LINE TO PEKIN NOW OPEN

CHINESE CAN FORWARD MES-SAGES IF WILLING.

President Has Direct Appeal From the Imperial Government For Aid in Preserving China From Enemies.

Washington July 24.-President Mc-Kinley replied to plea of Chinese government asking mercy of powers in its time of distress by promising to protect the integrity of China so long as the imperial government shows a disposition and the ability to protect Americans. He did not offer and was not asked to mediate. Text of imperial protection edict of July 17 made public. Yuan, Governor of Shan Tung, said to have wired on July 18 Ministers were all safe. German press objects to American policy, saying Chinese cunning has imposed on United States. Li Hung Chang said advance of allies on Pekin would mean death of every foreigner.

Washington, July 23.—President Mc-Kinley received through Minister Wu what purported to be direct appeal from imperial government to act as mediator. Believed to have been identical with appeals already received by Japan and France. Diplomatic situation thought to show probability of rescuing foreigners in Pekin. Army experts think Chinese defeat at Tien Tsin makes time ripe for immediate march to capital. Reported wires working to Pekin. Minister Wu said to have offered to deliver Conger to Remy at Taku. Intention to withdraw American forces after Ministers have been rescued.

Imperial edict of July 17, received from United States Consul at Chefoo, directs protection of all missionaries and foreigners, repudiates Boxers as rebels, and promises punishment for murderers. Gives tacit denial to reported massacre of Ministers on July London, July 23.—It is now generally admitted in official circles that direct communication to Pekin is now possible, and that the Chinese government is in a position to forward messages if it feels so disposed.

Washington, Jan. 21.-State department at Washington received through Minister Wu . cipher dispatch from Minister Conger at Pekin, believed to be authentic, which indicated envoys ivere safe after date of alleged massteles. Date thought to be July 18 sage stated envoys were in British Legation under continuous shot and shell from Chinese troops, and quick relief alone could prevent general mas sacre. Admiral Remey was directed to urge march to Pekin. Consul Fowler, at Chefoo, reported advices that envoys were alive.

Bryan expressed horror at barbarities of Chinese, said it was our government's duty to protect American lives and property, but thought declaration of war not yet justified by circumstances.

London press regards Conger message as Chinese trick.

Emperor Kwang-Su has appealed to France as mediator. A dispatch from Shanghai reports that sixty missionaries and 100 native converts have been massacred by Boxers at Tai-Yuan. London, July 22.—The Admiralty this afternoon received the following telegram from Admiral Seymur: "Tien Tsin and neighborhood entirely evacuated by Chinese." Washington, July 21.-Informal draft of agreement for modus vivendi over Chinese crisis presented to all powers, including United States. Holds question of partition in abevance until present military operations cease. President McKinley assented to the concert.—W. W. Rockhill, Director of Bureau of American Republics, appointed special United States Commissioner to report on Chinese situation.—General Joseph Wheeler, commander of Department of the Lakes, applied for service in China.-General Chaffee made a Major Gen-

Allies at Tien Tsin unable to agree on commander-in-chief. Russia refuses to serve under Marshal Yamagata. Li Hung Chang reached Hongkong. Said he was recalled to Pekin by the Empress, and not Prince Tuan.

London, July 19.—In response to the invasion of Siberia by Chinese regular troops, the Russian government has handed the Chinese envoy at St. Petersburg his passports with the request that he and the members of his mission leave at once.

This news coming from St. Petersburg is construed as meaning that Russia intends to wait no longer, but says the Yaquis have been scattered decides to declare war on her own responsibility.

Prince Tuan is said to have mobilized 950,000 men, the Chinese fleet concentrating in China sea. Foreigners at Chu-Chau and In-Chau are said to have been attacked:

Washington, July 18.—As a result of a Cabinet meeting held almost immediately after the arrival of the President it was decided the present situation does not demand a special session of Congress. This was due to Admiral Remey's report of the final victory of the allies at Tien Tsin. London, July 18.—The Chinese situation has been further complicated by a formal declaration of war by China on Russia and the bombardment by Chinese troops of the Russian town of from one of Aguinaldo's generals, J. Blagovechensk on the River Amur in Alejandrino, which stated that Ad- they were carried down. Siberia, but is at the same time re- | miral Dewey promised independence lieved by the news that the allied to the Filipinos, was characterized by force, after a most heroic rally, sur- the Admiral as a "tissue of falseprised the Chinese in the native city of | hoods." #### ELEVEN LIVES ARE LOST.

Cunard Vessel Runs Down British Ship and Cuts It in Two.

London, July 23.—The great Cunard liner, Campania, bound from New York to Liverpool, made its last trip at the cost of eleven lives.

At about 9 o'clock on Saturday morning the Campania cut the British bark Embleton in two and it went down like a shot.

Of the crew of eighteen only seven were saved.

The two vessels were twenty-six miles northeast of Tuskar light. A dense fog prevailed. The Embleton was bound from Liverpool to New Zealand ports with a general cargo and was proceeding cautiously. The Campania was also moving at a reduced rate of speed, carefully feeling its way through the fog.

URGE AGUINALDO TO END WAR

Filipino Leaders Send Their Former Chief MacArthur's Terms.

Manila, July 23.-Senor Buencamino has sent to Aguinaldo by means of Aguinaldo's mother the amnesty resolutions adopted by the meeting of representative Filipinos here on June 21, together with General MacArthur's answer to them, and other documents bearing upon the restoration of peace. It is understood that Aguinaldo will summon his advisers, and that a reply may be expected within a month. Filipinos here will give a banquet next Saturday in celebration of President McKinley's order of amnesty. It is officially announced that last week 200 insurgents were killed and 130 surrendered or were captured. One hundred rifles were taken.

Twelve Americans were killed and eleven wounded.

$$$$$$$$$$$$$$ A Chat With a Detective

ŏoooooooooo There was a tremendous crowd outside the Marylebone Police Court last Tuesday morning when I presented my card to the policeman at the door.

Some time after I had entered the court. I was introduced to a very well known detective, who has gained many laurels in the past, and who will gain so many in the immediate future.

He is a very gentlemanly man, welldressed, smart-looking; and when you have talked to him for a few minutes you realize in the quickness of his eye, and the sound sense of his conversation, the ability that has brought him into his present position.

I wanted his reminiscences; but an inherent dislike of publicity forbids him from helping his would-be scribes; nor would he help me more than our-

"Never mind," I said, "I shaft have them for all that, you see if i don"." 1 am able, nowever, to tell you some amusing things about this great detective, things learned in a chat with an old detective officer, almost as famous, and an ardent admirer of my subject.

He is now forty years of age; he has been in the service for twenty years, but has only been a detective for ten years. During that time he has seen as much of London life-in its better and more vicious forms—as any living man; and were he to write a book, it would be one of the most entertaining volumes that we could possess.

One of the most amusing cases that he was ever engaged on was when, in 1882, he arrested three famous "magsmen," that is, confidence-trick men, in a public-house near Euston Station.

He had followed these men for days, until one morning he saw two of them in the public-house and the third loafing about outside. They were waiting for a victim; "and so," said the "tec," "I will be their victim, and they shall try to play the confidence trick on me.'

