GOT A TANDEM.

Of course Mr. Stone never for one menn nt imagined that any of the parishioners would object to his riding a bicycle

St John's, Runniford, was a large, straggling parish, and as he made a practice of calling once a fortnight upon every member of the congregation he rightly judged that it would save him a great deal of walking. Pleasure had nething to do with the purchase. As ill luck had it, however, he encountered Miss Meddlebury the first time he rede out. Although no tyro, he was out of practice, and he dared not let go a handle to lift his hat, so he went by with a nod and a smile. Miss Middle bury stopped short. Turning about, she glared after the curate's flying coattails until they disappeared in the distance, then marched straight to the vicarage, whither she had been several times before on Mr. Stone's account—visits concerning which he was blissfully ignorant. It is necessary to explain that Miss Prudence Meddlebury was a very important personage in the parish of St.

John For the sake of his poor the vicar could not ignore her opinions. She had an income of $15,000 a year, and one-tenth of that sum-not a penny mere and not a penny less—she gave to him to bestow as he thought proper. By reason of her confidence Mr. Armitage shut his eyes to her austerity and narrow mindedness, but the truth must be told here. Miss Middlebury was stern and forbidding in appearance and disposition. Every form of enjoyment she considered baneful, if not a deadly

From the first she objected to Mr. Stone After his opening service, which had greatly pleased the vicar, she complained that he was too young, too tall and too plain looking.

"All the girls will be setting their cops at him," she said at one of those complaining visits previously mentiened. "They will think a great deal more of the preacher than of the sermen. It was very unwise of you to engage him." The good old vicar said he hered not and thought no more about it unless to laugh quietly to himself. In some unaccountable manner she discovered that Mr. Stene had fallen in love with Nelly Armitage. It was true enough, but at the time the vicar's daughter was by no means sure of the fact berself. Miss Meddlebury was not aware that the handsome, well set up young clergyman possessed a private income large enough to marry upon whenever be thought proper, but she would probably have acted just the same in any case. "You know I warned you that Mr. Stone would not do," she told that young lady's papa. "Unless you wish to be entangled in a very undesirable love affair you will get rid of him." The Rev. Mr. Armitage looked rather bewildered, but not at all displeased. "Love affair? Nelly?" he exclaimed

"She hasn't said anything to me, nor has Mr. Stone." "No," said Miss Meddlebury, with her vinegary smile. "I don't suppose it has gone so ar as that. I thought it my duty to put you on your guard in time.

"I am very much obliged, I am sure." rejoined the vicar. And there is no doubt he was very thankful for the information. St. John's was rather a poor living, and he had given too much away to be able to save anything. His daughter being unprovided for, the prospects of her union with an independent gentleman of the highest character would not be likely to interfere with his sleep of nights. "And you will act without delay?" continued Miss Meddlebury. "When the time comes. I must not be precipitate, you know."

The vicar changed the subject, plunged into parish affairs, and so escaped further awkward questions upon that occasion. But it was only a respite. The meeting with the curate on his bicycle took place two days later. Mr. Armitage chanced to be standing at his study window and saw Miss Meddlebury coming up the garden.

"I have been shocked," she said, positively shocked. And I am sure you will be when I tell you that I have just met Mr. Stone on a bicycle." "I don't see any harm in it," rejoined the vicar, who did not look in the least perturbed. "I am surprised. The clergyman that would ride a bicycle can have no respect for his cloth, no desire to gain the good will of his congregation. I will not countenance it. Mr. Stone must give it up or I shall be compelled to take a pew in St. Mark's. I should feel quite uncomfortable. I really could not sit un-

St. Mark's was the wealthiest parish in Runniford. If she left St. John's, she would be sure to take her $1,500 with her, and this was a contingency to be avoided at almost any cost.

"I trust you have acted upon the hint I gave you concerning Nelly?"
"Well, no," he answered. "I don't see how I can interfere at present." Miss Meddlebury took herself off with the air of a victor. The vicar watched her down the garden and then went to his daughter's room to unburden his mind. "Of all the uureasonable mischief makers I ever met that woman is the worst!" he cried. "She is indeed well named Meddlebury.'' "Papal" exclaimed the girl, looking up in sarprise. "Miss Meddlebury has just called,"

he went on. "She wants me to put my foot down on Stone's bicycle." "I didn't know that he had one," she rejoined, with a blush which did not escape the vicar's notice. "Neither did I. How can I tell him that he mustn't ride a bicycle here? I don't know how he will take it. He > might resign." "I hope he will not do that," said the girl quickly. "He is not likely to do so. Mr. Stone is not a man to allow any one to dictate to him. But she has threatened to leave St. John's. You know what that would mean to the poor next winter. I wish you would speak to him."

The mere suggestion dyed Nelly's cheeks a still more vivid red. "Oh, no, no!" she cried. "I could not. Whatever made you think of that?" "Miss Meddlebury says he is in love" with you," he answered slyly. "If that is so, he wouldn't be likely to take offeuse."

"If he is, it has nothing to do with Miss Meddlebury," she rejoined with asperity. "How did she learn it? Why did she tell you?" "I cannot answer the first question. Miss Meddlebury has the eyes of a lynx. She told me as an inducement to send Mr. Stone away. She thought I ought to be warned. You know she considers that every curate should be middle aged and as plain as a pikestaff." "Papa, let Miss Meddlebury leave St. John's. We should all be happier. And perhaps the poor people wouldn't suffer much for the want of her $1,500. I could go around and collect for the fun."

"No, my dear, we must bear with her, for the sake of the widows and fatherless. I will send a note to Mr. Stone asking him to call this evening. When he comes, we will talk it over.' Mr. Stone never had a prior engagement when asked to spend an evening at the vicarage—at least he never pleaded one. It as rather late when he arrived, however, for he had been sitting with a sick woman and did not receive the vicar's note until 7 o'clock. He came on th offending bicycle, which he left in the garden. The vicar introduced the bicycle almost at ence, stating exactly what had passed between himself and Miss Meddlebury. "I am rather surprised," said the curate, smiling. "But you did quite right to say that I would give it up, sir. I would give up almost anything rather than that a member of the church should be offended. Miss Meddlebury's $1,500 does not influence me. I should act just the same if she hadn't a penny to bestow in charity.'

