GREATER NEW YORK'S POWER IN PO-LITICAL CONVENTIONS

Coler Already Talked of for Mayor-Business Prospects-Season Waining at the ₹ Sesside—Commercial Supremacy Treaten ed-In Chinatown.

The excitement caused by the disagreements over the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor has subsided and the leaders are now figuring on the best methods to secure the election of the ticket. Grater New York won a marked victory when it secured control of the convention and nominated Mr. Stanchfield for Governor. The Democratic organization here has demonstrated its power to rule the party in the state, and the local Democrats are asking why this unquestioned power was not sooner developed. For many years, the delegates from what is now the Greater New York district, have been kept divided, and this has been largely instrumental to the influence of the Brooklyn Democrats who have usually sided with the up-state men. This year they saw that their interest would be best served by adhering to the Tammany organization, and they presented a solid front. David B. Hill made a very earnest and well organized fight for control, using the popularity of Comptroller Coler as a lever. But against the solid phalanx of the Tammany Hall organization supported by the still powerful influence of Senator Murphy in the state at large, not even the astute Senator Hill could succeed. | behind the other. Every incoming and Mr Stanchfield, the nominee who will oppose Mr. Odell, is an able and cultured gentleman, and has been a successful lawyer. He was a former pupil of David B. Hill, and learned political lessons in the stormy scenes of Chemung county conventions. The nomination having been made unanimous upon motion of Senator Hill and Coler having sent congratulations, all is peace now. Business Prospects.

Business in the whosesale sections of the city is remarkably good, and there is some surprise expressed because the political campaign has as yet had but little effect upon this trade. In some lines of business it has been noticed that the buyers are more cautious than in other years. The staple goods are in good demand, but luxuries are not so active. The side streets in the entire wholesale district are a sight to behold, in the afternoon when they are filled with huge boxes for shipping goods all over the country.' Buyers are here from every part of the country laying in hig stocks of with many men and much money be-

Commercial Men Alarmed.

The report that contracts have been made for the construction of 12 millions worth of small lake and sea-going vessels in which to carry the products of the far West to foreign markets by way of the great lakes and the St. Lawrence river has alarmed the business men of this city. These men are begining to ask what will become of the commerce of this port if this thing developes and proves the success which the projectors expect. It is known officially that the commerce of the city is falling off, or to speak exactly it is not increasing at the same ratio as it is in other ports. This fact makes argument for a big canal through the state, and the arguments will be strengthened by the efforts that are being made to divert commerce to the St. Lawrence route. Frominent members of the Chamber of Commerce assert that this city can not maintain its commercial supremacy unless the canal is promptly enlarged.

The Season is Walning. The firs Sunday in September was a record at the seaside resorts which are patronized by people for the day. In Chinatown.

There are about forty Chinese women in New York. They are sweet. gentle creatures, often highly inteligent. It is difficult to get their confidence, but once gained they display great affection and docility. A day or two ago I dropped in unexpectedly upon a charming little woman of the Orient, and thereby had a peep at a pair of very, very long, old-fashioned corsets. Then she took her babylord of the house-upon her knee, gave him a pear, entirely too large for his little mouth to manage, and chatted away gayly. Her hands were extremely pretty. Her upper lip was a little short, showing a row of glistening white teeth. Her smile was in telligent and infinitely sweet, like a little child's. Her glossy, heavy black hair was arranged in the true Chinesa fashion, which happens to be the ver European fashion of the day! "Too bad, tlouble in China," she said. But soon that black eyed baby of her demanded all her attention.

The Chinese women in New York have in several instances come here to be married, after corresponding fo. years with their husbands. They if they were in China. Reform in Correspond. nee.

An editorial writer in the Haberdasher scores a clever point in advocating a reform in commercial correspondence involving the doing away with the meaningless "Dear Sir," or "Gentlemen," at the beginning of letters and the "Yours truly" at the end. He figures out, for the sake of example, that it would take one expert typewriter 6,700 years to write all the formal introductions and conclusions that are used in one year on the 8,-000,000 letters exchanged by the world. His idea is to adopt the following

John Smith & Co. We wish to order, etc.

