MESSAGE SAYS FIRST ADVANCE STEP MEANS DEATH.

All Legationaries to Be Killed If Allies Advance on Pekin-Pekin Government Will Be Held Responsible.

Chicago, July 31.—Doubt at Washington as to safety of Ministers at Pekin removed by dispatch of Consul Fowler, Chefoo, saying American, German, Russian, British, and half Japanese and French Legations safe on July 17 and attack ceased, but might be renewed. German Secretary of Legation at Pekin conveyed same news to Consul at Tien Tsin. Sir Claude Macdonald sent message to British Admiral, dated July 21, stating after legations had fought from June 20 to July 16 armistice was declared, though Chinese cordon was still around legation, where women and children were safe and all survivors well. On July 8 Americans and British trapped Chinese in night attack and killed 1,000.

Washington, July 30.-Chinese legation in Berlin received word from Sheng Director General of Telegraphs, that General Tung Fuh Siang at Pekin threatens to kill all legationaries if allies advance on Pekin. Note of powers to China on July 5 said members of government at Pekin would be held personally responsible for injury to foreigners. New imperial edict orders Viceroys and Governors to negotiate peace with powers whose Ministers are held as hostages, to prevent advance of allies and escape of aliens from interior. Imperial decree of July 24 declared to Li Hung Chang the unwisdom of either killing envoys or sending them to Tien Tsin. Consuls at Shanghai decided to ask their governments for protection.

London, July 29.—The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent telegaphs that a Russian banker, who left Pekin July 7 and arrived at Shanghai on Wednesday, July 25, says that when he left Pekin all the legations had been destroyed and all the foreigners murdered. The Ministers, seeing death was inevitable, shot their families. Sir Robert Hart, the banker adds, com mitted suicide in despair.

Washington, July 28.—Secretary Hay, through Consul Goodnow. Shanghai, answered Li Hung Chang this government cannot entertain roposition to have ministers delivered at any point outside Pekin until free communication established between Conger and Washington.

Kaiser William's final orders to troops sailing for China were to give no quarter, take no prisoners, and would not even wink at Germany for next thousand years. All foreigners and many native Christians reported killed at Taoting, Massacre at Shansi. Disturbances increasing in all directions. Pillage at Kwantung. Wholesale murder at Pao-Ting-Fu.

Washington, July 27.—Shanghai message to London that Li Hung Chang asserts some foreign ministers already en route to Tien Tsin. Correspondent said first serious outbreak in Mukden took place on June 15, when imperial troops and rebels massacred missionaries and converts in cathedral. Placards posted in Canton Province blaming converts for all troubles and urging natives to kill them. Active preparations in Yangtse region for war. Massacre of over 600, including Italian Bishops and priests, in southern Hunan. Murders in Rear Admiral Kempff's report declared Chinese government in sympathy with Boxers.

Thirty Killed in Mine Disaster. Monterey, Mex., July 30.—The government authorities here have been notified of a catastrophe which occurred at Mafehuala, a thriving mining camp located south of Monterey in the State of San Luis Potosi. Fire broke out in the La Paz mine and before the miners could reach the surface many of them were entombed and either burned to death or suffocat ed by the fumes from the fire, which raged fiercely for several hours.

Eleven bodies have been taken out, and others are known to be in the death pit. It is thought the loss of life will reach thirty.

Twelve Injured, Two Fatally. Springfield, Ill., July 30.-While members of Battery A of Danville were loading the sunset gun at Camp Lincoln Sunday afternoon a careless cigaret smoker tossed a lighted stump into the powder charge. A terrific explosion followed. Two artillerymen were fatally hurt and a score of militiamen and bystanders were more or less seriously burned. Ten Injured in a Street Car Accident

One Man Killed, Nine Injured.

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—Section No. 1 of Buffalo Bill's Wild West show trin was run into by a freight in the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee railroad yards at Milwaukee Junction this morning. One man was killed, two fatally injured, and seven more or less seriously hurt.

Pope Leo Receives Americans.

Rome, July 27.—At noon today the Pope received 200 American pilgrims, who were presented to him by the rector of the North American College. Mgr. O'Connell, and the Pope delivered an allocution, in which he praised the zeal of the North American Bishops, all of whom, he said, were equally dear to him.

Gen. Prinsloo and Five Thousand Men Surrender to Hunter.

London, July 30.-Gen. Prinsloo, with 5,000 Boers, has surrendered unconditionally to Gen. Hunter.

London, July 30.—Lord Roberts has returned to Pretoria after futile efforts to capture General Botha, and his forward movement is probably indefinitely postponed.

On the heels of this bad news comes tidings that Baden-Powell is again besieged, this time at Rustenberg. Colonel Hickman has retired to Pretoria, after failing to break the Boer Lord Roberts' retirement is supposed to be due to lack of the co-operation of other forces. London, July 29.—A special dispatch from Cape Town says: "General Christian De Wet has offered to surrender on condition that his followers be permitted to return to their homes unmolested. Lord Roberts has refused anything except unconditional surrender."

A dispatch from Lord Roberts to the British War office yesterday said: "Broadwood is still watching Christian De Wet, who has taken up a position on high hills near Reitzburg, about seven miles south of the Vaal. "P. De Wet, a younger brother of Christian, surrendered at Kroonstad

Natives in Mindanao Murder and Terrible Punishment Is Meted Out.

Manila, July 27.—At Oroquieta, in northern Mindanao, two soldiers entered a native store for the purpose of buying food. While there one of them was killed by a Bolo and his head severed from his body. The other escaped and gave the alarm, A company of the Fortieth Infantry, stationed at Cagayan, repaired to Oroquieta and killed eighty-nine natives, thirty of them being in a single house.

Subsequently the gunboat Callao, commanded by Lieutenant George B. Bradshaw, shelled Oroquieta, burning, the warehouses. One of the crew was killed.

A force of the enemy, estimated to number 500, under the leadership of Alvarez, formerly the insurgent president of Yarbranga, is now persistently troubling northern Mindanao.

TWELVE PERSONS KILLED.

Awful Result of Killing of Policeman by New Orleans Negro.

New Orleans, La., July 28.—Twelve persons killed, including one woman, and twenty-eight wounded, including a woman and a girl, some so seriously that death is probable, is the casualty list of the troubles in New Orleans which began with the attempt of Policemen Day and Lamb to arrest the negroes Charles and Pierce.

Charles was shot to pieces today after a desperate battle lasting several hours, in which he succeeded in killing Sergeant Gabriel Porteus, Andy Van Kurem, keeper of the police jail, and Alfred J. B. Bloomfield a young boy, and fatally wounding Corporal John F. Lally, John Banville, ex-Policeman Frank H. Evans, and A. S. Leclerc, one of the leading confectioners of the city, and more or less seriously several other persons.

