WANTED. Two men to cut up corn. L. S. Bronson, OBITUARY.

HORACE BLACK was born at Putney. Vt., April 13, 1812, removing from there to Massachusetts, where he was engaged in the manufacture of furniture at Ashburnham. On Jan. 1. 1834, he was married to Miss Harriett Petts, the ceremony being solemuized at Ashburnham. Eight children were born to this union, five of whom together with his faithful wife, survive to mourn the loss of a husband and father, such as fall to the lot of few persons to have possessed. One of the children was Mr. Sumner Black, who died at Buchanan in 1886. The surving children are, Mrs. Harriet M., wife of Mr. J. L. McKie of Three Oaks; Mrs. Sarah E Smith of Buchanan; Mrs. Eliza J. Lindley of Ft.

of Buchanan and Mrs. Nellie E., wife of Mr. W. O. Miller of Buchanan. In 1857, Mr. Black and his family removed to New Buffalo in this county, and two years later he removed to Buchanan, where he has lived an honored and respected citizen and, at his pleasant home on Front street, surrounded by his loving family, the end came at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Sept. 1, 1898, and he peacefully passed away to his reward. The deceased was well-known to everyone in this section, and although he had already passed the allotted three score and ten years yet the news of his decease will be read with regret by all who knew him. From early manhood he had been identified with the Presby-

LOVE MAKING. In These Days Is Done in the Open

Without Any 'Arry and 'Arriet

Business. Billing and cooing are as much a part of summer time diversions as eating ice cream or drinking soda water, but billing and cooing "in evidence" are confined to social strata in which the fashionable maid and man have not the slightest concern, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. In fact, ultra-smart romancers romance so elegantly that unsympathetic daws find little chance to peck at their hearts. Climb as high as you may the heights of common sense and you will fail to discover wandering in the dale of amatory foolishness a single couple belonging to really good society willing to afford the slightest chance to the curious for funmaking. Sentimentalists gaze in amazement at the latest victims of love's dream. There is a blissful maid, an enamored lover. The pair eschew shadowy corners. They court electric lights. They are the center of the gayest midsummer groups.

Why? Because shying away from friends and relatives, watching feverishly for a chance to look into each other's eyes, hold each other's hands and whisper silly nothings into each other's ears has too much of 'Arriet modish young people.

This late century love-making is delightful to those who must fill the unenviable position of onlookers. There is no greater misery than being obliged to put up with the selfishness of a spoony pair blind or indifferent to and 'Arry mannerisms to suit these their duties to polite society. The new order of affairs may well cause interested people to rejoice. A reserve so excessive that a match may be made and the wedding arrangements completed without anybody being the wiser brings a distinct blessing to all parties concerned.

Machine-Made Pottery. A machine for the manufacture of pottery has recently been invented which does the work of several men at half the cost. It can turn out 16 flower pots per minute, against the one produced in the same time by the old process, and it is also used for the manufacture of cups, saucers and jam jars.

The state affords few large commercial apple orchards. Although the total product is great it is gath-

Grapes will be a very full crop. Many of our farmers depend upon luck for a livelihood, and right here wish to say that luck is a cov and fickle dependence, and he who depends upon it will often go to bed hungry. The farmer who depends upon well directed efforts is the one who will thrive.

Seed time and harvest come but once a year, and if you are not ready for them "you are left," as the homely but apt vernacular expression goes. If your crops are not planted at the proper time they will not mature before a change of season renders their maturity impossible.

In Holy Writ we are admonished to owe no man, and while this admonition seems to have been intended for our temporal good, it is sinful to contract debts that we are not reasonably certain that we can meet as per contract. Debts grow, and the amount required for their liquidation this year will be insufficient next. -Farm, Field and Fireside.

That's What the Licutenant Thought About Burying the Dead, But It Didn't Prove So.