With that he strolled into the bar. and instantly one man nudged the other, and gave him the signal that the game was to begin, little thinking what a comedy they were playing or how particularly lively a bird was their audience of one.

The first process was for them to quarrel. They called each other a lot of bad names, and then one turned to the "victim" and said:

"Look here, sir," this man is my son, and I allow him a lot of money every month, which he dissipates and wastes. He has just spent five hundred dollars of mine, and he wants me to give him more; but I've no confidence in him-none at all."

Here the son called his father bad names; and then turned to the detective and asked him to have a drink. He had a drink, smoked with the men for over an hour, and pretended to be fresh from the country.

The fellows were delighted, and were about to confide in him. when in came the confederate from outside, and, suspecting something, said, "You fools: don't you see he's a 'D.' "

The game was nearly up, but the detective, quick as lightning, saved it. He pulled out some money from his pocket, and said:

"Look here, let's toss for drinks." The pseudo-father cried to the sus; picious man, "It's all right, you idio shut up," and then he fell to tossing with the detective, and finally opened the whole scheme, saying that, if the detective would trust his son with his one hundred dollars to go round the corner with, he would give himmore money, and the son hinted that he (the victim) and himself might divide it. "Exactly," said the detective, and with that he whipped out the handcuffs and buckled the pair.

Of course the swindlers were fairly taken. "That big sum of money did me," said one of them, "I never thought that the police went about with so much money."

These three sharpers were in a jes"ing mood when tried. They kept the judge and jury in fits of laughter, for they did not seem, even then, to have recovered their astonishment at learning that the supposed greenhorn was one of the sharpest men in London. "Didn't you drink with me?" asked one: "didn't I stand you cigars?" inquired another, and to all this the detective merely smiled and replied:

'Oh, yes: I enjoyed myself very much." This is the amusing side of detective life. Let us take another side. In the same year, my friend was instrumental in capturing eight desperate burglars, of whom the captain was a man named Willim Lovett.

This man, a regular desperado, was traced by the detective to a loft over a stable, and, although knowing that two or three desperate scoundrels were at the top of the norrow stairs, our detective went up, taking but one officer with him.

The moment he entered the room. he saw that the affair was full of danger. Lovett drew a knife from his pocket and sprang upon him, but he struck the man under the ear and knocked him down. Then, lest he arms, and thinking that the other men were about to spring on him, he contemplated throwing Lovett down the

However, in the end he carried him down, and called his officer, who said, "We're carrying a corpse," a statement which frightened the "tec" very much. They faid the man down in the policestation and applied cold water to his head. But Lovett did not like cold water.

With a howl and a bound he sprang up, and made another grab at the detective who had caught him; rather a foolish proceeding, seeing that he was surrounded by police officers, and had no chance of escaping.

This Levett, afterwards sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, was a daring fellow, for he made his escape from Millbank, and then walked about London for two days with a loaded revolver, his sole purpose being to shoot the celebrated detective, whom he regarded with a perhaps easily comprehensible feeling of animosity.

Fortunately for himself, that gentleman was at that moment lying in his own house, suffering from a sharp attack of typhoid fever, and when he recovered he learnt the great risk he had escaped.

All great criminals seem possessed of a great desire to shoot *detectives. and this is not unnatural seeing that such officers are, in the opinion of thieves, impertinently inquisitive and be complete, is likely to foot up highoffensive in their curiosity.

It is the strangeness of the in the street, the pursuer suddenly circumstance that these great vessels pinned his arms and threw him back- which have braved so many dangers wards. The fellow was thrown down of the deep, which have triumphed and when he learnt that his captor was over so many perils of sea and storm a detective he said, "Well, I should and darknes, should have been baffled have made a hole in you, I guess, if and worsted at last tied up at their I'd known who you were."

The thousands who young man was stabbed and no clue prayed for their safety did not ask ex of any sort was left to identify his plicitly that they be safe-guarded then assailants.

Again, he brought Hatton to justice when a woman was discovered in a field near Elstree with her head crushed, and dozens of other cases have been charactirized by the skill that he has brought to bear upon them. With these I do not propose to deal; but I may just cite one instance to, show how ready is the insight of such a man and how true, his quickly-formed conclusions.

One day a woman came up to the police-station, and said that her servant had been nearly murdered by burglars, who had wounded her, pulled her hair out, and made off with a val uable silk dress.

The detective went up to the house, and cross-examined this domestic, listening to her whole explanations, and

"What do you take us for, detectives or fools? Come now, where is that silk dress?"

Of course, he was abused. "How daré he suspect our servant! how dare he make such insinuations?" He listened to them, and laughed. He knew in a moment that the servant was lying, and that no robbery had been

The girl had stolen the dress herself, and before he left the house if was produced; and the astonished householders confessed that his instinct was nothing less than marvelous.

Nor should it be forgotten that our subject wears a fine gold chronometer given him for saving life from fire. One night a house in Cardigan Square was ablaze. He heard cries and screams: he rushed in and brought out a woman, who, however, died in his arms.

He entered the house again, brought out a child; entered yet a third time, but was overpowered by the smoke, and fell back into the flames only to be rescued by the fire brigade.

The Calmer After Thought In the calmer after thought, one The hour for this burglar's capture fact stands out pathetically and curidocks, with thousands of men and These are but a few of the many boats around them, and with the bright great cases that the great enemy of sun of a summer afternoon shining se-When the Hook had been rounded: or when, at most, the ships had been lost to sight in the haze and traffic of the bay, we would ask God's care for them. But now-there was time enough! Yet how often it happens that the great losses of the sea are close to port. Of the latest the Elbe sank with all on board though the land was hardly out of sight, and La Bourgogne went down with the fishing boats around her and New Found land very near. The Oregan, having feared no battle and rounded the Horn has grounded on a little rock close in shore. What wonder that the sailor say they fear most when near the land, and that the captain breathes easy when the storms beat upon him in mid ocean and he has a thousand miles on every side in which to rock and toss? "Oh, when peril comes, do not pray," the fishermen cry, "for those who are close to shore." With the great liners, it is as with the little fishing smacks. The foreseen danger is provided against and so unarmed, the big vesels were ready for wind and wave; they were prepared for fire from within, but not from without. The unexpectedness, the unfitness-if one may ay so-of the end which came, adds a pathetic touch to the loss of the ships. If these great material monsters, then, move one with such a thought, how much more must one be moved by the realization of what this end means to the men and women who lost their lives all unprepared-brave at sea but weak at port, ready to face death with no helr near but piteously pleading for life when help was all around them. Cruel death was doubly cruel.

The Pathetic and Touching Side For after all, sifting and sorting the emotions that so fearful a calamit can raise, the personal side of it is it pathetic and touching side, the side that really counts. Over against it a loss of noble ships, of splendid piers, of valuable corgoes, of property count ing into the millions of dollars, is a matter of little moment. And yet, beyond most men, he was the very son of courtesy-in pleasant weather a gallant who talked to the ladies with such air of respect that none ever ventured to pierce his armor of self-poise and dignity. After the German custom, too, he unfailingly touched his cap to the men among the passengers, and down the long decks he would pass, bowing right and left, with here a smile and there a word, here a handshake and there a sympathetic inquiry. that scarcely omitted any one.

