WANTING.

The new year has brought back the same old blooms, The daisies for the leas,

The bluebells sweet, and the cowslips' plumes
And the pale anemones,
And again with the golden fires of spring The woods and groves are bright, And the same old songs the blackbirds sing In the apple orchards white. And the dawns are bright and the eves are fair

And the dawns are oright and the eves are rain.
As ever in the days of old.
And the fragrant hawthorn scents the air.
And the gorse is of burnished gold.
And the wind has come ever the southern seas.
From shores where the nereids play. And as of old do the brigand bees On their clover blossoms stray. There's an amber sea in the faroff west,

Where the hills and the sunset meet, And the hymn of the throstle by its nest Is tender and clear and sweet. And I wait and watch, as in days of yore By the ivied trysting tree, But, ah, never, never, never more Can my sweethcart come to me!

> Mr. Saunders' farm lay next to the railroad, which wound like a great shining serpeut through the woods, the deep cut beyond the creek and across the swamp and on to Chicago, that wonderful city of which Jimmy never tired of hearing Charlie's descriptions.

But just now there was trouble in the great city-mobs and strikes and confusion and chaos almost. Every day the boys could hear Mr. Somers speak of the state of affairs to the gentlemen who were visiting him, and all agreed that there were to be terrible times unless the city was declared under martial law. And as the days went on and rumors of fires and killing and destruction floated out through the quiet countryside Charlie and Jimmy both became greatly interested in the news and plied their fathers with questions about the great

I'll be the mob and stop you." So Jimmy, with many a toot and snort and "chug chug," rushed here and there among the shrubbery, playing he was a train, while Charlie piled sticks on the track and flagged the train and stopped it with a smart green lantern from the stable until both boys were tired out. The sun had long since set, and the darkness was coming on went whistling down the road. As he came near the road Jimmy heard a strange sound. It was like the distant snarl and roar of the animals he remembered in the one circus he had attended in his life. He stopped for a moment to listen. The noise rose and died on the evening air, and mingled with it rose another sound like the clink of instruments against steel.

"That sounds as if somebody was hammering on the track," he said as he listened. But he was late and so hurried terically, "where is your father?". "I don't know," answered the boy. staring in dismay at his mother, who was pale and trembling.

"Oh, my child," she screamed, 'there's something wrong. Your father went over an hour ago down into the woods to find the stray lambs, and he never stays so late, and 10 or 15 minutes ago a crowd of yelling, cursing men swept by here like a cyclone and down into the woods, and father's there, and maybe they've killed him." "Hold on, mother," cried Jimmy. "Don't take on so. I'll run down to the edge of the woods and see what's up. Father's all right. What would they hurt him for, I'd like to know?"

Though he spoke so stoutly, the boy was frightened, but he ran as fast as he could toward the woods. He remembered the noise he had heard at the track and suddenly it rushed over him what it meant. "They're sympathizers of the strikers," he whispered as he tore across the field, "and they're tearing up the track, I'll bet."

When he reached the woods, he stole along as cantiously as possible toward the din and uproar, which every moment grew londer. Suddenly he saw

There were 50 at least, bareheaded, ragged, prying up the track with crow-bars—a frightful sight to a lonely little hoy creeping among the trees. The stray lambs, huddled together under a tree, were bleating in a frightened, helpless way. Jimmy felt sure his father must be near them, so, creeping on hands and knees now, the boy crawled slowly along and suddenly saw his father fied to a tree, watching the rioters completing their work of destruction. As Jimmy saw his father Mr. Saunders, turning his head, saw his son.

Jimmy was not 10 feet away from his father, while the mob was at least 40 feet away from both. "Jimmy," murmured his father,

"run, my boy, run! The New York special with soldiers! Run up the road and signal it! Never mind me, but save the train." With a half sob the boy crept back through the tall grass to the edge of the forest and then darted across the field toward the farmhouse like an arrow. His mother met him. "Don't stop me, mother," he gasped. "Father's alive, but the strikers have got him. You run to Mr. Somers' for help. I'm going to signal the special." Signal the special! Suddenly he stopped. What with? How could be, a little boy, stop a train before it reached the cut yonder? Ah, the red lantern, the despised, common thing he had sneered at that very day. Two minutes later this towheaded, freckled faced young hero was flying up the track, his red lantern lighted, his bare feet spurning the earth, panting, stumbling, sobbing, falling, up again and on, on.

A low rumble broke on his ear. The rails began singing under his feet. "It's coming!" he shrieked, and putting all his remaining strength into this last effort he dashed on a few rods farther. There came a great white light glowing at him like an angry eye, nearer and nearer, larger, brighter. Would they ever see him as he stood there, desperately gripping his red lantern and swinging it with both his tired little

At last! The engine gave a scream. I see you, Jimmy!" it seemed to cry to the poor child. Then a shiver ran through the long train. It groaned and stopped, the engine panting and sighing, at the feet of James Saunders, hero.

Do you suppose, if Jimmy lives to be 100 years old, he will ever forget that moment—the shouts, the questions, the excitement, the soldiers crowding around him, the glistening bayonets, the praise, the thanks, all the pride of the instant as he knew that he, a little prairie lad, had saved the special laden with Uncle Sam's troops?—Advance.

Coffee Drinking.

There are some persons who indulge to a considerable excess in coffee drinking, and many more who go to even accordingly been contended by some abstainers from these two substances that they are capable of generating a form of inebriety corresponding to etherism. Unquestionably intemperate tea and coffee drinking will give rise to serious mischief. The inordinate consumer of strong tea may become a dyspeptic wreck, a sleepless hypochondriac, with a decrepit nervous system, the victim of a deep, intense melancholy, with, in some cases, a snicidal tendency. The immoderate indulger in coffee, black and strong, may lose all appetite for healthy food, eat little, suffer from tremors, acute neuralgic and other pains, excessive thirst, agonizing headache and a feeling of intolerable dryness and heat. He may become pinched and emaciated, have a feeble circulation and a constant fear of falling, with a blurred vision, as if looking through light brownish media.

These, however, are the symptoms of tea and coffee poisoning. They bear witness, so to speak, to theine and caffeine intoxication, minus the anæsthesia and paralysis of alcoholic drunkenness. Dr. Kerr, in his practice, has never seen an uncontrollable craving for tea or coffee to which all natural affections and duties were subordinated. He is therefore unable to recognize these phases of excessive drinking as manifestations of narcomania, the disease which is characterized by an overpowering impulse to intoxication at all risks.—New York

Pope Leo's Beading. The pope's favorite poets are Virgil and Dante. He knows a great part of both by heart and takes pleasure in quoting them. When Father Michael, the apostolic prefect to Erithrea, was taking his leave with the other Franciscans who accompanied him to Africa, his holiness recited to them with great spirit Dante's canto upon St. Francis.

The pope reads the newspapers, pas sages of interest being marked for him by readers in order to save him time. He frequently writes letters to the bishops and encyclicals in a polished and Ciceronian style of Latin. The encyclicals are printed at the private press of the Vatican, an institution founded by him and furnished with all modern improvements. They are first published in The Osservatore Romano, the official daily paper of the Vatican, and then finally translated into Italian and other languages and sent out to the bishops abroad. . Leo XIII writes excellent verses, both in Latin and Italian, and likes to see and talk with men of letters as well as to read their works. Two years ago he requested Professor Brunelli of Perugia to buy for him the poetical works of the Abbe Zanella. The request is characteristic, for his holiness insisted upon paying for the book like any one else. - Marion Crawford in Century.

