SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT.

By BEATRICE HARRADEN. SYNOPSIS.

Bernadine Holme is the niece of a London shopkeeper. She is intellectual, writes for the press and takes part in political discussions. Finally she loses her health and goes to a hotel for consumptives in Switzerland. There she meets the Disagreeable Man, whose name is Robert Alliston. He is a man of means, with a pessimism more gloomy than that of Schopenhauer, and he proceeds to fill his self imposed mission by trying to convince Bernadine that there is no heaven and that she should give up the idea of ever leaving the hotel.

CHAPTER X—Continued. The patience of the photographer was something wonderful. At last he succeeded in making them appear at their ease. And then he told Liz that she must go and change her dress and be photographed now in the way he wished.

CHAPTER XI. "IF ONE HAS MADE ONE'S GREAT SACRIFICE." There was a suicide in the Kurhaus one afternoon. A Dutchman, Vandervelt, had received a letter from his wife and had been from the doctor a few days previously, and in a fit of depression, so it was thought, he had put a bullet through his head.

CHAPTER XII. "THE DISAGREEABLE MAN MAKES A LEAN." The Dutchman was buried in the little cemetery which faced the English quarter. Bernadine's hand fell from the Disagreeable Man's hand.

Mr. Joseph I. Johnston is the day engineer in charge of the power house, water to flow over the crest of the dam so smoothly that it excites the admiration of all who behold it.

insured themselves, if was it true they had never for one single day been in the background? These thoughts passed through her mind as she read the ending of his paper.

"And then?" she asked, with almost painful eagerness. "And then?" he said deliberately. Bernadine's hand fell from the Disagreeable Man's hand.

"I was wondering when you would give your freedom and whether you would use it in the fashion you now intend." "Why should there be any doubts?" he asked.

"One always hopes there would be a doubt," she said, half in a whisper. "But she looked up and saw all the pain on the little face."

she could have wished to wrap him round with love and tenderness. If he could only have loved her, she would have loved him as she loved him.

"Would he give her freedom, she wondered, and would he use it? Sometimes when she was with him, he would look up to see whether she could read the answer in his face, but she never saw any variation of a smile, nor anything to give her even a hope."

"I was particularly disagreeable on the day when the Dutchman was buried, and so the following day when Bernadine met him in the little cemetery, she was not surprised to find him almost kindly."

"Well," he said as they walked along together, "I have not recovered from the death of the Dutchman?" "Have you recovered, rather let me ask?" she said.

"That was the first time he had ever alluded to his own health." "Not that there is any need to make an excuse," he continued, "for I do not recognize that there is any necessity of one's own excuses and after the inclination of one's mind accordingly. Still, as a matter of fact, I am not very ill."

"And today?" she asked. "Today I am myself again," he answered quickly, "that usual normal self of mine, which I have not lost. I slept well, and I dreamed of you. I can't say that I had been thinking of you, because I had not."

"But not a word about the knowledge comes like a revelation," she said, "and we realize that we stand practically alone, out of any one's reach for help or comfort. When you are together, though, you are a little able to explain ourselves."

"I suppose so," she said. "But that is true of most people." "I beg your pardon," he answered, "but I do not believe that they are unless they think they have an ache, and then they feel it."

"I believe," said Bernadine, "that there is more thinking and feeling than one generally supposes." "Well, I can't be bothered with that now," he said.

"Go on," she said. "I apologize." "I dreamed we were children together and playing with our blocks. I was not at all happy together, but still we were playmates. There was nothing we did not quarrel about."

"I was a good thing I did disappear," Bernadine said. "There would have been a terrible scene about that doll's head. An odd thing for me to dream about Christmas trees and dolls and playmates, especially when I went to sleep thinking about my new camera."

"You have a new camera?" she asked. "Yes," he answered, "and a beauty too. Would you like to see it?" "She expressed a wish to see it, and when they reached the Kurhaus she went with him up to his beautiful room, where he spent his time in the company of his microscope and his chemical bottles and his photographic possessions."

"I wish I could look at those photographs, I will make you some tea," he said. "There is the camera, but please do not touch it until I am ready to show it to you."

The Saginaw papers are trying to get up a boom for Col. A. T. Bliss for Governor, and oppose the re-nomination of Gov. Rich on the "one term principle." It is very curious how people views change when some one else is interested. Governor Rich has made a good record as governor of Michigan, and if he will accept a re-nomination for the office, the opponents of the "one term" theory should remember their views on this subject when they were more deeply interested, personally.

The Niles Republican has a long editorial regarding the rights of bicyclists to ride on the sidewalks in that city. For the benefit of our neighbor we would state that in our enterprising town of Buchanan it costs a bicyclist $1 and costs to indulge in this practice. This habit should be frowned upon and all wheelmen should keep in the road, where they are entitled to all rights of any other vehicle. This trying to monopolize both road and sidewalk should be stopped. It is in the recollection of the writer, of occasions when by personal experience he was mighty glad to be allowed to ride on one-half of a road, let alone a sidewalk.

