"I had to stop a moment on the way, dear. A matter I promised to attend to," and again he bent and laid his lips upon her brow, then pressed them to hers. Time was, and only a few days gone by, when she used to meet that fond caress with a kiss as fond, as lingering as his own. Now she lay there patient, unresponsive. Something prompted him to pass his arm underneath her neck and to draw her head to his breast, and she let herself go, unresisting, but her cheek did not nestle happily, confidently, as was its way. Her big, pathetic eyes were downcasi, even averted.

"I wish I knew some way to gladden you a bit, my Brownie," he murmured. using for almost the first time her father's own fond pet name for her, and he was startled beyond measure at the result. One instant her face lighted as with sudden radiant joy, then quivered all over with pent-up emotion. Then the pretty month began to twitch and the lips to tremble, and then, despite every effort, she turned back to her pillow and burst into a passion of tears, great sobs shaking her slender frame from head to foot. "Florence! Florence!" he cried, in utter dismay and trouble. "What is it, sweethcart? What is it, my pet, my precious? Ah, don't turn from me like that. - You are not well, my own, or you would not break my heart by shrinking from me. What can I have said to so distress you?" And now he would take no denial, but had clasped his arms about her and drawn her to his breast again, and began kissing away her tears and striving to check her sobbing. It was useless.

cry-let me cry!" "Oh, let me pleaded-"it's what I need." And so in pain and bewilderment he yielded to her wish and strove to content himself with murmuring soft, soothing words and holding her close to his heart, and at last the storm of tears seemed drifting away and she could speak in answer to his pleading. and presently she looked one instant into his eyes and began:

her, and I never heard such love and tenderness in his voice as when he speaks to you." Then, as though stung, Florence whirled upon her, and, with dilated, burning eyes, and a hot flush overspreading her face, with lips close set as though to beat down the tremors that strove for the mastery, answered with startling vchemence: "But I have—it's when he calls to her

-talks to her in his sleep!" Then Mrs. Hayne sprang up aghast. One moment she stood gazing incredulously down at Florence, a world of sorrow and pity in her eyes. Then, with her hand to her ear, cried "Hark!" and hastened to the window. Far out across the still, starlit level of the parade a trumpeter was sounding officers' call.

CHAPTER X. That night the riflers, seven companies, were whirled away by special train to the rescue of the railway shops and roundhouses at Cimmaron Springs, a hundred miles to the north. One of those unaccountable manias that prompt men to appropriate other people's property had seized upon the employes of the road. The Valley division had been forced to abandon all trains, and it was only a question of time, said the ringleaders, when the Mountain division would follow suit. Passenger and cattle, fruit and freight trains were blockaded. The mails, sent through at first with a single car, were presently belated, then blocked entirely, and Uncle Sam, who had been showing his teeth for twenty-four hours, now showed his hand. In the old days of Sedgwick it was the cavalry that was perpetually being bustled off on the warpath, leaving the infantry to hold the fort, but of late the Indians had kept the peace and the cavalry the post. Then came the sudden outbreak of trouble on an eastern road, the swift assurance of sympathy from brethren in the west, and then a strike that speedily established the fact that there were still savages in the valley of the Bravo, for men who tried to stand to their duty were kicked and battered into pulp, and helpless women and children were burned out of house and home.

The colonel was in no wise eager to go on any such mission. He kept at the metaphorical front, but the actual rear, of his men, secure in the precaution that cool-headed Capt. Hayne was forward on the pilot of the engine. If the trestle work were sawed away or bridges burned at inconvenient points, Hayne would not be apt to let the train stumble into the pitfall. It was nearly dawn before the special reached Santa Fe Junction, but the riflers marched thither soon after midnight, leaving many weeping wives at home. They had not the stoicism of those women long schooled in such Semi-Official Statement of Policy ness as Does the War.

Madrid, June 2.- The attention of the public Wednesday was absorbed in the condition of the Bank of Spain, which is considered more serious than any reverse of the war, inasmuch as the impossibility of the bank to help the government means impossibility to continue the war.

There was a long procession at the bank during the day. All classes of people were represented, and many women were in line waiting their turn to change notes into silver, fearing the notes would soon be subject to disnature of an official statement of the count. plan of campaign of the United States

If the run continues there is danger of the bank's stock of silver becoming exhausted, which would compel the government to resort to a forced currency, issuing notes of small denomination. It is hoped, however, that the panic will subside, leaving the bank a margin of silver.

Blow at Union Labor.

Milwaukee, June 2.-In the superior court union labor received a hard blow from Judge Sutherland in the case of Erdman Schultz against the Schlitz Brewing company, granting a tem-porary injunction to restrain the company from interfering with Schultz in the employment of non-union labor in the execution of a building contract. OUR SHIPS STILL GUARD THE HARBOR

Insurgent Troops Gather on the Hills Ready to Cooperate with Schley's

Squadron - The Latest About Wednesday's Battle.

Cape Haytien, June 2.--- A special from Santiago confirming news of Tuesday's bombardment says that great events are expected hourly there. The American warships are in front of the harbor. The insurgents are gathering on the hills. The Spanish have taken extraordinary precautions to guard the harbor entrance. A dispatch from Santiago says:

Wednesday morning the American squadron reappeared off Santiago, but Wednesday. contented itself with firing two shots, which are believed to have been signals agreed upon with the insurgents, who, numbering 2,000 or 3,000, are said to have concentrated three or four miles from Santiago. Great events are expected hourly at Santiago. The Spanish authorities have taken extraordinary precautions and have placed in the narrow pass at the entrance of the harbor special contrivances which permit the closing and opening of the port at will. The condition of the population of Santiago since the beginning of the blockade has grown rapidly worse, and it is now said to be nearly desperate. Food is very scarce and the poor people are finding it almost impossible to obtain any because of the enormous prices. The expectation is general that Santiago must soon fall into the hands of the Americans. Cervern May Have Gone. Madrid, June 2.- A dispatch to the Imperial from Havana declares that Admiral Cervera's squadron was not in Santiago bay Tuesday. The whereabouts of the squadrom is not known. The Cristobal Colon, the dispatch says, is the only Spanish ship at Santiago, where its boilers are being repaired. London, June 2,-The Mail says it is quite possible the Spanish vessels escaped from Santiago on Sunday night, the attack by two Spanish torpedo boats on the blockading squadron being merely a blind to cover their move ments. Chicago, June 2.—All reports of the bombardment of the forts at the entrance of Santiago bay agree that only one Spanish warship, the Cristobal Colon, was seen. No other Spanish warship is mentioned in any account.

