Washington, July 9.—The position of the British government relative to the various mining, railroad and other concessions in the Transvaal is fully disclosed in a blue book covering this subject which has just reached Washington. The subject is of the very first importance to the state and war departments as some of the most troublesome and weighty problems now pines. Porto Rico and Cuba. Claims of vast amounts based on telegraph and railroad franchises granted by the Spanish government prior to the Spanish-American war have been made, and Great Britain's course may establish a valuable precedent. Moreover, the most important of the concessions ir our insular possessions and in Cuba are claimed by English corporations.

One interesting statement in the beginning is this: "On the first of September, 1900, her late majesty annexed the territories and obliterated the sovereignty of the South African republic. It is clear that a state which has annexed another is not legally bound which has ceased to exist, and that no sion appointed to consider these subjects, but the conclusions of the commissioners have not yet been accepted and enunciated by the British government itself.

THUGS HOLD UP A TRAIN

And Get Away with Booty Valued at from Thirty to Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Grand Forks, Mont., July 5 .- Train No. 3, west-bound on the Great Northern, was held up about 2:02 p. m. Wednesday at Wagner Station, 196 miles west of this place, by three masked men, who blew open the express car, using dynamite, and secured the entire contents of the through express safe, estimated at $30,000 to $50,000. One of the robbers boarded the train a few miles from the scene of the hold-up. When the train reached the place where his confederates were lying in wait, in a ravine alongside the track, he pulled the bell cord, and as the trainsloweddown jumped to the engine, and presenting a rifle forced the fireman and engineer to abandon their engine.

As the passengers began to look out of the windows a fusillade of shots swept a longside the coaches and was continued several minutes. Dynamite was quickly exploded in the express car, tearing the car to pieces, and the through safe was blasted open and its contents removed, after which the robbers mounted good horses and rode away to the Bad Lands. A posse is in pursult, but capture is improbable. Three passengers who ventured to look out of the windows in the day coach were struck by bullets, but not seriously injured. .

MURDER IN CHILD'S DEATH

Wealthy Sawmill Owner Accused of Killing a Little Girl.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 9.—Charles Dunn, a wealthy sawmill owner, aged 65, was placed under arrest on the charge of murder. A week ago Alice Cothrell, agod 10 years, disappeared. She lived at Wallen, this county, four doors from Dunn's home.

The Huntertown Detective association searched the cistern at Dunn's home Sunday afternoon and found the body. The coroner thought that the remains did not look as if death resulted from drowning. After the secret inquest held all day Coroner Barnett ordered the arrest of Dunn and he is now in jail. There is evidence of attempted strangulation and the cistern is so constructed as to preclude the theory of accident.

Wherein, then, is the complaint? It is that the pressure brought by the people at home on their representatives to secure officies for them gives the executive branch of the govern ment a dangerous power in influencing legislation, A ... w Administration is returned to power. Mr. Blank belongs to the same party as the President-elect. He probably comes to Washington with campaign pledges to honor; or, if he has been wise and made no anteelection promises, he has many true and tried friends and political followers who are justly entitled to his support, and for whom he desires to obtain some of the appointive offices. The new Administration has a policy it desires to carry out, which requires legislation, and bills are, therefore, introduced by the party leader. Mr. Blank finds that some of these measares are not to the interests of his coustituency; or, as a man of independent thought, he conscientionsly believes they will not be beneficial to the country. He calls on the Cabinet officers to secure his friend's appointment. He is met with pleasant words and is told that his friend seems to be well indorsed, but that the matter cannot be determined at present.

Mr. Blank is then asked what he thinks in regard to the Administra tion measures. The member of the Cabinet is greatly astonished that he cannot support the Administration, and asks him to read somebody's report, and consider it from the standpoint of a party man, etc. After he has made his fourth or fifth call, with the same result, he will begin to hear from his friend, who tells him that congressmen from adjacent districts have received appointments, and that the people at home cannot understand why he cannot do something for his district. The question that he has now to decide is whether he shall submit to become a tool in the hands of the Administration, secure the offices, and drift with the party tides, or shall be a representative of the people, determining for himself what best conserves their interest and meets the demands of justice and right. To do this he must return to face angry frienns, and must meet the opposition of an unfriendly Administration. Within the last four years I have seen at least two men of great ability retire from public life rather than surrender their own individuality; being unwilling to remain and contend down he swoops, and, seizing the fish against a hostile Administration.

