FIELD AND GARDEN

IN THE POULTRY YARD.

Feathered Legs Are Troublesome—Erease in the Poultry House.

Numbered with the many things of general interest told in The Poultry World are the following:

There is no economy in keeping roosters after the breeding season is passed, and economy is a necessity with the pouter; also if one wishes to preserve eggs those from hens with a male will not keep so well as others.

Others on the way of an breed, or should be, considered a nuisance. They ought to be discarded as a "point" and eliminated by careful breeding.

Feathers are as troublesome to the fowl during wet or freezing weather as to the picker at dressing time.

Every drop of kerosene will spread over a spot as large as a silver dollar. Time is worth too much to spend it brushing oil on the roosts.

Put in a quart of oil and sprinkle the roosts, floor and walls quickly. Two applications, a week apart, will make things blue for lice and mites.

If you clean up the buildings, don't stop there, but every nestbox and roost should be painted white with a mixture of stramonium and kerosene.

There is more money and less trouble in producing eggs than in raising chickens. Eggs are finished product and require no feeding and fussing with, no risk of loss, and at the last no bleeding, scalding and picking, as do chicks.

More modern machinery and improved methods save valuable time and hard labor.

On our large western farms, where the hay harvest comes in at a considerable length of time, the four-foot mowers have been replaced by one with a six or seven foot cutter bar.

The eight foot rake has given way to one of twice the width. Other implements have been added. Clover grows in such luxuriance on the Iowa soil that the leader is indispensable. The leader saves time and hard labor.

Stacking in the open air has proved to be a very costly method of preserving hay, and our prairies are becoming thickly dotted with hay barns, into which the hay is placed by horse power.

Calcium is believed to have been so called because it was first made at Cambridge.

Blankets were invented by Thomas Blanket, who made them at Bristol in 1840.

Cashmere goods were invented in the celebrated valley of which Moore sings in "Lalla Rookh."

Parchment was first made at Pergamum from the sheep or the mountain goats of Asia Minor.

Calculate comes from a word meaning to count, and recalls the days when men used small stones in counting.

Milliners first plied their trade at Milan, and to be a Milner was equivalent to being able to prepare an elegant headdress.

Punch is the Hindoo word for five, because five ingredients—arrack, sugar, cream and water—enter into its composition.

Cap paper was thus called because formerly, before being used by grocers in wrapping up goods, it was folded in a caplike form.

Bock beer took its name from the fact that it was so much stronger than the common beer that when indulged in it made the drinker asper like a bock or goat.

Silhouette was the name of a French minister in revolution times. He was a stern economist, and the courtiers had their pictures made in profile and black, facetiously claiming that M. Silhouette had made them so poor that they could not have a regular portrait painted.

Thomas E. Murray's tour with Major O'Hagerty will open on Sept. 15.

James K. Hackett opened a summer stock season at the Queen's theater, Montreal, recently.

George W. Wilson has been engaged to play the medical drama in "Shirop Acres," No. 3 company.

Harry Gilfill, who whistled himself into fame in "A Trip to Chinatown," is soon to fill a London engagement.

Marie Broughton, a sister of Julia Marlowe, is a member of the opera company at the Tremont Street theater, Boston.

During a drive to Claremont from New York recently Della Fox lost a diamond bracelet in the form of a new moon that cost $2,300.

The "Flaming," which the Pantlons have written for Old Moss Hoop, will be produced at the Bijou theater, New York, late in the autumn.

Madeline Linton, who replaced Julia Arthur in A. M. Palmer's stock company, has signed with M. Palmer for next season.

Marion Elmore will play the part of a young Irish woman in Frank Dixey's new play, "Shaft No. 2," next season, and James F. Macdonald has been engaged for the opposite part.

Elmer Graudin's new melodrama, "Staves of Gold," will be produced elaborately by William T. Fessenden of Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. Graudin (Eva Mountford) will play the leading roles.

Among the most elegant of the new trappings are crocheted pashmenters in plain silk. These come in all colors and black.

A pretty and effective garniture is of lace, with a fancy edge, the upper portion being of net dotted with rows of tiny beads.

Waists in modified blouse shape, with bands of fancy galloon across the front and back and also across the sleeves, are much liked.

A handsome heading for a founce is made of pashmenter in jet, the garniture being finished in with stars, sequins and other fanciful shaped beads.

India silk costumes, with plain skirt, a very thin, draped sash of embroidered silk, with ends falling along the side of the skirt in front, deep shoulder ruffles of rich lace and a V shaped vest, with collar and bow in cream colored, white or other delicate tints, are much liked.