Masters of the World. Simple words, short maxims, homely truths, old sayings, are the masters of the world. Great reformations, great revolutions in society, great eras in human progress and improvement, start from good words, right words, sound words, spoken in the fitting time, and finding their way to human hearts as easily as the birds find their homes. D. March.

Huxay's Wife. When the Rattlesnake was in Sydney harbor, the officers were invited to a ball, and young Huxley among the number. There for the first time he met his future wife, whose parents resided at Sydney. A few days after they were engaged, and the ship sailed for the Tower straits to complete the survey of the north coast of Australia, all communication being cut off for months at a time, and then she returned direct to England. After that brief acquaintance (not, I believe, longer than a fortnight) it was seven years before the lovers saw one another. At the end of this time, on Huxley's appointment to the School of Mines, he was in a position to claim his bride and welcome her to their first home in St. John's Wood. He often used to say that to engage the affections of a young girl under these circumstances, knowing that he would have to leave her for an indefinite time, and with only the remotest prospect of ever marrying, was an act most strongly to be reprobated, and he often held it out as a warning to his children never to do anything of the kind, and yet they all married young and all happily. Huxlev's love at first sight and constancy during those seven long years of separation were richly rewarded, for it is impossible to imagine a pair more thoroughly suited. - North American

The Fighting Swiss.

The year 1512 saw the Swiss mercenaies at the zenith of their power, when waving Austria and France alike away from Milan, they installed therein the ruler of their own choice. In the same year they met the Landsknechts at the passage of the Oglio and Ticino, and, fording the rivers stark naked, beat them back without waiting even to dress themselves. A few months later they showed oven more magnificent insolence when besieged by the French in Novara; throwing the gates open, they begged the enemy not to be at the pains of making a breach, but to walk straight in, "Donnez-vous donc la peine d'entrer." The French made no reply, except to hammer away with their artillery, whereupon the Swiss mockingly hung the breaches with sheets as sufficient protection against so feeble a foe. Shortly after arrived re-enforcements from Switzerland, which, without pausing to rest more than an hour after a long and harried march, dashed out in disorder against the encompassing troops and dispersed them with terrible loss. "If we could only reckon upon obedience in our men," said the Swiss leaders, "we should march through the whole of France."-Macmillan's Maga-

Hitchcock-Wilmot.

The Anglo-Saxon suffixes "kin" and "cock" were used as diminutive or enas the Normans used the suffixes "et," 'ot,''"en" and "on." Thus from Hitch. itself a diminutive of Richard, we get the surnames Hitchkin, Hitchcock, Hitchens and Hitchison. Any common baptismal name affords a number of such variants, which became fixed as patronymics or surnames. There are, for example, at least 15 different forms of William available for that purpose. Vegetarians Use Fleshly Names. Vegetarian restaurants are by degrees giving up the use of such titles for their dishes as convey the idea of a meat diet, but they still find the word "steak" indispensable. Otherwise their bill of fare is much improved and of a more inviting character than it used to be. "Indian broth" reads well on a cold December day, and "braised onion with tomatoes" appeals to many. But what is "vegetable turkey?" It seems to be rather a confession of weakness to be dependent on the animal world for names wherewith to invest the various preparations of vegetables, cereals and fruits. To America they owe many forms of succulent and tempting food, such as fried corn, maize with plums and pineapple pudding made from the tinned fruit. The use of cheese, forbidden by some of the strictest followers of vegetarianism, enables the caterers to offer such savory dishes as welsh rabbit, cheese fritters and custards, and the odors that are emitted are of the most savory and appetizing description. -London News.

An Error About Cats.

An error about cats, and a truly vulgar one, is that they lie on young children's breasts and suck their breath or suffocate them. Cats like to lie on the breast of a person they love, and are apt to show their happiness by now and then lifting their heads for a kiss or gently touching the face or neck above them with their paw; this sort of patting or stroking a beloved cheek or throat is one of the more human habits which dogs have not. Seeing one of our cats lying on her master's chest when he was asleep on the sofa, I understood how the notion had taken root; then, too, cats are luxurious and fond of warmth, and may sometimes share a baby's crib or cradle for that reason, as dogs certainly do.—Temple Bar.

The "Wacht Am Rhein." Of the martial songs more particularly connected with the various periods of storm and stress in Germany, one of the most celebrated is that of the Rhine, composed by Becker, and answered by Alfred de Musset in other well known verses. The "Wacht am Rhein," by Max Schneckenburger, was composed about the same period as the Rhine song, but attained its widest popularity during the war of 1870. Unlike Becker's song, it cannot boast of having been set to music by 70 composers.

The patriotic song of "Deutschland, Deutschland uber Alles" was the work of the popular writer, poet, philologist and historian August Hoffmann, who was born at Fallersleben in the year 1798. For a time we find him acting as librarian and later as professor at the University of Breslau, but the liberal tendency of some of his writings caused him, in 1838, to be deprived of his professorial chair. For many years he was librarian to the Duke of Ratibor, and died in this sheltered post in 1874. The German national authem, "Heil Dir im Siegerkranz," was written originally for the birthday of Christian VII, king of Denmark, by a Holstein clergyman. The words were written to the air of "God-Save the King" in 1790, and a few years later were modified for Prussian use.—Chambers' Journal.

Where Moslems Are Most Numerous Far in advance of any other nation in the number of the Moslems under its rule is Great Britain. In India alone there are about 60,000,000 Mohammedans, and they outnumber all the subjects of the sultan more than two to one. Besides, England rules Mohammedans in other parts of her vast empire, though not many in any one place. The queen is the sovereign of many millions more Moslems than Christians.

country inhabited by many followers of the prophet. The number of Mohammedans in the Chinese empire is estimated all the way from 30,000,000 to 50,000,-000, and the smallest of the guesses is more than Turkey can match. Holland also has nearly or quite 30,000,000 Moslem subjects in her populous and rich East Indian possessions. Java has fully 25,000,000 people, and nearly all of them are Mohammedaus. The Turkish empire is supposed to contain about 23,000,000 Moslems,

China is believed to come next as a counting the portion of Arabia in which the authority of the sultan is not very well established and is in danger of being destroyed at any time. Therefore it is apparent that unless great error has been made in estimating the number of Mohammedans in the Chinese empire the sultan is only fourth among rulers of great bodies of men and women who believe in Mohammed.

But among other countries which are dominated by the Moslem element of their population and are under the sway of a Mohammedan ruler the Turkish empire is easily first in numbers and in power for evil. - Cleveland Leader.

The Danger of Silence. I once had a case (said a member of the bar) against a man in the country which was as clear as daylight in my favor, but, by the cunning of his lawver, he had continued to avoid coming to trial for about two years. At last the case was called, late in the term and late in a hot day, the court and jury tired and impatient. I stated the facts and produced the evidence, which was all on my side. The judge asked the counsel whether they wished to argue the case, stating that he hardly thought it necessary to submit it in so plain a matter. The lawyers agreed to submit it without argument. The jury went out and immediately returned with a verdict for the defendant. As soon as the court adjourned I sought the foreman of the jury, and asked him how in the name of common sense they came to render such a ver-

"Why, you see," said he, "we didn't think much of the lawyer against you, and it wasn't strange he didn't have nothing to say; but, squire, the fact is we thought you was about one of the smartest lawyers in the country, and if you couldn't find nothing to say on your side it must be a pretty hard case, so we had to go against you."-Pearson's

Weekly. Close Shave With a Leopard. I walked a little nearer the edge of the ledge to listen if I could hear anything in the gap, as we could not tell where the dogs or the leopard had got to. I heard a slight rustle below, whether in the bush or on the ledge I could not tell, and there was no time to find out, for with a rush and a bound the leopard threw himself against the krantz, clutching at the grass roots on top with the claws of one fore paw—the other was broken just above the wristand I could hear his hind claws scraping on the rocks in his endeavors to scramble up. I knew that he was very close to me. His great blood smeared paws were within six feet, and I could see his wicked yellow eyes glaring savagely and the saliva, red tinged, dropping from the gleaming tusks.