One night Chaplain Jones, of the Texas, heard volley firing on the Cuban coast, which was being guarded by the blockading squadron, and was told that marines were being landed from the Marblehead. The next morning, says the Buffalo Express, Capt. Mc-Calla came alongside of the Texas in his launch and announced that four of his men had been killed and that there was still fighting. Chaplain Jones then approached Capt. Philip and said that he would like to go ashore and look after the wounded and read the services for the dead. Capt. Philip gave instant permission, and the chaplain prepared to go ashore with a boatload of marines that was in charge of a young lieutenant. As the worthy chaplain clambered over the side of the Texas the lieutenant looked up from the boat and called out: "Where are you going?" "Lieutenant," replied the chaplain,

"I am going to bury the dead." "For goodness sake give us a chance to get killed first," rejoined the of-"Lieutenant, I am going to bury the dead that have already fallen," responded the chaplain, whereupon the lieutenant quickly replied: "I beg your pardon, chaplain, I was

The cornfield that is to be sowed to wheat this fall will probably be very grassy, owing to the many rains and winds which have kept the ground wet and laid the corn down flat in many places. If possible the corn should be cut as early as the 10th of field with disc harrow. This harrow is invaluable in grassy ground and in driving it should be "lapped" over half the ground it covers in going once around the field. This will give the field a double working with the harrow and by following with spike tooth the ground will be in fine condition for the drill. The corn should be cut short to the ground and the disc harrow will make short work of the corn "nubs" in going over them

Corn ground put in order with disc narrow is far preferable to that plowed, for plowing so late will leave the soil too loose and wheat will throw out during the winter.

The following timely article commends itself to the farmere of this vicinity who have become awakened to their need of commercial fertilizers as a help to get a catch of clover:

Failure to get a "catch" of clover after winter wheat has frequently been a source of great annoyance to farmers using the old standard fouryear rotation, especially in those sectione which have been cropped for many years. This failure has been ascribed to many things, generally a lack of water, or the probably imag-

The usual practice in the four-year rotation is to apply a heavy topdressing of farmyard manure to the corn in the spring, with, perhaps, a light application of well-rotted manure in the fall in connection with two to five hundred pounds per acre posed to answer not only for wheat. but also for the clover and timothy crops to follow. So long as a good clover crop can be secured, a good timothy crop is sure to follow. If the clover fails, the timothy fails. also, and the rotation is broken with catch of clover being admitted, we naturally seek a method by which there will be no hit or miss about the matter. We all know the importance of the natural fertilizers in growing clover, and it is quite probable that the cause of so much failure is due to a deficiency of potash and phosphoric acid in the soil immediately after the maturity of the wheat. Farmyard manure contains its nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid in much the same proportions as are required by the wheat crop atself. It stands to season that if the wheat is not above fertilize for their clover, in which case the timothy will look out for itself. The mineral fertilizer can very well be applied in the fall on the wheat, though a top-dressing of 75 to 125 pounds of muriate of potash per acre in the spring will prove effectual. In the spring at least 125 pounds of muriate of potash per acre should be broadcasted. By following this plan all that can be done to insure a catch will have been done, and the nitrogen gained by the clover will be worth twice the cost of the GBITUARY. BERTHA ALEXANDER, beloved daughter and only child of John and Naney Alexander, was born in Berrien county, Mich., Sept. 27, 1868. Her mother passed away when Bertha was but one year old, but on the near approach of death, she gave Bertha to the care of her Aunt Rose and Uncle Mitchell Alexander, and she lived happily with them as their own loving child until the time of her departure, which occurred Aug. 25, 1898. Bertha had a most amiable disposition, and loved by all who knew her. She was kind, noble, gen-

The funeral, conducted by Elder Wm, Roe, was held at her late home in Niles township, Aug. 27, and the concourse of sympathizing people in attendance, attested the high esteem in which she was held by her neighbors. Mr. Devin will be remembered by Buchanan people as being President of the First National Bank during the years of 1873 and 1874. After leaving the bank he kept his residence, the old Fulton place on Front street, until sometime in 1888 or 1889, when he returned to his farm home in Ottumwa, Iowa.

Mr. Devin was respected, and is affectionately remembered here for his honor in business, his great courtesy and sincere kindness in all personal relations.

She Issues a Proclamation on Her Birthday Accepting the Throne-Thanksgiving Services Held Throughout the Netherlands.

Amsterdam, Sept. 1. - Solemn thanksgiving services were held here Wednesday in all the churches, as well as in the churches throughout Holland, upon the occasion of Queen Wilhelmina attaining her majority. Queen Wilhelmina, accompanied by the queen mother, attended divine service in the Great church here in the morning. The grand duke of Saxe-Weimar, the grand duchess of Mecklinburg, the prince and princess of Waid, the diplomatic corps, the civic and military authorities and 4,000 other persons were present. The court chapiain, C. K. Vanderslier, preached. He dwelt upon the importance of the memorable day and invoked the divine blessing upon the queen. The chaplain also thanked the queen mother for amply directing the education of her daughter.