T. BROWN & CO. But if he wants to save time why We wish to order?" Why not say "Send," etc.? Three words are saved. He estimates the annual cost of writing the present style of conclusions reasonable economy of words in the body of the letter a far larger sum could be saved.

Few Good Letter Writers.

Comparing some letters of a century ago with others of this day, either commercial or social, one cannot fail to be impressed with the change that has been made in the direction of brevity. And with this change has come a hardness, an unfeelingness, a want of proper respect in the writer. Good letter writers are few and far between. Men have no time to fill pages with interesting matter, but, adopting the commercial spirit of the age, make ten lines say what it took 100 to say in the days of our grandfathers. The best letter writer I know is Tody Hamilton, who. as we all are aware, is not an idle, man. His correspondence is as full of meat as if he were writing for a newspaper at $50 a column. One of his letters from Berlin contains more news than a page of cable dispatches. What is called polite correspondence has been given over to women, whose duties enable them to dwell on incidents and gossip that interest. Men will not take time to write such matters, but all willingly pause to read them.

A Bridal Handkerchief.

When a young maiden is about to be married in the Welseh-Tyrol, immediately before she steps across the threshhold of her old home, on her way to the church, her mother solemnly gives her a new pocket handkerchief. The bride holds it in her hand throughout the marriage ceremony, using it to wipe away her tears. As soon as the marriage festivities are over the young wife lays the handkerchief aside in her linen closet, and Nothing would induce a Tyrolese wife to use this sacred handkerchief. It may be half a century, or longer, before it is taken from its place to fulsion. When the wife dies, perhaps as a gray old grandmother, the loving hands of the next-of-kin place the bridal handkerchief over the face of the dead, and it is buried with her in the grave,-Tit Bits.

ELESTING A CHIEF.

First Change in the Chieftaincy in Twentyfive Years.

Living in Oklahoma are the Sac and Fox Indians, a tribe of about one thousand braves who have just elected a new chief. This is the first election of a chief celebrated by any prairie tribe for the last quarter of a century. In fact it is the first change in the chieftaincy of any of the tribes. It was therefore an event of considerable importance to the Indians and to the students of Indian lore.

Wa-pa-ke-sek was duly installed as chief in the place of Nah-mal-way, who died about a week previous to th: celebration. In addition to receiving the chieftaincy he also fell heir to the family of the departed chief. This consists of three squaws and six chil-

In addition to Wa-pa-ke-sek's own Farmers, Fruit Growers, family of five squaws and ten children he will have quite a gathering in the Sac and Fox White House, which is no more than a mud lodge painted white. Besides this he will have the nine members of the council to take care of. As the income of the chief is derived from rental funds of the tribal lands and is sufficient to support his household in style, without work, he is a very happy man.

He says he will rule his people as the Great Spirit orders. He does not seem to be quite as contented here as | think the tribe should have to live on allotments, nor should they be forced into the white man's trail unless they want to go that way, and he says they do not.

> About two thousand Indians attended the inauguration of Wa-pa-ke-sek. Men, women and children came in big droves. They brought their dogs along, so as to have eatables for the dance. Some very fine specimens of hunting dogs were to be sacrificed to their new chief, so you see the Indians care nothing about expenses when they are out for a "time."

The ceremonies were presided over by Kan-wa-so, the head man of the medicine lodge. When the Indians had gathered in the council house in the morning, the master of ceremonies made a long speech in the Indian lan. guage, telling how well the dead brave had ruled over them and how Wa-pake-sek had been commanded by the Great Spirit of the medicine long: to take the dead man's place. The In dians bowed their heads while the medicine man was talking.

After he had invoked the bless ng of the Great Spirit upon the assembly, they adjourned to the open space, there to witness the services over the departed brave. All the principal Our father, have pity on us,

Make us to be wise, Make our new chief a great man,

O father, make him a good man. This doleful chant rang out across the plains for nearly half an hour, while the guests at this strange inauguration ceremony sat around the edge of the dance circle and listened.

