By CAPTAIN CHARLES KING. [Copyright, 1894, by the J. B. Lippincott Co.]

A few steps brought them to the terrace, and there, standing by the west wall and looking up at the closed slats of the dormer window, Captain Chester retold the story of his night adventure. Armitage listened attentively, asking few questions. When it was finished, the latter turned and walked to the rear door, which opened on the terrace. It was locked. "The servants are having a holiday, presume," he said. "So much the better. Ask the quartermaster for the key of the front door, and I'll go in while everybody is out looking at dress parade. There goes first call now. Let your orderly bring it to me here, will you?" Ten minutes later, with beating heart, he stood and uncovered his handsome head and gazed silently, reverently around him. He was in her room. It was dainty as her own dainty self.

The dressing table, the windows, the pretty white bed, the broad, inviting lounge, the work table and basket, the very washstand, were all trimmed and decked alike, white and yellow prevailing. White lace curtains draped the window on the west—that fateful window-and the two that opened out on the roof of the piazza. White lace curtains draped the bed, the dressing table and the washstand. White lace or some equally flimsy and feminine material hung about her bookshelves and worktable and over the lounge, and bows of bright yellow ribbon were everywhere, yellow pincushions and wall pockets hung about the toilet table, soft yellow rugs lay at the bed and lounge side, and a sunshiny tone was given to the whole apartment by the shades of yellow silk that hung close to the win-

On the wall were some choice etchings and a few foreign photographs On the bookshelves were a few volumes of poetry and the prose of George Eliot and our own Hawthorne. Hanging on pegs in the corner of the simple army room, covered by a curtain, were some heavy outer garments, an ulster, a traveling coat and cape of English make and one or two dresses that were apparently too thick to be used at this season of the year. He drew aside the curtain one moment, took a brief glance at the garments, raised the hem of a skirt to his lips and turned quickly away. A door led from the room to the one behind it, a spare bedroom evidently, that was lighted only from the back of the house and had no side window at all. Another door led to the hall, a broad, old fashioned affair, and crossing this he stood in the big front room occapied by the colonel and his wife. This was furnished almost as luxuriously, from an army point of view, as that of Miss Renwick, but not in white and vel-

Armitage smiled to see the evidences of Mrs. Maynard's taste and handiwork on every side. In the years he had been the old soldier's adjutant nothing could have exceeded the simplicity with which the colonel surrounded himself. Now it was something akin to Sybaritish elegance, thought the captain, but all the samo he made his deliberate survey. There was the big dressing table and bureau on which had stood that ravished picture, that photograph of the girl he loved which others were able to speak of and one man to appropriate feloniously, while yet he had never seen it. His impulse was to go to Jerrold's quarters and take him by the throat and demand it of him, but what right had he? How knew he oven that it was now there? In view of the words that Chester had used toward him, Jerrold must know of the grievous danger in which he stood. That photograph would prove most damaging evidence if discovered. Very probably, after yielding to his vanity and showing it to Sloat, he meant to get it back. Very certainly, after hearing Chester's words, he must have determined to lose no time in getting rid of it. He was no fool if he was a coxcomb. Looking around the half darkened room, Armitage lingered long over the photographs which hung about the dressing table and over the mantel, several prettily framed duplicates of those already described as appearing in the album. One after another he took them in his hands, bore them to the window and studied them attentively. Some were not replaced without a long, lingering kiss. He had not ventured to disturb an item in her room. He would not touch the knob of a drawer or attempt to open anything she had closed, but here in quarters where his colonel could claim joint partnership he felt less sentiment or delicacy. He closed the hall door and tried the lock, turning the knob to and fro. Then he reopened the door and swung it upon its hinges. For a wonder neither lock nor hinges creaked. The door worked smoothly and with little noise. Then he similarly tried the door of her room. It was in equally good working order, quite free from squeak and complaint with which quartermasters' locks and hinges are apt to do their reluctant duty. The discovery pleased him. It was possible for one to open and close these portals noiselessly, if need be, and without disturb ng sleepers in either room.