The papal nuncio, Mgr. Taranassi. and the ministers from Catholic countries attended divine services in the Catholic church. Her First Proclamation.

Upon the occasion of her birthday and the attainment of her majority, Queen Wilhelmina Helena Pauline Maria issued a proclamation to the people of the Netherlands. It was worded as follows: "On this day, so important to you and ine, I desire before all else to say a word of warm gratitude. From my tenderest years you have surrounded me with your love. From all parts of the kingdom, from all classes of seciety, young and old, I have always received striking proofs of at-tachment. After the death of my venerated father, all your attachment to the dynasty was transferred to me. On this day I am ready to accept the splendid though weighty task whereto I shall be called, and I feel myself supported by your fidelity. Receive my thanks. My experience hitherto has left ineffaceable impressions and is an earnest of the future. My dearly loved mother, to whom I am immensely indebted, set me an example by her noble and exalted conception of the duties which henceforth devolve upon me. The aim of my life will be to follow her example and to govern in the manner ex-pected of a princess of the house of Orange. True to the constitution, I desire to strengthen the respect for the name and flag of the Netherlands. As sovereign of possessions and colonies east and west, I desire to observe justice and to contribute so far as in me lies to the increasing intellectual and mutual welfare of my whole people. I hope and expect that the support of all, in whatever sphere of official or social activity you may be placed, within the kingdom or without, will never be wanting.

The personal popularity of Queen Wilhelmina with the people at large is exemplified in a pleasing manner by the festivities in progress here, which are in the nature of a curtain raiser to the big celebration at Amsterdam next week. The break of day was greeted with the firing of cannon and the ringing of hundreds of church bells. Business was entirely suspended and the entire city appeared in holiday attire. Every house and shop was decorated with the national colors, entwined in all cases about the portrait of the young queen. Wednesday evening there was a general illumination of

The official announcement is made that the queen and her retinue will proceed to Amsterdam Monday morning. The ceremonies attending the installation are to be extremely simple and democratic in their nature, but the festivities of the week have been arranged on an elaborate scale. The queen and her retinue will be greeted at the railway station by the civic ausion to the palace will follow. The city is already being elaborately decorated, and the cost of the triumphal arches alone will reach nearly $500,000. The enthronement will take place Tuesday at the royal church, which is a short distance from the palace. Following the installation there will be a state drive around the city, so that the sovereign at close range. A novel feature in connection with the event will be the letting loose of 10,000 carrier pigeous, collected from every nook and corner of the kingdom, which will bear the tidings of the queen's ascension to the throne to their respective localities.

Holland's Flag Floats. Grand Rapids Mich., Sept. 1. - For the first time the flag of Holland was floating Wednesday from the Michigan consulate of the Netherlands. Vice Consul John Steketee, who was made Knight of the Order of Orange Nassau for long service as consul, sent the following cablegram to Queen Wilhelmina: "Congratulations upon your birthday from 100,000 Hollanders residing in Michigan. May God's blessing rest upon your majesty and people." Rough Riders to Be Relieved.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Adjt. Gen. Corbin said late Wednesday night that the First volunteer cavalry (Roosevelt's rough riders) would be relieved from service at once. The very first night of his stay at Mt. Greton he saw haw useless the garment would be, but for the sake of association, or for some reason or another, he held on to it. In the bustle and confusion of equipping the large army that responded to President McKinley's call there was some delay in furnishing clothing to the boys at Camp Alger. Here is where that nightshirt came in handy.

The soldier's blue shirt was pretty well worn out, and his bathing utensils were considerably the worse for wear. Adjourning to his tent the other night, the Pennsyvanian got out the hitherto useless article and with a sharp knife ripped it in half.

DEATH HIS CHOICE.

Lieut. Col. Henry, of the French Army, Takes His Own Life.

COMMITS DEED WHILE UNDER ARREST

Confessed to Forging Evidence Against Dreyfus-Gen. Boisdeffre Resigns - Developments May Cause Revision of the Case.

Paris, Sept. 1.—Lieut. Col. Henry, of the French army, who was one of the principal accusers of Capt. Dreyfus, killed himself Wednesday night, 24 hours after his arrest for forgery and perjury. He cut his throat with a razor which he had concealed in his valise when taken to prison. Made a Confession.

