The question of Gov. Altgeld's citizenship, and consequently his right to pardon his fellow anarchists, is being doubted.

roasting by the press of the entire country, for freeing the anarchinsts. He keeps even with them by saying that he doesn't care what is said of him.

Speaker Crisp gives as his opinion that one of the first things done by the the new Congress will be to repeal the ten per cent tax on state bank issues. This will undoubtedly settle all financial troubles, according to the Southern idea.

For the first time since the administration of James Buchanan, which was the last time the democratic party had full control of the goverment, United States interest bearing bonds sold at a discount, in times of peace, last Thursday, when the U.S. two's sold in open marked at 96. As a credit-sustainer, the Democratic party is great.

LAST Saturday the state of South Carolina went into the saloon business on its own responsibility. By the new law which went into effect on that day, the Governor becomes the chief dispensor of liquors, with one deputy in each county. No purchaser is allowed to drink his liquor on the premises which are always at the county seat, excepting in two counties. The South Carolina experiment will be watched with interest.

Congress to convene in extra session on August 7. The chief object of the extra session appears to be the repeal of the Sherman silver law. The two sections of the law bearing directly upon the question of the currency are

"That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to purchase, from time to time, silver bullion to the ag-gregate amount of 4,500,000 ounces, or so much thereof as may be offered in each month, at the market price thereof, not exceeding $1 for 371-25 grains of pure silver, and to issue in payment for such purchases of silver bullion Treasury notes of the United States to be prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury in such forms and of such demonstrations, not less than $1 nor more than $1,000, as he may prescribe, and a sum sufficient to carry into effect the provisions of this act is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. "SEC. 2. That the Treasury notes is-sued in accordance with the proviin coin, at the Treasury of

A Surgical Operation.

For the cure of Piles is always painful, often dangerous and useless, and invari-ably expensive; on the other hand there is a new, certain cure, perfectly painless, gives instant relief and permanent cure and costs but a trifle. It is the Pyramid Pile Cure. It is a more certain cure than a surgical operation, without any of the intense pain, expense and danger of an operation. Any druggist will get it for

To those who think there is too much money in the country, the repeal of the law will appear to be a sensible move. Unless it be followed by the passage of more radical silver legislalation, the repeal will be one step toward the single gold standard of money.

LANSING, June 30.-The supreme court this morning hands down a memorandum opinion sustaining clause 135 in the new tax law requiring a certificate from the county treasurer or auditor general that all taxes have been paid for five years previous before the register of deeds shall receive the deeds for record. The following interpreta-tion of the claim is given:

The certificate required need not set forth the liens or titles held by the state or individuals but only the fact that liens are held by the state or by individuals or both. The existence of such liens or titles does not prevent the recording of the deed or plat unless the lien held by the state is acquired for taxes becoming due within five years previous to the date of the instrument.

2. If the certificate shows that all the taxes have not been paid for five years previous to the date of the deed or plat it is not entitled to record.

3. If at the annual tax sales the land has been sold to individuals this is a payment so far as the state and municipalities are concerned as is payment within the meaning of the act.

4. The act includes those taxes and those only which not paid to the collector are required by law to be returned to the county treasurer, and when not paid to him, are by him to be re-turned to the auditor general. It does not contemplate that either of those officers shall make any examination outside the records of their own offices. Unless such records show non-payment the presumption is that the taxes are paid as shown by their records.

THE POWER OF MONEY

REV. THOMAS DIXON'S SERMON ON THE ALMIGHTY DOLLAR.

The Real Capital of the United States Is Not Washington, but Wall Street, New York-Money Questions to Predominate For Many Years-An Awful Force.

CAPE CHARLES, Va., July 2.-Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., has closed his cottage here for July and August and removed, with his family, to Cobb's island, on the seaside. Cobb's island is the next island to the south from Broadwater, the favorite resort of President Cleveland on the Virginia coast. It is merely a strip of sand, with the ocean on one side and Broadwater bay on the other. It has been a famous resort for a long number of years for hunters and for fishermen. It is the center of the hunting and fishing district of the eastern shore of Virginia.