· Tunnel to Free Prisoners.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 27.-What the authorities claim was a plot of Anarchists all over the country to liberate from the penitentiary here Henry C. Berkman, who shot H. C. Frick in 1892, was frustrated by Miss Letitia McCarty of 29 Sterling street. Through information given by her a tunnel was discovered today extending for more than 200 feet from a house next to hers towards the penitentiary. Its entire length has not yet been explored, as the prison engineers were forced by the foul air to retreat after going 210 feet.

Expires at Age of 105. Chicago, July 28.—At the age of 105 years, Mary Yardley died Wednesday afternoon at the residence of her nieces. While she had been an invalid for the last five years, her final illness was of a critical nature only a few days. Miss Yardley's life extended through the administration of every president of the United States. She lived in two centuries, and would have lived in three had her life been spared until next Jan. 1.

Simple and pretty summer dresses are made of white, pale-blue, or primrose-yellow nuns' veiling or grenadine, with yoke and sleeves either of silk, or of the veiling, crossed with narrow velvet ribbon in lattice designs The skirts are trimmed with three founces of the veiling bordered with rows of with a band of beading threaded with the ribbon. This beading is about two inches wide, and forms also the belt and the band which covers the joining of the lattice yoke and lower blouse portion of the waist. This is made of the veiling laid on spaced tucks and arranged in vertical lines. A new diagonal silk serge will be among the popular dress material of the autumn season. It is manufactured in handsome colors and in jet black, and will he used for tailor, costumes, jackets, and cloaks. These puffs are full, being gathered into the arm-scye, and again into a band of insertion on the lower part. This band is edged with a fall or rather wide Valenciennes or Cuny lace matching that which elaborately decorates the bolero, jabot drapery, or other dainty accessory on the front of the gown.

The fronts of the waists of many of the handsome tailor costumes of the season are made with triple-front edges shaped in various odd ways and formed of materials and colors artis-

Great Finishing Touch.

The usual number of open-fronted jackets has caused a demand for underbodices of different kinds, and the Beason's varied styles include elaborate French gilest, English and Russian that he has plenty of fresh air and waistcoats, and Plain American vests. By a plain American vest is not meant anything at all commonplace or easily made. On the contrary, it is an article of ingenious and artistic workmanship. If the tailor has a hand in its creation, it is flawless in its fit, finish, and natty effect. If the tailor-modiste undertakes its build, it is very dainty. Its foundation may be solid silk; but from collar to waist it radiates fairy frills and zephyr-like draperies. Soft chiffon folds are caught with glittering lace-pins; a costly buckle adorns the belt. Altogether it is the great finishing touch of the season's smartest gowns. A melange of velvet-ribbon straps, a jabot of rare lace, a glimmer of satin, and a glo of rich panue or Oriental brocade, describes some of the newest Parisian gilets. Dress Siceves. Very slight and gradual changes are being made in dress sleeves by all high-class modistes. The bell shapes with full undersleeves were the first concession. Then quickly followed all sorts of pretty conceist in the way of small vertical tucks, plaitings, and shirrings, inset pieces of guipure, puffed and insertion-trimmed caps, and long, slender Vandykes formed of panne, Venise lace, or silk passementerie! This trimming surrounds the top and bottom of the sleeve, and on very ornate gowns also runs up the back of the sleeve to match the elegant applique decorations on the dress kirt, which in not a few cases reach from improved grades and colorings that render this class of good more and more attractive. This year many of them are mercerized, so that they look like bengaline silks, and their effect in some weaves is further enhanced by the daintiest of Watteau devices. There are also delicate anemone patterns on palest sea-green grounds, and numerous pretty stripes and dots, with plain piques in ecru, silver and turquoise blue, red and soft daffodil yel-

A Yankee Invention.

Here is a Yankee with a fifteencent invention which he insists is as effective as a lifetime of wearing of French corsets in lengthening the waist at the front. The trinket is made from metal, is three or four inches long, half an inch wide and punctured in half a dozen places to allow of different adjustments, depending upon how much of an incline to the belt is desired. The invention has four claws, two above two. The lower set holds down the skirt and the upper two fasten upon the belt tightly and "dip" it after the mode of the hour. Hitherto, so say the promoters of the new fifteen-cent necessity, women have sought in vain for a trustworthy method of curving down the belt in front. Pins are unreliable and buttons useless. Nothing less than a natural curve, such as long wearing of French stays produces, or an inflexible piece of metal is sufficient. These waists lengtheners are being sold like ice cream soda by demonstrators in the department shops. I should think that these curios might, indeed, be good for keeping down the skirt and giving an appearance of length in front to the waist. They come in five styles-gilt, silver, light and dark bronze and black. The disadvantage in the use of the toy is that a buttonhole should be worked in whatever piece or pieces of lingerie cross the clap of the corset on to which the shank of the device is fastened. The lengthener is slipped through that buttonhole before it is adjusted to skirt and belt.

Smart Novelties in Summer Footwear. The girl who buys boots must have a careful eye to certain details or sho will not be smartly shod. An absolutely flat last, an "English boy toe" and a straight heel are the good form essentials for the walking boot or the low-cut tie. The new slippers have heels somewhat lower than formerly, and, while the toes are daintily pointed, they must not turn up.

A boot or slipper to be correct must rest perfectly flat on the ground Careful treeing keeps the last in or o er shape. Patent leather is the smartest for dress in both boots and slipp rs For the latter, however, black suede i very good, as it makes the foot look smaller. Power From the Farth's Heat. "A distinguished scientist has seriousy suggested the sinking of boilers deep enough to use the heat of the earth as fuel," said a prominent engineer of this city. That sounds fantastic, in view of the fact that a depth of 12,000 feet would be necessary to boil water, but a scheme of the same sort was urged with great energy back in the 60s by a Washington inventor named Forain. If my memory is correct, Forain was a man of considerable means and a mathematician of ability. The in crnal heat of the tearth is supposed to equal about one degree to the 100 feet of penetration, but he claimed to have discovered that the percentage was very much greater and increased in tically combined. would be supplied to the surface. All that was needed was a few million dollars capital to pay for the digging and the plant, and he immediately set to work to raise the amount. Forain succeeded in interesting a number of people of wealth and formed a joint stock company, but meanwhile his calculations were assailed by scientists and it was shown pretty clearly that the figures were incorrect. He replied with great bitterness and the consequence was that the scheme went to pieces in the shock of controversy.

"What became of Forain I don't know. If the problem is actually solved, I suppose he will be fished ou' of the limbo of cranks and visionaries to take his proper place in history."

