CHAPTER II—A year previous Conway, paying teller in a Philadelphia savings bank, was invited to the home of Florence Morley to a party. Knowing this would not allow him to return to bank as early next morning as usual he arranges with Horace Jackson—a fellow employe—to be on hand when the clockwork should release combination of vault. Returning to bank next morning Conway discovers the cash reserve of $400,000 missing.

CHAPTER III—Conway is accused of theft, but Mr. Morley, a trustee, proves an alibi for him, without however removing the general suspicion.

CHAPTER V—Florence shortly after this writes to assure Conway of her continued respect and trust. In the old Nelson home, so long deserted, Conway hears strange noises; sees a ghostly figure in the moonlight, shoots at it, only to find it a reflection of himself. Unearthly voices are heard even after daylight comes speaking in disjointed unmeaning phrases. Conway learns from Sarah that Sylvester Morley and his daughter have a summer residence in near neighborhood.

CHAPTER VI—Discovery is made that both doorways to one of the cellars have been walled up. Florence driving by with her father sees Conway, but offers no salutation. Jackson has frequently been coming from city and sometimes calls on the Morleys. Morleys.

CHAPTER VII—Conway sees Sonntag, his agent. He knows nothing of wailing up cellar doors. Sonntag connects mysterious lights and noises with the sealed doorways.

CHAPTER VIII—Meeting between Florence and Conway results in promise to marry. Jackson had proposed to her, been refused, but upon accusing Conway of robbing a compact had been made that she would marry Jackson in case theft could be traced to Conway.

(CONTIN ED.) CHAPTER IX.

After supper I lit a cigar and walked up and down in front of the house. During the meal Mrs. Snyder had kept up an incessant chatter concerning the mysteries about my house. I did not hear half her words, but nevertheless there was an element so foreign to my thoughts in the few sentences I caught that I was glad to escape her. The evening shadows were settling over the valley, and the moon was rising in splendor. Leisurely I tramped to and fro, giving up my thoughts undisturbed to the pleasant realization of new-found hanpiness and to anticipations of future joy in the constant companionship of my sweetheart. The eigar finished, I repaired to my room, with the intention of reading. But the evening was so fine that I soon blew out the light and sat down by the Then I remembered how, on rising from the same chair the evening before, a tall, white specter had confronted me. This recollection coming to me suddenly in the midst of happy thoughts caused me to glance somewhat nervously toward the closed window opposite.

I could see a faint image of myself swaving to and fro in unison with the motion of the rocking-chair in which I was seated.

Directly underneath was the cellar. whose solid walls, defying investigation of the interior, had so impressed the old nurse Sarah with an unreasonable fear. Even Sonntag, who, from his vocation, was accustomed to hold himself well in hand against surprise, had exhibited profound amazement when informed of the circumstance.

It was irritating to have thoughts concerning the mysteries which seemed to abound in the old homestead come crowding up and play at cross-purposes with the happy state that the meeting with Florence had induced.

The mysteries had seemed trivial in the daytime, had been wholly forgotten in Florence's society, but now that I was again alone and the night coming on, the thought of the cellar came back to me tinged with a shadow of fear. And the voice, the unearthly voice-what was it? Atfirst I had felt a hope that the vague account given by Mrs. Snyder might have something of truth in it. The unraveling of a chain of events which seemed to border on the supernatural would be a new experience to me, and therefore furnish a diversion in the quiet, uneventful life I expected to lead in Nelsonville. But now I needed no such diversion to lead my thoughts away from the robbery and its blighting effect upon my life and honor. I did not regard that affair any longer as the one great barrier which stood between me and happiness, although the desire for exculpation was keener than ever. I was sure of Florence's love and trust, but I could not wish her sweet self linked forever to one over whose life a cloud of suspicion hung. Her love was an inspiration, an incentive: under its influence I hoped to accomplish results which even the vast resources of the bank had failed in. To devote all my thought, all the energy I possessed, to this one end was

"And what did you answer now my purpose. That small mysterious events were arising with their attendant irritations, threatening to divide the resources of my mind and body which I desired concentrated to one end, filled me with impatience. Then, too, the certainty that Horace

Jackson seemed to feel that Florence would be compelled to fulfill her promise, weighed heavily upon me. Why had Jackson changed his opinion regarding my innocence? What developments had arisen which would throw new light on the case, and make an innocent man bear the consequences of a crime he knew nothing of?

Just before retiring it occurred to me that the lights of Mr. Morley's house might be seen from the attic window. It seemed as though sleep would be sweeter after a glimpse of those lights, some of which were casting radiance over Florence's loved form.