He had confessed that he forged one of the letters upon which Dreyfus was convicted. The letter purported to reveal secrets of the French government, and Dreyfus was accused of being in the pay of Germany. Henry admitted to the minister of war that his testimony in the Zola-Dreyfus trials was false. His confession was so complete that it virtually upsets the entire case against Dreyfus, and the government has virtually promised a new trial. Henry's only attempt to justify his conduct was the statement that he thought the honor of the French army required the conviction of Dreyfus.

The scene of Lieut. Col. Henry's avowal was most painful. When he saw it was almost useless to deny further, his tongue grew too thick for his mouth, and he was unable to speak. It was feared that he would have an apopleptic stroke. After his arrest he was permitted to visit his wife while on the way to the fortress at Mont Valerien. She thought he really had a fit. He addressed her as "my poor wife," adding: "I am under arrest.' The officer accompanying him was under orders not to lose sight of him for a moment, and, therefore, he could not see his wife alone. All three proceeded to his bedroom to get the necessary clothing. Henry then clasped his wife in his arms and exclaimed: "My conscience is pure and free from every sting."

This exclamation is much compiented upon, as going to show that he may possibly have forged the letter nder orders from his superiors.

The confession threatens to rekindle the Dreyfus agitation more heatedly than ever, and seems likely to shake public confidence in the army. Even the Liberte, a strong anti-Dreyfus organ says: "It must cause the deepest pain to all honorable men that officers of such standing show such a lack of moral sense."

Dreyfus May Get a Rehearing. It is reported that at the cabinet meeting the ministers admitted that a revision of the Dreyfus trial was absolutely unavoidable and a public announcement that the ministry has decided to initiate such a revision is expreted soon. Another report is that the minister for war has declared that he intended to compel the resignation of the chief of the general staff, Gen. Boisdeffre, and his subordinate, Gonz, because, in two years personal investigation, they had not succeeded in discovering the forgery and led successelves to the genuineness of the documents. All the newspaper comment in London, Berlin, Vienna and elsewhere regard a revision of the Dreyfus case as now inevitable. Esterbazy to Be Retired. The Temps asserts that the disclosures made to the ministers have deeided the minister of war to place Maj. Count Esterhazy on the retired list.

Gen. Boisdeffre Resigns. Gen. Le Mouten de Boisdeffre, chief of the general staff of the French army, has tendered his resignation to the government. Gen. De Boisdeffre, in his letter of resignation, explains that he resigns owing to his misplaced confidence in Lieut. Col. Henry, which led him to present as genuine what was forged evidence. M. Cavaignac. the minister of war, in reply, asked Gen. De Boisdeffre to remain to "see iustice rendered in the matter." Gen. De Boisdeffre thanked M. Cavaignac for proofs of his esteem, but persisted in his resignation. He will be replaced, COMFORTS OF THE SOLDIERS. The Treatment They Now R. selve Is Greatly Improved Over That in the Civil War.

"Bill," said a soldier from Camp Alger to his comrade on a street car in Washington, one day lately, "that was a mighty mean breakfast we had in camp this morning. It makes me almost sick to think of it."

"Yes," said Bill, "it was bad. We've had roast beef every day this week, and I am getting mighty tired of it." So the discontented volunteers commented on the camp fare, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The quoted language is liferally true. It goes to show that this government may stretch the limit of the paternal and yet not give entire satisfaction. Old soldiers of '61 who visit the camps of '98 are amazed at the difference in the treatment of volunteers. C. C. Bell, of Boonville, spent a day or two at Camp Alger with the Missouri troops. He is a man of close observation. He ate with the boys, examined their clothing and their blankets and went through the tents with the eyes of a critic. When he came nack to Washington he said:: "We had no such treatment as this in the civil war. Those soldiers have uniforms more comfortable in cut and of better material. We wore those old long-tailed coats. The soldiers of to-day don's know what shoddy means. Their hard tack is better than ours was. It is cooked better and of better flour. They get fresh meat. EXPECTED A LIVING BURIAL Spanish Soldiers Taken at Santiago Thought Americans Were Barbarians.

There is no doubt that many of the Spaniards after the battle of Santiago believed that the Americans would shoot all captives. A touching story at El Caney that shows this feeling was related by a staff officer, writes Rev. D. Heury C. McCook in the Phila-delphia Press. After the capture of the fort that crowned a hill a burial party under Capt. Allen proceeded to inter the Spanish dead, which was done by laying them in their own trenches dug before the earthworks, as was also done at San Juan. Near by lay a lad of 17, shot through the hips. As the bodies of his comrades were borne behind him he would turn his head and follow the sad work with a horrorstricken countenance. The American officer observed his face, and, rightly discerning his feelings, called an inter-

"No, no! You shall be cared for presently, and your wounds dressed and tended to as if you were an Amer-dier that no harm would be done him.

