In a critical article recalling the destruction of our National capitol by the British forces in 1814, Clifford Howard in the July Ladies' Home Journal will show that Dolly Madison, the most beloved and popular woman of the day, was courageous and fearless in the face of grave danger.

Few advertisers consider the real difference between the dodgers and the regular newspaper as mediums of bringing their wares to the attention of the public. A thousand dodgers are probably read by one-half the people in whose hands they are placed while the newspaper with one thousand subscribers is read by not only the entire families of the homes it enters, but in many communities is read by two or more families.

Our Washington Letter.

Special Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, June 19, 1897.

No man in public life is nearer to the American farmer to-day than Hon. J. H. Brigham, Assistant-Secretary of Agriculture, whose valuable service as Master of the National Grange has brought him in close touch with that great class of citizens.

Talking with your correspondent yesterday about the progress of the work being done by the Republicans here, he said:

"The Administration has been earnestly advocating the early passage of a measure that will correct the evil results of the Wilson low-tariff-free-raw-material law, a measure which is expected to give adequate protection to the agricultural interests and with a tendency to remove the present existing depression.

There were three carloads of stone have arrived for the stone pile. Tramps must now earn a good meal by the sweat of their brow or go elsewhere.

Barrett O'Hara son of Consul O'Hara of Nicaragua, left for that place last Thursday. Before he went he bought a box of very fine candy, which should be given to the young lady under 18 years old who should bake the finest cake which was used at the reception given by the Y. M. C. A. that night.

"What do you think about the revision of the tariff schedules in the Senate?"

"A new tariff bill as it passed the House is better than the bill as amended in the Senate."

"Now that the measure is under discussion in the Senate there is good reason to believe that it will be properly amended before it becomes a law. It is very cheering to note the breaking up of partisan lines on this question."

"What do you say, Mr. Brigham, in regard to the delay in the return of prosperity?"

"It is hardly fair to expect benefits from a protective system before the law has been enacted. People should not forget that we are still living under the Wilson low-tariff-free-raw-material measure, and that at present the only advancement or improvement in conditions is the anticipation of the good effects of the new measure."

"They are pretty well informed. This city comes principally from the cheap politicians who are striving to make capital out of the matter. There is no sense in asking for this promised prosperity before the passage of a bill which will cut off the enormous importations of foreign stuff, and give the country a chance to right itself."

"What do you think of the proposition for an export bounty on farm products, which was rejected by the Senate?"

"There might be some temporary benefits, but if it stimulated production the effect would be disastrous to the farmer. What troubles the farmer now and makes low prices for his productions is the fact that he is now producing more than the market will readily absorb of certain commodities."

Reginald de Koven, a native of Chicago, discusses the Social Life of that city with refreshing candor.

The bicycle races at Bangor last week were all won (except the ladies' race) by the Topic wheel manufactured by H. Foltzler of this city.

Tramps became so numerous and so bold that they indulged in much petty thieving, but since the organization of the stone pile they are making themselves scarce.

St. Joseph is going to have a great big celebration the 5th of July. The big gun which was brought here two months ago is being mounted, after which it will be covered until the 5th, when it will be unveiled.

Three more carloads of stone have arrived for the stone pile. Tramps must now earn a good meal by the sweat of their brow or go elsewhere.

CAPTURING AN EAGLE.

A Young Bird That was Caught for a Pet in Southern Arizona.

In St. Nicholas, Wolcott Le Clear Beard writes of "Moses, a Tame Eagle," one of his pets while he was engaged in engineering in southern Arizona. Mr. Beard gives the following account of its capture:

I say on the rounded top of one of the giant cacti with which these deserts are thickly studded an eagle the like of which, though familiar with the fowls of that region, I had never before seen, and I may here add that we never see with any certainty discover the species to which he belonged. I rode near to get a better view, but she desired no closer acquaintance, for, after unfolding her wings once or twice in a hesitating sort of manner as I approached, she finally spread them and flew heavily away, a couple of pistol shots from the wagon having only the effect of increasing her speed.

The cactus on which she had been resting was a very fair sample of the largest variety in the world of that interesting plant. Of the thickness of a man's body, it rose straight from the ground, a beautiful fluted column of vivid apple green, to a height of 25 feet, where a cluster of branches nearly as thick as the parent stem grew out from it and turned upward, while the main trunk, without a bend, rose several feet higher.

Between two of these branches and the trunk there was built a nest of good sized sticks, about twice as large as a bushel basket, and on this my eyes happened to be resting when the noise of the shots brought above its edge a little head covered with grayish yellow fuzz, out of which peered two big round eyes with an air of anxious inquiry.