I left my room and quietly ascended the stairs. Arrived at the attic, I grouped my way to the small window were with bureal through which I had gazed that morning. I stood for a few minutes contemplating the lights of the Morley residence on the hill opposite. A brisk breeze was piping down the valley. Through cracks and crevices it crept into the old attic with soft wailing and moaning. There was homesickness in the mournful tones, and a sadness, as though the spirits of the departed were sighing for a return to old familiar scenes. What was there about my old place that produced such a depressing effect upon my spirits? The happiest moments of life have a slight shadow to them, as though to warn us that all joy is fleeting. Perhaps it was only this shadow which caused the undefinable feeling of insecurity. But there was a quality, also. which breathed of events to come of dire import. I seemed like the mariner on a dark sea, conscious of breakers ahead, and knowing not which way to steer. Even my dreams in the restless slumber of the past night seemed premonitions. That vague forebodings should come when my mind was filled with thoughts of the beloved one who had given me her heart, was most strange. I could not shake off the depression. The darkness of the attic deepened it. I was about to retrace my steps to the stairway, when sounds reached my ear which caused me to pause and listen -a series of raps, alternating with a rasping noise, but so feeble and indistinct that I was unable to form an opinion of the cause. All I could determine was that they seemed to come from above. A loose shingle or piece of timber, rattling in the wind, would have made a dull, heavy sound, while the gentle raps I heard had a clear, mellow ring, like that produced by the vibrations of a tuning fork. After lighting all the matches I had with me and making as thorough an examination of the roof as the brief flickering lights would allow,"I groped toward the stairs. Probably half the distance to the landing was passed when upon my ear fell the voice, the unearthly voice, the weird tones of which I had first heard in my room downstairs. It could not possibly be heard up in the attic, when speaking in my chamber. So then it must have the faculty of being able to change from one apartment to another just as the whim seized

Like the voice which had sounded downstairs, the tones were intermittent; in the present instance they alternated with the rappings. After standing motionless, with hearing strained to the utmost, I noticed that at no time did the voice and the rappings sound together. The few detached words I distinguished had no possible reference to myself; nevertheless the voice seemed me. I was unwilling to attribute the sounds to supernatural causes, for I was not a believer in the supernatural. It might be that the parties who had walled up the cellar found some of their plans, whatever they may have been, upset by my advent, and had taken this way to frighten me and cause my departure. On second thought the idea did not appear tenable. For if the purpose was to frighten me, a fiercer and more terrifying demonstration would be used. Was there only one voice which in some way sounded both in my room and in the attic, or were there various voices all over the place, each independent of the other? I hastened downstairs, but when I reached my room no sounds were heard While in my bedroom, I had no way of knowing if the voice in the attic was still sounding. The remainder of the evening I spent in rushing from my room to the attic and back again, and quietly stealing through the vacant rooms, in the hope of laying hold of some explanation of the strange voice. I did hear it again in the attic, but there was no sound in my room, though I had immediately hastened there.

Finally I gave up the quest for the time, and, thoroughly fatigued, undressed and went to bed. My head had hardly touched the pillow when the report of a pistol reached my ear. The sound was muffled, as though coming from a distant apartment. Indeed, it seemed to come from underneath, as had the sound of the slamming door; but yet not directly beneath; it would undoubtedly have sounded much plainer had the shooting taken place in the walled-up cellar below my room. There was no answering shot, and no more unaccountable noises, though I hearkened intently.

All through the night I lay vainly trying to find repose, but sleep would not come. I was resolved to leave no stone unturned to unravel these mysteries. For the events, trivial as they seemed and as they probably would prove when explained, were certainly irritating, and threatened wholly to destroy the rest and peace I had expected to find in Nelsonville. It was exasperating that, besides being burdened with a load of guilt which rightfully belonged on other shoulders, I should also be subjected to petty annoyances which promised to make my stay in Nelsonville anything but peaceful. True, I was my own master. I could leave the old house on the morrow. But to be utterly routed and driven from the field by a few harmless though inexplicable happenings was contrary to my nature. Then, too. Florence; how could I leave the place, now that I had found my love abiding bere? When the first rosy tints of dawn showed in the east, slumber closed my weary eves. As on the previous morning, Mrs. Snyder was compelled to arouse me for breakfast. On the present occasion she announced rather testily that the morning meal had been waiting for over an I could not resist the desire to begin investigations immediately, and therefore after hastily dressing I walked all around the house, keeping at such distance from it that every part of the roof could be seen. There was a line of wire running along the side of the road, which, as I afterward ascertained, belonged to a telephone circuit embracing half a dozen towns and villages in the vicinity. This wire crossed the roof of the house, but was not fastened to it in any way, swinging at least three feet clear he ridge-pole. Within a few inches of the wire was a section of lightning rod. The air was still, and the wire hung motionless. On the previous night a strong breeze had been blowing, as I remembered from the mournful cadences it produced up in the attic. Here was one mystery which could be very reasonably explained. The wind had swung the wire, causing it to strike against the perpendicular portion of the lightning rod, thereby causing the series of gentle vibratory raps I had lieard. Satisfied that the other mysterious events would also give up their secrets

upon investigation, I went to break-

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Snyder. I did oversleep. I'll be more punctual in future." "So you schleep ofer yourself? What for?" she inquired.