Returning to the east chamber, he opened the shades, so as to get more light, and his eye fell upon an old album lying on a little table that stood by the bedside. There was a night lamp upon the table, too, a little affair that could hold only a thimbleful of oil and was intended evidently to keep merely a faint glow during the night hours. Other volumes—a Bible, some devo-tional books, like "The Changed Cross," and a hymnal or two-were also there, but the album stood most prominent and Armitage curiously took it up and opened it.

There were only half a dozen photographs in the affair. It was rather a case than an album and was intended apparently for only a few family pictures. There was but one that interested him, and this he examined intently, almost excitedly. It represented a little girl of 9 or 10 years-Alice undoubtedly-with her arms clasped about the neck of a magnificent St. Bernard dog and looking up into the handsome features of a tall, slender, dark eyed, black haired boy of 16 or thereabouts, and the two were enough alike to be brother and sister. Who, then, was this boy?

Armitage took the photograph to the window and studied it carefully. Parade was over, and the troops were marching back to their quarters. The band was playing gloriously as it came tramping into the quadrangle, and the captain could not but glance out at his own old company as in compact column of fours it entered the grassy diamond and swung off toward the barracks. He saw a knot of officers, too, turning the corner by the adjutant's office, and for a moment he lowered the album to look. Mr. Jerrold was not of the number that came sauntering up the walk, dropping away by ones or twos as they reached their doors and unbuckled their belts or removed their helmets in eager haste to get out of the constraint of full Armitage stood and watched him a dress. But in another moment Jerrold, too, appeared all alone, walking rapidly and nervously. Armitage watched him and could not but see how other men turned away or gave him the coolest possible nod as he passed. Tho tall, slender lieutenant was handsomer even than when he last saw him, and yet there were gloom and worry on the dark beauty of his face. Nearer and nearer he came and had passed the quarters of the other officers and was almost at the door of his own when Armitage saw a little, wiry soldier in full dress uniform running across the parade as though in pursuit. He recognized Merrick, one of the scapegraces of his company, and wondered why he should be chasing after his temporary commander. Just as Jerrold was turning under the piazza the soldier seemed to make himself heard, and the lieutenant, with an angry frown on his face, stopped and confronted him. "I told you not to come to me again," he said, so loud that every word was audible to the captain standing by the opon window abovo. "What do you mean, sir, by following me in this way?"

The reply was inaudible. Armitage could see the little soldier standing in the respectful position of "attention." looking up and evidently pleading.

"I won't do it until I'm ready," was again heard in Jerrold's angry tones, though this time the lieutonant glanced about, as though to see if others were within earshot. There was no one apparently, and he grew more confident. 'You've been drinking again today, Merrick. You're not sober now, and I won't give you money to get maudlin and go to blabbing secrets. No, sir! Go back to your quarters and stay there."

The little soldier must indeed have been drinking, as the lieutenant declared. Armitage saw that he hesitated, instead of obeying at once, and that his flushed face was angrily working, then that he was arguing with his superior and talking louder. This was contrary to all the captain's ideas of proper discipline, even though he was indignant at the officer for permitting himself to be placed in so false and undignified a position Jorrold's words, too, had acquired a wide significance, but they were feeble as compared with the sudden outburst that came from the soldier's lips:

"By God, lieutenant, you bribed me to silence to cover your tracks, and then you refuse to pay. If you don't want me to tell what I know, the sooner you pay that money the better." This was more than Armitago could stand. He went down stairs three at a jump and out through the colonel's garden with quick, impetuous steps. Jerrold's furious face turned ashen at the sight, and Merrick, with one amazed and frightened look at his captain, faced about and slunk silently away. To him Armitage paid no further attention. It was to the officer he addressed

"Mr. Jerrold, I have heard pretty much all this conversation. It simply adds to the evil report with which you have managed to surround yourself. Step into your quarters. I must see you alone.

Jerrold hesitated. He was thunderstruck by the sudden appearance of the captain, whom he had believed to be hundreds of miles away. He connected his return unerringly with the web of trouble which had been weaving about him of late. He conceived himself to have been most unjustly spied upon and suspected and was full of resentment at the conduct of Captain Chester. But Chester was an old granny, who sometimes made blunders and had to back down. It was a different thing when Armitage took hold. Jerrold looked sulkily into the clear, stern, blue eyes a moment, and the first impulse of rebellion wilted. He gave one irresolute glance around the quadrangle, then motioned with his hand to the open door. Something of the old, jaunty, creole lightness of manner reasserted itself.