Nelly gave him a quick glance of admiration. The vicar rose from his chair and grasped him by the hand. "That's the true Christian spirit," he cried. "I am glad." "I am sorry that Miss Meddlebury does not like me," Mr. Stone went on after a pause. "I must try to win her over. As for the bicycle, as I came here on it I had better ride it home, but I shall probably get rid of it tomorrow." The cleck was striking 11 when the vicar suddenly pushed the board away, exclaiming:

"Dear me! I had no idea it was so Mr. Stone rese at once and took his leave. To reach his lodgings it was necessary to pass Miss Meddlebury's fine house, which lay back a considerable distance from the road. As he went by he fancied he heard a shout Applying the brake, he dismounted and listened. He had not been mistaken. Some one at Limes was calling for the police. The gate of the carriage drive was wide open. Pushing his machine before him, he ran it up to the house at his best ruined!" He recognized Miss Meddlebury notwithstanding her deshabille. She came down in a dressing gown, greatly distressed. "I heard a noise in my boudoir," she explained, "and getting out of bed I went to see what was the matter. There were two men. The window was epen, and they had a ladder. I could not stop them, and they have taken my jewel check, as I do twice a year. They drove away in a trap. I saw them go."

"Which way?" cried the curate ex-"To the right," was the reply. "I'll follow them. My bicycle's outside. Send some one to the police station to give the alarm. The thieves are from Bedlington, no doubt."

A minute afterward the curate of St. John's was pedaling along the Bedlington road as fast as he could go. It was his first attempt at "scorching," and he made fair to shine at that dangerous pastime. Swiftly, noiselessly, the pneumatic sped on, until the quick beats of the hoofs ahead became more audible to the cyclist as he rode. Nearer and nearer he drew, until at last the trap was in sight. The moon was shining brightly, and be could see that it contained two men and ing lights came in view, he presently spurted past the trap without turning his head and dismounted as nearly in the center of the village as he could judge. At that hour the streets were deserted and most of the houses were in darkness. But Mr. Stone was an old "hlue." and he felt himself more than a match for a couple of Bedlington thieves. The boy he did not count.

Mr. Stone had scarcely had time to get his wind before the trap was close upon him. Picking up a pebble, he shied it through the nearest lighted window to rouse the inmates, and springing at the horse's head caught hold of the reins. Imprecations assailed his ears, blows were showered upon him with the whip, but he did not let go. The driver sprang to the ground and rushed at him. Still holding the horse with his left hand, he knocked the fellow down, never ceasing to shout: "Thieves! Thieves!" The second man leaped from the trap to assist his companion, but he also received a knockdown blow. It all passed in a few seconds, but the villagers were aroused. Men came running from their cottages without coats or waistcoats, women with shawls thrown over their nightdresses. The boy escaped in the confusion, but both men were secured and handed over to the constable, who arrived in his stockings and trousers, and thus clad marched them to the lock-MICHIGAN ITEMS WHICH WILL BE OF

In the trap Mr. Stone found Miss Meddlebury's jewel case and the box in which she had placed the securities. both unopened. Having given the constable his name and address and promised to return early in the morning, that officer, a very young man, allowed him to depart with the plunder tied to the handle bar of his bicycle.

A mile from Cranworth he met a mounted policeman, followed by two more in a dogcart. Stopping them, he informed them of the capture of the burglars and rode on., The Limes was a blaze of light when he arrived. Dr. Gray's carriage stood at the door and a fussy police inspector stood on the door-

"You can't go in, sir!" cried the functionary as the curate approached with the recovered valuables. "That is immaterial," was the answer. "Perhaps you will give these boxes to Miss Meddlebury and assure her that the thieves are in custody at Cranworth.' "Why-why," cried the inspector, who had recognized the new curate of St. John's, "you don't mean to say, sir, that you've got the swag?" 'Yes, I do," said Mr. Stone; "all of it, I think. The locks do not appear to have been tampered with. Perhaps you will also be good enough to inform Miss Meddlebury that I overtook the burglars on my bicycle." he added, with a quiet

Soon after 10 o'clock the next morning Miss Meddlebury called at the vicarage. She had not quite got over the excitement of the previous evening, and a great deal of what she said was so incoherent that the vicar, who knew nothing of the burglary previous to her visit, could not make head or tail of it. But he had a very clear recollection of the most important of her rambling remarks. "I do hope you haven't said anything to Mr. Stone about his bicycle. It would be sinful of me to object to his riding it after this. I am convinced that the purpose was good, and I am sorry that I said a word about it. And if Nelly likes him and they think of marrying, she shall not be a portionless bride. I shall make her a wedding present of a substantial character." Miss Meddlebury was as good as her word-rather better, in fact. When, a few months later. Miss Nellie Armitage's engagement to her father's curate was announced and the wedding day fixed, that young lady received a very substantial gift in the shape of a check for $500. Mr. Stone seldom rides his bicycle now. He is much more frequently to be seen on a tandem.—Answers.

If it should, it would raise by adhesion a little hill of water all about it, down which the needle would slide, thus producing a deceptive effect of repulsion. Real repulsion, instead of attraction, may be secured by rubbing one end of the needle on one end of the poker. The steel will thus become a magnet also, and when floated the poker will attract one end of it and repel the other.—Montreal Star.

Judge Coolidge filed four opinions jast Thursday morning in cases which have been tried during the last term of court. The most important of them was the decision in the case of Orville Jordan vs. John C. Newton et al, in which he decreed that the celebrated railway bonus notes were null and void.

In 1888 numerous citizens of St. Joseph gave notes aggregating about $20,000 which were to be given to the promoters of the proposed road which is now part of the Vandalia railway system. #### FROM OHIO.

"DO OUR EYES DECEIVE US?" COLUMBUS, O., May 10, 1897. EDITOR RECORD.—Having witnessed two apparent successfully inventions in practical operation, within the past few days, I cannot refrain from addressing you briefly, for the question of "Do our eyes deceive us?" is constantly before my mind.