Mr. Dixon began today a series of sermons, to be continued through July and August, on the question of "Money and Christianity; or, The Modern Problem of the Almighty Dollar." The introduction to the series was delivered this morning in the Methodist church at Cobb's island. Through the months of July and August the hotel and cottages are crowded with guests from every part of the country. The audience was a representative one. composed of men of every class and station in life, but included a large number of country people in Northampton county who have grown to know Mr. Dixon during his residence on the cape through the past spring months.

The text chosen was Exodus xxxii, 3 4: "And all the people brake off the golden rings which were in their ears and brought them unto Aaron. And he received them at their hand and fashioned it with a graving tool and made it a molten calf, and they said, These be thy gods, Q Israel, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt."

MODERN ISRAELITES.

The children of Israel, if they were the first to make a golden calf and worship it, certainly have not been the last people guilty of this desertion of the true God for the image made with human hands. The problem of money is the problem of the latter days of the nineteenth century. The problem of money is in fact the problem of modern life. It is the one question with which we are all intimately concerned from the very beginning of life to its close. It costs money to be born into the world, and under present tariff schedules it costs more to die. From the beginning to the end it is this everlasting money question with which mortal man is confronted. The money issue is the one magnet around which all other problems at last do center. Man's interest in money seems to be the power by which he can be tested both physically and morally. The French government uses this magnet as the power by which man's capacity for the army is frequently tested. When men are summoned to enter the army, they are often afflicted with various diseases of sudden development. Men are stricken dumb and deaf in most unaccountable ways. A deaf man appears before the French tribunal as a possible army recruit. He of course can hear nothing. The loudest word of command makes no impression on him. He declares through signs that he cannot hear it thunder. After the examination is completed and he has been discharged as unfit for service, as he departs from the tribunal an officer follows him to the street and student of economics and of the relation of religion to the great social problem is the fact that money is the mightiest power that moves today upon the surface of modern civilization. We observe this fact:

WASHINGTON NOT THE NATION'S CAPITAL. the present century. First-In the power manifested in the making and unmaking of the history of governments. The center of government of this century is not the political capital. It is the commercial, the money capital. If we imagine that the capital of America is at Washington, we make a sad mistake. Washington is a very beautiful town. It is handsomely laid off. It has some grand boulevards, some beautiful streets. It has acres of beautiful homes. It is pleasing to the We have located there some eye. elegant buildings. We have a very handsome capitol building, of which seas and binds the nations of the earth some very excellent photographs have been made by various photographers. It has a handsome dome, with the figure of Liberty on its summit. We have some other exceedingly handsome buildings that cost millions of dollars. We have an executive mansion in which the president of the United States lives. It is commonly supposed that the seat of government is at Washington or thereabouts. This is a popular superstition. As a matter of fact the center of government is not at Washington. If you wish to find the center of government in America, you should walk down Broadway until you reach Trinity church and turn into a narrow lane to the left. Walk down this narrow lane, between those mountainous buildings that rise toward the sky, and as you walk the length of Wall street you have traversed the main corridor of this nation's capital. Wall street is the center of the government of America. It has been so for a generation, and there never was a time that it was more so than today. You may say that we elected Mr. Cleveland president of the United States by a majority commonly termed a political cyclone. True enough. All that happened, and Mr. Cleveland is in the presidential chair, with his cabinet, and the government is running along its usual course. That does not alter the situation. If Mr. Cleveland had dared to stand up before the world before the election and say in so many words that he was opposed to the money policy of the governing kings of Wall street, he would now be practicing law in the Mills building, in the city of New York. as a private citizen, and the onerous burdens of the executive office would now be on other shoulders. No president has been elected in this nation within a generation who has not been in perfect accord with the kings of Wall street on the money question. It was felt throughout the nation and felt instantaneously. What was the matter? There was nothing the matter with the government at Washington. The secretary of the treasury was there. The money was all there in the treasury. Nobody had broken open the strongbox. The gold reserve was untouched. The secretary of the treasury came over to Wall street, spluttered around for a few days like a bee in a tar bucket and went back to Washington. The government