As Nogwaja ran in with uplifted assegai I fired down into the brute's mouth, and with a savage gasp he fell down on to the ledge below. The plucky Swazi, without waiting to see if he was dead, jumped down on top of him and gave him a final thrust with his assegai ere life had sped.—Kirby.

"I never will forget the queer incidents and experiences I had when I first bought a typewriter and sent out in print my correspondence and bills to my customers who lived in the rustic regions about me," said a merchant from a backwoods town. "Several of my patrons dropped me, and I was at a loss to account for their manner, which changed toward me. At last the mystery was solved. A burly young farmer drove up to the store, tied up his exen and stalked into my office.

"'Mr. Blank,' said he, 'I'd have you know that I know how to read writin, and you don't have to print your letters and bills when you send them to me. I don't propose to be insulted in such a manuer. 1

Kinglake and The Times.

It was Kinglake who uttered one of the neatest of mots on the peculiar character of the London Times. He had little fondness for that journal in spite of personal friendships which might have been expected to soften his view of the question. The paper was still to him a sort of Juggernaut, irresistible and fateful. On seeing an announcement of the new editor's marriage he exclaimed: 'Heavens! That brings The Times into elations with humanity."

She Was Needlessly Excited. Years ago, journeying with my husband in Italy, we were on one occasion sole occupants of the railway compartment. Stopping at Padua, a suspicious looking person outered the carriage, placing himself on the opposite seat with my husband, while I sat opposite them and diagonally from the newcomer. My opinion of Italians, acquired from the reading of romance, was that they were mostly brigands or robbers. Here was one of the type. While I fastened my gaze upon his sinister countenance, what was my horror to see him stealthily draw a stiletto from his pocket and lay it by his side. I coughed-my husband ignored it. Then I placed my foot upon his, which he drew away, annoyed. Cold chills seized me. We had watches and money. People had been murdered for less. I feared to speak. French, German, even English, the man might know. My husband spoke Dutch. Would that I could have imparted my fears in that tongue! There was little danger of the highwayman's knowing it.

While I contemplated jumping from the window Mr. S--- was calmly view-

Sunday School Convention.

Oreneko township held its arrual Sunday School Convention in the M. E church at Berrien Syruge, Thursday Friday, Jan. 30 and 31. It was well attended, some 900 people being present, Thursday evening, to listen to the address by the Field Scerelary, Rev. O. J. Roberts. The attendance during the day session was also large, Oronoko township reports eight schools, with promise of another No district is unreached by Sabbath school. The program was a good one; practical questions were discussed. The Field Secretary gave special instruction in the method of grading schools, and in other special departments. The Normal clast, taught by Rev. L. O. Oyler, is deing good work. Mr. W. Harmon was selected President, and Mr Frank Zerby, Secretary.

Watervliet township held its Suday School Convention at Coloma, Saturday, Feb. 8. It was a good, enthusiastic meeting and well attended. Mr. R. B. Gregg is the very efficient Presidnt

At this meeting the township of Hagar was organized in the S nday school work, in union with Waterviiet, There are eight schools in the township of Watervillet, and no district not rea hed.

The Field Secretary was present, and conducted a Normal drill and gaye an address. The outlook of the work in this part of Berrien county is very encouraging. flie schools are adopting modern metaeds, and pushing on to the "front line."

The Sunday school work in Berrien county in Berrien courty is now in a very encouraging cordinor. So much so that the Field S cae ary is surprised, from week to week, at the good Marcs Special attention is bling given in many schools and townships to Princery work, graded schools, sup; knowted lessons and normal classes. Beston Harbor has a normal class; also Berrien Springs and Buchtran. Tiere's a spirit abroad prompting to better work, better methods and no redefinite results. Van Baren and Cass counties are also in the free line in Sunday school work. The District Convention is to be held at Civital Springs, as last year, and the Committee in charge are beginning to mature p'ans for a good meeting. The Feld Secretary for Bertien county is planning to attend at least one contenti n in each township, and is also plus ning to have every township in the county organized and hold a convention, before June 1, 1890 He is also planning to have a fine Sunday school mop of the county prepared, showing the exact location of every school. We may not take any prize, but we are doing some hustling, just the same.

The Union Normal class met at Mr. N. H. Culver's on Friday, the 7.h, and spent an hour or more in the study of the lesson for Feb. 9, the teacher, O. J. Roberts, first reading the lesson, making a running comment upon it, then giving a general analysis, using a large chart. The class expressed themseives as well pleased with the work of the hour. Regular meetings will be held, hereafter, on Fridays at 3:25 p. m., prompt, at Second street school building. All are cordially invited. No one need stay away, for any reason

We are very glad to know that the Normal class idea is spreading in Berrien county. The M. E. Sunday school of Buchanan has a Normal class, under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Dana Phelps, whom we remember as one of the most faithful and enthusiastic number of our Normal class. Rev. L O. Oyler of Berrien Springs stated to us, a few days ago, that his Normal class now numbered twenty; had taken the first quarterly examination, and were very much interested. Let the good work go on.

The report of our annual convention, as given by our very efficient Secretary, Miss Beardsley, was very full and complete. From our point of view, it was a good convention. We were serry that our Bertrand friends did not come over, and we were also sorry that some schools in our own village found it mere convenient to stay away. Never heless, the convention was a good one, and these who stayed away were

We very carelessly omitted to state that the excellent paper on Primary work, which appeared in this column recently, was written by Mrs. J. D Greenamyer of Niles. She presented it at the County Convention, and it was also read at the December meeting of the Buchanan Primary Union. We are sorry to learn that our genial friend, Mr. A. H. Cross, of the Sun-Marie; my brains are all the fortune I day School Advance, is to leave the state, having been chosen Assistant Secretary of the Ohio Sunday School Association,

Jimmy Saunders picked up the despised lantern and went out to the barn with it. His father had just returned from the town with a few purchases for the family and among them this lantern, which was not up to Jimmy's ideas of lanterns. He wanted one with a bright green light and nickel trimmings like the one used at Mr. Somers' stables. Charlie Somers said they were much nicer than red lanterns, which were common looking and only used by railroad men. And what Charlie Somers said was law to Jimmy Saunders. Charlie lived in Chicago during the winter and only spent his vacations out in Indiana on his father's handsome country place. So, of course, being the son of a rich man and a dweller in the cities, his word had a great weight with boring town of Dexter.

"There's all sorts of news-the worst goings on in Chicago ever you heard of," answered his father. "And Dexter, too, is full of a crowd that's threatening to burn the depot. They've overturned a lot of freight cars and upset things generally around the station. I heard folks saying that soldiers are coming from New York some time tonight to re-enforce the troops in Chicago, and they were making threats that they shouldn't Philip T. Colgrove of Hastings has announced himself as a willing successor to Dr. H. F. Thomas of Allegan, as Congressman from the Fourth District.