"After you, captain," he said.

CHAPTER XIII. Once within doors it was too dark for Armitage to see the features of his lieutenant, and he had his own reasons for desiring to read them. Mr. Jerrold, on the other hand, seemed disposed to keep in the shadows as much as possible. He made no movement to open the shutters of the one window which admitted light from the front, and walked back to his bedroom door, glanced in there, as though to see that there were no occupants, then carefully closed it as he returned to face his captain. He took off his helmet and placed it on the center table, then thrusting his thumbs inside the handsome, gold broidered sword belt stood in a jaunty attitude, but with a very uneasy look in his eyes, to hear what his senior might have to say. Between the two men an invitation to sit would have been a superfluity. Neither had ever remained long enough in the other's quarters, since the exchange of the first calls when Jerrold came to the garrison, to render a chair at all neces-

"Be good enough to strike a light, Mr. Jerrold," said Armitage presently, seeing that his unwilling host made no effort on his own account. "I purposed going out at onco, captain, and presume you cannot have any very extended remarks to make." "You cannot see the writing I have to call your attention to without a light. I shall detain you no longer than is necessary. Had you an engagement?'

"Nothing of great consequence.

presume it will keep."
"It will have to. The matter I have come upon will admit no further delay. Light your lamp, if you please."

And Jerrold did so, slowly and with much reluctance. He wiped his forehead vigorously the instant the flame began to splutter, but as the clear, steady light of the argand gradually spread over the little room Armitage could see the sweat again beading his forehead, and the dark eyes were glancing nervously about, and the hands that were so firm and steady and fine the year before and held the Springfield in so light yet immovable an aim were twitching now. It was no wonder Jerrold's score had dropped some 30 per cent. His nerve had gone to pieces.

moment; then he slowly spoke: "I have no desire to allude to the subject of your conversation with Merrick. It was to put an end to such a thing-not to avail myself of any information it might give—that I hurried in. We will put that aside and go at once to the matter that brings mo back. You are aware, of course, that your conduct has compromised a woman's name, and that the garrison is talking of nothing else."

Jerrold grasped the back of a chair with one slender brown hand and looked furtively about, as though for some hope of escape. Something like a startled gulp seemed to work his throat muscles an instant; then he stammered his re-

"I don't know what you mean." "You do know what I mean. Captain Chester has already told you." "Captain Chester came in here and made an unauthorized inspection of my quarters because he heard a shot fired by a sentry. I was out. I don't deny that. But he proceeded to say all manner of insulting and unwarrantable things and tried to force me to hand in a resignation simply because I was out of quarters after taps. I could account for his doing something so idiotic, but I'm at a loss to comprehend your taking it up." 'The most serious allegation ever made against an officer of the regiment is made against you, the senior lieutenant of my company, and the evidence furnished mo by the colonel and by Captain Chester is of such a character that unless you can refute it and clear her name you will have a settlement with me to start with, and your dismissal from the regiment"-

"Settlement with you? What concern have you in the matter?" interrupted

"Waste no words on that, Mr. Jerrold. Understand that where her name is concerned no man on earth is more interested than I. Now answer me. You were absent from your quarters for some hours after the doctor's party. Somobody believed to have been you was seen and fired at for refusing to halt at the order of Captain Chester at 3:30 in the morning. The ladder that usually hung at your fence was found at the colonel's while you were out, and that night a woman's name was compromised beyond repair unless you can repair it. Unless you prove beyond peradventure where you were both that night and last night, provo beyond question that you were not where you are believed to have been, her name is stained and yours blackened forever. There are other things you must fully explain, but these first." Jerrold's face was growing gray and sickly. Ho stared at the stern eyes before him and could make no answer. His lips moved dryly, but made no sound. "Come, I want to hear from you.