THE NEW HANDSHAKE. With Some Reference to the Miserles of Handshaking In General. The fear is expressed by one of our esteemed contemporaries at the east that the World's fair may fasten on the country "for good and all" the handshake which has the sanction of the Prince of Wales, Ward McAllister and other celebrities. It would be a great pity. One can hardly conceive of a more ridiculous spectacle than that which would be preented by a nation so addicted as ours is to shaking of hands adapting the latest wrinkle. Americans, as a rule, shake hands whenever they meet, and the sight of any considerable number of them standing on the street or elsewhere with their hands at the level of their eves doing the new thing in shakes would be calculated to create the impression that we are a nation of imbeciles And if it should ever be adopted to the extent that it would prevail at presidential receptions and other functions the extra labor entailed on entertainers and entertained will tend to make national imbecility something more than imaginary. In one direction there is hope. The attempt to establish the new fad may help to bring all handshaking into disrepute and thus profit the nation. There are some handshakes with which we would not willingly part, but there are so many which are an abomination that for the sake of getting rid of the latter we can well afford to sacrifice them all. There is the viselike clasp which the perpetrator fondly believes exhibits in an attractive way his affection for the recipient when it only crushes the latter's bones and makes him wish that the shaker had paralysis. Quite as obnoxious, though less painful in the infliction, is the shake of the man or woman, though it is oftener man than woman, who does not know when the shake is over. These are they who hang on to the hand with a gentle but tenacious pressure intended to express a lingering fondness until you are fairly wild for release. And the worst of it is that they feel just as anxious to be through with it as you do, but do not know how to let go any better than some men do when they have bought in "on the ground floor" to a scheme which proves to have no other floor. But, worse than all, there are the handshakers who simply invite you to take their hands and never dream of doing their share of the shake. With thumb held rigidly back from inclosing contact they permit you to shake them, and give you about as much pleasure as you would receive from contact for an equal length of time with the fin of an inanimate codfish. If the new fad will only rid us of this detestable form of the handshake, it will be thrice welcome with all its unat-

drops a gold coin behind him on the pavement. Instantly he turns, attracted by the magic ring of the coin, to pick it up. He is at once arrested and forced into the army ranks. It is a test of man's character in a thousand ways. It is a test of a nation's character. It is the test of the nature of society as well as of individuals and nations.

FARMERS' ALLIANCE.

Our own nation is most intimately concerned just now with this tremendous problem and its possible developments. We are in the throes of a possible panic that will be an epoch making event in our history. Men are studying the money problem as never before, and they are studying it from the bottom to the top. The question of money involved in the problem of gold or of silver as a standard opens finally the broader question of the right of money to exist. We are brought face to face with the theories promulgated by the great French and German socialists of the past century. In the theories of the Farmers' 'Alliance and its allied parties we are brought face to face with the reincarnated doctrines of Karl Marx and Rodbertus.

These problems of a money standard and of the question of intrinsic value go to the very heart of the social problem of the century. They will not be settled in a day. They will not be settled in one administration or in two. This money problem is destined to make and unmake parties and statesmen for the next quarter of a century. It is the problem of the hour. In the world of politics it is the problem of the future for the profoundest statesman. In our introduction to this study we do not propose to enter upon the discussion of these profound aspects of the money problem. We shall discuss rather money as the unit of commercial value, and therefore the standard of measurement for economic power-or, in other words, the standard of measurement for wealth.

Personally I do not decry wealth or its accumulation. I do believe that it is a crime for any man to rear a family in the world and not provide for them. I believe that there is a sin which a man may be guilty of that is worse than the attempt to get money-it is the vice of the spendthrift, and it is a vice of which the preacher is often most guilty. I confess that it is one of my sins. With me, personally, the money problem has been always about the same. Six years ago I was pastor of a little church in North Carolina, and I had a salary of $60 a month. At the end of the month, as you may well imagine, I had nothing. Now. in New York. I have a salary of about $500 a month, and at the end of the month I am in debt. I do not believe that this is right. I have never believed it to be right. I have promised and promised to reform. I am trying to study the subject that I may lead myself into the light, certainly in this aspect of the case.