Then Kan-wa-so uttered a piercing shriek, known as the "death cry," and the ceremony was ended. The Indians then killed a number of the fattest dogs and boiled them in a big kettle. They drank the dog soup, and then the master of ceremonies again called them together in the council house.

Kan-wa-so then called in a loud voice for the new chief, who had meanwhile been in the "sweat lodge" sweating all the impurities of a com mon Indian out of his system. Wa pa-ke-sek had been fasting for severa days and was very weak. He was clad only in a breech cloth. The guests had in the meanwhile assembled in rows around the inside of the council house, with the leading medi cine men on the outer circle. Each one of these medicine men held in his hand the sacred otter skin. When the new chief came running in from the "sweat lodge" they threw the otter skins at him, at the same time yelling, "You are shot, great chief The Great Spirit commands you to

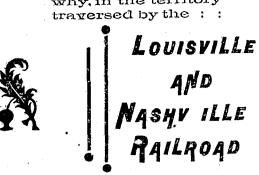

The chief then fell to the ground in a dead faint, and until he arose, som five minutes later, the Indians were in a frenzy of wild excitement. They jumped around him, yelling the medicine song and swinging their hands in the air. When he arose the maste of ceremonies went to him and led him into the dancing circle outside the council house.

With two huge American flags float. ing over the dance grounds, Kan-waso led the new chief into the centr of the grounds and with many word of advice from the Great Spirit h d clared Wa-pa-ke-sek chief of the Sac and Foxes. Not a cheer fell from tie Indians' lips. It is not their way Instead, they again killed some of the most valuable and fattest dogs an passed the soup around. After thr had all eaten their fill, a big dance was ordered, which started at night and lasted until daybreak. The nev chief is going to Washington shortly to call upon the President and advis Mr. McKinley how he should care for the redskins.

I am a farmer located near Stony Brook, one of the most malarlous districts in this State, and was bothered with malaria for years, at times so I could not work, and was always very constipated as well. For years I had malaria so bad in the spring, when engaged in plowing, that I could do nothing but shake. I must have taken about a barrel of quinine pills besides dozens of other remedies, but never obtained any permanent benefit. Last fall, in peach time, I had a most serious attack of chills and then commenced to take Ripans Tabules, upon a friend's advice, and the first box made me all right and I have never been without them since. I take one Tabule each morning and night and sometimes when I feel more than usually exhausted I take three in a day. They have kept my stomach sweet, my bowels regular and I have not had the least touch of malaria nor splitting headache since l commenced using them. I know also that I sleep better and wake up more refreshed than formerly. I don't know how many complaints Ripans Tabules will help, but I do know they will cure any one in the condition I was and I would not be without them at any price. I honestly consider them the cheapest-priced medicine in the world, as they are also the most beneficial and the most convenient to take. I am twenty-seven years of age and have worked hard all my life, the same as most farmers, both early and late and in all kinds of weather, and I have never enjoyed such good health as I have since last fall: in fact, my neighbors have all remarked my improved condition and have said. #### THE CAMPAIGN OPENED.

A Rousing Republican Rally.

That Buchanan republicans were alive and working was evidence by the spontaneous and hearty reception accorded the Hon. Victor M. Gore of Benton Harbor by his former townsmen as he stepped upon the stage of Rough's Opera House last Thursday evening to deliver an address on the issues of the present campaign.  $\Lambda l$ though the night was threatening a crowded house greeted the speaker Fine music by the Niles Band of twenty two pieces, was rendered previous to the meeting.

Mr. A. A. Worthington was chairman of the meeting, and in a happy speech introduced Mr. Gore, who for over an hour held the closest attention of the audience, being frequently interrupted by applause as he made a telling point in his argument.

