PLEASANT TO LOOK AT—
Yes, and pleasant to wear—becoming, stylish, and comfortable; these are the three points we aim at in our women's shoes. And the prices? We have all reasonable prices for the purchaser; some of the prices are so low they are hardly reasonable for the fine quality of the shoes.

We'll show you the goods with pleasure—and the quality and price will do the talking.

BUCHANAN RECORD.

D. H. BOWER,
PUBLISHER AND PROPRIETOR.

THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1899.

Hon. Perry F. Powers, the genial editor of the Advertiser, and Express made the Record office a pleasant call Friday and we esteem it a great pleasure to grasp the hand of our old friend and sit down to a chat over old times in Association and Convention work. Perry's friends and their names are legion; we are urging him to become a candidate for the nomination of Auditor General of the state at the next Republican convention and if he should decide to accede to their wishes in the matter, Mr. Powers will be a strong candidate, as his able work for the Republican cause in Michigan is known all over our great state, from Detroit to St. Joseph and from the Indiana line to the Wisconsin and Canadian line.

Albert Pack, prominent in politics and public life, as well as a successful business man, died at his residence in Detroit early yesterday morning from the effects of a surgical operation performed on Monday. In Mr. Pack's death Detroit and Michigan loses a man who has always been a consistent republican and a man who made friends with every one and what is more held those friends. From a personal acquaintance with Mr. Pack the editor of the Record can speak only in terms of highest praise of the sterling character of Mr. Pack, whose manly, straightforward ways will long be remembered by all who knew him. It is not exaggeration to say, that each one of his acquaintances feel that he has sustained a personal bereavement.

Educationalists who have been contending that teachers should have equal professional status with physicians find some congenial arguments against their claim, in the June number of The Forum, in an article by Dr. J. M. Rice, on "Why Teachers Have no Professional Standing." Two serious obstacles stand in the way, says Dr. Rice, of such recognition being accorded to the teachers. One is, that the teaching diploma is of itself of so little value; the other, that the teachers themselves cannot agree upon the most elementary points in educational matters. Although doctors proverbially disagree on many points, yet there are a great many on which they do agree and which constitute a wide platform on which all members of the profession stand. The paper will doubtless evoke much discussion in educational circles.

Good Housekeeping for June has an illustrated article on Mary Lyon, the founder of Mount Holyoke College, the first of a series on "Women Who Have Made the World Better." Another series, "Fashions and Fabrics," beginning in this number, is by Margaret Burroughs; and relates largely to home dress-making—a popular topic with very many women. "Seasonable Menus," by Margaret Burroughs; Christine Terhune Herrick writes of "Domestic Appliances as Personally Observed in Foreign Lands," "Traveling with Children," is considered by Amelia H. Botsford; William Orr, Jr., writes of "Governmental Maps," and their use in the vacation season.

New and important features are promised for the next volume, beginning with the July number. Geo. D. Chamberlain, Publisher, Springfield, Mass.

R. G. Dun and Co's. Review says: There is some fear that has no other source than the habit of fear. Men have found for so many years disaster treading on the heels of apprehension that they lack faith in good things present and to come. Every year there is worry about short crops, and yet the crops grow larger. The spectre of monetary trouble haunts men who know that the country is strong beyond any need. Promoting methods alarm men who are really quite aware that it is only needful to put promoted stocks in a class by themselves. But all the time the volume of business is rising, and the week's payments through the chief clearing houses are 62.1 per cent. larger than last year, and 68.0 per cent. larger than in 1892. For the month thus far the daily average is 57.9 per cent. larger than last year, and 66.4 per cent. larger than in 1892. Moreover this week and every other brings larger wages to many, and increase in purchasing power, and the demand for products is consequently expanding in all branches of consumption.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK.
Rosa Bonheur, the noted painter of animals died at Paris, last Friday, from congestion of the lungs.

Arthur T. Hadley, professor of political economy in Yale has been elected president of Yale University to succeed Timothy Dwight, who had resigned.

President McKinley on Saturday appointed John A. Merritt, postmaster of Washington D. C. and appointed E. C. Madden, of Detroit, to Mr. Merritt's old position as third Assistant Postmaster General.

The President of the Civil section of the French court of cassation has reported in favor of a new trial for Capt. Dreyfus, who it is expected will be brought back to France for a new trial.

President McKinley signed an order on Monday making sweeping charges in the Civil Service list and removing from the list nearly four thousand positions.