GREATEST POWER ON EARTH.

Wealth, in fact, has its deep spiritual significance when accumulated by proper ways and sought in the proper spirit. The fact of wealth does not signify the material and the brutal. As a nation we are the richest people in the world. We are not therefore for that reason the coarsest. We have vast piles of buildings, vast systems of railroads, whose very vastness, our foreign, critics have told us, indicate a coarse view of life. The greatest piles of brick and mortar, stone and cement and iron and steel have back of the matter we see their deeper spiritual meaning. They are the incarnation of great hopes, noble faiths. They may be crude efforts. They are great, not for what they are, but for what they promise, for the ideal of which they are the dim outline.

As a nation we should study the money problem, and we should be among power. Money can buy its way into any first. to solve it social order of this century-from the rst, if not the God has given wealth to us as to no othhonors at the disposal of the queen of er people born on the earth. By the England down to an entree into Ward census of 1880 America had more money McAllister's Four Hundred. It does not matter where a man made his money or than Great Britain, on whose empire the how he made it so he has it. The spirit sun never sets, whose flag floats in every sea and whose ships ride proudly at of this social struggle has as its standard their anchors in every harbor of the of measurement the question of possesworld. We had in 1880 wealth enough sion, the question of brutal success to buy one-half the known world-lands, Nothing succeeds like success is one of houses, kingdoms, scepters, empires. But after we had bought a hemisphere their vital mottoes. The whisky manufacturer, the brewer, the ward politician who has stolen his money, the Napoleon and paid for it we would have money enough to carve a new nation out of the of finance who has wrecked a thousand nndeveloped west. One of the first things that strikes the who kills pigs in Chicago and the man was all right. It was running with its usual regularity. The fact is, it could not do otherwise. We have an astro-

Our government was in perfect running order, but the government had nothing in creation to do with the real life of the people at that time. Financial ruin stared the nation in the face, and for 24 hours we held our breath to know if the crash would come. What was the trouble? Simply that a firm of private bankers in London were about to fail. It was whispered in Wall street on the day of this panic that Baring Bros. in London, a firm of private bankers, were about to collapse. The God. money market at once was in a state of wild delirium. That night in the lobby of the Windsor hotel a group of excited money brokers gathered and were discussing the situation. A man rushed up and had news direct from London that the failure of Baring Bros. would be announced next day. A man leaped from the group, the perspiration standing in great beads on his forehead, his face livid with excitement, while he fairly shricked in reply: "My God, man, it is impossible! Baring Bros. fail? If they fail, the Bank of England goes down, and the financial world must collapse." He could not believe it. It meant with him life and death. And yet the rumor was confirmed the next day. How were we saved from financial ruin? It was announced with the announcement of their failure that the Bank of England-that is, the govern-ment of Great Britain-with all its matchless resources, had come to the rescue of Baring Bros. and saved them from collapse. Thus was the greatest financial disaster of this century averted by the interposition of all the resources of the next greatest money empire to ours in the world. We were threatened with ruin in our financial center by whom, by what? England was threatened by whom? A firm of private bankers had been speculating in Argentine securities in South America. The money speculations of a firm of private bankers had brought the English speaking world to the verge of financial ruin. The only thing that political government was in for in that hour was simply to bring the resources of the empire of Great Britain to the rescue of this private firm of bankers.

THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY. The money center is the center of government. It has been so through the past centuries. It is more true today than at any time within a hundred years. The southern confederacy failed long before Appomattox. The southern confederacy failed long before a single brigadier general had surrendered. The southern confederacy had already failed when it cost $100 to buy a pair of cowhide boots. The southern confederacy failed for a very simple reason-not because they had not soldiers, had not generals, had not fighting genius and were not desperate. They had all these powers. They had the inspiration of home, society-the very foundation of the social life at stake. The south failed in its attempt to establish a nation because they had no money. The center of a nation's government in this age is its money center. This is the one resistless power of the closing days of the nineteenth century.

