TRANSVAAL MATTERS HAVE COME TO AN UGLY HEAD.

DOWN IN SANTO DOMINGO FURTHER FIGHTING IS REPORTED.

GEN. JOE WHEELER RELIEVES FUNSTON AT MANILA.

London, August 30.—Commenting on the declaration of President Kruger, of the Transvaal, to the effect that the South African republic adhered to its latest offer and would not make any further concessions, the afternoon papers here unanimously draw attention to the increased seriousness of the Transvaal crisis, but at the same time they express uncertainty regarding the nature of the concessions beyond which President Kruger says he will not go. No official announcement of these has been made, though they are generally understood to be a five-year franchise and increased outlander representation. "If this is correct," the Globe says, "it cannot be long before diplomacy has to stand aside as of no further service."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: President Kruger's adherence to these would mean adherence to impossible conditions, and if so the situation has come to an ugly head.

The Westminster Gazette, while lamenting the immoderation which, it says, led to the present crisis, admits that "the country is within sight of war which may shortly be as unavoidable as, on the merits of the question, it would be inexcusable. To whatever dispatch or condition President Kruger's defiant remark referred, it has brought home sharply the keen possibility of an impending war against no weak-kneed adversary. It is said that with recruits from over the borders the Transvaal would have about 60,000 men at its disposal, whereas the most the British now could throw on the frontier would be some 30,000, though, of course, this number would be materially increased within a month."

The British public is taking intense interest in the preparations of their own forces already in South Africa. Indignation against Hon. W. P. Schreiner, premier of Cape Colony, who, in the Cape house of assembly, yesterday, declared that, under the customs convention, the "Orange Free State was justified in importing through Cape Colony," is fairly general though that section which believes that a Boer war would be a crime, are making, by editorials, petitions, etc., what they appear to think is the last effort to avert hostilities.

Gen. Peplin Defeated.

Washington, August 30.—The state department has received the following cablegram from United States Consul Simpson, at Puerto Plata, Santo Domingo:

"All towns in this district, except Monte Cristi, in possession of revolutionists. This town (Puerto Plata) surrendered yesterday."

Thirty Soldiers Killed.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, August 30.—News has reached here from Santo Domingo, confirming the report of the defeat by the revolutionists of Gen. Peplin, in command of a government force, who lost 30 men killed and had 40 of his soldiers captured. In addition, Gen. Peplin was compelled to abandon a convoy of provisions.

Further fighting has taken place near Monte Cristi between the revolutionists, under Gen. Davarro, and the government troops commanded by Gen. Guellito. Details of this engagement have not yet reached here.

FIRES SWEEPING CANADA.

John Bachelder Lost Both Barns and Crops.

Chatham, Ont., August 30.—Fires are raging in the woods all around Dresden. Many fences have been destroyed around entire farms and, in some cases, houses and barns have been burned. The barns and out-buildings of John Bachelder, third concession of Dover, were completely destroyed by fire this morning. The loss will be great. There were about twelve rods of nearly new buildings. Most of Mr. Bachelder's crops were ruined, including the entire crop of this year's hay. Everything that was in the barn at the time was lost. The dyking escaped.

MICHIGAN FLASHES

Farmers for miles back of St. Clair are now obliged to come to St. Clair river for their water supply because of wells and streams drying up.

The first meeting of the Western Hay Fever Association occurred at Menominee Wednesday. Over 800 hay-fever sufferers are at present in that city.

Edward Filtz, a Clinton county farmer who was injured a few days ago by falling from a load of hay, died Wednesday night as a result of his injuries. He was 65 years of age and a wealthy citizen.

TO SAVE THE LAKE.

Petition to Prevent Mites From Taking the Water.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 31.—Property holders residing in the vicinity of Barren Lake, one of the finest resorts of Michigan, have petitioned H. D. Smith, acting judge of the Cass County Circuit Court, to issue an injunction restraining the Niles Water Supply Co. from taking water from the lake. It is the contention of the petitioners that the waters of the lake have receded 50 feet during the present summer, and that if the present drain continues the lake will eventually be wiped out, as it has no inlets whatever. Should the injunction be granted, the city of Niles would not suffer greatly, as the city owns a plant and draws its water supply from artesian wells. There are many local consumers of Barren Lake water, however, as many people prefer it to artesian water. Barren Lake is a mile long and half a mile wide, and is located four miles east. It is frequented by hundreds of people, who flock there from all over the country in quest of recreation and fine fishing, for which the lake is noted.

CHANCE FOR MICHIGAN MEN.

Forming of New Regiments May Give Officers an Opening.

Washington, August 31.—Reports are again current that the president will within a week or ten days authorize the enlistment of two more regiments. If this is done it will mean three or four more Michigan appointments, and the publication of this possibility, which was recently made in these dispatches, has already brought special applications to the war department of ex-volunteer officers whose ambition to see more service has thus far been disappointed. If additional regiments are authorized Secretary Root will have at least a score of thoroughly competent men with excellent records to choose from in filling the Michigan contingent.

Michigan Pensions.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Michigan pensions were granted Wednesday as follows: Original—John W. Andrews, Detroit, $6. Additional—William R. Lovell, Jackson, $6 to $8. Increase—Ransom G. Parker, Mason, $12 to $17; Samuel A. Coon, Soldiers' Home, $4 to $6. Widows—Rosa Shorman, Sutton's Bay, $8. Re-issue—Sarah A. Tallman, Sparta, $6.

Accepted by Wire.

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 30.—Leo H. Thomas of this city, has received notification from the second assistant adjutant-general at Washington of his appointment as second lieutenant in the Forty-fourth United States Volunteer Regiment. He at once telegraphed his acceptance of the appointment, but as yet has not been ordered to report for duty or told where he will be sent. Thomas was a corporal in the Thirty-fifth Michigan Volunteers in the Spanish war. He enlisted from this city as a member of Company M. Thomas' father was a member of the Michigan cavalry brigade in the civil war. The appointment of Thomas was first announced as Geo. L. Thomas, instead of Leo L. Thomas, and some confusion was caused by the error.

Michigan Pensions.

Washington, August 30.—Michigan pensions were granted Tuesday as follows: Additional—William H. Retalick, Hartford, $4 to $12; John Norton, Mt. Clemens, $8 to $12. Increase—John Mitchell, Grand Rapids, $10 to $12; George W. Keaton, Ilesperia, $6 to $8; Ransom Scovill, Frontier, $14 to $16. Reissue—Special, Aug. 19, Chas. H. Ruggles, Prairieville, $6. Widows—Olive Meader, Saginaw, $8; Elizabeth Sleighter, Fremont, $8; Julia Ann Welsh, Marlette, $8.

Adventist Appointments.

Ionia, Mich., Aug. 30.—The Michigan conference committee of the Seventh Day Adventists today appointed J. D. Goveall, S. E. W. Whit, J. G. Lamson, W. T. Marshall and Howard Hayes members of the academy board for the academy at Cedar Lake, Mich. Also Prof. J. G. Lamson, of Cedar Lake academy, and Prof. H. R. Salisbury, of Battle Creek college, as members of the conference board of education.

Another Hotel for Mt. Clemens.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Aug. 30.—An important deal in real estate, closed here Tuesday, promises additional hotel accommodations for the Bath town. Dr. W. D. Wilson and Ald. Amels have jointly purchased of Wm. Cottrell the property adjoining the Fenton Hotel, on Cass avenue, with a view of either enlarging that hostelry or erecting a separate and independent house.