Tammany Hall always celebrates the Fourth of July and, although all the big guns were absent this year at the Democratic convention, the ceremony of celebration was as full and complete and the attendance and enthusiasm as great as in any former year. The long talks and the short talks inspired the braves, and although the weather was hot and uncomfortable the spirit of '76 was strongly in evidence everywhere.

The Ice Trust.

These sweltering days and nights serve to help in the minds of the peo ple the operations of the ice trust Although public sentiment has forced the trust to recede from its position in attempting to advance the price of gas and temporarially accomplished all that was desired, the end is not yet for the trust. It has just scored a victory in obtaining an order from Justice Herrick of Albany postponing all action in the courts until a decision is given on certain points on which appeals have been made to the appellate division. As this decision will not be handed down until September, it is thought that the subject will then be permitted to die, and it probably will, for then the public mind will be full of politics and the ice trust with all its injustices will be forgotten.

Unveiling of the Lafayette Statue. The unveiling of the statute of Lafayette at Paris on the Fourth was the occasion of much rejoicing among the members of the National society of the Daughters' of the American Revolution as it formed an important epoc in the history of the organization. The society has been active in raising funds for the monument, and the appointment of Mrs. Daniel Manning, a New Yorker, who was especially commissioned by the President to assist at the unveiling of the statute made the occasion one of special interest to her many friends in this city.

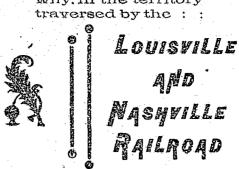

The unveiling ceremonies were held in the court of the Louvre. Mrs. Manning, at the request of the Continental Congress of the Daughters, appointed the following members of the society to represent the National Society at the unveiling: Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. John W. Foster, Miss Eugenia Washington, Mrs. Ellen Hardin Walworth, Miss Mary Desha, Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, Mme. la Marquise de Chambrun, Mrs. Robert Stockwell Hatcher, Mrs. Charles Carlyle Darwin, Mrs. Sara Tompson Kinney and Mrs. Mary P. H. Cameron. Personal Antagonisms.

The personal antagonisms that developed at the convention were chiefly between the New York State leaders and this is nothing new in National conventions. In fact, in almost every convention of either party which has been held for forty years, New York State delegations have been present with a fight. When Lincoln was nominated it was because of a cuarrel in New York. When Tilden won a nomination it was after a determined protest from some of the most prominent Democras in the State, and the Conkling struggle, the Cleveland and Hill incidents and the turning down of Morton are all recent history. In this great State the membership of the parties are so large, that there is plenty of room for disagreement in both parties. The refusal of the New York delegation at Kansas City to permit Former Senator Hill to go on the comwas tall, erect, handsonte, with fair years when party revolts are the most pair and long fair beard, and a face numerous and most effective.

(Chicago Record.) "Pulls" of all kinds are supposed to be desirable things to have, especially when it is possible to acquire them without sullying any spotless integrity and profitable all. But perhaps the very nicest kind of a "pull" to have is that which induces railway people to come your way and allow you to go on their ways.

That is emphatically the opinion of a little woman who has been for years living a sweet and useful life on the NAT'T HAMILTON south side, but who up to a short time ago has escaped distinction further than that of a distant relationship to a railroad official of some prominence.

> She had occasion to go away on a visit. It is immaterial where and incompetent and not proper evidence to mention the road she went by, but without more than hinting at the bare possibility of a pass there can be no earthly objection to stating the fact

> When she went down to the train, however, she found that the porter who was standing guard at the sleeper was altogether unbelieving. He tried to convince her that the train would not and could not by any possibility short of a boiler explosion stop at any way station. He told her that, man and peanut boy, he had been with the road for twenty-five years, and had never heard of such a thing, and at last called the conductor.

> The conductor sustained nim. He said he had received his orders, and that there was nothing in them about stopping. The accommodation train that left the depot at 8:10 the next morning might do so if there was any pressing occasion for it, but not this one. "Why, do you know that there is only a general store, a blacksmith shop and the telegraph office there?" he concluded.

> "I don't care if there is," said the woman. "That's where I intend to get off, and if you won't stop you will have to carry me on, that's all," sayig which she entered the car and began to settle herself for the journey.

> The conductor simply shrugged his shoulders and went away. It seemed to be about the only thing he could do. The passenger was serenely confident. The relative had told her that the train would stop, and she knew that he knew better than any mere conductor.

Her faith was justified; at the first stop the conductor got telegraph orders to stop at the way staltion, and he went back to the sleeper to inform the passenger that she was all right and had no occasion to hurry. There had been a suspicion of brusqueness in his manner before, but now he was the very incarnation of deferential courtesy. As for the porter, he simply became an obsequious and officious nuisance from that time on. He woke the lady out of her first real wink of sleep to ask if he could bring her some coffee. Then he wanted to take her order for breakfast into the dining-car. He brushed her with reverent tenderness of touch that would hardly have disturbed the bloom on the wing of a butterfly, opened her window and affixed a burst guard, overwhelmed her pil-RIVERSIDE GREENHOUSE lows and hovered and fluttered about her all morning. Then the brakeman coming through looked at her with awe-stricken curiosity. She began to feel that at last she was a personage.

> But it was only when the train stopped that the little woman realized her full importance. Almost as soon as the train began to grind down to a standstill the population of the settlement came to their doors, and when it actually stopped all seven of them and a farmer who was getting his horses shod ran down to the track. The telegraph operator was perhaps the most excited of them and he was first on the scene. The two brown and bar legged boys appentaining to the store keeper were next followed closely by their father and mother and the black smith's married sister. The blacksmith stopped to gather up a lew tools which he thought might be needed before he started. The farmer, with hs hands in the pockets of his overalis, came lounging along in the rear.

> stool and he and the conductor helped the little woman to alight with great care, and then brought out her baggage, while the baggagemen lifted out her trunk as if it were charged to the lid with the most sensitive kind of dynamite.

> "It's all right," said the conductor briefly, to the pale-faced operator. "We just stopped to let the lady off. You'd better see If you can do anything for her." Then he signaled to the engineer and a minute later the train was a small dark plumed blotch on the horizon after which the assembled crowd stared in blank amazement. The little woman turned to the operator, who was an intelligent-looking man, and asked him if her friends had not arrived from the town to drive her over. "How in the world did you manage to stop that fiver." asked the opera-'Excuse me-No'm there excarsion to Niagara Falls by way of low Springs. That's him over there with his hands in his pockets. I'd like to know---'

It could not be said that Mr. Barker was a garrulous man. His fair passenger tried to draw him into conversation on the subject of the crops mud made the port-hole "khaki," and several times, but his replies were generally monosyllabic and he seemed in the protection the most exacting aran abstructed mood. The little woman once wondered whether he was pondering over the silver question and asked him whether he thought Mr. Bryan would be elected to the presidency, but he only said, "I dunno," After a little he cleared his throat and added "Some folks think he will an there's zle for you to work out," said a friend others that think he ain't got no show of her's, handing over a slip of paper on arth."

He relapsed into a silence which was unbroken until, the little white wooden steeple of the Frst Methodist church of Waterloo came into sight. Then he cleared his throat again and said:

"How did you get her to stop?" The little woman sojourned in the midst of Waterloo for two weeks and she had the time of her life. It was currently reported that she owned the railroad that brought her there.