Last Siturday evening, thousands of up-turned eyes were endeavoring to describe an air-ship, which was soaring over Cincinnati, mine included. A distinct light, similar to an ordinary electric arc-light which illuminates the streets of Buchanan, only more brilliant, was to be seen. Some stated that the machine was like an elongated cone with wings like a monstrous bird which flapped regularly and kept the machine traveling at a rapid pace. Others thought it looked like a ballo n. with a passenger car or basket attachment, and floated with the wind. To my eyes, the latter seemed to be more nearly correct. At the same time, no "summer breezes" were blowing on terra firma. What the atmospheric condition was five hundred or more feet higher is another question. It was alout 8:30 p. m; stars were just appearing; the heavens o'er cast with light clouds, which made the moving "sir ship" difficult to see in outline, for it passed by rapidly, and caused those who saw it to wonder and ask one another, "Was it really an air-ship, or what was it?" Next morning, the papers gave an entire column, on the front page, declaring that this wanderer had finally paid Cincinnati a visit. The visitors mind fell into a medative mood, and recalled Ignatius Donnelly's "Atlantis", where he tells what we may look for in the next century, of myraids of flying monsters sweeping through space. Casting aside all modern implements of war and engaging ing in battle in the "etherial vaults", enabling us to take our breakfast in

enroute and to sleep before the midnight hour in London. Not over a year ago, Roeatgen, the noted German scientist, astonished the world with his discovery of the X ray. This seemingly impossible fact, with additional discoveries of Edison, has brought into practical form, and almots daily use, the X ray. To those who have never experienced, from actual use, this marvel of thought, I well give my experience: You stand in a dark rom: the electric current is turned on into "Crookes tube", which is about eighteen inches long and five inches in diameter, and a pale, yellowish light, not dazzling to the eye is produced. You place your hand back of an ordinary (called camera) glass, and stand in front. Every joint and bone is seen as plainly as if bereft of fl-sh and tissue-likewise the arm. Having had a felon on my right thumb, was anxious to see how it looked upon the inside. It was clearly proven, that a fe'on is not a companionable fellow, even if lanced three or five years ago. Several pieces of silver were wrapped in a handkerchif, the same placed in a long leather pocket-book, with an exposure of less than two seconds, you could see their location. Having, had when about fourteen years old, a slight misunderstanding with a young fellow which resulted in a "chrow out of joint elbow" on my left arm, and never has been "just right" since, looked at it. Was plainly seen, showing a slight deformity, and I had on a thick woolen under-garment, cotton shirt and woolen coat, but was distinctly seen, with an exposure of less than five seconds. Would suggest to our boys, not to be too anxious to get your arm put out of joint. Others and numerous tests could be recounted, equally astonishing, leadthe mind to ask, "What is man?" I see this letter is growing lengthy but had your readers the patience and your columns the space, it seems to me that I could go on until the "wee sma" hours would beckon us to stop, but the scientific world is developing the talent so rapidly that even our own vision is beclouded, even if we do see, for out of the darkness, light so clear is being brought that, even to our ignorant thoughts, we think our own eyes fail to convey to us established truths. Yours respectfully,

F. T. PLIMPTON.

Trip to St. Augustine. EDITOR OF THE RECORD:-We left Jacksonville, May 9, at 9:40 a.m. and arrived at St. Augustine 11 a. m. The first to attract the attention, was the beautiful flowers and foliage plants of which the city was strewn. As we drew near Old St. Augustine (the cities are called old and new), the streets become as mere lanes, with very narrow sidewalks, lined with tiny cottages with over-hanging balconies that almost meet. Oh. what quaint looking

I saw the old market place, where the colored people were sold at auction to the highest bidder. It stands today just as it did then. From there, we visited the City gates and the eld fort, went into the dungeon, up into the tower, in fact all through it. I wrote my name over the door in one of the rooms. There is a sea wall that extends along the Bay, from the Fort to the St. Frances barracks. The most historic street ss St. George. After dinner, we hired a sail boat and sailed out to the beach, and came back in time see a Swedish man and his wife dive from a sixty-five foot tower. I saw the Gratana river, also the Anastais island with its tower light house. There we visited the oldest house in St. Augustine. It is very odd, being built of shell cement, as the City gate and Fort are built of. The cement of which it is built are inlaid with shell, the most handsome shells I ever saw. They are inlaid over doors and windows, and on each door are ancient knockers. This house was first built by the French Hugnenots, who came Augustine, everything being so odd and old fashioned. There are some fine hotels here. Prince de Leon, Alaaras, Carino, Cordovia, and a few. others, the most famous of them being Prince de Leon. It is difficult, if not impossible, to grasp the whole conception of this mammoth hotel. The building and the enclosed court covers six acres of ground, the diving-room alone occupying one and one-half acres and seating eight hundred at tables, while one thousand have assembled in the rotunda during a concert. The entranee is a veritable tropical garden, with fountains, and surrounding it is a soft-blue g.ay wall, made of shell concrete, with its massive gate-way in the center. It is certainly one of the handsomest buildings and grounds human eve ever saw.

It is very warm here. Northern people are leaving for their homes, and I expect to soon follow. Mybel Hallock.

FEEDING IN AQUARIUMS.

Some Curious Methods Employed For the Greater Comfort of the Fishes. All fishes, including even the dullest and commonest, are likely to be shy when first brought into captivity, as in aquariums, and they are very apt at first to refuse food. Sometimes fish refuse persistently week after week, taking none at all and growing thinner and thinner and weaker, until finally they die. Usually, however, the fishes, with proper care, come to feed, though many of them may need to be nampered and nursed along at first. Finally many of the fishes, as they become accustomed to captivity, get very tame, so that they will take food from the hand. Some of the fishes that will do this are fishes that might not be thought of as feeding in this manner. The codfish, for instance, will come to the surface after it has become used to captivity and take a strip of fish held down to it in the fingers, at the same time gulping in with it noisily a great mouthful of air and

While there is at first necessary for their welfare not only the greatest care, but such food only as they have been accustomed to in nature or as they like best, it is in most cases possible later to switch the fishes off to other things. with occasional return to their natural food. Some fishes, however, will eat only live food, and this must always be provided for them. Not infrequently the food, whatever it may be, must be fed in some special way to meet the requirements of individual fishes, and some of the methods employed are curious and interesting. Fishes in captivity have fewer opportunities, oftener they have none whatever, of lying in ambush for their prey, and they have far less room for sweep and action in pursuit. Killies placed in a pool or tank as food for larger fishes evade pursuit if they can and seek the edges of the water, by the walls or the surface, whither they are less likely to be followed. Killies will live for days out of water in properly dampened moss or seaweed. When first put back into the water, they are sluggish in movement, but they soon recover their natural activity. In feeding live killies it is not unusual to keep them out of water for a time, so that they may be more easily captured by the fishes they are to be fed to, which might otherwise be unable to canture them at all or which might get them only at the risk of doing injury to themselves by running into the walls of the tank. Sometimes among the fishes brought to an aquarium there may be one that has lost an eye. Such a fish is particularly liable to injury in pursuit by running into walls on its blind side, and to such fishes there are always fed slow killies, and they are put into the water on the side on which the fish can see.