POULTRY YARD

JUNE HATCHED CHICKS.
This month is considered late for the hatching of chicks, but they do not come into market until October, when they can be sold at about three pounds weight, the prices last year in October being 15 cents per pound. At such prices the chicks will pay, as the food should not cost over 15 cents for a three pound chick, while the eggs for hatching and the labor required is not as great as in winter, provided lice do not attack them, but lice do not belong in a well regulated poultry house. If one is determined to make poultry pay he will not let lice get a foothold, winter or summer. There is another advantage in allowing the hens to hatch out a brood, which is that they get rid of the surplus fat, and come into better condition for laying in the fall. But there is always a good price for three pound chicks, even when chickens are a drug on the market, and there is no reason why the poultryman should not take advantage of the warm weather and raise all the chicks possible. They may not sell for a very large sum but they pay a large profit in proportion to the capital and labor invested while the hens will be all the better for being given the privilege of hatching broods.

SELECTING THE BEST.
Beginners should never begin by buying their hens from any and all sources. Select from a reliable source a few hardy birds and breed for the kind of hens desired. This may entail a year's loss of time, but it will be less expensive than expending a large sum for hens, only to be compelled to destroy them—to say nothing of the labor involved in the eradication of lice and disease from the premises. The individuality of the hens is too seldom considered. Poultrymen look to the breeds, the flocks and the broods, as though a flock was uniform. They feel all alike and expect all to be thrifty alike. Why they make it a rule to look upon each hen as differing from the others, and realize that some are valuable while others are not, and persistently destroy the weaker, the damage and loss will prove but a very small item compared with the great gain and profit, and the saving of expenses in favor of the strong, vigorous and hardy birds.

POULTRY IN SUBURBS.
No one can easily estimate the number of fowls raised in cities, towns and villages. The value is millions of dollars. It demonstrates, however, that the aged and young, and even those in unfortunate circumstances, will find a profit and pleasure in keeping poultry. A few hens soon fill the egg basket, and with the aid of the scraps from the table, and with a small allowance of extra food, keep up the supply until the period arrives in the fall for moulting. Where the space is limited the chicks should be used in the family, or marketed, when young, but the earlier hatched pullets should be kept to fill vacancies among the hens. The hens are profitable for five or six years, though occasionally there are exceptions. Young cockerels should always be sold early.

PROCURING EXTRA BIRDS.
At no time should one be more careful in adding extra fowls to the flock than at this season of the year, for it is difficult to detect disease without a close examination, which is something that is seldom done by those who procure fowls from elsewhere to add to the flock. Nor should the vigilance be confined to the individual birds but, entire flocks of which the birds are members, should be carefully looked after, as disease in the flock of some neighbor may be carried elsewhere by apparently healthy birds taken from such flock. Roup is often present in an incipient stage in a flock, and makes its appearance under the first favorable circumstance. We advise farmers never to buy a hen from another flock without careful inspection, if it can be avoided.

THE VALUE OF WARMTH.
Both adults and chicks love warmth. Then hens will select the sunny spots, especially if protected against the winds, on damp or cold days, while even on the warmest days of July the chicks will nestle under the hen. Should a heavy shower suddenly come up, and the chicks appear dead, place them near a stove, or in an oven of moderate heat, and notice how quickly the apparently dead chicks will come to life again. Heat is the great life giving element. Should disease of any kind appear always provide a dry and warm place. There is no remedy for roup that equals warmth, not that warmth will cure it, but warmth invigorates the fowl and enables it to withstand the ordeal.

CONVENIENT FEEDING RACK.

It is Just the Thing For Saving Lots of Food.

I recently came across a novel feeding-rack for sheep. I was so favorably impressed with it that I will venture to describe it. The ordinary feeding-rack consisted of four posts about thirty feet long, set up in oblong shape with other set posts at the center of the long side. Two narrow fence-boards are nailed to each side and each end, one at the top and one near the bottom, leaving space enough between the two for the sheep to feed through, the whole rack being about two and one-half feet wide. Such feeding-racks have been in vogue here and everywhere as long as I can remember. They have not a few faults. The sheep always run their heads and necks clear into the fodder, which causes chaff and the lice to lodge in the wool of their heads and necks. Then the feeding sheep are apt to crowd each other, which is a serious objection, particularly with horned sheep, and much harm may result. Sometimes sheep get into the habit of jumping into the racks; lambs usually always do so—lie on the hay and bellow it. These and other drawbacks brought out the rack here described:

The rack is a box sixteen feet long and fifteen inches high, similar in construction to the old feeding-rack, except that the sides and ends are tight, for the sheep are expected to feed from the top instead of from the sides. The interesting part of the rack is its cover, which is constructed in the following manner: Lay out a sheet of fence-board longwise centrally upon the rack, having it rest on the ends of same. Crosswise to this nail on short pieces of board six inches wide and just long enough to rest on the sides without projecting. Space these cross-pieces eighteen inches from center to center, which will be about right for average sheep. They should also be tapered down to two and one-half inches at each end, and be sure not to have any sharp or jagged edges at either end anywhere else about the rack; have everything smooth. It will take eleven cross-pieces for a sixteen-foot rack, and such a one will accommodate twenty-four sheep.

This cover, as so far described, is to be hinged to the rack by means of three T-hinges, so it may be easily raised and lowered when it is desired to fill the rack with hay or fodder. A piece of small rope or clothes-line is to be fastened to the middle cross-piece of the cover just opposite the hinge. This is run over a little pulley fastened to a post above. A snap or hook should be fastened to the other end of the rope, and a small ring tied into the rope at the proper place, so the cover may be secured in an upright position when filling the rack by catching the snap into the ring.

This cover is not yet quite completed. Some means must be provided to prevent sheep from jumping onto the rack. To accomplish this get a board three standards eighteen or twenty inches high, one at each end of the cover and one in the center, and they may be braced as shown in the illustration. To these is nailed another fence-board, and the feeding-rack is completed.—F. Greiner.

Pekin Ducks.
Rouen ducks are equal to the Pekins in size, lay as many eggs, are more beautiful and grow rapidly, but no duckling will grow as fast as a Pekin duckling up to the age of twelve weeks, nor will any breed thrive as well without a pond as the Pekins. All breeds have some disadvantages as well as advantages. Pekins are white and fat, but they are not so good for duckling that weighs five pounds when it is ten weeks old is better than an apparently cleaner plumage on a smaller one. Never mind the dirt, but try to get the most weight in the shortest space of time and at the lowest cost.

Uniform Prices.
In some cities very early chicks sell in place of squabs, but they must be small, and weights less than a pound are preferred. The sum of fifty cents is usually the price for an entire stock, at all ages, until nearly grown. That is, the sell at about fifty cents a pound in weight. Then afterward, along in May, the preferred weight is one and one-half pounds, the price being usually about thirty-five cents a pound, or about fifty cents for the chick. As June approaches, the weight of two pounds become more salable, the price in the neighborhood of fifty cents a chick still being maintained. And so the figures and weight keep pace, in contrary directions, until late in the fall, when the grown fowl of eight or nine pounds goes to market and brings about fifty cents. Of course, these figures are not strictly correct, as locations, markets and other causes may vary them in either direction, but they serve as an illustration.

Four tickets were sold for the excursion to Chicago Tuesday.

The Building Banner celebrates its tenth anniversary by coming out in a special edition which is a credit to the Banner, the town and our worthy friend Judge Lapham.

A number of pupils of the High School attended the commencement exercises of the Berrien Springs High School, last Thursday evening and listened to an excellent address by Hon. Perry F. Powers, President of the State Board of Education.

The decorations of many of our stores were quite extensive and tasty. One of the finest window displays was that of Mr. D. L. Boardman. The east window had a representation of a gateway with an arch beyond, in one corner of the window three rifles are stacked and canteen's slung from the rifles. The west window has three figures each dressed in a becoming manner, one in red, one in white, and the other in blue.

We take pleasure in printing the following extract, relating to a well known young man of our town:

"TOE-MOORE—On Tuesday, May 23, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Roe, Rev. Thomas Duggett, officiating, at two o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. Herbert Roe of Buchanan, Michigan, and Miss Daise Moore of this place.

The wedding was a family affair there being no invited guests present. Mr. Roe is cashier of the First National Bank of Buchanan, and a young man of ability and promise. The bride is well known here, having lived here during the twenty-one year of her life.

The happy couple left for their home in Buchanan on the afternoon train, followed by the good wishes of their Bryan friends.—Bryan, (O.) Press."

Miss Della Rhodes has set out over five hundred sweet potato plants this week.

Where is Clinton Canfield?