Geo. T. Angell, President of the Humane Education Society of Boston, Mass., in behalf of "The American Humane Education Society" offers two prizes of $100 each:

Second. For the best short essay, not exceeding three thousand words, on "The best plan of preventing poverty and relieving the poor."

Further particulars can be had upon addressing Mr. Angell.

BUCHANAN, June 9, 1894.

To the Editor:—The Michigan State Board of Health reports: There have been 45 cases of small pox in our state since Jan. 1, 10 of which have been fatal, 16 have recovered, and 9 are still sick. These are located as follows: Allegan county, 6; Menominee, 4; Iron, 1; Marquette, 3; Kalamazoo, 2; Jackson, 4; Muskegon, 3; Bay, 3; St. Joseph, 3; Kent, 1 and Wayne, 1, and there is no telling how soon it may appear in our own county, possibly in our own town, and why should we not be prepared for it. The only protection known is vaccination, and it is a protection in every sense of the word. For it has been demonstrated for years, that it has the power of rendering man unsusceptible to small pox. That the specific cow pox alone, and not other eruptions affecting the cow sometimes confounded with it, has this protective power. That the cow pox can be communicated at will from cow to man by vaccination.

Before vaccination or inoculation, the deaths from small pox were enormous—one death to every six cases. Inoculation reduced it to one in fifty, and by improvement treatment it was still reduced, to one in 200. Vaccination has made the mortality a mere nothing, in the way of prevention, and if contracted it is of such a mild form as to make it amenable to treatment.

Vaccination should be performed in children only in good health, except when small pox is in the neighborhood. Whether the protective power of vaccination dies out in a certain number of years, or lasts throughout one's life-time is an open question. Each phase of it having its numerous and honest exponents. The security offered by vaccination is in direct proportion to the degree of perfection of the vaccine process, hence it is better to be vaccinated just as long as any effect is produced. Some advocate vaccination should be performed every seven years. They claim that nature makes a change in our system every seven years. If that be so, and no matter how well we have been attended to before, if we are re-vaccinated and "it works," it shows we were not protected, but if it does not "work" we are then sure we were protected, and no harm is done.

Our State Board is recommending and advising all local Boards of Health to offer free vaccination. Some are doing so. Others are not. Every parent should attend to this matter, and not wait for local boards, and protect their little ones from the most loathsome and dangerous of diseases.

Respectfully,

Dr. H. M. BRODRICK, Health Officer, Buchanan, Mich.

NEW TROY.

From our Regular Correspondent.

June 10, 1894.

This is good corn weather, and will all be planted this week. Some plowing out and some planting.

The Methodists baptised seven or eight, on Saturday afternoon, in the Galien, below the grist mill.

Our great base ball club, the Nuff Snickers, went to Galien Saturday to knock out those fellows. They played 6 innings, with a score of 42 to 14 in favor of Galien. The Galien fellows would have had more tallies only the stick they cut notches on was only ten feet long.

Uncle Peter Umphrey is no better; he will hardly get well.

We had a bride groom of only a few days here who went to St. Joe for work, but the lake water was too strong for him and he brought in the battle at Berrien Springs. In the midst of joys we are in gloom.

We have taken a vote, and hereafter skirt dancing will not be allowed at our festivals. THE POPE.

BENTON HARBOR.

The five-year-old son of Will Platt fell into an empty cistern, the other day, striking on some loose brick in the bottom. He was taking out for dead, but was finally revived, after two or three hours strenuous effort.

Morton Hose Co. No. 5 has new uniforms, full suits of blue. It is composed of employees of Spencer, Barnes & Stewart, some of whom used to belong to Buchanan Engine Co. No. 1. They gave an excursion to Chicago, Saturday night, on the City of Chicago, returning the next night on the Chicago.

Excursions to and from Chicago and other points are of frequent occurrence. A boat-load of Swedes came over a week ago last Sunday, and a German society spent Sunday here. They have great times at the Pavilion, dancing, etc., but so far have been law-abiding. The Swedes are coming again next Sunday. It brings the street car line lots of business.

The Deputy Sheriff.

Did you ever notice when you chance to meet a policeman, how he looks at your feet? While a hatter, or tailor, or shoemaker, examine your hat or the fit of your clothes. But the man who can take in almost at a look a man's character, just as you read a book. And this is a power of some value, for I would have seen but a note and let him pass by, he's the man of all others that in this brief space I would like for a moment to like to rehearse.

"Mr. Palmer, get out on your feet this fine day, when a man on horse back came riding that way, the horse, a fine bay one, reared and hot, and 'Hi!' made his hind up, looked just on the spot.

That a man who's so badly used a fine best deserved some close watching, to say the least.