Germany Might Name the Spy.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The Cologne Gazette, in an inspired article, replying to the foreign press, says: After the failure of Maj. Panizzardi and Col. Schneider to convince the French people, Col. Schwarzkoppen's intervention in behalf of one innocently sentenced would be futile, especially since Germany has already done more than could be expected by Count Von Buelow's solemn declaration, which were given as representing the empire and the emperor, and Col. Schwarzkoppen's word of honor in his declarations in November, 1897, that he never had any relations with Dreyfus. The Tageblatt says the government might name the real spy.

A HEROIC WOMAN

DESPERATE BATTLE BETWEEN TURKEY AND PRISONER.

TURNKEY'S WIFE PREVENTED AN ESCAPE FROM JAIL.

THOUGH BADLY HURT, THE OFFICER WILL RECOVER.

Caro, Mich., Aug. 31.—Fleming Postle, of East Dayton, who ran away with another man's wife and was caught in Port Huron some two weeks ago, attempted to murder the turnkey at noon Wednesday. Postle has been lodged in the county jail awaiting the September term of court when he would have his trial. He and the turnkey were cleaning up the corridors of the jail when Postle ran across a piece of hose with the nozzle on. Quick as thought, he picked it up and dealt the turnkey a blow over the head. He then tried to escape, but the sheriff's wife appeared on the scene in time to prevent this. She locked the door and then screamed for help, which soon arrived and the man was overpowered. The turnkey will recover.

AN IMPORTANT BRANCH.

State Farm at South Haven Visited by the Board.

South Haven, Mich., August 31.—The state board of agriculture made its annual tour of inspection to the state experimental farm at this place Wednesday. Those present were President J. L. Snyder, Secretary A. C. Bird, of the Agricultural College, Lansing; Franklin Wells, Constantine, president of the board; H. F. Marsh, Allegan; L. W. Watkins, Manchester; T. F. Marston, Bay City; E. P. Allen, Ypsilanti; C. J. Monroe, South Haven; Prof. C. D. Smith, Decatur, experimental station; Prof. R. L. Taft, of Agricultural College, Lansing.

A meeting was held in the afternoon and was largely attended by fruit growers. The South Haven farm is considered by the board as one of the most important of its branches and was found in excellent condition. Members of the board were entertained at Sleepy Hollow resort with a dinner by Landlord Smith and a drive through a peach orchard in the afternoon.

Beat the Grand Trunk.

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 31.—Justice Snowdon has rendered his decision in the case of C. G. Freeman versus the Grand Trunk Railway company, in which he awarded the plaintiff $168.46 damages. Freeman shipped a car of produce to Georgia, and through the railway company the car missed its destination and Freeman was unable to collect the bill for the amount of the produce from the firm to whom it was shipped. The case has attracted considerable attention here and will probably be appealed to the circuit court.

Hon. P. T. Colgrove Spoke.

Paw, Paw, Mich., August 31.—Hon. P. T. Colgrove, of Hastings, addressed the annual Catholic picnic of this place Wednesday afternoon. The meeting was held in the beautiful grounds of the church and rectory and the immense crowd listened to an eloquent address. The speaker touched the question of expansion very lightly, but said that United States senators should be elected by the people, that three-fourths of the state representatives and senators were elected on account of promises they had made.

Received Speedy Justice.

Grand Rapids, Mich., August 31.—Michael Donovan and Frank Reed, two of the tramps arrested in Lansing for robbing two boys on the freight train out of this city last Sunday, were arranged in the justice court this afternoon. They waived examination and went into the Circuit Court at once, where they pleaded guilty and were each sentenced to three years at Ionia. Donovan said he was a plumber and his home in Syracuse, while Reed refused to tell where he came from.

De Clam to be Examined.

Paris, Aug. 30.—Gen. Brugere, the military governor of Paris, has ordered one of the principal military surgeons to examine Maj. Du Paty de Clam and report when it will be possible to take his evidence for use at the second Dreyfus court-martial. The report has not yet been delivered. The examination of Du Paty de Clam will be conducted by Maj. Tavernier in the presence of Maître Demange, of counsel for the defense.

Another French Sensation.

Paris, Aug. 30.—A case somewhat similar to that of Capt. Dreyfus is reported at Nancy. The police claim to have found at the residence there of a French artillery subaltern a commission in the German army and valuable French maps. The suspected man belonged to an old Alsatian family of the name of which are suspected of complicity in the affair.

IT WAS A FAKE.

Supposed Murdered Boy Arrives Safe at His Home.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 29.—All mystery surrounding the disappearance and possible fate of Joseph Popozinski, one of the quartet of Grand Rapids boys who had the battle with tramps upon a freight train, was cleared up here when the young man was found at his home. He is in no way injured, was not thrown from the train and was not robbed. He tells a disconnected story of the affair, but robs his companions' story of most of its sensational features. He says they are all employed in a local factory and wanted to go to Lansing to spend Sunday. They stole a ride on the freight train and after leaving this city encountered the tramps, who proceeded to abuse them. Popozinski stood it until they reached McCord's station and then he escaped in the darkness, slept in a barn and walked back to this city yesterday afternoon and last night. He says that no one was robbed except a brakeman, who was compelled to hand over 30 cents. According to his account, the tramps had the train crew terrorized so much that they stayed at the other end of the train.

PULLED HIS GUN.

Now a Niles Colored Man is in the Lock-Up.

Niles, Mich., Aug. 29.—Lee Taylor, a colored man of unsavory reputation, entered the pool room of Martin Snodgrass, also colored, on Saturday night and became boisterous, whereupon Snodgrass ordered him to leave the place. Taylor refused and trouble ensued. Snodgrass drew a gun and pointing it at Taylor's head pulled the trigger. The cartridge failed to explode, but the trigger was pulled again in quick succession and a 38-caliber bullet lodged in Taylor's right arm. Monday morning Snodgrass was charged with assault with intent to commit murder and was remanded to the county jail to await hearing next Thursday. Taylor was brought into court this morning and charged with burglarizing the house of his father-in-law on last Saturday afternoon. He was also sent to jail to await further hearing next Thursday.

MICHIGAN FLASHES.

The common councils of Albion and Marshall, accompanied by citizens of these cities, visited Allegan to look over the new dam. The consensus of opinion was that the dam was a wonderful work.

H. B. Tuttle and H. S. Pickands, of Cleveland, who are riding from that city to Marquette, passed through Menominee this morning in an automobile. They report good roads and a pleasant trip.

An attempt was made early Saturday morning at Carson City to blow the Rockefeller Grain Co.'s safe at the elevator office. The books and a small sum of money are in the safe and the firm is getting along without them.

Collector of Customs Avery, of Port Huron, has appointed Henry Isbester, of Kenosha, a deputy collector for service on the Detroit & Port Huron steamer route to fill a vacancy. Isbester comes of a stalwart Republican family.

Ernest J. Borabeck's barn and contents were burned this morning at 1 o'clock, near Eaton Rapids. He lost all his grain, hay, farming implements and two cows. Loss about $750, partly insured. It is thought it was set on fire by tramps.

Chas. Vangelsen, a farmer living a short distance from Caro, was blasting stumps with dynamite when his little boy came in the field and got possession of a cartridge. In some way it was exploded, blowing off the little fellow's hand.

The treasury department has remitted a fine of $50 imposed on Sophia M. Dahlmer, owner of the steamer John Smith, for failure to surrender license at Charlevoix, as required by law. It was shown to the satisfaction of the officials that there was no intention to violate the law.

Charles Jutner, aged 55 and an old resident of Menominee, dropped dead Monday. He had just stepped from a train on which he returned from a trout fishing expedition. Cause of death was apoplexy. Deceased was a brother of the late Joseph Jutner, a prominent hotel man.