His first sentence was greeted with applause as he remarked"I like the kind of apathy you have here, for it speaks to me of friendship, and has the ring of victory. I understood that the republicans down here were almost dead but I can see you have no individual funerals to mourn this fall, and that you are all getting ready to attend the magnificent Democratic funeral on November 6th (voice, "Amen") (applause). "That" said Mr. Gore "was the most joyously endorsed amen I ever heard, you all share in it, and I take it you all intend to vote for it." We should like day. to give our readers the full text of Mr. Gore's able speech but our space will not permit of so doing. Mr. Gore spoke earnestly and convincingly and many of his hearers expressed great fatisfaction over his remarks. Excellent and telling campaign songs were rendered by a glee club composed of Dr. C. B. Roe and Messrs D. L. Boardman, Harry Guy and Clayton Beistle. On the platform were County chairman A. N. Woodruff of Watervliet. A. L. Church, next County clerk, F. H. Elsworth our next Judge of Probate, and B. F. Earl our next Sheriff. All expressed themselves as much pleased over the meeting.

At the conclusion of Mr. Gore's speech he called particular attention to the State, Congressional, Legislativs and County tickets urging their hearty support at the polls.

* * * Michigan's Next Soldier Governor.

The next governor of Michigan will be a soldier. More than that, it is right that he should be. Only two men who served in the army during the war have filled the executive chair of Michigan, and one of those for but one term. It is, therefore, but fairness to give the veterans one more representative, at least, before they pass off the stage. Of all the soldiers in Michigan no one has a better record than Aaron T. October 6, Eau Claire, Hon. E. L. Bliss, of Saginaw. # FARMER'S MODEL ACCOUNT

This is something new and will interest farmers generally. : On one page of this book is printed the history for one season of a farmer's cash affairs just as they occurred on his farm. On the page opposite this history the Cash Account is written out in legal bookkeeping form. This forms a correct model to which the farmer may refer and correctly write his own cash account on the properly ruled blank pages farther along in the book. :

On another page are printed the facts concerning a season's business with a cornfield. The bookkeeping work in correct form is written out on the page opposite, showing all outlays, receipts, and the final profit. All is made so plain by full explanations that any farmer can on the succeeding blank pages keep in strictly scientific and legal form his own accounts with any grain or hay field. : : In a like manner a model is given for an Apple Orchard Account which may be applied to any orchard; as plum, peach, or to a berry field. A model Account with Cows is given, from which any farmer may keep any stock or poultry account. A model account with a hired man is given. Also with another person. There is also a correct legal model for recording notes.

With this book, containing models, full explanations and properly ruled blank pages, a farmer may by a few minutes' work each week keep his account in the same correct and legal manner as does a merchant or any careful business man. No matter how poor the writing, the form will be correct and would stand in any court of law. No farmer can afford to be careless in the matter of his accounts any more than any other business man. It is of daily occurrence as shown by the newspapers that unexpected legal complications, accidents, and death, cause serious trouble that might have been avoided had the person's accounts been kept

It will surprise any one, who has not seen the FARMER'S MODEL ACCOUNT BOOK to learn how plain it is, how easily followed out, and with what little loss of time. It will not require for the ordinary farmer more than twenty minutes a week to keep his accounts in clear, legal shape that will be a source of satisfaction to himself, and a valuable matter to his family in case of death.

This book is retailed at $1.50 each, but through an advantageous offer of the publishers we are able to make the following liberal offer. We will send you the : : :

OUR FASHION LETTER

THE SHORT SKIRT WILL STAY THROUGH THIS SEASON.

A Growing Tendency Toward Military Effects--Chick Travelling Frocks--For Golf Skirts Get Khaki or Pongec--Another Travelling Gown.

Let it not be supposed that the summer season advances this far without strong evidences of changes in fashion showing themselves. It is enough to know that the spring opened with a mad furore for every kind of frill, furbelow, and gewgaw; to surmise that by mid-season my lady's mood would change and from sheer satiety she would begin to show a leaning toward the other extreme and begin to adopt the trim, neat and somewhat military styles. These tendencies are to be seen first in her costumes for outing, sport and traveling, and the midsummer additions to her outfit are a certain boastful swagger air, from which her earlier investments were markedly free. Her traveling gown, which for many seasons past appears to have forgotten its origin of dustproof simplicity and has extravagantly flaunted ornamentations of so elaborate and perishable a character as to show a wanton disregard for tradition and the ravages of cinders and dirt. is now beginning to show a few symptoms of quietness and plainness, and is learning anew, something of the wisdom and severity of its foremothers.