Chance for the Surplus Woman. A report issued by the British government says that there is "a notable lack of women throughout the entire extent of the British colonies," and the suggestion is made that "at least five hundred thousand English women should emigrate there in order to establish a proper equilibrium between the sexes." The reason for this suggestion is the fact that there are in England, and especially in London, many more women than men, and political economists argue that, as many of these women cannot find husbands at home, they ought to look for them in the colonies. In London alone there are said to be five hundred thousand unmarried women, and if they would only consent to emigrate the colonial problem would readily be solved.

The women, however, are not inclined to emigrate, and they turn a dear ear to the grave statistician, who as sures them that 'this is simply a case of supply and demand. Five hundred thousand young colonists are looking for wives, and, if the five hundred thousand London women will go ont and marry them they will make themselves and others happy, and they will add greatly to the prosperity of the British colonies." Neither do they pay much heed to the French writer who informs them that they will make a grave mistake if they decline to accept this invitation.

History constantly teaches us that women are never more happy than in young countries. The Sabine women. when their first surprise was over, grew accustomed very quickly to their new husbands, and were treated at Rome with respect which was not accorded to them in their own country. It was the same at the beginning of the century in young America, and if the women of that country are to-day more free and more independent than the women of any other country, the reason is because for many years the supply of women in the United States was less than the demand."

STRANGEST OF LAKES

Three Thousand Feet of Water in a Long and Narrow Mountain Chasm.

The result of a survey of Lake Chelan in the northern part of the State of Washington has been given by Gen. Merriam, commander of this department. He says in his report:

"The cliffs on each side of the lake were most percipitous, towering up in many places to a height of 1,500 or 2,-000 feet. But it is the lake i salf that is the greatest marvel. Its waters are clear and blue, and by actual soundings have been found to be of an average depth of 3.000 feet. This seems almost incredible, but it is the truth. The width of the lake varies from a mile and a half to two miles, but the length is the most remarkable of all.

"When I pointed up toward what appeared to be the head of the lake and asked the Indians if the lake was not about three miles long, they laughed and shook their heads. They said it was a three-days' journey for a fouroared canoe. I determined to see for myself, so the next morning my engineer and I and two Indians started up the lake in the largest canoe the natives possessed.

"It was impossible to go on the lake shore as in most places the mountains ran sheer down to the water's edge. We rowed along until we came to the northern confine of the lake and there we found that it made a big bend to the right and stretched on and on. The next day we started out again, and on the third day at nightfall, just as the Indians had said, we reached the head of the lake. On the return trip We measured the distance and found the length to be a fraction over sixty-five

"This curiously narrow and deep body of water was cut right down through the mountains by the glaciers of bygone ages. At the foot of the lake is a great moraine."

CHINESE TROUBLE

SOME FORMER TROUBLES THE POW-ERS HAVE HAD.

Admiral Foote's Campaign--A Former Alliance Against China-Some Chinese Ar tillery--We Were Allies in 1858--Territory Secured by Other Powers.

This is not the first time that American marine and bluejackets have encountered the hostile forces of China. In 1856, when China was just on the eve of her war with England, Commander A. H. Foote, afterward destined to play an important part in the civil war, lay off Canton in the sloop of war Portsmouth. The city and the surrounding country was in a disturbed state, and he had gone to Canton to protect the American residents and their business interests.

Then, as now, all China rang with the cry of "drive out the foreign devils," and the government at Pekin was backing the movement in an underhand way, while professing to be friendly. Canton was defended by four big forts. They were masonry affairs with walls eight feet thick and mounted 176 guns. In these forts was garrison of 5.000 men.

One of the Effective Shots.

One day one of the forts fired on the Portsmouth. Commander Foote demanded an apology from the Chinese Governor, but all apology or explanation was curtly refused. Then Foote got angry.

Having been reinforced by two other warships, the San Jacinto and the Levant, Commander Foote decided to take matters into his own hands. On November 20, after his ultimatum had been treated with silent contempt, Foote ordered his ships to open on the forts. Under cover of a furious bombardment he landed 287 marines and bluejackets and proceeded to storm the defenses. He had with his landing party four howitzers. The water was so shallow that the boats could not approach close to the land, but the men jumped into the water and waded Residence at C. D. Kent's ashore, dragging their howitzers after

> They then made a detour through the rice fields so as to take the first fort in the rear. This fort mounted fifty three guns of heavy caibre, and had a large garrison, but the Yankees charged it with great fury and carried it at the point of the bayonet. Fifty of the defenders were killed and the rest fled in a panic. As soon as the American flag was seen flying from the first fort, a second fort across the river opened on the captured works. The Americans turned the guns of the fort they had taken against the fort across the river and soon silenced it. An army came out from the city to try to recapture the fort occupied by the Americans, but was driven back

The next day an attack was made on the fort which had been silenced temporarily the day before. The fort was lively enough now, and the landing party, which this day was composed of detachments from all three of the ships, was met by a heavy fire from this defense, and from the two other forts still occupied by the Chinese. A heavy shot plunged into one of the San Jacinto's boats, killing three men and wounding seven, and another shot BENTON HARBOR. - . MICHIGAN sunk the launch of the Portsmouth. which surrendered. We Were Allies in 1858.

In the year preceding the failure of the British to silence the Taku forts those same defenses had been taken by the British and French, who were in alliance. The combined fleets of the allies and of the Russians and Americans arrived at the mouth of the Peiho river about the middle of April, 1858. On board were envoys from France, England, Russia and the United States who were empowered to make definite treaties with China and put an end to the desultory, though unofficial, warfare which had for some RIVERSIDE GREENHOUSE time been waged against foreigners. The Chinese government tried shiftings and delays and, finally seeing that nothing could be acomplished without force, the French and English fleets bombarded the Taku forts while the Russian and the Americans looked on. The Chinese made only a slight resistance. As soon as Taku was captured a force was landed from the assembled fleet, and the expedition pushed on rapidly to Tien-Tsin. Here the foreigners were met by envoys from The price of "Business Law" or Pekin, who said they were willing to four days later the American. What sort of forts constitute the defenses of the Chinese Empire may ba magined from the report made recently by Lord Charles Beresford, which he embodied in his book "The Break-Up of China." He said: "By permission of the Viceroys I visited forty of the forts and batteries which form the coast and river defense of the Chinese Empire. At all these forts I asked that the guns' crews might man the guns in order that their state of efficiency should be tested. The guns were laid and trained and some of them were fired. Some of the forts are immensely powerful, and a few guns' crews knew how to handle the guns. Physically, the garrison artillery throughout the empire are a splendid body of men. The forts are armed with every conceivable sort of gun; the modern forts with heavy modern breech-loading artillery of the best description. In one of the forts was a heavy battery of sixty-tone muszle-loading guns, which were loaded by depressing the muzzle into the magazine. I ventured to point out to the general the danger of this proceeding and the likelihood, through careless sponging, of the magazine blowing up. The general congratulated me on my acumen and immediately showed me where a magazine had exploded a year before from the same cause and had been rebuilt for a probable repetition of the accident, which had cost no less than forty-two lives. At another fort asked to see the powder used in the heavy guns, and was shown some powder of Chinese manufacture. I suggested that such powder was not suitable and might burst the gun. The general in command replied: 'Yes, it loes; we have lately blown the breech off two twelve-inch fifty-ton Krupp guns and killed and wounded thirty

In Tien-Tsin is a fell-equipped arsenal and in the arsenal a mint capable of turning out $30,000 a day. Close to the arsenal is a government powder factory. The Chinese Naval Academy is also located at Tien-Tsin. It has sixty students learning to become naval officers. Next door to the naval academy is a school under Russian supervision, where Chinese are taught the language of the Czar at the expense of the Pekin government.