"Oh, I was up rather late the evening before," I remarked, indifferently, for I knew questions relating to the strange things which had come under her observation were trembling on her

"You remember our discovery of the walled-up cellar?" I continued, Mr. Sonntag's suggestion regarding the wisdom of secrecy coming to mind. She nodded, and her old eyes brightened expectantly. "It is advisable to keep the matter a secret," I continued. "You have not mentioned it to anyone, have you?"

"Then please do not, for the present." She promised compliance with my request. As the cellar was the next mystery I determined to turn my attention to. I went home immediately after finishing my breakfast, harnessed the horse in the buggy, and drove off toward Sarah's If I had the necessary tools it would not be a difficult matter to cut the floor of my bedroom.

Sarah greeted me effusively. The good soul seemed to have a constant fear that each time she saw me would be the last. "Can you let me have a saw, a chisel and a hammer?" I asked. "Ach, yes. Bud vhat for, Nel?" "I am going to find out what is in that cellar." I answered. "How you ged in?" "By cutting through the floor."

ber under de floor is awful thick." "I know that. But I have plenty of time, and so will be able eventually to get through." The tools were produced, and I start-

"Dat will be hard work, Nel. De timed homeward, Sarah sending after me an earnest appeal for carefulness and the avoidance of danger. I intended to commence the task of tting into the sealed apartment im mediately upon my arrival home. The thought that danger of some kind might lurk in the cellar would not deter me. And the pistol-shot I had heard the last night seemed to indicate that there might be a degree of peril in the work. I did not like the idea of the dank. musty odors ascending into my sleeping apartment, but I could easily remove to one of the spacious chambers upstairs, and thus escape them. On arriving at the house, I took the tools into my room. I looked over the floor, and, after quite a time debating where the hole should be made, determined to begin over in one corner. Before I had time to commence operations, a loud knock sounded on the front door. Hastily shoving the tools under the bed, I went out through the hall and opened the door. My visitor was Mr. Sonntag.

CHAPTER X. I ushered the old lawyer into the room. After a few commonplace remarks he said: "That walling-up of those cellar doorways has made quite an impression on me. Suppose we have a look at them."

I was very willing. Together we descended the stairs to the storeroom. Mr. Sonntag examined the place where the door had been, minutely, about eight months to get through the as though he expected to find in the stones of the wall some intimation of what was on the inside. He even went so far as to scratch off patches of the whitewash. "It is rather dark here," he finally said, glancing around. "Perhaps the door can be opened," suggested. "I have the key with me, but maybe it would be best not to use it. Give me a few matches." I handed him all I had with me, and he, by the light afforded, examined closely the places where he had scratched off the whitewash. While watching him, the thought again occurred to me that I had seen or met him previous to my arrival at Nelsonville. "Do you know it seems as though I had seen you before?" I said. "Yes, so you remarked during your visit to my office yesterday," Sonntag replied, as he stepped back to where I was standing. "There is no doubt of that being s room behind it is being used for some purpose, entrance is not gained from here. See what pains have been taken to hide the work. The whole wall has been newly whitewashed. If that had not been done, the new mason-work would be glaringly perceptible. Let us go into the house cellar and have look at the dividing wall there." It needed but a glance to see that this wall had not been tampered with. The whitewash was old, and there was no spot where it had been renewed. "I have already examined the outside place," the old lawyer remarked.

"That was not whitewashed, and, if remember rightly, the stones used looked old and worn like the rest of the foundation," I said. "Yes; the stones used in both the doorways were old ones. But they are of a different kind of stone," he re-as we ascended the stairway.

Massachusetts, presented some figures regarding the proportion of pulmonary tuberculosis in females to that in males in Massachusetts. The rate in 1851 was 1,451 females to 1,000 males; in 1890, 1,055 females to 1,000 males, and in 1895, only 974 females to 1,000 males. Eighteen hundred and ninety-five was the first year in the history of the state in which the number of deaths from phthisis in females was smaller than that in males. The fact that a uniform reduction in the rate of female deaths began some five years ago, about the same time women were beginning to ride the bicycle extensively, Dr. Abbott considers significant, and he is inclined to attribute the decrease in the death rate to the great increase in open air exercise among women by the use of the bicycle.—Sanitarium.

MICHIGAN MELANGE.

NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST TO OUR READERS.

the Past Few Days Reported by Telegraph-Matter Selected for the Benefit of Our Own People.