Where were you if not with or seeking her? Name your place and wit-"By God, Captain Armitage, the army is no longer a place for a gentleman if his every movement is to be "The world is no place for a man of your stamp is perhaps a better way of putting it," said Armitago, whose fingers were twitching convulsively, and whose whole frame quivored with the effort he was making to restrain the rage and indignation that consumed him. He could not-he would notbelieve in her guilt. He must have this man's proof, no matter how it might damn him for good and all, no matter whom else it might involve, so long as it cleared her precious name. He must be patient, he must be calm and resolute, but the man's cold blooded, selfish, criminal concealment nearly maddened him. With infinite effort he controlled himself and went on: "But it is of her I'm thinking, not of you. It is the name you have compromised and can clear and should clear, even at the expense of your own -in fact, Mr. Jerrold, must clear. Now will you tell me where you were and how you can prove it?" "I decline to say. I won't be cross questioned by men who have no author-Captain Chester said he would refer it to the colonel, and when he asks I will answer—not until then."

"I ask in his name. I am authorized by him, for he is not well enough to meet the ordeal." "You say so, and I don't mean to dispute your word, Captain Armitage, but I have a right to demand some proof. How am I to know he authorized von?"

"He himself gave me this letter, in your handwriting," said Armitage, and opening the long envelope he held forth the missive over which the poor old colonel had gone nearly wild. "He found it the morning they left-in her gar-

If Jerrold's face had been gray before, it was simply ghastly now. He recoiled from the sight after one rruitless effort to grasp the letter, then ral-lied with unlooked for spirit:

"By heaven, Armitage, suppose I did write that letter? What does it prove but what I say-that somebody has been prying and spying into my affairs? How came the colonel by it if not by fraud or treachery?" "He picked it up in the garden, I tell a few moments before, and where it might appear that she had dropped it." "She! That letter! What had she to do with it? What right had she to read Armitage stepped oimpulsively forward. A glad, glorious light was bursting upon his soul. He could almost have seized Jerrold's hand and thanked him,

It was not his mind that was to be convinced; it was "society" that must be satisfied of her utter innocence, that it might be able to say, "Well, I never for a moment believed a word of it." Link bore him to the bedroom. Here they by link the chain of circumstantial evibathed the wound with cold water and dence must be destroyed, and this was only one.
"You mean that that letter was not removed the uniform coat, and presently intended for Miss Renwick?" he asked, with eagerness he strove hard to repress "It was never meant for anybody," said Jerrold, the color coming back to his face and courage to his eyes. "That has got away off the track. All the same, I do not mean to overlook his language to me, and I may say right now, Captain Armitage, that yours, too, calls for an explanation." "You shall have it in short order. Mr. Jerrold, and the sooner you understand the situation the better. So far as I am concerned, Miss Renwick need ed no defender; but, thanks to your mysterious and unwarranted absence from quarters two very unlucky nights, and to other circumstances I have no need to name, and to your penchant for letter writing of a most suggestive character, it is Miss Renwick whose name has been brought into question here at this post and most prominently so. In plain words, Mr. Jerrold, you who brought this trouble upon her by your own misconduct must clear her, no matter at whose expense, or"-

"Or what?" "I make no threats. I prefer that you should make the proper explanations from a proper sense of what is due."

"And suppose I say that no man is called upon to explain a situation which has been distorted and misrepresented by the evil imagination of his fellows?" "Then I may have to wring the truth out of you-and will; but, for hor sake, want as little publicity as possiblo. "The photograph that was stolen from Mrs. Maynard between 2 and 4 o'clock that morning was seen in your drawer by Major Sloat at reveille. You were fool enough to show it to him." "Captain Armitage, I shall be quite ablo to show, when the proper time comes, that the photograph I showed Major Sloat was not stolen. It was given me." "That is beyond belief, Mr. Jerrold. Once and for all understand this case. You have compromised her good name by the very mystery of your actions. You have it in your power to clear her by proving where you were, since you were not near her; by showing how you got that photograph; by explaining how you came to write so strange a letter. Now I say to you, will you do it instantly, or must we wring it from you?"