Everett's Oratory Described by Senator Hoar.

Mr. Everett's stories were inexhaustible. If any speaker has to get ready in a hurry for a great occasion, let him look through the index of the four volumes of Everett's speeches, and he will find matter enouh, not only to stimulate his own thought and set its currents running but to illustrate and adorn what he

But pretty soon the orator rises into a higher plane. Some lofty sentiment, some stirring incident, some some patriotic emotion, some play of fancy or wit, comes from the brain or heart of the speaker. The audience is hushed to silence. Perhaps a little mist begins to gather in their eyes. There is now an accent of emotion in the voice, though still soft and gentle. The Greek statue begins to move. There is life in the limbs. There has been a lamp kindmuscles of the face have come to life now. Still there is no jar or disorder. The touch upon the nerves of the audience is like that of a gentle nurse. The atmosphere is that of a May morning. There is no perfume but that of roses and lilies. But still, gently at first, the warmer feelings are kindled in the hearts of the speaker and hearers. The frame of the speaker is transfigured. The trembling hands are lifted high in air. The rich, sweet voice fills the vast audience-chamber with its resonant tones. At last, the bugle, the trumpet, the imperial clarion, rings out full and clear, and the vast audience is transported as to another world-I had almost said as to a seventh heaven. Read the welcome to Lafayette or the close of the matchless eulogy on that illustrious object of the people's love. Read the close of the oration on Washington. Read the contrast of Washing and Marlborouh .- From "Some Famous Orators I Have Heard," by SENATRO GEORGE. F. HOAR, in July Scribner's.

The Baldwin-Ziegler Artic Expedition. The project of of Mr. E. B. Baldwin, of Illinois, who has had Arctic experience in Greenland and Franz Josef Land has attracted much attention, because unlimited resources have been placed at his disposal by Mr William Ziegler of New York, who desires to promote the discovery of the pole. His base of operations, which he expects to reach this summer in a stanch Dundee whaler which he purchased and rechristened the America, will be the east side of Franz Joseph Land, where he may easily be reached every year by an auxiliary steamer which will accompany him this season. He will also have the advantage there of a plentiful supply of Artic game in the region where Jackson killed ninety-seven bears, where walrus and seal abound, and where birds, including geese, are in enormous numbers. Explorers have learned to relish the polar bear, but the tough, coarse flesh of the walrus is not yet a popular article of food But Baldwin will be out of the track of the north moving currents, and apparently does not expect to make a high northing on his steamer. He will depend upon dog power to take him to the pole, and no three explorers ever took north so large a supply of this commodity. He invested $8,000 in 400 Siberian dogs, which are warriented to keep life from becoming monotonous on the good ship America. His base will probably be farther south than that of Peary, and thus far, not so favorable; but he relies upon his dogs and his very large feed supples to hold out for the journey to and from his ship. Baldwin has with him an excellent scientific staff and outfit, and everything that experience could suggest or money buy to enhance the prospects of success has been suppled by the liberal promoter of Mr. Baldwin's project .- From "New Phases of Polar Research," by Cyrus C. Adams, in the

An Eagle That Fishes in a City. A handsome bald eagle spends two or three hours every morning catching fish at a place within the city limits, in plain view of the passengers on a trolley car line. He perches on an oak tree near the shore of a lake in which carp and catfish are plentiful. When his "eagle eye" espies a fish in the shallow water near the shore, in his talons, flies back to the tree, where he eats, and then watches for another victim. The bird of freedom has chosen the position well, as the tree is on the extreme end of a long penjasula, which no one can approach without being visible for half a mile.-

Pictures That Anticipate History.

The cleaning of the frescoes at Westminster has called attention to the fact that in the picture of the Pilgrim Fathers the good ship Mayslower is flying the union flag that first came into existence in 1800. This anarchronism is not uncommon in naval pictures. In the collection of oil paint ings of sea fights at the Royal United Service Institution there are many pictures of battles fought before 1800 in which the British ships fly the union flag of today. The explanation is that some years ago, when the older pictures were cleaned and restored, the restorer "corrected" the flags by painting in St. Patrick's red cross over the white St. Andrew's cross of Scotland. The only picture which escaped this bringing up to date is that of the sinking of the Royal George, in which one sees the correct flag of the time flying.