Clinton Canfield, a lad of sixteen years of age has been missing from his home with his uncle, Mr. Noah Canfield who resides near town, since Wednesday night of last week. He was last seen at the Hotel Lee corner at about 9 o'clock that evening. He had on his every day clothes when last seen, his best suit being in his room at his home. Young Canfield's father is dead and his grand parents live in Missouri. Some two years ago he ran away from his home which was then with an aunt, claiming that he had not been well treated. Since living with his uncle he has given every reason to believe that he was contented with his home and surroundings. Deputy Sheriff, John C. Wenger has been given charge of the case and no effort will be spared to find the lad.

THE UNION'S FRIEND.

Richard Cobden was an Ardent Admirer of Lincoln and His Policy.

No man in England felt a keener interest in the American question than did Richard Cobden. He made no secret of his sympathy with the union. He had been in constant correspondence with Mr. Lincoln, and felt for the many-sided American patriot the deepest affection. Both were engaged in a national and far-reaching struggle, and defeat in America meant another century of toy domination in Great Britain, writes James M. Scovel in Lippincott's.

By a sea-coast fire, late in a November night, Mr. Cobden's library and collection of Abraham Lincoln. "This century has produced no man like Lincoln. Here is a man who has risen from manual labor to the presidency of a great people. To me he seems to be the man God has raised up to give courage and enthusiasm to a people unused to the arts of war, fighting what seems to me to be a doubtful battle in the greatest conflict of modern times.

"I like Mr. Lincoln's intense veneration for what is true and good. His conscience and his heart are ruled by his reason.

"I speak of your struggle as doubtful, because Mr. Lincoln will have more to contend against in the hostility of foreign powers than in the slanders and scattered resources of the confederacy."

Mr. Cobden predicted the triumph of our arms, but he died before he had more than a Pilsburg view of the promise.

Wanted His Horse.

A Scotch farmer, celebrated in his neighborhood for his immense strength and skill in athletic exercises, very frequently had the pleasure of contending with people who were very their strength against him. Lord D., a great pugilist amateur, went from London on purpose to fight the athletic Scot. The latter was working in an enclosure at a little distance from his home when the noble lord arrived. His lordship led his horse to a tree and addressed the farmer. "Friend, I have heard marvelous reports of your skill, and have come a long way to see which of us two is the better wrestler." The Scotchman, without answering, seized the nobleman, raised him over the hedge and then set about working again. When Lord D. got up: "Well," said the farmer, "have you anything to say to me?" "No," replied his lordship, "but perhaps you'd be good enough to show me how to do it."

MECHANICS FOR BEGINNERS.

The Manner in Which Water Pumps Are Constructed.

The common pump consists of a barrel or cylinder connected with the well or source of water by a pipe which opens into its lower end and is covered by a valve or lid U opening upward.

In the barrel is a closely fitting piston or plug P, which can be raised or lowered by means of the rod. This piston also contains an opening which is covered by a valve V opening upward.

The top of the barrel is generally furnished with a spout S and the piston rod is worked by the lever or "pump handle" L.

To explain the action of the pump let us start with the barrel full of water and the piston at the bottom of the cylinder.

In the up-stroke (Fig. 1) the valve V remains closed and the pressure below the piston is reduced, and the atmospheric pressure acting on the surface of the water in the well forces water up the pipe, which lifts the valve U and enters the barrel. At the same time the water above the piston is raised to the level of the spout and runs out.

In the down-stroke (Fig. 2) the valve U closes and the water lifts the valve V and passes from the lower to the upper side of the piston P.

In the next up-stroke this water is raised to the spout, while a fresh supply of water runs into the barrel through the valve U.

Since the water below the piston is raised from below by the pressure of the atmosphere, it follows that the height of the piston above the surface of the water must never exceed the height of the water barometer (about thirty-four feet). Otherwise a vacuum will be formed in the barrel and water will cease to flow in. If during a portion of the stroke the piston is taken into account, the height of the water level, water will then enter the barrel; but the portion of the stroke in which the piston rises above that height will be useless.

If the weight of the lower valve U be taken into account, the height of the piston will have to be rather less than thirty-four feet in order that the water may lift this valve.

If the pump is used for raising any other liquid the greatest height is, of course, the height of barometer of that liquid; e. g., mercury could only be drawn up thirty inches with a pump.

GOT EVEN.

Didn't Like to Be Awakened from His Nap, and showed the Trait.

A wealthy old bachelor who is too miserly to keep servants of any description was indulging in an afternoon nap a few Sundays ago, when a thundering "rat-tat" at his street door aroused him. Being the only occupant of the house, he hurried down two flights of stairs as fast as the decrepitude of age would allow and threw open the street door, only to be assailed by the cry: "Muffins! Want any muffins, sir?"