HOME OF MARLBOROUGHS

IT IS A MOST CHARMING AND BEAUTIFUL PLACE.

Mas a Long and Eventful History Extending Back to the Time of Ethelred-Famous People Lived There.

The home of the present duke of Marlborough had a long and eventful history, from the time of Ethelred who held a Wittenagemot there in the ninth century, and of his illustrious brother Alfred, who not only resided there, but is said to have made his translation of Boethius within its walls. In the time of William the Conqueror it was described in Doomsday book as a borough, and Henry I surrounded the park with a wall and filled it with foreign wild beasts which he "procured from other princes or bought up at a great expense." But it is Henry II. whose association with Woodstock recalls the memories of fair Rosamond, and although the site of her "bower" is not known the spring which is supposed to have supplied he bath still retains her name and flows into an existing bath about five feet deep and twenty square, lined at the bottom and on the sides with freeston and fenced with iron palisades. The history of Woodstock palace is the history in a large measure, of mediae val royalty, and, beyond noting that Chaucer lived in Woodstock and that Queen Elizabeth was imprisoned there by Queen Mary it will be sufficient to say that it was irreparably ruined during the civil war by the troops of the parliament, and that for nearly half a century it was left to crumble into dust. In the beginning of the eight ennth century "handsome Jacl Churchill," having achieved undying fame at Blenheim, received the domai. as a gift from a grateful nation, and proceeded to build the new palace. which, taking the name of the battle field upon which Churchill had shat tered the united forces of France and Bavaria, rears its lofty turrets on the opposite slope of the valley.

For a year or two after his father': death the present duke remained al most entirely at Blenheim, and his first visit abroad was to the United States and Canada. Here, previous to his marriage to Consuelo Vanderbilt he traveled a good deal, going all over Canada. The young duchess won al hearts by her unaffected grace and charm when her husband brought he to England. They have not, of course spent the whole of their time at Bleu heim. They have traveled throug! Spain, Italy and Egypt, to say nothing of France, and from the Nubian deser they brought home a lad who, in his native dress, makes a striking figure in the great hall at Blenheim.

The duke's taste for travel has, however, been satisfied for a time, especially as there are so many sports and pastimes in which he is interested at home, and he is equally keen on hunting and shooting, among the horses in the stables being six gray hunters undocked. The duke is very fond of gardening and takes a still closer interest in the two farms of 600 or 700 acres which he keeps in his own hands.

Against Cremation. Cremation had many more difficulties to meet and much stronger prejudices to overcome in England than have confronted it here, but the British advocates of this method of disposing of the dead were persistent, and already their views, if not exactly popular yet, have ceased to excite active opposition. The Cremation society is now 25 years old. It took four years of work and argument to bring about the building of the first crematorium and six years more passed before an incineration was publicly performed under the society's auspices. The number of incinerations has increased gradually from three in 1855 to 240 in 1898, and the total has reached 1,283. The argument against cremation upon which most emphasis has been laid by its reasonable, as distinguished from its sentimental, opponents, has been the danger of destroying the evidence of crime. To meet this objection, which is real, though of slight practical importance, the English society has assumed the obligation of investigating the condition of death in the case of every body for the incineration of which application has been made, and it has now secured the services of a distinguished pathologist for consultation purposes in cases of unusual doubt or difficulty, and for making necropsies when required. The Medical Record, commenting on these facts, says it is an interesting question whether cremation, "while remaining optional in cases of death from ordinary causes, should not sooner or later become obligatory when death is due to such transmissible diseases as smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria, cholera, txphoid fever, tuberculosis, etc., at all events in the chief centers of population." Such a course, it says, would seem amply justified to sustain the active efforts being made in every direction to limit the ravages and restrict the dissemination of preventable disease.—New York Times.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarious districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since I commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall; in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said, "Sav. John, what are you doing to look so healthy?

Ballroom Decorations. Orientally arranged ballrooms are quite in favor. They are very graceful in their way, with Jap lanterns, rare cabinets, china figures holding lamps, pier glasses, muslin screens and bright-colored hangings. But even here most of the beauty of the effect is due to the skillful adjustment of the flowers and greens.

Women Forced to Enter the Army-Considered an Honor to Them. One of the most picturesque of the African institutions, which are disappearing as England, Germany and other European nations take possession of the continent, is the Amazon army of the Guinea coast. It is possible that the stories told of these Amazons have been much exaggerated, but the accounts of them given by entirely reliable authorities are too interesting to need embellishment of any kind. When Captain Burton visited Cana, in West Africa, the Amazon army, which he first encountered near that place, consisted of 2,500 women, who were served by other women, held as slaves for them.

The Amazon soldiers consisted of women of two kinds—those who were originally spinsters, selected by the been separated from their husbands. Although enlistment among the Amazons was looked on as an honor, it was also used as a punishment for any wife whose temper was so domineering that her husband found her insupportable. About one-third of the army had been mårried women. The rest were maidens, watched with the greatest care to prevent them from indulging in the human weakness of falling in love. A fetish, placed over the gate of the camp, was supposed to have the power of detecting them, but if in spite of it they broke their laws of military conduct they and their accomplices were put to death.

Their uniform consisted of a blue and white tunic without sleeves and a petticoat, under which they wore a pair of short trousers, much like the bicycle bloomers of the United States. Over the whole was strapped the ammunition belt. The muskets carried by the women were antiquated, and, as they rammed the ball down on the powder without wadding, they were never likely to hit anything they aimed at. The Amazon army was divided into battalions, one of the most curious of . which was the "razor brigade," armed with razors two feet long, used in cutting off the heads of enemies killed by the others or of criminals condemned to death.-New York World.

BASE BALL.

Another for the Blues.