Nagasaki, Japan, Mar. 28, 1901. At last we are in Japan. God be praised. After a fearful voyage of over 1.700 miles across the turbulent waters of the terrible Chinese sea, Thursday morning, March 28, our noble ship, the Grant, dropped anchor in the quiet little harbor of Nagasaki. I immediately secured "Shore leave" and hastened to make my debut on Japanese soil. What can I say of Japan? How can I de scribe it? What I have seen of this sturdy little island empire, and of its famous city Nagasaki, has been most pleasing. My muse could fill a good sized book with novel and interesting things concerning it, but as I have neither time nor paper, I must condense. I shall paint the picture rapidly, and I fear somewhat imperfeetly; I have no time for minutae and details; you must behold it from the distance, and must expect only a momentary glance. Yet I trust that this imperfect passing glance may prove interesting.

Chinese city in this respect One in reality an English city. Likewisc

you do not have to understand Jap-inese to get along in Nagasaki. You can talk to these accommodating

progressive and pleasing little people in your own tongue, and they will understand you. People who do not know, who have never informed themselves upon the subject, suppose

the Japanese and Chinese are very much alike; this is a very great mistake. Probably there are no two naions in the world so entirely different in temperment, disposition, manners and intellectual ability, as these ewo nations. The Japanese as a class are great imitators, believe in progress, are always wide-awake, and aspire to education and culture, and are makers of history, and creditable er to aspire to nobler and better hings than the past contain. Who ver heard of a brave Chinaman?

They are as scarce as good Indians.

The Japanese are a brave people; they are progressive and aspire to art and literature; while the yellow opium-dazed Chinese are content to accept without question whatever Confucius said 500 years before Christ and be satisfied with it; they have nothing but contempt for modern thought and modern inventions, they don't want civilization; they simply want to be left severely alone, with their idols, ignorance and opium dreams. Long live the Japanese, and they will live

and thrive, and get there, and are fast becoming a mighty power in the administrative affairs of the world.

As for John Chinaman, I have no use for him; he is an anarchronism; he is century; he believes women should

I will say

The streets and little alley ways are generally crowded with nicely dressed Japs and beautiful Japanese ladies, bewitchingly attired in silken gowns, and always with a scent of persume about their decorated and nicely combed raven hair. Their manners are always exceedingly pleasant, even courteous and polite, and if you are a citizen of the United States, you are treated here as a god, because these friendly little people believe in and highly esteem "Uncle Sam,"and look up to him as the great · balance wheel of the world" and as the representative of the most advanced thought.

is very thickly settled, and you must Nagasaki is a mammoth bazaar in and thickly settled at that.

While I walked the streets of Nagasaki attired in my new soldier's uniform, stylishly dressed Japanese gentlemen tipped their hats to me, and even dainty flower-maidens smiling in all their bewitching lovliness, waved flowers at me as I passed, I tell you it was swell, to have such respect shown me was something out of the ordinary, my feelings and my vanity both rose way above par, I threw my shoulders back, straightened myself up to my full statue, gave my luxurant beard a few swift strokes, eyed myself with self complacency and satisfaction as I passed a shadowed window, and straightway proceeded to imagine myself general so-and-so, of the United States army on a furlough in Japan for my health, but when my vanity subsided, I fell like a busted balloon, and great was the collapse thereof and awful the fall. It was hard for me again think of myself at just a common ordinary every day soldier, and yet a soldier (I will confess it if I must) forever haunted with a ready and impatient muse. But again let us return to Nagasaki, and permit me to lead you where the people dwell, to the side strects where quaint little nipa homes grace each side of the by-ways where lawns of green and flowers, native trees and luxuriant foliage unite to heautify the homes of these inte.esting people, and then let us walk out to the suburbs and glance up across green covered terraces to the mountains beyond. The Japanese air will do you good. We can now say we have been in Japan, quaint, beautiful, enterprising, progressive, aspiring Japan. The empire of little giants. But this is only a flash picture, however, I am yet in Nagasaki, and tomorrow I will visit the famous Japanese Temple. This wonderful historical structure, so quaint in architecture, and so sacred to the Japanese heart, is built high upon a hill vou must even climb stone steps to reach it, but once there the great city with its wonderful wealth of beauty lies far beneath you, and from where you stand you command a magnificient view of this great Japanese hive of industry and thrift; of its beautiful harbor in whose placid waters lie anchored the ships of all nations. The scene is indiscribably grand. We are so overcome by the majesty of our environments that we must have time for re-

like the skies of the Orient a high | flection before writing more, until we visit the temple and learn more of its history, we shall crave your patient indulgence.