A new and attractive costume is of cream colored India cashmere, with a cream trimmed Irish petticoat. The insertion is set in fancy pattern all around the skirt and also trims the deep shoulders and the cuffs. A such is very wide, fancy ribbon is worn with this dress.

Novelties. The latest writing pads are bound in enamel.

The crooked serpents that are used for corkcore handles seem to have fitness. The fine tapes of gold and platinum are to be commended for ladies' job chains.

Some glove buttoners are the immediate occasion of novel charms attached to their chains.

It is astonishing that the censors of public morals have not laid violent hands on some of the enamel decorated cigarette cases exposed.

Colored stones or enamel sets in paste are much desired for hatpins. Perfumed and prickly balls are worn. All sorts of button effects prevail.

Ending and Working. Big eaters are seldom great workers. People who eat more than is needed to keep the body in good health are generally fat and idle.

An incident pathetic in the extreme and of interest in St. Louis because of the name of the heroine, in that city has just come to light. Two years ago Sam J. Taylor, a prominent farmer near this city, became embroiled in a quarrel with a neighbor. The fellow struck him, and in the heat of passion Taylor drew a pistol and badly wounded the other.

The Battle-Scarred Flags Are An Omen. The two battle flags of the Twenty-second Michigan Infantry were delivered to Senator McMillan at Washington Friday, by Assistant Adj. Gen. Corbin, and in turn will be given to the state.

The flags are two in number. One is a blue silk flag with an eagle and 34 stars. It is spattered with blood, and a faint red in the middle of it, tells of the many fields upon which it has been carried and the deeds of valor performed by those who bore it.

The other is a handsome silk United States flag, bordered and fringed with gold, and still in good condition, although it is perforated by eight or ten bullet holes and two of its white stripes are reddened with blood. These are the flags that this famous regiment carried during its heroic career in the war. Among the fields upon which these flags were carried were Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge. The flags were displayed Friday afternoon by Senator McMillan in the ballroom of the Senate, and attracted a great deal of attention and admiration. This battle-scarred emblem has been sent to Gov. Rich.

There is more cathartism in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors prescribed cathartics, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Wine will soon be transported in France in great railway tanks, like petroleum in America. The winegrowers are determined to deal with the public directly and secure some of the large middleman's profits. Customers can take the wine away in barrels from the tanks. It is declared that a good quality of wine will soon be sold in this way at 8 cents a quart.—Paris Letter.

Give me my old, old camera. When my heartache is so so brief—They only sell the pulping paper to me. H. A. Jackson, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

He kept it, naturally enough. After Mr. Scadd's left the station he discovered a packet of bank-notes which he was taking to the city was nowhere about his person.

He must have left it in the Pullman car, not half an hour ago," said Mr. Scadd's to the official.

"I'll go to the superintendent's office and make my loss known," he thought; and he did. "I left a package containing $5000 in bank-notes in a Pullman car, not half an hour ago," said Mr. Scadd's to the official.

"Which train?" "The one which arrived at 10:15." "Have you your Pullman check?" "I unfortunately had, and this enabled the superintendent to send for the conductor.

He soon arrived, for he had not yet finished the report of his trip, and was still in the Pullman car.

"Conductor," said the superintendent, "did you see anything of a package left in your car?" "No, sir."

"The porter didn't turn anything over to you?" "No, sir."

"Bring the porter here." He was brought.

"Did you see anything of a small packet after the passengers left your car?" "Yes, sah."

"You haven't turned it in?" "No, sah, no. It was a lot of money, sah."

"Precisely. Where is it now?" "Here, sah?"

It was produced from an inside pocket. Scadd's eyes brightened when he saw the roll. "That's it," he exclaimed. He counted the money, and it was all there, the entire $5000.

"Look here, porter," said the superintendent, "ever since I got to know why you did not bring that package to me the moment you got your fingers on it."

"Why, sah," replied the man, with a faded air, "I left open the door and left for my slip, sah. I was why, sah."—William Henry Switzer, in the "Editor's Drawer," in Harpor's Magazine for August.

New Baking Powder Tried.

The Way in Which Makers of Adult Enticed Children to Buy the Public—An Easy Method of Detecting the Same.

Some of the baking powder companies are operating a cunning trick upon housekeepers in sending canvassers around trying to impose upon the unwary what is called the foaming test.

A chemical analysis has recently been made of the baking powders in whose interest the fraud is being worked, and it is found that a drug has been introduced which makes a froth like the syp in soda water.

Pure cream of tartar and soda never produce a froth like this; but the