There is at the aquarium a hawksbill turtle from the Yowl islands, off the coast of New Guinea. The hawksbill eats clams cut up into pieces that it can handle. It likes killies, but it could not begin to catch a live killie in the quarters which it occupies, and at first it was difficult for it to pick up dead ones. So the killies were fed to it on the point of a stick. It is doubtful whether fishes saffer pain from any injury, but it would have seemed like cruelty to impale a live killie, and so the killies were killed by the very simple but effective method of throwing them upon the floor. The greater weight of the fish is toward the head. That end naturally reaches the floor first. The fish is most sensitive at the nose. The shock killed the killie, and the freshly killed food was then conveyed to the hawksbill's mouth by aid of the pointed stick, which was withdrawn when the turtle had set its beak in the food. Now the hawksbill has become more accustomed to its quarters, and it eats well and is able to pick up the killed killies out of the water.

Sometimes fish are cut into strips, which, floating down through the water, may be mistaken for live fish. Sometimes such strips are carried down into a tank upon the tip of a rod and moved about - the water to attract slow feeding fi_ by their semblance to live small fish. There are many fishes that can swallow a fish as big or nearly as big as themselves. The sculpin and the sea raven are such fishes. They have very large heads and proportionately large mouths. When they are feeling well, they will, like many other fishes, rise to the top to get the food as soon as it is dropped into the water. If one sees a sea raven or a sculpin rising straight up through the water in this manner, with its big mouth wide open, he can begin to understand how it could swallow a fish as big as itself, for it seems as if one could see inside of it clear to its tail.

There are some fishes that have a particular fancy for worms. For these, if there is not a supply at hand, fresh beef is cut into strips resembling worms. ANECDOTES OF SHELBY.

An Old Comrade Tells of the Famou Confederate Fighter. "No man could ride with Jo Shelby for four years and be worth his salt at anything else," said Major J. F. Stone-street. "I did it and ought to know. I have not been worth killing since." Major Stonestreet was an associate of General Shelby in his boyhood and was with him through the war. Perhaps no man in Kansas City had a more intimate acquaintance with the dead gen

"Shelby was essentially military," Major Stonestreet went on. "He loved the life. Its dangers, labors, rough living and brilliant successes suited him down to the ground. If he had been so placed that all of his years could have been spent in war, he would have been the happiest man on earth. To him the soldier's life was the happiest of lives, the soldier's death the death of deaths. He was fond of his men, but he did not spare them. In his four years of campaigning many, very many, of them were killed. He was not sentimental about it. They took their chances, he used to say. He exposed them to no dangers that he did not share himself.

He, too, took his chances "He was morbidly sensitive about the conduct of his men, the more so that they bore the reputation of 'raiders,' which, it must be confessed, they earned Hard riding and fighting make a hard appetite, and they were no respecters of other people's pigs and poultry. Once we were half starving in Arkansas. Shelby and I rode down to the White river to water our horses. A detachment of the troops was doing the same thing just below us. Among them was Dick Gentry, now of Kansas City. He was a gallant private and a good fellow. Slung across his saddle was a sack, carefully tied and bleeding at one end.
"'What you got there?' demanded

Shelby. "Been havin my clothes washed, said Gentry. "'You'd better get back to camp, said the general, 'or your clothes will bleed to death.' "Gentry was put in the guardhouse. That night a quarter of fresh pork found its way to Shelby's tent. 'I haven't an idea where this came from,' he said as he looked at it hungrily, 'but go round to the guardhouse, orderly, There's no use in keeping a man shut up all of his life for a little laundry.'

"We were down in Texas." continued

were on review, and the intelligence went down the line like a flash. Some of them foolishly cheered. "'Boys, ' said General Shelby, sitting erect on his horse, with one hand raised in air and his head bared, 'this is the heaviest blow yet dealt us. Lincoln's slaughter was the act of a madman. It he had lived, he would have been just and generous to the south. "Major General Holmes was in com mand of our part of the transmississippi department. He was a West Pointer. President Davis was a West Pointer also. and thought that no man could be a soldier unless he bore the hallmark of that academy. Therefore he appointed Holmes, who was a gentleman and well meaning, but stiff necked and dull. Holmes sent for Shelby.

"'General,' he said when the cavalry leader appeared, 'your men have been stealing, and it must be stopped. They are thieves. "'Sir,' said Shelby, 'whoever told you so lies.' "'I believe it is true,' said Holmes. "Why?' asked Shelby. "'Because everybody says so." "Do you believe a thing when every body says so."

"Do you know what everybody says about you?' "'I do not. What do they say? "'They say that you are a d--d old fool.' And Shelby walked out. "What is more," continued Mr. Stonestreet, "Shelby was right. Men can't fight and starve too. "General Shelby was a soldier only. As a man of business he was a failure. Into business life he brought the same bold policies that distinguished him in war times, the same dash and the same recklessness, and they wouldn't do. He would lend money to anybody who asked for it, taking no security, and to have served in his command was an open road to his purse. To the day of his death he was beset by hangers on who had known him in wartime. He seemed

Dr. Nansen's Wite. Of Dr. Nansen's wife not much information has found its way into print. She seems to have a very imperfectly developed taste for publicity, but what is known of her is interesting and indicates that she is an uncommon woman both in talent and character. It is recorded by Dr. Nansen's biographers, Brogger and Rolfsen, that his first meeting with his future wife was in the woods about Frogner Seator, where, one day, observing the soles of two feet sticking up out of the snow, he approached them, with natural curiosity, in time to see the head of Eva Sars emerge from a snowbank. Dr. Nansen was married in 1889, after his return from his success ful expedition across Greenland. When he started in the Fram, in 1893, his wife, left at home at Lysaker, near Christiania with one child turned for occupation to the development and use of her gifts as a singer and with notable success.