YORKSHIRE WHITES.

Refutation of the Claim That They

Blister In the Sun. When a certain breed of stock in which one has been interested for the greater part of half-a century is unfairly criticised by those who are interested in animals of another breed, one is apt to reply somewhat warmly, writes an Englishman in Live Stock Journal. Perhaps I have been guilty of this natural weakness in contraverting the assertions of those who have without any sufficient knowledge of the subject declared that the skins of Yorkshire white pigs blister when exposed to the sun.

It is somewhat curious that at the very time my letters refuting this allegation made by the apologists for the failings of the large black pig were

YORKSHIRE WHITE BOAR.

South Australia was writing to me asking me to ship to him and his sons a number of large white pigs, since he had proved the Yorkshires to be better in form, in quality of meat and in prolificacy than the Berkshires and Poland-Chinas which he had bred and successfully exhibited for many years and the large blacks which were imported last year. He then proceeds:

"The great outcry against white pigs here is that they will blister with our hot sun, but these Yorkshires we have been keeping for some years have stood the sun as well as the Berkshires and the Poland-Chinas. We have also been mating a large number of Berkshire sows with the Yorkshire boars and in all cases have had perfectly white pigs, which, as you will see by some correspondence we are mailing. caused quite a sensation at our last show."

From a newspaper comprising letters which appeared in The Australasian I gathered that great surprise was expressed at the whole of the cross Yorkshire and Berkshire pigs being perfectly white and their evident superiority in thrift and growth over the pure bred Berkshires and Poland-Chinas.

From the above it would appear as though the same parrot cry as to white pigs not standing the sun as well as the black pigs was to be found in Australia and has been also proved as conin this country.

SILAGE FOR HORSES.

Not So Good For Them as For the Other Farm Animals.

Ensilage has long since passed the experimental stage, says C. D. Smead in The National Stockman. As a horse food it is not as good as for other animals, neither are green corn and cornstalks a food that all horses can eat largely without being made sick. But fed in small quantities to 49 out of 50 horses once or twice daily they do well upon it with other food of a dry

Good silage is corn cut in a glazed state and well kept in a silo. The feris practically the same that dry food undergoes after entering the stomach of an animal. The silage that some call sauerkraut is simply food so far digested. This is good silage I am speaking of. Poor silage is poor food when it is moldy or vinegary in its nature. Then it is just like other moldy or sour food and will if largely fed produce similar results. There are a few cases on record where silage was fermented to the extent of making almost corn whisky of it. Horses when largely fed upon it become poisoned the same as they would had they been poisoned upon alcohol, producing a disease something like cerebro spinal meningitis. There are only two conditions under which silage could cause death of horses. The first is the condition of the silage spoken of, and the second they would have had to have been fed a large quantity of it.

Concerning Calf Castration. In my judgment no calf should be castrated under 6 months of age, and where they are not more than usually vigorous and growthy I would allow them to run the first winter and castrate them about the time they start on grass in the spring, writes a Kansas grower to The Breeder's Gazette. However, this extreme age of castration would not be advisable if dehorning is not to be practiced. I do not advocate this method on the theory that it would be less painful or dangerous to the calf, for the reverse is true, but on the theory that the calf acquires a more vigorous and robust constitution, grows a shorter leg, a shorter neck, a stronger jaw, is capable of crushing corn better to until it is 12 or 13 feet high. Beand is in every way nearer the form of an ideal feeding steer.

I would not cut the end from the scrotum, but split the end of each pocket separately; also split the striffen and erty has been overflowed. take each testis out clean with cord. While this operation is in nowise dangerous, it should be done with care and cleanliness.

> Traction Engines Cheapen Harvesting In the immense California wheat fields the modern steam traction engines, or "automobiles," as they are called, have cheapened the cost of harvesting wheat on the Pacific coast so that the grain can be raised there at less actual cost than in the Argentine Joseph Perry, who was sailing the republic, where farm labor costs only a fraction of a dollar a day. These large traction engines of the California wheat fields are of 50 horse-power, and do the plowing, planting, and harvestfields 16 10-inch plows, four six-foot harrows, and a press drill for planttraction engine performs the tripe work of plowing, harrowing, and planting all in one operation.

