Miss Della Stevens, of Boston, Mass., writes: "I have always suffered from Scrofula, for which I tried various remedies, but which I finally cured by using S.S.S. I am very grateful to you for the information that it saved me from a life of untold agony, and shall take pleasure in speaking only words of praise for the wonderful medicine, and in recommending it to all who are afflicted with it."

The Lansing State Republican announces that S. S. Olds is a candidate for U. S. Senator to succeed Hon. John Patton Jr.

Gov. McKinley has decided to accept the invitation of the republican committee of Louisiana and will deliver a speech at New Orleans on October 29.

Our editorial in last week's RECORD must have been something besides "intentional perversion," judging by the manner in which it has caused the gentlemanly (?) editor of the St. Joseph Press to squirm, in his issue of last Friday.

The issue of the South Bend Tribune of October 13, was designated as the "Woman's Edition." All the work on this particular issue was done by the ladies of the Relief Society. In the editorial column the fair editress states the situation in the following concise manner, (with no postscript added):

The men did not go fishing today. They have been hanging around the office all day. Suppose they thought we might need 'em, but we didn't. We have padded telegrams, read proof, clipped and out and slashed, made our own head lines, picked up news and received calls while they were saying, "You won't get the paper out on time. But we did, so we forgive them."

A special dispatch to the Detroit Tribune says, under date of Fall River, Mass., Oct. 12: "The striking spinners, at a special session today, voted to accept a reduction of ten per cent and return to work Monday."

GLENDORA.

From our Regular Correspondent.

We are having genuine fall weather just now. It makes one think of winter.

Some St. Joe parties are buying apples here making it quite convenient for the farmers to dispose of their crops which are quite large.

Miss Heinz, of Chicago, visited relatives here last week.

Johnny Painter is unusually happy. Cause, a bouncing boy.

Mrs. Hattie Miller moved out on the Chicago farm southwest of Galien last Saturday. She is to keep house for her brother who has charge of some of the farm work.

The Dunkards are holding a series of meetings at Wagner's school house. They are to hold communion services next Saturday evening.

Burton Morley, of Buchanan, gave a lecture at Hills Corners Saturday night.

NEW TROY.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Oct. 15, 1904.

A good hard freeze Sunday night, which will help to bring down the walnuts and butternuts, so the boys won't have to tear their pants climbing the trees.

There are several parties here who have large crops of potatoes, for which they are receiving good prices. Corn husking is also under way, and the crop is a good average in this township.

C. A. Curtis of Benton Harbor is building a large barn near this village, on his farm.

Everybody has a barrel of cider, and some have six or eight. The apples are cheap, but there are so many of them they are bringing in a good deal of money.

We haven't seen a candidate for office this fall, so far. Too much to do to talk politics.

THE POPE.

Prof. J. N. Foster opened the campaign in Galien, Tuesday evening, and a crowded house greeted him. Thirty years ago Prof. Foster taught school in this place.

The Tent of the Maccabees from New Troy came over to this place Wednesday evening, and administered the Oriental degree to the Tent here. A banquet was given them at the Town Hall, afterwards. "Burr".

THREE OAKS.

From our Regular Correspondent.

The Farmer's Club will hold its annual fair, at the residence of Judson Swain, Thursday, Oct. 18.

Many farmers in this vicinity are disposing of their cider apples to Chicago parties. Eight carloads have been shipped, thus far.

Rev. Frank Fox of Chicago preached a very interesting sermon, at the Congregational church, last Sunday morning.

The Woman's Missionary Society met at the Congregational church, Wednesday of this week, at 3 p. m. Gentlemen were invited to tea at 6:30, after which all joined in cracking "Missionary nuts."

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, but few were present at the teachers' reading circle, held in the High School room last Saturday at 3 p. m.

The Lee & Porter Axle Works at Buchanan are nearing completion, and will be in full operation in a few weeks. They have already booked an order from one of the largest carriage manufacturers in this country for their axles.—Dowagiac Tribune.

NEWS BRIEF.

The State Y. M. C. A. Convention was held at Ann Arbor this week.

Mary M. Ruff of Dowagiac has received a pension.

Dr. A. Conan Doyle, the celebrated novelist, arrived in New York, on a visit to America.