Shepherd, Mich., Sept. 10.-The socalled Struble murder mystery is developing into a story of defalcation and suicide. It is known almost beyond doubt that Struble died by his own hand, and the charitably inclined say he was insane when he did it. One by one the supporters of the murder theory are forsaking that idea. The officers have been working upon the suicide theory for about a week. What first turned their attention to this idea was the discovery of a mysterious depositor, who evidently had extensive dealings with the Farmers' bank. On Aug. 2 it was discovered that Frank Sutton had deposited $500, which was withdrawn on Aug. 11. No one knew anything of such a man, and the mystery about him was deepened when word was sent by the Jackson City bank that ceived and dishonored, for they knew no such man. Was Struble's Handwriting. Local officials got hold of the check and began to see light when it was discovered to be in Cashier Struble's handwriting. This Sutton transaction, they argue, shows the motive for suicide Struble knew he had no funds wherewith to pay depositors. What became of the money J. F. Ryan intrusted to him to carry on business with no one knows. According to the new theory the depositors, if the crash came, could not realize 1 cent, and as they were relatives or personal friends of Struble's he could not bear the thought of facing the men he had betrayed. Frank Sutton was manufactured for the occasion to lead people to believe that Stru-ble was tricked out of the money, instead of using it himself, as he evidently did, and thus thinking his name would remain untarnished and his relatives would be secured from the inevitable anguish the discovery of his dishonesty would cause he accomplished a check for $1.000 given upon them payable to the Shepherd bank had been re-

his own destruction. His Revolver Found. Deputy Sheriff Estee, assisted by Sheriff Mogg and Prosecuting Attorney McNamara, have followed this idea persistently, and knew that a trying case was practically cleared up when the weapon which caused Struble's death was found. It is his own revolver, which was discovered on Saturday carefully hidden in the bank vault with three of the chambers empty. As three bullets had been fired into Struble from a 32-caliber revolver, and the weapon found is of the same caliber, the point is an important one. The supposition is that Struble arose on Saturday morning, put his revolver in his pocket and went down to the bank. Then, with the cunning of insanity, the bank's interior was disarranged to show evidence of a struggle. He fired the three bullets into his own person, the revolver was hidden, and the misguided man lay down to die.

Had Contemplated Suicide. It is evident that Struble had contemplated suicide for a long time, as a few minutes before 4 on Friday afternoon he called the treasurer of the Maccabces into the banking office. The lodge had $119 in the bank, and Struble handed it to the treasurer, $100 in bills and $19 in silver, remarking at the same time that they might be able to pay it on Saturday, but it was better to be safe. Then, just before banking hours for the day were over, he crossed the street to the Commercial bank and asked how they were for currency. The directors of this bank, becoming suspicious that all was not right with the Farmers' bank, had already warned their cashier not to lend Struble any money. Thus the unfortunate man's last attempt to stave off disgrace and death was unavailing.

RIOT IN MARQUETTE,

Hoodlums Attack Members of the Houghton, Mich., Club. Marquette, Mich., Sept. 14.—Because the Houghton Baseball club left the grounds on account of the umpire's decision on a foul there was a baseball riot here Sunday afternoon in which a number of Houghton's players and supporters were roughly handled, though none of them seriously hurt. The ball park was packed, quite as much with Houghton as with Marquette people, all the former having come down on the steamer Christopher Columbus, which brought a crowd of fully 3,000. In the sixth inning, with the game 6 to 3 in his favor Captain Larsen pulled his team off the diamond. They got on a dray to go down town. No coner were they out of the gate than a mob of hoodlum rooters who had been heaping vocal abuse on them while inside the park, set on them with stones, and even ran up and pulled some of the players off the dray. Whenever one would be pulled off the dray he would be the center of a free fight, Marquette hoodlums attacking and the Houghton rooters rallying to the defense. Ball bats and rocks were freely used. The police were unable to handle the mob. Michigan Crop Report. Lansing, Mich., Sept. 10.-For the Michigan crop report for September correspondents secured from threshers the results of 3,757 jobs, aggregating more than 65,000 acres of wheat threshed, the yield from which was 1,091,483 bushels. an average 16.73 bushels to the acre. In the southern counties more than 52,000 acres threshed averaged 17.34 bushels an acre. In the central counties the average is 14.02 bushels, and in the northern counties 15.3 bushels. The area in wheat in the state last May as compiled from the returns of supervisors was 1.518.919 acres. This is the probable acreage that was harvested this year. Corn made slow growthin August, butithas not been damaged by frost and there is good reason to expect a good and well-matured crop. The dry weather has undoubtedly injured potatoes, but the extent of damage cannot now be estimated. COUNTY IS IN A VERY BAD WAY.

Has No Money and Its Credit Is Away Below Par. Crystal Falls, Mich., Sept. 14.—Iron county, of which this place is the county seat, is in a bad way financially. The county poor commissioners have been purchasing their supplies for the county wards from a local company and paying for the goods with county warrants, which the company refuses to accept for further supplies unless the commissioners can show that money to take up the paper is in sight. It takes $2,300 annually to supply the needs of the county charges, and the commissioners are in a quandary to provide means to keep the paupers from starving.