BUCHANAN 10, MEUSSELL B. C. 9. The game on Friday between the Blues and Meussell Brewing Co's. team of South Bend was rather tame but was witnessed by a good sized Niles holds her second annual street | crowd. Owing to the brightness of fair August 22, 23 and 24. Last year the sun and the clear sky a number of errors were made by both teams but Buchanan was fortunate in that their errors were not fatal to their victory although they let in more than the usual number of runs. The game briefly was as follows:-The visitors went to bat first Hilden getting a single, being advanced by Schlidwein, Wills struck out, Coshefska's single bringing in two scores. Walburn then died on three strikes, Schmalzried, the one armed pitcher made a single, followed by Joers who singled and brought in another score, Cully batted a grounder to Beistle who nelded him out at first, and retired the side. For Buchanan Ashby batted into the hands of first base, and sat down. Henderson was preserted his base on balls and stole second, Hanover then batted safe and stole second, while Henderson got third at the same time. Beistle was presented his base on balls, and Roe batted into second baseman's garden and was fielded out at first, Henderson and Hanover scoring. Butler struck safe while Beistle scored, Wynn struck out and the side went out.

SECOND INNING

Barnard batted a grounder to Ashby who gathered it up and passed it over to Wynn and he quit. Hilden batted a fly into Henderson's hands and of course that settled him. Schlidwein and Wills both struck safe but Coshefska fanned the air three times and both died on bases. In the last half Brodrick batted over toward short stop but that player got the ball to first before Brodrick reached there. Koons batted a nice fly into second baseman's hands and that was two "Billys" out. Ashby made a safe hit, followed by Henderson by Henderson and Hanover, and Ashby scored. Beistle then batted to short, who got the ball back to first in time to close the side.

THIRD INNING

Walburn batted to Ashby and the A very quiet wedding occured at ball went over to first in short order. the United Brethren parsonage last Schmalzrid made a single, Joers Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, the followed suit, Cully following their parties being Mr. Geo. Butler took his base on balls, stole second, and went to third on Wynn's single, scoring on Brodrick's bagger, closely follwed by Wynn. Ashby then went to the plate and struck out, Henderson made a safe hit Brodrick and Koons scoring. Hanover and Beistle were given their base on balls and then Henderson was caught at third ending the inning.

FOURTH INNING One, two, three, told the story for South Bend, a fly to Brodrick, a strike out, and a grounder to Beistle who fielded to Wynn was all of their side. For Buchanan Roe was hit by pitcher, Butler's one bagger took him to second, Wynn's single bringing him home, Brodrick struck a single bringing Butler home, and Wynn was caught at second and came in to the bench. Koons flew out to center field, and Ashby did likewise to rightfield.

FIFTH INNING. Coshefska took a single, Walburn tried to but Beistle and Wynn were too soon. Schmalzreid took a single, scoring Coshefska, Joers got three second as Barnard's grounder could not get away from Beistle and Wynn. batted to third, Beistle flying out to

FARMER'S MODEL ACCOUNT

This is something new and will interest farmers generally. : On one page of this book is printed the history for one season of a farmer's cash affairs just as they occurred on his farm. On the page opposite this history the Cash Account is written out in legal bookkeeping form. This forms a correct model to which the farmer may refer and correctly write his own cash account on the properly ruled blank pages farther along in the book. :

On another page are printed the facts concerning a season's business with a cornfield. The bookkeeping work in correct form is written out on the page opposite, showing all outlays, receipts, and the final profit.

All is made so plain by full explanations that any farmer can on the succeeding blank pages keep in strictly scientific and legal form his own accounts with any grain or hay field. : : In a like manner a model is given for an Apple Orchard Account which may be applied to any orchard; as plum, peach, or to a berry field. A model Account with Cows is given, from which any farmer may keep any stock or poultry account.

A model account with a hired man is given. Also with another person. There is also a correct legal model for recording notes. With this book, containing models, full explanations and properly ruled blank pages, a farmer may by a few minutes' work each week keep his account in the same correct and legal manner as does a merchant or any careful business man. No matter how poor the writing, the form will be correct and would stand in any court of law.

No farmer can afford to be careless in the matter of his accounts any more than any other business man. It is of daily occurrence as shown by the newspapers that unexpected legal complications, accidents, and death, cause serious trouble that might have been avoided had the person's accounts been kept

It will surprise any one, who has not seen the FARMER'S MODEL ACCOUNT BOOK to learn how plain it is, how easily followed out, and with what little loss of fime. It will not require for the ordinary farmer more than twenty minutes a week to keep his accounts in clear, legal shaps that will be a source of satisfaction to himself, and a valuable matter to his family in case of death.

This book is retailed at $1.50 each, but through an advantageous offer of the publishers we are able to make the following liberal offer. We will send you the

How May People Succeed in Keeping Cool -A Touching Religious Service-Enormous Trunk Line Traffic—Troubles of the Elevated Road.

Five or ten cents is the cost of keeping cool on a hot summer's day in New York, and there are many ways of investing it. The first necessitis to coolness are quietude and a current of fresh air. Anybody can be quiet, and the current of air may easily be created by swift motion. The return of Richard Croker has NEW YORK STATES INFLUENCE IN been commented on by the press and a complete history of his daily doings is chronicled in some of the papers. Some of the newspapers. have been trying to make much of an alleged disagreement between Senator Hill and Mr. Croker. The Senator has never approved of the Chicago platform and there has been much doubt of the ple secure the combination by means attitude he will take this year. Bu Mr. Hill is the great power in the Democratic party in the State outside of the metropolis. Even in this field he has a rival, or to speak more correctly, Mr. Croker seems inclined to look upon former Senator Murphy as the State leader. Mr. Murphy and Mr Croker are in accord on the candidate and the platform, while Senator Hill is as intensely opposed to certain planks of that platform as he was in

This was repeated in 1896 when Mr. Bryan was nominated in opposition to the wishes of New York. This year there has been no hope of defeating Bryan's nomination and consequently has made no opposition to him. Mr. Croker and former Senator Murphy both committed themselves to the platform of 1896 some time ago, but former Senator Hill has done an immense amount of ocrresponding and has made one of the most earnest if not one of the most effective efforts of his life to prevent the adoption of cercation of the party's creed which would be more acceptable to Eastern people than its former utterances. But even Senator Hill has found that the giant West is asserting itself, and when leagued with the South it is all powerful in national conventions. The failure of some of the prominent Dem-After weaving of Manhattan Island ocratic financiers to attend the Chicaterests united with his long prominence in the Democratic party made him a powerful leader which those who succeed to his financial interests cannot approach even if they would.

Census Complaints. It seems to be difficult to finish up the census in New York. Twenty-five enumerators were sent back over their districts to "scrape a little harder." The supervisor was not quite satisfled with their work. They had returned a number of children without saying whether they were married or single. This was one of the complaints, but there were others. A Touching Service.

There was a touching scene in the Presbyterian building here the other day, when sixty persons met for the service of prayer for the missionaries and native Christians in China. Many of those few bookish ladies of olden of those who took part have seen service in foreign fields, and their supplications for the safety of their brother and sister workers in China were marked by much earnestness. Their tears flowed freely as they prayed. Similar services were to be held in other cities in the country, and the fact was referred to at the meeting in New York.