The State Convention of the Y. W. C. A. was held at Bay City, Friday, Saturday and Sunday last.

Warden Chas. F. Durston, Sing Sing prison, New York, died last Friday.

W. L. Newton of Cassopolis died Monday morning. He was taken ill Saturday night. He has been the M. C. agent at Cassopolis many years.

J. E. Beal, proprietor of the Weekly Courier at Ann Arbor issued the first number of a daily on Wednesday, Geo. B. Bond is editor.

Dr. L. C. Davis, one of the oldest settlers, died at Vassar, Mich., on Saturday. He had served in the State senate and was a prominent Democratic politician.

Detective Sutherland states that Knowles and Bodewig, two of the accused Grand Trunk wreckers, have confessed. Sutherland said Geo. W. Jondson, a switchman also accused, was arrested Monday.

Ex-Mayor William G. Thompson, of Detroit originally a Republican, later a Democrat and now again a Republican, was nominated Tuesday afternoon by the Republicans of the Second senatorial district for the state senate.

William Moran, alias Jones, Dryden, etc., held in the Cassopolis jail for forgery and noted as an all-around crook, sawed the lock to his cell and is gone. The escape occurred several days ago, but was suppressed until last Saturday.

Julius Lichtenberg, the school inspector whose trial for hoodluming was to commence in Detroit last Thursday morning, shot himself rather than face the ordeal, now lies in the hospital in a state of semi-stupor. It is believed he will not die immediately and, in fact, may recover.

The general term of the Supreme Court has revised the judgement for $25,000 obtained by William Laidlaw against Russell Sage for damages sustained by him from the dynamite explosion perpetrated by Henry A. Norcross in Sage's office two years ago, and has ordered a new trial.

About 1 o'clock Sunday morning fire destroyed the entire plant of the Plymouth Air Rifle Company, at Plymouth, Mich. Loss about $6,000; insured for $1,600 with the ZEMA at Hartford. Twenty men are thrown out of employment. The building being frame, the adjoining buildings were saved only by a stubborn fight. The fire was discovered in the boiler room.

Wool.

The lowest quotation for Michigan fine washed wool previous to March, 1898, when the McKinley bill was in full force, and before the present democratic administration had assumed control, was 20 and 22 cents per pound. The present value of the same grade of wool is 14 and 16 cents per pound. The existence of a democratic administration is a ruinous luxury to the farmers of Michigan. That which has to do with the value of wool is most decidedly a state issue. Remember this on the 6th day of November.

Continuance of Business Suspense.

Regardless of the plea of all American business interests that tariff changes are disastrous, especially a change which lowers and unsettles values in our own country, the leaders of the Democratic party now declare they have just begun their enjoyable labor of "tariff reform." This means a continuance of business suspense, a prolongation of the period of gloom and darkness of national distress, if the rule of the democratic party continues. Will this rule continue? Answer this question in the Michigan primary ballot on the 6th day of November next.

SIGNALING AT SEA.

MEANS OF COMMUNICATION BETWEEN SHIPS OF ALL NATIONS.

Origin of Marine Signals Buried in Obscurity—Lord Howe's Code of 20,000 Combinations With Four Flags—Farragut's Plain Square Blue Flag.

The use of signals between ships at sea must have originated with the formation of squadrons and fleets of boats or vessels sailing in company, and doubtless the first devices made use of were exceedingly crude, developing gradually with the lapse of time and evolution of naval architecture. The origin of marine signals is buried in obscurity, although it is stated that the ancients made use of columns and puffs of smoke to convey their ideas. It is well authenticated that the Greek and Persian fleets exchanged messages by means of their flags, and the same being conveyed to the losing or partly furling state of the material. Groups of men at arms, with shields and pennants affixed to lances, had certain significance. Flag signals had an existence in antiquity, and the first code of signals mentioned in the "Life of Oberon," which provides that a vessel desiring to tow or receive a pilot shall hoist her ensign.

The earliest authentic notice of a regular signal code used by the British navy is found in the fighting instructions for the English fleet fitted out under Queen Elizabeth in the expedition against Cadiz. The plain, red ensign of England appears to have been one of the earliest symbols made use of in maritime history for the double purpose of denoting the rank of the commanding officer and directing the conduct of the fleet, for we read that it was hoisted to the right or left as the admiral wished the vessels to engage in either direction.

