 'Vanity Fair.' I had not seen it since I corrected the proof, and I read a chapter. Do you know it seemed to me very amusing?"—The Herald's "Memories."

Estate of Daniel Rhodes. First publication June 8, 1893. STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Berrien, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said County, held at the Probate office, in the Village of Garden Springs, on the 1st day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three. Present, JACOB VAN RIVER, Judge of Probate, in the matter of the estate of Daniel Rhodes, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of William Taylor, heir at law of said deceased, praying that the residue of said estate may, by a decree of this court, be assigned to the heirs of said estate as set forth in said petition, the court is of the opinion that said petition is proper and that the heirs of said estate, as set forth in said petition, are entitled to the same. It is ordered, that the said heirs of said estate, as set forth in said petition, be and they are hereby notified to appear at the Probate office, in the village of Garden Springs, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. The petitioner should not be granted the benefit of said petition, until the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in some newspaper published in said County, and circulated in said County, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (True copy.) JACOB VAN RIVER, Judge of Probate. Last publication June 29, 1893.

A. C. ROOR, agent of St. Jo. gold cure establishment, reports having been sand bagged, on the Lake front park, at about 1 o'clock Thursday morning, and robbed of $105, nearly all of which belonged to his employers. The untimely hour and some of the surrounding circumstances lead the gold cure people to mistrust the story.

MR. M. H. BAUM, of Leesburg, Florida, formerly of Three Oaks, is making his Berrien county friends a visit. He is engaged in manufacturing fruit crates in Leesburg. Mr. Baum has been located there several years, and enjoys all of the privileges of citizenship, excepting the right to vote. He is a good republican, and republicans, neither white nor black, think of attempting such a thing as to offer to vote. The stories of the methods applied by the "flood self government" of that section fully coincides with the accounts given by Judge Tourgic, in "Dystanders Notes" in the Chicago Laborer. The state of affairs described by Mr. Baum is a disgrace to any civilized government, and a government which will placidly permit it for a period of years, as ours has, does not deserve the name it bears.

Round Table Reunion.

There is to be a great gathering of young folks from every part of the country at the New York and Pennsylvania State Buildings, Columbia Exposition, on the afternoon of Thursday, July 13. It is the Reunion of the Order of the Round Table, who number more than 200,000. Their objects are social and literary, and one of the Order's aims is to form the nucleus of a library for the town in which the members live or the school which they attend. The majority of its membership is that vast army of boys and girls in the United States and Canada who are interested in stamp collecting, amateur photography, pen drawing, carpentry, athletics, and even sewing and cooking.

A RATHER romantic wedding is to occur in Niles, next Monday. It will be that of Miss Edith Lacey, of Lakewood, Florida, editor of the Tropical Sun. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents, in Niles, when they will immediately leave for Chicago, where they have quarters provided in "Fort Marion", in the Florida exhibit, and will remain there during the life of the exposition, Mr. Metcalf being Secretary of the Florida Commission. About one year ago Miss Lacey went South in search of improvement of health, and found Mr. Metcalf. This wedding is the sequel.

The following telegram appeared in the Inter Ocean Monday morning from Duquoin, Ill.:

The car inspectors of the Illinois Central railroad yards in this city found a dead man this morning in a car loaded with railroad ties which had just arrived from the South. The indications were that the man had been murdered. Letters on his person indicate that his name was Dell Card, that his wife, Rosa Card, lives at Stevesville, Berrien county, Mich., and that his brother, V. G. P. Card, lives at Valparaiso, Ind. When found he was lying on a white sheet with his coat and vest off. A number of buttons were found on the car floor, indicating that there must have been a struggle. He was 30 to 35 years of age, had dark hair and mustache, and weighed 140 or 145 pounds.

Obituary.

MISS MATTIE MCCOY died at Scribner, Nebraska, May 28, 1893, of cancer. She had suffered for some time, but had been confined to her bed only two weeks.

The deceased was born in Buchanan, Sept. 26, 1842, and was the daughter of the late Russell and Esther McCoy. Mattie had lived in Buchanan all her life, until four years ago, when she went to Nebraska to live with her sister, Mrs. Willie Boyce, at whose home she died. Everything was done that loving sister's hands could do to prolong her life, but God knew best and called her home.

For twenty-six years she had been a consistent member of the Advent church. She died as she had lived, trusting in the promises of Him who said, "It is enough; come up higher."

Her remains were brought to Buchanan, and were met by relatives and sympathizing friends among whom was the Woman's Relief Corps in a body. The funeral was held in the Advent church, May 31, Rev. J. F. Adair, officiating. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. The last sad rites of the Corps, of which she was a member, were read, and her remains laid at rest in the family lot in Oak Ridge cemetery. One brother, eight sisters and many friends mourn her loss. "Not our will but thine, O Lord, be done."

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our heart-felt and sincere thanks to the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in the time of the sad loss of our sister. We wish especially to thank Mrs. DeArmond who so kindly opened her home to us; also the Relief Corps for their kind attentions.

GEORGE MCCOY AND SISTERS.