"Shall I not be buried alive, along with my dead comrades?" was the anxious

The youth's face was instantly transformed. His horror was changed to happiness, his fear to friendship. He reached out his hand to Capt. Allen with profuse thanks, and until he was taken to the hospital he showed his gratitude by shaking hands with every American who came near. Poor lad! And he, too, is a mother's son, and some anxious-hearted dame awaits his coming in distant Spain. May her love and longing have no disappointment! THE RETURNED KLONDIKER.

He Found His Friend Deeply Intmersed in Something Besides Gold.

He was just back from the Klondike. For months he had dreamed of the sensation he would create when at last he returned home laden with gold and stories from that frozen clime. Meeting an old friend on the street he rushed excitedly forward and shook him warmly by the hand, says the Detroit Free Press. "Just got back," he cried.

you heard the news from K-" "News?" replied his friend. "Should say I had! Didn't do a thing to them, did we? There will not be a Spaniard left on the whole island in a month." The returned Klondiker looked dazed, but he tried it again. "Talk about gold—"

"Who wants to talk about it?" interrupted his friend. "We've got enough of it to carry on the war. Why, man, the war bonds have been subscribed for several times over!" The Klondiker gasped and tried another tack.

"Mosquitoes! say-" "Oh, bah! what's a few mosquitoes? If our troops can face Spanish bullets guess they can stand a few mosquitoes. By the way, been away for the past few days, haven't you? Thought I hadn't seen you around. So long, I want to go across the street and see what the latest news is." A NOVEL BATTLE.

It Was Fiercely Waged Between a Sparrow and a Locust for Italf an Hour.

A novel battle between an English sparrow and a locust was witnessed by number of people on Sixth avenue; in Dayton, Ky., the other day. The fierce contest lasted fully half an hour, and although the odds were all on the side of the sparrow as regards . armor, armament and displacement, yet the locust fought aggressively until he was fairly whipped. The sparrow would make a dash at the locust with his bill, and the latter would avoid the attack with a quick side jump. The locust would then make a sevage onslaught on the sparrow, striking at the eyes of its opponent with sharp-pointed feet. A street car would pass every few minutes and separate the belligerents for the nonce. The fight would then be rerewed with increased vigor. The initiative was usually taken by the locust and he would fly 30 or 40 feet to renew the attack. The sparrow at last, however, struck a vulnerable spot in his antagonist, and then proceeded to put a coup-de-grace to the battle by picking the locust's head off. A Trick of the Road. It is related of Sergt, Anthony, recently of the battleship Maine, that with all his fearlessness he had a keen sense of humor and never lost an opportunity to take advantage of the situation as he found it. He was engaged at one time doing some heavy bauling over a had road in the night. The road was all but impassable, and his team got stuck in the mud. After several ineffectual attempts to pull out he put up his lines, crawled back into his wagon, stowed himself away and went to sleep, knowing that no one could pass until he was out of the way. He had just about got to sleep when a train of several wagons came along the road behind him. They found bis team stuck fast, but no driver. The driver had evidently gone off after help, so they unhitched their own teams, climbed round his wagon, kitched to it and pulled him out. Then he crawled out from under cover, took up his lines and went along.

Largest Freight Steamer. The Cymric, the largest freight steamer afloat, can carry about 20,000 yons of dead weight; that is, about what 625 freight cars can carry. The displacement of the Cymric is 23,000. tons; she carries thus about twentytwenty-thirds of her weight.

A SOCIABLE SEAL.

The Strange Story Told in Scotland of the Remarkable Conduct of a Sea Animal.

A gentleman residing in Broughty Ferry, who owns a yacht, took a run down the river the other day, accompanied by some friends, for the purpose of having a seal hunt, says the Edinburgh Dispatch. On the banks at the mouth of the estuary they saw large numbers of seals, old and young. Believing that these creatures are attracted by whistling, they tried the experiment, and were surprised to observe a young seal following in the wake of the yacht. Continuing to whistle, the creature followed up the river, disappearing for a time, and then reappearing with its head above the surface of the water. It was not far off when the yacht-reached its anchorage in the West Ferry bay, and after the yachtsmen went ashore they were more than astonished to see the young seal flopping up the beach behind them. So tame was the creature strange to say, women are permitted that they had no difficulty in capturto go around as usual, visiting their ing it. It was carried to their home It was well fed and caredifor. Not having a proper place for keeping such a pet, it was resolved to restore it to its natural element, and the yachtsmen proceeded down the river to the neighborhood of Broughty castle, where it was placed in the water. So attached, however, had the seal become to its captors that it refused to leave and again followed them home to West Ferry.