R. G. Dunn & Co's Weekly says.

The wonderful success of the popular loan alters the face of events. January operations become ancient history. as the nation mounts above all doubts and fears to a solid certainty that the people can and will uphold their government. The Morgan syndicate, bidding over $6,000,000 more than it ment in Conkey's hall Feb. 19, under would have paid at the rate of a year ago gets only about half of the issue. and a considerable part at higher figures, possible almost half, goes to the multitude of individual investors represented by bands throughout the country. Had the Morgan syndicate no bid, the Stewart syndicate would have taken the balance at price nearly as good. With $568,000,000 bid by 4,090 banks or persons, the tremendous strength of the national credit is demtrated as it has not been many years. The influence of this event upon all manufathring and all trade cannot be lightly estimated. It strips the silver agitation of all its power to hurt. The members of the graduating class of the Buchanan High School were greatly wrought up by the announcement made to them last week of the action taken by the school board by reason of which the participants in the graduating exercises would be limited to the eight pupils standing highest by their monthly class reports. The class numbered 16 and the pupils felt that it would have been better to have made them acquainted at the beginning of the year with this determination of the board to limit the exercises. As soon as the board were aware of the dissatisfaction a meeting was called and a committee from the senior class requested to be present. The meeting occurred last night and the committee consisting of Misses Woodbridge, Light and Scott, with Messrs Geo Conradt and Clyde De Vinney presented a petition from the class requesting the board to rescind their former action. On motion of Trustee Knight seconded by N. H. Culver it was resolved that the entire graduating exercises should not occupy to exceed 212 hours, and that each member of the class would be permitted to present an essay or oration net to exceed five minutes time in delivery. Also that the board determine before another school year began how many essays and orations would be placed on the programme and announce manner of determining the successful pupils, at the commencement of the term.

The State Analyst's report to commissioner C.E. Storrs has the following. The matter of cheap substitutes for certain articles is one which shows the extent to which certain parties will go in the endeavor to get something for nothing, and it also shows a measure of success that is surprising. The markets are filled with so called substitutes for coffee which with flaming advertisements and catching labels with printed matter claiming an immense food value for the article, deceive very many. Two samples of this class have been examined: "Postum Cereal" and "Rye-O," and the analysis shows how much real truth there is in the claim made by the manufacturers. "Postum Cereal" is roasted barley, probably malted. The package costing iften cents contains ten ounces of the barley, worth in the market probably one cent per pound. Prepared exactly according to the printed directions, it shows fifty one per cent of soluble matter; that is in a package containing ten ounces there is a trifle over five ounces of food value. In a barley market you can buy for one-third of a cent what together with the package bearing the printed directions and other printed matter, costs afteen cents in a grocery store. Or in other words what is really worth one cent may be bought for the extremely low price of forty-five cents.

"Rye-O" has a still smaller food value containing thirty-three per cent Its cost to the consumer is twenty-five cents for eighteen ounces or nearly seventy-five cents for one cent of value. It is said 'The American people like to be humbugged," but it would hardly seem possible that their liking goes so far as to induce them to pay so exorbitant a price for it. These are but two of an ever increasng number of articles of this class. If a substitute for coffee is desirable, any reasonably intelligent house keeper can produce from almost any of the cereals at a cost not worth counting. an article equal in value to any of those on sale. About all the knowledge required is to know when to discontinue the roasting process. In reality the buyer pays one cent of the total pr ce for food and the balance for the package, labe s, advertising matter and as profit to the manufacturer. What is true of coffee substitutes is more than likely to prove true of the so called substitutes for other articles of food

Michigan Crop Report. The weather during January was fairly favorable for wheat. The ground was not at all times entirely covered with snow, but when it was not covered the temperature ranged high and no material damage was done. In reply to the question "Has wheat during January suffered injury from any cause?" 71 correspondents in the southern counties answer "Yes" and 440 "No": in the central counties 28 correspondents answer "Yes" and 150

In answer to the question "Has the ground been well covered with snow during the mouth?" about one-half of the correspondents in the southern counties, two-thirds in the central, and nearly all in the northern answer

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in January is 664,102, and in the six months August-January, 5,993,826. The amount marketed in January is 397,736 bushels less than reported marketed in January, 1895, and the amount marketed in the six months, August January, is 1.303,115 bushels less than reported marketed in the same months last year.

At 37 elevators and mills from which reports have been received there was no wheat marketed during January. The condition of live stock ranges from 92 to 97 per cent, comparison being with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition. ACROSS THE DELAWARE.

The winter night is cold and drear,
Along the river's sullen flow;
The cruel frost is camping here—
The air has flying blades of snow,
Look! pushing from the icy strand,
With ensigns freezing in the air,
There sails a small but mighty band,
Across the dang'rous Delaware.

O wherefore, soldiers, would you fight The bayonets of a winter storm? In truth, it were a better night,
For blazing fire, and blankets warm!
We seek to trap a foreign foe,
Who fill themselves with stolen fare;
We carry Freedom as we go Across the storm-swept Delaware!

The night is full of lusty cheer, Within the Hessian's merry camp;
And faint and fainter on the ear,
Doth fall the heedless sentry's tramp.
O hirelings, this new nation's rage
Is something 'tis not well to dare;
You are not fitted to engage
These men from o'er the Delaware!

A rush—a shout—a clarion call,
Salute the early morning's gray;
Now, roused invaders, yield or fall;
The refuge-land has won the day!
Soon shall the glorious news be hurled Wherever men have wrongs to bear;
For Freedom's torch illumes the world,
And God has crossed the Delaware! -WILL CARLETON in Every Where for February.

LITERARY NOTES.

LITERARY NOTES.

The March number of The Deliniator is especially valuable and interesting because of the early forecast it contains of Spring and Summer Styles and Materials for Ladies, Misses and Children. The first of a series of articles on current events of interest to women, by Mrs. Frederic Rhinelander Jones, appears in this number. Mrs. Oliver Bell Bunce contributes an instructive article on Perfumes and other Toilet Preparations; Lucia Gilbert Runkle brings to the discussion of Literature as a profession for women the authority of acknowledged celebrity as a writer, while Tillie Roome Littell has a bright and helpful description of some new and pretty luncheon and German favors in silk and other materials. "Mam' Julie," an amusing and pathetic dialect sketch of Southern life, introduces a new writer to the readers of this Magazine. In the domain of the kitchen the number is freighted with good things: Mrs. A. B. Longstreet writes upon the Chemistry of Foods; Helen Combes tells about an English High Tea and the dishes prepared for it, and the regular article on Seasongble Cookery deals with the chafing dish and dishes to be prepared in it. Other features include the second paper on the Grap of the Teeth, Edna Withgrapoon's Tea-Table Chat, Sara Miller Kirby's Kindergarten paper, the usual no tices of new books and the novelties in lace-making, knitting, tatting, crocheting, etc.

"The Anglo-American Imbroglio" serves as the "The Anglo-American Imbroglio" serves as the caption under which two most important articles open the February number of the North American Review. The first is epitied "The Venezuelan Difficulty," by Andrew Carnegie, and the second "The British Feeling," by the Hight Hon. James Bryce, the distinguished author of "The American Commonwealth," These two articles, from so eminent sources, characteristically describe the sentiment pervading England and America respectively over the subject of the boundary dispute between the former country and the South American republic.