WORTH KNOWING

To keep the household linen spotless is one of the anxieties that careful housewives have always with them, yet there are few stalins that cannot be removed if their reagents are understood. As to the table linen, every housekeeper of even the shortest standing knows that it is the freshly laid cloth that comes to grief the quickest; that it is the snowy cover without wrinkle or blemish for which every liquid and solid on the table feels an especial affinity. In households where the size of the week's laundering is an item of interest, a sightly cloth may be preserved for several days by removing spots from meat and vegetable saucers or from milk as fast as they appear. To do this it is only necessary to place the part of the cloth that is stained over a bowl, and with warm The porter was fout with his little water, soap and a soft cloth wash away the spot, carefully rinsing the place by pouring water through it, leaving it to dry partially over a thin plate and then ironing it smooth. The best linen will crack if folded the same way each time that it is ironed. By careful supervision this can be avoided by folding in twos one week and threes another, and varying the methods. A table cloth will give a better appearance if the ridges are smoothed out with iron after the cloth is laid. Many housekeepers who do not like the appearance of folds iron them out entirely after the cloth is on the table. A table cloth which is shown the creases should be folded to lengthwise through the middle, and the two halves should be folded back in the opposite directions, instead of together. This will leave the two creases each side of the central one outward and matching. A liberal use of tea and tray cloths, centre pieces and doilies every day adds to the dainty appearance of the table, and saves the long cloths a great deal of wear and tear. the laundress being spared, meanwhile, much work. How a Missionary Learned to Plow. "It requires a peculiar talent to be a good farmer, and much intellectuality to grasp the details and learn the methods," says Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "I found out it was a deep subject the first time I took the plow handles from the young boy who was guiding them with one hand. I found that it was not so easy as it looked, for I plowed that furrow by main strength. I forced the share through the earth by my unaided efforts-at least, I could not see that the horse did anything particular except to keep ahead—although sometimes the implement took long bounds over the surface, so that when my row was finished it looked like a succession of dots and dashes. The farmer was dying with laughter at my red face and blistered hands, so I felt my religious influence over him would be gone until I learned how to do it, which I presently did." Kepresentative onnention.

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA. a safe and sure remedy for infants and children,

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing. that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Say, John, what are your doing to look so healthy?" President McKinley has replied to a request to mediate in behalf of China with the European powers, and has given the Chinese emperor, an able and statesmanlike answer. He has impressed upon China the vital necessity of several things, first, that public assurance must be given as to whether the foreign ministers are alive or not, second, to put these diplomats in direct communication with their governments if they are alive, third, to order the imperial troops to co-operate with the relief expedition. These conditions accomplished, then the United States would use their good offices to obtain a peaceful solution of the questions at issue, and endeavor to secure the consent of the allied powers to such a solution.

In commenting on the result of the County Convention the Benton Harbor Banner-Register says:

The decision of register of deeds candidacy was another surprise, and though warned before the vote by G. W. Noble, that the one end of the county was getting the pull, the choice was rendered in one ballot and faith-The Frank Leslie's Weekly for July ful Leroy H.Dodd, of Buchanan, was defeated.

A Strong Ticket.

The Republicans of Berrien county named an invincible ticket at St. Joseph on Wednesday and the harmonious solution of several persistent contests was admirable.

Hon. John M. Glavin made a most excellent and eminently fair presiding officer. He was ably assisted by Edward S. Kelley as secretary, the latter's voice retaining its power and resonance through long hours of roll calls.

The arrangements for the convention were adequate and the hospital ity of St. Joseph most agreeable.

Frank H. Ellsworth, of Benton Harbor, will make a most competent, painstaking and obliging Probate Judge. There is no doubt of the excellent ability of his predecessors, especially of Judge VanRiper, who has the cordial esteem and gratitude of the people of Berrien county for long and honorable service in their behalf; but his successor will, as Mr. Valentine rightly assured the convention show the public that he is abundantly able to fulfil all the duties of the po-

The selection of Benj. F. Earl, of Niles, is an assurance that the important office of Sheriff is to be filled by an experienced man, well fitted for Cassopolis, the guest of Miss Minnie the place. He has been a deputy sheriff and under sheriff for eight Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morris and years and knows the requirement of the office thoroughly. As a detective Mr. Earl has shown superior ability.

In the nomination of "Gus" Church, of St. Joseph, for Clerk, was witnessed the further triumph of a young man of exemplary character and efficient abilities, whose career as Mayor of St. Joseph, attested his popularity and strength. He will make a capital clerk.

John Gard, the nominee for treasurer, not only adds the proverbial "tower of strength" to the ticket and Mr. W. H. Keller and daughters, honors one of the most faithful of the old line Republicans of the county, but insures the wise and prudent administration of every detail of the county treasurer's office.

The nomination of Henry A. Rackliffe for Register of Deeds was the final triumph of a man who has been repeatedly before the county for this for himself, but for his township, which is one of the party's strongholds. In his election not only his host of personal friends, but the whole Mrs. Chas. Kreghbaum and son of county when they come to know the man will take pride.

> It was fitting, in view of the other nominations, that the office of prosecuting attorney should go to the south | 🌑 part of the county, and no better man could have been chosen in all the second district than A. A. Worthington. He will bring to the office the capabilities of a good lawyer and the geniality of an estimable citizen.

The rest of the ticket is made up of durable timber-every nominee trustworthy and competent gentleman.—Benton Harbor Palladium.

IN A MINE ABOUT TO EXPLODE. Extinguished the Fuses When Almost

Burned to the Powder. John Kendall, who was recently the foreman of a mine at Rossland, B. C., lately underwent an experiment that has left him a physical wreck. His nerves were shattered and it will be months before he regains his former strength.

Kendall and four other men lighted the short fuses under eight charges of giant powder in the True Blue mine and then jumped into the basket to be hauled to the surface and out of harm's way. The basket raised a few feet and then stopped. Soon it began settling, and it looked as though the five men would be blown to atoms when the tremendous charges of powder were exploded. When the basket was within four feet of the bottom of the shaft the fuses could be heard sputtering, and the men knew that only a few seconds would elapse before the blasts were discharged.

Kendall jumped from the basket and began pulling the fuses from the primers, which were to explode the powder.

Kendall had extinguished five of the fuses nearest the bottom of the shaft when he heard the preliminary sputtering that betokened an immediate explosion several feet away. He stumbled towards them and fell, extinguishing his light. Then there was nothing but the spitting fire to guide

"Fortunately," he says in describing his actions, "the two shots had been put down close together. I was able to seize a fuse in either hand. Providence was with me again, for neither blast exploded as I drew the fuse from the primers. What happened after that I do not know of my own knowledge. A great darkness came over me. They say they found me doubled up at the bottom of the shaft, with the fuses of the last two holes clinched tightly in my hands."

It was afterwards discovered that the stopping of the ascending basket was due to the engineer's carelessness. He had forgotten to open the water-cocks in the cylinders, and, as a consequence the slide valves choked and would not act.—New York World. WHEN YOU NEED ANYTHING IN THE

A Bridge Kept in Repair by Mussels.