Circuit court convenes here the 4th of next month, but there will be no jury trials this term as Judge Stone has writn Prosecuting Attorney Handy saying that if there was no money in the county treasury to pay jurors no jury panel would be made: the county treasurer says he has no cash, so there will be no jury cases. In addition to the case of Murderer Bons there are three other criminal cases on the docket that will have to go over until the county exchequer is replenished, providing the prisoners do not die of old age before that time arrives. County warrants are offered at 25 per cent. discount, but no rush to take them up at that figure is noticeable.

his house here Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Mike Garvin, of Isabella county. Just before his arrest Griffin told that he had hidden away from the officers because he feared to tell what he knew of the death of Banker Struble. He said: "I know a little about that Shepherd affair, but I will not disclose what I know until the proper time. I have been warned by one of the occupants of the mysterious rig which went away from the bank that morning I saw them, that if I opened my mouth about the affair it would cost me my life. "I know that if any burned books were found in the furnace under the bank they were placed there more than a week after Struble was killed. If the Shepherd authorities will search the basement of the Catholic church they will find things that will create a sensation, unless these things have been removed." Beyond this Griffin refused to talk, and he left Saturday night in charge of Deputy Sheriff Garvin for Mount Pleasant. The facts brought out at the coroner's inquest weaken the suicide theory.

ARRESTED FOR ARSON.

Michigan Man Charged with Setting Fire to His Store. Menominee, Mich., Sept. 14.-Nels Larson was arrested Sunday morning by a detective on a farm nineteen miles from this city, and is now in jail awaiting trial on a charge of having set fire to his brick store building, which was partially destroyed in the early hours of Friday morning.

Up to a week or ten days ago Larson and his family occupied rooms in the rear upper part of the store. The fire originated in the basement, where a pile of excelsior saturated with kerosene was found, partly consumed. From this nile of inflammable material was a fuse made from a twisted lamp wicking, also saturated with kerosene oil extending to the Larson apartments, between the inner and outer walls. A pail of oil was also found, into which one end of the fuse was placed in the upper room. The damage to the building was less than $500. Larson carried an insurance of $2,900 on the buildings and $450 on household goods. It is is said that he was seen riding toward the city on the county road leading to the place of arrest the night of the fire.

Frightful Crash of Two Train on the Santz Fe in Colorado. Newcastle, Col., Sept. 11.-The most disastrous railway wreck that has ever happened in Colorado occurred at 12:15 Friday morning, a mile and a half west of this town. Denver and Rio Grande passenger train No. 1, west-bound, collided with a Colorado Midland stock train going east, wrecking both engines and several cars in both trains. Shortly after the collision fire broke out in the ruins. The mail, baggage and express cars, smoker, day coach, and a tourist sleeper were burned. A number of passengers not killed outright, but who were pinned in the wreckage and could not be extricated, and perished in the flames. There were about 200 passengers on the train. It is estimated that twenty-five persons were killed and as many more bruised, scalded and burned, of whom over six are likely to die of

The accident occurred at the worst possible point. Two minutes of running time and they would have avoided the wreck, as each engineer could have seen the approach of the other train. The trains collided on a curve or bend round a mountain, and there was no opportunity to avoid the wreck, or even slacken their speed. The surviving trainmen say the trains were not running fast. As yet it has not been possible to obtain a full list of the dead and injured. Following is a partial list: Dead-Mrs. Alex. Hartman and two children, Hersher, Ills.; Engineer Ostrander, Robert Holland, fireman; Charles Leiper, Leiper, Pa.; James Keenan, postal clerk. Injured-Alex. Hartman, Hersher, Ills., both legs broken, will die; Robert Gordon, engineer, ruptured and terribly bruised, may die; Fireman Hines, terribly burned, cannot recover; Miss Pearl Cornell, Oregon, leg broken; John H. Standart, Blackfoot, Ida., cut and burned, both legs broken: J. H. Sheets, Iowa, right hand cut; R. J. Sheets, Leiper, Pa., slightly hurt; James C. Foley; express messenger, Denver, bruised; William Messemer, express messenger, Denver, bruised; W. L. Hawthorne, conductor, bruised; P. H. McAvery, Victor, Col., burned about the head, back bruised: Frank P. Mannix, Victor, Col., slightly bruised.

Four Persons Drowned. Waterloo, Ia., Sept. 14.-Rev. Scott

Hyatt and wife, Royal McQueen and Miss Mae Tibbets, were drowned in Cedar river, Waverly, Sunday. Hyatt is an Adventist. The party went on an excursion Sunday. Not returning at night search was made. Their uneaten lunch, hammocks and wearing apparel were found on the river banks. Early Monday morning the bodies of Hyatt, McQueen and Miss Tibbets were found in a deep pool clasped together. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Hyatt was found 300 yards below caught in a barb wire fence. The theory is that Miss Tibbets and Mrs. Hyatt, her sister, got beyond their depth. The men tried to save them and all drowned. The parties were highly connected in Waverly.