Marconi's Conferences.

Signor Marconi. the wireless telegraph inventor, sailed for home on the Teutonic the other day. He has been in this country and Canada four weeks conferring with representatives of the two governments, but he will not tell what the conferences have been about. He said, at the pier, that valuable results from wireless telegraphy had been obtained in the South African war, which shows that Signor Marconi is not blind to the advantages of advertising his own wares.

For Widows and Orphans.

The permanent organization of the Army Relief Society, which was effected recently, resulted in General Francis V. Greene being made President and Theodore Roosevelt Vice-President. The society came into existence last March, at the home of Mrs. Daniel S. Lacont. Its principal object is to create a fund for the benefit of widows and orphans of members of the regular army, the assistance to be given as it is needed, in the discretion of the society, but not as annuities. The money to be given will be graded according to the rank of the dead soldiers, whose survivors are assisted.

The Elevated Troubles.

The fight to turn the "L" road out of Battery Park is on now in earnest. President Clausen of the park board | ple scope for originality and humor. charges the Manhattan Railway Company with bad faith, and says that the road will certainly have to get out of the park. This explosion by Mr. Clausen is the consequence of the Manattan Company procuring from the Supreme Court an order enjoining and restraining the park board from revoking the privilege of maintaining the road in the park.

The company appears to have no intention of leaving the park, and it has not been believed that the officials seriously contemplate ousting them. There have been many efforts made at times on the elevated roads, much of which was intended to depress the stock. There are many who believe that the Traction Company is determined to control the Brooklyn system as well as the Manhattan elevated. At present there is a movement to depress the price of Brooklyn Rapid Transit stock and it has gone down in a year from 136 to about 54. This is an enormous decline, but the price is not yet low enough for the Traction Company to invest in it. Great fortunes have been made and lost in these stocks and the end is not yet. When the price of B. R. T. falls to about 25 or 30 we may expect to see went to Chicago in 1892 to nominate it gobbled up as was the Third Avenue road. Then look out for a war on the elevated, for with that in hand date, nominated without the vote of the Metropolitan will control almost

BOOK PLATES IN DEMAND

EVERY WOMAN DESIRES ONE OF HER OWN.

Many Design Theirs and in Most Cases It Is Supposed to Represent the Owner's Tastes or Genius.

The demand for book plates is on the increase, the smart engravers and stationers say. Every woman wants her own special and particular book label, and nearly every woman has very decided ideas as to what it should be like, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Following the custom days, they embody their particular tastes in the design of their book plate. A harp or lute signifies that the owner of the book shares her love of literature with a love of music; a needlewoman adopts a fanciful floral design: the student of nature has a landscape, and those proud persons whose grandparents all died aristocrat ically of gout, display the united arms of their fathers and husbands.

Women have been very successful designers of book plates and manage to get a great deal of sentiment in their pictoral designs. One woman whose heart is almost equally divided between her children and household and her books has a book plate showing a formal garden, with a house in the distance. In the foreground are three curly, cherubic heads bent over a huge book. On one side is a distaff and on the other a pile of books bearing the names of Shakespeare, Corneille, Hugo and Thackeray among other favorites.

Ellen Terry has a unique book plate. designed by her son, Gordon Craig, being an outline map of her cottage at Winchelsea.

The Italian book plates of a hundred years ago were exquisite in design, but in modern times Italiaus seem satisfied with very simple labels, much like ordinary visiting cards. Some book plates are extant which Albert Durer designed long before he began the seriious study of art.

The study of book plates is one of the most fascinating of hobbies, and the collection of these artistic designs is more interesting to a student of people than posters, as the better plates are symbolic as well as artistic and contain subtle indications of individual character. In the selection of suitable mottoes alone may be found am-The ideal design for a fair reader's book plate should be graceful, pretty and gently serious - a thing of beauty, neither flippant nor pedantic.

An Early Summer Idyl.

The lambent moon lay idly in the serene and sapphire sky and the chirp of an invisible cricket in the clustering vines intensified the stillness of the hotel piazza.

Within the shadow of a cozy corner sat a youth and a maiden. They had been at the hotel only a week, yet his tender heart had been filled with the wonderful rapture and from the fullness thereof his mouth spoke.

"Only a week tonight," he said to her softly, "and yet it seems as if I had known you always." "Yes," she whispered, with that inviting rising inflection implying the delightful doubt which pleads for more proof. "Don't you think, Miss Kate, some people are intended for each other from the beginning?" he went on. 'Oh, I don't really know, Mr. Smith," she responded, just aggressively enough for the sake of argument.

"Well, I do," he asserted confidently, "and the first time I saw you I was drawn to you in spite of myself." "Didn't you want to be?" she cooed with the irresistible coo of conquest.

It was altogether too much for him "I prayed to have it go on forever." he exclaimed, with impulsive fervor. "And, oh, Kate, Katie, darling, I want to tell you that I loved you then and love you now more than anything else in the whole world, and I want you to marry me. Say you will, dearest; say you will," and he grasped her hand convulsively.

She had scarcely expected such a demonstration. "Oh, Harry," she cried, "this is too sudden. Wait until after frost. You'll spoil all my summer fun." Then it was that the young man recalled to his wandering wits that this was a summer girl and the season was just at its opening.—Washington Star.

What Liquid Air Can't Do.

When a man of ordinary business experience is met with the statement that liquid air can be used to drive an engine, and that three gallons of liquid air so used will produce 10 gallons of liquid air, he is incredulous, and says: "That is perpetual motion." But when he is told, and truthfully told, says Edwin H. Hall, in the Forum, that the new proposition is not to create something out of nothing, but merely to use a small part of the boundless stores of energy which really exist in the air and earth and water about us, he is likely to be puzzled, if not convinced. He may ask whether this new thing is any more unlikely than the telegraph or the telephone, or the Roentgen-rays seemed at first. To this question there is a plain answer: The various wonders just named were not, even at first, in opposition to any accepted scientific principle. They added a few pages to the books of science, but they did not require the erasure of a page already included therein. The marvel of the telephone. for example, lay not in the revolution of our ideas as to electricity and mag-ear to slight impressions. That many interesting facts have been discovered by the study of liquid air is obvious; that important uses will be found for this article is probable; July, A. A LIBERAL EMPLOYER.

That Is What Uncle Sam Is in the Matter of Vacations.