Lord Russell of Killowea, who has risen to the great dignity of Lord Chief Justice of England by distinguished merit as a lawyer, has written for The Companion of February 13th a striking paper on "The Bar as a Profession." This paper is marked by the strength and clearness of statement which made the author, when he was plain Mr. Charles Russell, a leader of the bar.

Of eloquency Lord Russell says: "The desirable thing is to have something to say; and as to the manner of saying it, panie! Webster spoke truly in his celebrated oration in hopor of John Adams when he said, 'Clearness, force and carnestness are the qualities which produce conviction." Regarding the protession for its own sake, and physical health to endure its trials, clear-headed common sense and ability to wait are the main considerations to be taken into account in determining a choice of the bar as a profession. If the youthful aspirant possesses these, success is, humanely speaking, certain. He has ression. If the youthful aspirant possesses these, success is, humanely speaking, certain. He has to remember that while he is fighting for the interests of his client, there are other interests even greater than these; the interests of truth and honor; and he must never forget, as Sir Alexander Cockburn well expressed it, that in the battle his weapon must always be the sword of the soldier, and never the dagger of the assassin."

One of the noted spots on the Island of Oahu, is the Pali. Every tourist to the Island visits this historic and picturesque place. The Pali, or pass, which is the only road by which trav-elers can cross the islands, passes over the brink of a precipice one thousand feet above the level of the sea. From this narrow Pali, not wide enough for two wagons to pass, one can see the ocean on both sides of the islands. The view is perhaps unexcelled from any other point in the world. From Honolulu there is a broad well-beaten read leading up to the Pali. Tourists go up in corriages or on horseback. I lecided to make the journey on horseback, and so, mounted on a tough little tered through the town, Monka, on toward the mountains. It was a delightful morning. A gentle breeze was blowing, though my guide assured me it would be hot enough before we returned. "Leave your vest at home," he ad-

other, for that matter" Our coats were light summer ulsters, such as are worn in July and August. While cantering down the street we sometimes glanced into the open doors. The houses usually have a deserted appearance, as the inmates prefer the cool lanal to the parlor. But, as we passed one house, we saw a lady at the elephone gossiping with some lady riend at a distant part of the island. "She has gone visiting," my guide explained. "Perhaps there is no place in the world where the tel-phone is used so much as it is here. Why, the women will ask 'Central' the time of day rather than go in the next room and look at the clock. They often ask 'Central' if is raining, instead of lo king out to see. 'Central' is the most over-worked person on the island." The telephone system on Oahu is perhaps the most complete in the world. Every part of the island is reached by telephone, and up every rugged mountain path the wires are

It is a long ride through the suburbs of the city, dotted with pretty little homes, adorned as only tropical homes are. Bright eyes and cherry faces met us on every side. Some people were busy in their gardens or lawns, but most of the places seem temporarily deserted. Honolulu, like all cities of the tropics, has a general air of listless repose. The most industrious people seem to be the Chinese. At all hours of the day and even late into the night these little people may be seen carrying loads large enough to make a mule stagger. Really, the Chinaman is the most cosmopolitan person one with except Americans. wears all sorts of costmues, from his native Oriental garb to the white ducking of a tropical dude. He sells shoes, makes shoes and clothes, works in every sort of factory, stands in every sort of store, is on every plantation, is ever kind of servant. does every kind of business, walks, rows boats, rides in carriages, carts, on mules and bicycles, in fact he is met everywhere, and under all conditions and circums!ances. Passing fine apple ranches, tara patches, and banana fields, we at last struck the main road. "From here we go up-hill every foot," my guide explained, as he drew in his horse, panting from the recent gallop. On our right, just on a rising elevation, was a veritable palace. An avenue of palms led from the main road back up to one of the neat little gottages some distance in the background. then winding and turning until it was lost to view in the dense tropical foliage. After extending a long distance monntainward, it again came into view and extended down to the main road. This avenue of palms was wide enough for a broad carriage drive. The houses soon became fewer and of a meaner sort. "These are mostly inhabited by Kanakas," said my guide. "Over on our right, if it were not for that grove of algerobas, you could see the grass houses of the natives. "Do many of them still live in grass houses?"

"Not many. Some, however, piefer grass houses yet to houses of wood." "Why?"

"Because they say mosquitoes won" bother one in a grass house." "I would be willing to live in any sort of a house to be free of the Hawaiian mosquitoes," I answered. "Of all the pests I ever met with, they are the worst." "There are no native Hawaiian musquitoes," he answered. "Do you mean to say the mosquito is not indigenous to the soil?" "There are not." "Then how did they get here?"

"They are imported."
'Imported? Why the government ought to have had a protective tariff as high as the skies against such importations."

"Well, you may think this a fish story, but it's true. Mosquitoes were imported. Whaling vessels in coming to the islands brought water from the mosquito countries for drinking purposes, and a family of the most active mesquitoes made their escape to the islands."

This story of the importation of mosquitoes I subsequently had verified. There have been many obnoxious insects and animals imported to the islands, among them the mongoose, imported to catch the ra's, but has made a war of extermination on the chickens, ducks, and all fowls. Toads are being imported to distory obnoxious bugs, and the national entomologist is studying all injurious insects, and the methods by which they may be destroyed. When we had ascended the rad about two miles, we drew rein on a level spot, and looked back to catch a view of the city and bay. Honololu lay among the trees like a pearl in an oyster shell, and the streets seemed mere threads, in the distance, while the bay looked like a crystal mirror with the ships 1, lng quietly at anchor. The beauty of the situation from this elevation is worth going twice the distance to see, We were now on a higher plain gave ered with grass, save where there were clusters of algerobas or small fields. Growing along the fence I recognized some old enemies that I used to encounter on the farm, when a boy, the cockle burrs. Notwithstanding the toria almanac each year, and are recockle burr and taking up a collection ar features in the country.

As we walked our horses up a steep incline, or galloped over a level plain, we met some odd and interesting peo-ple. A long caravan of pack mules was seen coming down the road from the mountain. They were loaded with bags of rice. It astonishing the amount Alva Sherwood now steps high.

one before and one behind. The caravans usually contained eight or twelve pack-mules, all tied together; the Chinaman in front leading the first mul-, and a Chinam in the re rl shing the Flowers in wild profusion bloomed along the way; natu e has done for this mountain road what the most skilful gardener might envy. Just i clow the reservoir we came upon some native women washing. Their method was peculiar; water was in a sort of stone basin, and they wre kneeling with their bare knees on the stony earth, dipping the clothing into the water and rubbing it on a stone. The reservoir which supplies Hon s lulu with water to fed from the mountain streams, of which there are many, A large board is placed up near the reservoir, on which is the order of the Minister of the Interior, in both English and Hawaiian, warning peop'e to neither fish, wash, nor bathe in the waters above that point. Crossing the bridge over the reservoir from a short distance, we found the ascent less steep. Wild guava trees grew in abundance along the road, some having ripe freit on them, which we ate and found delicious. The famous guave j-llies are made of this