Claims Defeat for Americans. Madrid, June 2.—In the senate Wednesday Count Casi Valencia asked if "the news of the American repulse at Santiago de Cuba was official." The minister of marine, Capt. Aunon, re plied affirmatively, adding: "The news is a good augury for further victories, which the courage and high merit of our sailors give a reason to hope for." The senate then quickly "noted with satisfaction the brilliant victory of the Span ish fieet."

Says We Were Repulsed. Madrid, June 2.-Official circles ridicule the American pretension to treat the Santiago affair as a simple reconnaissance. They point out the unlikelihood of four vessels being employed in entrance to the harbor is better protected by mines and guns than might have been anticipated from Admiral Dewey's experience at Manila. It is believed here that this is all Admiral Sampson desired to discover, and that the Spanish senate has little to exult over. Admiral Cervera is expected to repeat the torpedo boat attempts, with p view of keeping the American squadron as distant as possible, in order to facilitate his escape. Unless he can do this the Americans are almost certain to eventually capture the three or four Spanish cruisers now known to be inside Santiago.

"Do you think-could we-go back to the-cantonment for-just a little while?"

"Why, Floy, darling, we've only just come from there."

"I know. And yet-and yet-oh, it seems months -- years since -- since then!" And now the sobs again became uncontrollable, and in dread and distress he sprang up to call the servant and bid him go for Mrs. Havne and the doctor. Florence protested, even implored, but to no purpose. The message was sent, and before many minutes both were there.

He would send over some sedatives from the hospital; and then he bustled out. and was glad to get away. Then came an orderly with the colonel's compliments, and would Mr. Merriam step over to the office a minute; and, glancing across the parade, Randy was surprised to see that bright lights were shining from the windows at headquarters, and there were signs of unusual life and stir about the infantry barracks. Quickly he mounted the stairs and again knelt by the side of his young wife. She was quieter now, but evidently weak from the violence of her emotion, if from no other cause. Smiling sympathetically, Mrs. Hayne arose from her place near the head of the sofa, that he might come closer and fold Florence in his arms, as she felt sure Florence wished to be folded, and Randy did come nearer, and took the stender hand in his and spoke tenderly and fondly, and bent again and kissed the pale forchead, lingeringly, and all this Florence scemed to accept without other notice than silcnce and submission. Mrs. Hayne gazed with swiftly changeful expression.. This was something utterly new, utterly unlooked for. What could have occurred to turn Florence Merriam, fondest, happiest of wives, into this limp, unresponsive creature? Surely, it could not be that there lingered one remaining doubt of Randy now. He had ignored so utterly, so successfully, the wiles of the coquette to whom he owed allegiance a year gone by. She heard him murmur: "I'll be back very soon, dearest," saw the sudden upward sweep of the white eyelids, and the miserable, questioning look in the dark brown eyes. "The colonel had sent for me to attend him at the office," he explained, and the eyelids drooped again. Then he pressed his lips to hers, and they answered not at ถ11. Blinker's battery of mounted artillery, and what fairly pestered Baxton was why the colonel should have sent for Mr. Merriam within ten minutes after the dispatches began coming in just after retreat, and Merriam wouldn't tell. The first dispatch was from department headquarters, and bade the colonel hold his entire regiment ready for instant duty and a journey by rail. Bux was with him when it came, and together they had gone to the office. Then was handed in another, which the colonel read but did not pass over to his second in command. On the contrary he thought a bit and sent for. Mr. Merriam, and took him to one side and had a conversation with him of five minutes' duration that was inaudible to everybody else. Bux did catch a word or two, but could make of it nothing that did not stimulate his curicsity. "Killed," "Mescalero moun-tains," "written statement"—"McLane -only 23," were some of them, and when he took the commanding officer's desk the next day he ransacked it to find that dispatch, supposing it to be something official. Schooner Lady Jane Grey Founders and Only 27 of 61 Passengers Are Saved.

Seattle, Wash., June 2.—A special to the Times from Victoria, B. C., says the schooner Lady Jane Grey foundered 90 miles west of Cape Flattery Sunday, May 22. Only 27 out of 61 passengers were saved.

The Jane Gray's passengers were prospectors with the exception of Rev. V. C. Gambrel, a missionary, who, with his wife and child was on his way to St. Lawrence island in the Behring sea. weeks. The effect of this notice may be He refused to place his wife and child on board the launch, saying: "The ves-Rico, lest the prize slip from our grasp sel is doomed and we will die together." Among the prospectors was a party of 16 headed by Maj. Ingraham, who were outfitted by Prince Luigi, of Italy, for a two years' prospecting trip in Alaska. Of this party the only survivors are Maj. Ingraham, L. F. Lessey, C. H. Packard and G. H. Pennington. The surviving passengers suffered a great deal of privation and for 30 hours their only food was a sack of prunes and a sack of turnips from the ship's stores. Sufficient water was caught by spreading a tarpaulin during a rainstorm.