The flags of the British navy were at one time severally on a red, white or blue field and were displayed from the top of the royal pole of the main, fore or mizzen mast, according to the rank of the admiral. This diversity of color has long been done away with. The white field, with the red St. George cross and the sinister upper corner occupied by the union, is now alone assigned to the reserve and the red to the mercantile navy.

An admiral displays his flag exclusively at the main truck, a vice admiral at the fore, a rear admiral at the mizzen.

The first flag of importance is the royal standard of Great Britain and Ireland, hoisted only when the king or queen is on board. The second is the admiral's flag, for the lord high admiral, the lord commissioner of the admiralty. This is emblazoned with an anchor argent, gorged in the arm with a coronet and a cable around the ring and fisted in a true lover's knot with the ends pendant. Thus it was carried by the Earl of Southampton in the reign of King Henry VII. The last time it was displayed afloat was on the occasion of Sir George Rooke commanding the combined fleet of England and Holland in 1708.

When a council of war is held at sea, if it be on board the admiral's ship, a flag is hung in the main shrouds; if the vice admiral's, on the fore shrouds, and if the rear admiral's on the mizzen shrouds.

Until 1862 there were no officers in the United States navy of higher rank than captain, except in 1859, when Charles Stewart was commissioned

"senior flag officer." On July 16, 1863, David F. Farragut was made a rear admiral, and the act provided for "the three senior rear admirals to wear a square blue flag at the mainmast head, the next tier at the foremast head and all others at the mizzen. It was with his plain, blue square flag at the mainmast head of the Hartford that Farragut passed the forts on the Mississippi and captured New Orleans. Farragut received his commission as Rear Admiral on the next morning on the hoisting of the colors his flag was run up for the first time at the main, when it was saluted by the whole squadron. This was the first salute ever received by Farragut. Subsequently Farragut carried his flag at the mizzen, as vice admiral it flew at the fore, and on July 26, 1866, as full admiral, it floated over the main.

When the president of the United States visits a man-of-war, the American ensign is hoisted at the main and remains until the distinguished guest takes his departure. The president also has a standard, consisting of the coat of arms of the United States on a blue field, and it was first displayed at the main by President Arthur on the presidential yacht Dispatch. The standard was adopted in 1852.

The secretary of the navy has a distinctive flag of blue, with a white anchor and four white stars. On July 4, 1890, five great American flags were displayed on the center of the dome of the national capitol, from the tholos and under the feet of the statue of Liberty. In 1781 a Mr. McArthur, who had been secretary to Admiral Lord Hood, derived a code of signals which was introduced into the British navy as Lord Howe's code in 1792. Four colors were used—red, blue, yellow and white—there being but two colors to each flag, and the code provided for 20,000 signals. The international code of signals was devised by the British government in 1856. The code is made up of one burgee, or swallowtailed flag, 18 square flags and five pennants. The signal book is divided into different topical headings by which the signals may be known at a great distance or in calms. As an example, two flag signals having a pennant uppermost are compass signals. Four flag signals having a pennant uppermost are spalling signals, or all most dangerous. Four flag signals having the square flag uppermost are names of merchant vessels.

From High Government Authority.

No authority of greater experience on food products exists than Dr. Henry A. Mott, of New York. Dr. Mott's wide experience as Government Chemist for the Indian Department, gave him exceptional opportunities to acquaint himself with the qualities and constituent parts of baking powders. He understands thoroughly the comparative value of every brand in the market, and has from time to time expressed his opinion thereof. On a recent careful re-examination and analysis he finds

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
superior to all others in strength, purity, and efficiency. Dr. Mott writes:—

"New York, March 20th, 1894.

I find Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder to be superior to all others, for the following reasons:—

- 1st. It liberates the greatest amount of leavening gas and is consequently more efficient.
- 2nd. The ingredients used in its preparation are of the purest character.
- 3rd. Its keeping qualities are excellent.
- 4th. On account of the purity of the materials and their relative proportions, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder must be considered the meum of perfection as regards wholesomeness and efficiency, and I say this having in mind certificates I have given several years ago respecting two other baking powders.

The reasons for the change in my opinion are based on the above facts and the new method adopted to prevent your baking powder from caking and deteriorating in strength.