The byssus, or silky beard, by which the mussel moors itself to the stone, is a familiar object of our sea rocks. It is in its nature like the silk of the silk-worm and exudes in a glutinous thread from an organ at the base of

The following is an instance in which the mooring of the mussel was useful to effect a purpose which human skill could not accomplish. A large bridge, with twenty arches, in the town of Biddeford, in Devonshire crosses the Torridge river near the spot of its junction with the Taw.

The tide flows so very rapidly here that it was found impossible to keep the bridge in repair by means of mortar. The corporation therefore keeps boats employed in bringing mussels to it, and the interstices of the bridge are filled by hand with these mussels.

It is supported from being driven away by the tide entirely by the strong threads which these mussels fix to the stone work, and by an act or grant it is a crime liable to transportation for any person to remove the mussels unless in

A layer of eggs is placed at the bottom of a barrel, and ordinary black molasses is poured over in sufficient quantity to cover them. When the eggs have all been used, the molasses is given a fresh boil up and is thoroughly salable again. Mr. Ira Boyer, who was burned out at the big fire at Prescott, Arizona, arrived here Saturday. In conversation with a RECORD representative he stated that he and his brother George lost practically everything they had, and carried no insurance. He said they were doing nicely and had splendid prospects before the fire blasted their hopes. The would have remained but the owner of the building in which they had been located lost four or five buildings and was completely floored. The Boyer boys felt therefore that they could not afford to remain any length of time with no certainty of being able to secure a building, and consequently came back to Michigan and will engage in business here.

BASE BALL.

Buchanan 2. Berrien Centre 2. The Buchanan Base Ball Team played their first game at their new grounds last Friday and those who were present witnessed an excellent game although it was impossible to finish the nine innings as the Berrien Centre boys had to quit in order to take the train for home. The line-up for Buchanan was as follows: W Hanover catcher, Clayton Beistle pitcher, Paul Wynn 1st base, W. N. Brodrick 2d base, Fred Ashby 3rd base, Herbert Roe short stop, Robert Henderson left field, John Butler centre field, Harry Barry right field. The Berrien Centre team was as follows: Davis catcher. Wolfgang pitcher, BO'rien 1st base, Shafer 2d base, Rutter 3rd base, Simpson short stop, M. Murphy right field, Armstrong center field, F. Murphy left field.

Buchanan was first at the bat Ashby, Henderson, and Hanover, retiring in one, two, three order. Berrien Centre fared better in their half, Rutter making a safe hit, F. Murphy striking out, Simpson making a two base hit, Shafer struck a grounder to first on which Rutter scored, Armstong was given his base on balls, M. Murphy struck a nice grounder to short and was promptly thrown out at first, Simpson scoring meanwhile. Wolfgang then ended the misery by striking out,

SECOND INNING

Beistle, Roe and Butler each stepped to the plate and then retired in one, two, three order. For Berrien Centre, Davis batted to first and Wynn retired him as the first victim, O'Brien was struck by a pitched ball and took phy made a nice two base bit, and with O'Brien on third it looked like another score, but O'Brien'was a little too far away from his base and Hanover's beautiful throw to third enabled Ashby to retire him.

THIRD INNING

Wynn was given his base on balls, Brodrick batted a beautiful fly but a fielder captured it doubling Wynn at second. Barry struck out. For Berrien Centre it was short shrift, Simpson, Shafer and Armstrong being struck out by Beistle.

FOURTH INNING

Ashby batted a grounder to first and that ended his turn. Henderson made a safe hit and was the second man to reach first thus far in the game. Hanover batted a nice grounder but the pitcher gathered it and fielded to Buchanan ... 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 -2 first shutting him out, but Henderson had safely reached second. Beistle then batted a safe hit advancing Henderson to third. Beistle stole second enabling Henderson to make the first score for Buchanan. Roe then went out on a fly, leaving Beistle on secwhich Butler gathered in and caught Wolfgang at second in a neat double

FIFTH INNING.

Butler flew out to left field. Wynn patted to first and quit. Broderick was given his base on balls and was caught attempting to steal second. In the last half O'Brien went out on strikes. Rutter batted a ball to Roe who fielded him out at first Murphy then batted to first and Wynn put him on the retired list.

SIXTH INNING.

Barry hit safe. Ashby fouled out Henderson made a good single, ad vancing Barry to third from which base he scored while Henderson went to second. Hanover flew out, and Beistle struck out. For the visitors Simpson made a safe hit, but was caught between second and first when Shafer flew out, Armstrong was retired at first. SEVENTH INNING.

FARWER'S MODEL

This is something new and will interest farmers generally. On one page of this book is printed the history for one season of a farmer's cash affairs just as they occurred on his farm. On the page opposite this history the Cash Account is written out in legal bookkeeping form. This forms a correct model to which the farmer may refer and correctly write his own cash account on the properly ruled blank pages farther along in the book. On another page are printed the facts concerning a season's business with a cornfield. The bookkeeping work in correct form is written out on the page opposite, showing all outlays, receipts, and the final profit.

All is made so plain by full explanations that any farmer can on the succeeding blank pages keep in strictly scientific and legal form his own accounts with any grain or hay field. : : In a like manner a model is given for an Apple Orchard Account which may be applied to any orchard; as plum, peach, or to a berry field. A model Account with Cows is given, from which any farmer may keep any stock or poultry account.

A model account with a hired man is given. Also with another person. There is also a correct legal model for recording notes. With this book, containing models, full explanations and properly ruled blank pages, a farmer may by a few minutes', work each week keep his account in the same correct and legal manner as does a merchant or any careful business man. No matter how poor the writing, the form will be correct and would stand in any court of law.

No farmer can afford to be careless in the matter of his accounts any more than any other business man. It is of daily occurrence as shown by the newspapers that unexpected legal complications, accidents, and death, cause serious trouble that might have been avoided had the person's accounts been kept properly.

It will surprise any one, who has not seen the FARMER'S MODEL ACCOUNT BOOK to learn how plain it is, how easily followed out, and with what little loss of time. It will not require for the ordinary farmer more than twenty minutes a week to keep his accounts in clear, legal shape that will be a source of satisfaction to himself, and a varuable matter to his family in case of death.

This book is retailed at $1.50 each, but through an advantageous offer of the publishers we are able to make the following liberal offer. We will send you the : : :

THE JOY FAMILY.

It Has Been 245 Years in Crossing the Continent.

The founder, Thomas Joy, came over from England as a young, unmarried man of twenty-five, with his fortune to make, writes James R. Joy, in the Chautauquan. He settled in Boston. married the daughter of a bay plot and Indian trader, and begat sons and daughters, whose births and baptisms marriages and deaths, are written in the records of the town and church and printed in the precious "Report of the Boston Record Commissioners."