The length of time allowed Uncle Sam's servants for vacations with pay is prescribed in the Revised Statutes. Certain details, however, are left to the discretion of the executive. For instance, a recent order permitting government clerks to leave their desks at 3 o'clock Saturdays in summer had to be passed upon by the President and cabinet. The law states that "all clerks and other employes" in the civil service of the executive departments are allowed thirty days' vacation and thirty days' sick leave each year, with pay, and in usual cases of particular merit, sixty days' sick leave with pay. What employer would allow his clerks to remain absent one-fourth of the year, with pay? Army officers may spend thirty days a year away from their posts of duty, but this may be enjoyed not oftener than once in two years, when they may remain absent sixty days altogether. Many prefer to take their vacations every three or four years, when they may stay away three or four months at a time, long enough to take an extensive trip abroad. The leaves of medical officers of the marine hospital service are regulated just as are those in the army. Officials of our diplomatic posts abroad are allowed sixty days' holiday each year, not including time required for the voyage to and from this country, if they return home. Members of the legislative and judicial branches of the federal government, of course, suit themselves as to the disposition of their time while their respective bodies are not in session. They are for the most part independ-Ent in this respect, even while they are assembled. After all, Uncle Sam is the most liberal of employers, so far as vacations are concerned.—Washington Star. · 4/4

Captain S. P. Smith, who was first mate of the bark Catalpa when the rescue of the Fenian prisoners was effected at Fremantle, Australia, in 1876, tells an interesting story of that memorable event. At that time six men were undergoing imprisonment in the Freemantle jail for complicity in Fenian affairs, among them being John Boyle O'Reilly, and their friends in America had determined to liberate them.

"It had taken a long time to make ready for the rescue," says Captain Smith. "For one year the rescuers had been working to collect money, for the voyage was to be a long one and would commenced the planning were John Breslin and John Devoy and at first, when they talked about it, I guess people thought they were crazy.

them to interest the Fenians—that is to win their confidence. They were interested enough all the time. It was about iten years since the revolution national died its brief struggle and died. It was about ten years since the last had been seen of the Irish prisoners on their way to a strange land where there was never a friend to be found. behind had never forgotten.

"When Devoy and Breslin laid their plan they knew well enough that they would have to tell it to many people, and the question was, would the many keep it secret? We all acknowledge that a secret is enough for two, you know. When you realize that this know that the hearts of these 5.000 were in the cause.

"It took the contributions of all these members of the Clan-na-Gael to raise the necessary $20,000. It took, besides, all the courage that we who made the saving trip could muster and keep ready for the long journey.

"The bark purchased by the contributions was a whaling vessel called the Catalpa. The plan was to make pretense of starting on a whaling cruise and under this mask make our way toward Western Australia. Unless we had some ostensible excuse we knew boat knew what I was doing. Then he well enough that British suspicion would be quickly excited, for a British guard is eagle-eyed. When nobody was looking we would snatch the six prisoners and make off.

"We cruised about, going to Fayal and on to Australia from there. We had aboard 200 barrels of sperm oil when we finally reached Bunbury. which is about ninety miles from Freemantle, the prison town. It is fair enough to call it that, for the town is nothing more than an environment for the prison.

"We kept in mind all the time the condition of those poor fellows living there. It helped to brace up our courage, and we knew that without all the courage in the world we could never push through our undertaking. They had a dreary time of it, I guess. They were allowed a good deal of freedom within the town, as we found out afterward; they were put to work at different jobs in the town outside the prison, but they felt pretty sure there was no way of escape."

In the life of John Boyle O'Reilly an account of his punishment in Australia is described. Here is a paragraph from the book:

"The first official function was the reading of the rules (of Freemantle they are all what we left them, free prison). What struck me most in that long code was the startling peroration to the enumeration of so many offenses -the penalty of which is death!"

They must have been a glad group of men who heard the whispered news that a party of daring seamen had left home and were risking the dangers not remove it at once with salts of lemon, only of sea, but, far more, of British If the color will not run. displeasure, to take them away from a place where the death penalty upon it, take out with an iron or blotthreatened from a stern wall. "I've never been to After these, the panther and the jackal. England since we took those Irish The donkey can be heard fifty times prisoners. I don't know as I care to. I guess these waters north of here is about as near as I care to get to the may seem the cry of the hare can be power of Great Britain."

Then he turned back to the voyage once more.

"When we got to Bunbury we found no one there. You see, Breslin had gone ahead of us to Australia, along with Desmond-old Thomas, Desmond, who used to be sheriff of San Francisco. These two had been nosing around under false names. They pretended to be buying land, I believe, and so had an excuse to hang around Freemantle and communicate with the prisoners. "Although Breslin was not alt Bunbury to meet us, he kept watch of us, and stones with which the principal parts the day after arrival we received a telegram from him. Capt. Anthony replied, with the result that Mr. Breslin came down to us, and he and the captain laid the plan of action together. Breslin was to return to the prisoners and make them ready. Capt. Anthony would go back to Rockingham, about 22 miles from the prison town, and there wait to receive them and bring them out in a little boat to me. I was to have command of the Catalpa for the time and hold her out a little way from shore, ready to receive the escaping men.

he preparations were careful and complete even to the arranging of a cipher code for use in telegraphing. On Saturday afternoon the day before Easter, 1876, we sailed beyond Rottenrest lighthouse, and on Sunday morning when we were about thirty miles southwest of the lighthouse, our captain left in his small boat. He took a few picked men with him, and left the bulk of the crew behind under me.

"Then some very important things happened on shore—as quietly, too, as though they were every-day occur. er Monday some carriages drove the 21 miles from Freemantle to Rockingham. They contained the six prisoners and Breslin their rescurer.

"It is a wonder to me that they ever ucceeded in getting so far without being overtaken. There was no attempt at concealment—the men simply entered the carriages and drove away. Perhaps they were at their various working places. One was the parson's gardener and another was employed breaking stone, if I remember rightly. They had been good prisoners, and they were allowed a great deal of freedom.

"It was only a question of time before the alarm must be given alt Freemantle. Just as the boat containing the six prisoners and their rescurers was starting from the shore the mounted police rode up in a hurry and tried to stop them. They were too late. Anthony slipped his little party out require much outlay. The men who from under their fingers and made for the Catalpa, the police pursuing them in another boat.

"Now, in the meantime, I had been having a little affair of my own. The "It didn't take long, though, for British gunboat Georgette had been paying me marked attention. I knew she was pretty curious about the Catalpa. Finally the captain shouted. 'Bark ahov!' I wouldn't answer at first. 'Bark ahoy!' I heard again. I replied 'Bark ahoy!' myself then, but when the Georgette demanded that I heave to, I wouldn't do it. 'Where's your captain?' he asked me then. He knew I wasn't But in those tem years the friends left the captain. When I wouldn't answer him he didn't like it, and he kept on cruising around near us.

"It wasn't until the rescue boat came toward us that matters grew serious. Then they sighted the boat on the Georgette. It didn't take them long to decide on action. It was a race between the Catalpa and the police boat was a secret among 5,000 you may to see which would get to the runaways first.