King Oscar of Sweden is one of her admirers, and especially likes her singing, which he has often heard, and since she has been in England the compliment has been paid her of asking her to sing before the queen. She is a stanch backer of her adventurous husband. whose departure on his perilous errand cost her anxieties and misgivings as to which she said little at the time. Since her husband's return she has sometimes spoken in conversation of her fears and has said that careful comparison of Dr. Nansen's diary with her record or remembrance of her own sensations bears her out in the belief that the times when she was the most concerned about him were the seasons of his greatest peril. That implies a telepathic communication born of intense sympathy and solicitude, the possibility of which science seems no longer disposed to deny. Mrs. Nansen's father was Professor Sars, a well known zoologist. Zoology, it will be remembered, is a branch of science of which Dr. Nansen has made a special study.—Harper's Weekly. Our English Cousins.

Elwyn Barron is of the opinion that English women are mentally developing and that Englishmen are mentally deteriorating. Women in the old country, physical or intellectual subordination to man, while men have become more than ever before dawdlers or money grubbers. The improvement among the women is to be noticed in their efforts to throw off the yoke of tradition by securing financial independence for themselves. to the daughters of clergymen, of professional men or of widows who had been reduced suddenly from comfortable to necessitous condition, except going

Though they receive a certain social recognition in being allowed to sit at table with the family, their beggarly pittance puts them on a lower earning plane than that occupied by the cook. But there is a reaction against this condition. Many girls of an independent spirit have gone into office work self respect, however much their vanity may have suffered. They are engaged as librarians, as nurses and in many other capacities. A notable instance of this type of the new woman is the daughter of Charles Dickens, who is at papers and discussions. the head of a typewriting office that employs several young ladies of good famly and does a very profitable business. -San Francisco Argonaut.

A Loss to the Pioneer Club. Mrs. Massingberd, the president of the Pioneer club, London, died recently at Llandudno. She was the founder of the club and its best financial friend. Her loss will be widely felt, for Mrs. Massingberd was a woman of many interests, and her wealth and influence were ever at the disposal of those of her sex who were less favorably placed than herself. Full of charity, stanch and true in her friendships and unselfish, it is difficult to imagine who will take her place. Mrs. Massingherd was an earnest advocate of temperance and in favor of woman suffrage. It is, however, as founder and president of the Pioneer club that her name will be remembered. She expended upward of £20,000 in establishing and furnishing an institution which has proved of the greatest value to a large number of English women desiring a rendezvous in the metropolis. The Pioneer club is doubtless the mest beautiful and complete woman's

The Antiquity of Man. Our geologists rarely use the term

"quaternary." By European writers it is understood to mean the period which followed the tertiary and includes the present time. Archæologically it is divided into two epochs, the older including the preglacial, the glacial and the postglacial ages, all characterized by a chipped stone industry, the latter beginning with the neolithic culture and continuing till now. Professor Galriel de Mertillet, in Le Revue Mensue le of the Paris School of Anthropology, succinctly explains these divisions and sets forth with his usual clearness the typical products and the fauna which characterize them. He has found no reason materially to modify Mr. Stonestreet, "when we got the news the opinious he advanced in his earlier of Lincoln's assassination. The men works and still maintains that a careful study of the geological data bearing on the question of the antiquity of man does not allow us to assign it a more recent date than 230,000 years ago. - Sci-

SUNDAY SCHOOL EVANGE

EDITED BY REV. O. J. ROBERTS

This column is open to any who has any communication bearing upon practical Sunday School work, or has any news concerning the progress of the work. We solicit correspondence along these lines from all workers.

Field Secretary O. J. Roberts spent Tuesday and Wednesday in St. Joseph, in the interest of forming a Sunday School Association which was completad on Tuasday evening. A very efficient corps of officers was elected, and it is planned to have, in the near future, a massmeeting addressed by B. F. Jacobs.

Sunday School Convention.

The Convention of the Buchanan-Bertrand Sunday School Union was held in the Presbyterian church, Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16, and was well attended. Sunday evening, the large audience room was packed, there being more than four hundred people present.

The music, Saturday evening, was directed by Mrs. E. S. Dodd and Dr. Garland, and it is not necessary to state that it was admirable in every respect. Sundayafternoon, the music was under the very efficient management of Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Boardman, and in the evening the music was directed by Miss Clara Hubbell, assisted by a fine choir of young people. All did well, and much praise is due to Mr. Wm. Monro for his untiring attention to the necessary details of the arrangements, and also to Miss Olive Bronson for her valued help.

Saturday afternoon, our very efficient secretary, Mrs. Dana Phelps, taught the Sunday school lesson in an admirable manner. We were disappointed in not having the papers by Mrs. Black and Miss Butts, as had been hoped for by the committee.

Saturday evening, besides an address on "What interest should the church members take in the Sunday school", a very profitable Question Box was

We were very forry that cheumstances prevented Miss Gertrude Berrick from giving her recitation, but she will be pleased to respond at some with success and without sacrifice of other time and the committee will be pleased to have her. Altogether, it was a very helpful Convention, and we plan, later to give a synopsis of the main thoughts brought out in the

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stain linen it is positive evidence of kidney rouble. Too frequent desire to urinat or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects in following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleas ant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing eases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. #### The Judge Commended. His Pian of Calling a Grand Jury

Endorsed. Judge Coolidge is receiving commendations from many sources for the disposition he expressed yesterday of calling a grand jury in October. If the result is the same as on other occasions when the grand jury has sat, Berrien county will be more than $2, 000 richer after the work of the grand jury is concluded

Aside from this the flagrant violation of city ordinances and state laws so gree of respectability will exist. The people who are trembling most perceptibly are the saloonist. BUYTHE BUCHANAN EXTRACTS. closing a lock of hair, with name and age, to Dr E. F. Butterfield, Syracuse, N. Y. —adv. Mar. 1-6mo

Washington, May 18,--There was no abatement of interest in the Cuban question in the senate Tuesday and the galleries were well filled when the session opened at noon, although the Morgan resolution was not in order until 2 o'clock. Stewart of Nevada gave notice of an amendment which he would offer to the tariff bill. It provides that there shall be, at all times, a reserve fund in the treasury of $50,000,000. That whenever the available balance in the treasury shall exceed $10,000,000 it shall be the duty of the secretary of the treasury to invest the surplus over the sum in United States bends, and that when less than $50,000,000 is in the treasury he shall issue legal tender non-interestbearing notes, to make up the deli-

Redemption of the Notes. That such notes shall be redeemable out of the first surplus over $50.000,000; that in case insufficient coin to meet the coin obligations of the United States shall come into the treasury through the ordinary sources of revenue, the secretary shall exchange the silver cortificates fer the coin which is in the treasury for their redemption; that the conversion of the silver cortificates shall discharge the coin obligations of the United States; and it shall be the dury of the secretary of the treasury to coin sufficient of the silver bullion purchased under the law of July 14, 18ct, to supply all deficiencies in the supply of coin (under these provisions) to meet and discharge all coin obligations presented.