A sneering smile was the only answer for a moment, then: "I shall take great pleasure in confounding my enemies should the matter be brought before a court. Armitage could bear no more. The airy conceit and insolence of the man overcame all self restraint and resolution. With one bound he was at his throat, his strong white hands grasping him in a sudden, viselike grip, then hurling him with sturning, thundering force to the floor. It is known that the disease is produced by the growth of a separate and distinct smut plant in the wheat plant itself and that the smut plant is propagated from year to year by its spores which adhere to the wheat kernels, making them dark and dingy and giving a sample of wheat a disagreeable and characteristic odor when present in noticeable quantity. Means of pre-vention are directed towards killing these spores without injuring the vitality of the seed wheat. In the autumn of 1893 wheat badly affected with stinking smut was pro-cured for seed and small quantities subjected to different treatments, were sown on adjacent plots. In all fifty-six different treatments dere tried One of them was so simple, and at the same time proved so efficacious in entirely exterminating the smut with of the seed wheat that it is here com mended to the farmers for extended application to the seed wheat this fall. The treatment consists in soaking the seed wheat affected with bunt, as solution of lime for twenty-four hours then sowing as soon thereafter as possible. The seed should be thoroughly cleaned through a fanning mill before treatment. To make the solution take ten pounds of unslacked lime for each barrel (32 gallons) of the solution needed; slack it, using just water enough to make a pasty mass when thoroughly soaked;

hours. On removal from the solution the wheat must be spresd out thin to dry. The drying may be hastened by throwing on slacked lime and mixing. Care should be taken that the wheat is not allowed to heat at any time, especially more seed to the acre than customary, as the kernels of wheat will be swoller

by the treatment. The devices and utensils for treating the seed may be varied according to the amount of seed to be handled. When only a few bushels are needed, good water tight salt barrels, with a hole in the side near the bottom through which the water may be drawn off, will be found very convenient. If larger amounts of seed are needed it may be well to make a water tight vat holding 30 or 40 bushels. Place it in such a position that the liquid may be drawn off after each Seed wheat after such treatment should not be put into sacks or bags that have had smutty wheat in them, as the spores of the smut plant will remain in them undestroyed. Scald the grain drill and the bags with boiling water before using them for this wheat.

State Fair at Detroit.

The Great Exhibition Opens on Monday September 10. The forty-fifth annual fair of the Michigan State Agricultural Society will open on Monday, Sept. 10, on the grounds of the Detroit Exposition Company, and will continue until Friday, Sept. 21. This is the only general fair or exposition to be held in the State this year, and every effort is being made to have it excel all previous exhibitions in the history of the Society. The races occur on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of the first week, and and on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the second. Entries close Sept. 4. All the railroads will give half rates to Detroit during the fair, with still lower special excursion rates on certain days. Steamboat excursions will also be run from various lake and actually made their way across Siberia into Tibet and entered the sacred city of Lassa, which Rockwell and Miss Taylor saw from a distance. They also saw the Dalai Lama face to face. If these men had had any scientific training, the world would be far richer by their observations of a comparatively unknown territory, but they noticed very little on their journey and seemed to be mainly intent on securing a supply of religious books at Lassa and on reaching their homes again as speedily aŝ possible. The travelers are Budwa Menkudjinoff and Saranga Ulanoff. Both are Monoff and Saranga Ulanoir. Both are Mongol Buddhists and speak the Mongol language fluently. In talking of their journey they said that Menkudjinoff, being a Lama, decided to go to Lassa to get a supply of books and prayers that could be vouched for as genuine, and Ulanoff, a neighbor, agreed to accompany him.

could give only scanty details of their trip, but the journey across the great mountains and elevated plateau was terrible, even to those hardy men, inured to extreme cold. It took 14 months of constant traveling to reach the sacred city. In crossing what has been aptly called "the roof of the world" they passed over mountains so high that the blood flowed from their ears and eyes. It was so cold, even in midsummer, on these great heights that they wore dou-ble coats of bearskins. In crossing the great desert they met no one except a band of robbers in four weeks. Finally they reached the sacred city.

They concealed the fact that they were suspected them of being foreigners they could never hope to gain admission to the city and its temples. They gave out they were Mongols, and as they both spoke the language they had no trouble in sustaining the disguise. They were received by the venerable Dalai Lama and worshiped before him. He seemed much gratified by their piety and their desire for literature. With his own hand he gave them a Buddhist Bible in 120 volumes, which was worth in Lassa 1,000 ounces of fine silver. They bought 20 large packages of prayers, images, charms and sacred books, which they safely transported on animals to Hankow. It is a curious fact that the prayers are printed on Chinese rice paper made in the province of Kiangsi. From Lassa they made their way eastward through Koko-Nor and the northern provinces of China to Peking, a hard journey, which consumed 15 months. From that city they went to

A Unanimous Renomination of All County Officers.