The fall rush of business has commenced with the Warren Featherbone Co. Monday they started the large factory with nearly a full force of hands and are running on full time. There are about 150 on the pay roll this week. Most of the hands employed in the large shop have been enoying a few weeks of rest and have again resumed labor with renewed energy. The company has made several improvements about the factories during the summer and are now making one which will be a great benefit to them. They have tapped the city water main and are placing water in their factories. The city water will be used only for fire protection. A line of sprinkling pipes will be placed on all the floor and on the roof, which will give the very best fire protection that can be obtained. In case of a fire they could flood the entire building and it seems as though it would Luther N. East and wife to Melvin | be impossible for fire to get much of have. The coal miners' strike has disclosed such facts, and brought to light such differences, that work will probably be very soon sesumed by a large share of the men. The farmers are helped by higher preces for wheat, and while Western receipts do not show that they have marketed a tenth of their crop, assurance of handsome profits to come prepares them to buy liberally hereafter. The farmer can still sell his wheat and corn at prices that seems like a fairy tale in comparison with the low is Superintendent of the shears devalues of the last two years. To-day | partment, Mr. L. A. Nickerson's famithe market for December wheat was at one time up to $61, while May corn brought 35 cents.

The great majority of people who study market conditions do not believe that there will be any material reduction from present values. They argue from a basis of 50 cents as a possible low point for wheat, but assert that in view of the admitted enormous European shortage wheat might be worth $1.15 per bushel on the present crop. These people firmly believe that dollar wheat will be an ordinary article of commerce next winter, and 40-cent corn is also in their catalogue of probabilities. They point to the fact that even at the present comparatively high range of prices there is an immense export business being done, 80 boat loads being taken in New York to-day. It is beyond question that the wheat market is buoyant and facts which would orlinarily depress it to a serious degree are at present ineffective. * * * The interiors of one thousand of the most attractive homes in the United States have been photographed by The Ladies' Home Journal. One hundred of the best of these pictures will be reproduced in that magazine. The first article of the series-"Inside of a Hundred Homes"-will appear in the October Journal. Bed-chambers, reception and dining rooms, bathrooms, halls and apartments of every kind will be pictured just as they are in daily use. Each picture contains dozens of suggestions. Every woman is interested in taking a peep into the most attractive homes in the land, to see how they are furnished and arranged. She wants to get practical hints and new ideas for furnishing her own. The houses photographed by the Journal are those occupied by persons of moderate income. Their interior arrangement shows what perfect taste can accomplish with a little money and the touch of a woman's deft fingers. Homes in every State in the Union-from Maine to Kansas City Kitten That Fooled with Fly Paper. A small, gray kitten in Kansas City walked back and forth in a store window the other day; conscious of her graceful appearance she lifted her feet daintily and curled her tail up over her back. Suddenly a noise in the store startled her, and she lowered her head and dropped her tail, as she turned stealthily to investigate. This was a with a piece of sticky fly papez, and all the efforts she made to remove it but increased her discomfiture and humiliation. She shook her lithe body, and the tail was wagged vigorously, but the paper held her faster and tighter than it ever held a fly. She put her forepaw down; it stuck. Her little hind paw came to the rescue, and was held where it fell. Frantic and mewing pitcously, she rolled over and over, till enwrapped in a drapery of flypaper, she tumbled off the window platform and was gone. No one knew where or how, with but two feet free and those on corners diagonally opposite, she had managed to get out of sight and hearing. But she did it, and the flypaper went with her. The Queen's Meissonier. In the Contemporary Review Mrs. Emily Crawford, writing her reminiscences of Queen Victoria, thus describes the purchase of one of the cleverest little canvases Meissonier ever painted The occasion of the buying of the picture was a visit to the Palais de l'Industrie in Paris. "Prince Albert singled out as worthy of admiration a horrid little painting that had every quality manipulation could give—'Le Rixie,' or 'The Brawl.' Ruffians were shown engaged in a deadly tussle. The technique was marvelous. Meissonier up to subject was inauspicious. It would have startled an old Roman in the prince's place." Certainly Prince Albert had good taste, and so had Louis Napoleon, as far as Meissonier is con-Tectotalers Were No Good. One of the best-known stories in connection with the late Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson's advocacy of temperance tells how he had been on a visit to one of the three or four small towns in England which have no public houses. Although there were 4,000 people there the doctor was nearly starving. One day a young medical man came to Sir Benjamin for advice as to taking the practice, and Sir Benjamin, placing his hands on the young doctor's shoulders, said: "Take my advice and don't. Miss Wallace was born in Colombia, where she gained her fluent mastery of French and Spanish and began the studies of South American life which led to her appointment as a lecturer in Spanish-American institutions.

Two years ago she accepted the position of dean of women at Knox college and introduced many new and valuable ideas into the work of the college. Last year she was appointed a traveling fellow in the University of Chicago and went to Paris. Here she spent the year at the National library and the College de France, working in the fields of Spanish and French literature, Arabic and related studies. At the university she will give a series of courses on the development of the Spanish and French drama. Her father is a Presbyterian missionary in Mexico.—Chicago Post.