Bills and Resolutions Passed. The calendar was taken up and the following bills and resolutions passed: Authorizing a bridge across the Pearl river, Mississippl; amending the act authorizing the building of the Duluth and Superior bridge over the St. Louis river, so as to modify the conditions as to dredging; authorizing the construction of bridges across the Missouri river between its mouth and the mouth of the Dakota or James river and across the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Minnesota river, in Minnesota, and Donaldsonville, La., and across the Ilinois and Desplaines rivers between the mouth of the Illinois and Joliet, Ills., and to prescribe the character, location and dimensions of the same. Mason Talks for Cuba.

The Morgan Cuban resolution was taken up at 2 o'clock and Mason of Illinois spoke in its support. Mason read President McKinley's message of Monday to prove that a state of war exists in Cuba. "If there is not war," he said "then there ought to be with us." He said the Americans in Cuba needed as with bread. He said that during the last campaign he had felt the pulse of thousands of people and was satisfied there was a deep general interestamong the people in the interest of Cuban freedom. He was for Cuba not for commercial reasons or for the acquisition of territory, after the English fashion, but for better reasons. Mason predicted Lafayette for Cuba. CIVIL SERVICE REFORMS

President Urged to Make Changes Certain Branches.

Washington, May 18.-Great pressure has been brought to bear on the president for changes in certain branches of the civil service, especially since the meetings of the senate committee investigating the workings of the civil service. The main propositions in the reforms demanded are briefly as fol-1. The abelition of the rule allowing reinstatement of government employes without examination only within one year from the time of their removal from the service.

2. The exception from examination of all chiefs of divisions, superintendents and foremen, and all officials whose duties are of an executive character. 3. The issuing of a general order r scinding all extensions of the classified service made since President Harrison's administration.

The president has given no intimation as to what course he will pursue. Notice to Absentees.

Washington, May 18.—General Grosvenor of Ohio, chairman of the Republican house caucus, has sent word to all the absent Republicans of the house impressing them with the importance of being present at the session of the house on Thursday, when a special order will be brought in to seeure action on the joint resolution for the relief of Americans in Cuba. It is expected that the Democrats and Populists will seek to force a vote on the Morgan resolution by some parliamentary expedient and the Republicans desire to have their full strength present to vote down any proposition designed to complicate the question raised by the president's special message.

Income Tax Explained. Washington, May 18.-Representative

Cuchran of Missouri introduced a resolution for submitting to the legislature of the sates an amendment to the con-stitution, which is as follows: "An income tax shall not be construed as a direct tax within the meaning of section 2 and section 9 or article 1 of the constitution, but the congress shall have power to lay and collect a tax on incomes derived from any source whatever without regard to apportionment or enumeration." Nominated by the President.

Washington, May 18.-The president Tuesday sent the following nominations to the senate: William W. Morrow of California, to be United States circuit judge for the Ninth judicial circuit: George Morgan Thomas of Kentucky, to be solicitor of internal revenue; Passed Assistant Engineer Frank H. Eldridge. to be a chief engineer in the navy; Samuel G. Morse of Washington, to be agent for the Indians of the Neah Bay agency in Washington. Mallory Elected Senator.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 15.—Stephen R. Mallory was elected United States sentor Friday on the twenty-fifth ballot. The vote was: Mallory, 53; Chipley. 44; Call, 1. Chipley led after the roll call on this ballot, but the changing of votes gave the election to Mallery.

Heavy Damage by Hailstorm. Elwood, Ind., May 17 .- Reports reach here that a most destructive hailstorm swept over Tipton county, west of here. The hail covered the ground several inches deep and did great damage to wheat, rye, oats and all small fruits.

WHAT TURKEY WANTS.

Sixteen Million Pounds the Amount of the Indemnity Demanded. Constantinople, May 17.—The sum of £16,000,000 (Turkish) is mentioned here as the amount of the indemnity Turkey will demand from Greece. Placards have been posted in the Stamboul quarter protesting against the shedding of Mussulman blood on the ground that the sacrifices imposed upon Turkey by the war are out of proportion to the advantages she can gain.

Athens, May 18.-A dispatch was received from Crown Prince Constantine, at 8:30 Monday morning, saying that the Turks, numbering about 30,000 men appeared in sight marching on Domokos, and that the attack would apparently be directed against the two wings, and especially the left wing of the Greek forces. Another dispatch from the crown prince, dated noon, stated that the Turks had drawn nearer and were then about fourand a half miles distant. Immediately after the receipt of this dispatch M. Ralli hastened to the foreign legations. visiting each in turn. Fighting between the Greeks and Turks at Domokos began early after noon Monday.

TEN PEOPLE KILLED. FRIGHTFUL DISASTER IN AN ORE MINE IN TENNESSEE.

Besides the Killed Several Men Were Injured and Some of Them Will Die-Miraculous Escape of Two of the Persons Who Were on the Tipple.

Florence, Ala., May 15.-A terrible disaster occurred at the Pinckney, Tenn., ore mines, thirty miles from here. The new tipple or ore dump, sixty feet high, fell, killing ten white men and boys outright, and seriously wounding several others. The killed are: Jose Remington, Cal Kilburn, William Kilburn, Jim Brown, an 11year-old son of Jim Brown, Cal Harris, Landin Harris, Richard Hardwick, Mat Crow, Jim Crow. The seriously injured are: Bill Sims, George Gamble, Cype Camble, Alex O'Dill. William Kilpatrick, Joe Newton, Donny Brown, two McElmores, M. Christian. Of the killed, Remington, Cal Kilburn, Brown, Harris and the two Crows, leave wives and from one to five children. These who are seriously injured broken logs and arms and crushed hip bones and internal injuries. Half the Injured Will Die.