One of the most picture que a d novel sights on the road was a Chinaman moving. He had his shoulder-pole on his shoulder, on one end of which was his valise tegether with his hous hold and kitchen furniture. On the other end was his live stock, consisting of chickens in a large gunny sack, holes being cut in the bag for chickens to put their heads through. This little fellow had come over the Pali and was going to Honolulu, carrying all his earthly possessions on that pole. "It is nothing for them to carry two hundred pounds twelve or fifteen miles," said my guide. "They are tougher than mules.' We crossel some of the plains made famous by the great battles faught by Kamehameha the Great, and, reaching a plateau, halted at the half-way house to get a drink of water and allow our horses drink and rest Half a mile or more beyond we met a Japanese family of wanderers. The father of the family was carrying a pole on his shoulder with the household goods on cash end, and the mother who bad taken off those silly, short wooden sandals and was going barefoot, had a baby lashed on her back, anp two or three were walking. At the sight of us. the mother's womanly pride asserted itself, and she stopped and put on her ridiculously small sandals, and came on limping like a crip-

During the entire journey we did not meet a single white person. Wan dering Chinese and Japanese without any home, or going to the markets were the only persons, save the natives, living along the road-ide. At last the Pali was reached. The path winds along the pass between two mountains through which the wind sweeps down with such terrific force as to sometime almost take one from his feet. The view from the Pali is sublime. On one side may be seen the sea, with Honotulu looking like a speck in the distance; on the other are the plantations and houses looking also like mere specks in the dim distance, with the dark blue sea in the background. Gigantic, grim, and silent as the sphinx, stands the frowning cliffs on the right, and on the left a sharp cone-like ridge extends so far away that it is lost in the distance, with the only possible place of crossing the island is at the Pali. One cannot but admire the military genius of Kamehameha in securing this pass. It was the Thermopy a of Kalanikupule, the last Oahuan chief. Here was fought the great battle which made Kamehameha, the Hawaiian Nap leon, master of all the islands. Before the battle, Kamehameha, with a fleet of war canoes and one schooner and some artillery, appeared off Oahu and landed at Waialæ Bay, and, after a few days spent in arranging his men, he marched at Nunana Valley, where Kalanikupule had posted his forces. Kamehameha had a good general in an American named John Young, whose descendents may still be found on the islands. There were several Americans in his army, and their skill with artillery gained Kamehameha his victories. He encountered the enemy at Laimi and Puiwa, where the Oahu troops made a braye resi tance until Kaiana, t eir leader was killed by a cannon ball, when they gave way, They were closely pursued up the valley, some escaping up the ridges on either side, while others were hemmed in and driven over the Nuuanu Pali, or precipice north of the toad, and dashed to death on the rocks. Their bones may still be found among the bare jungles or algeroba forests one thousand feet below. Kalanikupule wandered for several months in the Koolan Mountains until he was finaly captured in a cave above Waipio, brought down and offered in sacrifice to the conquerors' war god at Moanahua. The Pali looks like the ga'e between two fairy lands. It is a pass that could be made impregnable. A few hundred could hold an army of thousands at bay. On the east side, oppcsite Horolulu, the decent is very steep and rocky. Two o: three hundred feet below the top a spring gushes out from the rocks, falls into a pocket very inviting to the thirsty traveler. The road is traversed almost continually by the energetic Chinamen, the wandering Japs, and the tourists who are loud in their praise of its beauty and grandeur.

PROFITABLE STORIES. No. 1. CASTORIA.

Among the men who have graduated in high honors in the proprietary medicine business we must surely number Charles H. Fletcher, the president and general manager of the Centaur Company, the manufacturers of the world-renowned "Castoria." Mr. Fletcher attained his special knowledge under Demas Barnes, whose name was well-known some decades ago as his modern followers are today. Mr. Barnes was a man of great ability and wonderful energy, and he had the happy faculty of securing a class of men who were able to carry out his place. Mr. Fletcher organized the Centaur Company in 1870 and put for ward Centaur Liniment, Weideman's Gatarrh Cure and a number of other preparations. They could hardly be considered as pronounced suc esses, and the Company finally concentrated all its energies on pushing Castoria.
The work-was done very thoroughly and systematically, but it required a number of years and the exp nd ture of a large amount of money to fully establish it upon the marke. Mr. Fletcher's interest in and attention to the business of the Con pany is just as thorough as before the go de became so popular. The reporter of the Call was particularly charmed with the e sy cordiality of the man, and the smoothly working office machinery under his personal supervision. He is assisted in the advertising mericanism of the Hawaiians, the cockle burr and taking up a collection in church were the only really familiately. Of this a very great proportion is expended in daily newspapers.—San Francisco Oali.

ROADS OF TASMANIA.

They Are the Product of Convict Labor and Are Built to Last. Tasmania, an island a couple of hundred miles to the south of Australia, is generally remembered in connection with the old days when it was used by England as a penal settlement, writes a correspondent of L. A. W. Bulletin. It was a new country, there was little or no need of fortifications at that date. and the convicts were set to work to build roads, which killed two birds with one stone by finding work for them to do and at the same time opening up the country. I have been nearly all over the island, and I may say confidently that now, though it is 40 years since a convict has been sent there, there is no country today that has roads as good. The military roads of France are far inferior to them, though the distance from the rest of civilization has done much to keep the light of Tasmania under a bushel. The roads are repaired but little for the reason that when built time was no object, and the thoroughness of the work was the first and last consideration. Cuttings were made wherever the grade would otherwise be steep. In fact, I very much doubt if the whole of the main road from north to south, a distance of 120 miles, has any grade much steeper than that in use on parts of their main line of railroad, which, if I remember right, is about a foot in 45. Roads like these in this country of ours are of national importance, not only to cyclist and farmer, but to the government as well.

The Boers are a race of hunters, as well as pastoralists, and the Transvaal Boers especially have been engaged in a war of extermination (lamentable to the lover of animal life) against every species of wild beast. Numbers of them have been occupied ever since boyhood in the hunting of elephants, buffaloes, lions, rhinoceroses and other heavy game. They have practically exterminated the elephant south of the Zambezi, and the buffalo is becoming very scarce. No man who understands South African hunting can pretend to say that the chase of these animals is not a dangerous one, requiring the highest qualities of nerve and courage. I will not say that the average Boer hunter will, by way of recreation, face the lion single handed in the way that the great English hunters-Selous, Oswell, Vardon, Gordon-Cumming, Baldwin and others have accustomed us to. Few hunters. indeed, are so quixotic. The Boer treats the lion as dangerous vermin, if possible obtains help from his fellows, and as a matter of business slays him by a volley. But hundreds of Boers have slain lions single handed, and hundreds have been mauled and even killed by lions.—London Globe. Pickett and the British.

In one of the most serious disputes the United States has had with Great Britain over a boundary question a Virginian bore the most prominent part in preventing British encroachment. We refer to the San Juan island incident. The Virginian was Captain George E. Pickett of the United States army, afterward General Pickett of the Confederate army. In 1856, during the disagreement anent the northwest boundary, Captain Pickett, with 60 men, was ordered to occupy the island, and Sir James Douglass sent three British warships to eject him from his position. Pickett bade defiance to this show of force, threatening to fire upon any troops that attempted to land from the vessels, and a clash of arms was only prevented by the timely arrival of the British admiral, by whose orders the matter of endeavoring to take possession of the island vi et armis was postponed. Subsequently Pickett was re-enforced and the danger of hostilities blew over. For his conduct on this occasion Captain Pickett was highly complimented by General Harney, and the legislature of Washington territory passed resolutions of thanks to him.—Richmond Dispatch.

How to Make a Handle Stick.