The state of Indiana announced that it will proceed with the trial of James J. Gray, of Detroit, charged with the killing of a man named Keneck in the Michigan Central yards at Michigan City, in the Superior Court Monday. The case has been continued for three successive terms of court. Gray is a Michigan Central detective and the killing of Keneck, who was suspected of being a car robber, was accidental.

The Saginaw Bay Fish company is having a new fish tug built in West Bay City, which, it is expected, will be a revelation in the matter of economical speed. The dimensions are: Forty-six feet keel, 11 feet beam and 5 feet hold. The craft is being built by Geo. W. Miskin, who is equipping it with a number of inventions of his own, which are as yet an experiment. Among other things the shaft is to have ball bearings. The wheel is to have three blades of a special design.

DROUTH

HOT WEATHER AND CLOUDLESS SKIES IN MICHIGAN.

CORN CROP ON HIGH GROUND PRACTICALLY RUINED.

FOREST FIRES THREATEN TO STRETCH THEIR LIMITS.

Lansing, Mich., August 30.—The drought continues throughout the lower peninsula, and is intensified by hot weather and almost cloudless skies. In his weekly weather report Director Schneider says that while light showers have occurred in scattered localities, the drought conditions continue practically unabated. Much corn, especially on high land, has been very badly injured and many farmers have been cutting it to save the crop for fodder. Bean harvest is in progress, but the crop has been shortened by the drought. Late potatoes are suffering greatly for want of rain, while pastures are so badly dried up that many correspondents report that it is necessary to feed their stock.

Considerable plowing for wheat and rye has been done, but generally the soil is so dried that plowing is difficult and many farmers have stopped that work and are waiting for rain before beginning again. The drought has greatly damaged spring seeding, and in the southern counties will probably shorten the sugar beet crop. Buckwheat is filling badly. Reports indicate that apples continue to fall from the trees in large quantities, and the present outlook is for a light crop. A good soaking rain is much needed, not only for fall crops, but also to stop the small forest and field fires, which are quite common and which are also very threatening.

Soldiers' Home Surgeon.

Grand Rapids, Mich., August 31.—At the August meeting of the board of managers of the Soldiers' Home Wednesday afternoon, Dr. John Austin, of Howard City, was appointed surgeon to succeed Dr. Reed who resigned some time ago. Dr. Austin was a soldier in the Twenty-first Michigan in the civil war. The afternoon the board spent in session with the members of the state board of health who come here to look over the plans for the annex to the hospital.

Warren Denied a New Trial.

Grand Rapids, Mich., August 31.—In the Superior Court Wednesday Judge Newham denied the motion for a new trial for ex-City Clerk Frank D. Warren charged with the misappropriation of public funds, who was recently convicted by order of the court. The judge held that his action in directing a verdict of guilty was justified by the testimony which was uncontradicted. The case will now go to the Supreme Court.

State Fair Will Run Evenings.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 31.—The state fair this year will be lighted by electricity and will run evenings. Contracts were signed to-day with a local company for the putting in of the lights and the work will be rushed at once. This will be a new departure and it is believed that it will be a winner. The work for the fair is progressing nicely, the advertising being well along and special attractions being booked every day.

A CHEERFUL MISSION.

Girl Anarchist to Dynamite Paris Exposition Buildings.

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 30.—Admiral Howison and the officers of the United States cruisers Chicago and Montgomery paid a visit Tuesday to President Campos Sales. The police have discovered an association of anarchists at San Paulo, 40 miles from Santos, and the investigation shows that among others who were chosen by lot is a young girl, Gabriela, who has already started on her voyage, whose mission is to dynamite buildings of the Paris exposition. Several persons have been arrested in connection with the plot, including the editors of anarchist papers at San Paulo and in this city.

Scientific Development.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Coroner Berz has begun an investigation of the Coliseum disaster to ascertain who may be held legally responsible for the accident. The discovery was made by the coroner that when the iron frame fell it was being used to support pulleys for hoisting heavy trusses. This knowledge was withheld a day before and caused a sensation when it was obtained.

Stabb. at Sun. Mne.

Houghton, Mich., Aug. 29.—William Wade, of Arcadian, was dangerously and probably fatally stabbed early Sunday morning by an unknown assailant. The assault occurred at Sunshine which, with neighboring locations of Helltown and Purgatory, divides honors in criminal matters on the northern shore of Portage Lake.

CRUISED

TO DEATH

HORRIBLE DISASTER AT CHICAGO COLISEUM BUILDING.

NINE MEN INSTANTLY KILLED BY FALLING TIMBERS.

OTHERS INJURED AND SEVERAL BURIED IN THE RUINS.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Twelve steel arches, each weighing 33 tons, which were to have supported the superstructure of the Coliseum building in course of erection on Wabash avenue, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, fell to the ground late Monday afternoon. It is known that six lives were crushed out. The bodies of three men are supposed to be under the wreckage. Seven are in the hospital with injuries received in the accident, and of these two will surely die, one may possibly recover, and the rest are, for the greater part, seriously injured. The dead are:

CHARLES WALPOT, crushed to death.

STEPHEN J. THOMPSON, crushed to death.

JOHN FAY, head crushed.

RICHARD SHERMAN, head cut off.

EDWARD MURRAY, head and both legs cut off.

THEODORE HORN, crushed to death.

Supposed to be under the ruins:

FRANK LOGAN.

ALEXANDER MILLAS.

SAMUEL SMITH.

Fatally injured:

John Dowd, both legs broken, both eyes knocked out; internal injuries.

John White, cut on head and right side; internal injuries.

Other injured:

Cornelius Toomey, head crushed; internal injuries; may recover.

Peter Pelletiere, crushed about shoulders and chest; serious.

John Hawthorne, head crushed; internal injuries; serious.

All of the twelve arches were standing, the twelfth and last having just been completed. It was the intention of the Pittsburg Bridge Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., to turn over its work last night to the general contractors.

The immense "traveler" or derrick, which had been used in the erection of the arches had been removed and the agents of the bridge company were accounting their work as practically completed, when suddenly and without the slightest warning, the arch last put in place suddenly fell over against the one next to it. The weight was too much for this, it gave way, crashed against the third, and then one by one the great steel spans fell over to the south, precisely in the same manner as a number of cards would fall.

Nearly all the men who were killed were at work on top of the arch and 40 feet above the ground. Some of them made futile attempts to slide down the side of the arches, but before they could save themselves they were hurled to the ground. Many of them uttered piercing shrieks for aid as they fell. Most of them were killed outright by the awful nature of their injuries. The skulls of the unfortunate men were crushed into shapeless masses; their limbs were cut off as if by a monster knife, and they were mangled beyond recognition.

The immense structure began falling slowly, each arch being sustained by the crossbeams supporting the entire structure. As the mass gained impetus, bars of iron inches thick snapped with a cloud report and the great mass moved faster and faster in its descent. With a crash that was heard blocks distant the structure fell, leaving the walls practically uninjured.

J. J. Johnson, superintendent of the Pittsburg Bridge Company, was unable to advance any cause for the collapse of the structure. "I cannot say what caused the accident," said Superintendent Johnson. "I am utterly at a loss to account for it. I left the building only a few minutes before the whole thing fell. We had finished putting up the last arch and had begun taking down the traveler upon which the arches were raised to be set into shape. This work was almost completed when I left the building. There remained but one or two more beams to be removed. Then I heard the crash and could hardly believe my eyes when I saw the result of our weeks of work destroyed in a minute."

Later.