Yesterday afternoon was the date for the Republican County Convention and Borrien Springs was the scone of a romarkable gathering, as regards numbers and in interest manifested. An unusually large number of ladies were in attendance and chairs were provided for them on the stage. The Niles (Hee Club has just been organized and were present. Their singing enthusiastically received. Promptly at 11 o'clock Chairman W. I. Babcock of Niles, called the convention to order, and Major L. A. Dancan, of the Niles Republican was made temporary chairman and John P. Gard of St. Joseph, was made temporary secretary. The committee on credentials was composed of the following: George P. Stewart, C. C. Hodges and I. L. H. Dodd. The committee on Permanent Organization and Order of Business, as appointed by the chair was E. O. Fifield, R. D. Dix, H. L. Hess, L. C. Fyfo and Z. L. Cooper. An ad- Poneils, Tablets, Inks at journment was then made until 130 o'- tance, to go out and in the fair grounds Promptly at the appointed time Maj. L. A. Duncan called the convention to order and introduced Rev. Mr. Prouty, who offered prayer. The Committee on Credentials reported that all towns were represented and a total of 300 delegates were present. The Committee on Permanent Organization and Or> der of business recommended, That the temporary organization be made permanent. That the chair appoint 4 tellers and that each chairman should collect the vote of his delegation and deposit the result of same with tellers. That the convention proceed to the election of candidates for the following offices: Sheriff, County Clerk, Treasurer, Register of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney, Surveyor, Two Circuit Commissioners, Two Coroners and one Fish Inspector. That the Convention elect 26 delegates, one from each supervisor district, to represent the county in the Senatorial Conven-tion to be held at Niles on September

The reports and recommendations were adopted and the chair appointed as tellors Doputy Sheriff Napler, Messis Carmi R. Smith, W. C. Hall and Wm. M. Baldwin. The next business transacted was the nomination of candidates for the various officers, and an informal ballot was taken for Sheriff which resulted as follows: Whole number of votes 300, of which C. Provided, That any person or corporation in his, her, or its own behalf, or as such fiduciary, shall be permitted to declare, under oath or affirmation, the form and manner of which shall be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, that he, she or his, her or its ward or beneficiary was not possessed of an income of $4,000, liable to be assessed and has paid an income tax elsewhere in the same year, under authority of the United States, upon all his, her or its income, gains, or profits, and upon all the income, gains, or profits for which clare that he, she or it, or his, her or its ward or beneficiary has been assessed and has paid an income tax elsewhere in the same year, under authority of the United States, upon all his, her or its income, gains, or profits, and upon all the income, gains or profits for which he, she or it is liable as such fiduciary, as prescribed by law; and if the collector or deputy collector shall be satisfied of the truth of the declaration, such person or corporation shall thereupon be exempt from income tax in the said district for that year; or if the list or return of any person or corporation, company or association shall have been increased by the collector or deputy collector, such person or corporation, company or association may be permitted to prove the amount of income liable to be assessed; but such proof shall not be considered as conclusive of the facts, and no deductions claimed in such cases shall be made or allowed until approved by the collector or deputy collector.

Any person or company, corporation or association feeling aggrieved by the decision of the collector of the district, and his decision thereon, unless reversed by the commissioner of internal revenue, shall be final. If dissatisfied with the decision of the collector such person or corporation, company or association may submit the case, with all the papers, to the commissioner of internal revenue, as herein prescribed. Such notice shall state the time and place at which, and the officer before whom the testimony will be taken; the name, ago, residence and business of the proposed witness, with the questions to be propounded to the witness or a brief statement of the substance of the testimony he is expected to give. Provided, that the government may at the same time and place take testimony of the witnesses examined by the person taxed.

The notice shall be delivered or mailed to the commissioner of internal revenue a sufficient number of days previous to the day fixed for taking the testimony to the vertices as to the cross examination the deposition or affidavlt.

Provided further, That no penalty shall be assessed upon any person or corporation, company or association for such neglect or refusal or for making or rendering a willfully false or fraudulent return, except after reasonable notice of the time and place of hearing, to be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue, so as to give the person charged an opportunity to be heard.