There is no argument more convincing than one whose premises are supported by dollars and cents, and the following account of an experiment at the Iowa Agricultural college clearly demonstrates the difference in cash returns that may be expected from feedthe two extremes perhaps are used, Campus Martius, Detroit, Mich. the result is not an unusual one.

A Hereford steer made a gain of 2 3-100 pounds per day under feed and was sold at 24 months, weighing 1,624 pounds. A high grade Jersey steer fed under like conditions was sold at 33 months, weighing 1,300 pounds, and for the nine months fed made a gain of two pounds per day. The amount of feed given each of the animals was practically the same, and the feed lot results were practically equal. The gain in weight depends solely on digestion, and the digestion of the unimproved steer or scrub may be just as good or even better than the digestion of the highly improved beef breeds. There is no reason that the latter should give greater returns for the feed. But when these steers were marketed there was a great difference. The comparison was by altogether a different standard. The Jersey sold at $2.12½ below the top of the market and the Hereford for 10 courts above, making a difference of $2.221/2 per 100 pounds. In the sale of the two types the Hereford netted 671/2 per cent of beef and the Jersey 571/2 per cent, the beef type having 10 per cent more

When the carcasses were hung up, that of the Jersey weighed 763 pounds, with 190 pounds of internal tallow and 55 pounds of suet, while the Hereford careass weighed SSS, with 95 pounds of internal tallow and 38 pounds of suet, the per cents of these as compared with the carcass being respectively 32.1 and 15, the proportion of tallow and suct in the Jersey being more than twice as much as in the Hereford. A great point was in the gain of the choice cuts in the beef type, the power of these animals to make the kind of product the market demands, instead of the Jersey putting the gain in tallow while there was not enough flesh on the back to cover decently othe bones. The market returns from the Hereford carcass were 49 per cent Streator. III. more than from the Jersey carcass. The tallow price was 4 cents, while the high priced cuts were 19 cents.

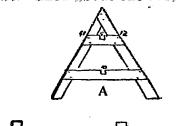

Forcing a Bull Calf. Use of corn, oats, bran and middlings equal parts for concentrates, says The Breeder's Gazette. If the animal is somewhat delicate, make liberal use of oats and bran, more freely than the other articles named. Do not overfeed, but if possible endeavor to have the animal consume and utilize a pound and a half of concentrates for each 100 pounds of live weight. For roughage feed the best provender available. Leguminous hay like that of the cowpea vine, clover or alfalfa is preferable.

HANDY MOVABLE FENCE.

Easily Made and Suitable For Fencing Hogs or Cattle.

Replying to a request for a way to divide a hog pasture without building a permanent fence, G. W. Walker submits this plan in Breeder's Gazette. It may also be used for fencing stock or any similar purpose:

It is made by building panels of fence, taking four common fence boards 6 inches wide and 12 feet long (or 16 if desired) and laying them flat on the floor from four to six inches apart. Then about one foot from each end nail on cleats of same material with clinch nails and also one such cleat in the middle of the panel. Make as many of these as will reach across the field you wish to divide and distribute them where you want to put them up. Now take similar material and make Fig. A as shown in cut, making notches like 9 and 10 in cut two inches wide and three inches deep in center of crosspieces. Make one more of these than you do of the panels and distribute in the same way.

Now stand Fig. A up and place 1 and 3 of one panel together with 5 and 7 of the next panel in notches 9 and 10 of Fig. A, lapping the panels about one foot, and so on until your fence is erected across your field. If you have larger stock than hogs on each side of the fence, you can prevent them rubbing against the fence by stretching one barb wire on each side and fastening with staples to Fig. A at 11 and 12, This makes a very durable fence, which can be put up quickly or taken down quickly and moved or piled away for future use.

Described by a Man Who Knows How It Is Spent.