Married Names. I lately heard a convenient if not startlingly new suggestion concerning married names—namely, that a woman should invariably retain her maiden name, hyphened on to that of her husband. Some of the more advanced wo man's rights champions think she ought to keep her own name only, an absurd | his hard-earned money, idea which few brides would approve or husbands agree to, and which would be quite incompatible with the idea of family unity, but no such objection applies to the suggested double name. When we speak of Amy Eaton or Amy Lowndes to friends who perhaps do not know that she is married or have forgotten to whom, confusion ensues, which would be avoided if we might say "Amy Belgrave-Lowndes" or "Belgrave-Eaton." In many ways the retention of the maiden name would be an immense help to that quick identification which is so useful in social life.-

A New Chicago Club. Roman Cathelie women, like Jewish women, are not much given to clubs. Hitherte, at least, they have cultivated the domestic virtues rather than literature and oratory, but of late years they are slowly widening their range and coming to believe that a woman may be none the worse wife and mother for having some intellectual interests. One large Roman Catholic woman's club has started in this city, spread out its branches elsewhere and acquired a membership of several hundred. Now a second society is under way. It is to be called Scrosis, and, like its namesake of New York or the Fortnightly here, is to be purely for study and literary work.—Chicago Times-Herald. Mrs. Ellen M. Together with the danghter of General J. K. Morehead, who held a special permit from General Grant to pass through the lines, Mrs. Watson went in and out, giving her service where it was most needed-in diet kitchens or by the side of the sick and wounded soldiers. Only 150 badges similar to Mrs. Watson's

The Circular Skirt. The newest French skirt-in circular shape, designed expressly for cutting wide wools—measures 334 yards at its widest circumference. It is plain in front, with all the fullness at the back, and is fitted closely over the hips by means of a very deep, curving dart on each side, these darts being necessary to hold the skirt in perfect shape over the hips. When finished, they are covered with an ornamental stitched or trimmed strap and fastened under a fly as a means of getting in and out of the skirt, which is not opened at the back. -New York Post.

She Ran a Trolley Car. Miss Constance Ingalls, daughter of ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, always has had a notion that a woman could operate an electric car as well as a man. and to demonstrate it she secured a per mit from Superintendent Bendure the other night and for a short time operated an electric car on Main street, Atchison, Kan. The Main street run is over a mile long, and, although the street is filled with carriages in the evening, says the Boston Journal, Miss Ingalls ran the car without a mishap. Her successful work as motorman is liberally complimented by her friends.

She Was a Pioneer. Mrs. Charlotte Fowler Wells cele-

She was an instructor in the American Institute of Phrenology for many years. Feeling the need of rest last autumn, she transferred the work to her niece, Miss Jessie Allen Fowler. Mrs. Fowler is vice president of the American Institute of Phrenology and is a member of the New York Sorosis. She has enjoyed good health almost continually.

Her Political Aspirations. Professor Felix Adler, in an address on "The Political Aspirations of Women," savs: "In no country is there more deference shown to woman than in ours, not alone in the outward exhibition shown them of courtesy, but genuine respect, which comes from all ranks of society. TERRIBLE COLLISION

LARGE NUMBER OF PEOPLE KILLED IN A WRECK.

William J. Bryan, Late Candidate for Pres ident, Helps to Recover the Bodies of the Dead and Rescue the Injured. Emporia, Kan., Sept. 10.-Three miles east of this city Wednesday night occurred one of the worst wrecks in the history of the Santa Fe road. At least twelve men were killed and ten or twelve badly wounded. The dead are: - Bragman, Topeka; James Brennan, engineer, Topeka; R. A. Doran, clerk, Emporia; William Frisby, engineer; M. Gonzales, fireman; Nate Hollister, fireman, Topeka; J. F. Sours, express messenger, Kansas City; unknown man; Ben Walters, fireman, St. Joseph, Mo. The injured are: C. D. Adams, City of Mexico, painfully bruised; J. F. Butler, county attorney Chase county, hip broken, may die; John Dagan, Topeka, face smashed; D. C. Ester, Kansas City, express messenger, both legs broken; Claude Holliday, Lawrence, Kan., express messenger, both legs broken, will die; William F. Jones, Kansas City, leg and arms broken; B. P. Metik, Atchison, badly bruised; William Patrick, Kansas City, leg and arm broken; Phil Schier, Kansas City, hip crushed; Mike Sweeney, Gainesville, Tex., back hurt; C. A. Van Vliet, Kansas City, badly bruised W. J. Bryan Escapes.

William J. Bryan, the free silver advocate, was on the train, but was not injured. He was one of the most active men in the crowd of rescuers. He helped to go through the wreck, braving the most terrible dangers, assisting in carrying out every one of the dead and wounded men and paying the greatest attention to their care. The wreck was the result of a collision between the fast mail going east and the California train going west. The Mexico and California train was drawn by two engines, and when they struck the fast mail all three engines exploded and tore a hole in the track so deep that the smoking car of the west-bound train went on top of the wreck of the three engines and two mail cars and balanced there without turning

To add to the horror of the scene in this car the front door overhung a terrible volume of smoke and steam, while the rear door was so tight that it would not open. In jumping out of the windows two or three passengers fell through the rifts of the wreck underneath, and it is impossible to tell what happened to them.