See, 57. That every corporation, company or association doing business for profit shall make and render to the collector of its collection district, on or before the first Monday of March in every year, beginning with the year 1995, a full return, verified by oath or affirmation, in such form as the commissioner of internal revenue may prescribe, of all the following matters for the whole calendar year last preceding the date of such return:

Books to Be Inspected.

Sec. 58. That it shall be the duty of every corporation, company or association doing business for profit, to keep full, regular and accurate books of account, upon which all its transactions shall be entered from day to day, in regular order, and whenever a collector or deputy collector of the district in which any corporation, company or association is assessable shall believe that a true and correct return of the income of such corporation, company or association has not been made, he shall make an affidavit of such belief and of the grounds on which it is founded, and file the same with the commissioner of internal revenue, and if said commissioner shall, on examination thereof, and after full bearing upon notice given to all parties, conclude there is good ground for such belief, he shall issue a request in writing to such corporation, company or association to permit an inspection of the books of such corporation, company or association to be made; and if such corporation, company or association to he made; and if such corporation company or association shall refuse to comply with such request, then the collector or deputy collector of the district shall make, from such information as he can obtain, an estimate of the amount of such income and then add 50 per cent thereto, which said assessment so made shall then be the lawful assessment of such income.

See. 59. That it shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue, to whom any payment of any taxes other than the tax represented by an adhesive stamp or other engraved stamp is made under the provisions of this act, to give to the person making such of internal revenue and if said commissioner

Sec. 60. The taxes on incomes herein imposed shall be due and payable on or before the first day of July in each year, and to any sum or sums annually due and unpaid after the first day of July as aforesaid, and for 10 days after notice and demand thereof by the collector, there shall be levied in addition thereto the sum of 5 per cent on the amount of taxes unpaid and interest at the rate of 1 per cent per month upon said tax from the time the same becomes due as a penalty, except from the estates of deceased, insane, or insolvent persons.

Sec. 61. Any nonresident may also receive the benefit of the exemptions hereinbefore provided for by filing with the deputy collector of any district a true list of all his property and source of income in the United States, and complying with the provisions of section 29 of this act, as if a resident. In computing income he shall include all income from every source, but unless he be a citizen of the United States he shall only pay on that part of the income which is derived from any source in the United States. In case such nonresident fails to file such statement, the collector of each district shall collect the tax on the income drived from property situated in his district subject to income tax, making no allowance for exemptions, and all property belonging to such nonresident shall be liable to distraint for tax; Provided, that nonresident corporations shall be subject to the same laws as to tax as resident corporations, and the collection of the tax shall be made in the same manner as provided for collections of taxes against nonresident presses. as provided for collections of taxes against nonresident persons.

Internal Revenue Stamps It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue, to whom any payment of any taxes other than the tax represented by an ad-hesive stamp or other engraved stamp is made under the provisions of this act, to give to the person making such payment a full written or printed receipt, expressing the amount paid and the particular account for which such payment was made, and whenever such payment is made such collector shall, if required, give a separate receipt for each tax paid by any debtor, on account of payments made to or to be made by him to separate creditors, in such form that such debtor can conveniently produce the same sep-arately to his several creditors in satisfaction of their respective demands to the amounts pecified in such receipts; and such receipts shall be sufficient evidence in favor of such debtor, to justify him in withholding the amount therein expressed from his next payment to his creditor, but such creditor may, upon giving to his debtor a full, written receipt, acknowledging the payment to him of whatever sum may be actually paid, and accepting the amount of tax paid as aforesaid (specifying the same), as a further satisfaction of the debt to that amount, require the sur-render to him of such collector's receipt.

Playing Cards. On and after Aug. 1, 1894, there shall be levied, collected and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of 2 cents for and upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than 54 cards, manufactured and sold or removed, and also upon every pack in the stock of any dealer on and after that date, and the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall make regulations as to dies and adhesive stamps.

Goods Made by Convict Labor. All goods, wares, articles and merchandise manufactured wholly or in part in any foreign country by convict labor shall not be ontitled to entry at any of the ports of the United States, and the importation thereof is hereby prohibited, and the secretary of the treasury is authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of this provision.