Practical railroad man, Charles De Lano Hine, is the author of an ac count in the July Century of the way a railroad president passes a repre sentative day;

After being for a few hours with railroad president, one has a better conception of the magnitude of the Chinese treatise on all things The president, perhaps, has just returned from a trip to New York, where he has attend a conference of presidents of allied lines. He has been on the road all night, but, thanks to that business-like institution the private car, often erroneously considered a luxury, he appears is his office fresher for work than the suburbanite who has just come in on the commuter's train. While the president is looking over his personal mail, word spreads about the big building that "the old man is back." Gradually the private secretaries of the different chiefs drop into the outer office to learn from the president's private secretary what business is most like ly to come up first, and what chance there is for action on some pet measure. The bell rings, and for a few minutes the private secretary is closeted with the president. Daily telegraphic reports have kept th president informed of events on the line, but in a surprisingly brief time he learns of smaller happenings, o messages left by prominent callers, and of the general behavior of his chief assistant, the general manager and learns officially some of the things the private secretary has told him as gossip, and many others of greate moment, but perhaps of less real in terest. The half-hour with the gen eral manager may mean decisions in volving the expenditure of hundred: of thousands of dollars. It may mean happiness or anxiety to hundreds of homes. For example, it may be de cided to move the company,s shopfrom Dan to Beersheba. This mean a move for employees, a breaking of home ties, and perhaps disappoint ment to engaged lovers. Again it may be decided to extend the Utopia branch, which means a fortune to investors in land beyond Utopia, and ruin to some in the old terminus. The president may tell the general manager that the demand for a divi dend on the preferred stock is becoming more clamorous, and that they must get along another year without the five thousand new box-cars that are badly needed, and the building of which would affect many idle men The president very likely calls the attention of the general manager to the auditor's estimate of last week's earnings, and asks why expenses cannot be reduced a little more. The president reminds the general manager that the contract for hauling Chicago dressed beef is conditional upon a second-morning delivery at the sea-board two hours earlier than that previously given by a rival line He also observes that the reliability and regularity of the prssenger-trains is helping the Western tourist business, that the delay to the hotel-men's special by a freight wreck last week will hurt the winter travel to Califor nia, and that the new dining car must be made to pay expenses. He ask why the ton-mile cost of moving freight has not decreased in proport-

the general manager whether or not funds are likely to be available whether or not it is politic to antagonize municipal or other interests. The general diplomatically shows the president that the New Orleans cotton raffic is suffering because of the president's order to consider all Minnesota flour as rush freight. He a.ks authority to increase the pay of a superintendent who has a better offer from another road. From the bundle of condensed reports he shows a saving of one hundred tons of coal the previous week by reason of better fuel furnished from new mines. He tells of a new gasolene-engine at Pumptown which will cut in two the monthly bills for water supply for locomotives. He reports a conference with the Mayor of a big city about the smoke nuisance near the freightyards. He opines that the president's last visit to the State capital has killed the Populistic legislature's bill for granger rates. He suggests that it would be well for the passenger department to stop promising the existence of some hard nuts yet dollar excursionists a two-hour schedule for a hard three-hour run. He urges conciliatory measures toward the city council Bucktown, which will repeal the speed ordinance as soon as the old morning accomodation train is restored, and "Number Six" (the St. Louis express) can get through the town on time. In the most nonchalant manner he asks to be excused, that he may catch a ligan, Ohio and Indiana. train leaving in five minutes, as he has an appointment for the next morning some six hundred miles

Before the general manager has finished, the private secretary is entertaining two or three reporters of afternoon papers. The president sees them, comes out, shakes hands, and tells them rates are to be stiffer than ver; that the stockholders are tired of hunting snipe for the fun of hold ing empty bags. He then jocosely isks them for news about his road is be has been in New York helpin. is vife do her shopping. * * *

It is probably the eleverest piece of work Mrs. Trask has ever done. R. K Munkittrick's quaint New England coast yarn has a breeziness .about it that makes it really refreshing. When the Atlantic Was a Continent. Though separated from the Old World by thousands of miles of ocean the American continent contains traces of extinct civilization as advanced as those of Egypt or Assyria. In Yucatan, in Mexico, there are to be found ruins of Cluny's weakness must bring on of magnificent buildings similar in architecture to those of Egypt, while traces of scripture and writing exist also strongly resembling those of that country. There are also proofs that Egypt and Yucatan strongly resembled each other in religion, art and language. Scientists attribute the whole thing to pranks on the part of our planet. They hold that this portion of America was at one time connected with the mainland of the Old World, and that where the Atlantic now is there was once a great continent .--Pearson's Weekly.