THE TINY WHITEBAIL A Fish That Has Only Recently

Appeared Upon Our

Hotel Tables.

It is only of late years that "whitebait" have appeared on the menus at our leading restaurants, or that the tiny fish answering to that appellation could be bought in our markets, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. For many years we regarded them as distinctly an English dish, and made no effort to obtain their equivalent. Everyone knows the genuine whitebait of England, which are born and bred and caught in the Thames, and are supposed to obtain their peculiarly delicious flavor from London mud and refuse, but whether they are the young of herring, as some people suppose, or whether they are a liliputian variety of the finny tribe in themselves, no one seems exactly to know. In this country almost any young fish that are from one to one and onepreter and assured the youthful solhalf inches in length and are caught in quantities are sold in the market nowadays as whitebait and are cooked a l'Anglais and served up hot and erisp with thin slices of brown bread and butter, making a delicious dish, what-ever they are. The English recipe for cooking whitebait commands that they should be drained on a clean napkin, thoroughly absorbing all the water; then roll them in flour and afterward drop them in some very hot fat. As soon as they become crisp drain them on a sieve, and after drying them a minute or two before the fire sprinkle on them a little salt and send them to the table to be served with cut quarters of lemon, cayenne pepper and slices of thinly cut brown bread and butter.

SEEKING KNOWLEDGE.

He Was Seeking Information and the Fair Young Girl Had Great Fun with Him.

He was a tourist, notes the Washington Star. He had come to this country for the purpose of getting some impressions, and he had refrained from reading even a guide book, so as to keep his mind free from prejudice he said.

"There are lots of Yankees in this country, aren't there?" he inquired with the studied nonchalance of the man who prides himself on being able to pump people without their suspecting

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne demurely; "a great many." "And there are some Sioux and Arapahoes, and Piutes and Philadelphians?" "Oh, yes. And besides them we have Apaches and Baltimoreans, and Californians and Wimodaughsis, and ever so many more." "Dear me! I don't see how you remember their names. I recall reading in a book on America that there was once a tribe known as Diggers. Are there any of them around here?" "It's a little early for them yet." "They haven't materialized very largely as yet, but they are about due. It won't be long before this war is over. Then the country will become alive to the necessity of an isthmian canal. And when that happens we'll be a whole nation of Diggers."

When the oyster is six months old it is as big as adime; when one year old it will cover a silver half dollar, and when two years old will be about the circumference of a silver dollar, says Pearson's Weekly. The oyster, unlike the crab, is not obliged to seek new quarters or build a new house every time he grows ap-

Oysters are esteemed to be at their best when between four and five years of age, and the planters endeavor to protect the beds for that length of time. Conscientious oystermen-that is, men who are not inclined to kill the goose that lays the golden eggalways return to the bed oysters that are too young, but in case a patriarch is brought up, over whose shell the tides of from eight to twelve winters

Now that alcohol has been tabooed in the army and navy of some of the. leading nations of the world, the question has arisen what is the best drink with which the soldier can quench his thirst? Many distinguished Indian commanders have testified in favor of tea as a thirst-allayer when on a long march in equatorial lands. The men under the leadership of Sir Herbert Kitchener during the recent campaign inthe Soudan, who were allowed no alcoholic stimulants whatever, performed their long journey through the desert on cold tea, and fought splendidly at the end of it. Tiger hunters in India, who are often subjected to intense heat in the thick jungles, invariably use cold tea as a drink. It is now proposed that our army in Cuba should be allowed to follow the example of their British brethren in arms in India and Egypt, and fill their can-

With the advent of the Spanish war patriotic weddings came into vogue. Likewise patriotic presents were also considered stylish. No bride is thoroughly in the fashion these days, says the Chieago Chronicle, unless a large proportion of the gifts that come to her have reference in their decign and colors to the war and the United States. Favorite weddings resents of this sort are slag picture frames, which may be found in great variety. These have slags painted on a brechgroand of white enamel, or the frames themselves are made of flags of silk draped on a foundation of wood and covered with glass.