Four generations have brought us down to 1750, and the great-greatgrandchildren of the emigrant have not yet left the tidewater region; it was not until the seventh generation that the family began to pread abroad. The fifth and sixth show slight wanderings from the seaboard into the new inland tiers of townships, for which lands were being granted to the older settlers, after the cessation of the French and Indian wars in 1763. In the seventh generation New England becomes too small. One man goes to Ohio and makes a fortune in farm implements. Three brothers go to Morgan county, Illinois, in 1838, to spy out the land. Settling there with other neighbors from New Hampshire, thev create a little prairie colony of New England farmers, clustering about a white Congregational meeting house. Their children and grandchildren have crossed the Mississippi and settled in Colorado and California as merchants and professional men. Another man of the seventh generation finds his life work in Detroit. Still another of the Salisbury families, after turning northward into New Hampshire, and later trying its fortune in Maine, goes to Chicago in prosperity. The children in the ninth generation from Thomas. the emigrant, are now in their cradles or in school, and three out of every four of them have been born beyond the limits of New England. It was this branch touched the Pacific coast at San Francisco. The family had been 245 years in crossing the continent.

How Old Scroggs Quit Smoking. In one of the large arm chairs in the corridor of a prominent Broadway notel sat a feeble old man. The fiand texture of his clothing betokened that he was at least well to do, if no! wealthy.

In strange contrast there sat in the chair adjoining a boorish looking young fellow. His clothing was of a ready made variety. Although he wore a big gold looking watchchain. and an elaborate pin in his tie he seemed a little out of place in such luxurious surroundings.

He was smoking a large, fat cigar. He was smoking it vigorously, too.

With each exhalation he took pains to turn his head a little, so as to puff the smoke directly into the face of his elderly neighbor. The old man bore it in silence.

Indignant comments were made on the young man's conduct by the varinot until 1880 that the first scion of Dus groups scattered through the corri dor, but no one seemed to think it his place to interfere.

At last, however, one man walked up to the desk and remonstrated to the clerk.

ALL EYES TURN TO LIHUNG CHANG IN THIS CRISIS.

The Stupendous Task Set Upon This Veteran Statesman-Something of His Great Services to His Country-Flung Into Position By Civil War.

Will the Chinese Empire be saved from wreck and spoliation by Li Hung Chang? Will the wise advice of this statesman of seventy-eight years be heeded by the wily slave girl that sits on the throne of the Manchus? Will his counsels and energy avail to still sat at the gates of China, as it were, date. fection through the four hundred millions of Chinese and avert the vengeance of the Powers? Will he have day, and, on the other hand, pressing strength to set the feet of his people firmly in the path of progress before the hungry swords of the land grabbing nations slash his country to pieces? No more stupendous task has been set any statesman of modern times than that which has been thrown upon the aged shoulders of this poar farmer's son, whose talents and past services have won him the appellation among Germans of the Bismarck of China and among Englishmen of the Gladstone of the East. Commanded, not once, but twice, by the Dowager Empress to hasten to Pekin from his ost in Canton, he is designed to be. in the opinion of competent observers, the bulwark of the dynasty against the attacks from foreign Powers, which are justly to be feared. At the same time, he goes to the Chinese capital with the express permission of the governments of Europe, Japan and the United States, and almost, as it were, commissioned by them to turn the savage purposes of the Empress and strangle the Boxer movement before it becomes a giant which will take months to kill. If there exists anywhere the guilty hope born of land greel, that Li Hung Chang will not succeed, that his distracted country will burst into fragments, to be the spoil of the nations, no such feeling prevails in England and America. In London and Washington, not less than among the foreign residents of China, the belief is strong that if any man can save the Chinese crisis from plunging the civilized world into a conflict fraught with intense peril, and certain to involve the greatest bloodshed, that man is Li Hung Chang. Conservative, when judged by modern standards, he is vigorously progressive when judged by Chinese. Skilful in diplomacy, remarkable in business ability, tolerant toward missions, a believer in modern methods of warefare, he sums up in himself the practical hopes of the world for peace and order in the East. Crushed Tai-Ping Revolt.

Li Hung Chang has faced great per-Now if you think this plan is very ils for his country before. When the guns of the Anglo-French fleet were echoing along the Pei-Ho River in 1866 and the American Commodore Tatnall was acting out his creed that "blood is thicker than water," Li was leading the imperial forces against the Tai-Ping rebels, who were shaking the throne by their successes.

It is a very noteworthy fact that like Grant, whose friendship he made on the latter's tour of the world, Li was flung into high place by the crisis of a bloody civil war. But while the American conflict measured in time four years, in lives a million and in money ten billion dollars, the Chinese rebellion scourged the country for fourteen years, gilled 20,000,000 persons and caused a property loss of incalculable amount.

It was in 1837 that Hung Tse Chuen, the son of a well-to-do farmer living north of Canton, having failed to pass the provincial examinations, one steping stone in the Chinese scheme of advancement to official station, fell il! and dreamed that he was divinely com missioned to be Emperor of China He began to proclaim his mission, exhorting his followers to embrace Christianity, of which he had obtained some vague notions. With every year the circle of his adherents widened, but it was not until 1850 that the heedless Pekin government saw and knew the danger that he threatened.

In the open rebellion that followed the new leader won immense success for a time. With an army unusually well drilled for Chinamen, Hung Tse Chuen overrun several provinces crossed the Yang-tse and in Nanking the old capital of the empire, was hailed as Emperor and assumed the style of royalty. Two columns pressed forward toward Pekin.

At this crisis a young and distinguished scholar, who had passed two examinations and was among the expectants of office, gathered together friends and relatives in his menaced native town, organized them into a regiment and fell upon the rebels' rear. His victories won him a staff position in the imperial army and later chief command in the field. With the aid of a foreign corps, commanded until his death in battle by Frederick E. Ward. an American sailor-adventurer, and later by Lieutenant Colonel Gordon who was doomed to be the victim of the Mahdi, the new Chinese leader crushed the rebellion after a tremendous struggle.

Though Ward and Gordon did the blowing the smoke in his boss's face." fighting Li cleverly appropriated the figures of the age.

CHINA'S GREAT MAN, credit, referring gradiloquently in his reports to Pekin to his"ever victorious army." During one campaign he nearly fell a victim to the not unjustifiable wrath of Gordon. Incensed by the execution of Taiping chieftains to whom he had promised immunity, the Erglishman went out to hunt Li with a revolver, and the frightened Chinaman barely saved his life by hiding in a friend's house until his subordinate's anger had cooled.

> Leader for 25 Years. From the Governorship of an out lying province Li was promoted in 1:70 to be Viceroy of the Province of De-Chi-Li, in which are situated the imperial city of Pekin and its port, T.en. Tsin. Here, for twenty-five years he the tumult which is spreading like in- holding back from rash inroads the horde of foreign contractors who would have made the old empire in a upon his compatriots the gradual usu of modern inventions. Janus like he looked forward to a China civilized and quickened, but he was also mind. ful of the past, which had incursted so many prejudices upon his country.

It was in his yamen, or official resdence, at Tie-Tsin that the Viceroy received General Grant and won his commendation afterward as one of the three great men he had met on his long tour. Bismarck and Gladstone he reckoned as the other two.

That the shrewd Li profited hugely, industrial invasion slowly rose, his ya propounded the most gigantic schemes Li is a remarkable juggler of men and by beating down, by playing off bidders of one nationality against another by making counter offers, he has constantly outwitted the shrewdest men from the West.

One of the greatest of Li Hung Chang's services to his state was in negotiating the peace treaty with Japan after China's disasterous defeat in that contest in which she had entered against his protests, and in face of his predictions of an unfortunate out- en's Missionary and Temperance day. come. It was a thankless task, and one almost certain to earn the ill wil of the Pekin government, but the aged statesman undertook it and brought al | tend the Camp Meeting throughout. the resources of his marvellously shrewd mind to the task of securing the best possible terms for China.