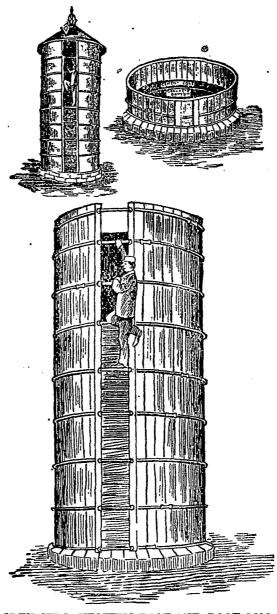

> LAUGH ON THE TEACHER. From the Milwaukee Sentinel: It was at the Normal school that this happened, and the class laughed. It was a laugh on the teacher, too, but he didn't get angry, although it did break into the serious contemplation of serious studies with which he was trying to interest the students. It was in the study of psychology, and they were liscussing what ideas first entered the human mind when certain words were spoken or written—whether the mind thought of one certain object designated by the word of the whole general class which is embodied in that word. To experiment on this mental phenomena, in order to bring it more clearly to the attention of the students, the professor said he would write a word on the board, and then let one of them tell instantly what impression was made upon her mind. He called upon one of the pupils to be ready to think quickly and tell exactly what "pig" and all of the class saw it except the girl who was standing ready to make reply. When he turned, he didn't get out of her way and she couldn't see the word. In reply to his

THE ROUND SILO.

Cypress lumber is undoubtedly the best lumber that grows for silo uses. It shrinks very little and warps scarcely at all.

The patent silo, if it be a first class one, is both cheaper and better than any homemade one, no matter how well built.

Not only are they cheaper, but if bought from a first class firm a patent round stave silo is the best in the world. Ensilage being such a heavy product, the easy, economical handling of it should be considered. With a door silo the plan usually followed is to have about one-half of the front open, the rest closed. This plan, of course, requires much lifting as the ensilage is being taken out. The most desirable way is to have the silo of the continuous open front construction, whereby the entire front can be opened up one board at a time as the feeding from the silo is being done. This makes the door on a level with the feeding surface all the time, and to me this method seems to possess the greatest merit.

Merit In Farm Separators.

The increased value of skimmilk direct from the separator when fed to pigs or calves will in a very short time make a large payment on the machine. Then, too, the very best butter is made from cream direct from the separator. This was shown at the recent creamery butter makers' show at St. Paul, where the first prize butter, scoring 971/2 points, was made at a creamery where 15 per cent of the cream came from the farm separator. The separator saves work in the house and is much easier to clean than a lot of sour cans or pans. It requires but little room and does away with handling a lot of ice to cool the milk. In July and August, when it is almost impossible to get good cream or make good butter by gravity methods, the separator works as usual, and by proper handling of the cream as good butter can be made as during cooler weather.

The matter has been under consideration by the Guernsey Cattle club for some time, owners of Guernsey cattle having felt it an injustice to the breed that there were only their own tales of performance to show for the merits of their animals, and, as the better the performance was the greater the doubts might be, therefore the less they were inclined to give figures.

Our Store's Strong Story for Spring.

Instead of dwelling upon the remarkable growth of this business, from a small store in 1890 to the largest dry goods establishment in the county, we at once call the attention of our readers to the bargains we have to offer. We believe that it will prove more interesting to them to learn how much money they can save at this establishment tomorrow than to read the story of our success In order to fill the store with eager purchasers we quote prices that everyone knows are cheap, we offer values that conclusively prove the importance of the event, and we shall sustain our reputation of 🔯 10 years standing for delivering the goods advertised as advertised. Glance over the lines make your notations and came here tomorrow for the bargains of the year.

We are better on suits than the best lawyer in town—we mean those wash suits. Have you seen them?—Regular beauties, with pretty waists and skirts. prettily trimmed, in dimities, crashes, percales and so forth. You can find them nowhere else. They sell for $3.00, $3.50 and $5.00. See them.

Shirt Waists Here is where we fit. Can't lose us, we're tried on-Sailor collars in white and colors at $1.00. The finest line of white waists we ever had from 100 to 65,00. Colored waists—never such display of pretty things—tur; ...; d marked $1.00.

Kimonas Light and airy, have you seen those pretty ones, hem-titched etc., at $1.00 and those colored ones will go fast at $1.25.

Neckwear We are showing exclusive designs in fancy neckwear and have all their 5°c values beat to death at 25c. Our ribbon department is also full of pretty novelties.

Muslin Underzecar We are solving more underwear this June than we or marny on in April and May. Why? Because there never before was shown such an extensive line at such wonders. Drawers to e.g. Hard to believe isn't it? Skirts, Lonsdale Cambrie, beauties, 50c.