Later reports are that three more victims died in the hospital, bringing the death list up to nine.

The forestry commission created by an act of the last legislature has not yet held a meeting, but Land Commissioner French, who is ex-officio a member of the commission, has notified Arthur Hill, of Saginaw, and Charles W. Garfield, of Grand Rapids, the other two members of the commission, that a meeting should be held for organization. Commissioner French says that there is a great work for the forestry commission in this state, and that he does not propose to retire from office without something having been done toward restoring the forests of Michigan.

POULTRY YARD

GATHERING OPIUM.

Immense Amount of It Grown and Improved Way of Packing.

Our readers are invited to send in any questions for information on this subject, and any communications bearing on poultry will be received with pleasure and will be fully discussed in this column.

WHEN TO BEGIN WITH INCUBATORS

One may properly begin now, as there will be learned before commencing to hatch for market. Many persons begin the regular season in October, so as to have the first lot hatched by the latter part of that month. The chicks will then weigh about one pound and one-half by the first week in January, when the upward turn in prices will begin. Just what the prices may be cannot be anticipated, but they depend upon the quality. The chicks should be sent to market dressed. The cold weather will be too severe for the shipment alive of such young stock, as some of them may die on the route. There will, probably, at that season, be a difference of ten cents per pound of dressed chicks, which will more than pay for the cost of dressing them. As there will be but little danger of decomposition in winter, they will keep for any length of time, and the commission merchants' charges will be reduced by shipping the chicks dressed.

LICE AND REMEDIES.

Lice in summer make the hens subject to disease. The first signs of lice are with the early sitting hens, in the spring, and when the chicks are hatched off they show the effects of lice very quickly, as lice are sudden or certain death to them if they are not protected. To prevent this the nest should be movable, so that one can take them outside and scald them, inside and out, and after this is done, whitewash them inside and out, putting a few drops of kerosene oil to each bucket of whitewash used. This should be done at least twice a month. Tobacco is very good to place in the nest, and will not injure the hens in any way. The roost should be anointed with kerosene oil once a week, which prevents lice crawling on the chicks at night, and also prevents scabby legged chickens, if used often enough. The walls should be whitewashed once a week, when the lice are extremely bad, and the droppings should be removed at least twice a week. Lice of an find lodgment in the droppings, and hence a solution of carbolic acid should be sprinkled over the droppings after they are removed.

FALL MANAGEMENT IN FEEDING.

As soon as the leaves begin to fall and the grass gradually dies out the fowls will require more assistance from their owner. Ordinarily, in the summer, when grass, insects and seeds are plentiful, a flock not only finds an abundance but each fowl is capable of selecting such foods as may be preferred, but when the conditions are not so favorable they may each lack certain foods which they are unable to obtain. Should there be an insufficiency of bulky food the fowls will eat the dried dead grass, which may pack in the crops and cause them to become crop-bound. The majority of poultry-owners begin by giving the birds plenty of corn and wheat. Such foods may be allowed with benefit but it is a mistake to expect fowls to thrive on such a restricted diet. One point to keep in view in the feeding of poultry is that all kinds must have bulky food of some kind, the same as cattle, sheep or swine, and to confine them to corn and wheat, which are concentrated foods, is to "burn them up," if the expression may be used. In the fall, as the summer begins to give way to cold weather the fowls should have a pint of grain at night for every twelve in the flock. As the winter advances the allowance may gradually be increased until the quantity reaches a quart. This grain should be given at night. During the day—in the morning—such foods as cooked potatoes, a head of cabbage, cut grass, or clover (scalded) bone, meat and occasionally a soft mess of bran and ground oats may be given, feeding only in the morning and at night, never at noon. When any of these foods are given the grain ration should be reduced. It is better to give a different food every morning than to have a sameness of diet. Fed in this manner the birds will keep in healthy condition, will lay, will be more contented, and it will be found that the varied foods are more economical than an exclusive diet of grain.

A good young work-horse for sale by EDWARD ABELL.

You should read the RECORD, $1

There is a revolution in opium packing in India which is calculated will save the growers $5,000,000 a year. Formerly, on taking the opium from the cultivators, it used to be placed in earthenware jars, and these jars were packed with straw into wicker baskets. This antiquated method will, however, be seen no more, for the jar system is being replaced by packing the opium in cloth and gunny bags. It has undergone a preliminary test of two years in one sub-agency and is now being given a crucial test by being tried side by side with the jar plan, half the opium of this season being packed in jars and half in bags. There is little doubt, however, as to the final opinion.

The advantages are obvious: first, no breakages can occur and there is much less lost by the amount of opium sticking or adhering to the sides. In the later case it is estimated that one pound per jar is saved; while about 5 per cent is lost in breakages, or about four pounds per jar. There is, therefore, a saving of about five pounds per jar, and as each sub-agency sends about 30,000 jars the saving amounts to 150,000 pounds. A chest of opium weighing 125 pounds sells for 1,000 rupees at least, so that the saving in one sub-agency alone comes to 1,200,000 rupees, which at the present rate of exchange may be taken to be equal to $400,000. There are five sub-agencies in Bengal, and probably the same number in the northwestern provinces, which gives a total of $4,000,000, to which if is added the saving in several layers in a railway truck, instead of only one layer of jars, we get nearly $5,000,000.

The refreshment stalls for the hundreds of cultivators who bring in their produce are interesting. Their simple wares are easily satisfied, and the greater part of the refreshment provided consists of a mixture of parched barley and grain ground to powder, mixed with a little coarse sugar. These small farmers live on very little and make a great deal of money on their opium.

Hair For Violin Bows.

According to the New York Sun the horse hair used in making violin and other similar bows is imported from Germany; a considerable part of the hair thus imported, however, coming originally from Russia. Horse hair for these purposes is white and black; the black is the heavier and stronger, and this is used in making bows for bass viols, because it bites the big strings better. In preparing the hair for use in bowmaking the white hair, used for violin bows, is bleached to bring it to its final whiteness.

The standard violin bow is 29 inches in length; longer bows are made to order. Shorter bows are used by young persons; but the bow commonly seen in the hands of a violin player is 29 inches long. Horse hair for violin bows is imported in various lengths, but mostly in lengths of 36 inches. Hair sufficient for one bow is put together in what is called a hank; the hanks are tied up in bundles of a dozen hanks; these are bundled in grosses, and the gross bundles are put together in great grosses, in which shape the hair is imported.

There are grades and qualities of the horse hair, but the best is not very costly. A hank of the best white hair can be bought for 20 cents; it might cost 80 cents more to have it put into the bow. To repair a bass viol bow costs more, the bulk of hair required being greater.

Longfellow's Second Woeing.

The following romantic account of the inspiration of Hyperion is clipped from a recent issue of the Detroit Free Press:

About the year 1837, Longfellow, in making a tour of Europe, selected Heidelberg for a winter residence. There his wife died. Some time afterward there came to Heidelberg a young lady of considerable attractions. In the course of time the poet became attached to the beautiful girl of 16, but his advances met with no response and he returned to America. The girl, who was also an American, returned home shortly after. Their residences, it happened, were contiguous, and the poet availed himself of this in prosecuting his attentions, which he did with no better success.

Unlike Petrarch, who laid siege to the heart of his sweetheart through the medium of sonnets, Longfellow resolved to write a book which would achieve the double object of gaining fame and at the same time her affections. "Hyperion" was the result. His labor and his constancy were not without their reward; the girl gave him her heart as well as her hand and afterward they resided in Cambridge, in the house which Washington made his headquarters while in command of the armies.

Four Languages Only.