Second-Money is the greatest power that moves upon the surface of the social world today. There was a time when ancestry counted, when the pride of ancestry was the basis of organization of so called high society. Today that power is money. The power that makes social prestige-the power that organizes social cliques and classes-is the money has made some names an inspiration to the race in this latter end of the nineteenth century. There are millionaircs today who are making the history of human society by preaching in life through the sacrifice of their wealth in the cause of humanity the real gospel of Jesus Christ. I know millionaires who are giving their entire income to the cause of humanity. And as the multitude passed before the bier of Peter Cooper, with tear stained eyes, and as they cherish his memory today as the friend of humanity, so will they cherish the possession of men of money who have learned its power and have consecrated that power to the cause of humanity, which is the highest service of

THREE MILLION DOLLARS.

Assailed by Wild Hogs.

I was strolling along the hank of the Wabash at some distance from my brother's cabin when I suddenly heard a confused cracking of bushes, rattling of stones and gnashing of teeth, with a loud boo-boo-oh from the ravine below. Instantly I realized the terrors of my situation. It was one of the droves of wild hogs of which my brother had spoken warningly.

I took to my heels and ran to tho sum mit of the hill, making for a large oak tree with the intention of climbing it. On my way I seized a stout maple limb. The trunk was so lofty that I was unable to climb the oak, but I stood with my back against it and faced my assailants, which were now upon me, squealing and grunting fiercely, a dozen of them.

I shouted for help and wielded my bludgeon with good effect. The hogs were eager to get at me. First one and then another would advance snapping its ugly jaws. A blow from my club would send it squealing to the rear. My brother had told me that these hogs would make nothing of devouring a man, clothes and all, if they got a chance at him.

For 15 minutes I kept them at bay with my club, but they were becoming bolder and fiercer. One had torn a piece from my pantaloons, and I was fearful that I should be unable to hold them off longer, when to my relief I heard my brother's voice. He soon camo up, gun in hand. He had heard my cries for help. The loud report of his gun frightened the hogs, and with many loud oophs and squeal they scampered down the hill. But for his fortunate arrival I probably should not be alive to tell this tale .- "Recol-

With many expressions of thanks the foreigner was about to take his leave when the captain asked the name of his newly made acquaintance. "De Villeneuve," was the reply. "Le Comte de Villeneuve, son of him who fought with your gallant Nelson at Trafalgar," and with a dignified air the count withdrew.

The captain's mingled astonishment and regret can be imagined. He had unwittingly wounded the feelings of one to whom he had intended nothing but courtesy and recounted the glories of Trafalgar to the last man he would have willingly selected as an auditor on such a theme.—Youth's Companion.

People Who Never Were Young. "I never was young," said a girl not more than 22 in our presence the other day, and the words have kept ringing in our ears ever since, bringing with them visions of many lives that have never known a childhood and many faces as old at 20 as others that have looked forth upon years more than double that number.

In many homes the entire burden rests upon slender, youthful shoulders, and the heart of girlhood, that should be filled with joyous anticipation, is clouded by an ever present anxiety for the welfare of those left in charge of "sister" or is weighed down by worriment over ways and means and a hundred cares that tend to change a child into a woman with none of that happy period of careless pleasure lying between the two points. How our heart aches for those sorely tried ones who have no recollection of a joyous childnood to live upon when life's responsibilities come crowding in with advancing years! How dull must be the life that has no memory of hours of childish delight spent in innocent amusement! Imagine, if you can, the wornout, aged feeling that such a state must necessa rily produce, and with true womanly sympathy do your best to bring a little more light into the life of some girl who before she was more than a baby in years was made a woman in responsibility .--

An Estimate on Pill Taking. The Chemist and Druggist recently asked its subscribers throughout the United Kingdom to supply it with estimates of the number of pills consumed in the kingdom daily. The estimates were based upon the actual daily sales by the correspondents of ordinary pills, prescription pills and pills which are patent medicines. The average of these estimates, which were received from all parts of the kingdom, shows that the extraordinary number of 5,643,961 pills is computed to be the daily consumption. This would give one pill per week to every man, woman and child in the kingdom, and a little calculation shows that taking the average pill to weigh three grains a year's supply for the United