> "Close along to our lee quarter the Georgette kept. Again and again we headed her off. At last we were close to Capt. Anthony's party.

"I swung around so that the Catalpa was between the two small boats. I kept in that position so steadily that the police boat could not see the other. Then all of a sudden I lowered the falls, grappled the little boat fore and aft and hoisted the whole thing on board. It was not until I got the men rafely up that the captain of the police shouted: 'Well done, and a good voyage to you.' I don't know who he was, but I'll never forget the generosity of that. "We thought then that all the trouole was over. But not quite. Next "We set sail from New Bedford the day the lookout on the bow reported a sail about three points on the weather was a good man to have charge of the bow. Breslin thought it was a coaster. but when I looked I was sure it was the Georgette.

"I was right. More's the pity. She came after us and at last fired a ball across the Catalpa's bow. She demandled that we heave to. When Captain Anthony refused the gunboat's captain said: 'I'll give you ten minutes to surrender or I'll sink you.'

"This was serious. They knew we had prisoners aboard. I went below and talked to the six prisoners and asked whalt they wanted to do. 'If you who have saved us choose to surrender we are willing," they said, 'for we don't want to cost you your lives; but if you choose to keep on we say die rather than surrender.'

"We above board said the same. The rew was asked their wish. 'Sink or swim, no surrender, they replied. I idded: 'Let him fire and we'll all sink here together before he'll get a man off this ship. We're into this and we'll carry it through."

"And we did. We made our escape though the gunboat pursued for a little way. In August, 1876, we landed in New York with the rescued prisoners, and there the little party broke up.

"Where are they all now? I don't now. Scattered on the four winds, J suppose. But this much I do knowmen in a free land."-Chicago Inter-

The Golden Rose of Virtue, which the Popul occasionally presents to those who work for the church, was originally a single, simple flower wrought in gold. stained or tinted with red, in imitation of the natural color. Afterward the golden petals were adorned with rubies and other gems, and finally the form adopted was that of a thorny branch with several flowers and leaves and one chief flower at the top, all of pure gold, with the exception of the precious are embellished. This decoration is not often conferred, and it is considered of such consequence that it is either presented by the Pope in person or forwarded by a deputy of the highest ecclesiastical standing.

JOURNALISTIC AMENITIES. How Hot Weather Effects Great Editors

Described by the Sun. The New York Sun, Mr. Dana's paper, says that after describing Hawaii as "a rotten republic," and characterizing its people as an "abominable community," and its government as "a gang of crooked schemers" our contemporary, the New York Times, proceeded yesterday morning to remark:

"Over all this unspeakable nastiness we propose to unfurl the American flag. We take Hawaii into our Federal sisterhood, and ought to wear the hue of shame and hang our heads in doing it, as might a man who should take into his home a wretched trollop of the streets."

Saturday, like Friday, was an uncommonly hot day. On Friday the Mugwump Evening Post came to the melancholy conclusion that popular government had ceased to exist in this country; although later in the day it revised its threnody so far as to admit that popular government might yet be alive, although constitutional government was certainly dead.

Saturday's heat acted somewhat different upon the cranium of the Times. We as a nation are all right, whatever the Evening Post might say to the contrary, but the estimable inhabitants of the Hawaiian Islands and the respectable gentlemen who constitute the government of that little republic will appear to the Times' superheated brains as things of "unspeakable nas-

How much better it is that in newspaper offices where intellect is at the mercy of the thermometer the ebullition of the gray matter should manifest itself in such comparatively benign symptoms as in the Tribune establishment, which produced on the hottest of Saturdays for yesterday's reading a masterly editorial article, showing that the finer qualities of human nature have not entirely disappeared from earth, and containing this lovely pas-

"Not yet the age of chivalry is gone. Not yet, nor ever will be while human nature to itself holds true. The splendors of knight-errantry are past. The valiant deeds that glorified the age of force are done; happy if not forgotten or discredited. Yet each revolving year, defying the dreary drivel of materialism and rebuking the pale plane of Mugwump mediocrity, brings to the fore, some new, resplendent scene that shows how slight and puerile are storm and wreck and woe and death before the conquering greatness of the human soul."

There was nearly a column that read like a poem. How much better it is, we repeat, that the crisis should pass thus harmlessly, rather than in melancholia or violence.

Rich Men in Kansas.

There are no rich men, says William Allen White in the Atlantic, in these Kansas towns. The men who own a million dollars' worth of property number less than half a score in the whole State. Those who control half a million dollars' worth of property might ride together in a sleeping-car. with an upper berth or two to spare. Every town has its rich man, measured by a local standard, who is frequently a retired farmer turned banker, but not one in five of these is rated at $100,000. Yet each is the autocrat of his county if he cares to be. The mainspring that moves the town's daily machinery may be found in the back room of the bank. There it is decided whether or not the bonds shall be voted. There it is often determined: whether there shall be eight or nine months of school. There the village chronicles are spread upon the great ledgers every day. The town banker supplies the money for every contest. If he is wise, he watches his little corner of the world as a spider watches from his web. The great trust which he keeps requires a knowledge of the details of the game that men are playing around him. Yet with all his power this town banker would be counted a poor man in the city. Seldom is his annual income as much as $10,000. But he lives in the best home in the town. The butcher saves his best cuts for him, the grocer puts aside his best vegetables, and the whole town waits to do his bidding.

The weckly bulletin, "Health in Michigan," for the week ending July 21, 1900, just issued by the State Board of Health, shows a very healthy. condition in the State. The presence of diarrhea, for the first time this year, at the head of the list of diseases which caused the most sickness during the week, might be supstrongly the wisdom of Secretary posed to indicate that this diseases was unusually prevalent, but this is not the fact. The average per cent of reports which stated the presence of diarrhea in Michigan in July in the ten preceeding years is 57, and for the week ending July 21 of this year is 51 per cent, or about 6 per cent below the average. The diseases which usually cause most sickness in Michigan,-rheumatism, neuralgia and bronchisis-were less than usually prevelent, and thus diarrhea, with less than the average amount of sickness at this period of the year, was forced to take first place in the list.

* * * The August, Fiction Number of Scribner's Magazine is always a notable one, both for its short stories and the unusual number of illustrations. This year it will be found especially rich in these particulars as well as in other features. The contents include the names of some of the best-known writers and artists of to-day, and, as usual, those of new contributors to the Magazine.

Mr. Richard Harding Davis's article, "Pretoria in War Time," gives a vivid and novel idea of the appearance and curious individuality of the Boer capital, and of the way its people viewed the approach of the British, and a most attractive impression of the stalwart figure and vigorous personality of President Kruger. The comments upon the conduct of a number of the captured British officers, in which they are said to have taken their imprisonment in anything but a "sportsmanlike" spirit, will no doubt excite considerable discussion.