Even since the first of the season a decided change has crept in, and now the suits for traveling are comparatively simple save for the trim and all popular ornamentation of gilt braid and buttons, which express the military spirit that is rapidly becoming the rage. Dark blue Italian silk with a dash of gilt braiding and a few gilt buttons, is the most recent ideal summer traveling costume. This Italian silk is a slight variation from the mohairs and siciliens, which have taken such a stronghold this summer, and while a great deal more soft in texture and more silky and lustrous in appearance, it still sheds the dust as cleverly. It is a more expensive material, however, and in its paler shades is allowed to appear at dressy affairs from which the mohairs and sicinliens are ruthlessly ostracized. In dark blues, browns and stone grays, it is admirably adapted for cummer traveling gowns, and is light and cool.

blue Italian silk recently from the other side, appeared in Tuxedo not long ago and was genuinely successful in its air of briskness and chic. proving also eminently appropriate for short railroad journeys and days of shopping in town. The skirt showed a plain straight panel down the front. which was bordered in heavy stitcherrim with two rows of the very narin the same piece, with a yoke which came down upon the hips in the outline of paniers and curved up at the back leaving a space in which pleats of the main skirt appeared, extending from the waist band to the floor. The skirt was eminently pleated, the pleats which joined, the panel in front being considerably larger than those at the back, an original effect being obtained by the graduating sizes of the pleats. The bolero jacket was equally original and chic, showing the same curved outline as the voke of the skirt with its trimming of black stitcheries and gilt braid. As the bolero curved sharply from the neck below the arms, a pleating of the Italian silk was adroitly attached to repeat the effect of the skirt. The pleating fell in front from the neck in two large folds and graduated to the very smallest and narrowest size as it joined the rounding jacket under the arms, showing only about one-quarter of an inch in dept below the line of the bolero in the back. The jacket was cut somewhat low in the neck and not allowed to meet in front, where a twist and a few loops of gilt braid and two gilt buttons on each side served as a fastening. The blouse worn with the suit was of scarlet, of a very gayshade, which showed so scantily between the bolero fronts as | arch be sufficiently high) a swinging to lose all suspicion of boldness. The collar of the blouse had a large white from the centre. band of stitched pique at its top and the folds of the soft red silk looked very smart between the pleated fronts of the jacket. The cuffs of the bolero were another feature of the present styles, being somewhat large and turned back from the waist. They were curved to give a small imitation of the outline of the jacket and short yoke, trimmed with the stitcheries and gilt braid in the same fashion, and having a tiny border of the pleating.

Another Travelling Gown.

Another travelinp gown, also de-An extremely smart little suit of signed for the purpose of short railroad trips and a day of shopping and knocking about the city, was devised with an idea of coolness and comfort. It was a gown of grayish green mohair with braid trimmings a la militaire of narrow and wide white braid. The skirt was cut on the seven-gored pattern, with gores flaring to considerable width at the bottom, and with lines ies of black, and outlined at its outer of the white braid above the hem, the narrowest braid covering each seam rowest gilt braid. The panel was cut in vertical lines. The skirt was unlined, extremely light, and could be worn indifferently with an underskirt of silk or lingeries. The blouse worn with this skirt was of green washable silk with white cord cross-barrings, and made extremely full in front, but without tucks or trimmings of any kind. The jacket, which of course, was of the same material as the skipt, quite broke the ranks of summer jakets by taking another form than the bolero. It was extremely smart and new, having borrowed enough of the bolero's style to gain its admittance, and yet being built altogether on the principle of the Russian blouse; the bolero style showing itself merely in the braiding, which described its outline in front and also in the back, where the lines of braiding extended laterally above the broad black girdle, where the slight pouching above the and made to simulate the lower edge which gave a jaunty capping to the hips, was circular and without fullness save in the centre of the back where the addition of two little pleats gave an air of jauntiness. The lin- body at all. Never take in breath of ing of the little blouse was of India silk in a somewhat brighter shade of green which added a certain freshness and coolness of aspect and scarcely any additional weight or heat. It is worthy of remark aso that in both of these new traveling gowns, there breathing—such as when a lady's was a perceptible shortening of the skirt, which seemed to verify the prophecy the short skirt is the coming throat, but makes a disagreeable im-

Golf and Other Skirts.