For a few moments the irascible old gentleman stood staring at the boy who roared, positively too overcome with rage to speak; but when the question being repeated he found his voice.

"No, confound your impudence! I don't want muffins; and just get off my doorstep before I kick you off. Disagreeable!"

The purveyor of Sabbath luxuries, after a last futile attempt to do business walked sadly away, while the other gazed after him, immersed in thought. Suddenly, when the muffin man had got some two or three hundred yards down the hilly road, a brilliant inspiration struck the old gentleman, and with a frantic "Hi!" and a wave of the hand, he invited the man to return.

Then, as the muffin man, perspiring, but happy in the thought of disposing of some of his wares, once more smilingly stood before him, the old gentleman, tapping him solemnly on the chest, uttered the impressive words, "Nor next Sunday!" and triumphantly marched indoors.—London Weekly Telegraph.

Husbands and Other Men.

Mrs. Grout—"Husbands are so different from other men!"

Mrs. Snapper—"I know it. I said to John last evening, 'How the wind blows!'" and he grunted and said, 'Did you ever know the wind to do anything else?'"

Mrs. Grout—"That's just it. Before you were married to him he probably would have had no end of nice things to say in reply."—Boston Transcript.

SMALLPOX SUSPECT.

He Didn't Mind Hanging Round Because the Office Was Comfortable.

Mr. T., a business man, rents desk room in his office to Mr. B., whence the following story:

"Is Mr. B. in?" asked a caller.

"No," replied Mr. T., thinking he recognized an unwelcome caller.

"Well, I'll wait for him," replied the caller, sitting down. At 5 o'clock he was still waiting. At 5:30 still waiting. A few minutes before 6 Mr. T. closed his desk for the day, and prepared to go home. The caller ventured to Mr. B. was likely to return to his office that day.

Mr. T. answered: "No, he is in Sacramento, and will be back next Tuesday morning."

The caller showed no anger. On the contrary, he smiled.

"You know, darling, I promised my mother that my wife would be a good housekeeper and a domestic woman. Can you cook?"

"I can," she said, swallowing a great lump in her throat.

"Can you make good bread? That is the fundamental principle of all housekeeping."

"Yes, I went into a bakery and learned how to make all kinds of bread."

"And can you do your own dressmaking? I am comparatively a poor man, love, and dressmakers' bills would soon bankrupt me."

"Yes," she said, frankly, "I can make everything I wear, especially pattern bonnets."

"You are a jewel," he cried, with enthusiasm, "come to my arms—"

"Wait a minute, there's no hurry," she coddly said. "It's my turn to ask a few questions. Can you saw wood and carry in coals?"

"Why, my love, I should have that work done."

"Can you make your coats, vests, trousers, and other wearing apparel?"

"But that isn't the purpose."

"Can you build a house, dig ditches, weave carpets and—"

"I am not a professional."

"Neither am I. It has taken the most of my life to acquire the education and accomplishments that attracted you to me. But as soon as I have learned all the professions you speak of I will send you my card. An aviator," and she swept away.

And the disconsolate young man went to the nearest cigar store and bought a cheap cigar, with which he speedily soothed himself.—Illustrated American.

Within Driving Distance of Elkhart.

There are hundreds and perhaps thousands of people who are in need of vehicles and harness, who live within easy driving distance of our factories. They may not know that right here in Elkhart, right at home, we have the most extensive manufacturing of vehicles and harness in the world selling goods to the consumer direct.

Being close at hand they could easily drive in and spend some time profitably in looking through our large repository and show rooms, where everything we make can be seen and carefully examined before buying.

WE HAVE NO AGENTS

and you cannot buy our vehicles and harness from dealers or agents. WE SELL TO THE CONSUMER DIRECT and thereby save you an average of about 80 per cent on the first cost. This is a saving worth consideration by every careful man.

We Make 170 Styles of Vehicles and 65 Styles of Harness.

You take no risk in buying from us, for if you come in to examine the goods for yourself there can be no doubt left in your mind as to quality, style, finish, etc. If you should send in your order by mail we will ship anything you may select subject to your examination and guarantee entire satisfaction. Better drive in and see us. We shall be pleased to show you through our factories where you can see just how everything is made, and through our warehouses where you can see how the goods look when finished. It is so convenient for you to come in, send for our large free illustrated catalogue. You can buy with perfect assurance and safety from its pages. A postal card will bring a copy.

Deafness ain't Be a...

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound and imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