At the geographical congress at Berlin this summer the languages to be used will be limited to English, German, French and Italian. A writer in the review published by the Madrid geographical society protested against the exclusion of the Spanish language in view of the fact that it was spoken by most of the discoverers and colonists of a large part of the world. It says if more geographers were able to read Spanish they would not from time to time bring forth facts as new which were printed in Spanish books two or three centuries ago.

TRAIN VIEW OF ENGLAND

IS ALWAYS A DISAPPOINTMENT TO STRANGERS.

The Architecture of the Country Back From the Railroads Is Entirely Different, From Nearby.

The ways whereby London is reached by those in whose eyes we could wish the mere country to look well are chiefly three: By Liverpool, by Southampton, and—if the American tourist is making England the last point of a European ramble—by Dover. Between Liverpool and London lie four hours of small fields, small hills, small villages, and here and there enormous towns. But everywhere, as on every line, from the railway carriage is to be seen chiefly that kind of building which is the railway order of architecture. At every station, however small and rustic, are grouped the most squalid of all modern houses, built of yellow brick and roofed with thin blue slate, with their tavern in the midst. From the north to the south, and from the German ocean to the Atlantic, the English railway architecture is invariable. And this is chiefly why a traveler ought not to be content with a journey on a line of railway. But a little way from every station the yellow brick disappears, the slate roof is no more seen; the farms are hooded in their thatch, the cottages ruddily covered in with tiles that dip and dimple with age, and make velvet shadows in the sun. It is no small humiliation to an Englishman to know that the dusky-red and warm-white villages are there, but that nothing is to be seen except swarthy yellow brick and slates that look as thin as paper.

Londonward from Dover is one of the most smoky journeys in the south of England, but here is the best cultivated land in England. Here the little green grass fields stop for a time, and the croft and the fruit garden are in bloom.

If the American would indulge us, he would go away upon the country roads; would not see more of the Thames than suburban Richmond can show him; would sail the little Dart in the south; would pace the sands of the northwest coast, under the castled walls of basalt, by Holy Isle, where there are millions of sea birds nesting on the ledges; would walk the wild flowers of the chalk; would follow the trout streams in Cornwall. For even at Stratford upon Avon stands—more conspicuous than the little house of pilgrimage—the universal railway station, the station of numberless repetition, with its unalterable circumstance.—Collier's Weekly.

Swept by the Sea.

Inhabitants of the coast towns of England are alarmed over the encroachments of the sea. The pretty little village of Dunwich was formerly a large town and held no small place among the commercial cities of the kingdom. All its churches and monastic institutions have been washed away by the sea, and a large forest has followed the buildings.

During the last century the small town of Aldeburgh has been nearly ruined. Buildings have been thrown down, washed away and the market place and cross are also gone. But at Southwold the sea has fought with the most pluck. It was once a town of importance. The water has gained one mile on the shore line in a few years, and half an acre of land has been washed away in the last couple of years. Houses which formerly stood on the cliff are now on the very edge and will soon be washed away.

Many thousands of dollars have been spent by England and more will be expended in sea defenses, but the residents are skeptical as to the possibility of stopping the march of Father Neptune.

Are Slow Pay.

An insight into the absolutely unprincipled proceedings of persons who employ the services of professional men, and presumably fatten at the same time on confiding tradesmen who fear to be importunate, least in these competitive days they lose custom, has been given by a correspondent of a London paper. The writer is the wife of a fashionable London dentist, and she stated that while an expensive menage has to be maintained, and an appearance commensurate with a large practice in a smart neighborhood has to be kept up, it is a positive fact that only $18 was received last quarter in payment of accounts to the amount of between $3,000 and $3,500. This gives some small idea of the terrible difficulties under which tradesmen as well in smart neighborhoods must carry on business, and of the heartlessly reckless and selfish manner in which a very large proportion of people make a brave show at other people's expense.

As They See It in Manila.

The volunteers in the Philippines are beginning to like fighting, if one can judge by the headlines in the Manila Daily American. "Twentieth Kansas Enjoys a Brush with the Rebels" is the heading over an account of a lively battle. Also they are beginning to tire of the charms of the Spanish belles, for one homesick private advertises that he earnestly desires the acquaintance of an American lady, who is matrimonially inclined. Colonel Funston, it appears, received official notice of his promotion while he was on the train going into Manila to have his wounded hand dressed. "Colonel Jim Sherwood, late of Chicago, and of Long Branch, Wikihiki, Honolulu, announces that he has opened a saloon in Cavite, and will serve for the benefit of American warriors mixed drinks, which are guaranteed to neutralize the effects of living in a tropical climate.

LORD KELVIN'S LECTURE.

The Experiments In Which His Class Is Deeply Interested.

Eggs, jellies, shoemaker's wax, tangle, all sorts of stuff, are used to illustrate the lectures, and homely experiments are recommended to the student, even the humble teaspoon, "so ill-adapted to the purpose for which it is intended," being pressed into the service, says Cassier's Magazine. In the famous egg experiment he shows how Columbus might have gained his object without breaking the egg. When boiled and sent spinning on a table, the egg rises and spins on its end. Unboiled eggs, owing to the fluidity of the interior, do not rise, but if set spinning and then suddenly stopped and immediately released they continue their motion for a little time. Once, the result of a student's plot, raw eggs were substituted for the boiled ones, but science could discriminate and the verdict was unhesitatingly given: "None of them boiled."

He revels in experiments and is always at home and serenely happy, whether among forests or organ pipes and tuning forks, or in a sea of bottles and vessels for experiments on capillarity, or surrounded by globes and tops to illustrate astronomy. From the close of the prayer, with which, according to the ancient custom, the lecture is opened, until the end of the hour, his body as well as his mind is never at rest. With restless energy he will dart off to the blackboard to illustrate what he has been talking about, his gown streaming out behind him. Loud applause greets his efforts as he wrestles with gyrostats, or works energetically at the brake wheel to illustrate the principle of rope dynamometry.

The appearance of the ballistic pendulum is always hailed with delight by the class, for one of the classical experiments is to be performed—the determination of the velocity of a bullet by firing it into the heavy wooden bob of the pendulum and noting the displacement produced. Armed with an old Jacob rifle, with which, when a volunteer, he used to practice, Lord Kelvin comes to the front of the lecture table, kneels, takes deliberate aim, amid great amusement and excitement, pulls the trigger and, before the smoke has subsided, is busy at the blackboard with the calculation.

His students are proud of him, admiring his energy and enthusiasm, respecting him for his profound knowledge and his grand work, loving him for his gentle, unassuming nature.

A "Gig."

"Gig" has one or two obsolete and rare meanings of interest, says the Academy. It is obsolete in its meaning of a flighty girl, though a writer so comparatively modern as Mme. D'Arblay wrote in her diary: "Charlotte L— called, and the little gig told all the quarrels." In the sense of an oddity or fool the word probably survives locally. Whyte-Melville makes some one say in "Kate Coventry": "Such a set of 'gigs,' my dear, I never saw in my life. * * * Not a good-looking man among them." Yet note that the word is put into quotation marks. "In high gig" meant in high spirits. "Gig" had the third meaning of fun, glee. Sir Walter Besant locates the phrase in the thirties of this century in his "Fifty Years Ago": "A laughter-loving lass of 18, who dearly loved a bit of gig." No connection with "giggle" is suggested. By the way, I see that Mr. Leslie Stephen has had the temerity to write of the house of commons "giggling over some delicious story of bribery and corruption."