The golf and outing skirt has now reached a line that is moderate and convenient. It is no longer short enough to create surprise, and its ankle length proves both graceful and free; upon its present satisfactory proportions, the new street skirt for the fall is to be remodeled, but this does not mean that the long skirts will disappear. For dress occasions and to hold their own, but will not appear upon the street. Apropos of golf skirts, it seems as if pique and ducks have had their day and the wide popularity which they enjoyed last year is now waning. They are now thrust in the background by skirts of khaki and pongee, the latter particularly are strongly in evidence this season and are constantly seen on the golf links, verandas, and the beach. Their extreme lightness and immunity from starch makes them adaptable both for seaside and mountain resorts. For golf their lack of crispness and consistency as well as their thinness, necessitates petticoats and underskirts of silk or lingerie which is considered a trifle unsportsmanlike, but nevertheless it is the popular skirt for golf, and its perfect lightness and coolness make it irresistible for mid-summer

Nearly all of the new gowns show decidedly larger sleeves, and by the time fall appears we may expect to return to our mutton legs! Large turned backed cuffs are already making their appearance. The dainty hicycle maid may appear like the above illustration.

HOW TO BREATHE

Incorrect Breathing is an Acquired Habit Induced by Means Taken to Avoid It. REATHING, wrote Sims Reeves in a recent number of the London Idler, is an exercise in itself. Incorrect breathing is an acquired habit, induced sometimes by an elaborate means taken to through the nostrils. This allows the nose to purify and warm the air before reaching the throat, which needs to be warm for the production of good told: tone. Singers, therefore, should not attempt to get a crescendo by pressing the muscles of the throat. Command of breath is the only method.

Travelling Tea Basket.

FARMERS DOING WELL

Secretary Wilson Shows How the Good Times Come.

Under the McKinley Administration the Agricultural Wealth of the Nation Increased Enormously.

President McKinley's cabinet, addressed the crowd at the Stark county fair on Thursday, September 6, and scientific farming. He urged instruction, especially on the soil and its products, in the schools and colleges, and said none who are learned in such branches ever want lucrative employment. He also spoke of the prosperity of farmers as a class during the past four years and of their bright prospects for the future, dwelling at length on what products of this country the people of our new possessions can consume and what they can furnish to this country. He said:

"The college and university of our day make ample provision and spread ample repasts for everybody but the farmer. If the young man is to cultivate the soil he knows there is nothing in the intellectual table that will help him in the field or with the herd. We should know more of the droughts that affect so seriously our staple crops and how to fortify the soil against that makes it retain moisture.

"The movement of moisture in different soils and its conservation require much more study to thoroughly comprehend than the constitution of the United States or the "way of a ship in the sea or a ser-pent on a rock." Much has been observed, and a good deal written and laid away in libraries, but very little is taught in school or practiced on the farm. Droughts shorten crops, dry up pastures and destroy the hopes of communities, while four or , five times as much rain falls during the *-year as crops require. Is it not very singular that more attention is not given to it by scholars? If one college would make the movement of moisture in the soil a specialty, and turn a full faculty toward its demonstration from every standpoint, it would bless the country more than any university under our flag. The south will probably have 2,000,000 bales less cotton on account of droughts, Kansas will have 200,000,000 bushels less of corn because of drought, and yet the south has from 50 to 60 inches of rainfall, while Kansas has five times as much as a full corn crop can use, if evaporation could be controlled or limited. Six inches of rainfall is about what the crop uses, the rest is wasted. The United States will have 100,000,000 or more bushels of wheat less than an average crop because we do not conserve moisture.