For a man would think he had his fine steel, unless a physician or nurse he should meet. So he put on his hat and walked down the street 'till' some acquaintance he chanced to meet. He took him aside and said, "Follow that man and find out his business, that is if you can."

So found number one, in a casual way. To the barn where the stranger drove up with his horse.

"That's a fine horse you ride there; has good main and tail, and carries his head well. Pray, is he for sale?"

"Why, no," said the stranger, "I'm inspecting the horse."

"Of the Postal Telegraph is his name of mine I don't care to sell, though I possible may. If some one should offer the right price to pay."

With a few more remarks, friend number one leaves.

And number two enters and this answer receives: "Yes, that's a good horse and may work well, and 'tough' take quite a sum to induce me to sell, but I'll take the money to buy a fat stock."

And this horse stands under my work like a rock. The man was so plainly caught trying to lie, that Palmer now stepped up his own luck to try, "Please tell me your name, son, and where is your home?"

"It's none of your business!" "All right, sir, just come."

"With me to no other, perhaps then you'll find that it's some of my business, my business to mind."

I'm a deputy of Berrien County, sometimes sent out to look for you on the loose. In vain then the fellow raved, swore, and protested. That he'd make Palmer pay for his being arrested.

He was searched and papers were found upon him. That made clearer proof of what first was quite dim.

A telegram sent to Chicago soon brought an answer that this was a rascal they'd caught. The horse he had stolen on the tenth day of May, and fast to the East he was making his way.

And his Palmer then brought him up with a round tars: "Soon in Joliet a new trade he will learn; and it won't be inspecting a horse that's the game."

Some friends would say he's a very much older. Will be one of men, each one's hand on a shoulder! So three cheers for Palmer, with a right good will.

And we all join in saying with Editor Hill, "Some day all these rascals will learn to keep clear."

Of Buchanan so long as "Bill" Palmer lives here. The Buchanan people will not hide their smiles, if I say that house-thief's head route is through Buchanan, May, 1891. W. U. M.

M. M. M. S. II. D. Howe and Miss Rachel I. S. were out riding, when down the St. Joe road beyond the mill, the horse took fright at the Galien house, ran into the fence by Mr. Fryman's and the ladies were thrown violently out. Miss Tate's forehead was very badly bruised and both sustained injuries decidedly unpleasant.—Berrien Springs Era.

"We have been so often bored by persons traveling over the country professing to be endowed with abilities to cure every disease that flesh is heir to, that we require considerable satisfaction in regard to a traveling physician's reputation before we are willing to commend them to the public. After a long business acquaintance with Dr. F. B. Brewer, and considerable knowledge in regard to his success, during the many years that he has been traveling thru this part of the country, we are satisfied that he is an honorable exception to the common rule, and those who trust themselves in his hands may rely on a speedy cure. If their disease is curable, his large success in the past is ample evidence of his skill as a medical practitioner. He charges nothing for consultation, and detests frankly and fairly to all who call upon him for advice, and gives no encouragement unless confident of his ability to afford relief."

We believe we are doing service to all who are troubled with Rheumatism, by calling attention to the fact that Dr. F. B. Brewer, now a regular visitor for years will again be at the Elkerton, in Dowagiac, Friday, the 23rd of June, and at the Galien, on Saturday, the 23rd of June.

We are pleased to be able to announce that the publisher of THE INTER OCEAN has made a special offer on the weekly edition of that paper during the present political campaign. He will send The Weekly Inter Ocean for six months to any subscriber of the RECORD on receipt of thirty cents. This is a very low price for one of the best and ablest Republican newspapers in the country. Good Republicans should try to increase its circulation. Subscriptions will be received at this price from June 1st to August 1st. After that the regular prices will be restored.

The Greatest Sight of a Great City.

Paris has her Arch Triomphale, London her Tower, Rome her St. Peter's, and New York her Old Trinity, but Chicago her Masonic Temple. In fact the Masonic Temple is more wonderful than any building in any great city of the world. Erected as a business building, with no direct reference to art, it is nevertheless unique as a structure considered from every standpoint. The frame of the building is of steel bolted together, 4,700 tons of steel having been used. The walls are of stone and pressed brick with marble and bronze tiling and terra cotta perforations. Erected in the latter entering into the work. The pumping apparatus used in running the battery of fourteen elevators would easily supply water for a city of 60,000 souls. There are twenty-one stories in the huge edifice and on the top floor is being fitted up the finest Observatory and planetarium in the world, on the basis of keeping with the fact that the Temple has no parallel in the civilized world. At a height of 302 feet in this air, a thousand points of interest in and about the great city are unfolded to view. The Observatory, and Roof Garden is superbly fitted out for the use of the public. No addition has been made to the price of admission, even in view of the many thousands of dollars expended, and it will remain at twenty-five cents.