Handles will get loose, do what you will, says The Wheel, and some time or other they will part company with the bar. Forty ways to cement them on have been exploited as many different times in the columns of the wheel papers, but the average sticker on of handles makes the mistake of smearing the cement over the handle bar instead of placing it inside the handle, the consequence being that the handle when forced on, pushes up the cement, which forms in an unsightly ring round the end of the handle. The proper way is to melt a little cement, pour it into the mouth of the handle while the latter is being revolved, so as to make it run round, warm the end of the handle bar, but not sufficiently to injure the cork or celluloid, and push the handle on. The handle bar will thus tend to carry the cement farther in, and there will be none visible round the outside.—Exchange. The First Log Cabin In Kentucky The flourishing little city of Harrodsburg, the county seat of Mercer county, Ky., was the scene in the latter part of the last century of some very exciting episodes in the history of the early settlers in the young state. On June 16, 1774, Captain James Harrod of Virginia, who had brought a party of settlers to the new country, laid off a town site at Big Spring Camp, where they had erected the first cabin ever built in Kentucky. They allotted to each man a half acre lot and a ten acre out lot. The town's first name was Harrodstown, but later this was changed to Harrodsburg. A clearing was made in the east end of the town boundary, and here it was that John Harman planted and raised the first corn that was known to have been grown in the state. Only a few weeks after this auspicious beginning of the town's promoters four of Harrod's men were ambushed by Indians. Jared Cowan was killed. The other men escaped only one of them being injured.—Louisvilla Post.

Nature No Sabbatarian. The Rev. David Macrae has brought together in a most interesting little volume, entitled "Quaint Sayings of Children," a number of stories, many of them old, but nearly all of them good. There is one, evidently told in print for the first time, of a little girl in Aberdeen who brought a basket of strawberries to the minister very early on Monday morning. "Thank you, my little girl," he said; "they are very beautiful. But I hope you didn't gather them yes terday, which was the Sabbath day?" "No, sir," replied the child, "I pulled them this morning. But they was grow-in all yesterday. !?

The Schoolboy and the Inspector. In an Edinburgh school the other day an inspector, wishing to test the knowledge of a class in fractions, asked one boy whether he would rather take a sixth or a seventh part of an orange if he got his choice. The boy promptly re-plied that he would take the seventh. At this the inspector explained at length to the class that the boy who would choose the smaller part as this boy had done because it looked the larger fraction was very foolish, but the laugh was on the other side when the chirping voice of another urchin broke in in remonstrance, "Please, sir, but that boy disna like oranges."-Westminster Gazette. .

His Animal Food.

Pat Shinnegan works on the Allen place, and his mind is no poetic mind, and whatever comes into it receives a literal construction that sometimes males it unrecognizable when it comes out again. In fact, Pat's mind is a very sausage machine of a mind. Now, it happens that Pat was feeling ill for some days, and so, as his employer is an M. D., fall fledged, albeit somewhat young in years, Pat applied to him for a remedy. The doctor asked the symptonis, felt his pulse, examined his tenane, and did whatever else professional ctiquette demanded. Then he

"Pairiek, you're run down a bit, that's all. What you need is animal

LANSING. Feb 7 .- - General resolutions adopted at the concluding session of the State Association of Farmers' clubs Wednesday favor equal suffrage; decreasing the appropriation for the fish commission, and increasing that for the traveling library system; the abolition of legislative junketing trips; a general reduction in official fees and salaries; the printing of school text books by the state and furnishing them to school districts at cost, and a law preventing appeals from justice courts in cases involving less than $50. Special resolutions were adopted commending the last legislature for ordering a recompilation of the general laws and the publication of such compilation by the state instead of by private parties, and asking the next legislature to add its enactments thereto; calling for a reduction in the number of employes of state departments and in the salaries paid these clerks; and asking all clubs to exact from all candi lates, especially those for legis-lative offices, a pledge to carry out this reform and give state institutions only such appropriations as are needed for practical and absolute necessities; as well as bring about a more economical administration of public affairs. Officers were chosen as follows: President, A. M. Kimmis, Jr., Wixom; vice president, J. T. Daniels, Union Home; secretary, B. F. Peckham, Parma. ANOTHER "HEALER" MISSING.

This Man Is Named Burke and Operated in " Michigan. SAGINAW, Feb. 7.-The sensation which James Burke, the alleged healer, created at this place has collapsed. He disapeared Wednesday night. The large audience which packed the Second Baptist church went home disappointed. He was last seen about 6 o'clock, when he left his lodgings, telling his landlady he was going over to the church. What has become of him is a mystery, though it is thought he has gone to Bay City and will

Several of Burke's alleged cures have been investigated, and a local physician wagers that half of the patients only imagined they were ill. A German named Dickman, who runs a saloon near the church where Burke held forth, states that the healer frequented his saloon, but never drank anything stronger than beer. When last seen he was in company with a Bay City harber and two women. The barber returned very much intoxicated, but does not know where Burke is. Burke had plenty of money when he disappeared, and left no unpaid bills. SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 10.-James Burke, the so-called "divine healer," who disappeared from this place last Tuesday night, has turned up at Grayling this state. He tried to rent a church there for the purpose of inaugurating a wholesale "healing" meeting, but the town tolks refused He gives no reason for his mystorious departure from this place.

SERMON FOR WOMEN.

Bishop Richter of Grand Rapids Tells Them Plain Facts.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 11.-Bishop Richter of the Grand Rapids Catholic diocese preached a sermon Sunday morning out of his usual line of discourse. It was a sermon for the women and in opening he warned the men not to marry for beauty, as they would weary of that in a brief time, but in choosing a wife to consider her kitchen accomplishments. The lack of kitchen accomplishments, he said, coupled with wifely extravagance and fondness for dress, has driven many a good man to drink.

A few years ago women all over the land organized bands and entered upon a crusade against the rum power marching through the streets and praying that their husbands be saved from drink. The husbands, he said, would have been warranted to enter upon a crusade of their own against the extravagance of their wives, and, instead of praying in front of saloons, sending up their petitions from in front of the dry goods stores. The audience smiled audibly at this suggestion and the bishop brought his sermon to an abrupt close.

Terrible Accident at a Funeral. ALMA, Mich., Feb. 6.-A peculiar accident occurred at the Wright cemetery south of this village. The remains of a woman had been lowered into the grave when the undertaker started to remove one of the straps with which he had lowered the coffin. He found it necessary to step across the grave, and to brace him-self put his arm about a monument on the other side. The strain upon the monument was too great, the earth caved and the undertaker and monument were precipitated into the open grave. The coffin lid was smashed and the face of the dead woman was horribly mutilated.

Brute Practically Admits His Guilt. JACKSON, Mich., Feb. 10 .- Jerry Scott, the negro who is charged with murdering his 8-year-old daughter by severely flog-ging her and burning her upon a hot stove, was arraigned following a verdict by a coroner's jury to the effect that he was responsible for his daughter's death. He pleaded not guilty to murder, but his attorney said he was willing that Scott plead guilty to a charge of manslaughter. He was held without bail for trial and a mob tried to lynch him on his way to jail. Scott Hardly Gets His Deserts. JACKSON, Mich., Feb. 11.-Jerry Scott, the negro whose daughter died from the effects of floggings administered by her father, was arraigned for trial and pleaded not guilty, The trial was adjourned as a ruse to scatter the crowd which had assembled. Later he changed his plea to guilty of murder in the second degree. Scott was sentenced to imprisonment for life and was at once placed inside the big

Robbed of a Large Amount. TRAVERSE CITY, Mich, Feb. 8-W. H. Moyer, a cigar manufacturers' agent here, while working in his office late Thursday night was confronted by two robbers who compelled him at a revolver's point to open his safe and give them $1,700, after which they gagged him, tied him in a chair, and made their escape. He was not discovered until late the next morn

Charged with Roasting His Child. JACKSON, Mich., Feb. 8 .- An application of Jerry Scott, colored, asking the authorities to bury his 8-year-old daughter, whom he claimed died from natural causes, led to an investigation which disclosed evidence that the child had been inhumanely whipped and then laid on a hot stove and roasted. Scott is in jail.