At least half of those who are injured will die, but their names cannot be ascertained. All of the killed and wounded were on top of the tipple when it collapsed. Only two escaped without serious injuries. One young man, seeing his danger in time, jumped twenty feet to a tree and received slight scratches, and another jumped to the ground, turning over several times and alight of an his feet, only spraining his ankle. The cause of the collapse is unknown. The dump was a new one and was tested with twenty cars of ore less than a menth ago. There was only a small weight on it when it fell. mines where the disaster occurred belonged to J. Craig McLanahan. Drs. Arnold or I Bramlette went to the scene en a special train, eared for the injured and returned in the merning.

ENGINE PAILED TO WORK. Cage Load of Miners Precipitated to the Bottom of a Shaft.

Staunton, Ills., May 15.-The engine in No. 6 mine falled to work Friday forenoon and a cage lead of the men went to the bettom with great force. All the men, eight in number, are more or less injured internally. Their names are as follows: William Heary, injured in the back and ankle; Max Rausie, sprained back and nukles: Alvin Frickert, arms injured and sprained takles; F. Bangett, serious injury in the back and legs; B. Buddeke, seriously injured in the back and leg breken; F. Senneke, right leg broken and arms injured; Upke Devries, held on to the top of the cage with both hards and escaped with a few bruises: II. Hochmuth, shoulder out of place and sprained ankles.

AID FOR AMERICANS IN CUBA.

The President Sends a Message to Con-Washington, May 18.—The president Monday sent the following message to congress on the Cuban situation: "To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States: Official information from our consuls in Cuba establishes the fact that a large number of American citizens in the island are in a state of destination, suffering for want of feed and in dleines. This applies particularly to the rural districts of the central and eastern parts. To that end I recommend that congress make an appropriation of not less than $50,000 to be immediately available for use under the direction of the s cretary of state. "It is desirable that a part of the sum which may be appropriated by congress should, in the discretion of the secretary, also be used for the transportation of American citizens who, desiring to return to the United States, are without means to do so.

WOMAN-KILLER HANGED.

Murderer of Mrs. Geddes Executed at Paxton, Ills. Paxton, May 15.-Fredrich Hoellmann the murderer of Mrs. Weibke Geddes, was hanged in the Ford county jail here at 7:15 o'clock Friday morning. The murder was committed near Sibley, in this county, on Dec. 2. At the last moment Hoeliman consented to have a clergyman with him, and the Rev. George H. Wilson, pastor of the Paxton Congregational church, was in the condemned man's cell all night. Among the other crimes which Hoellmann was supposed to have committed is the murder of Mrs. Mowe, 70 years old, near Somers, Wis. Another was the murder of Mrs. Seitkin, 60 years old. Then came the death of Mrs. Hillendorf. whose husband is now serving life sentence for her murder. Mrs. Carrie Lenz's death followed soon after, and of each of these and several others Hoellmann was strongly suspected.

The Plays of Animals.

A German professor, Karl Groos, has written a book on the "plays" of animals, in which he undertakes to show that the desire to indulge in play is a true instinct among the lower creatures. As in man, the tendency to play is stronger in young animals. Professor Grees divides animal sports into a number of classes. Among them are: Play hunting, in which the prey is sometimes such as the animal naturally chases, and sometimes a "make believe;" play fighting, building play, nursing play, plays of imitation and others.

POINTS IN ONION CULTURE. Destroying Weeds With a Wheel Hoe.

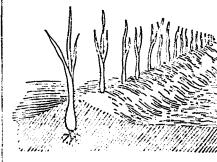

Moisture Required. In accordance with an old, time honored custom, most of the onion growers in weeding scraped the soil away from the plants, as shown in Fig. 1, leaving the bulbs almost fully exposed on the surface of the ground. It is related in Farm and Fireside that a Michigan gardener who raises onions on a very large scale pictures a different method altogether, and this with generally satisfactory results. After the onion plants get some size he throws some soil against them from both sides (with a Planet, Jr., or similar wheel hoe, straddling the rew). He does this while the weeds in the rows are yet small enough that they can be choked out by the soil covering. A row of onions thus hilled is shown in Fig. 2. The Michigan farmer claims that much labor in weeding is saved by this plan, and the onions do just as well as if lett exposed above the ground. If we can kill with a wheel hoe, and thus kill the weeds, it is surely a quicker way than to go over the rows, scraping the soil away from the plants with a hand weeder. The opinion is expressed that it will not make much difference in the growth of the enion whether we scrape the soil away or pile it up against the plants. A writer in the journal already quoted says on the subject of watering: 'I have been puzzled why some of my onion plants did not do well when they had the advantage of the best and richest soil. It now seems to me that the trouble was chiefly one of lack of water. Some of these plants need more water than is frequently given them, and in many cases the soil underneath the surface is allowed to become dust dry. We apply water from overhead, and the surface may appear quite wet, but we seldem have an inkling of how very dry the soil about the roots remains all this time. "The new fad of subirrigation has the surface watering that the water which we apply does not show on the surface until the whole bed, from the bottom In other words, the new plan tempts us to use water more freely than we would by overhead watering. Mest of our vegetable creps, especially lettuce, onions, celery, radishes, etc., require more water to do their test than is usually given

The Cowpea In Missouri.

The cowpea is advised as not seriously affected by extremes of heat or drought, and not easily smothered out by weeds. In central and southern Missouri it yields a larger quantity of vegetable matter, centaining a larger amount of nitregen, than does red clover. In those sections of the state adapted to it-namely, in central and southern Missouri-it is believed that it will prove more satisfactory as a green manure crep, especially on peer soils, than either red or crimsen clover, as there is less difficulty in securing a stand and no danger of the hot weather in midsummer killing the young plants.

The cowpea should be sown at the rate of about a bushel and a haif per acre, on soil prepared as for corn, either broadcast and covered with a cultivator to the depth of two or three inches, or drilled in with an ordinary wheat drill in rows 16 inches apart. It must not be sown too early in the spring. The best results obtained at the Missouri station were from sowings from the 1st to the 10th of June. If sown earlier, the plants grow slowly during cool weather and enable the weeds and grass to get a focthold. With later sowings the cowpeas grow rapidly enough to smother the weeds. The variety recommended by the station as best for general use in Missouri is the Whippoorwill. It is the earliest, and if sown by the 10th of June will in average seasons mature seed in any section of Missonri. The Clay, the Black and the Unknown or Wonderful are increasingly larger and later in the order named. The cured vines and pods make excellent hay, for which purpose the crop should be cut when most of the pods have been formed and the first ones are beginning to turn brown. A delay in cutting later than this causes loss of peas and leaves. If to be turned under for green manure, it is advised that the plants be allowed to become quite fully

lans Suggested Which Ingenious Farmers May Find Useful.