For Japan the negotiations were conducted by the Marquis Ito, and it is doubtful if two more clever conversationalists ever were pitted against each other in a similar contest. The 'eport of the conversations and interviews between the two diplomats makes very interesting reading, and covering as it does every point in any way relating to the guestion at issue it forms a most important handbook Benton Harbor for the diplomats who are concerned St. Joseph Chicago ar.

with the Eastern situation. Viceroy Li was at a decided disad vantage, for China was practically at the mercy of her conquering enemy. The skill of the aged diplomat, aided by the sympathy aroused by the attempt to assassinate him, secured for the defeated nation better terms than they otherwise could have hoped for. As was almost a foregone conclusion, however, the home government failed to appreciate his great services, and the ingratitude commonly ascribed to republics was strikingly displayed by the Chinese despotism on his return to Pekin. It was only through the efforts of the foreign advisers and the representatives of the various Powers that the ratification of the terms of peace was finally secured.

Absolute Faith in America. In spite of his liking for some of the features of Western Civilization Li Hung Chang is a thoroughbred Chinaman.

If he is tolerant of foreigners he is under no delusions. He knows—no one better-the value to be put on heir professions of friendship. Long go he laid down the policy, "Let us use foreigners, but do not let foreigners use us." If he has ever seemed to favor Russia or Great Britain or any other Power it has been with a deep surpose. It it to the everlasting credit of American diplomacy and American statesmanship that he has never wavered in his faith that the United States had no axe to grind at China's expense. Only last week he voiced this unreserved trust in the disinterestedness of America.

That he understands the real purposes of the European governments and the menace involved in their interference with the internal affairs of the empire is shown by his remark to the Marquis Ito during the peace negotiations after the Japanese war.

From this and other similar utternces it may be seen that Li Hung Chang is a patriot no less than a philosopher and a statesman. Whatever his fate in the present turmoil, he will emain in history as one of the great

A GOOD STORY.

What the Governor of Georgia Said to the Governor of Virginia.

"Gentlemen," said the Georgia colonel, who was entertaining a group of amused listeners at one of the hotels in this city, the other night, "l suppose you have all heard what the Governor of North Carolina said to the Governor of South Carolina. Have you ever heard what the Governor of Georgia said to the Governor of Virginia? No? Well, the only difference in the two stories is that the Governor of Georgia was a blue nose temperance man.

"You remember what a blizzard Washington had the second time Cleveland was inaugurated? Well, the wind blew sixty miles an hour. The snow cut the faces like a knife, and froze to the mustache of the soldiers a. they waited in line in front of the Capitol. The barrooms all along the line made big fortunes that day, and the doctors had their turn at the lucky wheel the next day with pneumonia cases.

"The Governors of the different States were at the head of their troops with their staffs just behind them, on Capitol Hill, during the inauguration ceremonies. The Governor of Georgia had brought, even for the South, an unusually large staff with him to the inauguration. I was on his staff at the time, but as there were only about forty other Georgia colonels there I don't suppose you remember seeing me. Washington had never before had the honor of seeing so many Georgia colonels. There were so many of us that, even with horses touching, as we marched abreast up Pennsylvania avenue, we stretched from curb to curb across the widest avenue of the country. At times, however, there was barely a corporal's guard around the Governor of Georgia. Many and varied were our excuses for a few minutes' absence from our posts on the bleak and bitter hillside. None of us dared to tell our Governor openly wha were our real reasons for our somewhat frequent absences, for the Governor of Georgia was a famous temperance man. He had never been known to take intoxicants in any form, and on all occasions had publicly advocated the temperance cause.

"He sat straight and stiff upon his horse in front of his troops, a dignified and silent figure, apparently completely unaware of the piercing icy blasts that swept over Capitol Hill. We began to think him more than mortal. for we felt as if we were rapidly freezing to death.

'Suddenly, an aid from the staff of the Governor of Virginia dashed up to the Governor of Georgia and said

'Governor, I am going to get something hot and strong for our Governor, and can't I get some of it for you, too?'

"The Georgia colonels were astounded by such rash ignorance, and we all settled down in our seats prepared to hear a temperance lecture from our Governor as a rebuke for such audacity. Imagine our surprise when our Governor thanked the Virginia colonel for his kind offer, and said that he would be glad to take whatever he could get to drink.

"The Virginia aid dashed off on his quest, but a Georgia aid, not to be so putdone, dashed off, too. In a very few minutes back came the Virginia colonel bearing a huge cup of hot punch. At the same time from another direction the Georgia colonel rode up with even a bigger cup of steaming liquor.

"The Governor of Virginia, who had also ridden up, intending to offer a toast to the new President, called out to the Governor of Georgia:

"'Now, Governor, which drink are you going to take?'

"The temperance Governor of Georgia dropped the reins, held out his half frozen hands, and said:

'Governor, I shall drink both.' "And he did, draining the cups, too, while we all nearly feil off our seats in astonishment. The local instinct had triumphed over principle."

Acknowledge Invitation.

Acknowledge invitations within a day or so after receiving them. Write either in the first or third person. Reneat in the acceptance the day and hour of the invitation. Never accept an invitation unless you mean to be present promptly. A woman should never attend a function without her husband or a husband without his wife if both are invited. A delicate way of wording an acceptance is as follows: Mrs. Alfred Barnes's very kind invitation for luncheon on Wednesday, April the eleventh, at half after one Regrets may be worded as follows: Mrs. Jones regrets that a previous engagement will prevent her acceptance of Mrs. Barnes's charming invi- ery band just above the elbow as their tation for luncheon on Wednesday, sole finish. A square neck of the dim-April eleventh.

VALUABLE AND TIMELY SUGGESTIONS FOR CLOTHES FOR THE LITTLE ONES

Genuine Comfort for the Children in the Hot Weather-How to Bress Them Pict tily and Economically at the Very Same

These warm days find pretty nearly Il children clothed in cool linens and ducks, dark-colored for morning wear and service, and in purest, freshes white for dress. For ittle boys nothng is so all-round satisfactory as the sailor suit. That in the cut is in whi c duck, with collar and cuffs in blue braided in white. Others are in all white. Many are in dark blue, army blues and dark red. Pale buff pique is one of the smartest thaing a small boy may wear this summer. Half-socks of white, leaving the knees bare, and are considered smart. More kneeby no means blouse Russian cut diffiers only that throat with a wide white turn-over run crosswise. Just above the elbow their fulness is held in place by a band of the embroidery. In the back, the corsage sets snugly to the figure; the fronts cross over to one side. A soft silk scarf in yellow outlines the waist, ending at one side with a gold buckle Old-rose linen is the material of the second frock. It is trimmed effectively with openwork embroidery in white. A deep band of embroidery finishes the skirt at the hem, a very narrow band forming the belt. The full waist is gathered to a square yoke of white embroidery, so joined to the close caps of embroidery heading the sleeves that the two appear to be all one piece. The waist buttons trimly down the back with white pearl buttons. There is no collar. The sleeves have deep cuffs of embroidery. The two hats shown in this cut are new. Both turn up audaciously from the face and both have broadish brims and comparatively high crowns. The hat is of white leghorn trimmed with yellow to it in order being the ring finger, the ribbon and white feathers.