"We buy the products of skill from other countries, and we buy raw material, the product of cheap labor. We sell the products of skill to other countries, and we sell raw material, the product of cheap labor within our own land. A study of this condition of affairs will lead us to get a correct estimate of our standing compared with other countries. While we sold $792, 111,733 worth of domestic products from the United States in 1899, we bought $355,-114,881 worth of agricultural products dur-...g the same year. We paid $94,000,000 for sugar, $65,000,000 for coffee, $41,000,000 for hides and skins, $32,000,000 for silk, $25,000,-000 for fibers, $18,000,000 for fruits and nuts, $10.00.000 for tobacco, $10.000.000 for tea, and $8,000,000 for wool, which, however, is only half as much wool as we bought in 1898. "Several of these things we can produce in the United States. Some of them we cannot on account of climatic prohibition. We can produce our own sugar, we can produce some of the fibers we buy, and much of the fruits and nuts that we import. I think it is only a question of time when we can produce as fine tobaccos in some parts of the United States as are produced anywhere in the world: or at any rate. if there are some delicately-flavored varieties which we cannot produce we will help our brown men in the Pacific ocean to prepare them for us. I have no doubt that we can produce our own tea. Extensive experimentation is being conducted now, with the help of the United States government, in South Carolina. The department of agriculture is in cooperation with the experiment stations of all the gulf states along this line. I need not tell an Ohio audience that we can produce our own wool of all kinds, and we are getting pretty well along toward doing it, having cut the importation in two between

"The great activity now existing in all departments of industry in the United States has had a most beneficial effect on the prices of farm animals. "The total increase in the value of the farm animals of the United States from January 1, 1897, to January 1, 1900, is $572,-708,522. The decrease in the number of horses during the last three years has been pronounced, although it is becoming less and less every year. During 1896 the decrease was 769,261. In 1897 it was 759,380, in 1898 it was 403,756, in 1899 it was 295,604, and in 1900 the decrease in the number of horses in the United States was 127,783. This decrease was brought about by the discouragement to the breeding of horses resulting from low prices. Now that prices are remunerative the decrease is fading out and it is only a question of time when an increase will begin again. We sold 64,700 horses last year to foreign countries and received $7,612,050 for them. There is an active demand in foreign countries for horses of all kinds, especially the more val-

"The principal reason for the better prices for domestic animals is that our people are at work everywhere. Good wages are being paid. We are sending consignments of dairy products to European and Asiatic countries. A few years ago shipments of that kind would have been very profitable, but at the present time the American workman uses our butter and pays such good prices that it really does not pay to send these goods away from

"During this administration the flag of the United States has been carried as far as the China seas and has given us a great center, a great vantage ground and distributing point, from which American commerce in the future will be dealt out to the millions of orientals. Our export trade with Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippine islands has been growing very rapidly. In 1896 it was $13,483,276, of which over $6,000,000 was in agricultural products. In 1897 it was $14,281,785, of which over $7,000,000 was agrichtural. In 1898 it was $16,616,982, of which over $9,000,000 was ag-Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, of ricultural. In 1899 it was $29,289,281, of which over $14,000,000 was agricultural. In 1900 it was $45,209,892, of which over $20,000,000 was agricultural.

"This shows where our new markets are, spoke at length on the advantages of and the extent to which the American farmer is already interested in them, before they are fairly quieted down and made familiar with the new condition of affairs. The United States can sell goods to these islanders at lower rates than other nations can and offer them better markets than other nations can offer. The farmer is interested in the prosperity of our factory people. American ingenuity has so perfected machinery that the home market can be supplied, if it is in operation about half the time. We must expand our markets or shut down our factories part

All Classes of Men Feel the Effect of Republican Management.

"The increase in the amount of money deposited to the credit of savings bank accounts during the last four | What Bryan Really Means by His years has been, in round numbers, $27, 000,000 in the state of Illinois alone, was stated by B. M. Chattelle, of the Illinois trust and savings bank. He continued: "Depositors manifest a feeling of complete-security. The democratic prediction that the republican party would not fulfill its promises to pay in gold has been proven false. The people as a whole are satisfied."

"Trade has never been so brisk," was the report from Williamson & Co., dealers in gas and electric fixtures. "Our trade has increased 80 per cent. in the last seven months. Better grades of goods are called for, indicating greater ease in money matters, and consequently more liberality in furnishing the Higher wages are paid the help, and a feeling of contentment seems general."