In that desert country, far from railroads and towns, we led rather dull lives, so the several pets we possessed in the big permanent camp miles away served in no small measure as amusements, and as these we wished to add our young friend of the cactus. But how to get him down was a problem.

Somebody suggested that a volunteer climb the cactus, but no one thrust himself forward to do so. The Spanish name by which this species is known, which, put into English, means "that which scratches," and as the spines which thickly cover the outer edges of the ridges are from one to four inches long and as sharp as needles it will be seen that the name gives a good idea of the plant.

We did not like to cut it down, for fear the fall might injure the fledgling, but after some debate no better method presented itself, so the two axmen set to work. As the first blows made the green shaft tremble, the head appeared once more, trying, with an expression of concern, to get down, but this the nest prevented. Then it looked at me and said, "Jark!" This was the first remark Moses ever made to us and there was no time for more than, for the axes had eaten through the pulpy mass, which now began to bend to the left.

As the nest tilted we could see the thick body clinging to the head, with two big claws clutching wildly, while the weak, featherless wings flapped madly in an instinctive effort to support their owner.

The cactus came down with a crash, and, striking up, we looked for our bird, but only a little gray down was visible, with one leg helplessly extended from under a big branch which, broken by the shock, had fallen across and almost hid him. We feared he was killed, but when by means of an axhead hooked around the prickly stuff it was pulled aside he gathered himself together, quite unhurt, and then, surveying the strange beings who surrounded him, made up his mind to them with that philosophy we later learned to be one of his traits, and opening his great mouth to its fullest extent hinted that he was hungry and wanted something to eat.

There is a decided effort just now toward introducing curls into the coiffure. When it is of long rings hanging down the neck upon the shoulders, a revival of what was popular in this country about a quarter of a century ago, the effect is stiff and ungraceful. Two shorter ones, however, pendant from the hair mass in the middle of the back of the head, have the appearance of escaped locks, are less set and premeditated, and consequently much more picturesque.—Exchange.

Belts. Belts of bias black satin and black satin ribbon are still a feature of dress, and the wide belt of bias satin folds drawn around a slender figure is one of the best becoming fancies. Belts of ribbon with buckles in the back are seen on many of the new thin gowns, and three bands of inch wide black velvet ribbon, spreading a little distance apart at the middle of the back, where they are fastened with small steel buckles, is another pretty belt effect.

THE LADIES OF BUCHANAN

JOHN C. ELLSWORTH,

113-115 N. MICHIGAN ST., SOUTH BEND, IND.

During the past two or three years has been considerable trouble in this State caused by rye getting mixed in the wheat. A large quantity of wheat that would otherwise be of fine quality is utterly ruined for milling purposes by the rye that is mixed through the grain and many a dollar is lost to farmers that might easily and readily be saved by the exercise of a little care during the next thirty days to cut the clusters of rye out of the wheat fields. Michigan millers require the best grade perfectly clean wheat in order to produce flour of as fine a quality as they have been making the past ten years or more. Michigan first grade flours are justly celebrated in the most discriminating markets both at home and in foreign countries. This reputation cannot be maintained except by the use of first-class grain. Wheat mixed with rye brings only a low price in any market. Farmers cannot spend a little time to better advantage than to go through the wheat fields in the early part of June and cut it rye out clean.

The return of Julian Hawthorne the Special Commissioner sent out by the Cosmopolitan to investigate the miasm and plague in India, confirms the worst fears. British officials in India have undertaken to see the real conditions as they are, and to report on them. Eight and a half millions of people have perished and the reading of Mr. Hawthorne's description will open the eyes of world to a condition of affairs that is almost inconceivable in this year of jubilee.

The discussion of "Does Modern Education Educate, in the Broadest and most Liberal Sense of the Term?" is being widely read. It is a radical question, and reaches in the nearest way nearly all classes of men and women. The contribution to this discussion in this month's Cosmopolitan is by President Morton, who is at the head of a great college of technology established on modern lines.

Mr. Isaac Horner, proprietor of the Burton House, Burton, W. Va., and one of the most widely known men in the state was cured of rheumatism three years ago by using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease. He has not sufficient command of language to convey any idea of what I suffered, my physicians told me that nothing could be done for me and my friends were fully convinced that nothing but death would relieve me of my suffering. In June, 1894, Mr. Evans, then salesman for the Wheeling Drug Co., recommended Chamberlain's Pain Balm. At this time my foot and limb were swollen to more than double their normal size and it seemed to me my leg would burst, but soon after began using the Pain Balm the swelling began to decrease, the pain to leave, and now I consider that I am entirely cured.