Although "gig," a flighty girl, is obsolete, "giglet," meaning the same thing, is apparently not so. A writer in Chambers' Journal uses it with effect in the sentence: "Why should female clerks in the postal service consist of pert giglets hardly out of their teens?" "Giglet fairs" (for hiring female farm servants) are still held in the west of England.

London's Silly Season.

The efforts of our correspondents to supply the "missing word" that is to describe the great English-speaking people scattered over the globe do not, we regret to say, improve in attractiveness, though they do not want for ingenuity, says the London Chronicle. Clearly, all who try their wits at finding the solution take the existing names and try to make a more or less euphonious blend, which is not, we think, the way in which the golden word will be found, if it ever is found and adopted.

Thus: S. Stainer, from the two words "Britisher" and "American," offers as a blend the general designation "Britamer," the collective people being described as "Britamers." Isabel Fry has hit upon pretty much the same device, with an extra syllable or two in favor of the poor Australians. Thus she suggests that the people of three countries shall be called "Britamerialians." We are afraid this will hardly do. And what of the British race at the Cape? Might they not claim an extra syllable or two in this ingenious compound?

What Hurt.

"What's the matter?" asked the friend. "You're not angry because the man accused you of being the political boss of this town?"

"That isn't what he said," replied the indignant citizen. "He intimated that I wasn't the boss."—Washington Star.

Prune Charlotte.

Soak one pound of prunes over night, stew them and remove the stones. Fit slices of stale sponge cake around a basin, pour in the hot prunes, cover up with cake, and when cold turn into a glass dish and pour over it a pint of boiled custard.

SCORCHED A GENERAL.

Came Near Being a Very Serious Matter to Both.

"I never told you, did I?" asked a regular soldier who has not yet recovered from the wound he received at El Caney, "how near I came to burning up a brigadier-general in Cuba last summer?"

"Burning him up?" repeated the soldier's friend; "no, you certainly never told me that."

"Well, the officer I came near finishing was Gen. Miles—Col. Evan Miles of the First Infantry, you know, but a brigadier-general of volunteers. Our regiment was in his brigade, and this happened one night in June when I was on headquarters guard. Headquarters was a big name for a pretty poor place. There wasn't even a tent, and the general and his aid, a lieutenant, bivouacking by a fire, with nothing but empty boxes to sleep on—not the softest kind of bed. It grows awfully cold, you know, as soon as the sun goes down in Cuba, and the dew chills you to the bone. That night was cooler than usual, and I was shivering as I built up the campfire. Because of that, I suppose, I made it good and big. Gen. Miles and the lieutenant lay down on their boxes and went to sleep, and when the fire was well started I went on my post, 100 yards or so away. After I had been there for perhaps half an hour, walking up and down trying to keep warm, I heard a commotion in the camp. Gen. Miles was shouting: 'Sentry! Sentry!' at the top of his voice. I rushed up as fast as I could, but even before I got there I saw what the trouble was. You never laid eyes on such a roaring old campfire. The general was kicking at the box that had been his bed.

"D—n it, man," he said, as I came up, 'what are you trying to do—burn me up? You've got too much fire here altogether!'

"Nobody could help agreeing with him on that point. The end of his box was blazing, and his clothes were fairly scorched. The heat had waked him up just before he actually caught fire himself. I hustled around and stamped the fire out where it had spread beyond bounds, and when I got that done I apologized as well as I knew how. The lieutenant was on the other side of the fire, and the wind had kept the blaze away from him. He was sitting up, with his back toward us, so that the general couldn't see him laugh, but his shoulders were shaking well. There was a funny side to it, of course, but it might have been serious for me. It looked like the careless trick of a recruit, instead of the work of a man who has been in the army as long as I have. The general was very good about it, and, no matter how cold it was, I was more moderate in my campfires after that."—New York Tribune.

Queer Towns.

A few miles from Ningpang-po, a town of northern China, is a large village composed of graves. It is a deserted burial ground, which has been taken advantage of by a clan of beggars and thieves, who eat, sleep and make merry in their greswome surroundings. There are several similar towns in the Celestial empire.

Near a certain quarry in Italy is a town the inhabitants of which pay no rent or taxes. They are quarry employes, who have dug dwellings in the face of a steep rock.

In New Guinea the village of Tupuseli is most remarkable. The houses are all supported on piles and stand out in the ocean a considerable distance from shore. This is to protect the villagers from the attacks of the dreaded head-hunters, always looking out for victims. Other villages in this queer land are perched up in trees for the same reason.

There is a town without a name on Lake Huron. It is composed of 5000 huts. During the summer the dwellings are hidden away in the brush tenantless, but when winter comes their owners appear, move them out on the ice, cut a hole through the floor and the ice and proceed to fish.

Athens, on the coast of Macedonia, is the most curious town in the world. The peninsula is known as the Mountain of Monks. A score or so of monasteries dot the land and bodies of ascetics, kind to travelers, but eccentric to a degree, occupy them. There is not a woman to be seen anywhere in the shops of the town. As a residence for bashful bachelors Athens is cordially recommended.

The Cats and the Rats.

The problem of the three sprightly cats who could catch three rats in three minutes was left last week in a state of quandary, for it remained unanswered as to how many cats it would take to catch 100 rats in 100 minutes, says the New York Herald. Did you do a little thinking for yourself during the week? And then did it become a matter of wonderment that it did not flash across your mind at once? It is the simple ones that fool by their very simplicity.

The how many cats did it really take, do you ask? Why, to be sure, the same three cats. And how is it figured out is the next question? Very easily. If those three cats can catch three rats in three minutes they can surely catch six rats in six minutes, ten rats in ten minutes, or 100 rats in 100 minutes. By the condition of the problem they catch three rats in three minutes, which is one one rat in one minute, and going back to the arithmetic reasoning, if three cats catch one rat in one minute the same cats will catch 100 rats in 100 minutes, which is all very plain.

Must Have Light.

It has been determined that light is an important factor in sugar production, recent investigations showing that the sugar content of the plant is dependent on the amount of direct sunlight received.

PICTURE FACTORIES.

Where They Are Turned Out in vast Quantities.

It was the prosperity that set in after the civil war, coupled with the ignorance of many of those who acquired wealth at that time, which tempted the importation of foreign paintings. The name attached to the canvas meant more to the ignorant buyer than the canvas itself. Occasionally a customer would ask the dealer if he had any American paintings. The dealer would say, "Oh, yes," and bring out the typical winter scene showing a church with an illuminated steeple and stained glass windows reflecting colored light on the snow. Then the customer would say, "Guess not," and continue to look at foreign "pot-boilers."

After awhile establishments for the manufacture of foreign masterpieces started up—some are still going—and "Corots," "Daubignys," "Rosseaus," "Geromes," and "Melissoniers" were supplied at wholesale rates, say $10 a yard. This reminds me of an advertisement I once read: "Your last chance to buy one of our genuine old $5 Stradivarius violins. Only a few left." I cannot imagine a man, however ignorant, being impervious to the immortality that skulls behind falsehood in art. Everything in his house is above suspicion—his wife, his children, he himself. The only false note is that "Cort" on his parlor wall. I have observed with amusement that since the Clarke sale the fraudulent picture factories have begun to turn out "Innesses."

Pictures of sheep huddled together in a snowstorm have probably started more art collections in this country than any other class of canvas. It is said of a well known collector, now dead, that he was induced by a canvas of this kind to enter an art store. He was very plainly dressed, and the clerk who showed him around was barely polite to him. He kept asking the price of one canvas after another. When he had made the round of the store he told the clerk that he would like to see the proprietor. The latter was informed by his clerk that "there's a countryman out there who's been looking at some pictures and wants to see you." When the proprietor came out the "countryman" remarked: "The prices of these pictures that I have been looking at foot up $149,000. I'll give you $100,000 down for them." Needless to say, the sale was made on the spot.