"Passenger traffic on the railroads in the west has been heavy during the last two years, and particularly so for a few months past," was the expression of Mr. P. S. Eustis, of the "Burlington Route." "Passenger earnings show substantial increases from month to month over corresponding periods of previous years. This year there seems to be a disposition to travel, conventions and other excursions draw out large crowds, while regular business in all directions is very satisfactory. This is undoubtedly due to the fair prices which farmers receive for their products, and the particularly good prices for cattle and hogs which have

CROKER'S PLAIN TALK

Former Views of the Tammany Leader on Expansion.

When No Election Was Pending He Talked in Favor, of Holding What We Have-Said 16 to 1 Was Dead.

When no elections are pending such astute politicians as Richard Croker, the Tammany leader, will sometimes give expression to their real views on public questions. Mr. Croker, under date of January 6, 1899, contributed a signed communication to the New York Journal, Mr. Hearst's New York organ, which, by the way, is saying nothing against expansion in this cam-

Mr. Croker's views, in part follow: "I believe in expansion; I believe in holdng whatever possessions we have gained by annexation, purchase or war. This policy is not only patriotic, but it is the only safe one to pursue. Any other policy would show weakness on the part of the United States, and invite foreign complications. This must be avoided; hence our policy must be vigorous.

"Every patriotic American and every democrat in particular should favor expansion.

"Jefferson was an expansionist, otherwise he would not have favored the acquisition of Louisiana, with its foreign population, which in Jefferson's time was quite as remote as the Philippines. In this age of steam and electricity, distance is no argument against expansion.

'I say by all means hold on to all that rightfully belongs to us. If the great country west of the Rocky mountains was filled with wild Indians at the present moment, how long would it take us to suppress them and make them respect our laws and our constitution? The same thing applies to the Philippines and any other country that may fall into our hands by the provinces of peace or war. It is an insult to the American people and to our flag even to suggest that we abandon the people we have released from bondage, or, what would be more disgraceful, that we sell them to the highest bidder. Such a proposition places the American people the same category with the Chinese, who have neither patriotism nor a foreign policy, and are in consequence used as a door mat by the powers of the world. "I think the 16 to 1 question as outlined in the Chicago platform a decidedly dead issue. This was fully demonstrated at the last election. We did not embody the 16 to 1 question in our (state) platform, and the result was that we elected every one of our congressmen."

Mr. Croker is an ultra expansionist and although he is supporting Mr. Bryan for local reasons no doubt, the fact still stays that he considers 16 to 1 a dead issue in New York. He is only too ready to drop it.

IN PLAIN WORDS.

Changeable and Elastic Platform.

If called upon to tersely explain what he said and meant in his long speech of acceptance of the nomination by the Kansas City convention, a writer in the Washington Star says Mr. Bryan would be compelled to say:

"I reiterate my fixed, unalterable determination to stab the public credit, to destroy the national repute for honesty by legalizing a dishonest dollar; I announce this murderous intent in my platform in the precise words employed by me in 1896, when this design was declared paramount. "But to assassinate national credit "Business with us has increased is not my main purpose to-day; I eign trade, present and prospective, prestige abroad. "And since in stating my paramount murderous intent of 1900 I use my criminal design of 1896, now reaffirmed, let no one heed the latter

"Since I put first my plan, verbosely expressed, to assassinate national prestige, let no one be alarmed at my curt, brusque declaration of intent to murder the national credit, which quickly follows.

"Concerning my free silver threat all I ask of my political opponents is to be let alone. I did not utter this menance with the intent to make it an issue. I will not permit it to be made an issue to my own inconvenience by those whom it unnecessarily alarms. I refuse to discuss it. I decline to accept responsibility for it. It is to be treated as if it had not

A Soldiers Letter.

NABUA, P. I. July 27, 1900. EDITOR BUCHANAN RECORD.

I send you an account of our captain's death showing something of what we have been doing here in the islands and if you will be so kind as to publish it I will be ever so much obliged for it may interest some of my friends at home.

My health at present is very good, the best that it has been since I left the states. I have only seen Billy Strauser once since I have been here and that was just after we landed in Manila.

I remain Yours Truly,