For genuine comfort, many mothers allow their small sons to revel in the coolness that going without a coat or jacket of any kind and wearing only a thin blouse with trousers gives. This blouse, as represented in the cut, is of white musiin with a pin-stripe in blue. Its turn-over collar and turnback cuffs are ruffled with the goods The plait down the middle of the blouse front has a ruffle border. Worn with white or blue duck trousers, this suit is extra cool. The pure white blouse is more of a concession to dress occasions. The Rough Rider suit may be in pique linen, khaki or duck. Its cut, its pockets and its buttons are the main thing. In England, of course, This suit is called "the Kimberley." The hat corresponds in character to the suit, and is in either stitched duck or soft felt cocked up into any shape the wearer chooses. The dark blue Jeans overalls that two or three summers ago came here from the West are still with us to delight the heart of every mother who has the slightest consideration for her laundry bill. The daintiest suits may go through the hardest service topped by these overalls, and still remain presentable. In the mountains and along the seashore or in any place where the breezes are cool and dampness immenent, the wool en sweater for the small boy reigns su preme, and it is generally in bright est scarlet Nothing short of an all over ducking can disable this sweate from active service. It stays cleaner lated buttonholes in gold upon either and keeps the wearer warmer, dryer front. The skirt is kilted with rows of and safer than any garment yet in gilt braid at the hem. A gold belt is vented for children. All well-regulat at the waist and the elbow sleeves are ed babies, in long clothes even, now-a | braided to match the revers. There days have their little sweaters, to be is a very dainty and youthful underclapped on the minute there's a sign blouse in white embroidery, lace and of sneeze or a change in the breeze muslin, which materials reappear as when out driving or sailing or other the undersleeves. wise exposing them to the vagaries of temperature.

A good model for a 14-year-old's frock in periwinkle-blue veiling appears first in Cut 5. Both bodice and skirt lie in close flat side plaits, with a box-plait in the middle of the front The bodice, though blouse-shaped, sags scarcely at all. The yoke and sleeves are in ecru guipure. Across the bust is draped a scarf in periwinkle-blue chiffon ending in a kerchief-knot at the left side. The waist has a similar scarf finish in lieu of a belt. A yellow pique frock for a girl of about the same age has a deep yoke coming to such a sharp point right in front that it almost reaches the belt. This yoke is of white embroidery and it continues upon the shoulders in the form of sleeve caps. The split front breadth of the skirt shows an apparent underskirt in the embroidery. Over the embroidery the pique curves overskirt fashion upon the skirt and bolero fashion upon the bodice, four rows of narrowest white braid trimmed save for the embroidery caps and their border of braid. The hat is yellow trimmed with white.

A few changes are rung upon the good old-fashioned sailor blouse suit that has seen so many summers—yes, with low black patent leather pumps, and winters-but which is eagerly welcomed by mothers and little girls length trousers to sailor suits are seen alike. is important to learn whether the perpetrator is right handed or left handed, and an examination of the fingernails will throw abundant light on this point. Dr. Regnault, in a paper read before the Anthropological Society of Paris, shows that there is a wide difference between the nails of the right and those of the left hand, and that the nails of the right hand of a right handed person are broader than those of the left hand, while the opposite is the case with left handed persons.

Dr. A. Minskow has made further researches in the same direction. According to him, the difference in the size of the nails of the right and left hand varies from one-fourth to two millimetres. In those rare instances in which both hands are used equally no difference in size is noticeable. The thumbnail is always the broadest in the case of adults and the middle finger has always the longest nail, next index finger and the little finger. The nails of the right hand are usually quite flat in the case of right-handed handed persons, the index finger and thumb being most marked in this respect. On left handed persons such flat nails are rarely, if ever, seen. Dr. Minskow finally says that there seems to be a curious connection between the circumference of the chest and the breadth of the fingernails, his numerous experiments having shown him that the broader the chest is, the larger the nails are.

Delay the Tomatoes. If you have more early tomatoes grown in the garden than you need, and think you would like to have a fresh supply later on, just cut the tops off of such as you can spare. Leave a branch or two with a few leaves on. A new top will soon grow out, this warm weather, and you will have a late crop but an enormous burden of fruit. Jack Frost taught me this trick, but the lesson cost me about $250.

BUSINESS LAW

BY BURRETT HAMILTON.

STATEMENT BY THE AUTHOR

"In this book I have simply answered the questions asked me by business men during the last ten years. I know that these questions are practical and of living interest, because they have all been asked by live and practical men."

"Business Law for Business Men and Students" is really five books bound in onc.

Book I is devoted to that all-important subject, Contracts. Book II contains a lucid discussion of "Accounts, Commercial Paper, and Securities."

Book III comprises an explanation of "The Law of Business Relations."

Book IV deals with "The Transfer of Title to Property." Book V explains the law of "Patents, Trademarks, Caveats, Copyrights, and Internal Revenue Laws.

In addition to this the work is preceded by a complete glossary of legal terms, and is supplemented by an appendix containing tabulated statements of the laws of every State and Territory of the United States on the subjects of-

Interest and Usury Laws,

Chattel Mortages, Statutes of Limitation,

The book comprises nearly four hundred pages, and about three hundred statements of cases.

Strongly and handsomely bound in canvas, with gold lettering.

* * * The Crisis in China.

President: McKinley and his cabinet have decided upon a definite policy relative to the situation in China. Briefly stated it is as follows:

1. The United States will under no circumstances join in the partition of China among the powers.

2. The United States will use all its influence, to the utmost extent, short of war with European nations, to prevent the dismemberment of the Chinese Empire.

3. The United States proposes to have a voice in the settlement of the Chinese trouble, and its voice will ever be raised against spoliation and in favor of perservation of China's territorial and governmental entity, tegether but without avail, as none along the lines set forth in Secretary

4. The United States will not de-J. H. McFairland to Emanuel Eby clare war upon China on the present showing of facts, no matter what

5. The United States, acting independently and for itself, will co-oper-Bushrod Brown to Wm. C. #### Dr. F. F. Sovereign, of Three Oaks. Nominated.

The Senatorial Convention for this district was held at Niles last Friday and resulted in the nomination of Dr. F. F. Sovereign, of Three Oaks, Cass county being unable to agree as to a candidate. Berrien county had conceded the nomination to Cass county if that county could agree on a candidate, and in accord with that determination, the Berrien delegation voted blank for several ballots, hoping that Cass would come to an agreement. Two adjournments were made to enable Cass to of the three candidates would give way to the other. Finally Mr. Coulter withdrew and the ballot then stood 10 for C. M. Eby, of Cassopolis and 8 for C. E. Sweet, of Dowagiac. After a few more ballots Berrien voted blank the result still remaining Eby 10, Sweet 8, then on the twentythird ballot Berrien cast her 32 votes for Dr. F. F. Sovereign of Three Oaks, thereby nominating him.

The following were named as a Senatorial Committee: L. C. Fyfe, St. Joseph; W. C. Hovey, Benton Harbor; W. W. Easton, Dowagiac. The selection is a good one and