Some time after Thomas B. Clarke was invited by the purchaser to view his collection. After Mr. Clarke had looked at the pictures he asked:

"Haven't you any American paintings?"

"American!" exclaimed the collector, "are there any?"—Forum.

Finger-Nail Fancies.

In early times it was considered that bad luck would certainly attend a person who neglected to either burn or bury the parings of his finger nails, says Woman's Life. Among the Hebrews it was the custom to pare the nails on a Friday, and the operation had to be conducted in a certain manner. The little finger on the left hand had first to be operated on, then the middle finger, followed by the fourth finger, thumb and forefinger. The nail of the middle finger of the right hand had next to be cut; then came the thumb, then the forefinger and afterward the fourth and little finger.

When fortune-telling was more in vogue than at present the shape and appearance of the finger nails were looked on as having reference to one's destiny. The nails were first rubbed over with a mixture of wax and soot, and, after being thus prepared, were held so that the sunlight fell full upon them. On the horny, transparent substance were supposed to appear signs and characters from which the future could be interpreted.

Persons, too, with certain descriptions of nails were supposed to possess certain characteristics. For instance, a man with red and spotted nails was of a fiery, hot-tempered disposition, while pale, lead-colored nails denoted a melancholy temperament.

Ambitious and quarrelsome people were distinguished by narrow nails, while lovers of knowledge and liberal sentiment had round-shaped nails.

Conceited, obstinate and narrow-minded persons were possessed of small nails; lazy, indolent individuals of fleshy nails, and those of a gentle, timid nature of broad nails.

Those persons whose nails grow into the flesh at the sides are generally luxuriously inclined, while those with very pale nails are subject to both bodily and mental suffering.

To Test Ocean Currents.

The Geographical Society of Philadelphia has prevailed upon the government to make experiments this year with a view to determining the currents in the Arctic Ocean, north of America. Fifty casks designed for the purpose are being sent up to Bering Strait to be set afloat by whalers at several points in the Arctic Ocean. Each of these casks will contain a record of the time and place it is thrown overboard, and it is hoped later that a considerable number of them may be picked up by other vessels, and thus it will be learned in what directions they are carried by the currents.

Pushed Her In.

Mother (to her little girl, who was allowed in the garden, but was told not to pick red currants)—Why did you pick the currants when I told you not to?

Little Girl—Satan tempted me, mother.

Mother—But have not I told you always to say: "Get behind me, Satan?"

Little Girl—So I did, mother, and he went behind me and pushed me into the currant bushes.—Spare Moments.

Miss Vera L. Rankin, of Lapeer, has been elected teacher of the 6th grade in the Buchanan high school. It was her father, Prof. H. C. Rankin, who, as principal of our school a number of years ago, transformed it from an overgrown district school into a graded school, and made it possible, as it has done, to become one of the best Union schools of its size in the state. After leaving here he taught successfully in Buchanan, Leslie and Lapeer. If the daughter inherits her father's aptitude for teaching, Buchanan has made a wise choice in her selection. -Cassopolis Democrat.

Marvelous That's the Story.

Yesterday was the 16th day since Van's opened their Bakery and Short Order Restaurant, and hardly a dull moment since.

RIGHT IS MIGHT.

It is the keystone of our wonderful success and rapid growth. Goods right, service, attention, every detail of our bakery and restaurant business known to be right. Should by any chance something be otherwise we make it right. It is the knowledge of this that has gained us the confidence of the people. Never more right than now. Never better equipped or better prepared to assert our mighty right than now. You will be mighty right if you trade at Van's. A saying that spreads every day: "No place like Van's for baked goods."

FOR THE BICYCLER.

The Sensible Apparel They Will Do Well to Wear.

A loose, fluffy style of hairdressing is unsuitable for cycling. The horse-woman coils her hair firmly and neatly; the woman who rides a wheel would be well advised to do the same.

Intending visitors to Switzerland will do well to join the National Cyclists' Union before starting, if they intend to take their cycles with them.

Be sure your cycle is adjusted to the correct reach. A badly adjusted machine is the cause of many ills. It is a very simple matter to make sure that you can comfortably touch the pedals with your heels.

It can not be too often impressed upon women that there is a right and a wrong way of hill-climbing on a cycle, and that the difference between the two ways often means the capacity or incapacity to ride up a hill at all.

As of little use to trust to the legs alone. To lean forward and drive down foot after foot, with labored swaying of the body from side to side, is a proceeding useless as it is ugly.

The best position for hill climbing is a good upright seat; instead of pushing forward, pull backward from the handle-bars, and, above all, try to keep the pedals moving evenly.

It is a mistake to suppose that when the pedal has been driven down, all that is possible has been done. The instep should then be thrust forward, and the toes kept pressed to the pedal, so as to pull it up.

A little practice will enable a rider to apply pressure round the whole circuit of the pedal's revolution, and the result will be a uniform driving power instead of a succession of jerks.

The pull upon the handle-bars is the necessary counteraction to the thrust of the leg. If the body is thrown forward also, half the strength is wasted in preserving equilibrium.

By sitting well back, a rider is able to use all the strength of the body, as well as the strength of the leg, for the pedaling. And the "rushing" of hills is not altogether a wise course.

It always sounds an easier method of getting over the difficulty, but, as a matter of fact, it generally ends in a far more violent effort, followed by far more breathlessness, than steady straight riding tactics.

All of which might really be replaced by the excellent advice, do not ride up hills at all.

Weather and Suicides. "Good suicide weather," the grizzled old sergeant behind the desk of one of the east side police stations observed as he glanced out at the dull, overwhelming clouds from which the rain sifted down in a never-ending drizzle.

"A good day for suicides over here," he continued, musingly. "If a German is going to kill himself he waits for just such a day as this. Even if he don't intend to kill himself three or four days like this will soon drive him to it. We'll be apt to have three or four cases reported before roll call."

"Now, it's different with a Frenchman. When a German feels blue it makes him all the bluer if the weather's bad. But a Frenchman, when he is crossed in love or has gone broke, thinks the weather is sympathizing with him if it rains when he is feeling badly. When he makes up his mind to commit suicide he'll invariably carry out his intention on a sunshiny day. The world's brightness seems only to mock him."

"And what about the Irishman, sergeant?" asked the new policeman. "Look here, young man," said the sergeant, with just a suggestion of Limerick in his tone, "Irishmen don't commit suicide. When an Irishman gets broke and blue he don't kill himself! Not much! He goes home and beats his wife every time."

Plants in the Philippines. Though the Philippines are an agricultural country they do not produce enough food for the consumption of the inhabitants, and it is the custom to draw upon rice-producing countries such as Cochinchina.

Eight thousand acres, or one-ninth of the area of the islands, is devoted to agriculture, and with better methods the productiveness of the soil will be very much increased. Rice is the most important food grown, more than a hundred varieties being raised, the annual production being 36,000,000 bushels.

Maize and sweet potatoes are next to rice in importance as Philippine foods. Fruits, especially bananas, grow abundantly. Sugar is grown in quantities, but the manufacturing methods are crude and the marketable result is inferior.

Indigo used to be an important product. Coffee does well, but is not of extra fine quality. Of course, tobacco is grown, and while spices and medicinal plants thrive the natives do not know much about them.

Novelty in Belts. Windsor belts are a novelty that any clever girl can make for herself to add to her summer toilets. They are made of boys' ties or the broad, old-fashioned Windors.