Want Wolcott to Resign. DENVER, Feb 11 .-- At a regular meeting of the Trades assembly here Sunday a resolution was proposed calling upon Senator Wolcott to resign for the reason that he does not represent the sentiment of Colorado voters on the Monroe doctrine, and for his unpatriotic speech in the Unit-ed States senate on the Venezuela question. The resolution was hotly debated, One member wanted the Colorado senator burned in effigy. The resolution to ask his resignation did not carry, but another was passed declaring the name of Senator Wolcott would hereafter never appear on the records of the assembly.

Made a Fortunate Discovery. NEGAUNEE, Mich, Feb. 10-In making a rock cut for a new railway two weeks ago the workmen uncovered a vein of ore on the property of the Jackson Iron company. It proved of greater size and higher grade than first thought and the Jackson company, whose old mine is nearly worked out, after over forty years continuous operation, has put two shifts of miners at work in the find and the line of the railroad is being changed. The mine accidentally discovered promises to greatly prolong the life of the Jackson, which was the first Lake Superior iron mine ever opened.

FLOODS IN NEW JERSEY.

Nearly the Whole of the State Under Water and Traffic Impeded. SOMERVILLE, N. J., Feb. 7 - While the loss of property at Bound Brook Thursday night by fire and flood will be well up to expectation, based upon the meager information obtainable, it is now reasonably certain that but one life was lost. Nearly the whole state of New Jersey is under water. From all sections come reports of impeded traffic, damaged houses and b rns and washed out railways. In Hudson and Bergen counties the salt marshes were flooded to such a depth that the railroad tracks were just visible. Soon after noon the trolley lines between Hudson and Bergen counties were compelled to stop running and country towns were completely cut off from one another. Along the Delaware river the damage was extensive, the water rising within a few hours to the point marked dangerous. In North Hudson county trees and fences were blow down and signs torn from their fastenings. The big hat factories in the valley district of Orange and East Orange were flooded by the swelling of the small stream that runs past most of them. Ma-

SYNDICATE GETS $33,000,000. Treasury Officials Complete the Computation of the Bond Bids, WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.-Late Friday afternoon the treasury officials completed the computation of the bids received for the new bend issue, from which it appears that the amount of the bids above that of J. P. Morgan and his associates (110.6877) was $66,783,650, and that the amount which will be awarded to the syndicate therefore will be $33,211,350, or approximately one-third of the whole issue. The number of successful bidders is 781. In arriving at this conclusion the officials have thrown out a very few bids, obviously fictitious and a larger number which were irregular in important particulars. Some of these bore no signature, and others did not contain the amount intended to bid for, while still others omitted the rate. These last, however, are not supposed to aggregate any considerable Birdie Sutherland Sues Hon, Dudley Churchill Majorib inks for $100,000, but Compromises for $25,000 -Insurrection Agninst Japanese Rule.

LONDON, Feb. 11 .- The suit of Birdie Sutherland, a well known member of the ballot, against the Hon, Dudley Churchill Majoribanks, eldest sen of Baron Tweedmoth and a lieutenant in the Fourth battalion of the Argyle and Southerland Highlanders, claiming $100,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage, which was to have been tried Monday before Judgo Russell and a special jury, has been settled out of court. Miss Sutherland, who had previously refused $15,000 to settle the case, has withdrawn her suit upon the payment of $25,-100. The case was expected to furnish much interesting testimony. Sir Elward Clarke, Q. C., M. P., formerly solicitor general, had been engaged to represent Miss Sutherland, and Henry Asquith, formerly secretary of state for home affairs, had been retained to defend Mr. Majoribanks. Sued Through Her Father. It was believed the case would turn on the point whether the defendant was of full age when the promise of marriage was alleged to have been made. Miss

Sutherland, nee Watkins, not being of age, sued through her father, who was formerly a clerk in the Bank of England. The settlement of the suit out of court disappointed many people. A large crowd had gathered in and about the court room, where another case was proceeding in anticipation of hearing what was looked upon as likely to be celebrated theatrical case. But to their disgust the case being tried was suddenly interrupted as Miss Sutherland and her lawyer held a short conversation in a low tone with Judge Russel, after which the latter announced that the case of Sutherland vs. Majoribanks had been settled out of court. Judge Russell allowed

If we could trace dyspepsia to its source, t would lead back to our kitchens. In fact, the secret of good health is good cooking. If well cooked, foods are partially digested; if poorly cooked, they are less digestible than in their raw state. If you are a victim to faulty cooking; that is, if you suffer from dyspensia, the rational cure must be looked for in an artificially digested food, and a food which will at the same time aid the direction of other foods. Such a preparation virtually rests the tired digestive organs, thereby restoring hem to their natural strength. The Digestive Cordial, as prepared by the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, is just such a preparation, and a single 10 cent bottle will convince you of its value. If your druggist don't keep it, he will be glad to get it, through his wholesale house.

Ather in Kenlucky. SULPHUR EPRINGS, Tex., Fob. 10 .- A runner can e to town Sunday afternoon from Clinton Prairie, a neighborhood fifteen miles southwest of here, stating that a difficul y occurred there at a church where the people of the neighborhood had assembled for worship. The participants were the Walker and the Williams boys. Pistols were used freely and with deadly results. Charlie Walker was killed outright, two balls entering the back of the head and lodging over the eyebrow. Will, his brother, was shot under the right aun. The third brother, Efton, had his scalp grazed with two shots. It is not known how bad the Williams boys are wounded, yet it is known that at least one of them is seriously wounded and will die. Officers and physicians have gone to the scene of the conflict, and it is hope i that the affair is no worse than reported. Both families are prominent people and this is the deadly beginning of a feud that has been raging for many months between them. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 9.—Price Reed, a deacon in the African Methodist church at Bland and Burnett avenues, was fatally shot in the church Sunday by C. Breckinridge, also colored. Breckinridge and George Robinson occupied a pew in the rear during the sermon of Rev. R. D. Stoner, and quarreled over the "pasture's" statements, and when Deacon Reed tried to pacify thom they became more boisterous, and the deacon attempted to throw them out Breckinridge drew a revolver and fired twice at close range. The loud words and crash of the shot created the wildest excitement among the congregation. When the row had been quieted it was found that Reed had received a wound in the arm and a fatal wound in the stomach. Breckinridge and Roberts are under arrest.

Success In Society. The secret of success in society is a certain heartiness and sympathy. A man who is not happy in company cannot find any word in his memory that will fit the occasion; all his information is a little impertinent. A man who is happy there finds in every turn of the conversation occasions for the introduction of what he has to say. The favorites of society are able men, and of more spirit than wit, who have no uncomfortable egotism, but who exactly fill the hour and company, contented and contenting .- Emerson.