Imports of Cigars. Sec. 2,804 of the revised statutes is amended so as to read: "Sec. 2,804. No cigars shall be imported un-less the same are packed in boxes of not more less the same are packed in boxes of not more than 500 cigars in each box, and no entry of imported cigars shall be allowed of less quantity than 3,000 in a single package, and all cigars on importation shall be placed in public store or bonded warehouse, and shall not be removed therefrom until the same shall have been inspected and a stamp affixed to each box indicating such inspection, and also a serial number to be recorded in the custom house. And the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to provide the requisite stamps, and to make all necessary regulations for carrying the above provisions of the law into effect." Value of Fereign Coins.

Talue of Foreign Coins.

The value of foreign coins as expressed in the money of account of the United States shall be that of the pure metal of such coin of standard value, and the values of the standard coins in circulation of the various nations of the world shall be estimated quarterly by the director of the mint, and be proclaimed by the secretary of the treasury immediately after the passage of this act, and thereafter quarterly on the 1st day of January, April, July and October in each year. And the values so proclaimed shall be followed in estimating the value of all foreign merchandise exported to the United States during the quarter for which the value is proclaimed, and the date of the consular certification of any invoice shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered the date of exportation, provided that the secretary of the treasury may order the reliquidation of any entry at a different value whenever satisfactory evidence shall be produced to him showing that the value in United States curre.cy of the foreign money specified in the invoice was at the date of certification at least 10 per cent more or less than the value proclaimed during the quarter in which the consular certification occurred.

Among the open-air papers in the September HARPER'S MAGAZINE WILL be a description of "Early Summer in Japan," by Alfred Parsons, with eighteen illustrations.

The rapidly increasing circulation of Romance shows that lovers of good short stories appreciate the reduction of its price, and that they recognize its constantly improving literary quality. The September number offers ten admirable stories for a dime. Its special feature is a group of three Stories of Journalism. Several other stories equally good, make up a well-balanced and most interesting number. Romance is issued by Romance Publishing Company, Clinton Hall, Astor Place, New York; and a copy is sent for 10 cents.

Weekly Weather Report.

Late corn has improved in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and Maryland. The crop is maturing rapidly in Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri and Arkansas, and will soon be free from the danger of frests in the states named. Drouth continues in the New England and in the Middle, Atlantic states and generally throughout the Lake region and north-west, and rain is greatly needed in these sections for pusturage and to put the ground into condition Forest fires are reported from Michigan, Wisconsin and Montana, and in the last named state have caused much damage.

Mr. Julian Ralph is now on his way to the Orient, where he will make the HARPER'S WEEKLY and HARPER'S MAGAZINE studies of the topsy-turvy conditions that obtain upon the world's farther side. Upon his arrival in Japan he will quickly forward accounts of whatever he may witness of the war between that country and China, the gathering of the naval representatives of all Christenden, and of the peculiar scenes attendant upon the war. He will be met at Yokohamo by Mr. C. D. Weldon, the artist, who has long been familiar with Orental life, and who will co-operate with Mr. Ralph in this work.

CONTRACTOR STATES U. S. Weather Bulletin.

Late corn has improved in portions of Kansas, Missouri, and Ohio, and more encouraging reports are received from Indiana and Illinois. In Michigan much corn is past help and in Nebraska cutting for fodder is general. The reports for the southern states, except Kentucky, where corn is faring badly, continue favorable, and an unusually good crop in that section is now assured. Damaging effects from drouth are reported from New York. Maryland, Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas and Oklahoma, and rains are greatly needed in those States. | gists

The Keystone Company does not retail, but all jewelers sell the Boss and other Keystone cases.

Troubles That Never Came.

Some one has said: "I have been surrounded by troubles all my life long, but there is a curious thing about them-nine-tenth of them never happened!" quotes Mrs. Van Koert Schuyler in an earnest plea to women on "Living Beyond Their Strength" in the Settember Ladies' Home Journal. "I once heard a lady who wrote down in order the particular fears anxieties which were harassing her, inclosed the paper and sealed it, hoping by this kind of mechanical contrivance to be enabled in some sort to dismiss the subject from her mind. The paper was put away and forgotton. Several months later it came to light, when she found that not one of her fears therein set down had been realized, and the difficulties had been smoothed away before she came to the time to the time for their solution.