Take one of these ribbon lengths, about eight inches wide and finished in tabbed points, and encircle the waist with it. To one end fasten a handsome clasp, or any ornament that will serve as a "blind" buckle, and draw the loose end through this, leaving the longer end to float over the dress front. At the back they may be pinned in place with a belt holder or pin.

LATEST WEDDING TALK.

Sensible Changes About to Be Introduced in Gifts.

In some parts of Switzerland a custom obtains for the friends of a bride to present an elaborate cheese to her on her wedding day. It is then used as a family register or heirloom—the births, deaths and marriages of the various members of the family being recorded upon it. Some of these old cheese date back as far as 1600.

A new fashion in wedding presents appears to be about to supersede the hackneyed one of jewelry. It takes the form of prayer books for brides and bridesmaids, covered in specially designed artistic bindings, with the initials of each recipient, and the date of the event in gold on the side.

A leaf of vellum, with gold border, is also inserted in each book for the signatures of those present at the ceremony. The idea is excellent as a prayerbook is a serviceable article for daily use, and is also a memento of filling the office of bridesmaid. Apropos of honeymoons, it is curious to see the many different ways in which people consider it happiest to spend that period.

Some like solitude amid fine scenery; others prefer to be alone in a crowd, or else desire a complete change from their accustomed surroundings. Like a sailor who stipulated that his bride should take him well out of sight of the sea. But the most ideally perfect honeymoon, according to a sentimentalist, is when two lovers have been parted, and "after long grief and pain" they meet once more, not to be disillusioned, as sometimes happens, but to find the love of former days more than renewed. Their wedding follows swiftly on the happy meeting, and they go off with the glamour of it still in their hearts, to some place of sunny weather and perfect beauty. Such an experience of happiness as that is rare, but for those who are fortunate enough to win it the remembrance must remain a lifelong joy.

Mary Anderson's Way. Mary Anderson Navarro had probably a more persistent fight against the wealthy stage manager than any woman in the profession who confined herself to the "strictly legitimate," says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Early in her career she was playing in Hartford and was entertained by a number of the literary people there, headed by Charles Dudley Warner, all of whom had the greatest admiration for her genius.

At one of these "afternoons" she met a howling swell of the city and behaved graciously to him. On the strength of this the young fellow ordered a big supper at a leading restaurant and asked a number of his friends to meet Miss Anderson, whom she certainly would not have met under any other circumstances. Then, during the last act of the performance, a messenger was sent to bid the fair actress to the feast.

To the mortification of her host and amusement of his guests the messenger came back with only a verbal message that "Miss Anderson was not on a foraging expedition."

Its Derivation. A Latin professor was explaining the derivation of our word "ostracize" to his class in a local academy the other day. He told the story of the early Roman republics and the scheming of the politicians of the times. He related how when any man in the republic became obnoxious to his neighbors, they used to write his name on an oyster shell (Latin—ostrea, shell), and on the receipt of a specified number by the consuls that man was banished, killed, or otherwise removed in some one of those pleasant ways the old Romans had. When he had finished his explanation he said:

"Now, the boy here in the front seat, who did we derive from the old Latin use of the shell, which was called ostracum?"

The answer he expected was far from what he got, for the little student with spectacles in the front seat arose, and delivered himself thus:

"From the Roman habit of using shells to get the best of people, we derive the present Coney Island shell game, which is a fascinating and costly sport."—Brooklyn Times.

The Czar As a Boy. The czar was taught English, which he speaks without any accent, by a Mr. Heath, a gentleman who was very fond of boxing. An interesting picture is given by a French writer of the early life of the young ruler of the Russians. Nicholas and his brothers were brought up with very little ceremony, though they were well educated, particularly in religious matters. But their Sundays were not passed in a fashion which the old Puritans would have approved of, for on that particular day they entertained at dinner their boy and girl friends; and very lively these banquets were. The manners at the table of the future czar and his brothers and friends remind one rather of the days of Peter the Great and the way in which that monarch "carried on," for we are told that "there was no end to the tricks the host and their small guests played. From end to end of the table there used to be continuous firing of bread pellets which were perpetually striking princely noses or landing in royal mouths."

Won Over by a Woman.

The engineer who lays out a railroad dislikes to move a stake when it has once been driven, says "The Story of the Railroad." Once, when the present chief engineer of a western railroad was locating a line in Missouri, he was asked to change the stakes and refused. After the stakes had been set a young, unshaved man appeared and asked that the road be "moved over a bit."

"The road cannot be changed," promptly returned the engineer; "this is the best place for it."

The man went into a house, got a rifle, came out and pulled up the stakes. The indignant engineer started toward him, but was intercepted by an elderly woman.

"Can't you move your road over a little piece, mister?" she asked. "I don't see why I should," responded the engineer. "My business is to locate the line and you can call on the company for damages. What does that young blackguard mean by sitting there on a stump with a gun?" he angrily demanded.

"That's Nip—he ain't no blackguard, That's Nip, my son."

"Well, I'll nip him if he gets funny." "Oh, no, you won't. I ain't afraid o' that," said the woman. "What come over me when I seen you starting for Nip was that p'raps you had a mother, and how bad she'd feel to have you come home that way."

"What way?" "Well, if you persist in driving them stakes there, you'll go home dead."

"Look here, do you think I'm to be bluffed by that ruffian?" "Nip ain't no ruffian," said the woman. "You see, we've always lived here—Nip was born here—'an' when the grizzlies come 'an' called out paw 'an' shot him, we buried him just whar he fell 'an' we've always kept it as a reservation, 'an' Nip he's determined you shan't disturb it, that's all."

"Then you don't object to the railroad?" "Lord o' mercy, no! We want the railroad, but we don't want you to disturb paw's grave."

"Come," said the engineer, "let's go and see Nip."

When they had come up to the stump the big engineer held out his hand. Nip took it, but kept his eyes on the stranger.

"Here it is," said the woman, touching a low stone lightly with her foot. "I see," said the engineer. "We can miss that easily enough."

He moved a mile of road. From that day forward until the road was finished and long after the widow's home was the stopping place for the engineer.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years, was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh a constitutional disease and, therefore, requires constitutional treatment.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. Beggars Pretend Blindness.

The Paris correspondent of the London Morning Post says that M. Georges Berry, the well-known Deputy for Paris, recently issued a remarkable report in which he proved, by evidence obtained at first hand, that nine out of ten of the beggars who implore the pity of Parisians for their physical infirmities are arrant imposters. The blind men can see well enough when the time comes to count their day's takings, the lame can walk when they choose, or even run if the police show a disposition to apprehend them. Every day fresh evidence is forthcoming of the truth of M. Georges Berry's revelations. One man had a practice of closing his eyes by sticking the lids with wax. This trick had enabled him to earn an excellent livelihood. On being searched his receipts for the day, amounting to some 9 francs, were found on him, together with 150 francs in bank notes, and a savings bank book showing that he had 1,500 francs to his credit.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children. The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Hutchins In Use For Over Thirty Years CASTORIA THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor spitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Sav, John, what are you doing to look so healthy?"

A Fine Instrument.

A. Jones & Co. the well-known jewellers and opticians are bound to keep up to the times with regard to appliances. They have just added to their optician department a fine instrument known as DeZeng's Refractometer, manufactured by the Cataract Mfg. Co., of Buffalo, N. Y. The accompanying cut gives a good idea of the instrument which is designed to do away with the necessity of using atropine or belladonna in testing the eyes for defects of vision. The Refractometer does this testing perfectly and will no doubt prove a great aid to Mr. Jones in his optical work.