Danger Light Was Bad. Behind the west-bound train that was wrecked was a freight train. Its engineer stopped at Lang for orders. He says that the red light, the danger signal, was hung out by the operator there to warn the west-bound passenger to stop, was burning so dimly and the glass was smoked so badly that he could not see it until he had left his cab and gone close up to it. The dimness of this light was probably the cause of the accident. The engineer of the east-bound train could not see the warning signal as he rushed past and he pulled the throttle wide open and sped on for Emporia, seven miles away. The night operator at Lang, whose duty it was to see to the signal lights, was a new man at that place. He had only been on duty there ten days.

Elevator Pool-Will Be a Great Boon to

Ship Owners. Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.-It is announced that the Western Elevator association, the big elevator pool, which has withstood all attacks for many years and was known as one of the most successful combinations in the country. would break up at the end of the present season. The dissolution of the pool was brought about by compettion, the very thing it was organized to guard have started up in the city that the business of the pool was seriously interfered with. This led to hints of the withdrawal of some of the members and it was agreed that the wisest thing would be to discontinue the organiza-

May Break Up Sooner. Secretary Cook of the pool says the report is true, and that the end of the season would witness the end of the pool. He also added that there was a cossibility of the breaking up coming before the close of navigation. Members of the trade are divided over this, however. Some think it would be foolish to break up the association now, when there is so much business for the elevators. But all are agreed that the encroachment of the Ryan, Raymond. and Export, especially the last, has been serious. In addition the new Northern elevator, larger than all the rest of the opposition together, will be put in operation, and also the Electric. All these houses have refused to join the pool, and the Ryan and Raymond are at work at half rates. Almost any development is to be expected this fall.

End of a Big Trust The end of the Elevator association is the end of one of the most successful and at the same time hardest fought trusts in the country. It was formed to control all the elevating business in the port of Buffalo, which handles nearly all the grain carried on lake vessels. All houses, big and little, excepting a few canal and floating elevators, were taken into the pool and those which it was found unprofitable to operate were RT: TT 8 27 TE TE TE closed. The charges for handling grain, which were borne by the vessels, were fixed at a high figure, and there was no redress and no competition. Elevators not in the combine were frozen out of the field. The earnings of the levators in operation were so large that the little ones, which were kept closed, were able to pay more dividends on the investment than they could be running. Many Efforts to Break Trust. Many determined efforts were made

Rich Find at Cripple Creek. Colorado Springs, Col., Sept. 14.—Colonel H. S. Ervay has just brought from Cripple Creek a piece of ore weighing 100 pounds which is literally alive with free gold and which will carry values aggregating fully $100,000 to the ton. The ore was taken from a new find and is in many respects the most sensational ever made in Cripple Creek. The rich rock was uncovered at a depth of only six feet. Considerable excitement has been caused by the new find, as the Cripple Creek formation has all along been thought to be of such a nature as to preclude the possibility of gold existing in such abundance in the country rock. Jury Could Not Agree. San Francisco, Sept. 14.—The jury in the Angus-Craven case has failed to agree, standing 8 to 4 for Mrs. Craven. Just before midnight the jurors came into court and announced their inability to arrive at a decision. They were then discharged by Judge Slack. Attorney

Wounded. Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 13 .- Nineteen dead and forty-one wounded is the record of the Winchesters wielded by the deputy sheriffs at Lattimer Friday afternoon. Eleven of the unfortunate miners dropped dead in their tracks under the terrible battery, four more died during the night, and four were added to the record Saturday morning. The work of identifying the dead was actively going on all night and is still so far from complete that an accurate list of the victims will not be obtainable for some time to come. The Ninth regiment of the Third brigade, state militia, under Colonel Dougherty of Wilkesbarre, was the first detachment of the state militia to arrive. They came in after 9 o'clock Friday morning and camped on the common in the center of Hazleton. So far as being wildly excited this place is pervaded by a sort of sullen quietude which appears even more ominous. All sorts of rumors were afloat, one being to the effect that 3,000 strikers from the south side miners were marching on Hazleton with the purpose of wreaking vengeance for the shooting. Indignation against the deputies is running high, and the charge is publicly made that there was absolutely no necessity for the horrible slaughter. The miners, it is declared, were not armed in any way, and if the deputies feared trouble a single shot over their heads would have dispersed them. The fact is undisputed that many of the victims were shot through the back while flying from the guns of the deputies. The local police force has been considerably increased and has received orders from Chief Filler to stop the slightest attempt

Pittsburg, Sept. 14.—The great coal strike is over and it is probable that it will be many years before there is another. It has just been learned that President Dolan of the Pittsburg district announced in the Calumbus convention that if the compromise of 65 cents a ton was not accepted by the delegates he would return to Pittsburg and call off the strike so far as this district was concerned. Not only that, strikers back into the mines. This

A corps of at least five trained nurses is absolutely needed because it is said that many of the sick at Ocean Springs are not receiving the attention which only experienced yellow fever nurses can give. New Orleans will probably find some way of meeting the request, but if it is unable to do so, the federal government will probably be appealed to.