Stacking hay, and especially clover hay, is generally attended with waste. no matter how well the stacks may be built. In wet seasons the clover with be rank, ware to full of water and will be hard to cure and hard to stack. It will be liable to spoil in the stack, and in the end be worth about half as much as it ought to be, and therefore we say if you have not provided yourself with a hay shed make calculations to do so at once. This advice is given in Wallace's Farmer, with the following suggestions for building sheds: Hay sheds may be built in any shape or size desired. You can make a good one for $50, or you can put $500 into it. We suggest a cheap shed that will answer the purpose. Secure straight poles 20 feet long and 8 inches in diameter. They may be oak or cottonwood or telegraph poles or 8 by 8 pine timbers. Select a dry, high place convenient to your cattle yards 26 feet north and south and 40 feet east and west. Plant one of these poles 3 feet in the ground at each corner, or, if you prefer, n case you use 8 by 8 pine lumber, pu a good, stout oak post in the ground 4 feet at each corner and bolt your 8 by 8 on to it. In this case it will not be necessary to use more than 18 foot or, for that matter, 16 foot timbers, although 20 foot are not out of the way unless you are exposed to violent storms. Put another pole midway between the ends and two 13 feet apart at the sides, and you have the framework of your shed. You can then proceed in a way that any carpenter can point out to put on the plates, rafters and roof.

We would prefer having the roof flat,

Floral Fans.

Some pretty feminine fancies are reported from Vienna. Ladies at the present time eschew bouquets at balls and use fans made of freshly cut flowers, which can be renewed ever and over again. The local jewelers have invented gold and silver filigree frames, which are simply sent to the florists to have suitable blossoms attached to them. When a friend sends his or her photograph to another, it is the correct thing to slip it into a floral frame, sweet and fragrant as the morning, made of violets, resoluds or lilies, and the demand for them is very great. Another novelty is the introduction of fieral servictte rings at dinner parties. When a lady seats herself, she slips this ring off, and passing it over her hard wears it as a bracelet. The gentleman who has taken her in presents her with this ring, and she puts it on the other wrist. These trifles promote conversation and compliments. A Superior Stepmother.

The stepmother of General Lew Wallace was a woman of superior mind and intellect and pessessed many beautiful traits which left an impress upon her gifted stepson, for it is related that it was she that he kept in mind when he wrote "Ben-Hur," and the beautiful character of Bon-Hur's mother was none other than his own mother. Russian Lace In Favor.

Speaking of lace reminds me that Russian lace, the linen in cream color, or with blue or searlet threads inwoven and the silk lace in the same heavy designs, are more in favor than ever this season, that showing a bit of color being much used to give a distinctive teuch to shirt waists or simple taffeta bodices. An old fashiened silk lace has just come back into favor and was used on many of the prettiest evening gowns. This is of a silvery white and is exceedingly fine in texture, just such a lace as was used 60 years ago for the quilling on quaint bonnets and evening bodices. -Atlanta Constitution.

DOGS AND CATS.

They Are Not Always Antagonistic, as This Little Story Will Show. Dogs are usually regarded as the bitterest enemies of cats, but a famous German animal trainer has recently introduced some clever tricks in which both cats and dogs play a part.

In one of the acts Miss Mimisse, a cat, goes to a ball and takes her place in a chair, as becomes a modest young lady kitten. In comes Mr. Follette, the dog, and with many bows and smiles invites her to dance a polka. Miss Mimisse bows bashfully and takes Mr. Follette's arm, and they dance off together across the stage on their hind legs. Of course every one cheers. Another scene is a triumph in animal training. A big English dog named Cerberus is chained on the left side of the

After he has gone Cerberus slips his collar off, climbs up on the table and eats the entire meal. As he is swallowing the last mouthful a thought comes to him of the punishment that must follow, and he looks to his friend to help him out of his difficulty. Pippina is then taken by the collar and set on the table, where she remains, looking sad, while Cerberus-resumes his collar. The trainer returns, is suspicious of the unhappy victim sitting among the empty dishes and is about to punish her when she climbs up on her master's shoulder and whispers in his ear that Certerus is the 1 al thief. An Indian Cirl's Gratitude. During one of the dreadful Indian massacres in Minneseta 20 years ago whole settlements of whites were wiped out. Men, wemen and children were killed without any reason by the savages and many of them carried away as prisoners. In one of these settlements was a young woman, a teacher, who had been very kind to an Indian girl who had visited the settlement, and the girl never fergot the kindness.

Some time after, when the Indians were planning the destruction of this colony, the girl overheard some of their conversation, and slipping away made her way to the teacher's cottage, and giving an alarm conveyed her friend to a place of safety in the woods. After the battle was over she returned to her with a pony and directed her to the nearest settlement where she would be safe.—Child's Paper.

A Bishon's Wife. Mrs. Joseph Hartzell, wife of the new Methodist Episcopal bishop to Africa, has been her husband's earnest coworker in all philanthropic tasks and is well known in Cincinnati and vicinity for her broad minded beneficence and wise charity. She is a sister of Miss Helen Culver, who lately gave $1,000,-000 to the University of Chicago. Mrs. Hartzell will probably go as far as Europe with her husband, remaining there while he makes his first tour of Africa, and going to the dark continent with him two years hence, when he undertakes his regular labors there.

We know of but one community in the world where dyspepsia is practically unknown, and that is the Shakers of Mount Lebanon, N. Y. These good people have been studying the subject of digest on for more than a hundred years, and that they understand it pretty thoroughly, is evidenced in the foregoing fact. Their Digestive Cordial is the safest and best remady in cases of indigestion that we know of. A trial bottle can be had through your druggists for the trilling um of 10 cents. The Shaker Digestive Cordial supplies the system with food already digested, and at the same time aids in the digestion of other foods. It will almost instantly relieve the ordinary symptoms indigestion, and no sufferer need to be told what these LAXOL is the best medicine for children.
